3 Get Jail Sentences; 1 Placed on Probation

Ernest Tomkins was given a sentence of nine months to five years in prison on a breaking and entering charge by Judge Herman Dehnke in circuit court last Thursday.

His accomplice, Max Schutts, received a sentence of six months to five years. Both men had previous records. Another accomplice, Joseph Tomkins was placed on probation. It was his first offense.

The three had broken into the Maxwell cottage at Oscoda.

Count Clerk George A. Prescott was appointed commissioner in the Woodward estate. The case is a land contract foreclosure proceedings.

Retired D. & M. Employee Died Sunday

Funeral Services Otto Zollweg Held Wednesday

Otto F. Zollweg, retired Detroit and Mackinac Railway employee and resident of this city for many years, died Sunday at Mercy Hospital, Bay City, from a heart ailment. He had been ill for seven weeks.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Rev. Paul Heyn officiated. Interment was in the Emmanuel Lutheran Cemetery.

Otto Ferdinand Zollweg was born December 6, 1878, in Germany. He came to the United States in 1903, and has been a resident of this city ever since. During those years he has been held in high esteem by his neighbors and fellow workers. His first employment here was with the Tawas Sugar Company factory at East Tawas. He was employed at St. Louis, Michigan, for a short time. Later he became an employee of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway. He retired from the coach shop a few years ago.

He was married October 17, 1906, to Mary Kohn at Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

Surviving are Mrs. Zollweg; six sons, Carl of Detroit, Martin of Detroit, Albert of Dearborn, Herbert of Wyandotte, Walter of Detroit and Richard, in the Navy, San Diego, California; four daughters, Mrs. Clara Hauser of Lincoln Park, Mrs. Meta Frommelt of Wyandotte, Mrs. Marion Travis of Lincoln Park and Mrs. Norma Over of Dallas, Texas, and 16 grandchildren.

Student Librarians Meet Here

Study Technique of Library Operation

Student Librarians from the rural schools met in the library office with Miss Leonora Haas, County Librarian on Thursday, October 25. Two student librarians are chosen from upper grades in each school.

The students present were: Anschuetz School—Sandra Ulman, Joan Anschuetz; Vine School—Paul Simons, James Curry; Greenwood—Laurel Whitford, Kay Whitford; Taft—Jean Dodder, Patty Charters; Lower Town Line—Sandra Konenski, Joan Roemer; Upper Town Line—Judy Freil, Janet Freil; McIvor—Joy Pierson, Joyce Revord; National City—George Jordan, Mildred Clark.

The day began with games under the direction of Miss Arlene Leslie and songs with Mrs. Eva Sevener as leader. After everyone was acquainted and relaxed the work began. Miss Haas taught simplified techniques of library science which all student librarians must know to do their work satisfactorily. All students learned to alphabetize cards and books. Thus when the Bookmobile visits the school, the books can be checked off very quickly, leaving more time for stories and book talks.

Students were guests of the library at lunch. A picnic had been planned but the weather man had been angry for such a long time that lunch was served indoors. Everyone helped with KP duties so there was time for another fun hour.

In the afternoon the group journeyed to the Alabaster school where the movies "Know Your Library," "Dawn of a Better Living" and a cartoon of "Sinbad the Sailor" were shown by Miss Clara Bolen.

The Weatherman Says 'Br-r-r!'

Cloudy overcast skies and snow greeted the residents of Isosco county yesterday (Thursday) morning.

A low of 30 and high of 40 had been predicted by the Weather Bureau. At noon at Tawas City the thermometer registered 36 degrees.

The change in climate followed the high winds of Tuesday night and Wednesday which continued the deterioration of Saginaw Bay's dissolving beaches and crumbling headlands.

James Mark, Jr. of Saginaw spent the week end here.

Peoples State Bank Fair to Hold Annual Meeting December 5

The Peoples State Bank of East Tawas is offering a Michigan State College Short Course scholarship in agriculture or home economics according to an announcement from County School Superintendent Russell Rollin's office. The scholarship is a substantial one and should go to a worthy young man or woman.

The scholarship will apply to an eight week term in agriculture or home economics. The applicant who plans to take the thirty-two week course would be given special consideration. Terms begin in October and January. Normally the student takes the first term of the thirty-two weeks course in October but it is available in January.

The candidate should:

1. Live in Isosco County.
2. Have finished school.
3. Live on a farm, or at least be interested in the farm.
4. Plan to return to the farm (preferably to a farm in Isosco county).

Miss Alice Nesbitt

Miss Alice Nesbitt, age 75 years, for many years a resident of East Tawas, died in Detroit October 14 and was buried in East Tawas in Greenwood Cemetery Sunday, October 16. Rev. Benjamin Whaley of the East Tawas Methodist church officiated at the service at 2:00 o'clock at the cemetery.

Alice Nesbitt was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Nesbitt of East Tawas. She had been a teacher in East Tawas Public Schools for many years serving as County Normal Critic Teacher and later Kindergarten teacher. She also taught in the Detroit schools and was a retired teacher there.

Surviving are a niece, Mrs. Harold Finster of Cadillac and two nephews, Dr. W. E. Nesbitt of Alpena and James Nesbitt, Jr. of Cadillac. She had three sisters, Victoria Brooks, Charlotte Armistage, Jeanette Waterbury; two brothers, James and Al who preceded her in death.

Fair to Hold Annual Meeting December 5

To Elect Six New Directors and Discuss 1952 Fair Program

The annual meeting of the Isosco County Agricultural Society will be held December 4 at the Community Building, Hale.

"While talking with several residents of our county, we sometimes heard the remarks, 'Hale Fair,' or 'the fair held on the west side of the county,'" states Thurman Scofield, secretary.

"This is to assure you that this is your fair, and is a part of the county. The Isosco County Agriculture Society was organized August 14, 1944, under Act No. 80, Public Acts 1855, which makes this society a non-profit organization. In order for the people of the county to hold the annual event—your fair—and be successful, the officers and board of directors must have the moral and financial support of the residents of the county.

"There is a set of by-laws governing the organization and its procedure of operation. These by-laws state that in order to vote at our annual meeting, December 4, you and I must have a paid membership card in the society.

"So lets get a membership card and attend the meeting. Help select the six directors to be elected December 4. Please don't forget. Mark the date on your calendar."

Frigidaire Cooking Demonstration

A Frigidaire Cooking demonstration will be held at Consumers Power Company Building next Tuesday afternoon. Miss Mary Ripslinger of the Frigidaire Sales Corporation will be in charge. All food cooked to be given away as prizes.

Peace?

Aged Church Leader Dies at Grand Rapids

Funeral Services for Rev. Joshua Roberts Held Monday

Rev. Joshua Roberts, widely known Michigan Baptist church leader and highly esteemed resident of this city for many years, died Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert J. McCandless, at Grand Rapids.

Mere words cannot do much in writing of a life so filled with service and inspiration. Born at Minister, England, 87 years ago, he went to Canada in 1883 where he graduated from McMaster University. Following two pastorates in Canada he spent a year of travel and study in Palestine and Egypt.

Between 1900 and 1908, he served as pastor of Baptist churches at Grand Rapids and Howell. In 1908 he assumed positions as Superintendent of State Missions and Director of Rural Work for the Michigan Baptist Convention. He continued in this work for the next 20 years.

He was married to Margaret J. Griffin on May 14, 1891, who preceded him in death in June of this year.

Rev. and Mrs. Roberts and family came here in 1913 and established their home on the bay shore south of the city. Following his retirement in 1928 they made their home in Virginia for the next 15 years. In 1944 they returned to Tawas City where they resided until illness took them to the home of their daughter in Grand Rapids.

Surviving are the daughter, Mrs. McCandless; one sister, Mrs. Thomas Morris of England; eight grand children, Theodore Roberts, of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Mary Robert Viands, also of Washington and Frederick W. and Elizabeth Roberts of Brokenburg, Virginia, Robert K. McCandless, of Old Lyme, Connecticut, Mrs. Margaret McCandless Arnold of New York City, Mrs. Carolyn McCandless Greenwood, of Recife, Brazil, and Henry McCandless of Grand Rapids. Five great-grand children also survive, Newman Ruskin Roberts, and Robert O. Viando of Washington, Virginia Carolyn McCandless of Old Lyme, Conn., Rudolph Arnold of New York City and Daphne Thornton Greenwood of Recife, Brazil.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Grand Rapids. Those from here attending were Rev. C. E. Mercer, Mrs. Frank Metcalf, Mrs. Lydia Bing, Mrs. A. W. Colby and L. H. Braddock. The remains were taken Tuesday to Virginia for interment.

