TWO FLINT MEN KILLED WHEN CAR HITS BRIDGE

Crash Occurs Early Thursday Morning at Hale

Driver Blinded by Headlights of Approaching Car

Two Flint men died from injuries and one is suffering from serious wounds received in an early Thanksgiving morning automobile accident near Hale.

The dead are Norman Pierson and Joseph Schultz. The injured is Robert Pierson, a brother of Norman Pierson. He is at Omer Hospital.

The three Flint men were driving south of Hale on M-65 at about 2:30 o'clock. Robert Pierson, who was driving the car, stated that as they approached the Hale creek bridge, he swung out to pass an oncoming car. The lights blinded him and his car crashed into the concrete head wall of the bridge. The front and side of his car was crushed.

William Pierson, another brother of Norman Pierson, and two companions were following in another car. They took the three injured men to Omer Hospital. Norman Pierson and Joseph Schultz died on the way to the hospital.

Robert Pierson is suffering from serious abdominal and chest injuries.

The investigating officer was Deputy Sheriff Herman Huber of Hale.

Norman Pierson was the owner of a coal yard and beer garden at Flint. During the past year or more he spent a considerable amount of time at Hale where he had a wood cutting project.

The occupants of the north bound car did not stop at the scene but drove on to Hale where they reported that there had been a bad accident at the Hale creek bridge. Their identity is not known.

Tawas Wins from Bad Axe in Hunters Bowling Match

The annual deer hunters match between Tawas City and Bad Axe went in favor of the locals last Saturday night when they hit the maples for 2826 total pins while the Bad Axes were chopping at their heels with a 2806 total. The match was bowled at the Tawas City Recreation.

Dick Carey, genial proprietor of the local lanes, shot a rousing 676 series to lead his squad. G. Ney and S. Tabyan both had good series for Bad Axe with 573.

This match provides plenty of competition during the hunting season as Bad Axe pits the best five bowlers out of their group of about twenty hunters against the best of the Tawas'es have to offer.

Following is how the pinsters fared.

George Tuttle Appointed 3rd Ward Alderman

Discuss Snow Removal Problems of Coming Season

George Tuttle was named Third Ward alderman at the regular meeting of Tawas City common council held Monday evening. He was appointed to fill the vacancy on the council made by the recent death of his father, R. W. Tuttle.

Snow removal was one of the principal problems discussed at the meeting Monday evening. Hugo Keiser and H. E. Friedman, who were in attendance, spoke on the problems from the residents and businessmen's standpoint. Friedman's phase was snow removal from sidewalks and Keiser was interested in a quicker removal of snow from the street in the business section. It was brought out that a considerable amount of delay was caused by cars and trucks parked at business places in front of the snow removal crew.

Police Officer George Ruth was authorized to attend the Police Training School which will be held five days during the first week of December at Lansing.

Colored lights have been installed on Lake Street for the Christmas season.

Four Deaths in First Week of Hunting Season

The deer hunting fatality list reached four over the week end in Isosco County, when two hunters from Wayne, John Schonchek and Shirley Coon were found dead in their car about 5 miles north and 3 miles east of Hale.

The two men were found in their car with the motor running by Noble Saunders of Grand Ledge. They had apparently been using their car to sleep in.

Prosecuting Attorney Reginald J. Barnett along with Sheriff Ivan O'Farrell, Cpl. Roti and Detective Younger of the Michigan State Police investigated. Justice H. E. Friedman of Tawas City was the acting coroner.

Jerry Bouchard of Detroit who accidentally shot himself in the abdomen with his shotgun on opening day died Friday morning from the wounds.

The other death was that of William Ferguson who died of a heart attack last Thursday.

Forest Service Suggests Corrections, Changes in Stream and Lake Names

Changes in geographical names in Isosco county and corrections in the spelling of place names have been recommended by the Forest Service of the Huron National Forest. The changes have been submitted for the approval of the Isosco County Board of Supervisors.

The changes in names of certain lakes and streams have been suggested to prevent the confusion which now exists where two or more lakes or streams in the area have the same names.

Corrections in the spelling of place names made after considerable research work by the Forest Service. The sources of information were Original maps of the area and ownership records, county officials, conservation officers and long-time residents of the county. The changes and corrections submitted are:

Duval creek, not Rattlesnake creek. In Oscoda township. Stephen Duval was an early settler near the stream.

Van Etten lake, not Van Ettan lake. Van Etten comes from Van Etten Boom Co.

Duell lake, not Duel lake. Harlett Duell was an early pioneer in Oscoda township.

Coppler creek, not Copper or Elliot creek.

Guilford lake, not Gilford lake. Honors J. T. Guilford who settled near the lake in 1888.

Marl lake, not Marlbead lake. An apparent corruption of the name.

Kunze creek, not Dead creek. The original name is a duplication of the name of Dead creek which enters Tawas river at Tawas City. The recommended name would honor the late Emil Kunze. The Kunze land is along the stream.

Gray creek, not Grey creek. Named after Enos Gray, a pioneer settler.

