'Agricultural Policy Forming' Meeting Brings Out Criticism

Farming Area Well Represented

Meeting Held Tuesday At Grant Town Hall

Rural representation from every section of Iosco county took active part with no punches being pulled in the Family Farm Policy review meeting held at the Grant township hall Tuesday evening, September 11.

The meeting was called by the United States Department of Agriculture for the alleged reasons of wishing to find from the people themselves ways in which the department might improve its programs so that they would be of more benefit to the family farm.

Speaking for their respective departments, the group heard from John Franson, forestry; Harold Clark, county agent, representing extension service; J. Duffy and Earl Partlo, Production Marketing Association; and Mr. Johnson, speaking for both Soil Conservation and Farmer's Housing Administration.

James Mielock, director of State Farm Bureau and prominent local ranchman cautioned the assembly at the beginning of the open discussions when he stated:

"We have a situation here that is not good. The United States Department of Agriculture is an administrative unit of government created to administer laws as set by the Congress of the United States. Here we have this government agency reaching out in a series of policy forming meetings called by themselves, conducted by themselves, submitting their own policies and finally certifying the results."

Ted Anschuetz, prominent county potato farmer, blasted the price support section of the Production Marketing Association when he recalled the recent potato surplus where potatoes were piled high and burned and also dyed and sold exclusively for livestock feed at one cent per hundred or for payment of the freight only from the place of production to the livestock feeder.

Farmers in general expressed bitterness at the present administration of price supports and the Brannan plan of direct subsidy payments. The entire group went on record as being in favor of letting supply and demand govern production and to forget price supports and direct subsidy payments.

George A. Prescott, Iosco County Clerk and dairy farmer said that administrative costs were terrific.

"When we get price support and subsidy payments it's simply a matter of receiving the money in the right hand pocket and then turning right around to pay it out for USDA department costs of operation," he said. "The 1950 census of the United States shows five and one half million farmers in this country. Allegedly looking after their welfare are 200,000 United States Department of Agriculture employees. That means, Prescott said, there is a paid Department official looking after each twenty seven of us. We can't afford the guidance even though it suddenly emerged from its present chaotic state."

The Brannan plan of direct payments and the Production Marketing Association were expressly singled out for criticism. Farmers do not want direct payments and they also feel that the PMA is getting in over its head. As far as the triple A organization it aided for.

Alabaster Loses in League Semi-Finals

Alabaster lost in the semi-finals in the NorthEastern Michigan play-off Sunday to Pinconning, 5 to 4. This game was the replay of a protested contest of a few weeks ago, when Pinny won by one run, and Alabaster protested the run to the league.

Alabaster had one of their poorest fielding games of the year, committing a total of eight errors, with most of the misplays leading directly to Pinny runs.

John Martin was on the mound for Alabaster and allowed only four hits, but he walked seven batters, two intentionally. He was opposed on the mound by Dan Horn who was nicked for seven hits by Alabaster.

Elliott led Alabaster hitters with two hits, while Rupp had two for Pinny.

Pommerville, short stop for Pinconning, was a busy lad on the base paths, scoring three of his teams runs on one hit, a walk and he reached first once on an error.

Pinny was the first to cross the platter, when in the first inning, Pommerville was safe on an error by C. Erickson, Rupp singled, Gies struck out, Knochel was safe on an error by Hill and Pommerville scampered across the plate. Martin walked the ever dangerous Dan Horn intentionally and then proceeded to strike out both Lambert and Pieper to retire the side.

Alabaster came back in the second when Herriman doubled, Jerry Gracik was safe when Herriman was thrown out at third, Elliott singled, E. Erickson singled, Gracik scoring. C. Erickson grounded out, Martin doubled and both Elliott and Erickson scored, McDonnell grounded out.

Pinny scored after two were out in the second, when after Beechum grounded out and Foco struck out, Pommerville walked and stole second, Rupp singled scoring Pommerville and Gies struck out.

In the sixth Foco grounded out, Pommerville singled, Rupp was safe on an error by Hill, Gies grounded out, Knochel was hit by the pitcher, Horn walked and Pommerville was forced in, Horn took second and Rupp third on a passed ball, Lambert was safe on an error by McDonnell and both Horn and Rupp scored, Pieper walked, Beechum grounded out.

In the ninth inning Roberts batted for Peterson and was safe on error, Bolen ran for him, both Herriman and Gracik grounded out, Elliott singled scoring Bolen, E. Erickson forced Elliott at second to end the game.

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS
of Main Street and the World

Threat of Inflation Increases As Price Index Hits a New High

INFLATION THREAT—With the government's report that the consumers' price index rose to a record level last month, the dangers of inflation took first place in the week's news.

The bureau of labor statistics reported the index figure went from 185.2 to 185.5. This means the retail prices of goods and services bought by moderate-income families averaged 85.5 per cent higher than the average between 1935 and 1939. This is 9 per cent above the level before the Korean war.

It also means that more than 3,000,000 workers who have cost-of-living escalator clauses in their contracts will receive automatic raises of approximately 1 cent per hour.

Industry member of the wage stabilization board, who recently approved escalator clauses in union contracts, warned when the new index figures were announced that the arrangement is not based on sound economic principles. "Putting all workers, manufacturers, farmers and merchants on escalator may easily prove the first step toward bankruptcy," the group warned.

The average home town seems to have the feeling that runaway inflation is dangerously near. If each group in the nation's economy continues trying to get ahead of every other, then the economic situation may explode into a mad race that can lead to ruin.

Food and rent prices are credited with pushing the index figures to the new high. Food prices averaged 12.1 per cent higher than in June, 1950, just before the Korean war. There are indications of further increases. Large dealers are reported demanding boosts of 1 to 6 cents an item for well known brands of flour, breakfast cereals, canned fruit and vegetables, vinegar, mayonnaise and spaghetti.

