Call Meeting to Study Water Level Problems

High water levels of the Great Lakes during the present season have caused the destruction of large amounts of property, the loss of valuable frontage along the shores of Lake Huron and Lake Erie.

A conference has been called for Wednesday, September 19, at Lansing by the Water Resources Commission to study the causes and possible remedies.

"The levels of Lake Superior, Michigan, Huron and Erie have again approached record high stages this summer, states Milton P. Adams, executive secretary. Following an anticipated seasonal recession this fall and winter, levels may go even higher next July and August. How will this affect you or your interests? What can be done to reduce injuries or increase the benefits?"

"In view of its recently conferred statutory responsibilities, this commission feels the least it can do is to sponsor and call an initial meeting of representative interests. Qualified speakers within their respective fields are being sought. They will explain the natural and artificial factors underlying Great Lakes stage variations, the injuries caused and known remedies."

"At a time when shoreline erosion damage in Michigan and elsewhere is mounting to new heights, Chicago seeks to take more water from the Huron-Michigan reservoir while Duluth interests would add more to it by drawing down Lake Superior. Michigan is 'in the middle' and can suffer or benefit as these changes, natural and artificial, go on around us. Unless Michigan interests can agree on what is best for them, no progress can be made in prevailing upon our neighboring states, the Province of Ontario, or divisions of our federal government, including Congress, to improve conditions.

Old Timers at Baseball Meet

Old Timers Have Pleasant Reunion Last Sunday

The weatherman finally cooperated with the Old Timers' last Sunday and the Annual Old Timer's Baseball Game turned out to be a success. The Old Timer's Day Committee and the program chairman, Rollie Gackstetter, were gratified with the turn out, even though the turn out was considerably less than the originally scheduled game for July 4th would have been.

Winners in the batting contests were Ab Mallon, 60 and over; Aut Allen, 50-60; Glenn Long, 40-50. They were all presented with autographed baseballs.

Mrs. Albert Mallon was presented with a corsage, being the oldest lady baseball fan present.

Wesley Groff was the oldest baseball fan on hand for the game and was named "Mr. Baseball" and was crowned with an embroidered baseball cap.

Russell Rollin introduced the batters in the hitting contest and was the baseline umpire during the five inning game. J. F. Mark was the official sports caster over the public address system during the game.

The five inning game between Carl Libka's Reds and Clarence MacKenzie's Blues, found the Blue team winning by the score of 4 to 1. "Mubb" Lixey was the winning pitcher, allowing three hits. E. Wegner followed him on the hill and allowed one hit. Jack McArdle went the distance for the Blues, allowing four hits.

Those that participated in the hitting contest and game were: A. Mallon, A. Wuggazer, F. Swartz, E. Moeller, J. LeClair, A. Allen, J. McArdle, A. Bartlett, B. Mark, G. Long, C. McKenzie, C. Libka, E. Sieloff, B. Mark.

F. Bublitz, W. Youngs, B. Boldt, Ed. Libka, M. Lixey, M. Coyle, A. Anschuetz, T. Jacques, J. Gackstetter, Jack Mark, J. Allen, N. Thornton, and E. Davis.

Youth for Chriss Meeting Saturday Evening

Meeting to formulate plans for the fall and winter Youth for Chriss program will be held in the Baptist parsonage in Tawas City Saturday evening at 7:30. Those of the community interested in seeing the program forwarded are cordially invited to attend.

Learning About Depth Perception

"How's your depth perception?" That's what Professor Richard H. Hagelin (standing, right) of the University of Michigan is finding out for high school teachers (left to right) Thomas Shaw of West Branch, Robert H. Brunet of Mayville, and Edward G. Clack of East Tawas (sitting at depth-perception tester). The teachers were part of a group of 72 Michigan educators who last week attended the Seventh Annual Driver-Training Institute sponsored by State Department of Public Instruction, the University, and Automobile Club of Michigan.

AuSable Marathon to Have Junior Race

One of the features of the Annual AuSable River Canoe Marathon, which will be held the week end of August 15 and 16, will be an amateur junior canoe marathon at Mio.

This feature of the big event will be sponsored by the Mio Sportsmen's Club. This race is open to boys not over 16 years of age. Entry blanks may be secured from Harvey Seeley, chairman of the junior marathon committee, at Mio. The race will be held Saturday, August 15.

Other attractions, have been arranged for the day, including canoe tilting. A tug-of-war will be staged across the river between the businessmen of Mio and Fairview. A race between fly fishermen floaters will be held during the day.

There will be no conflict between the program at Mio and the main Marathon event.

Air bombs will signal the arrival at Mio of the first contestants in the annual marathon. Extensive plans are being made at Grayling and Oscoda to entertain marathon contestants and fans.

The Annual AuSable River Marathon has become one of the outstanding attractions. More than 3,000 people greeted the 1950 winners at Oscoda and enjoyed the program which followed.

Heading the list of contestants who finished the 240 mile race last year were Jay Stephan of Grayling and Ted Engle of Gaylord who won a prize of $600.00.

Preliminary Work Started On Hospital

Engineers of the Arthur Vollmer Construction Co., and Frederick Wigen, architect, are here making a preliminary survey for excavations and foundations for the Tawas Memorial Hospital.

Conference to Study Federal Farm Policies

County-Wide Meeting Tuesday Evening at Grant Township Hall

A county-wide farm meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at the Grant township hall. All departments of agriculture working in the county will be represented to accept recommendations for the improvement of programs and policies carried by the several departments. The meeting will start at 8:00 o'clock.

Farm and church organizations and all other groups interested in agriculture in Isosco County are invited to attend this meeting. The viewpoint of rural women will be welcome from home economics clubs, farm women's groups, study clubs and others. Farm organization groups and leaders are urged to attend to present their opinions and recommendations.

Recognizing the importance of the family farm in the preservation and strengthening of democracy both in this country and throughout the world, the Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Land Grant colleges, farm organizations, and other interested groups, has initiated and expects to carry through a nation wide, department wide review and critical analysis of its programs policies to determine the ways in which they can provide more effective and efficient service to the family farm during this period of mobilization emergency as well as in peacetime.

Harold Pfeiffer Demonstrates Flower Arrangements

The Tawas City Garden Club enjoyed a splendid demonstration on flower arrangements Wednesday afternoon by Harold Pfeiffer. He brought many of his own flowers and showed how to arrange them in baskets, corsages, for dining table, and living room and then presented them to lucky winners. Corsages were won by Mrs. J. A. Brugger and Mrs. Jos. Homberg. The dining room arrangement by Mrs. Karl Bublitz. He demonstrated many other arrangements including mantel and straw flowers.

A lovely basket of flowers was presented to Mrs. Forcier in appreciation for the use of the room at Vic and Zell's restaurant.

A report of the splendid display of the garden club at the Fair was given by Mrs. Homberg. A ribbon was won by the club for the third time.

Pfc. Jack Bronson arrived home Sunday from Fort Hood, Texas on a 14 day furlough. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bronson.

Pvt. Frank Toms returned to Fort Campbell, Kentucky after a furlough spent with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Toms. Call FOR RENT—4 room house. 36-1-b 495.

Split Double Header With Pinconning

Protested Game with Pinny to be Played at Alabaster Sunday

Alabaster and Pinconning split in their double header last Sunday in the N.E.M. League playoff. Pinny took the first game 2 to 0 with Salois throwing a five hitter against Alabaster's John Martin. Alabaster won the second game 3 to 1 with Martin making his second appearance of the day on the mound.

This Sunday Alabaster will play off the protested game with Pinny at Alabaster. This will be a nine inning game, with mutual umpires.

In the first game some heavy stickwork by Horn who had three singles and some fancy pitching by Salois, who allowed only five hits, proved to be the downfall for the "White City" boys.

Pinny scored their first run in the second frame and never relinquished the lead the rest of the afternoon. They added an insurance run in the eighth inning.

Clare Herriman led Alabaster's cause with three singles, while McDonnell and Peterson were the only other Alabasterites who could solve the slants of Salois.