NAMED MEMBER OF STATE EDUCATIONAL GROUP

Russell Rollin is a member of the joint School Administrators Legislative Committee and attended a meeting in Lansing to discuss problems of finance which effect the state school system.

This joint committee is composed of members of the School Administrators and of the Education Committee of the House and Senate. This joint committee is constantly working in preparing needed legislation to present to the next meeting of the Legislature.

'Africa in Action' Travel Series Program Nov. 7

"Action in Africa" by James T. Monesmith which will be presented next Wednesday evening at the Tawas City School Auditorium is the second program of the season in the Kiwanis sponsored travel lecture series.

Just a few years ago, Mr. Monesmith, an American engineer, who was stricken with a nervous collapse, and his doctor ordered a complete change or a long rest. He decided on the change—and he went to the uncivilized areas of the Belgian Congo, in Africa—to capture wild animals! Alone, but for the native porters who went with him, he lived through just about the most thrilling and exciting experiences that a man can have! You travel with him in his truck while he runs down and captures zebra, giraffe, rhinoceros and dozens of other completely wild animals. And he not only captures them, but he tames them, and he brings them back alive. In addition to the thrilling pictures he offers you of all kinds of wild game, he gives you a picture of native life in areas where white men have never been before. For the thrill of your life, don't miss "Action in Africa," as photographed in color, and described in person, by James T. Monesmith!

C. of C. Banquet November 12

Annual Event to be Held at Barnes Hotel

The annual banquet of the Tawas Chamber of Commerce will be held Monday, November 12, at the Barnes Hotel, according to an announcement made this week by G. W. Cecil, banquet chairman. Two tickets have been mailed to each member and prospective members and early reservations are requested because November 7 is the deadline.

A splendid program is being arranged and guest speaker is being secured. A. Don Anderson will be toastmaster.

One of the principal projects of the Chamber of Commerce is the Silver Valley Winter Sports area. A report given at a recent meeting of the board of directors revealed that the Silver Valley Committee had a balance of $437.35 on hand. However, a considerable amount of repair work on equipment and preparing the area for winter sports will be necessary this year. Jesse C. Hodder Post, American Legion, of Tawas City has offered to co-operate and do some of the work.

A vacancy on the board of directors caused by the resignation of Harold Pfeiffer was filled by the appointment of Sanford LeClair of Tawas City as a member.

Mrs. Mary Lynch, chamber of commerce secretary, stated yesterday that this year the membership was the best that has been since the Tawas Chamber of Commerce was organized. The organization now has 237 members, and $4,935.00 was realized from membership dues.

Anticipating deer hunting season with board members busy on the runways, the next meeting of the board of directors was postponed until November 28.

600 Children Attend Hallowe'en Party

The Hallowe'en Party was a big success Wednesday evening with 600 children attending. The gym was filled twice, bleachers, chairs and floors were filled with youngsters watching the movies.

The first group saw "Toyland Broadcast," "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Woody Dines Out," "Woody Plays Santa" and "Nuttie Pine Cabi." The children were treated to potato chips and pop and were greatly pleased with the party.

The Hallowe'en party is an annual affair sponsored by the Twentieth Century Club and the Tawas City Businessmen's Association. The sponsors wish to thank the teachers from St. Joseph and the Lutheran schools for their decorations and also the seventh and eighth grade teachers and Mr. Freer of the Tawas City School and Miss Woody of the Lutheran school for their help in making the party such a success.

MISS EDNA OTIS HEADS WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS

Miss Edna Otis was installed as the 9th District President of the Women's Relief Corps Department of Michigan Auxiliary to G.A.R. at the District Convention held in Saginaw.

This years convention was held at the Ames Methodist Church. The 1952 convention will be held in East Tawas.

Agriculture Department Considers New Program for the Small Farmer

NEW FARM PLAN—As a result of a recent survey into the problems of the small American farmer, the Truman administration may come up with a new farm program in the near future more controversial than the Brannan plan and which could become one of the major issues in the 1952 presidential campaign.

The survey was conducted with the idea of learning what the department could do to help the small farmer who is having difficulties because of inadequate land, machinery, livestock and know how. Thousands of meetings have been held in the home towns across the nation discussing crop control, price support, farm loans and other small farm problems.

As a result, a major question has developed: should the government buy up land, redivide it into "economic" or "efficient" units, and resell it to low-income farmers? Also, should present crop controls be extended?

Brannan believes that if productivity of standard farms can be increased many agriculture problems would tend to disappear. On the other hand, many farm leaders have remained aloof and have not taken part in the meetings, criticizing Brannan's methods more than his objectives.

Two possible legislative proposals may come from the survey: (1) A technical assistance program for the less efficient farms and farmers, and (2) a farm-loan program designed to help such farmers acquire land, machinery, equipment, livestock and the know how to operate efficient farms.

Whatever the final form, any new farm plan, whether it incorporates the government buying and redivision of land or not, is bound to become a major campaign issue. Much of the opposition will come from the farm bureaus who have long resented Brannan as trying to usurp the roles of the private farm organizations and regimenting agriculture.

Meeting Place

Panmunjom, is the proposed site for new Korea cease-fire talks. Meanwhile, fighting continues on the central front with Allied forces making limited advances.

BOYLE RESIGNS—The big question in political circles since William M. Boyle, Jr., close friend of President Truman resigned as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is whether or not Guy Gabrielson, GOP national chairman, will be the next to go?

Boyle and Gabrielson have been under fire as having used their positions to influence the Reconstruction Finance Corporation into granting loans to companies they represented or were connected with. And although Gabrielson insists he will stay on, political observers believe his number is up, too.

In his letter of resignation Boyle gave health as his reason, insisting he had at all times conducted himself with "honor and propriety." He did admit in testimony during the congressional hearing that he accepted eight law cases involving government agencies, at fees totaling approximately $158,000, while serving as chairman of the national committee.

LESS CIVILIAN GOODS—Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson announced a cut in civilian goods production, effective January 1, that will be felt in the home towns across the nation.

The cutback in civilian production, 10 per cent for washing machines and stoves and even more in the automobile industry, will provide steel for the armament program which will hit full stride during the first three months of 1952.

The home town that has a school or hospital under construction will get enough materials to finish the project, but there will not be materials available to start new ones. As for farm machinery, so vital to agriculture and home town economy, there will be enough to support production "at a healthy and adequate level."

MIDDLE EAST BLOWUP—There is shaping up in the Middle East an explosion that could be felt in the smallest American community. The situation has developed as Egypt has increased pressure in recent weeks to remove the British from the Sudan and strategic Suez.

As a compromise, the United States, Britain, France and Turkey have asked Egypt to become the center of an alliance in the area against communism, but the proposal was received coolly by King Farouk's government.

This dispute is important to home town Americans because of the nation's interest in Suez, which if placed under Egyptian protection, would be a prize the Russians could take with little difficulty. The British, under present treaties with Egypt, have the legal right to maintain troops in the canal zone which is her economic life-line. She will not back down in her determination to remain in the zone. Thus, if the Egyptian government attempts to remove them by force the British will resist. If the Russians should decide to step in at this point, the world would become involved in World War III.

There is a chance that Egypt may accept the west's proposal of joint defense of the area, but only because she is not in a position to defend herself.

NEW DECLARATION—In a major speech last week President Truman again declared American foreign policy is "based upon the hope that it will be possible to live, without a war, in the same world as the Soviet Union—if the free nations have adequate defenses." And he again offered to "sit down with the Soviet Union" and other nations to work out agreements to relieve mankind of "the horror of another world war" and provide the basis for "a durable peace."

The President pointed out the central theme of America's present foreign policy and defense program: "So long as one country has the power and the force to overwhelm others and so long as that country has aggressive intentions real peace is unattainable. The stronger we become, the more possible it will be to work out solid and lasting arrangements that will prevent war. Our strength will make for peace."

IRAN'S OIL—Mohammed Mossadegh, premier of Iran, who has taken the British-Iranian oil dispute to the United Nations Security Council, told UN diplomats to keep their hands off the dispute and warned "we will not be coerced."