PRICE CONTROLS—While the average home town views the price picture with increasing fear, President Truman asked congress for three major changes in the new price control law.

The President asked repeal of: (1) The provision requiring that price ceilings reflect rises in business costs that have occurred since Korea. ("An economic booby trap," Truman called it.); (2) The amendment giving wholesalers and retailers their customary percentage markups; (3) The amendment banning the OPS livestock-slaughter quotas, under which each slaughterer was told how many animals he could handle.

No one can predict how congress will react to the President's requests, but the average small town American, whatever his political views and his beliefs concerning the cause of higher prices, wants something done about it. He realizes the nation is in as much danger today from its internal economic picture as from external enemies; he feels it is time for personal interests and politics to take a back seat to the nation's welfare.

WESTERN POLITICS—Democratic party representatives from 15 midwest states, as far east as Ohio and as far west as Wyoming, the great farm belt that came to President Truman's rescue in 1948, met at French Lick, Ind., to discuss possibilities for 1952. Their conclusions were startling to the average home town.

Briefly, they concluded that President Truman will be a candidate for reelection and that he can defeat Sen. Robert Taft. Should Gen. Eisenhower seek the office he could have had in 1948, then Mr. Truman's chances would not be so good.

As a basis for these startling conclusions, the democratic leaders believe the President would get a large farm vote as he did in 1948 because farm prices have been high during his administration. A continued high level of domestic prosperity without inflation would also add to his chances, they concluded.

They also pointed out that Truman was denied New York's 47 electoral votes by the candidacy of Henry A. Wallace and those of four southern states by the Dixiecrats. This is unlikely in the 1952 campaign.

The big question, of course, is Gen. Eisenhower. The general is a midwesterner, and it would not be difficult to sell a national hero to the people in the home towns.

THE NEW FEAR—The latest news from Korea would indicate the Chinese Communists are beset with a new fear, that of world condemnation for breaking off the Kaesong peace talks. It is the only reasonable conclusion since the Reds announced the talks can continue if the Allies will admit a plane tried to murder the Communist delegates by dropping explosive bombs and jellied gasoline near their quarters.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, who previously rejected their charge as a fake and a fraud, is unlikely to accede to their demand. Ridgway has informed the Reds that their neutrality-violation charges are nothing more than malicious lies, deliberately manufactured for propaganda effect and unworthy of reply.

As long as both parties maintain this attitude there is little hope for a resumption of talks. And even if they should be resumed, other incidents will be manufactured by the Reds to further their propaganda aims. Peace in Korea will not be restored until one side or the other is thoroughly and completely defeated.

JAPANESE TREATY—On Tuesday 34 nations gathered at San Francisco to sign the proposed peace treaty with Japan. Russia is represented, but no one expects her to sign the document which is sponsored by the United States. To the contrary, she will do everything in her power to wreck the treaty negotiations and eventually will present her own versions of a pact.

The big news as the conference opened was India's boycott of the meeting. That country's denunciation of the treaty was in direct line with Moscow propaganda and will have many repercussions in this nation's foreign aid program. It may lead to a tougher U.S. policy toward India and a reduction in aid given her in recent months. It may also mean that a number of other countries will suffer as a direct result of India's stand.

From now until the conference closes, the people in the home towns of the country can expect a flood of Soviet propaganda against the treaty. In fact, one of the greatest propaganda slanders the world has ever seen is about to begin.

Eva Peron, wife of President Juan Peron of Argentina, often called the most powerful woman in the world, has been nominated to be her husband's running mate as Vice-President in the November 11 elections. The election is only a formality under Argentina's dictatorship. She would be the first woman in history to hold such a high office in the Americas.

THIS IS CHINA Peiping Demands Life on Everyone

The Communists in China have demanded a combination confession and autobiography for millions of persons in the country whom the Reds find necessary to re-educate in the new attitudes of Chinese communism. It is a complete record and repudiation of the past life of the individuals concerned.

The document serves as a domestic passport that must be produced whenever the possessor seeks a new job, wants to move from one part of the country to another, or from some other reason, comes under official scrutiny.

The person under examination may have made money on the stock market or gone to a U.S. university. Whatever it is, these must be confessed and branded as bad and wrong.

R.A.F. BLIMP COMES TO GRIEF . . . The "Bourne," an airship of the Royal Air Force, is shown with its shattered tail entangled in the roof of the R.A.F. station gymnasium at Cardington, England. The big gas bag had been making only its second flight when a trailing rope caught in the roof of the building and dragged the blimp down. Among the occupants of the unlucky craft was Lord Ventry, who managed to crawl to safety with crewmen of the big ship along the roof of the gymnasium and then to the ground. Because of the hazard of the escaping hydrogen, smoking was banned for a quarter mile radius.

WARM WELCOME . . . Five young eastern Europeans, who became the first aliens to be sworn into the U.S. army under the new alien enlistment act, are greeted by Lt. Eugene C. Egg, commanding officer of the alien enlistment section, at the 7720th EUCOM replacement depot, Sontheofen, Germany. They will be sent to the United States for basic training and then classified as to military occupations and assigned to the various military units of the army throughout the world. The five new enlistees include two Czechoslovakians, a Russian, a Hungarian, and a Ukrainian. The new law gives foreigners the chance to fight for freedom in our forces.

UNUSUAL PHOTO . . . This picture, which appeared in the Ashland Independent, was presented to the newspaper as an actual photograph taken in sky over Korea. A Chicago man was taking a photo of an American and Red plane in a fight. He sent the picture back to a relative in Chicago and a neighbor sent it to the brother in Ashland. Demand for the issue carrying the picture was so great it was sold out. The issue was repeated and it too was sold out.