John Martin allowed Pinny eight hits, including the three singles by Horn. He fanned nine batters. (Continued No. 4, back page)

Tawas City Defeats Flint All-Stars

Labor Day Game Brings Out Large Crowd

The Tawas City Indies defeated the Flint All Stars on Labor Day, 4 to 3, in a post season game before one of Tawas's largest crowds of the season.

Manager Gackstetter's charges chased the Flint starting pitcher, Hoskins, in the fifth inning with two runs. Mern Warner and Herb Look shared pitching duties for the locals, with Warner pitching five hit ball, allowing three runs in six innings. Look took over in the seventh and didn't allow a hit.

Tawas City's seven hit attack was paced by Bill Groff who had three hits, including one double. Long topped Flint with two hits.

Tawas City played one of their better fielding games of the year, committing only two errors while Flint had three.

Flint drew first blood, when in the second inning they scored once. Tawas City took the lead in the fifth, scoring twice and each team scored once in the sixth.

Flint added another in the seventh and Tawas won the game in the ninth with one more run. (Continued No. 5, Back Page)

W. F. Clapp to be Guest Speaker

Opening P-TA Meeting Next Thursday Evening

W. F. Clapp, Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction, in charge of school reorganization and buildings, will be the guest speaker at the opening meeting of the local P-T.A. Thursday evening, September 13, at the Tawas City Auditorium.

The meeting will be of special interest to the people in this community as the need for a new high school building is one of the important issues to be considered under the proposed school reorganization plan. Following the address, an opportunity will be given for a discussion of the subject.

P-T.A. will again be under the able leadership of Mrs. Robert Connett who will be assisted by the following officers and committee chairmen:

- Parent Vice-President— Mrs. Stanley Humphrey.
- Teacher Vice-President— George Freer.
- Treasurer—Mrs. Carl Schaaf.
- Secretary—Mrs. Cecil Cabble.
- Program Chairman—Mrs. Walter Laidlaw.
- Hospitality Chairman—Mrs. Martin Mueller.
- Refreshment Chairman— Mrs. Howard Hatton.
- Legislation Chairman—Mrs. J. J. Austin.
- Room Mother Chairman—Mrs. Paul Koepeke.
- Finance Chairman—Rev. C. E. Mercer.
- A. E. Giddings, Superintendent, will act in an advisory capacity.

New Industrial Company Now Being Formed

R. J. Goldie President of Organization

To Enter Defense Work; Make Long Range Plans For Future Operations

A new company is being incorporated at East Tawas under the name of Tawas Industrial Works, Inc.

The company's officers will be R. J. Goldie, president; Nathan Barkman, vice president; Don Anderson, treasurer; Paul Harvey, attorney with offices in Bay City, secretary. The four above named, with Elmer Werth, will be the directors of the new concern.

Mr. Goldie was formerly vice-president of the Detroit Timken Axle Co. He is still a member of the board of directors of that company. He now resides at Indian Lake.

They will occupy the building at 358 Sawyer St., East Tawas. Several large pieces of equipment are now on the floor and more is to be added. The company is soliciting defense work in the machining line and is also making long range plans for stable items to be made at the same time.

4-H Leader's Meeting
A 4-H Club leader's meeting will be held next Monday evening at the Grant township hall.

The principal object of the meeting will be to plan next year's 4-H program in the county. Committees on awards will make their reports.

Haab-Boice

Miss Helen Boice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Boice of Ann Arbor, formerly of East Tawas, became the bride of Daniel J. Haab, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Haab of Ann Arbor, at Bethlehem Evangelical and Reformed Church last Friday evening. The ceremony, a beautiful candle light service was performed by Rev. Theodore Schmale, before an altar decorated with bouquets of white gladioli trimmed with satin bows. The bride wore a chantilly lace gown over white satin featured with Peter Pan collar and wrist point sleeves. She carried a cascade of white roses and English ivy centered with orchid.

Miss Carolyn Boice, sister of the bride, as maid of honor wore pale green taffeta with matching jackets featured with Peter Pan collar and short sleeves. The four bridesmaids wore similar styled gowns of emerald green taffeta.

The groom's attendant was Claire J. Eschenback of Ann Arbor.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church parlors for 200 guests.

After a short trip to Buffalo, New York, Mr. and Mrs. Haab will reside in Ann Arbor.

Guests were present from Chicago, Detroit, Lansing, Ypsilanti, East Tawas, Plymouth, Mason, Rochester and Farmington.

Raymond Chandler

Raymond L. Chandler, 66 of East Tawas died at Omer Hospital August 23rd after an illness of three months. Funeral services were held on Saturday, August 25th at 11 o'clock at Christ Episcopal with Canon Warner L. Forsyth officiating. Baldwin Lodge F. and A. M. No. 274 conducted rites at the cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Minnie and daughter, Mrs. Ralph Kuenzel of Pontiac, also a brother, George Chandler of East Tawas.

Big Log Taken from AuSable

Resting on the skidway at the Anschuetz Mill is a white pine log 32 inches in diameter at the top and 16 feet long. The largest log ever brought into that mill states Walter Anschuetz.

The log was part of a tree more than 80 feet long recovered from the AuSable river near Sawmill Point, and had been felled with a saw apparently many years ago.

Walter Anschuetz saws some 2x4's from one of the top logs of the big tree.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round
BY DREW PEARSON

Propaganda War

THE current experiment in penetrating the Iron curtain by balloons may be a great success or it may fail. It is too early yet to say. But the important thing is that it's an attempt by private individuals under the free-enterprise system to try out certain methods of psychological warfare—or call it psychological warfare if you will—which governments will not and perhaps cannot tackle.

Today the state department's propaganda effort is seriously hamstrung by congressional penny pinching, which the American military men who now dominate our foreign policy believe that the only way to stop Russia is to have more and bigger guns. They have little faith in psychological warfare. Accordingly, the national security council has ruled out any strong appeals to the people in the iron curtain countries to revolt, sabotage, or disrupt their cominform governments.

Yet psychological warfare to be successful must offer something—a chance for freedom, for peace, more food or an end of oppression. American propaganda frequently fails because it offers nothing.

The citizen of Czechoslovakia is not interested in hearing foreign radio broadcasts tell him the Soviet system is evil. He knows the Soviet system is evil; what he wants to hear from the Voice of America are ways by which he can throw off the yoke of oppression.

Stalin's Achilles' Heel

These are some of the reasons why private individuals tackled this experiment of trying to make the iron curtain a lace curtain. Personally I am convinced from my last winter's study of the iron curtain countries and from other information that it's not the atomic bomb but contact with free peoples that the Soviet fears most.

Therefore, if we are to win the subjugated nations over to our side, we must inspire them, encourage them and above all, keep in contact with them. It was because Stalin mortally feared such contact that he erected the iron curtain and it is to hit this Achilles' heel that a group of private individuals and organizations, now lauded messengers of hope, friendship and encouragement by radio, into Czechoslovakia.

The people who had the courage to sponsor this project are the American Crusade for Freedom organization, the Inter-American Federation of Free Trade Unions which has been fighting Communism throughout Latin America, veterans or prisoners of war chiefly from Belgium, France, Holland and Italy, the General Federation of Women's Clubs with 5,500,000 members in 32 countries plus another five and a half million in the United States, the A.F.L., Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, the C.I.O., Canadian Congress of Labor, and the International Federation of Free Journalists, comprising about 1,000 newsmen exiled from Soviet countries.

The chief dynamo in this intricate operation has been Abbott Washburn, loaned by General Mills of Minneapolis to the committee for free Europe which has done such an important job of beaming broadcasts into Czechoslovakia and placed the freedom bell in Berlin last year. Harold Stassen, who heads the Crusade for Freedom, has also helped to mastermind the operation.

It is considered especially significant in Europe that these balloons are being aimed at Czechoslovakia after the imprisonment of William Otis and that among their sponsors are the Federation of Free Journalists. Hitherto the United States' official policy has leaned toward paying virtual ransom money when its citizens have been seized by the cominform.

However, it is now realized that the more you pay out in concessions to the Soviet the more Moscow demands in ransom money and the more it is inclined to maltreat American citizens and to increase the blackmail demands. America's cracking down on Czech trade is an indication of this new stiffening of policy by the U.S. and the current balloon operation supplements it. This may help to show the cominform that, instead of taking the abuse of our citizens lying down, we intend to retaliate.