In presenting the Iranian point of view he said there are only two questions open to negotiations: (1) Compensation for British investments in the now nationalized Anglo-Iranian Oil company, and (2) possible sale of oil to Britain.

He then made his strongest point: "We will not take action and will not engage in negotiations affecting our internal affairs under pressure. To do so would not only constitute an admission that we are not a sovereign and equal nation, but would eventually be fatal to our independence."

The question remains who will operate the huge Anglo-Iranian Oil company refineries. The Iranians do not have the technical know-how and the British experts have already been sent home. How can Iran sell oil when it can't produce it?

THUMB-SUCKING

A Natural Habit, Noted Doctor Says

Since the beginning of time mothers have tried to stop their babies from sucking their thumbs. It now appears, if one is to believe Dr. I. Newton Kugelmass, noted pediatrician of New York, that "thumb-sucking is as normal as breathing" and is not to be worried about until the child is over two years of age.

Thumb-sucking usually declines after the second year of life, the noted physician observes. If it persists after the age of two, he has discovered as the result of intensive studies, "the child feels unloved, unwanted, guilty, resentful or in need of consolation."

What is the remedy if a child continues to suck his thumb? "Treat the child, not the symptoms," advises Dr. Kugelmass.

ANCIENT ORNAMENTS . . . A collection of gold ornaments, the personal jewelry of a Cypriote princess who lived more than 3,000 years ago, is the newest acquisition at the University of Chicago's oriental institute. The collection is believed to have been the adornments of a princess, Ar-si-pa-si, who lived in the period between 1400 and 1250 B.C. Her jewelry came from the various sections of her wedding journey, from her home in Cyprus, from Syria, and from her new home in Asia Minor. Collection is composed of large gold pectoral, several heavy gold bracelets, a group of golden pendants and the golden handles from toilet articles.

ROME COLOSSEUM SCENE OF CONCERT . . . Three thousand persons, including many American tourists, jammed Rome's 19-century-old Colosseum to hear three hours of selections from the operas of Giuseppe Verdi, as the ancient arena was restored as a scene of public spectacles. The program was conducted almost entirely by lights of hundreds of oil lamps of ancient Roman type, augmented by two spotlights beside the orchestra and chorus.

GREETING FRIEND IN NEED . . . Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup is warmly greeting Warren Austin (left), chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, as the latter reported to a senate foreign relations sub-committee yesterday to testify on Jessup's behalf. Jessup had been nominated as a U. N. delegate, but confirmation was opposed by Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, who charges that Jessup is "a dupe of the Communists" and has "an unusual affinity for Communist causes."

CLOSE CALL FOR SUPERFORT CREWMEN . . . A thick cloud of smoke rises from the B-29 Superfort that crashed at Forbes air force base at Topeka, Kansas, shortly after the take-off on a training flight. All 12 men aboard the bomber escaped. Only one, Major John S. McIntosh, was injured. He suffered a broken leg. At the left is a foam fire-fighting wagon, and on the ground beside it are fire fighters in asbestos hoods.

SPY EXPELLED . . . The Russian spy Orlov, who figured in spy trial in Sweden in which an officer of the Swedish navy sold military secrets, boards the Russian ship Belostrov at Stockholm after being expelled by the Swedish government.

BACKED CHIANG . . . Henry A. Wallace says that his recommendations to the late President Roosevelt were intended to help Chiang Kai-Shek, nationalist leader. He defended his China mission before a senate anti-subversive group.

Maine Town Promotes Hunting Season to Attract Business

A small town in Maine, in the heart of the best deer hunting country in the northeast, has set an example of promotion that many home towns across the country could duplicate with a little effort. The promotion will pay off within the next month when an estimated 5,000 hunters visit the community and spend thousands of dollars in its Main Street stores.

The community is Old Town. Last year 6,002 deer, many of them in the 200-pound or over class, were killed in the county, some of them within a few minutes driving time of the heart of the town.

For years Old Town has boasted that it considers itself the deer capital of the continent. In the immediate area it had a fine reputation for hospitality. But the community had never made a unified and determined promotion effort to sell itself.

This year, however, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations —with the Jaycees taking the initiative—launched a promotion campaign that is attracting the attention of big-game hunters across the nation.

The Jaycees printed and distributed an attractive 32-page booklet telling the nation's hunters about the community and the hunting possibilities. It was the official invitation of the community to hunters throughout the east.

And to start the hunting season off with a flourish, the Jaycees served a hunting breakfast from 3:30 a.m. to 8:00 a.m. on opening day. A ticket to the breakfast entitled the hunter to enter the Jaycees sponsored "Largest Deer Contest".

As prizes the Jaycees offered a Winchester .270 for the largest buck and a matching set of hunting shirt, cap, pants and packs for the largest doe.

Here is the official invitation to deer hunters of the east as appearing on page one of the Jaycee booklet:

"Dear Hunter:
"On behalf of the City of Old Town it is a pleasure to extend to you an invitation to make Old Town your hunting headquarters."

"For many generations the Penobscot Indians found happy hunting in this area and their Reservation is located here now—an interesting spot to visit.

"For many years this area has registered the greatest deer kill in the State of Maine.

"Within a short drive you will find more hunting camps and more good hunting than in any other equal area in the state.

"Our people make their living largely by employment in our many industries, which draw their raw materials from the nearby forests. As a result this area not only supplies sport for you but enables our citizens to earn their livelihood. Please be careful with cigarettes and fire.

"Come and enjoy your Hunting Breakfast sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"Enjoy the excellent hunting. Enjoy yourself to the limit. Get a big buck but, please, be sure before you shoot."

There's not a deer hunter in the nation that wouldn't appreciate an invitation like that. And many of them in the east will take advantage of it, bringing to Main Street of Old Town a flood of new money.

This is another example of a home town taking advantage of its own possibilities and promoting them. The same thing could be done by towns located in the great pheasant hunting areas of the west, communities located along the great midwest flyway used for centuries by duck and geese in the migrations, by communities located on lakes and streams where there is excellent fishing.

But even without promoting outside hunting interest, Main Street businessmen could stimulate hunting among local residents as the fall season gets into full swing. Hunting, like fishing, is big business in every part of the nation.

Fire Prevention Is Year-Round Job

National Prevention Week was celebrated nationally, October 7-13, but farm families should put forth every effort to prevent fires every day of the year. Farm property loss due to fires amounted to $102,000,000 in 1950, with 90 per cent of the total due to blazes which originated from carelessness of some kind.

Heading the list of fire causes is the careless use of matches and smoking habits, faulty heating sys-

Local hardware and sporting goods stores will find that hunting promotions will stimulate business. Contests, conducted along lines used in fishing contests, creates goodwill and brings customers into the store who might not have been reached in any other manner.

Most local newspapers are anxious to participate in such programs because it means better business for the community and the reader interest it creates in his newspaper.

The home town that sponsors a hunting promotion might also promote a Safe Hunting Week. Safety is good business, too.

There is hardly a small town in the nation that has not been the scene of a tragic hunting accident. And even when there has been no loss of life, hunting accidents have caused many to lose an arm or leg, handicapping the individual for life.

Here are the cardinal rules of hunting safety:

Treat every gun as a loaded gun. Be absolutely certain of your target.

Do not point the muzzle at anything you do not want to shoot, nor allow it to stray in the direction of another hunter.

Remember that rifle slugs may ricochet. Do not shoot at water or any hard, smooth surface.

Unload your gun before you get into your own car or before you enter your camp or home. Then check it twice to be sure.

Think, think, think. Be sure that it's game. It could be a human being and end tragically.

Hunt safely and allow others to do the same.

Pet Feeding and Care Is Big Business in U.S.

The business of feeding and caring for pets has become big business in the United States. At the top of the list, of course, is the dog. But a close second is the cat, of which there are about 21,000,000 in the country. At least 50 per cent of them are cared for by individual owners, or are attached to stores, factories, institutions, governmental facilities and so on.

During the week of November 4-10 acelourphiles (cat lovers) will celebrate National Cat Week. The week is sponsored by the American Feline Society, Inc., and its chief purpose is to alleviate abuse of cats, offer protection, food, medical attention, advice and instruction on the care and feeding of these animals.