BABY BORN IN NIGHT CLUB . . . Margaret Barstow, Giro's Sunset Strip night club hat check girl, created quite a stir recently when she gave birth to a baby right on the premises. The former A.A.U. swimming champion had a baby daughter, with a patron, Dr. Bert Tardieu, presiding as medical attendant. Here, she is shown holding the youngster who was born amid the bright lights, while hubby Bruce, a California Tech student, looks on.

AMERICA'S WHEATHEART . . . Miss Liberal, Kansas, Bette Renick, wears banner, "Wheatheart of the Nation, 1951," after she won title at 32nd annual birthday celebration in Perrytown. She wins an expense-free trip to Havana, Cuba.

NEW DAV CHIEF . . . W. Mays, 33, Little Rock, was elected national commander of the Disabled American Veterans during the organization's convention in Milwaukee. He is a double amputee, having lost both legs.

THE READER'S DATE BOOK Hunting Season Will Stimulate Business in Many Communities

October is to the hunter what May is to the fisherman. And to the small towns and Main Streets across the nation it means big business.

As the month approaches guns are taken from cases and oiled, hunting clothes are aired and repaired, training of hunting dogs is intensified, and the local sporting goods store and the hardware begin to notice an increase in business.

October is "Let's Go Hunting" month and the sportsman wants to see and read about the latest guns and equipment. It's a subject he doesn't tire of quickly. And it's a wise local merchant and newspaper editor that realizes the fact.

There are approximately 12,000,000 men and women in the United States today who hunt during season. Last season various states sold 12,626,539 licenses, producing $37,641,049 in revenue. This does not include 1,954,735 migratory-bird hunting stamps, commonly called duck stamps, at $2 each.

Some years ago it was estimated that each hunter spent $41.88 a year on his sport, of which 31.1 per cent went for hunting clothing, 28.8 per cent for guns and 11.7 per cent for ammunition.

The remaining 28.4 per cent was spent for licenses, transportation, meals, lodging and various miscellaneous items, all provided in the home towns of the nation.

On that basis, the nation's annual hunting bill exceeds a half-billion dollars.

Millinery Promotions Begin in September

Beginning September 16 retail millinery groups in many communities in the United States will stage fall millinery promotions. At the same time previews of all that's new in millinery fashions will be released to national magazines and large and small newspapers.

The promotion is timely because women in the United States are more fashion conscious than any in the world. Although primarily staged to promote the sale of hats, the event fills the need of telling women what is new and fashionable. It is an educational and entertaining program as well as a sales promotion.

Unfortunately, there are still many millinery retailers who prefer to be rugged individuals. They fail to realize that the creation of an active market for millinery in the community means added sales for everybody. And conversely, in a stagnant market, business is bad for all.

There is no better way to inform the women in an area of what is new in fashions than for every merchant in the community to get together and announce the opening of the new season simultaneously with dramatic newspaper ads and window displays. It doesn't matter whether the town itself has a large or small population.

The psychological effect of such simultaneous community-wide promotions is tremendous. It turns the woman's attention to the new season's fashions in an important way, something which could never be achieved by individual stores and windows appearing at sporadic intervals.

And speaking of fashions, here's a note of interest to the women of every community. Next to a hat, every woman wants a fur coat.

CRIME IN THE U.S. Home Towns Have Less Crime Than Big Cities, FBI Reports

Life and property are much safer in a small town than a big city, according to a recent report on nationwide crime statistics by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The FBI report shows that the murder rate last year in the nation's 37 largest cities (populations of 250,000 or more) was more than twice as high as that in 1,197 towns having populations under 10,000. The large cities had almost seven murders per 100,000 population, while small towns had less than three. The balance sheet on other crimes shows a similar tendency.

But there is one exception to the rule. Levittown, N. Y., the nation's fastest-growing city, had even less crime than the typical American small town.

A model planned community on Long Island, with built-in playgrounds, ball fields, play-ping centers, nine swimming pools and a $250,000 community hall, Levittown was created by Levitt and Sons, Inc., world's largest home-builders. It now consists of over 16,000 homes and more than 60,000 people.

In every major crime category, according to FBI figures, small cities have a much better record than large metropolitan centers.

For instance, the big cities last year had 88 robberies per 100,000 population, 195 auto thefts, 17 rapes, 108 cases of aggravated assault and 995 cases of larceny.

On the same population basis the small cities had only one fifth as many robberies, one third as many auto thefts, less than half as many rapes, about one fourth as many cases of aggravated assault and barely more than half as many cases of larceny.

Beckmann. On the other hand, over a third of the total involved children's toys, such as bicycles and tricycles.

"As a matter of fact," the commissioner said, "the biggest single police job in Levittown has nothing to do with crime. Hardly a day goes by without a call from at least one Levittown mother. Our biggest job there is finding and returning lost children. We seem to have a lot of them."

HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS

Two American Documents To Be Enshrined on Constitution Day

America's most precious historical documents—the Constitution of the United States and the Declaration of Independence—will be enshrined permanently in hermetically sealed glass enclosures at a ceremony Monday, (Sept. 17) Constitution Day.

The ceremony, in which President Truman and Chief Justice Vinson are scheduled to participate, is expected to be one of the most impressive ever held in the history of

DOROTHY Sarnoff, currently giving a delightful performance in the Broadway musical, "The King and I," still finds time for many guest performances on radio, to which she owes her first big break. Some years ago she auditioned for Menotti's radio opera, "The Old Maid and The Thief," at NBC, won the role, and was enthusiastically received all over the country. This autumn may find her on the air regularly on a new program. In her very limited spare time she creates hats, paints a landscape occasionally, and recently has begun designing traveling bags—her latest, made of plastic, will soon be on the market.