Story of Friendship

Around Europe—Germans crowd around the balloon truck convoy when it sets up operations at night like kids watching circus wagons unload at home. . . One trouble is to keep the crowds from smoking when near the hydrogen tanks. . . Radio free Europe, operated partly by Czech refugees in Munich and financed by the Crusade for Freedom, has poured a daily barrage of messages to the Czech people giving them the story of friendship.

FLOWERS AND WARNING . . . Richard Stokes, head of Britain's oil mission in Iran, is handed flowers and a warning by Persian priest, Seyed Abolghassam Kashani, during a friendly meeting in Teheran. The priest, reported to be the man behind the terrorist who shot Iranian Premier Razmara five months ago, warned Mr. Stokes "to tell the British government that if Premier Mossadegh deviates in the slightest from oil nationalization laws, the people will send him where Razmara was sent." Latest developments in the talks are that agreements are possible.

IKE HAS CHOW IN THE FIELD . . . General Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of S.H.A.P.E., partakes of chow with American officers in the field during his visit with units of the fourth division at Baumholden, Germany. Left to right are Major General Harlan N. Hartness; General Thomas T. Handy, commander-in-chief of EUCOM; General Eisenhower; and Colonel Thomas N. Griffin, General Eisenhower interrupted his vacation to tour and inspect the United States troop elements in the French and the United States occupied zones. He and his wife then returned to Bavaria where they resumed their vacation.

BAPTISMAL IN KOREA . . . Hospital corpsman third class, Theodore M. Hopkins, of Lansing, Mich., is conducting a baptismal service in Korea for Corporal Curtiss Caldwell (right) at a river near a marine command post. In center is Lt. Commander John E. Hollingsworth, chaplain, who is supervising the ceremony. Hopkins is a theological student, who, in addition to his regular duties, is assistant to the chaplain at the marine command post near the battle line.

JUNIOR GESTAPO . . . West Berlin police arrest some 31 members of the "Junior Gestapo" of the Communist youth festival in Berlin who were seizing other Communist youths returning from forbidden visits to the western sector. The young informers, shown in uniform, were arrested when the truck in which they were returning to their quarters was driven by mistake into the U.S. sector of Berlin. They had been stationed along the boundary pointing out wandering comrades.

ABDICATES . . . Marie Aber, Miss Colorado, abdicated her title after returning from a trip to New Mexico during which she was reported missing. She failed to appear at a Jaycees luncheon in Denver to claim $500 wardrobe prize.

ROCKS ON ROXANNE . . . New York model Roxanne wears $3 million worth of jewels from collection of Harry Winston: tiara, $1 million; Hope diamond, $1 1/2 million; star of the east, $450,000; marquis diamond, $250,000.

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS of Main Street and the World

Reds Preach Hate Theme at German Youth Festival; Average Income Up

THE HATE THEME—The world press gave more space to the east German youth festival, during which Red leaders preached a theme of hate of western democracy to 2,000,000 German youths, than any other single event in recent history. The demonstration reached its climax with half a million Soviet-zone boys and girls swearing loyalty to Stalin. From the Communist viewpoint, the festival was one of the most successful propaganda stunts in Red history.

But from the viewpoint of the average boy and girl in the home towns of America, viewing the event from afar, the mass hysteria had such a flavor of Nazism it was nauseating. To the American youngster of high school and college age a football game is of more interest than staged political parades and the wild speeches of fanatics.

American youngsters, however, could not miss the hate theme preached by Red leaders. It was evident in every speech and at every moment during the rally. For the first time many American boys and girls realized there can be only one ending to this build-up—the eventual clash of the free world and Communism.

There was one bright spot in the whole affair. A few of the thousands of Communist youths slipped into the western zone of Berlin for a first-hand look at the "horrible conditions" preached by their leaders. What they found was surprising and revealing. These few learned the truth and may carry it behind the iron curtain to their families and friends.

YOUR INCOME—According to the department of commerce the average income for each man, woman, and child in the United States last year was $1,436, a gain of $116, or 9 per cent over 1949.

The average home-towner, however, had no reason to feel happy about the report. The cost of living increased 6.5 per cent during the same period and the rise in the tax burden cut down the net gain.

The total income to individuals over the nation was a record $217,000,000,000, a gain of 11 per cent over 1949. The department said average incomes ranged from $698 in Mississippi to $1,909 in Delaware and $1,986 in the District of Columbia.

DISAGREEMENT—The senate armed services and foreign relations committees last week issued a statement saying that the group would make no report on the eight-week MacArthur hearing. The committee said that formal evidence of disagreement in the senate on far east policy might have had effect on the Korean-truce negotiations and signing of the peace treaty with Japan next month.

That statement had hardly been made public knowledge when eight senators, members of those committees, issued their own conclusions drawn from the long hearings, calling the Truman administration's far east policy a catastrophic failure. They declared that it "represents the most desolate failure in the history of our foreign policy."

These eight senators have made it clear that there is disagreement in the senate. It would seem, therefore, the conclusions of the full committee can no longer be withheld for reasons given and should be made public immediately. There is little likelihood that it will be, however.

Contrary to what these eight senators may say, there is a feeling in Washington these men put their political ambitions above the welfare of their country as expressed by the full committee's vote to withhold its report for the present.

RUSSIAN PROTEST—There is new evidence that trade reprisals against the iron curtain countries for their anti-American actions are beginning to hurt. The latest evidence comes from no less an authority than the Kremlin itself.

In a note delivered to the state department, the Soviet bluntly accused the U. S. of aggravating serious tension between the two countries by canceling the 1937 American-Soviet trade pact.

Congress ordered the canceling of trade concessions to iron curtain countries early in the year. While the cancellation will not bar Soviet goods from this country, it will increase tariffs on them and make it harder for them to compete in the U. S. market.

The Russians would like to continue their campaign of distortion and abuse against the United States, but at the same time enjoy trade concessions offered friendly nations. The Soviet Union is finding, however, it can't have its cake and eat it too.

ARMY NEEDS—The nation's needs in manpower for this fiscal year—June 30 to June 30—was made known last week. It gives the young men in the nation an idea of what the future holds in store for them.

Selective service announced it expected to draft 300,000 men during the year—an average of 25,000 a month. There have also been reports the army may need 430,000 alone to fill gaps caused by discharges.

Some 550,000 men were called up by draft boards between last September and June 30. The defense department already has asked for 35,000 men in August, 34,000 in September and 41,000 in October.

WEST POINT—The first of the 90 cadets involved in West Point's cribbing scandal left the academy last week. Others will be sent home this week and in the near future.

Five days after receiving their orders the men must report to their draft boards. They must either register for the draft or if already registered, advise their boards of a change of status.

Meanwhile, President Truman has ordered a full investigation of the athletic systems at both West Point and Annapolis to determine if the service academies are overemphasizing football and other sports.

TRUCE TALKS—Conflicting reports continue concerning the possibilities of success in the Korean truce talks. One day there are reports that progress is being made, the next that the talks are near collapse.

At the moment there seems to be little reason to expect a settlement. Red China is reported to have said: "If the American side stubbornly adheres to its unreasonable demand for plunder and rejects the just and reasonable proposal of our side, an agreement will be impossible."

In other words, the Communists are unwilling to compromise on an armistice line. The Allies have indicated they will compromise, but will not accept the 38th parallel.

Meanwhile, the Reds have increased their propaganda campaign with a "people's funeral" for a soldier reportedly killed by Allied troops in the Kaesong neutral zone. It begins to look like the build-up for a break in the truce talks.

FLOOD RELIEF

Kansas-Missouri Relief Funds Asked

President Truman has asked Congress to appropriate $400,000,000 for rehabilitation and relief of sufferers from recent floods in Kansas, Missouri and nearby areas. The President told Congress the area is of such importance to the nation that its speedy recovery is vital.

Under the President's plan some of the funds would be used to pay rehabilitation grants to victims of the floods. A part of it would be used for loans, but many in the area lost everything and now have nothing to put up as security. These persons would have to be aided with outright grants.

To speed action on the measure, Vice-President Barkley referred it to the senate public works and appropriations committees.