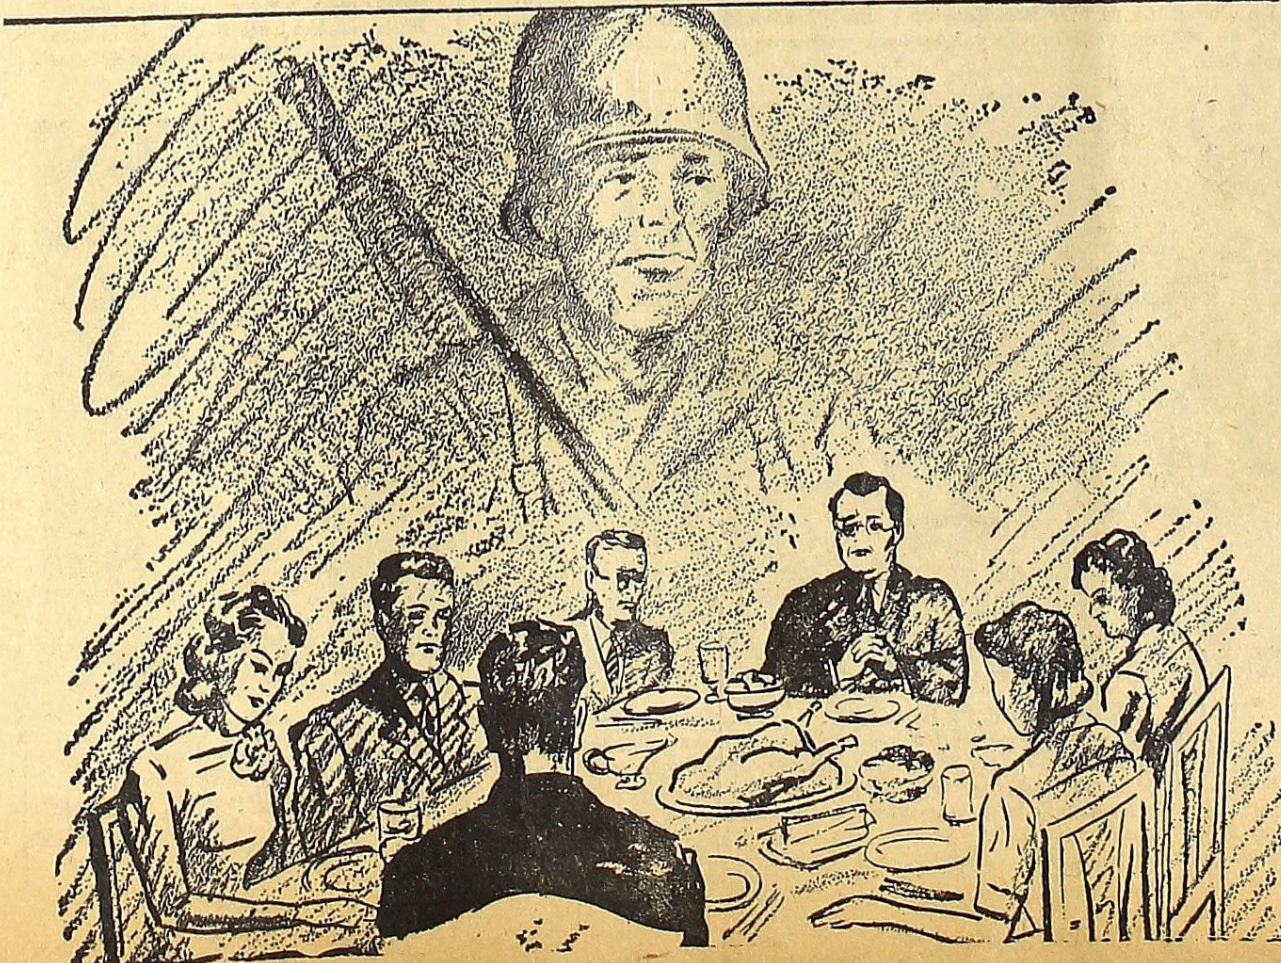

Welcome lake, not Bass lake. Gordon Welcome owned the property surrounding the lake for a few years during the 1920's. The original owners were E. W. Thornton and E. B. Follett.

Follett was a prominent Plainfield farmer, civic leader and one time member of the state legislature from this district. Thornton homesteaded there in 1904.

Londo lake, not South Londo lake. Located in Plainfield township.

Chappell lake, not Chapple lake. Name honors Ed Chappell who homesteaded there in 1864.

The accident occurred at 11:25 while Grudinski was driving south on Lake street in Tawas City. His car crashed into a Ford convertible parked in front of the Taylor Apartments. The car was owned by Richard Wilson who lives at the apartments.

Both cars were demolished and Grudinski's car caught on fire. The fire department was called to extinguish the fire. Clinton Jarvis, who had been bowling at the Tawas City Recreation, was the first man on the scene and had some difficulty in extricating Grudinski who was wedged under the crushed steering wheel.

City Police Chief George Ruth made the investigation.

3 Suggestions Made at Erosion Meet

Discussions Held At Legislative Committee Meeting

Every blow emphasizes the erosion problem along the shore of Saginaw bay and many sections of the whole Great Lakes area.

Three suggestions were made at a recent hearing before a legislative committee. They were:

Installation of experimental control structures.

A laboratory program of study. Zoning and planning programs locally.

Prof. E. F. Brater, of the University of Michigan, suggests the first two.

Experimental groins and other structures designed to reduce wave action, he said, might lead to the discovery of cheaper ways of building them.

"Present groins cost about $100 a front foot," he said. The laboratory program would be aimed at new methods of cutting the damage from waves and other currents during the present period of high water levels. Brater said.

Senator Frank Heath, (Bay City Republican), committee chairman, suggested that zoning ordinances and planning had been used in cities for years to control location and construction of houses.

"We may be able to extend the idea to lake shore property," he said.

A vigorous educational campaign was urged by Harvey Lawhead of the United States Corps of Engineers.

"People should not build on the waterfront," he said, "without consulting the United States Lake Survey to find out what the lakes have done in the past."

"The trouble is that many have built without taking the fluctuations of the lake into consideration."

This was echoed by Louis D. Kirschner, of the Lake Survey, who said people have to be educated to expect the extremes."

"It is interesting," he added, "that the lakes on the average have been higher than they are this year for 33 of the last 90 years."

Nicholas V. Olds, assistant attorney general, reported that the State Constitution has been so amended that the provision prohibiting the state from participating in internal improvements would no longer forbid state aid in building control structures.

Dates of November Basketball Games

Scheduled basketball games for high school teams around the county for the remainder of November are as follows:

Tawas City basketball fans will not be able to have a chance to watch the 1951-52 version of Tawas City Elks in action on their home floor until December 18 when Mio will tangle with the locals on the local hardwood.

Only three games are scheduled for the local high school team in December, but the schedule will get under way in full force during January.

BULLETIN

Bill Groff Sr., son Bill, Jr. and Herb Ziehl, all of Tawas City, may have missed out on their Thanksgiving turkey yesterday but at 10:00 Thursday night they rolled into town with three black bear tied to their car!

While deer hunting about six miles north of Ossineke, they spotted several bear early in the morning. They promptly forgot about the deer and concentrated on the bear.

Bill, Jr. was the first to make a kill when he downed a big female bear, but it took him three shots with his 300 Savage to do it and Bill said he was pretty worried when the bear kept coming. "All hades broke loose with bear running every which way" Bill Sr. exclaimed, and "Herb and I each shot a cub."

After killing the three bear, and making sure there weren't anymore around, they dragged their kill about a mile back to their car through a dense swamp.

They said they would miss turkey any day for some more hunting like that!

Grassroots Poll Reveals Political Thinking in Home Town of Country

THE BIG GUESS—What is the political thinking in the home towns of America one year before the most important presidential election in the history of the country? Who will be the candidates? Who will win?

In an attempt to answer these questions, The Publisher's Auxiliary, a weekly newspaper published by Western Newspaper Union and directed to the publishers and editors of the country's small town publications, recently polled 6,444 editors. Replies revealed a trend of political thinking that has not been touched by previous national polls.

Of the 2,188 editors participating, with every state represented, 40.6 per cent believed that President Truman would be reelected. They also believed that Sen. Robert A. Taft would be the GOP candidate. The startling result of the poll, however, was that neither Taft or Truman were the editors' personal choice. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was the personal favorite by 30.6 per cent, with Taft second with 27.1 per cent. President Truman polled only 8.6 per cent of the votes on the personal choice question.

The poll gains added significance in that it reflects the thinking of editors who know what the people of the home towns and cross roads are thinking. And unlike other national polls it samples the rural thinking of America, generally conceded as having been the balance of power in the last presidential election. A similar poll conducted in 1947 by The Auxiliary was 100 per cent accurate.

A brief summary of the questions asked and the answers revealed this thinking at the grassroots level:

- Who do you think will be the next President? Percentage vote: Truman, 40.6; Eisenhower, 24.9; Taft, 20.5; Undecided, 6.1; Scattered (Warren, MacArthur, Stassen and other political figures), 7.9.
- Who do you personally favor for the presidency? Percentage vote: Eisenhower, 30.6; Taft, 27.1; Truman, 8.6; Undecided, 6.8; Stassen, 6.5; Warren, 5.1; Douglas, 3.7; MacArthur, 3.0.
- In your opinion, what candidate will the Democratic delegation from your state be pledged to at the national convention? Editors of 42 states said Truman, 4 states unpledged or rated undecided, 1 was said pledged to Russell, and 1 to Byrd.
- In your opinion, what candidate will the Republican delegation of your state be pledged to at the national convention? Editors in 38 states believed Taft, 6 to Eisenhower, 1 probably pledged to Stassen, 1 divided between Taft and Eisenhower, 1 to Warren, and 1 unpledged or undecided.
- Which candidate do you believe will receive the national Democratic nomination? The consensus showed that editors in all states believed it would be Truman by 94.5 per cent.
- Which candidate do you believe will receive the national Republican nomination? Taft was picked by 57.5 per cent and Eisenhower second with 28.1 per cent.