As a result of the increasing popularity of cats as a pet, some 16,000 animal hospitals and veterinarians, 18,000 pet shops, and 90 per cent of all department and variety stores sell cat products. In addition 54,000 chain and independent druggists sell both medical and sanitary supplies for cats.

According to the U.S. Department of Commerce chain and independent food outlets sell $4,000,000 in cat food alone annually.

There are thousands of grocers in the home towns of America who have found a cat one of his best investments. Canneries, distilleries, food processing and other plants, constantly fighting rodent infestation, more than willingly maintain cats on their payroll. Even the United States government makes annual appropriations for the maintenance of cats in the post office, printing and engraving and other departments.

THE FICTION CORNER

ALL IN FUN

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

Barney poked a neat one at Dan's chin and it connected.

one on the point of his jaw. "All in fun, you know," Barney grinned savagely.

Dan picked himself up and nodded. "O.K., Brother Craig, suppose you and I go outside."

They went outside and removed their coats. Ten minutes later Barney was lying on the ground staring up at Dan through the one eye that he could still open a crack.

"All in fun, Brother Craig. Come around again some time when you feel in a playful mood."

BARNEY spent most of November and December in a gymnasium. Shortly after the first of the year he encountered Brother Dan again. "Hello, Big Ears," he remarked, "suppose we go outside?"

Dan was willing. They went outside, and in nine and one half minutes Barney decided that Dan must have practically slept in a gymnasium.

Barney went home and cursed himself to sleep. He decided that he'd lick Dan Chester if he died trying which by the feeling of his jaw he thought might happen any minute.

Barney hired K. O. McManus to train him. K. O. was pretty rough and Barney suffered a lot, but he acquired knowledge. On the first of March he invited Brother Dan "outside."

The battle lasted 20 minutes this time.

Spring was in full bloom when Barney again sent word to Dan to meet him outside. There was quite an audience on hand this time.

The fight lasted 25 minutes. Both participants were pretty groggy. They were swinging wild and without much zip. It began to look like a draw, when suddenly it occurred to Barney that for the first time Dan wasn't beating him. The thought gave him a feeling of elation and a burst of energy. He poked a neat one at Dan's chin and it connected. Barney, thrown off balance, too weak to steady himself, fell across his opponent's prostrate form and lay there.

It took an hour to revive the battlers. Barney came to first and looked at Dan thoughtfully. Presently Dan stirred and opened his eyes. He saw Barney and propped himself up on an elbow.

"Well, well, Brother Craig. Congratulations!"

"Thanks," said Barney, and grinned too. "All in fun you know."

"Sure," said Dan, "all in fun." And he extended his hand.

Barney gripped the hand and started to make a crack about Dan's big ears, but changed his mind.

Nation's Busiest Forger Keeps Out of Prison Only Block Away

The busiest forger in the country pines his trade just a block from Iowa's state penitentiary. But he has no fear his vocation will lead him behind the grim walls as it has hundreds of other forgers.

Mild-mannered, law-abiding James Jordan is well started on a career of counterfeiting signatures at the age of 24. Already he has forged more than 5,000 including those of Herbert Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur—but he's never been at odds with the law.

Every day since October 1, 1950, Jim has duplicated about 20 signatures per day, nearly three every working hour. And he forges only on gold.

Jordan is the signature engraver at the Sheaffer Pen company, whose factory in Fort Madison, 19 miles from here, is just a stone's throw from the prison. Sheaffer products include special fountain pens, mechanical pencils and ballpoints which bear a gold band containing the signature of the owner. It's Jim's job to reproduce the signatures, engraving them on the gold bands.

His kind of forgery is more difficult than the illegal varieties that land their makers in jail after discovery by hawk-eyed bank tellers or merchants. The illegal forger does his signature imitations on flat paper with pen and ink. Legal forger Jordan has to cut his on a rounded surface of hard 14-K gold.

If you would have a hard-to-duplicate signature, Jim recommends neat, compact handwriting. It's harder to duplicate than a signature in long, flowing strokes. Most difficult for him to copy are John Hancock's with many loops and criss-cross lines. Cutting the loops and crossovers into the gold is a tough job.

JORDAN ALSO does other kinds of free-hand engraving on special gold-banded pens. It was he who gave the "peace pens" used at the San Francisco signing of the Japanese peace treaty their identification by engraving "Japanese Peace Pact, 1951" on their bands. Those pens have become collectors' items.

Forging signatures on writing instruments is Jim's first engraving job. He was born and raised in this city. After four years as a shipping clerk here, he studied engraving at Kansas City where he served his apprenticeship. In 1950, he joined Sheaffer's working under Ambrose Zeigler, perhaps the world's most prolific forger who engraved more than 40,000 different signatures in his lifetime. When Zeigler died last year, Jim succeeded him.

Jordan naturally prefers the title "engraver." His spouse balks at being known as "the Forger's wife."

One signature Jim finds just as hard to duplicate as any is his own. His imitations have satisfied more than 5,000 "forgees" including politicians, actors, sports figures and business leaders. But when he attended a bazaar at the State Penitentiary and offered to pay for his purchases by check, he was asked to give cash. Why? His signature on the check differed too much from that on his driver's license.

Stanley Kramer, who gave us "The Champion," "Home of the Brave," "The Men" and "Cyrano de Bergerac," is making his first western in "High Noon," and insists say it may be his most brilliant venture so far. The picture's entire action takes place in 90 minutes. Gary Cooper, whom Zane Grey termed his "ideal westerner," is starred, with an excellent cast.

Jack Benny does just a bit in "Somebody Loves Me," the film based on the lives of Blossom Seeley and Benny Fields, the vaudeville stars. Benny is an old friend of theirs. The picture stars Betty Hutton as Miss Seeley.

Moira Shearer expects to arrive in this country November 12, with her husband, head straight for Hollywood, and begin practicing her ballet routines for Samuel Goldwyn's "Hans Christian Andersen." The lovely star of "Red Shoes" will be accompanied by her husband, Ludovic Kennedy. Danny Kaye and Farley Granger will co-star in what should be a delightful picture.

People Rank Herbert Hoover Greatest Statesman

By Wright A. Patterson

THREE OR FOUR DAYS before Herbert Hoover moved from the White House back to his home in Palo Alto, Calif., I wrote him a note in which I said: "Regardless of the result of the last election, the historians will classify you as one of the great Presidents of America, and the people of the nation will accept the historians' verdict."

The people did not wait for the verdict of the historians. Of their own volition they have accepted Herbert Hoover as the greatest of present day American statesmen. In every way they can show it they approve his policies. They accept him as an American leader far more than at any time in the past. They have written their own verdict.

While I was visiting with Representative Joe Martin in his office in the capitol building at Washington, a few days before the convening of the Republican national convention at Philadelphia, he asked, "Who is your choice as a Republican for President?"

"My first choice is Herbert Hoover, my second is Joseph Martin," I replied.

"I believe we could elect Hoover, but I doubt if we could nominate him. As for your second choice, I do not want to be President, now. I do want to be speaker of the house of representatives first."

At that Philadelphia convention Hoover was scheduled to deliver an address. The Willkie managers were afraid of the result of that address. They were fearful it might sweep the delegates off their feet and result in a Hoover nomination, which I believe he would have accepted at that time.

Not necessarily Willkie, but his managers, in an effort to prevent such a possibility, pulled the dirtiest political trick I have ever seen played in any of the more than 20 national conventions I have attended as a reporter.

The instant Hoover stepped to the loud speaker microphone, the system was put out of commission, and it stayed out until the address was finished. Hoover's voice was not strong enough for an auditorium of that size, and no one of the delegates or the audience heard any part of his address.

There followed no demonstration as there had been at Cleveland four years earlier. Had Hoover not left the convention hall the instant his address was completed, he would have been the nominee. I know he did not want it at that time. He had told me so as he left the Philadelphia convention hall. It was reported to me, and I believe it, that he said: "I will never again be a candidate nor will I accept a nomination for any elective political office."

Today, if it were left to the choice of the Republican voters, Herbert Hoover could be nominated and elected President of the United States. The people believe in the policies that—as an elder statesman—he enunciates from time to time. They would cheerfully follow his leadership, and believe he would get them out of the inflationary mess in which we are involved; would reduce the heavy burden of taxation; would dispense with the larger part of the vast army of bureaucrats, for which we are paying.