"Hot Flashes" Stopped or strikingly relieved in 63-80% of cases in doctors' tests

If you're miserably from the "hot flashes," and accompanying irritable, restless feelings of "change of life"—you may be suffering unnecessarily!
For... in tests by doctors... Lydia Pinkham's Compound and Tablets brought relief from such functionally-caused suffering to 63% and 80% (respectively) of the women tested! Complete or striking relief!
Yes! Research has proved these medicines thoroughly modern in action... has shown you where to look for relief from the distressing, nervous "out of sorts" feelings of mid-life "change"! So... get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—or new, improved Tablets, with the most interesting, nervous "out of sorts" feelings of mid-life (menstrual periods).
It acts through a woman's sympathetic nervous system to relieve distressing "hot flashes" and "hot waves"!

CIVILIAN AIRLIFT

World's First Civilian 'Airlift' Supplies Huge Ore Development

The world's first civilian "airlift" of major proportions is now taking place in the barren wastelands of northern Quebec and western Labrador, where aircraft have really come into their own in the transportation of heavy industrial equipment.

Iron Ore Company of Canada is using "airlift" techniques to rush the development of its Knob Lake mines which lie in the desolate wasteland 320 air miles north of the St. Lawrence River port of Seven Islands, Quebec. With U. S. sources and reserves of top-grade iron ore dwindling at a rapid rate, the pressure of defense production demand for this essential mineral makes every hour count in the development and exploitation of these hitherto almost inaccessible mines.

The above map shows the territory in which the world's first major civilian "airlift" is supporting construction of railroad to fabulously rich iron ore discovery.

by air over the barren, trackless wilderness. The "airlift" is the only possible solution, according to mine officials.

Largest aircraft in the lift is a Fairchild C-119 "Flying Boxcar." This big twin-engine cargo carrier has already flown fifteen big red International TD-14A crawler tractors from Seven Islands to Knob Lake. The tractors were shipped complete minus only their drawbars and track shoes and were driven on and off the plane under their own power. A capacity load for the "Flying Boxcar" is 16,000 lbs. on this trip, just a shade more than the weight of the tractors.

Even rubber-tired earthmoving scrapers of eight cubic-yard capacity for use with the tractors have been carried by the "Boxcar" without dismantling—with one inch to spare on each side.

The Knob Lake airstrip was started in 1947 by a small international crawler tractor, flown in, piece by piece, in a flying boat which was able to land on Knob Lake itself. Now about 5,000 feet long, the gravel airstrip easily handles Douglas C-47s and the Fairchild "Flying Boxcar." The little International TD-6 tractor first brought in is still working on road construction in the area.

TWO YEARS FROM now, the 350-mile railroad now under construction will reach Knob Lake from Seven Islands. In the meantime, the airlift supplies the mine development work at Knob Lake and supplies the construction camps building the railroad by means of two other airstrips along the line.

Hydro-electric power will be developed at two dams to supply power to the mines, railroad, townships, and terminals. Scheduled for first construction is a dam at the rapids of Lake Menihik, which will be of the earth-fill type and will act as a bridge for the railroad. Generating capacity of the power plant at this dam will be 30,000 hp., scheduled for delivery in 1953. The second dam, also of 30,000 hp., will supply power to the ore docks and rail terminal at the town of Seven Islands.

When operations are in full swing, I.O.C. expects to produce 10 million tons a year, with production, transportation, and dock facilities designed for twice that tonnage. But before a ton of ore is moved, close to 200 million dollars will have been invested in the project by that time, about half of the money going for railroad construction.

Russia Lurks in Background of Iran Oil Dispute

By Wright A. Patterson

IN AN EFFORT to settle the difficulty between the Iran government and the Iran-Anglo Oil Company, an English corporation, 54 per cent of the stock of which is owned by the English government, the government of Iran has asked President Truman to act in the capacity of mediator.

He accepted, but it means that the job will be performed by our British born and British sympathizing secretary of state, Dean Acheson. Small chance to get an unprejudiced effort to get a settlement on its merits.

And what is the heated argument all about?

A number of years ago, a group of English capitalists, including the English government, organized the Iran-Anglo Oil Company for the purpose of producing the tremendous amount of oil in the Iran field. After making an agreement with the Iran government, the English company invested more than a billion dollars for a plant that would take the oil from the ground, refine it and market it.

Under the terms of the agreement with Iran, the English company was to pay the government of Iran 20 cents a barrel on all of the oil secured.

That agreement was satisfactory until American oil companies entered the Arabian fields and arranged to extract the oil of those Arabian countries and pay to the governments of those near East nations one half of the profits derived from their operations. Iran demanded a new deal, with a division of the profits on the oil taken from Iran wells. The English company refused to make a new arrangement, but did advance to 26 cents a barrel paid to the Iran government.

The present controversy is over a renewed demand of Iran for a new agreement on a profit-division basis. When that was refused, Iran seized and nationalized the oil fields and the plants of the English company, but because of a lack of trained technicians, Iran cannot operate the enormous plant, and the English government will not permit its citizens to work for Iran, and is taking all of them out of the country.

The only other available source of supply of technicians is Russia. With Russians in charge of that mammoth oil plant, Russia would get the product.

For Russia that represents one of the vital essentials for waging war against the free nations. Without an assured supply of oil, she could not long operate either her planes or her transport.

For the Iranian oil to fall into Russian hands would be a serious blow for the nations of the Atlantic Pact, including especially the United States and England.

The Iran government has announced that all the force that is available will be used to prevent

THE FICTION CORNER

PINKY

By Paschal LaPadula

JULIA WARREN looked up from her pie-baking suddenly, and thought it had happened. "Bud," she called. "Please try to keep Pinky by your side. He'll get hurt if he keeps chasing cars the way he does."

She watched Bud through her kitchen window as he scolded Pinky by waving a fat finger at him. "M u s t n ' t do, Pinky! Mom says you're a bad dog!" Then he pushed along the sidewalk in his wagon, Pinky at his side.

Julia went back to baking her apple pie, a worried look on her face. Pinky was lovable, but his habit of chasing cars through the streets of Collinsville made Julia dread the event which must inevitably occur. Julia had urged her husband Mark to persuade Bud to give up the dog, but Mark was too soft-hearted.

"It will break the boy's heart," he would say. Not nearly as badly as it would if something dreadful happened to Pinky, Julia always thought. That could be something Bud might never get over. That might be something he would always remember like a sharp continuous pain. Julia knew well it would be that way.

She tried to cast thoughts from her mind that were like jagged glass. She opened the oven door, saw that the pie was almost brown enough to take out.

Then she heard it—heard it like she knew she would, like she had heard it once before in the recesses of her mind. Bud's scream, a car's futile brakes, Pinky's agonizing bark.

They buried Pinky in a small wooden box in a corner of the yard among the flowers. Julia put a marker with Pinky's name into the ground while Bud just watched and said nothing.

"Mussn't do, Pinky! Mom says you're a bad dog!"

Julia did not know whether there was more sorrow than relief in her heart. Maybe it was better that it happened now instead of five or six years from now when Bud's love for Pinky would have been too hard for the boy to forget. Bud could forget Pinky now as she had learned to forget . . .

A T dinner that night there were not many words spoken. Mark patted his son's curly head, and tried to console him. "Pinky wouldn't like to see you so sad, son. He'd want you to remember him with a smile on your face, and forget what happened today."

Forget . . . forget. Julia looked at Bud's face and knew he would never forget. Young minds don't forget easily. They don't forget the most important things. Julia knew.

After dinner when the family was in the living room, Mark reading his paper, Bud playing listlessly with his blocks, Julia suddenly put down the sweater she was knitting. She got up from her chair and went towards the door.

"What's wrong, Julia?" Mark asked alarmed.

"Nothing, dear. I must get some air. I think I'll see Helen Reynolds for a few minutes."

It did not take more than a few minutes. Julia was surprised how little time it actually took. If only other people had realized what little time it took.

It was not until Julia had stepped into the living room that Mark realized what Julia had done. He rose to meet her, proud of his wife.

Julia knelt down beside Bud and showed him what her hands held. Bud's eyes brightened. It was a tiny bundle of fur. A month old cockerspaniel with sleepy eyes, and pink ears.