STRANGE LAW—The strangest tax law in the history of the United States is now in effect. It is the 10 per cent tax on gambling.

This federal tax levy presents a strange paradox. It is supposedly a revenue raising scheme, yet it provides a public list which will allow local law officers to stamp out gambling and thus kill the expected source of revenue.

Gambling is illegal almost everywhere in the U. S. outside of Nevada. If the gambler complies with the federal tax, he then puts the finger on himself as a probable violator of the local law. If he doesn't comply, then he'll have the treasury men down on him.

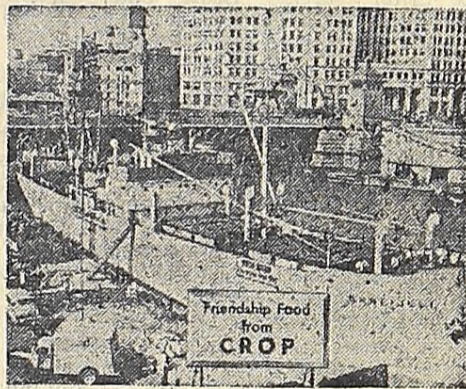

Treasury men reason that many gamblers will stay in business because they have spent a lifetime operating outside the law; local policemen already know who's gambling without aid of federal publicity; and registrants for the "occupation tax" may still dodge jail unless it is proved they "actually received a bet."

DRAFT BOOST—The Defense Department has announced a draft quota of 59,650 for January, the largest number asked for in any month since last spring. Of the total, 48,000 will go to the Army and 11,650 to the Marines.

The department said the induction call for January was to "provide an orderly buildup of the armed forces to authorized strength, including the recent increase in the strength of the Marine Corps" and to compensate for the low call in December.

FARMERS' GIFT—A $41,936 gift from America's farmers was turned over for loading on a Friendship Food Ship in Chicago recently. The gift was donated in a good will gesture to refugees in Western Germany through the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

Chris J. Bannerup, a farmer of Twin Lakes, Minn., presented the gift at a ceremony that initiated CROP's 1951 fall appeal for 1,400 carloads of food for distribution among needy people in 32 countries. Additional Friendship gifts, bound for Italy, Greece, Turkey, Trieste, the Holy Land, India and Japan are also en route. Since 1947, CROP has collected through the nation 5,400 carloads of exportable farm produce as free gifts to the world's needy.

PAY BOOST—American Federation of Labor members of the government's Wage Stabilization Board have suggested a new wage policy under which pay raises would be permitted for increased efficiency and production.

The move was seen as a possible solution to the 5 per cent pay increase which labor has hinted at in the last few weeks. Added to the 10 to 12 per cent cost of living increases now permitted by the Stabilization Board above January 1950 levels, that would send the figure to 17 per cent.

The AFL contends the plan will cut costs and thus permit wage increases without boosting prices.

WON'T TALK—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was in the United States last week for a series of talks with President Truman and military experts concerning the defense program in Europe. But the question in the minds of everyone in the nation, from home towns to the cities, was what are Ike's political plans?

Harassed by reporters and politicians alike, the general called at the White House and had a long talk with the President. When he departed he again told reporters he did not talk politics, he had not given anyone authority or a go-ahead to undertake any political activity on his behalf.

Thus Eisenhower cut the ground from under a number of Republican leaders who have been intimating broadly that he had authorized them to seek the Republican presidential nomination for him. But he still left the political picture wide open when he replied to a question if he would talk politics, by saying, "No, not just now."

DON'T UNDERESTIMATE WOMEN

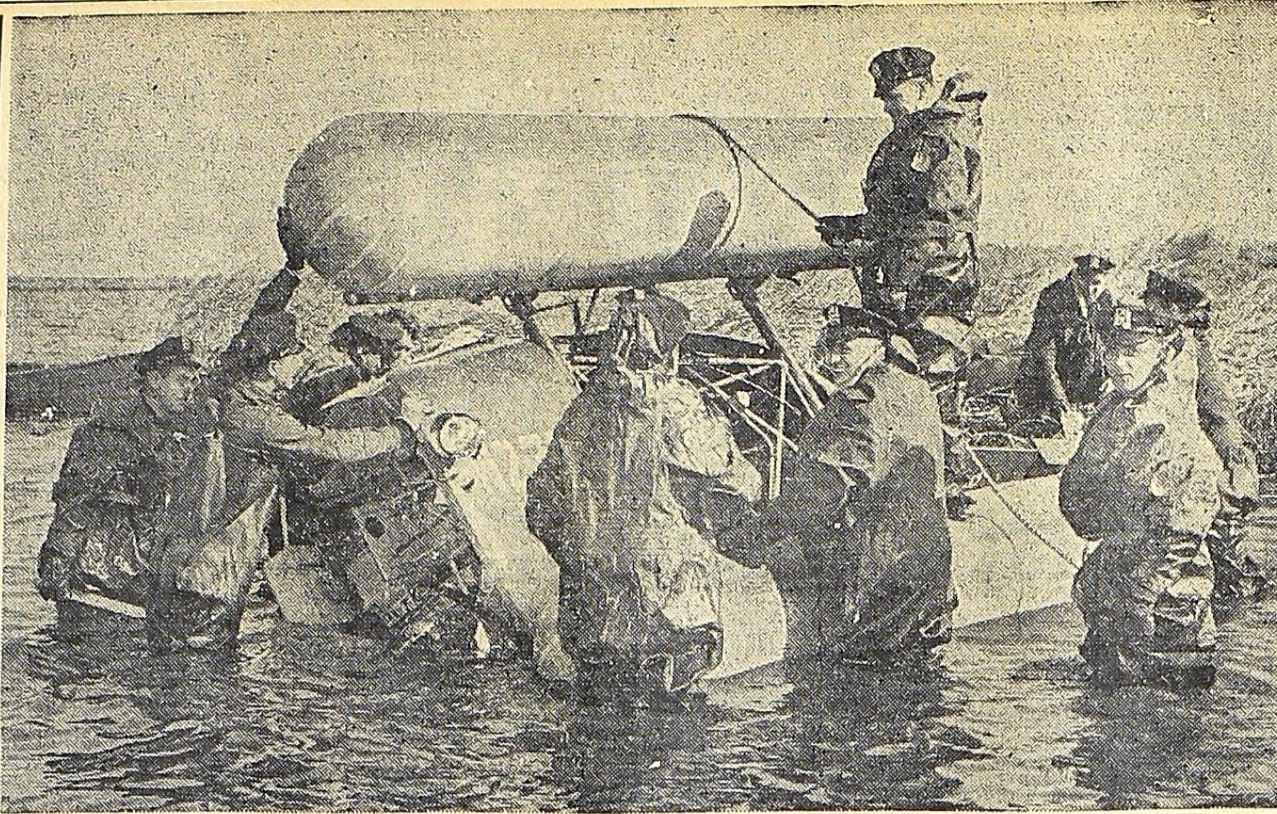

Expert Says Father's Days Numbered

Dr. George P. Murdock, noted anthropologist, has made the sage observation of "don't underestimate women." Mankind faces the possibility of a woman's world in which females would own most of the property and husbands would play a secondary role in family life, he said recently.