Bill Holden is looking for a new hobby, one fitting for a man with three children and not much time. He's given up building model airplanes with motors—almost lost a finger at it, just before starting "Force of Arms," at Warners'.

Hollywood loves Murray Sices, leading designer of suits for small women—so many of the stars are about the size of Wanda Hendrix, who's five feet two. With little time to shop, they used to find it almost impossible to find clothes that would make them look the way their fans expect them to.

In the beginning, 12 years ago, "Mr. District Attorney" was patterned after the legal career of an ace prosecutor, Thomas E. Dewey. It switches from NBC to ABC on September 21, and October 1 will also be seen on television.

Star Bill Johnstone of the CBS Radio Network's "The Line-up," and his son Ronald, a Los Angeles drama student, are building an elaborate model theatre, 41 inches by three feet by three feet. It will be operated entirely by electrical power, and they are doing all the work themselves—but they're letting Mrs. Johnstone make the costumes, sets, etc.

There Is a Way To Repeal Income Tax Amendment

By Wright A. Patterson

THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION provides two methods of amending that document. The one method with which we are familiar calls for the passage of a resolution by Congress calling for an amendment, followed by ratification of the proposed amendment by the legislature of three-fourths of the states.

The other provides for passage by any state legislature of a demand for an amendment and then ratification of that demand by the legislatures of two-thirds of the states.

The second method bypasses Congress entirely. The Los Angeles Times referred to this method of amendment as a "club provided for the states for the protection of states' rights."

It is now being considered as a method of repealing the amendment that made possible the levying of federal income taxes. This would force the national government out of the field of tax revenue and leave it to the states to provide for state expenditures and would stop the "grants in aid" that now represents the largest of the national government out of federal taxes in exchange for which the states surrender much of their sovereignty.

It took a long time to secure the enactment of the 16th amendment, the income tax amendment, by the needed three-fourths of the state legislatures, even when the amendment was backed by the powerful influence of Theodore Roosevelt.

Twenty-one states have voted for the calling of a constitutional convention. A vote of 32 is necessary to call one.

When such a convention meets it can propose such an amendment, or amendments, and then three-fourths of the states must ratify the proposed changes to make them effective.

Limit to federal taxation is bringing action from the states. The proposal has been made to repeal the 16th amendment and substitute one that would limit the federal to 25 per cent, leaving a share for state and local governments.

With the federal government now owning a large portion of the land within the state boundaries and withholding it from state and local taxation and with the seizure of tide land oil, the federal government is depriving the states of a source of revenue. There are more and more sources of state revenue being jeopardized.

Many officials fear there will be nothing left on which to levy state taxes unless a way can be found to halt the grabbing of the source of state tax revenue.

When state and local governments can no longer finance their operations, they must, of necessity, pass out of existence, leaving all government functions to Congress.

A new concept of taxes on a national basis is needed. Certain lev-

LUCKY LESLIE

By Helen Longworthy

THEY CALL ME Lucky Leslie—not because I'm so lucky but because of my wife Celia and her phobia. Sure, lots of people believe in luck, omens and that stuff. But you could cover half the country before you'd find anyone the equal of my Celia for ideas on luck. It's not ordinary garden variety luck that Celia talks about either—not four leaf clovers, new moons and a rabbit's feet. Oh, no! Celia goes in strong for lucky numbers. In her book, 7 is the luckiest, 3 is a fair number and 6 you skid by with eyes shut and hands clenched.

3-Minute Fiction

Celia believes if you have good fortune doing a thing a certain queer way once, then if you repeat it—bingo!—you're fortunate. If Celia were to find a diamond on the corner of Main street on the 7th of the month and while wearing a red rain coat; she would believe that next month, come the 7th, she could don the same rain coat (no matter if the sun was blazing), go back and find a ruby. The queer part of it is—Celia would.

When we were married in those unpleasant days of '43, I had leave from the 15th of one month to the next. We had known each other for a couple years. Celia and I. If I had had my way we'd have been married the 16th. But Celia said, "The 7th—that's the day for luck." Even reminding her that that date was a century away and that we would be married but a few days before I went back into action wouldn't swerve her. The 7th it was; To this day Celia believes the reason I wasn't amongst the 166 killed in our regiment was because we were married on the 7th. And maybe she's right!

But Celia said, "The 7th—that's the day for luck."

Take our son—the doctor said David would be born on June 26th. Celia said she chose July 3rd. The doctor snorted, "Choose!" But David was born on the 3rd of July at 7 o'clock—just like Celia had predicted.

Her strongest belief is that thing happen in 3's. If there's 2 big train wrecks, Celia expects the third. When David had measles and chicken pox inside of 2 months, I thought it enough. Celia said there would be more. He came down with the mumps on the 6th. If we have unexpected company 2 nights in a row, Celia makes a batch of cookies and waits for someone to drop in without warning. They always do!

BUT even Celia couldn't find enough lucky omens or charms to counteract the 6th of the month that was rushing at us. Old Crawford, head of Crawford Corporation said business was so bad that half the office crew would be through on the 6th. I was one of the last taken on.

The 6th was coming and I had a good idea of who was going to get a pink dismissal slip in their pay envelope. Celia said she would try to think of something. Ha! We both knew we were whistling in the dark.

Early the morning of that fateful day David woke with a terrific stomach ache. Two hours later he went to the hospital for an appendicitis operation. I know, operations aren't unusual. But it was blow number one—of three. At breakfast our toaster popped sparks and smoke instead of toast. Celia chattered about the low cost of repairs. But I knew she was thinking to herself "the second trouble."