"Pinky the Second," Julia said with a smile. Bud reached out chubby fingers for a new Pinky, a new hope.

Julia was glad she had remembered Helen Reynolds telling her about the litter of pups. She was glad she had remembered one day many years ago when she herself was young with important things in her life.

Julia watched the sadness melt from Bud's eyes as he fondled the pup. She remembered herself as a little girl on the day her own dog had been hit by a car. They thought she would forget. They had not understood . . . for she never forgot.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by ROGER C. WHITMAN

Question: Several times I have plastered bad parts of rooms and each time, try though I may, cracks appear in the plaster upon drying. I have tried retarding the drying, wetting the lath, but to no avail. Can you help me? Also, please tell me how to mix this plaster and in what proportion?

Answer: If you are not trying to replaster an entire room, merely to patch up some cracks or other bad places, I advise you to get a prepared patching plaster which needs only to be mixed with water to make a paste. This is slower drying than plaster of Paris, which hardens too rapidly to be easily worked. (Glue dissolved in the mixing water will slow the time of hardening; so will vinegar, mixed half and half with the water.) If the patching job has been done correctly and cracks reappear, particularly around window and door openings, it is possible that structural weakness is the cause. If so, the defect should be located and corrected.

Question: My husband is remodeling the kitchen, using tile-board for the ceiling. The bathroom is directly above. Whenever water is spilled on the floor it leaks down into the kitchen. We have tried caulking around the fixtures, with little success. What can we do about it?

Answer: The bathroom should have a good waterproof floor covering, such as clay tile, asphalt tile or linoleum. Until you do this, you will continue to have leaks.

He Found Out
How did your father know we used his car yesterday?
Well, you know that fat guy we ran into?
Yes.
That was father.

Speed? Say, that car can't be stopped on the hills.
Mine was that way, too, before I had the brakes fixed.

HADACOL RELIEVES THAT TIRED FEELING, SAYS MR. HARRY ADKINS OF CALIFORNIA

HADACOL Helps Folks With Tired, Run-Down Conditions When Due to Deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

Mr. Harry Adkins, who lives at 5242 Vesper Drive, Van Nuys, California, says he used to feel tired and run-down at the end of a day's work. Now most everybody has to work these days, but it's not necessary to feel tired and drained of energy at the end of the day. For HADACOL can help if you feel tired and run-down when due to a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in the system. Mr. Adkins says he started taking HADACOL and now feels much better—is no longer tired-out at the end of the day and has more energy.

Here is what Mr. Adkins says: "I had been feeling run-down and tired. About three months ago I started taking HADACOL. I had heard about it and how it had helped so many people, so I decided to try it to see if it would help me. After just a short time of taking HADACOL I could tell that I was feeling better. I no longer felt so tired after a day's work—just seemed to have more energy. I think HADACOL is a good product and I recommend it. I take it regularly each day to relieve that tired-out feeling at the end of the day, and it really does work."

Mr. Harry Adkins

HADACOL makes it possible to actually relieve the REAL CAUSE of that tired, run-down feeling when due to the lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin in the system.

AND EVEN MORE IMPORTANT! Continued use of this great HADACOL not only gives continuous complete relief but helps prevent this condition from returning when due to such deficiencies. Now, that's the kind of product you have been waiting for. That's the kind you should buy and start taking at once. And HADACOL is so easy to take—comes in pleasant liquid form and is so easily and quickly absorbed and assimilated in the blood, ready to go to work for you immediately.

HADACOL Is So Effective
Because HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ and to every part of your body. You may have tried other Vitamin preparations or other Vitamin and Mineral preparations, so we make you this offer. Try a bottle of HADACOL today if you need Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron. You be the judge. If you do not believe that HADACOL is the best Vitamin and Mineral preparation you have ever taken, we will gladly send you back your money. That's our positive money-back guarantee. You take no chances.

Refuse Substitutes
And remember! There's only one HADACOL. Don't let anyone tell you something else is "just as good." Insist on genuine HADACOL. You risk nothing because HADACOL is sold on a strict money-back guarantee.

Sold at all drug counters. Trial size, $1.25, but buy the large family size, only $3.50. If your dealer does not sell HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana.

Notice of Letting of Inter-County Drain Contract and Review of Apportionments

of the County Line Drain
Notice is Hereby Given, That we, Charles C. Kurtzrock, Percy A. Crawford, County Drain Commissioners of the Counties of Iosco and Arenac, State of Michigan, and John Hudson, Deputy Commissioner of Agriculture, will, on the 14th day of September, A.D. 1951, at the Southeast corner of Section 32 in the Township of Sherman, in said County of Iosco, proceed to receive sealed bids until 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, when bids will be opened and publicly announced for the construction of a certain Drain known and designated as "County Line Drain," located and established in the Townships of Sherman and Burleigh, County of Iosco; Township of Turner, County of Arenac;

LEGAL NOTICES

Said drain will be let as follows, having the average depth and width as set forth: All stations are 100 feet apart.
One section beginning at station number 0 at the lower end of said drain and extending to station number 99-27, a distance of 9927 feet, and having an average depth of 5.42 feet, and a width of bottom of 4.00 feet.

Said job will be let in accordance with the diagram now on file with the other papers pertaining to said Drain, in the office of the County Drain Commissioners of the Counties of Arenac and Iosco to which reference may be had by all parties interested, and bids will be made and received accordingly. Contracts will be made with the lowest responsible bidder giving adequate security for the performance of the work, in the sum then and there to be fixed by us, reserving to ourselves the right to reject any and all bids, and if no satisfactory sealed bids are received, we reserve the right to proceed immediately after rejection of sealed bids and at the same time and place without further notice to let the contract by open bidding, likewise reserving the right to reject any and all such open bids and to adjourn such letting to such time and place as we shall publicly announce.

The date for the completion of such contract, and the terms of payment therefor, shall and will be announced at the time and place of letting. Any person desiring to bid on the above mentioned work will be required to deposit with the Drainage Board a certified check or its equivalent in cash to the amount of Two Hundred dollars as a guarantee that he will enter into contract and furnish the required bond as prescribed by law. The checks of all unsuccessful bidders will be returned after contracts are awarded. All bids must be made on bidding blanks furnished by the drainage board. All excavations shall be bid by the rod or lump sum and not by the cubic yard.

Notice is Further Hereby Given, that on Friday the 5th day of October, 1951, at Southeast corner of Section 32 in the Township of Sherman, County of Iosco, or at such other time and place thereafter, to which we, the Drainage Board aforesaid, may adjourn the same, the apportionment for benefits and the lands comprised within the "County Line Drain Special Assessment District," and the apportionments thereof will be subject to review for one day, from nine o'clock in the forenoon until five o'clock in the afternoon. At said review the computation of costs for said Drain will also be open for inspection by any parties interested.

The following is a description of the several tracts or parcels of land constituting the Special Assessment District of said Drain, viz.:

County of Iosco at large:
Township of Sherman at large:
The following lands in Sherman Township, T. 21 N. R. 6 E.:
Entire Section 31 except 20A. of N. 1/2 of N.E. 1/4; Entire Section 32 except N 1/2 of N.E. 1/4 and 20 A. of S. E. 1/4 of N.E. 1/4; S. W. 1/4 of Section 33 except 50 A.; Right of Way of Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company through and across the N.W. 1/4 of Section 31.

Township of Burleigh at large:
S 7/8 of E. 1/2 of S. E. 1/4 of Section 36, T. 21 N. R. 6 E. except 86.40 A.
Also lands in Arenac County.
Now, therefore, all unknown and non-resident persons, owners and persons interested in the above described lands, and you County Clerk of Arenac County; Chairman of Arenac County Road Commission; Supervisor of Turner Township, Arenac County; County Clerk of Iosco County; Chairman of Iosco County Road Commission; Supervisor of Sherman Township Iosco County; Supervisor of Burleigh Township Iosco County; are hereby notified that at the time and place aforesaid, or at such other time and place thereafter to which said letting may be adjourned, we shall proceed to receive bids for the construction of said "County Line Drain," in the manner hereinbefore stated; and also, that at such time and place as stated aforesaid from nine o'clock in the forenoon until five o'clock in the afternoon, the apportionment for benefits and the lands comprised within the County Line Drain Special Assessment will be subject to review.