Today he has the confidence and appreciation of the people as a competent leader, who could, and would, better than any other one man, solve our national difficulties. He would keep us away from any war with Russia, not by any policy of appeasement, but by a firm stand that would be typically American, and convince Stalin that it is time to stop Russian aggression, and Russian propaganda.

But I am sure Herbert Hoover will not be the Republican nominee, or that he would accept it if such nomination was tendered. I believe he made the statement credited to him at Philadelphia, and if he did that statement was final. It meant he was out of partisan politics and would stay out. He is not the kind who changes his mind, with each change of the political wind.

A great character has passed from partisan political life, much to the regret of the American people who first elected him by a tremendous majority and then as ruthlessly defeated him, because they credited him with responsibility for conditions which in reality he had no part in creating.

FUTURE FARMERS ORGANIZE AT HALE

The Hale Chapter of Future Farmers of America has received its state charter, and after receiving an initiation from the Oscoda Charter they consider themselves full fledged F. F. A. members.

The following boys were initiated on Wednesday as green hands into the F. F. A. by the Oscoda initiation team: Bill Charters, Robert Lakics, Ross Williams, Robert Robinson, George Clark, Nathan Nunn, Morris Clement, Berkley Bernard, Eilert Barnes, Richard Carver, Bill Clement, John Webb, Clare Streeter, Richard Parkinson, Dave Reimer, Ralph Johnson, Robert Douglas, Alton Buck, Harold Bannister, Kenneth Lawrence, John Hendrickson, Milo Johnson.

The officers of the Hale Chapter are as follows: Morris Clement, president; Dick Parkison, vice president; Eilert Barnes, secretary, Bob Lakics, treasurer; Nathan Nunn, reporter; Berkley Bernard, sentinel; Paul Wolam, advisor.

This is the second year for vocational agricultural department in the Hale School.

The Oscoda Chapter and their advisor, Don Schaner, did an excellent job with the initiation. After the ceremonies the Hale boys furnished sandwiches, cider and cake. Games were played and fun was had by all.

FARM NOTES

By Harold R. Clark

Egg prices are still good and it pays to take extra care of the poultry flock. The following are some pointers in getting the extra eggs from the eager biddies:

1. Confine hens to poultry house.
2. Don't over crowd. Hove 3 1/2 to 4 square feet per bird.
3. Feed a balanced 18% protein mash all they will eat.
4. Self feed oats. Mash and grain should be about equal.
5. Keep clean fresh water before hens at all times.

6. Supply oyster shells and grit or limestone grit constantly.
7. Provide 13 or 14 hours of light daily.

In the fall before the ground freezes is the most practical time to collect soil samples for testing. The farmer avoids the spring rush of testing and will have the report returned in time to order and receive fertilizer. The early orders are sure to be filled. Late orders may not be delivered.

E. D. Longnecker, Michigan State College soil specialist suggests taking composite samples of five to eight samples of a field. Take samples a rod or two from fence rows or other abnormal areas.

The samples may be sent to Soils Department of Michigan State College or the Gladwin soil testing laboratory. A charge of fifty cents per sample will be assessed.

Iosco County sheep breeders took a step in the right direction when they purchased rams from the ram truck. Those who purchased rams are: Lyle Robinson and Martin Mrook, each a Hampshire; and Arthur Murray and Ed Robinson each an Oxford.

These sheep breeders realize that a ram is half the flock and the improved quality of the lambs of a superior ram more than pays the difference in the prime over a mediocre ram.

Graydon Blank, Michigan State College sheep specialist says the sheep breeder can get a higher percentage of lambs if the ewes and rams are flushed by giving them better feed, good pasture and sometimes a little grain, before turning ram in with ewes.

African Violet.

African violets should bloom the year round if they get lots of water and a consistent amount of sun.

Passes MSC Board Examination

Jack Miller of Hale received notice last week that he was successful in passing the Michigan State Board examinations for Registered Architects, Engineers and Surveyors given last June at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

He will attend presentation ceremonies at Detroit on Saturday, November 11. The purpose of which is to present certificates of Registration and give public recognition to the new registrants who achieve their professional status as a result of the June examinations.

Double Surprise for a lot of folks

EVERY time we publish the price of a Buick, it seems to surprise a lot of people, because they come in and tell us so.

They just can't believe that so little money buys such a lot of car—but it's a fact, as the prices published here will prove.

And that brings us to the second surprise—which is how much power and performance—how much comfort and room—what a long list of standout engineering features you get for the price.

Take power. You'll find that no other car at the price of the Buick SPECIAL pictured here delivers the horsepower you get from its high-compression, valve-in-head Fireball Engine.

Take comfort. The best thing to do is try the depth of its seats—their width—and the headroom you get in this Buick SPECIAL, and judge for yourself.

Take the ride. This Buick has big soft coil springs on every wheel, plus the solid firmness of a torque-tube keel—and the way this combination smoothes the bumps is something that's hard to match in cars costing a thousand dollars more.

Take the way it steers. Buick engineers have given this light-handling beauty a special "front-end geometry" that almost does the steering for you—even brings the front wheels back to a straight line when you come out of a turn.

And you can add to all this Dynaflo Drive*—that puts magic smoothness into every mile you drive—and practically repays its extra cost by the way it protects the whole driving mechanism, and by the dollars it adds to trade-in value.

So if you have been hoping, some day, to own a Buick—what's holding you back? If you can afford any new car—better see us now.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Oakwood Memorial Mausoleum of Saginaw Announces Opening of Fourth Addition

The Oakwood Memorial Mausoleum, 5950 Gratiot Road, Saginaw, announces the completion and opening of its new fourth addition which contains 1575 crypts and four private memorial rooms.

The mausoleum's beautiful main building of gleaming white marble was built in 1920. Its exterior is of Georgia Marble, the base of Barre Granite and the interior of Vermont Marble. The gates, urns, grills, etc. are of solid bronze. This is the highest type of construction and is everlasting. The original building provided 750 entombment spaces.

The East Wing, with a capacity of 680 crypts was built in 1936; the 1150-space West Wing in 1939 and the 1410-space North Wing in 1946. The fourth addition is an extension of the North Wing. The mausoleum including the new addition contains 37 Private Memorial Rooms, seven Sarcophagi, 4 Family De-Luxe Sections, 12 Family Chapel Sections, 5700 Companion, Double, Single, Children's and Baby Crypts, Columbarium or niches for cinerary urns, Large Chapel and Receiving-Vaults for temporary burials. It has beautiful carpets throughout, is steam heated, thermostatically controlled to assure warmth at all times.

Never has any method of entombment so commended itself to the American people. And why shouldn't this be so? It is difficult to suggest memorials more expressive of the high ideals and love of our people than these majestic resting places in keeping in every way with the supreme dignity of their mission. Their beauty, permanence and protection offers the bereaved the greatest comfort and consolation possible.

The cost of mausoleum entombment is far less than first-class ground burial. Four people can be entombed for as little as $1200.00. Mausoleum space takes the place of buying a lot, digging the graves, the cement of steel vaults, markers and monument. The cost of the space also includes inscription, use of our chapel for services and endowment care. The mausoleum is non-sectarian.

Over 4500 people now have space in this beautiful marble sanctuary, including a great many from Tawas and surrounding territory.

Silas W. Hatch, President of the mausoleum states that reservations are now being made for space in the new addition and that space is available with a choice of locations and prices.

Visitors are welcome to inspect this beautiful million-dollar memorial at any time, between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., including Sundays and holidays.

For further information, phone Saginaw 7670 or 2-2690 or write the Oakwood Memorial Mausoleum 5950 Gratiot Road, Saginaw, Michigan or descriptive booklets. (Adv.)

90% For! 10% Against

Railroad workers are represented by 23 standard unions. By mutual agreement, 20 of these unions—comprising about 1,200,000 men, or more than 90%—are working under wages and rules agreed to by them and the railroads. But leaders of three unions—with only about 130,000 men, or less than 10%—still refuse, after more than a year of negotiations, to accept similar wage and rules agreements. These are even more favorable than the terms recommended by the Emergency Board appointed by the President.

Time to settle...

Yes, it certainly seems to be finally about time that the leaders of the three unions stop their delaying tactics—their quibbling. But the leaders of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Order of Railway Conductors continue to refuse. They continue a course of dillying and dallying. It is definitely time to END THIS QUIBBLING!