It could even be that girls, not boys, eventually may carry on the family line and name, he observed. Murdock based the possibility on changing customs and traditions. One such change, he said, is the increasing political and economic emancipation of women.

According to Murdock, women already own "more than half of the corporate wealth of the United States." And the amount of that wealth is growing daily.

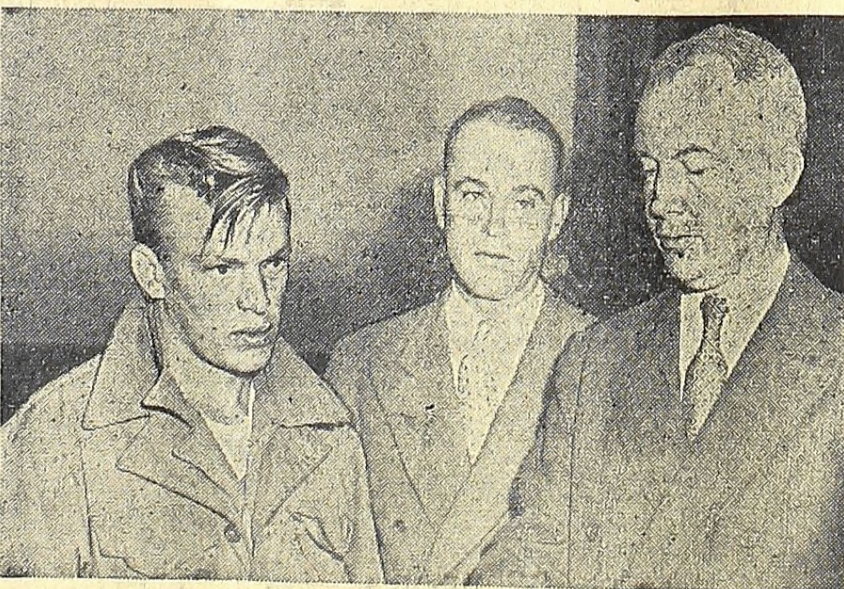

RESCUE COPTER OVERTURNS . . . A police helicopter which had rescued two young girls who had been adrift all night in a rowboat in Jamaica Bay, N. Y., overturned after picking the girls up and spilled two policemen and the girls back into the river. Alice Hartman, 15, and Nancy Adams, 15, and their pet collie were rescued from a marshy section of the bay a second time. Clad only in dungarees and sweaters, the girls spent a terrifying night, drifting with the tide. They kept warm by cuddling up to the collie. The sandwiches which the girls carried became wet and inedible, but the pooch was provided with a tin of dog food.

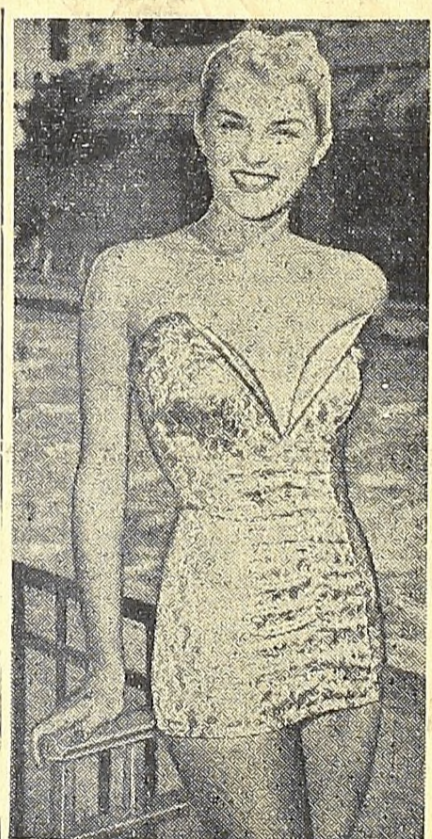

SAVED FROM THE SEA . . . Six Cuban seamen who clung to a life raft for 48 hours were rescued by members of the crew of the coastal tanker Henry C. Wallace, 40 miles off Key Largo, near Miami, Fla. Their 136-foot motor vessel, the Cocoa, is said to have sunk and left its crew in the sea on a trip for Cardenas, Cuba. The six rescued men are Eulalio Perez, Jacinto Palacios, Mario Serafin, Luis Diaz, Manuel Sebrían, and Alvaro Batista. They were the entire crew of the sunken vessel. Here a lifeboat from the tanker, manned by members of the tanker's crew, takes the men to safety aboard their ship. They know their ordeal is over.

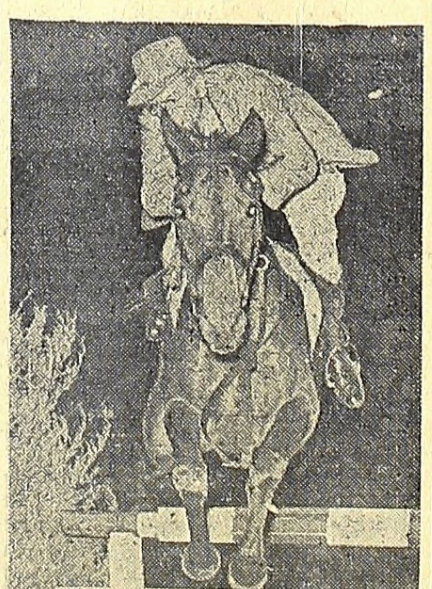

MRS. ROSENBERG DONS "MAE WEST" . . . In Tokyo Rear Adm. Ralph A. Ofsie, chief of staff to Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, commander naval forces far east, helps Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, assistant secretary of defense, button her "Mae West" before sending her by helicopter from Tokyo to Yokosuka naval base, where she was to have lunch. She visited the carrier Bon Homme Richard. Mrs. Rosenberg was making an official visit to the far eastern war areas for a first hand inspection.

ATTEMPTS MILLION-DOLLAR HOLDUP . . . Kenneth Ashcraft (left), San Francisco, is arraigned by federal officials in New York to await charges on conspiring to steal air force funds. Ashcraft and three others—two of them soldiers—were seized by the FBI while allegedly planning robbery of an air force pay roll at Mitchell Field, L. I. G-Men said the plotters gave up the plan to hold up the payroll convoy and agreed instead to employ an expert safecracker.

IN THE SWIM . . . This is the plunging bra suit designed by Rose Marie Reid, Los Angeles. It is called Tiffany Ice and is made from lace over metallic satin. Price of the suit is $50. It is one of the new 1952 fashion creations in beach wear.

THE READER'S DATE BOOK Thanksgiving Is a Family Day Dedicated to Giving Thanks

Thanksgiving is a family day, dedicated to giving thanks and feasting. And most home town families who make their living directly or indirectly from the soil have reason to be thankful, because this has been a bountiful year with few exceptions.

Although not a record, the 1951 harvest is well above average. The number of cattle and swine on American farms are near the all-time record. And turkeys, synonymous with Thanksgiving, are in greater number than at any time in history.

During the last two weeks the local homemaker has noticed a heavier percentage of advertising in the home town publication than before, especially from grocery stores and poultry dealers. This is to be expected, because Thanksgiving, with the exception of Christmas, is the food industry's busiest and most profitable period of the entire year.

The profits, of course, are from volume. The average housewife during the past year has had to watch her food budget with great care, and in many cases has taken to hunting for food bargains. For that reason, the local grocer who has a savings to offer the women of his community can expect them to take advantage of it. But not unless his advertising tells them about it.