And You and Each of You, Owners and persons interested in the aforesaid lands, are hereby cited to appear at the time and place of such reviewing of apportionments as aforesaid, and be heard with respect to such special assessments and your interests in relation thereto, if you so desire.

Charles C. Kurtzrock,
County Drain Commissioner
County of Iosco.

Percy A. Crawford

TRAIL BLAZER - with plenty on the ball

How long since you lifted the hood of a car, and took a good look at what's beneath? We like to have folks do that with a Buick. You'll find that broad bonnet isn't put there for show. It's packed with horsepower—high, wide and handsome—more horsepower than normal drivers will ever use in full. And—if you're up to date on modern features—you'll find that this bonnet is packed with these too. Do you know, for example, that every new engine introduced or previewed in recent years is built on the valve-in-head principle? Score one for Buick. No Buick engine has ever been built in any other way. Do you know what it takes to make full use of high compression? A valve-in-head engine!

Score two: Buick has been stepping up compression ratios for years. But Buick has blazed one trail which other engines still haven't followed—don't ask us why. Every Buick has a Fireball Engine which, as we've said before, is like having a string of comets by the tail. Fact is, in every flame-packed cylinder there is a comet—rolled into a swirling ball by a special turbo-top piston—touched off by a flashing spark every 5 inches you travel in a Buick. That's why we're proud to show folks that Buicks have a Fireball engine—and prouder still to have them take one of these thrilling performers out on the road. Want to try it? Come in and see us soon.

RESIDENT A SERIAL STORY BY LUCY AGNES HANCOCK NURSE

THE STORY SO FAR:
Gay Gaynor, orphan, with an ingrained hatred for playboy Thad Borden because he kissed her against her will, scours the emphy of Mrs. Overton, orphanage superintendent, because she won't allow Mrs. Overton to move injured Benny Henton until the doctor arrives. Mrs. Overton bars Gay from further shelter at the "home," forcing her to take employment as a nursemaid with Miss Alden, a semi-invalid who is applied at the orphanage for "three help." Miss Alden, called "Aunt Grace" by Gay, turns out to be a kind, considerate lady who learns to love Gay with a mother's affection and refuses to treat her like a servant.

CHAPTER III

And now Bill Graves was working in the tool plant and attending night school. He was growing into a fine young man, eager, ambitious and willing to make any sacrifice in order to reach his goal. He intended becoming a commercial artist and old Oscar Willets, a local cartoonist, was encouraging and helping where he could. Miss Alden enjoyed the evenings he spent with Gay in the bright living room. He didn't come often, but when he did it was a gala occasion and each time the improvement was apparent. His manner changed, and his English.

Oh, yes, Miss Alden felt her investments were paying rich dividends—such delightful dividends! But she was a little worried, too. Gay appeared completely indifferent to the opposite sex. Oh, there was Bill, of course, a year or more younger, although at seventeen nearly a head taller, but Gay treated him like a brother. It wasn't natural. She, herself, had had beaux when she was but sixteen—several beaux, but not Gay. Boys came calling—invitations arrived via telephone, messenger and even in person, but it was only occasionally the girl went out and only then because Miss Alden insisted and had invited a friend or neighbor to spend the night with her. No, Gay appeared perfectly happy and contented without boy friends and yet she was nearly nineteen—a lovely nineteen.

Life's Too Short To Bear Grudges

Doctor Borden laughed at her fears and assured the anxious foster parent that when Mr. Right appeared Gay would quickly shed her attitude of indifference to the troublesome sex and fall violently and completely in love. She was the type—according to the good doctor.

"I thoroughly dislike Thad Borden, Aunt Grace," Gay protested when the older woman tried to make her see she was hurting the doctor. "He's fresh and conceited—and hateful and I want nothing at all to do with him."

It was two days later that Thad accompanied his father when he made his usual professional visit to the Alden house. But he remained outside in the car and Gay breathed a sigh of relief. The next day, however, Thad came alone and Gay let him in. He tried to talk to her but she excused herself after showing him out to the pleasant, shaded porch where Miss Alden sat, a thin volume of verse on the reading stand before her. Thad had always been dear to Miss Grace and she exclaimed her pleasure when she saw him. He sat down close to her.

"She's still carrying a chip on her shoulder—after all these years, Miss Grace," Thad grumbled after a moment. "Life's too short to bear grudges."

"Just what is there to it, Thad?" Miss Alden asked. "Gay won't talk. What did you do to her? It must have been something pretty bad."

"It was ages ago—maybe I was sort of fresh—feeling my oats. I teased her and that youngster she was so crazy about and she slapped my face. Of course there was only one answer to that. I kissed her. Gosh, Miss Grace, that's no crime—"

"Where and when did all this happen?"

"Oh, years ago—four or five. It was at a picnic the Rotary gave the kids at Bethesda. Don't think I care a hoot, Miss Grace—only well—anyway, I hate anyone carrying a grudge forever. Makes me feel—well—uncomfortable—like a heel, and, Miss Grace, I'm not a heel—or am I?"

Miss Alden looked grave. "I think I can see Gay's point, Thad," she told him. "After all, she was an orphan—a charity child if you will, while you were a glamour boy—popular and sought after. She knew you wouldn't have dared treat—say—Vivian Poole so summarily. And, by the way, what is this I hear of your engagement to Vivian?"

"But I meant no harm, Miss Grace," he protested, ignoring her question. "What's a kiss these days? Everyone kisses—it means absolutely nothing. She slapped my face and I retaliated. That's all there was to it—and she makes it a point to ostracize me—makes me feel like something that had just crawled out from under a stone and somehow wishes he hadn't." Miss Alden smiled and the young man frowned. "It makes it worse because Dad thinks the world of her, Miss Grace," he went on morosely. "He's sure as anything it's all my fault—that I'm to blame."

"We'll," Miss Alden said reasonably, "aren't you?"

"But I've tried to apologize—I've said I was sorry. Ages ago I told her that, but she treats me as if I weren't there."

"I wouldn't take it too much to heart, Thad," she told him gently. "After all, you aren't likely to see a great deal of each other. Gay won't go out much—prefers to stay with me—feels she owes it to me, which is of course nonsense. The girl owes me nothing. Anything I have ever done for her has been repaid many times over. But she has an exaggerated sense of loyalty and I am selfish enough to be glad. I love that child, Thad. I won't have her hurt—by you or anyone else. Understand?" Thad continued to scowl and again she asked about his reported engagement, but with an impatient shake of his head he brushed the question aside.

"We've discussed Gay quite enough," Miss Alden said firmly. "I refuse to say more. Forget her."

"Small-town rumors, Miss Grace," he said curtly. "Do you know anything about her family? Who her parents were—her family—her background?"

Somewhat puzzled at his persistence, Miss Alden explained all she knew. "The records were destroyed during the fire a decade and more ago. The shock killed Miss Gaynor, Gay's great-aunt, and the girl was too young at the time of her parents' death to remember much if anything about them. They were killed in a train wreck and the child brought to her only known relative who was then matron at Bethesda. Why do you ask?"

Family Background Is a Mystery

"For no particular reason," Thad murmured. "Someone asked me the other day and I had to confess I knew nothing at all about her. Hasn't anyone ever tried to discover a possible relative, Miss Grace? It isn't to be supposed that she is all stark alone in the world."

"She isn't," Miss Alden replied sharply. "She has me and—"

"I'm sorry. I meant, of course, blood relations."

"I don't think Gay cares a great deal, Thad. She is an independent girl, quite capable of looking out for herself. Circumstances have given her strength of character, poise and an intense self-respect. It hasn't been easy for her to combat the stigma with which many people so foolishly and unfairly brand those reared in an orphanage. Bethesda is neither better nor worse than the average orphan's home. There are good and bad elements in all of them—products of unfortunate marriages or broken homes, Thad. Some of our finest men and women—the ones who have made the world a little better for their having lived—were products of orphanages."