On June 15, 1950, an Emergency Board appointed by the President under the terms of the Railway Labor Act—an Act largely fathered by the unions themselves—made its recommendations on certain wage and working conditions ("rules" in railroad language) which had been in dispute between employees and the railroads.

More Than 90% of Employees Accept
Since then, terms equal to or better than the Board recommendations have been accepted by about 1,200,000 railroad employees—more than 90% of the total of all workers. They are represented by 20 of the 23 standard railroad unions.

Less Than 10% Refuse
But three unions—with about 130,000 men, or less than 10% of the total—have refused to accept, even after months of negotiations. These three unions are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Order of Railway Conductors. These are three of the so-called "operating" unions. Already the highest paid men in the industry, their leaders demand still further advantages over other workers.

In all, there are about 270,000 operating employees. But not all of them, by any means, are represented by BLE, BLF&E, or ORC. As a matter of fact, less than half—132,000 to be exact—are in these three unions. More than half—about 140,000—are in other unions, principally the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. What makes the whole situation so hard to understand is that these 140,000 operating employees are working under wages and rules which the leaders of the other 130,000 say they cannot agree to.

What Do the Railroads Offer?
They offer these three unions the same settlement which was contained in a Memorandum of Agreement signed at the White House on December 21, 1950, by four brotherhoods and the railroads. Later these brotherhoods sought to repudiate his agreement. But on May 25, 1951, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen signed complete agreement carrying out the principles of the Memorandum Agreement of December 21. They have been working under this agreement since May 25.

What About Wages?
Under the terms of the agreement, yard engineers, firemen and conductors would now be receiving a wage increase of $34 an hour ($2.72 a day) and road engineers, firemen and conductors would now be receiving an increase of 19½ cents an hour ($1.56 per day). Large sums of retroactive pay have already accrued and if the agreement is carried out, will be paid promptly.

What About "Cost of Living" Increases?
The White House Agreement includes an "escalator" clause under which wages will be geared to changes in the Government's cost-of-living index. Two such increases—April and July, 1951—have already been paid to the 90% of railroad employees covered by signed agreements.

What About the 40-Hour Week?
The White House Agreement calls for the establishment of the 40-hour week in principle, for employees in yard service. The employees can have it any time after January 1, 1952, provided the manpower situation is such that the railroads can get enough men to perform the work with reasonable regularity at straight time rates. If the parties do not agree on the question of availability of manpower, the White House Agreement provides arbitration by a referee appointed by the President.

What Else Do the Union Leaders Demand?
The continued quibbling of the leaders of the three unions has to do principally with principles of the Memorandum Agreement of December 21. They have been working under this agreement since May 25.

The 4-H Club Agent Says:

Amalie Vasold, assistant 4-H Club leader, has an idea for young ladies. She calls this a 4-H Club Home Improvement project. Those 4-H Club members enrolled do this—First, they learn to make interesting decorative arrangements. Secondly, make a notebook that includes magazine pictures of decorative arrangements. Thirdly, they make a simple project report. For an exhibit they make a decorative arrangement in your room? That is just one subject covered in the Home Improvement project. It doesn't end here. We just were informed that a Home Improvement tour has been scheduled for Grand Rapids October 28, 29 and 30. Those taking part are members that have completed the Home Improvement project. Interested? Let's hear from you.

And speaking of banquets—the Extension staff went to the Burleigh Wizards 4-H Club banquet. At that event I saw "tops" in 4-H Club spirit and cooperation. The Rev. Dafeo acted as toastmaster and the chairman was Richard Aulerich. After the group sang "America," Miss Dorothy Shellenbarger sang us a song. The few remarks made by the "Old Barber" and Harold Clark, agricultural agent, followed up. A great big hand goes to Henry Ott, accordionist, who accompanied David Fortune's solo. Mrs. Joy Bellen gave a short address for the mothers. Marie Chipps played a piano solo and then Art Aulefich addressed the fathers. The singing of the 4-H Club Clover song completed the program.

Notice? The whole program was 4-H from start to finish. I have never experienced the equal to this event. Three-fold credit is due for the huge success. The leaders, Gerald Bellen, Mrs. Pauline Chipps, Mrs. Anna Edie, Arthur Aulerich and Harold Black, and Junior leader, Aileen Ward, as well as the 23 4-H Club members and their parents that cooperated. That is the combination hard to beat. The Whittemore Grange have done good community service, not only for the young people, but for the parents and neighbors.

Am I pleased to hear this bit of news! Mrs. DeWayne Hall will be our clothing leader in her community, as will Mrs. James Blust. We are happy to have you folks with us. Let's also mention that Mrs. Wm. DeLosh's request will be answered. Billy, Kenneth and Nancy DeLosh will have a chance to join a 4-H Club. The Tawas are discussing such a project Friday, October 26, at the O. J. Westcott home. We hope the potential 4-H Club leaders, Mrs. Leo Burch, Mrs. Carl Libka, Mrs. Fred Woizeschke and any others interested attend this meeting.

For our 4-H Club leaders—a last minute reminder—November 12 our 4-H Club Council leaders meeting. All leaders are urged to attend a Grant Town Hall, 8:00 p. m.

No Better Time to Order One!

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

There are many motorists in our community who have reached that position in life where they feel themselves entitled to a Cadillac—and yet, for one particular reason, have postponed placing their order.

They have heard, and quite rightly so, that there is some delay in delivery of new Cadillacs. And so, they have decided not to visit us until the car can be had more readily.

To them we say—there is no better time to order a Cadillac than right now. For each day you delay is costing you its price in motoring pleasure and satisfaction!

When you stop in at our showroom, we will talk to you frankly about what you may expect as to date of delivery. And we think you may be delighted to discover that the waiting period is not so long as might be expected—for so fine a car in such great demand.

And we think you will find, too, that once we have your order, it's a wonderful, satisfying feeling to know each passing day brings your Cadillac closer at hand.

But only when that day does arrive, and you take to the highway, will you know how well worth waiting for a Cadillac is.

For only when you experience its magnificent performance for yourself—so stimulating to the spirit and so restful to the body that you actually look forward to those moments behind the wheel—will you realize how completely Cadillac stands alone.

Of course, if you have already placed your order for a Cadillac—then stand firm in your purpose!

Dealers who sell other cars are undoubtedly beseeching you to switch your preference—for the sake of immediate delivery.

But just remember: immediate delivery means not in demand. You are waiting for a Cadillac because so many wonderful people, like yourself, want no other car. And they know that their waiting will pay its rewards.

So stand firm. And be patient—for each day brings you closer to your heart's desire.

The Call That "Crashed" a Busy Line

Service Assistant Emma Bush, standing by Operator Jacqueline Bucchino

Operator Jacqueline Bucchino answered a call one recent evening from the Saginaw home of Mrs. William Clover Gage, Sr. It was a call for help.

Mrs. Gage, a 70-year-old widow living alone, had fallen while clearing supper dishes from her table. Despite a broken hip and bleeding cuts, the injured woman had managed to get to the telephone and dial "0." She asked the operator to call her son-in-law and gave her his name.

Operator Jacqueline Bucchino called his number. To her dismay, a busy signal buzzed.

Jacqueline knew delay would be dangerous. She summoned Service Assistant Emma Bush—then did what an alert operator must sometimes do. She broke in on the busy line at the home of Mrs. Gage's son-in-law and told him of the accident. Next she called the police, who rushed to the Gage home to help.

Later, Mrs. Gage's son, a Saginaw attorney, wrote Michigan Bell: "We feel that it is largely thanks to your operator that my mother is now well on the road to recovery. Your company and the people who make up its organization are mighty good neighbors."

DOAN'S PILLS

RESIDENT A SERIAL STORY NURSE BY LUCY AGNES HANCOCK

THE STORY SO FAR:

Orphan Gay Gaynor hopes to enter nurse's training at Bessemer Memorial hospital, aided by her friend Dr. Borden, who is striving to remove the hospital board's prejudice against orphan girls with uncertain family backgrounds. Gay is fond of Dr. Borden, but makes every effort to avoid the doctor's son, Thad, whom she detests because he taunted her once and kissed her against her will. Gay and her friend and housekeeper, Myra, worry about Dr. Borden's falling health. They feel that he is bearing the whole burden of keeping the citizens of Bessemer in good health and should slow down and let some one else share the burden.