Generally, local grocery and poultry business has been exceptionally good during the past week. It even appears likely the food industry may set a new all-time seasonal record because on Thanksgiving the homemaker is inclined to overdo it a little and serve two kinds of potatoes, a host of vegetables and several desserts, and of course, the traditional turkey or a duck.

Since the turkey is usually the most important item on the Thanksgiving menu, preparation of the bird is the homemaker's first concern. The real secret in roasting the turkey is keeping the temperature as low as possible. As for preparation, here are eight simple steps that should insure outstanding success:

1. The turkey should be seasoned inside with salt before it is stuffed. (Approximately 1/2 teaspoon per pound of bird.) If giblets or other meats are added to the stuffing, cook them first. Don't pack the body cavity and neck region with dressing because it will expand. Allow room for expanding.

2. The body cavity should be shut. A good method is by metal skewers, laced together with strong cord. Some homemakers prefer to sew the cavity, using needle and cord. In either case leave long ends to the cord for tying the legs.

3. Wind the cord ends around the leg, above the joint and over the skin so it won't draw, and bring the legs together and tie them to the tailpiece until the leg ends are directly over the tail.

4. A long piece of the neck skin should be pulled over the back of the bird and fastened with a skewer or a few stitches.

5. Force the wing tips back until they rest flat against the neck skin, but don't try to secure them with a string across the breast, because that leaves markings on the surface.

6. Place the bird breast down, or on its side. Grease thoroughly, using unsalted, melted fat.

7. Cover the turkey with a thin, open-textured cloth dipped in unsalted melted fat and place in preheated oven. If cloth dries during cooking, moisten with fat from bottom of pan.

8. After an hour, cut trussing string between drumsticks and tail and turn turkey to rest on other side of breast. When baking time is approximately 3/4 done, turn turkey on back to finish browning.

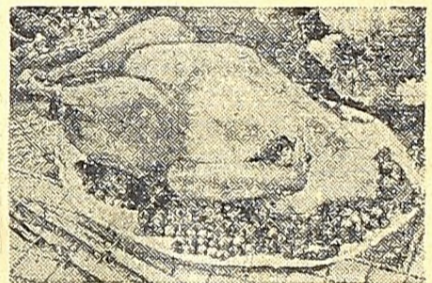

Properly done, trussing produces a bird of compact shape that won't dry out. The turkey will be more attractive on the platter and will be easier to carve.

Cranberries have become as traditional for Thanksgiving dinner as old Tom himself. With this in mind, here is a cranberry salad that will give the annual feast an unusual twist.

FORT STEVENS

Few Washingtonians Know Story Of Stockade in Center of City

WNU Washington Bureau

Thousands of motorists on Washington's busy Thirteenth street daily swerve around a rough stockade without ever realizing that these earthworks mark all that is left of the Civil War defense which saved the nation's capital from capture by a threatening Confederate army.

It was on this spot that President Lincoln stood and watched, as an eyewitness and a target, the only battle he ever saw. While he stood there, an officer fell with a death wound within three feet of him. The President was finally convinced by his officers that he was running a needless risk and was persuaded to get below the danger line.

General Jubal Early directed his attack against this fortification on July 11 and 12, 1864, saw it weakly manned and gave the order to fire. At the beginning of the battle, however, Union reinforcements, under the command of General Lew Wallace, who later wrote the famous book Bon Hur, relieved the fort and caused the Confederates to abandon their attempt against Washington.

In their march to Washington, Early's men had collected $20,000 from Hagerstown and $200,000 cash from the banks in Frederick, Maryland. It was only recently that the city of Frederick was able to pay off in full the notes given to reimburse the banks for this sum. Early's troops had torn up twenty-four miles of Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks, and had burned the home of Postmaster General Montgomery Blair in Silver Spring, Maryland, then probably ten miles out of the Washington city limits but today an integral part of the greater metropolitan area.

General Wallace's defeat at Monocacy had delayed Early's army by one day, and that one day's grace, giving an opportunity to get fresh reinforcements into the city, is considered by many historians to have saved Washington from capture. General Early left Washington by a night march on July 18 with no one making a move to stop him. So the possibility of the Confederate flag flying over the capitol dome was lost.

Fort Stevens was constructed in August of 1861 on a site just off what was then called the Seventh Street road but what is now Georgia Avenue. It was originally named Fort Massachusetts, but was enlarged and renamed in 1863. In 1937 the fort was partially restored and is now under the care of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. It occupies a block in a newly fully developed part of the city.

Mounds of earth are stacked against huge bullet-shaped wooden poles on the outer edges of the fort. In the center stands a flag pole that was never graced by a Confederate flag. The fort is surrounded by churches, apartment buildings, and other evidences of modern urban life. Automobiles speed by. In the midst of all this, Fort Stevens stands apart, a quiet reminder of another age, another monument here of the war between the states, and a silent reminder of how near was the Confederate cause to the capture of Washington.

An American Tradition

Rebirth of Religion
SOME people in Washington are predicting that President Truman's nomination of Gen. Mark Clark to be U.S. ambassador to the state of Vatican City will turn the next election into another religious debacle reminiscent of the Al Smith campaign of 1928.

One was a gathering here of 40,000 members of Jehovah's Witnesses faith at the American Legion ball park. The following week more than 70,000 Catholics gathered at Washington's monument to recite the Rosary. And the same day, approximately 10,000 Protestants celebrated the second annual Festival of Faith at Uline arena.

Many of those who express opposition to diplomatic relations between this nation and the Holy See are ignorant of the history of such relations. The President's establishment of diplomatic relations with the Vatican is not new.

Early Relations
One of the earliest acts of congress of the new-born Republic of the United States was to establish consular relations with the Papal States in 1797.

Our last minister to the Papal States was Rufus King, who resigned January 1, 1868.

As a result of a treaty in 1926, a new accord was entered into between the Pope and the Italian government which set up the state of Vatican City.

Area Is Small

The area of the state is small, only 108.7 acres, with a population of approximately 3,000. It includes St. Peter's church, the Vatican palace and museum which covers more than 13 acres.

Neutrality Pledged

Under the 1926 treaty with the Italian government, the Pope is pledged to perpetual neutrality with respect to political disputes between governments.

The flag of the state is white and yellow, charged with the crossed keys and triple tiara. The state also has its own postage stamps and coinage system.

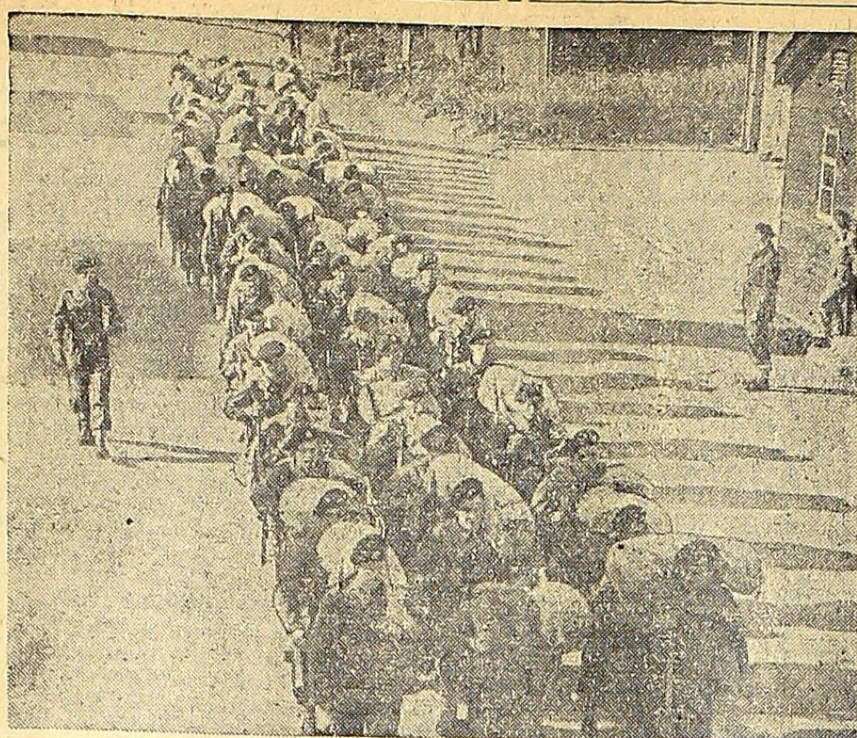

Roosevelt Envoy

In 1939 President Roosevelt named Myron Taylor, former president of U. S. Steel, as his personal envoy to the Vatican.