"Of course, Miss Grace," Thad assured her, "but just the same there may come a day when she might want to know—"

Miss Alden shook her head and her voice was cold as she answered. "That day will never come. Thad, Gay is a real person in her own right. I have no doubts on that score. I understand your party was a great success—that the elite of Bessemer turned out to do you honor. Your father was pleased."

"Not so very, Miss Grace. Gay refused his invitation. Why?"

"We've discussed Gay quite enough," Miss Alder said firmly.

"I refuse to say more. Forget her, Thad. I doubt if you can ever be friends. She doesn't need you nor do you need her. When do you go back to school?"

"Oh, I have another year at Cornell and then I'm coming back here to intern in Memorial. Dad wangled a place for me here—wants me home, I guess. The house gets pretty lonely for him with me gone."

"Your father works much too hard, Thad," Miss Alden said. "It will be fine when you can relieve him of a part of his work. I hope you will be as good a doctor as your father."

It was quite by accident that Gay heard of Thad's engagement to Vivian Poole. Of course she had heard rumors, but Miss Alden had told her that Thad, while not denying the eventuality, had dubbed the report just a small town rumor. However, it was now, apparently, an actuality. Doctor Borden was confiding in Miss Alden and didn't seem too pleased.

"Don't get me wrong, Grace," the doctor said. "I have nothing against the girl. She's beautiful, not too dumb and her family is, perhaps, Bessemer's topnotcher. But—Thad needs someone to bring out the best in him. He's got plenty of the right kind of stuff, my dear. I should know. I'm his father. He's clever—a worker when let, but Vivian's too fond of society. I can't imagine her being satisfied with the scraps of time Thad will be able to give her, any more than I can see her contented as the wife of a small-town doctor. Somehow I have a notion Bessemer is too small to satisfy Vivian."

Doctor Can't Agree Vivian Loves Thad

"But as a specialist Thad won't be so fully occupied, will he, Doctor?" Miss Alden asked. "The specialists I know devote only certain hours to the public good. They make few if any house calls and—"

"But Thad won't be that kind of a specialist, Grace. He is interested in certain diseases, perhaps, but he is coming in with me as my associate. I've dreamed of that sign in front of my office ever since the boy made his appearance in this tough old world. BORDEN AND SON, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. His mother dreamed with me and we planned how when Thad married we would divide the house—make two separate apartments with our offices in the center—between the two—right where the vestibule is. Plenty of room there for us both. But after Marcia went—well, I sort of thought that perhaps Thad and his wife would let me have a room somewhere in the place and they could live right on there in the old home."

"And now?"

"Somehow, I can't imagine Vivian Poole living in my old home, Grace. In fact, I understand Sam thinks of building a place for them over on North Hill not far from his own ugly mansion. Oh, well, maybe I'm a selfish, doddering old fool to want Thad with me. After all, he must live his own life and do as he wishes. I did."

"You did not," Miss Alden said with spirit. "I happen to know that you had a splendid offer to settle in Denver, but you stayed right here in Bessemer because your father wasn't strong and needed you. Marcia managed that big house after your mother died and I believe she was a happy woman. I don't think you have ever regretted staying on. Have you, Doctor?"

The man shook his head. "Never for one moment. That's what bothers me. Marcia was a different type. She was a nurse, of course, and perhaps that made her more adaptable. Oh, well, Thad will have to work out his own problems, I suppose. But I wish—"

Gay, who had been busy putting a hem in one of her gingham house-dresses, wasn't aware she had been eavesdropping until she heard Miss Alden say, "Wouldn't you like a cup of coffee, Doctor. You look tired. Gay will make you a cup in a jiffy. You sit still and I'll call her. She can't have gone far." She rang the bell on the table beside her and Gay put down her work and went to her. The doctor looked a little nonplussed and Aunt Grace said, "I thought perhaps you were upstairs or in the garden, Gay."

"No," the girl answered quite calmly. "I was in the library sewing, Aunt Grace. What is it you want?"

"Doctor Borden feels like a cup of your famous coffee, my dear, and you might make him a sandwich to go with it."

"Will you have it here, Doctor? Shall I make a cup for you, too, Aunt Grace? I can put up the card table and will have everything ready in a jiffy."

She left the room and for the first time knew a feeling of guilt. It had all been perfectly innocent and quite unintentional.

Why Is the Church?

Lesson for September 9, 1951

WHAT use is the church? What difference would it make if it were disbanded?

A woman bought a vacuum cleaner on trial, but after using it a while she decided it wasn't any better than an old-fashioned carpet-sweeper and she sent for the man to take it away. When he came around, he discovered that she really did not know how to use the thing. All the attachments were still in the box; she had never found out what they were good for, and so she never realized how useful a "vac" can be.

It is something like that with the church. It has many uses which are seldom discovered.

Tell the Church
THE main and most important feature of the church is that it is a fellowship. This should be far more, far deeper, than a mere label.

One rarely-used function of the church was suggested by Jesus. In a quarrel, he said, the first thing to do is to settle it between yourselves. If that will not do, then take a few people with you and see if a small group can reach agreement. If not then "tell the church."

Probably the average congregation today, as a whole, would be a poor judge of quarrels. But suppose some church tried the experiment of forming a kind of consultation-group, made up of the wisest and most Christian persons in it; and suppose members of the church who had differences which would ordinarily be taken into court, were encouraged to consult those counselors for help—wouldn't some quarrels, that now reach the courts, never get that far?

Common Treasury
SOME weeks ago it was suggested here that in some communities the church sees to it that no member of the church goes without a job. It is also a fact that in some congregations either a committee of the officers, or the minister, is entrusted with a fund, sometimes called the Deacon's Fund and sometimes the Emergency Fund, to be used in taking care of real financial emergencies, for the benefit of the members.

Sometimes it is used as a revolving loan fund, sometimes as outright gifts. No detailed accounting is made, because it is important that no publicity be given to the needy cases; hence those who administer the funds have to be persons who can be fully trusted.

The "needy cases" may not be charity cases in the usual sense. The point is that a church can be a fellowship so close that a person in physical or financial need would think of it as a source of help just as quickly as he would think of his own family. It is his family.

Making Love Real
THE fact is, if there had not been real fellowship in the church all these centuries, it would not have lasted as it has. No outfit can run on and on for centuries if all it does is to provide jobs for a few jobholders.

No, there has been real family fellowship in the church. It does not always come out in official actions of church boards, but the thing is there. Preachers talk about love, and Sunday school lessons mention it. But this is not all. There are enough persons in the church making love real, (see Moffatt's translation of I John 3:18), to more than justify the church's existence.

A poor woman who was in the grip of the drink habit had a Christian woman friend. This friend said to her, "When you feel the craving coming on, even if it's in the middle of the night, call me and I'll come right down and we'll fight it through and pray it through together."

That was what did it. Not the sermons, not the books on temperance, but the fellowship of a woman who would get up in the middle of the night to help her friend through a desperate struggle.

Happy is the person who finds a church where there are people like that. For that is what Christian fellowship is: making the other person's cause and troubles your own.

Fact and Fancy Shrouds Popular Pelican Clan

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Is it true that the pelican is the only bird offering social security benefits to its aged?

The romantic but persistent voice of legend says yes. The tale is told that when parent pelicans get old and feeble the younger members of the family take over. The "children" catch and store fish in their own pouches, it is said, in order to serve dinner to nest-ridden elders.

On cold and bitter nights the young are reputed to pull the warm blanket of their wings and bodies across the shivering oldsters. And, according to legend, if a move from the nest is necessary, the strong younger generation will bear weak parents away on their own broad backs.

The pelican's reputation for parental self-sacrifice, however, is even stronger than that for filial devotion. During ancient and medieval times it was generally believed that the mother pelican would give her own life's blood to starving youngsters in days of famine. The story lives today on the official seal of the State of Louisiana and in countless examples of early religious art throughout England and France.

Stranger Than Fiction
Although most authorities discount such tales, the facts of pelican peculiarities often do seem stranger than fiction. The big bird lives almost entirely on fresh fish. He is, therefore conveniently equipped with a fish-netlike appendage that swings grotesquely beneath his long beak.