Like they had gone into deep mourning, that's the way the office force looked. I tried to write up orders like it was just any day, instead of the 6th. Celia telephoned to say she had dropped her wrist watch and broken it. Now why was a trivial thing like that worth a telephone call! Women!

Then the pay checks came. Mine didn't have a pink slip. I could have danced on my desk top. I rushed home to tell Celia the good news and that her theory was wrong. She took it casually. "Remember, my watch," she asked blandly. "That was the third blow. See?"

But do you know something funny? She said she dropped it. I found her shoe on the dresser amidst some bits of broken glass, and some glass was stuck in the heel. You don't suppose the heel of her shoes met that watch on purpose—or, do you?

Predicts Intensity Polio Cases for 1951

ANN ARBOR — Approximately 27,000 cases of polio will occur in the United States during 1951, a University of Michigan school of public health statistician has predicted.

"There are a number of reasons for supposing that 1951 will be a far less severe year for polio than the record year of 1949 during which about 43,000 cases were reported," Dr. Fay M. Hemphill indicated.

Dr. Hemphill's "guesstimate" is based on figures supplied to him through the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., by the United States public health service which receives weekly reports from the various state health departments throughout the nation.

Since June, 1950, he has been making a continuous statistical study of the areas and number of polio cases occurring in the United States. His studies are sponsored by grants from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc.

RESIDENT A SERIAL STORY NURSE

BY LUCY AGNES HANCOCK

THE STORY SO FAR: Gay Gaylor, orphan, employed and maternally loved by "Aunt Grace" Alden, puzzles her benefactor with her apparent apathy toward the opposite sex. Gay (inadvertently overhears "Aunt Grace" and Dr. Borden discussing the engagement of Thad Borden, the doctor's son and Vivian Poole, Gay dislikes Thad because of the arrogant and masterful kiss he planted on her lips several years before at an orphan's picnic, where he was an intruder. Unknown to her, Thad has become remorseful over the way he insulted her, but resents the tenacity with which she holds a grudge. Dr. Borden seems displeased by his son's engagement.

CHAPTER IV

The doctor eyed her from time to time and at last said, "I suppose you heard the news, Gay?"

"Of Thad's engagement to Vivian Poole? It wasn't news to me, exactly. I've been sort of expecting it—I guess everyone has. Were you surprised, Doctor?"

"Well, no, not entirely. Of course they have known each other from infancy—practically. It may work out all right."

"And why shouldn't it? She's beautiful and popular—"

"Of course," the doctor agreed and put down his empty cup as he got to his feet.

Gay went to the door with him and when she returned she said, a bit curiously, "Just what was bothering him, Aunt Grace? He seems sort of upset about something. It can't be the engagement—he must have known that was coming for some time past."

Aunt Grace shook her head. "Vivian is a far different girl from Marcia—Thad's mother, Gay. I think the doctor fears she won't make Thad happy."

"And what about Thad making her happy, Aunt Grace?" Gay inquired with spirit. "Why worry about him?"

Miss Alden smiled. "You're still holding no briefs for Thad, are you, Gay? But you see, my dear, his father and I happen to be rather fond of the boy. We don't know Vivian so well."

Vivian's Insults Are Not Easily Forgiven

"I think I remember Mrs. Borden, Aunt Grace," Gay said musingly. "She used to come to Bethesda occasionally. I remember once she put her arm around me and told me always to stand tall. It puzzled me for a long time—I didn't know just why she should have said that. I was a tall, gangling girl—all legs and arms—not at all prepossessing."

"Marcia was a kind woman, Gay. The doctor is like her—in a way. I think Thad will settle down after a while into something of the same mold."

"I doubt it," Gay replied, "although with such wonderful parents it would seem he should develop into a good doctor."

"You know, my dear, I'm rather surprised at this engagement. If it had happened before Vivian went off to Madame Geddes I think it would have seemed more reasonable. But a fashionable finishing school can do something to a girl, I don't know—Of course she was always vain—always spoiled—being an only child of elderly parents, but she was friendly with most people and more or less democratic."

"How can you say that, Aunt Grace?" the girl cried, her face flaming suddenly. "She never missed a chance to embarrass me. I tried to ignore her slurs—her audibly whispered 'Here comes Bethesda. Keep your distance, kids, if you don't want to catch germs. Mama says—' but I never heard exactly what Mama said, although I can imagine."

"You poor child!" Miss Alden cried, her voice and eyes indignant. "I wish I had adopted you while I was well and strong, Gay. We could have had such good times together—then."

"We're having them now, darling," the girl told her, her anger forgotten. "I suppose in a way, all that was good for me. Discipline that I needed to keep me on an even keel. But I don't like Vivian Poole and I never shall."

"Have you ever considered becoming a trained nurse, Gay?" Doctor Borden asked one day during a professional call at the house on Belfort Street. "I believe you'd make a fine one."

"I have wondered about that, Doctor," Aunt Grace said. "She could train right here in Bessemer Memorial, couldn't she?"

"Of course, if she would prefer that," the doctor said. "But personally, I would suggest some other hospital—possibly in Boston, New York or Philadelphia. I feel sure it would be easier—"

"Easier, Doctor? A big hospital? Why do you say that?" Miss Alden's eyes widened in surprise. She knew Bessemer Memorial was the apple of Doctor Borden's eye.

"I'll speak frankly if I may," he began, noticeably embarrassed. "You see—"

"Don't say another word," Miss Alden interrupted, her lips firm.

Gay smiled. "No, Doctor Borden, you may stop right there. I know what you are going to say. I'm a Bethesda product, therefore would not be welcome on the staff of our local hospital. Right?"

"Okay, okay. I just thought I'd make the suggestion, my dear. No offense intended."