President Truman said in his nomination of General Clark that national security, and the purpose of diplomacy and humanitarianism would be served by having a full-fledged ambassador in the most sensitive listening post in the world in the battle against communism.

Civil Service

Frank E. McKinney, the new Democratic national chairman, went into action the day after he assumed his new post.

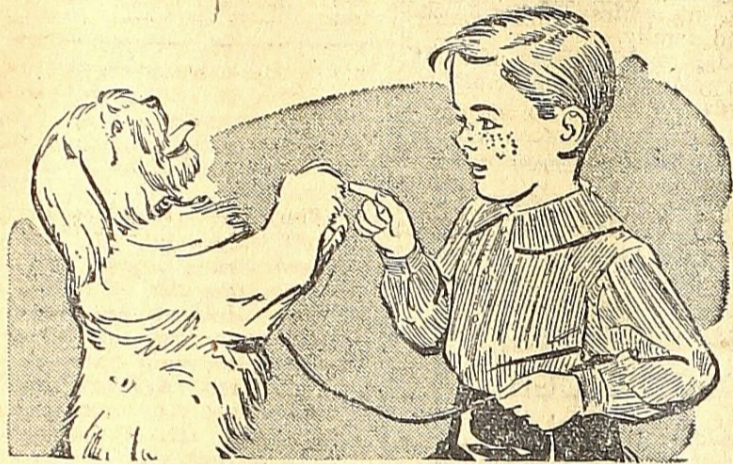

MID-EAST BOUND . . . Members of the 19th Independent Infantry Brigade of the British Army, march to an air field from where they will be air-lifted to middle East in biggest air operation since Berlin air lift.

Tot Sees Self In Animals

By Lawrence Gould

Do children see themselves in animals?

Answer: Yes, says Drs. Leopold and Sonya S. Bellak in the Journal of Projective Techniques. They describe their new version for children of the "Apperception Test" in which the subject is asked to say what he "sees" in specially designed pictures.

Our last minister to the Papal States was Rufus King, who resigned January 1, 1868, when congress declined to appropriate further money for maintenance of the legation in Rome.

As a result of a treaty in 1926, a new accord was entered into between the Pope and the Italian government which set up the state of Vatican City.

Does insanity "get well of itself"?

Answer: Yes—and no. There are types of psychosis which seem to clear up without specific treatment in what the psychiatrists call "spontaneous remission."

KEEPING HEALTHY

Meat, Other Proteins Are Daily Need

By Dr. James W. Barton

I WRITE OFTEN about meat, despite the fact that it is expensive, because all the new research work on food and nutrition establish the fact that it is now known to be the most important food of the daily diet.

Meat is important for every individual, whether of normal weight, underweight or overweight. It meets the needs of the individual boy, girl, man or woman of normal weight because of its building and repairing of body cells.

Proteins (meat, eggs, poultry, fish) have, as pointed out by Drs. Lusk and Bogert, also a stimulating effect upon the ductless glands, especially the thyroid in the neck which has been well named the balance wheel of the body.

In his book, "The Civilized Diseases," Dr. Boris Sokoloff states, "It is now common knowledge that protein foods such as lean meat are slenderizing because proteins burn more calories in the body than they provide; 100 calories of protein cause the body to increase its heat by about 150 calories.

HEALTH NOTES

Any bending exercise, taken regularly, if only for five minutes, will help keep fat off abdomen.

The skin contains the sweat glands which help regulate the temperature of the body.

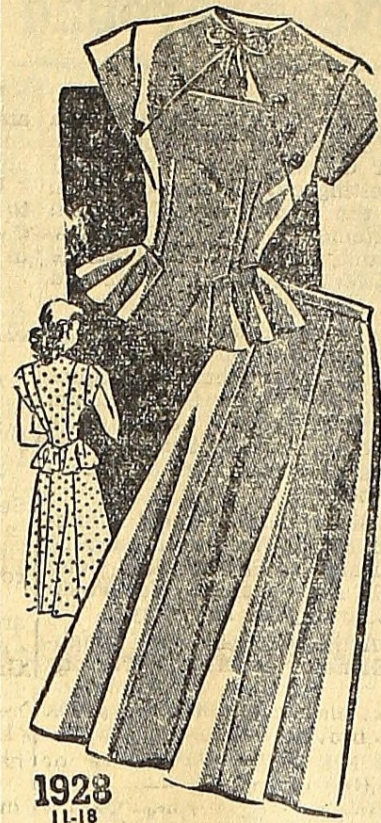

As overweight does not come on in a matter of a few weeks or days, it will take many weeks, or even months, to get rid of it safely.

Instead of just a skin specialist studying a skin disease, a psychiatrist should be present too.

The skin is an organ and just as important to our health as other organs of the body.

One attack of coronary thrombosis does not mean that the patient is doomed to another attack and death.

Honorable Board of Supervisors,

Gentlemen:

Your county officers salary committee to whom was referred the request of Elva Ulman, Court House Janitor, for an increase of salary of $25.00 per month, wish to report and recommend as follows: the janitor's salary at present is $200.00 per month. "Shall Iosco County, Michigan, borrow the sum of Two Hundred Fifty Thousand ($250,000.00) Dollars, and issue its bonds thereof for the purpose of construction and equipping a new Courtroom Building?"

And further, that the said Court House Committee shall consult with the prosecuting attorney concerning the placing on the ballot at the said election, along with the millage increase proposition:

"Shall the limitation on the total amount of taxes which may be assessed against all property in Iosco County, Michigan, for all purposes except payment of obligations in excess of December 8, 1932, be increased, as provided by Section 21 Article X of the Constitution of Michigan by two tenths (2%) per cent (2 mills) for a period of twenty years (20) years from 1952 to 1971, inclusive, for the sole purpose of paying the principal and interest of bonds of said County in the aggregate principal sum of Two Hundred Fifty Thousand ($250,000) Dollars to be issued, if authorized by the qualified electors of said County, for the purpose of constructing and equipping a new Courtroom building in said County; this increase to supersede and rescind all increases in the tax rate limitation construction of a new Courtroom."

How to make old roads seem NEW

PICK a road that you know by heart. Not too good a road. One that has some bumps—some unbanked turns—a tough hill or two.

Then get in touch with us, and let us put you behind the wheel of a Buick, with Dynaflo Drive.*

Now you're all set for a new experience. You'll find out this:

Those bumps seem to lose their bobble. You just take them with a smooth and level stride.

Those unbanked turns don't seem so sharp, and those hills seem almost to flatten out.