North America's two members of the family—the brown pelican of the southern coasts and the white pelican of western lakes—both show astonishing skill in fishing. Yet their methods are entirely different. The smaller brown pelican works alone. He cruises along at from 25 to 50 feet above the water until he sights a fish. Going into a power dive, he hits the water fast with his mouth open. The fish goes into the pouch, the water drains off, and dinner is served.

The white pelican—one of the oldest surviving forms of bird life in the world—is highly social, flying in companies and nesting in colonies. His fish are caught in cooperation with his fellows. Working as a team, white pelicans fly to the off-shore fringe of a school of fish, land on the water in a semi-circle and drive the school toward land. In the shallow water the fish are scooped up in the pouch-nets.

Modern Trick
The pouch has another, equally serviceable, use. Bald and helpless baby pelicans cannot digest whole fish. Their parents do it for them. At meal time the older birds provide a highly nourishing fish soup which is served to youngsters from a large, leak-proof soup tureen—the pouch, of course.

Although no longer considered a paragon of virtue, the pelican has retained the respect and affection of mankind through the centuries. It is now generally understood that the bird confines his diet largely to trash fish, which have little or no commercial value to man.

Automatic Unit Lifts Car Top When It Starts to Rain

MIAMI, Fla.—The newest thing on the automobile market will be available soon—an automatic unit that puts up the top of a convertible at the slightest start of a rain.

Jimmy Long, 35-year-old amateur inventor, says he has solved the problem of getting up the top when it starts to rain without leaving the comfort of the office or home. Called an automatic rain cell, the gadget is the size of a shoe polish can and can easily be mounted on any flat surface of the car.

The secret of the operation, the inventor says, is that water conducts electricity. When rain begins, it completes an electrical circuit, between a series of disks, starting the raising mechanism. The first drop of water that strikes the disk will set off the action to raise the top and all the windows.

The unit, which will sell for around $60, should be on the market during August.

Owning Unique Automobile Has Drawbacks, It Appears

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Johnny Tortore doesn't have the largest car in town, but he certainly has as many, or more, parking troubles than anyone else.

Johnny points with pride to "Old Betsy," but admits that owning such a model sure has complications. The car is a sleek maroon Buick—vintage of 1911. It takes a bit of cranking to get "Betsy" rolling and even then she lurches awkward being driven from the right side.

The trouble, however, is in parking. The vehicle just draws too much attention from pedestrians. Johnny always seeks out the most inconspicuous parking places, but such is hard to find. Admiring passers-by have snatched everything from the rubber ball on the horn to the brass lantern from time to time.

Fishing Pressure

A contributing factor to the panfishes getting out of hand is the differential fishing pressure. The fisherman prefers to take home the large bass and crappie. He is not usually satisfied to take home a catch of smaller perch or bluegills or sunfish. He cannot brag about them or does not feel happy showing them to his friends. But give him a four or five pound bass and you hear about it for weeks.

Thus by taking his limit in big fish he is reducing the potential of that lake for keeping the more prolific panfishes under control. It is known that some fishermen fish only for bass and take no perch, bluegills, sunfish or small crappies at all. It sometimes seems as though it would be a wise policy to insist that fishermen be required to take some panfish when they take bass or other predatory fishes. This, of course, would be almost impossible to enforce but a code of ethics on the bass fishermen's part might go a long way toward helping this unfavorable situation.

For farm ponds the stocking recommendation for a ratio between bass and bluegills is 10 bass to 100 bluegills. Carrying this over, then it would seem logical to have the fishermen attempt to take 10 bluegills for each large bass he caught.

Not So Crazy

"Crazy like a goose!" Ever hear that expression?

But don't believe it! Colorado's experience the past winter in live-trapping and banding the wild Canadian goose at Two Buttes Reservoir has convinced at least those assigned to trap them that geese are far from crazy. The trapping project was Colorado's first venture on geese, although the department has trapped and banded thousands of ducks the past few years.

Last fall and winter over 16,000 wild geese used the Two Buttes Reservoir, almost twice as many now as when the refuge was first established. So it is quite evident that where protection and proper environment prevail, the flocks show a steady increase.

It was discovered almost immediately that, although some duck trapping techniques were similar, goose trapping would call for several basic changes, due to the unique social patterns and habits of geese. For instance: hungry ducks readily decoy to the baited trap areas and walk into the trap. Geese decoy to the traps but there the similarity stops. It was found that they would not hurry into the trap for bait. In addition, mated pairs seemed to be together at all times and would not leave each other near the traps. Wild ducks, on the other hand, generally pair off in the spring and are therefore much easier to separate and trap during winter.

The nostrils of the giraffe are heavily lined with stiff hairs as a protection against the great number of insects the animal disturbs when it browses in the branches of trees.

Use A Dog

When you meet a hunter who is accompanied by a well-behaved, sleek-coated retriever, you usually may place the man in the ranks of the wildlife conservationists without knowing anything more about him, the Wildlife Management Institute comments.

Each year, many game birds are shot but not recovered by hunters. Inexperience at judging range and poor marksmanship account for many birds which are brought down but which retain enough life to slip into a tangle of rushes where the most conscientious search will fail. Others, clean-killed, may drop in water inaccessible to boats or into impenetrable thickets. Whatever the cause, the result is one more bird, uncounted in the bag, eliminated from the game population and wasted. In making these humanly impossible recoveries, the retriever finds his greatest joy. The occasional freak shot that brings a duck plummeting into the blind, exciting enough to the hunter, cheats the waterfowl dog of his greatest thrill. What he craves is the action of launching himself after a duck downed in some rush-grown quagmire where a mere human would flounder to the crown of his cap. The use of a dog, in such cases, means the difference between bitter disappointment and a red-letter hunt.

Good Technique

Have you ever had the aggravating experience of being on a good bream or crappie pond with an excellent "rise" on and still couldn't interest any of the fish in your flies? It's happened to us often, but we have one technique that frequently overcomes the problem. That is to give your leader a quick jerk just as the flies are about to settle on the water. If this doesn't interest the rising fish retrieve the fly slowly.

AROUND THE HOUSE

When pruning trees, scars should be covered with a protective coating. A coat or two of fresh orange shellac is advised. Bark scraped off a tree also needs a protective coat.

Broadcast an application of plant food on the vegetable garden before plowing and follow up with row applications when the vegetable seeds are planted.

Water peonies frequently and thoroughly to fill out the buds. Don't worry about the ants running around on the buds for they do no harm. Legend has it that the ants nibble at the bud covering, enabling them to open more easily and perfectly.

Start planting window boxes. For a sunny exposure use geraniums, petunias, lobelias, lantana, verbena and nasturtiums. For semi-shade use begonias, impatiens, and fuchsias.

In the ninth Gracik led off with a single and was advanced to second on a sacrifice by Hill. E. Erickson came through with a single to drive in the winning run later, pitcher Martin doubled Erickson home.

Horn and Martin were the opposing pitchers in the nightcap, and the fans witnessed a real pitcher's duel, with Martin allowing five hits, 4 bases on balls, struck out six. Horn allowed seven hits, three coming in the last inning, struck out three and issued only one pass.

Cliff and Elmer Erickson were the heavy stickers, each getting two, while Pommerville had two for Pinny.

A Day Worth Waiting For!

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

There are but few times in a man's life when he gets a thrill that matches the one he gets when he takes delivery of his first Cadillac.

We've watched it happen many, many times—and it never ceases to be a heart-warming experience.

You see—a man isn't simply buying a motor car when he gets his first Cadillac. He is marking a milestone in his life.

For years, he has been saying to himself that, some day, he would step up to a Cadillac.

All this time, he has seen it as something he wanted to do for his family... and as a sort of personal reward for the effort and planning that have gone into his own work.

And when you watch him slide over behind the wheel

—well, it's a thrill just to be there. He's a proud and happy man as he turns the key in the ignition switch—and hears the deep-throated answer of the powerful engine.

If you are one who has been looking forward to a Cadillac—we think you would be well advised to come in and place your order now.

There's a little delay these days before a Cadillac can be delivered—and obviously, the sooner you place your order, the sooner you'll get your car.

And when the great day comes, you'll know at once that it was well worth waiting for—because all the things you've heard about a Cadillac are doubly true.

It isn't just a motor car. It's a wonderful contribution to a wonderful way of life!