"And none taken," Gay smiled. "But let me tell you something, my friend. If I ever decide to enter training school, it will be in Bessemer Memorial. If, of course, they will accept me, and I think they will. I like the nurses there—they are kind. And I like the Chief of Staff, Doctor Cushing. He's a splendid surgeon, isn't he?"

"I wonder what brought that on," she asked when the doctor had gone. "I haven't the least intention of training to become a nurse, you know. I feel I'm competent enough to take care of you, darling, and that's all I care about."

"Have you ever considered becoming a trained nurse, Gay?" Doctor Borden asked one day during a professional call at the house on Belfort Street.

"But I won't be here forever, my dear," Miss Alden pointed out. "I'm not a young woman and I'm far from well—we both know that. I think the doctor was considering your future. He has always been interested in you, you know."

"Don't let's cross bridges until we come to them, Aunt Grace," Gay pointed out. "I'm staying right here until you get tired of me and send me packing."

"No danger of that," Miss Alden smiled affectionately. "And so another year passed—a busy, happy one for Gay, although her heart was often heavy as she watched her beloved foster mother slowly lose ground. It was seldom that she left her alone even for an hour and while Miss Alden was not in much physical pain, she had grown increasingly helpless, so that Doctor Borden urged that a nurse of some sort or at least a strong woman be employed to help Gay move her. And as if in answer to the need, Myra Welles quit her job at Bethesda."

"Too many bosses," she complained to Gay. "The General hired a man cook and his wife to help him."

Aunt Grace Employs Old Friend of Gay's

"The General?" Gay asked. "That's what we call her—the matron. Even the kids call her that. She has rules for everything—we thought the Madame was nuts but this dame has her beat forty ways for Sunday."

"But what were you supposed to do, Myra?" Gay asked.

"Me? Oh, I was supposed to do the vegetables and clean up afterwards. Not me, Gay. I'm a cook. I don't mind helping out with other jobs occasionally. I like to keep busy, but I'll be hanged if I'll be bossed by a broken-down old hash-house derelict calling himself a chef, just because Miss Powell wants a man in the kitchen. No siren. I can get me a job tomorrow if I want one." She stared inquiringly at Gay who was cleaning silver. "You don't, by any chance, need a cook here, do you?"

From the bedroom came the sound of Miss Alden's bell and Gay moved quickly to answer it.

"It's nothing, my dear," the invalid murmured. "I thought I heard voices and I wondered if it was someone who might help you get me up. I wish you would listen to me, Gay. You really must have help. I shall insist and have Doctor Borden send someone if you won't hire a woman yourself. Why won't you be reasonable? It isn't as if I couldn't afford it. I have more than enough to take care of you."

"It's Myra Welles, Aunt Grace," Gay told her, her face beaming with the idea that at last the problem of extra help was solved. She liked Myra—they could work together beautifully. "She has quit her job at Bethesda—too many bosses, she says is the reason. Could you stand two products of Bethesda, Aunt Grace?"

"Will you send her in, my dear? I should like to talk with her for a minute—alone, if you don't mind."

Gay left the room and sent Myra to the invalid. After a few minutes came the sound of Myra's hearty laugh and the softer tones of Aunt Grace as she joined in the joke, whatever it was. Suddenly the swing door to the kitchen opened and Aunt Grace's wheel chair came through. Myra beamed from behind it.

"You've got yourself a helper, Gay," she laughed. "Good thing I brought along my box. But I have a notion I'll get me some new uniforms now. Some real fancy ones. This is going to be the best job I ever had."

"Welcome, Myra!" she said. "There's no one else I could possibly bear sharing Aunt Grace with. We'll take care of her together—we'll spoil her and pamper her and baby her until she begs for mercy. How does the prospect sound to you, darling?"

Vivian and Thad Break Engagement

The advent of Myra Welles changed things considerably in the Alden menage. For one thing, Gay had time on her hands. Myra insisted on doing the bulk of the work in addition to taking complete charge of the meals. Gay spent almost all of her time with the invalid. Doctor Borden was pleased with the arrangement and urged Gay to take advantage of her leisure to get out more. But the girl refused to leave her beloved charge for more than the briefest of trips to the market, the library or the shops. Miss Alden's friends marveled at the girl's devotion. After all, Gay was young and attractive. How was it that she seemed quite contented to remain tied to the invalid's apron strings, especially since Myra Welles did practically all of the work? But Gay ignored their criticism and advice. She knew what she wanted and did it.

It was during that summer word reached them that the engagement between Vivian Poole and Thad Borden was off. It seemed that while Vivian was visiting in Bar Harbor at the home of one of her former schoolmates she had met a fashionable portrait painter who was "doing" the members of her particular set and Vivian had sat for him. Not only that; they had fallen madly in love and now rumor had it they were to be married in the fall.

"Somehow I never thought the Poole-Borden affair would come off, Grace," a visitor to the Alden home said. "I remember telling Marian Burdick as much—oh, more than a year ago—when I first heard it. I could never feature Vivian Poole as a small-town doctor's wife. Too flighty. She certainly is nothing at all like Marcia and I always had a hunch Doctor Borden didn't approve. I wonder how Thad took his conge, Grace. Have you heard?"

"No," Miss Alden answered. "I haven't heard. I doubt if his heart is broken. After all, he's a busy man right now. Perhaps that accounts for his interning in New York instead of Bessemer as he and his father planned. How are Sam and Sara taking it, Jennie? It must have been a big disappointment to them, they were both fond of Thad."