How come? Well, a lot of things are different when you travel in a Buick.

You're riding on big, soft coil springs that let every wheel dance beneath you, without passing on the jolts to you in the car.

You're driving a car that's plenty inches broader than it is high—a sure-footed road-hugger if there ever was one.

And you're riding behind a Fireball Engine — Buick's time-tested version of a high-compression valve-in-head— an engine that packs more power than most people ever need to use.

With this power — and Dynaflo Drive* — you don't have to "rush" a hill at the bottom to soar serenely over the top. You just feed the power as you need it — climb with a sure, steady swoop without buck or bobble all the way up.

There's a lot more that we could tell you about a Buick. But such things as room, and comfort, the confident way it steers, and the way it shortens the miles are things you can best discover from personal experience.

So why not follow the routine already suggested? You supply the road—we'll supply the car — and let it speak for itself.

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative

Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE—NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret: millions of folks have discovered about FEM-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEM-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEM-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use FEM-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic self! Get FEM-A-MINT. No increase in price—still 25c, 50c or only 10c.

RESIDENT A SERIAL STORY
NURSE

BY LUCY AGNES HANCOCK

THE STORY SO FAR:
Nurse Thaddeus, Gay Gaynor, orphan, is humiliated by an insistent marriage proposal by Larry Boothe in the presence of Thad Borden, whom she dislikes, and snobbish, self-styled "aristocrat," Vivian Poole D'Archer. Gay is studying to become a children's nurse and resident nurse at Bethesda orphanage, her former "home." She has been befriended by Dr. Borden, Thad's father, of whom she is fond. Her dislike for Thad dates from the time he forcibly kissed her at an orphan's picnic and is nourished by his evident neglect of his medical studies for trivial good times with Vivian D'Archer. Gay thinks Thad should assist his father.

CHAPTER XIV

The doctor's voice was cold as he pointed out, "Tom was injured on your place, Patterson. I think he has a good chance of recovering considerable if he chooses to sue you for negligence. After all he's a minor and you had no business allowing him to run a tractor—especially one that was as defective as you say that one was. What sort of man are you, anyway, to work a kid like Tom so that he's a mere skeleton?"

"That's none of your business, Doc," the man growled. "What we want to know is just how bad he's hurt—just how long he'll be here and if he's going to be any good after he gets out. I'm a poor man

"I think you'd better go, Patterson," the doctor had said, getting to his feet. He said he had all he could do to keep from beating him up. "I was never so mad in my life, Gaynor," he told her, striding the length of his office and back while he talked. "The big brute! We'll find a place for the boy—if I have to take him myself, and I have half a mind to make him pay—and plenty!"

Gay hadn't seen Tommy then, but this morning she thought of what the Chief had said. Somehow the boy appealed to her. He reminded her of Bill Graves—he had the same lost, forlorn look in his eyes.

Gay Promises Tommy He Will Have a Home

"Why, Tom," she said now, "you don't need company with all these lively boys here with you, and then there's Miss Bower and me. Surely you're not homesick for your aunt and uncle, are you?"

Tommy exploded. The oaths poured from his lips in a steady stream until Gay placed her hand over his mouth. He pulled away from her and she patted his thin cheek.

"Don't you care, son," she whispered. "I know what it is to be lonesome. I used to pray that it was all a bad dream and that I should wake up to find my mother and father there with me, but I never did. And then one day I met a lovely lady who promised to help me. She died and I went to live with her. Some day you will have a home and people to love you, too. That's a promise, Tommy. Will you trust me?"

The boy stared at her for a long moment. "Do—do you really and truly mean that, Gay? Do you mean I won't never have to go back to Uncle Jake and Aunt Min?"

"Not unless you want to, honey," she told him. "Now suppose you quiet down and try to be happy. You know, you are about the oldest boy in this ward and I want the others to be able to look up to you and—well—sort of treat you like a big brother. Now eat your breakfast and we'll talk some more later."

Danny Bennett was to have his operation the next day and Gay stayed with him longer than usual. His mother came in the afternoon and the boy seemed happy and quite casual about his coming trip to the operating room.

"You'll let me know as soon as it's over, Nurse?" Mrs. Bennett pleaded as she left. "I wish I could be here to help him, but Doctor Cushing is opposed to my coming at all tomorrow. I should be working. I know, but how can I?" Her slender body shook with suppressed sobs. "He's such a little brick—so brave and cheerful. If anything should happen to him I—"

Gay put a comforting arm about the trembling woman. "Doctor Cushing is wonderful, Mrs. Bennett," she assured her. "I don't believe he would have suggested operating if he wasn't pretty confident of the outcome. Why don't you trust him, my dear—and pray? That always helps, and we'll take care of Danny you may be sure. We all love him. Now run along and try not to worry too much. I'll let you know as soon as it's over."

Mrs. Bennett went away and Gay returned to the ward. Tommy Patterson was in the midst of a fabulous account of a bear hunt on an imaginary farm. The children were enchanted and Gay stood for a moment listening as the boy's voice rose and fell, then soared to a crescendo at the climax when, the bear fallen with a bullet between his eyes, Tommy and someone named Nat bore him away in triumph.

"How much did he weigh?" one of the boys wanted to know.

"Oh, maybe a couple of hundred," Tom replied nonchalantly. "Tell us another," someone urged. "Ever see a wildcat, Tom?"

Tom grunted. "Lots of 'em. Why, out on my uncle's ranch they steal the lambs and calves. There's a bounty on 'em out there."

"Where's that?" one of the wide-eyed youngsters asked. "And what's a bounty?"

"Out in Montana—my uncle's ranch is—a great big one—hundreds of acres. Don't you know what a bounty is?" he asked condescendingly. "Why, that's something the State pays when you kill a fierce animal like a bear or a wildcat or a panther or—or—any of those things. I made a lot of money one winter trapping foxes and—and things. I caught a silver fox once and got a lot of money for it."

"How much?" someone demanded and Gay thought she caught a note of doubt in the questioner's voice.

"I don't listen to gossip, Myra," the girl said shortly.

"Fifty dollars," Tommy hazarded. "Huh!" the questioner scoffed. "Fifty dollars ain't so much. I got more'n fifty bucks in the bank."

"Fifty dollars for one skin's a lot of money," Danny Bennett said with surprising firmness, no doubt seeing the need of championing Tom. "I wonder, though, what the poor fox did without his skin, Tom. He couldn't grow another one, could he? Lambs grow more wool," he pointed out as a hoot of derisive laughter met his question.

Tommy said with amazing gentleness, "He didn't need another skin, Danny," he explained, unsmiling. "You see, he was dead. He had to be dead before we could skin him."

"What a dope!" someone said. Tommy glared at him. He subsided.

Danny Undergoes Successful Operation

Danny's eyes filled with tears. "But why did you have to kill him, Tom? He never did anything to you, did he? I think it's wicked to kill things when they don't bother you."

"But foxes do bother us, Danny," Tommy explained patiently. "They kill the chickens and—and bother the sheep—the lambs specially."

Gay thought that Tommy must have read a lot about wild life. But how about that ranch in Montana?

She went off duty at seven and so had no chance to ask questions. Next morning Danny greeted her excitedly.

"I've been scrubbed good already, Gay," he said. "And I can't have any breakfast—but I don't mind. I'm not very hungry anyway. A nurse gave me a hypo—look, this is where she pricked me. She told me it was to make me hear the birds sing, but I guess they must be asleep yet, 'cause I don't hear any birds. Do you, Gay?"