CHAPTER XI

"I'm perfectly all right, Myra," she assured her. Then she said, somewhat doubtfully, "I sent for an application, Myra."

"Application? What for?"

"I want to join the class that's entering Memorial in July."

"July!" Myra cried. "But Doc said you was to rest the whole summer. You ain't strong enough to do no hard work yet. Wh'd you do it, Gay?"

Gay Begins Living A Normal Life

"Because I'm tired of doing nothing—of being idle and—and—useless," the girl replied passionately.

"Umph!" The older woman's voice was gruff. "You ain't useless, Gay. You never could be useless—even if you done nothing the rest of your life you'd be useful to me—just having you here with me makes everything all right—for me."

"You're sweet," the girl said softly. "But just the same, I want to get to work. I'm perfectly well. These two months have done wonders for me and—well—I'm getting uneasy—restless—and should be working."

"I don't know what Doc'll say," Myra demurred.

"I think he will give me a clean bill of health—when he understands, Myra," Gay assured her. "Anyway, I know how I feel better than anyone else, and I'm sure I was never in better condition in my life than I am right now."

"But what am I a-going to do without you?" Myra wailed.

"Just as you have been doing. I hope you will stay on with me—keep the house on Belfort Street so that I'll always have a home to come back to on my free periods."

"It's going to be awful lonesome—" the woman murmured.

"Nonsense!" Gay chided. "You've never been lonesome in your life and you know it. You have lots of friends—invite them to visit you—entertain them if you like. My home is yours, you know. It wouldn't be home without you."

Myra dashed a work-worn hand across her eyes. "They ain't never been nobody like you—ever, Frances Gaynor," she whimpered. "But just the same—"

"Forget it, darling," Gay said. "I haven't gone yet—I may not be accepted. Perhaps Bessemer Memorial will object to a product of Bethesda as a member of its nursing staff. Could be, you know."

"I'd like to know why," Myra cried belligerently.

"Oh, I don't know. The Board of Managers is pretty fussy, they tell me. Each applicant has to be thoroughly investigated as to background, scholarship, physical condition, moral and religious training—"

"What's all that got to do with nursing sick folks?" Myra wanted to know. "When a body's sick he don't give a hoot if the person giving him a bath or medicine's a Methodist or—or a Freethinker. Or if his folks come over on the Mayflower or sneaked in on some immigrant ship with two copper cents on that Board, Gay? The Poles, I bet a dollar—sounds just like 'em. Riff-raff's what they be. Don't you mind 'em, Gay. They ain't one of 'em fit to wipe your shoes. I could tell 'em plenty. They just better had accept your application."

And on Wednesday Gay received the application blank and proceeded to fill it out pending consultation with the doctor. She and Myra drove over to Bessemer one morning and made a thorough inventory of her wardrobe, making a list of things to be purchased—uniforms, hose, shoes, etc. They made a visit to the rectory where Doctor Marvin gave her a letter of recommendation, gathered up two others, one from Mr. Wilkie, the druggist, and the other from Jerome Bailey. Doctor Borden shook his head when Gay first broached the subject to him, but after examination he changed his mind and pronounced her health perfect. Gay was jubilant and she drove back to the lake through the late afternoon sunshine with a feeling of peace in her heart.

The first real peace she had known in many months.

She hadn't long to wait for the reply from the hospital. It came four days later. The letter of acceptance was cordial in the extreme and Gay and Myra prepared to move back to Belfort Street early the following week.

Gay took to training as a duck takes to water. She loved it. None of it seemed particularly strange or arduous to her. She had served a difficult apprenticeship in Bethesda and found that in many ways the work in Memorial was far easier.

At least there was no Mrs. Overton to contend with—no long diatribes in which she and every one in the institution was blamed, criticized and condemned unheard. The criticisms now were for the most part constructive.

For the first time since Miss Alden's death, Gay was completely happy. She had work to do—work that she loved—and for the first time she was living a normal life with girls of her own age. The probationary period was completed successfully and she received her cap. The class was unusually large for Bessemer Memorial—twelve girls passed the grueling three month's test—five flunked out. Gay felt a great sympathy for those five.

During the first year of her training she was kept pretty much in the wards and made a fine record. Her free periods were spent at Number Seventeen Belfort Street with Myra. She had little outside social life, for she had few friends in Bessemer and since Miss Alden's death most of the intimates of Aunt Grace had given small indication they wished to continue their former cordial relations. If the girl felt their withdrawal she gave no sign. Larry Boothe continued to call on her from time to time and they went to the movies and on rare occasions to a dance. Gay was an excellent dancer and Larry found her a delightful companion. He was serious, rather reserved and although his position at the paper mills was exceptional and well paid, he had his mother and younger sister to support and hadn't too much money to spend. Gay liked him for his many fine traits but felt no least romantic thrill at his attentions.

Myra, who had followed Mrs. Spencer into the hall, gave a little squeal of delight when she saw the newcomer. She caught hold to the young man's two hands extended to her and swung them between them while she gazed up at him in fond admiration. "Bill Graves," she challenged, "you've grown!"

At her daughter's whispered insistence Mrs. Spencer urged Bill to accompany them to the lake and Bill was only too glad to accept. It would give him a chance to be with Gay and that's what he had hoped but didn't dare expect. They stopped at the hotel for Bill's luggage and drove on to the Spencer home in the warm summer twilight.

This was one of the happiest times Gay had ever experienced. She watched Jean fall headlong in love with Bill—watched the young man's struggle to maintain his old loyalties and at last, on the day he prepared to leave for New York, saw his defenses crumble and go down before the frank and open adoration of Jean Spencer. Jean drove him back to Bessemer in the early morning, refusing Gay's offer to accompany them, and returned stary-eyed to announce that she was really and truly in love for all time.

Her mother looked worried at the announcement and Gay tried to set her mind at rest. Mrs. Spencer acknowledged she liked Bill, but who were his people—what about his background—his prospects—his habits, etc.

"He's an orphan, Mom, and—I'm going to marry him," Jean told her.

"Like Gay, he was raised in Bethesda. He's an artist—an illustrator—and I know he's a good one, even if he is young. He's going to be famous some day, but even if he weren't—I love him and—I'm going to marry him."

Mrs. Spencer was troubled. She shook her head. "He didn't say anything to me," she pointed out. "When did all this happen—his proposal, I mean?"

"Don't be dumb, darling," her daughter chided. "Why do you suppose I drove him to Bessemer this morning—alone? He didn't want to ask me—he's shy, sensitive, afraid we were snobs, but I knew he loved me and I—I made him tell me so."

A girl has to use her head these days if she wants to get anywhere. Oh, he's coming out again when Pop's home, but I don't care what anyone says or does, I love him and I'm going to marry him." Her eyes sparkled and her cheeks flushed with excitement. She was very pretty.

"I don't know what your brother will say," her mother murmured. "He adores you, you know, and he worries about you. Dear me, I feel I have been very negligent."

pie it. People remembered that it had been planned when Vivian was engaged to marry Thad, and they talked and conjectured—even prophesied—but no one seemed to know. Gay had encountered them at the hospital bazaar only last spring. She had pretended not to see them but couldn't help hearing Vivian as she pointed her out to her escort. The word "Bethesda" was quite audible. Gay hoped she hadn't changed color. She should be inured to it by this time.

It was during that summer that Bill Graves came back to Bessemer for a week's vacation. He arrived at the Belfort Street house just as Gay and Myra were preparing to leave for Crescent Lake to be guests of the Spencers for two weeks of Gay's vacation. Jean and her mother had come into town in the Spencer station wagon. It stood before the side porch while Jean and Gay packed and Mrs. Spencer helped Myra close the house.

"O-oh, Bill!" Gay exclaimed in delight. "How perfectly splendid to see you again! You're grown! What brought you here?"

"Vacation—my first," the young man said. He eyed the suitcases in the hall for a moment and asked, "Are you going or coming?"

Jean Falls In Love With Bill Graves

"Going, Bill," Gay told him regretfully, then turning to Jean who was gazing at this tall attractive stranger with avid interest. "This is Bill Graves, Jean—Jean Spencer. Bill is one of my very best friends. Myra and I are on our way to Crescent Lake, Bill. The Spencers have a lovely home on the shore and I am to spend two weeks of my vacation with them there. Oh, I wish I had known you were planning to come home. I would have postponed our trip."