"Not at all well, Grace," the visitor said. "But as my husband says: No one can live another's life for him. Just between you and me, my dear, I think Thad Borden's a lucky chap." She laughed gleefully at her frank catinness and got to her feet. "Madame Geddes certainly made great changes in our town belle, didn't she? I don't imagine we shall be seeing much of her after the wedding. But I doubt if Bessemer will sink into oblivion because of it. Why don't you stop me, Grace? Now's your chance to cry 'me-ow!' I deserve it, but Vivian Poole has never been a favorite of mine. Now I've told all the gossip I'll run along. Give my love to Gay, Grace. Tell her she might do worse than set her cap for Thad, herself. She'd be just the wife for him."

She went out laughing and Grace Alden was glad that Gay wasn't there to hear that last. She smiled somewhat guiltily because both she and the doctor had voiced much the same sentiment—albeit quite out of hearing of Gay.

And then came one of those days that every so often bless early October when summer and autumn meet and in lingering ecstasy embrace parting forever. The sun was brilliant; the air warm yet invigorating; the trees still untouched by frost, while asters and chrysanthemums with a few last gladiolus flaunted their wealth in every yard along Belfort Street. Gay's feet scarcely touched the ground as she hurried along in the clear October sunshine. A little song of pure youthfulness welled up in her heart. Aunt Grace was feeling so much better and oh, it was good to be alive again this gorgeous morning!

Poison Ivy Leaf Costs U.S. Workers Lost Working Days

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Leaflets three, let it be. There is much practical truth in this old rhyme concerning poivy ivy, according to Dr. Roland R. Cross, director, Illinois State Department of Public Health.

Pointing to the relative seriousness of ivy poisoning, Dr. Cross said that a recent survey has indicated that about 600,000 work days are lost each year in the United States because some 350,000 unwary persons come into contact with the poisonous weed.

Ability to recognize poison ivy, and avoidance of it, is the only sure preventive of this type of poison, he said. This is not always easy, for the plant may take the form of a small shrub, a climbing vine or a thicket of plants growing as tall as five feet.

The compound leaf composed of three shiny green leaflets is characteristic of all types of poison ivy, however.

Dr. Cross added a special note of warning to those individuals who boast of natural immunity to poison ivy. Investigations have shown that no one is immune to the poisonous element in ivy, although some persons require greater exposure to be affected.

Immunization against ivy poisoning by intramuscular injections of urushiol, which is the poisonous element in the ivy plant, has proven successful in some cases. In other instances, the injections have not resulted in immunity, but usually prevent severe attacks. Generally the injections must be taken each year to be effective.

If a person knows, or has reasonable grounds to believe, that he has been exposed to poison ivy, the best precaution is to wash all possibly exposed parts of the body with laundry soap and water as soon as possible. Ordinary toilet soap is ineffective to neutralize the poisonous substance, Dr. Cross said.

Dredge Scoops Up Live Bomb; Frightens Bristol

BRISTOL, Eng. — A dredger pulled up a live 1,000 pound bomb here recently and the entire city became tense with emotion when the bomb suddenly started ticking.

Surrounding streets were closed off and people hurried from their homes to emergency shelters until British army engineers managed to neutralize the bomb. Shipping was banned from the danger area until the all-clear signal and boats consequently missed the morning tide. The bomb had been pulled up from the mud of the harbor and engineers worked on it all night before getting the fuse out.

Perfume Maker Gets Nose Into Work for Best Results

PARIS — Creating a new perfume may take a perfumer one year or ten years . . . (no reputable "nose" would leave his "work" until it was as close to perfection as he could make it). During all the time he is striving for the exact scent which is in his mind, he spends his days—and often nights—smelling and mixing. On blotters specially made for this purpose from odor-free paper, he sniffs each changed solution in all kinds of environments—in his laboratory, in his home, in various places where he might find himself. He sniffs, too, under all types of weather conditions—a bright sunny day, a muggy, warm day, a clear, cold day. As he progresses, he may find that the mixture is a bit too sweet or tart, perhaps a touch too smouldering or too airy. At the same time he is working towards his goal, he considers what is called the "roundness" of the bouquet. We like to compare a "rounded" perfume to a perfect flower setting which has just the right number of blossoms and leaves, arranged in beauty of form and color. Add one too many parts or take away one too many, and it loses its lovely balance.

NEW YORK — Anybody with a normal walk will find that his heels wear out first on the outside. Years ago, people wore their heels down evenly—because they kept switching their right shoe to their left foot and vice versa!

This shoe switching routine predated the invention of "rights" and "lefts". The idea that a shoe should conform to the shape of the human foot was well known in antiquity, but was not heard of in this country until the Civil War days. With improvements in tanning, which produced leather soles and uppers more flexible for increased comfort, shoemakers began to experiment with left and right lasts and with more sizes and widths than the traditional "slim" and "stout" which were the only choice a shoe buyer then had.

MIRROR Of Your MIND Why People Like You By Lawrence Gould

Can you figure out why people like you?

Answer: Never positively, and it is usually unwise to try. The essential reason, anyhow, is that they believe you like them and are interested in them, and wondering "what they see in you" is a form of self-centeredness that tends to make you less attractive. Actually, all normal men and women are looking for people to like because friendly feelings are as pleasurable as unfriendly ones are painful, so most of the people whom you meet will like you if you give them a chance. But conversely, feeling that you do not deserve to be liked is a step toward feeling you are disliked, and toward making the idea come true.

retical and practical training, and the only way to grasp dynamic psychiatry is to be psychoanalyzed yourself. The clinical psychologist must recognize his dependence on the medical profession for much of his training, and be willing to invest years of his own time in preparing himself to be able to help others.

Is preferring money to love "realistic"?

Can you learn psychology in college?

Answer: There are many aspects of the science which are best learned in the classroom or the laboratory. But as Dr. Robert A. Young of the Judge Baker Guidance Center, Boston says, the psychologist who plans to do psychotherapy must turn to dynamic psychiatry for the ground work of his theory.