"Why don't you come, too, Bill?" Jean asked impulsively. "We have loads of room and I'm sure Mom—my mother—will welcome you with open arms. Here she is now."

Myra, who had followed Mrs. Spencer into the hall, gave a little squeal of delight when she saw the newcomer. She caught hold to the young man's two hands extended to her and swung them between them while she gazed up at him in fond admiration. "Bill Graves," she challenged, "you've grown!"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS International Union Sunday School Lessons BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Exodus 3-4. DEVOTIONAL READING: Deuteronomy 22:1-9.

God and a Man Lesson for November 4, 1951

WHEN God created this world he did it Himself. Since that time, where affairs of this planet are concerned, when God wants to do something for mankind or for a man, he seldom does it by himself. He always has assistants.

When God wants to raise a crop of wheat he never raises it alone. When God wants to feed a city he feeds it by the innumerable hands of farmers, merchants, carriers of cargo the world around. When God wants children cured of diphtheria he does so—with the help of the men who discovered and perfected diphtheria anti-toxin.

Doubtless God could work alone; but just as doubtless, he seldom does. Even when God wants to split a granite cliff in the wilderness, he does not use a magic axe; he uses things we can see: the frost-crystals and the sunshine.

God's Man for God's Work THIS is also the story the Bible tells. Centuries ago there were some thousands of slaves in Egypt, Hebrew slaves, descended from the free man Abraham. God, we are told, wanted those slaves set free.

How would you have expected God to do it? If God is all-powerful, if he can do just anything he wants to do, and he wants these men set free, how will he do it? Will he reach down a mighty hand and lift them as you might lift a handful of the smallest ants, and set them down on some bit of free soil far away from Egypt? Will he send an army of angels to batter down the fortresses of Egypt, destroy her armed forces and set his people free?

Let us waste no time arguing whether God could or could not do such things. Let us assume that he could. The point is: he did not. He called a man, a man named Moses. Already Moses had gone through a long life, and perhaps he thought of himself as at the end of his trail. If Moses had been asked, he might even have said that all his life's experience had gone for nothing. But God knew better. God knew that everything that had formed Moses' mind and character—his family, his training and education, even the long lonely years as scout and shepherd at the back of beyond,—everything in his past life was to be useful in the most important part of his life that still lay ahead. For God's work, Moses was God's man.

Moses Has Many Opposite Numbers JUST as Moses was God's personal agent in liberating the slaves from Egypt, so down through the centuries Moses has had his "opposite numbers"—men and women who have brought to pass what (religious persons find reason to believe) God intends to bring to pass.

God wanted the good news about Jesus to be spread throughout the world. But this has come to pass only as Paul and a long line of missionaries have gone through one country after another with the message of God. God wanted the records of Jesus' life, or at least some facts about Jesus and his teachings, put down in writing and not left to men's memories.

But he did not write the Gospels—he inspired certain men to write them. God wanted the Christian world, in our time, to awake to the "open sore of Africa" and to send missionaries to that dark continent. But he chose a man, David Livingstone, to do this for him.

Wilberforce was God's agent for freeing the slaves of Great Britain, as Lincoln and many another were in America.

God's Ways Are Not Always Understood IT is easier to say these things years or centuries after the event than at the time they happen.

Moses at first could not believe he was the man God wanted; tried in fact to talk God out of it. Jeremiah doubted whether he should ever have been a prophet. Lincoln often had moods of the blackest. John Calvin sat up half the night in a Geneva boarding house giving Pastor Farel all the good reasons why he, Calvin, could never be a suitable man for the very job in which he became a famous hero.

Even God's own man sometimes does not realize his greatness. But God knows! And in time we all do.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON By JIM RHODY

Not Enough

Courtesy goes a long way, wherever it is applied, but there doesn't seem to be enough to go around. Constantly sportsmen in the field are reminded that the other fellow is more concerned with his own pleasure than the welfare of others. There's the hunter (at least one in every party), who jumps the gun when quail are flushed. That same fellow most likely will claim as many birds as he can get away with, regardless of who fired the pellets that killed them. This fellow has lost sight of broader aspects of hunting. He belongs to the category of the game hog, forages through the fields for the amount of game he can get, rather than for the sport of the hunt.

Then there is the constant joy rider on our rivers and lakes. That's fine sport. It's wonderful to get out on the lake and glide over the waters, but there also is always the other fellow to remember. He most likely is a fisherman. He may be casting the banks, or he may be anchored and fishing with live bait. He has as much right on the lake as does the joy rider, and the joy rider should stay away from him as much as possible. The waves interfere with his fishing. Often we have seen the speed boat rider dash toward a fishing boat, cut sharply, to throw up huge waves, and then bounce around the bend, leaving behind a maniacal laughter and a fisherman battling tangled lines and cursing his tormentor.

Hawks Protected Hawks and owls have lots of friends in Connecticut, the National Audubon Society reports. That became apparent recently when Governor John Lodge signed a "model" bird protection bill that makes it unlawful to shoot any species of hawk or owl in the Nutmeg State.

Approval of this legislation, which had been passed unanimously by both houses of the Connecticut Legislature, places the state among the leaders in bird conservation. A provision of the new law permits farmers to destroy those individual hawks caught in the act of doing damage to poultry. Pointing out that only occasional hawks develop into poultry stealers, the National Audubon Society said this provision will protect farmers and at the same time prevent misinformed persons from mooting out "vigilante justice" to all hawks and owls because of the misdeeds of a few of them.

A public hearing on the new bird protection law, held before the Game and Fish Committees of the Legislature at Hartford, brought out nearly 50 representatives of state conservation organizations who testified to the value of predatory birds. No opposition was presented.

More Funds? A report from the National Wildlife Federation states that the House Ways and Means Committee in executive session has hiked the excise tax on sport fishing tackle to 15 per cent from its original base of 10 per cent. This actually means that the revenues arising from this source will be 50 per cent greater than at present. This excise tax on rods, reels, and creels and on artificial baits, lures, and flies was earmarked for federal aid to state fishery restoration by the terms of the Dingell-Johnson Act of the last session of Congress. The increase will be greatly needed, as the tax paid into the earmarked fund has been relatively small. It was at first thought this tax on fishing tackle would produce about $3,000,000. However, on the basis of the first few months, if it does not materially increase, there would not be much more available this coming year for allocation to the states than a million and a half dollars.

Sportsmen who pay this tax are generally in favor of the increase. On the basis of $1,500,000 earmarked into the fund each one of the 15 million licensed fishermen would pay on the average about four and three-quarters cents apiece during the year. That small sum is even less than chicken feed and will not cause a ripple of protest from anyone who replenishes his fishing outfit or adds a lure or two to his tackle box.

With the exception of a small amount for administration, the entire earmarked fund is turned over to the states to make better fishing. The states are required to pay 25 per cent of the cost of all fishery restoration projects which are approved by the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The goat-sucker, or nightjar, is a bird around which a number of old legends have been woven. The ancients believed it sucked goats at night, that the goats immediately "dried up" and lost their sight.

The narwhal is called the sea unicorn because of the long, spiral and tapered tusk that grows from its upper jaw. This is sometimes as long as ten feet. Its purpose has never been determined. Ironically, the tusk is often fashioned into a harpoon used in the hunting of these sea animals.

Grandma's Sayings

STRIKES ME there's nothin' better 'bout the "good old days" 'ceptin' that it was younger then. $19 paid Mrs. C. C. Rawson, Alhambra, Calif.

I MAY BE A GRANDMA in years, but when it comes to cookin' I'm completely modern. Yessir! I alius use Nu-Maid, the modern yellow margarine. Nu-Maid is modern in taste—so pure and sweet; modern in texture—so smooth spreadin'. Suits me fine!

WORLD'S LARGEST LIVING SIGN! After 13 years, the scene pictured above has become a familiar sight to air travelers over northern Indiana. Occupying an area 250 feet high by one-half mile in length, the 8200 pine trees spelling the name have now reached an average height of 20 feet. Seven rows of trees planted 6 feet apart form the letters. The huge sign is located 10 miles west of South Bend, Indiana on Studebaker's 800-acre proving ground, where the new 120-horsepower Studebaker V-8 engine was test-driven for hundreds of thousands of miles.