KEEPING HEALTHY ACTH, Wonder Drug, Now In Supply

By Dr. James W. Barton

PATIENTS with arthritis throughout the world have been waiting for the day when the wonder drug, ACTH, would be available to all physicians. However, many of them, and physicians also, feared that the arthritis would make such headway that by the time the drug was available, the patient could be permanently crippled. What seemed such a terrible delay to everybody has turned out to be a blessing. Faithful laboratory workers and hospital and research physicians who obtained this drug from Armour and Company, Chicago, to investigate its merits have been able to try ACTH on various other diseases besides arthritis with brilliant results. Fortunately, while these investigations were going on, ACTH manufacture was so greatly increased that physicians can now prescribe it for these new diseases and defects. In December 1949, the first ACTH clinical conference was held in the Palmer House, Chicago, when ACTH was scarce and little was known about its action except in arthritis. In December, 1950, the second conference was held. This second conference, like the first, brought together 300 men and women who have been testing ACTH under various conditions and seeking data on its mode of action. They exchanged their findings, some working on the same diseases as others and others on widely differing conditions. The release of ACTH first to hospitals, then to all physicians, for use as they see fit, has expanded its use tremendously so that much information regarding this hormone has been gathered since it was found originally to be a cure or of great help in arthritis. A total of 95 papers showing the use of ACTH in many hitherto difficult conditions ranging from bites of rattlesnake and black widow spider to prevention and control of some forms of shock in major surgery, and in saving the lives of premature babies were given at the second conference.

HEALTH NOTES

- Hearing loss can cause speech and voice defects.
Majority of ulcers are caused by nervous stimulation which produces excess stomach juices.
By cutting the vagus nerve which controls action in the stomach, manufacture of too much stomach juice at night may be halted.
Difference in length of legs may cause backache.
The only food considered a must before an athletic contest is some form of sugar.
Sugar begins to be absorbed into the blood before it leaves the mouth, which is a short cut compared with other foods.

Churches Unite
Lesson for September 16, 1951

MORE THAN 200 different denominations of the Christian church exist in the United States alone. Several of these claim to be the one and only "true" church, but even those that do not make this claim are sufficiently pleased with themselves to stay on as separate denominations. Some Christians find this division of Christendom a scandal and a sin. Others find it the glory of Protestant Christianity that it has freedom and room for so many varieties of Christian faith. Has the Bible anything to say about this?

The Mother of All Churches
You will not find such words as "denomination" in the New Testament. Such words as Episcopalian, Lutheran, Baptist (referring to a church), Presbyterian, Mennonite, Roman Catholic, or other modern tags, are not to be found in the Scriptures.

All the same, our lesson passages give us some important suggestions. Luke tells how horrified the disciples were at discovering some one not of their own organization, doing good work in Jesus' name. They would have stopped him; but Jesus said, "He that is not against us is for us."

That is a good way to think about other Christian churches. The story in Acts 11 tells how churches in the earliest times helped one another in various ways. II Cor. 9 shows how the good example of one church can be a challenge to others to do still better.

As that Jerusalem meeting handed down a decision affecting many congregations and persons, so now the findings and decisions of great bodies of churches have a weight and an importance far beyond what might be said by single congregations. That council was the mother of all councils as the New Testament church was the mother of all churches.

All Christians Are Brothers
IN HIS first letter to that problem-church of Corinth, their first pastor Paul urges the different parties in the church to remember above all that they are Christ's people rather than any one's else. The name of Christ is far more important than any of our denominational labels.

In his letter to the Philippians Paul says an even more striking thing. "I know that some are preaching Christ out of jealousy, to amoy me . . . but what does it matter? The fact remains that Christ is being preached, whether sincerely or not, and that fact makes me very happy."

In America today we are beginning to catch the New Testament spirit. Taking the situation as a whole, there is more get-together-ness than fly-apart-ness among the churches. Cooperation is taking many forms. Locally in communities, or in state-wide interdenominational associations, or on a national scale, churches are doing together what separate churches or denominations would find difficult or impossible.

Besides recent large mergers of denominations such as the union of Methodists north and south, the Evangelical United Brethren, the Evangelical and Reformed, and Congregational-Christian, there are many other groupings of like-minded churches, pooling their resources for evangelism, education, missionary work and many other purposes.

Message to the People
THE largest and most impressive get-togethers are the National Council of Churches of Christ in America which includes every large American denomination but two; and the great World Council of Churches with member-churches in every Christian land.

These words from the first message of the National Council to the people of America ring out the spirit of unity growing today: "This council has been constituted by 29 churches for the glory of God and the well-being of humanity. It manifests our oneness in Jesus Christ as divine Lord and Savior; his is the mandate we obey and his the power on which we rely. Our hope is in him. In him we see the solution of the world's ills. The Council itself is a demonstration of his power to unite his followers in joyous cooperation."

It's Wonderful the Way
Chewing-Gum Laxative
Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE -NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon . . . right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, cause loss of nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "poppy" energetic self! Get FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25¢, 50¢ or only 10¢.

mers greatly in supplying fertilizer at low cost and seeing to it that good soil conservation practices were followed in the distribution and use. Since venturing into the field of production adjustments and price support and stabilization, those present at the meeting felt that it had outlived its usefulness. There are twelve departments in the United States Department of Agriculture. PMA, one of its departments, now employs over half of the 200,000 politically appointed and paid employees.

The meeting closed with the passing of a recommendation that those present believed that the United States Department of Agriculture should stay out of grass roots policy forming meetings and stick to administrative work for which it was created. Farmers generally suspect that their present efforts are guided along lines which will help these divisions of the department perpetuate themselves.