Danny Bennett was brought back to the ward at ten o'clock and Gay watched fearfully as they put him into his own bed. Doctor Cushing came into the room a few minutes later. He seemed very weary but there was a strange glow in his tired eyes—a look almost of wonder as he came to stand beside the bed. The screens had been drawn and Gay and the surgeon gazed down at the sleeping boy.

Almost fearfully, Gay asked, "How—how did it go, Doctor?"

"He stood it well—very well. I hope. I have done my best—it now rests with God." He touched the moist forehead tenderly. "A brave lad, Gaynor—a very brave lad."

He turned and left the room and Gay went into the corridor to telephone Mrs. Bennett.

"He won't be conscious for several hours, Mrs. Bennett," she told the worried woman at the other end of the line. "But he stood the ordeal well—and—I think he is going to make it."

Mrs. Bennett was weeping when she replaced the instrument and Gay's own eyes were moist as she returned to the ward. She hoped he would come out of the anesthetic while she was on duty. The Chief came in from time to time and the resident also. Tommy Patterson kept the other children quiet and Gay marveled at the change in him.

It was after four when Danny Bennett sighed deeply and gave a little moan, flinging his arms about before opening his eyes. They didn't seem to focus properly and he frowned, then smiled. And although she knew he was still far from normal, Gay smiled in return. Doctor Cushing came in and he, too, smiled down at the boy.

"Well, fella, feeling better?" Danny shook his head, a puzzled look in his eyes.

"W—what happened to me?" he asked, his voice uneven and ragged.

"Oh, we put you to sleep and took the hurt out of your back so that some day soon you're going to be well. But you must lie still for a while longer and then we'll teach you to walk again. Isn't that wonderful, Danny?" The surgeon's eyes were bright and he smiled down at the bewildered boy who put out a tentative hand and took the one resting on his shoulder. Doctor Cushing turned to Gay. "Of course, he doesn't understand a word I'm saying, Gaynor. But, somehow, I wanted to tell him—now." Danny was already asleep. The doctor patted his shoulder and turned to the nurse. They went outside for a moment.

Gay Learns Thad Is Working in Surgery

"Let him sleep all he can for the next few days, Gaynor," he said. "Mother Nature's going to have her innings unhampered from now on. That back of his is okay for the first time in years. It's a miracle his legs have remained so normal with that pressure there. But this time we got right to the very root of the trouble and I anticipate no further difficulties. Thad's a fine assistant—perhaps without him—"

One sentence—unfinished and quite unexpected—stayed in Gay's mind.

"That's a fine assistant—perhaps without him—" What did he mean? She didn't know Thad Borden was doing surgical work here at Memorial. She hadn't happened to come in contact with him—she hoped she wouldn't.

On her first free afternoon, Gay walked over to Beafort Street and found Myra busy house cleaning. She had converted the big black upstairs bedroom into a boy's sanctum. Gay was enchanted with it and felt sure Tommy would be delighted to live there. After a thorough inspection, the two went downstairs and Myra slipped into her own room to change while Gay wandered over the house reveling anew in the feeling of ownership. She knew she should never cease being grateful to Grace Alden for giving it to her. Scrubbed and shining, Myra joined her.

"Before I forget it, Gay," she said, smoothing down the front of her freshly ironed dress, "have you seen Doc lately?"

"You mean Doctor Borden, Myra?"

"Who else?"

"Why, he comes to the hospital every day—at some time or other. Why?"

"But have you seen him—talked to him—noticed him?" Myra persisted.

Gay shook her head. "Now that you speak of it, I can't say that I have—not lately. Why? What's the matter with him?"

"That's what I don't know. He looks terrible—awful! He never was very husky, but—well, I don't like the looks of him, Gay."

Gay said nothing for a moment, then, "When did you see him last, Myra? Here?"

"He picked me up when I was coming from the market yesterday. I guess maybe he's worried 'bout that son of his and the Poole girl. Folks do say she's going to get a divorce from that painter fella and is out to nab Thad. Doc don't much like the idea, I guess. You heard anything, Gay?"

"I don't listen to gossip, Myra," the girl said shortly.

"Well, 'tain't what I'd call gossip, exactly—more like common talk, seems though," Myra said. "I can't understand the boy, Gay. He's real likeable and he's smart as a steel trap. It's her, Gay. That one's a vampire. I heard tell of such women. They're bad business. I wish—"

"Listen, Myra," Gay interrupted emphatically. "Thad Borden doesn't have to tag around after Vivian Poole if he doesn't want to. No man is compelled to go with a girl."

Myra sniffed. "What you don't know about females like Vivian Poole'd fill a hull berry, Frances Gaynor," she said. "Thad's like his father in some ways—a gentleman. And if a girl asked him to go places with her—"

Trifocal Glasses Afford Flexibility For Half-Million

It took the twentieth century to bring us commercially practical trifocal eyeglasses, which provide clear vision at the mid-point as well as at the near and far points. Today about half a million Americans are wearing them, and it is predicted that the number will rise to seven million within the next five years.

The name, "continuous vision lenses," has recently been applied to trifocals, because they make it easy for eyes to focus upon one area after another without any abrupt "jumps." They bring seeing comfort and efficiency to the 40-plus age group, whose powers of changing focus are on the wane, as the crystalline lens and its muscles and ligaments gradually lose elasticity. Bifocals are very helpful to this group, but continuous vision lenses afford additional flexibility by including an extra segment to cover the distance from 18 to 50 inches from the eyes.

Countless people are being enabled to prolong their years of working efficiency by the use of continuous vision lenses. The butcher who had been cutting himself with his cleaver... the business executive who couldn't get a clear view of anyone who sat across the desk from him... the housewife who couldn't read price marks at the grocer's... the accountant who had difficulty constantly changing focus between the reading distance and middle distance... all these and many others are finding in trifocals the means of extending their usefulness.

As for the critical question, how hard is it to adjust to trifocals?—a survey on this subject was conducted among visual specialists. Results showed that 60 per cent of the people for whom trifocals had been prescribed thought them easier to adjust to than bifocals. Three-way lenses, they said, did not require so much lowering of the head to see low objects at considerable distance, nor so much head-raising to see such things as meters and thermometers. The remaining 40 per cent of trifocal-wearers thought trifocals were about as difficult to adjust to as bifocals.

'Federal Agent' Has Two Short Ones on the House

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The man stalked in and casually explained that he was a federal agent checking to see if the bar was serving blended whisky from bonded bottles.

"Pour me two drinks from that bottle," he ordered the bartender.

He sniffed each drink carefully, then frowned.

"OK," he said. "I'll be back tomorrow to check the other bottles."

After he was gone the bartender realized he had given out two drinks on the house. He had forgotten to ask for credentials.

Sulphur Mineral Making Current Medical History

From the sulphur 'n' molasses of Grandma's day to the sulphyridine of modern medicine, sulphur has played the role of healer.

The startling performance of the sulfa drugs in combating some of our most dreaded diseases points up the importance to our daily lives of the magic mineral from which they are derived. Actually, sulphur's use as a medicine goes all the way back to prehistoric times, according to Freeport Sulphur Company. The cavemen ate sulphur to cleanse their blood—long before Grandma ever thought of compounding it with molasses to make her cure-all spring tonic easier to take. The historian Pliny, writing around 50 A.D., when the Roman Empire was at its height, told of four kinds of sulphur and attributed 14 medicinal virtues to the strange substance.

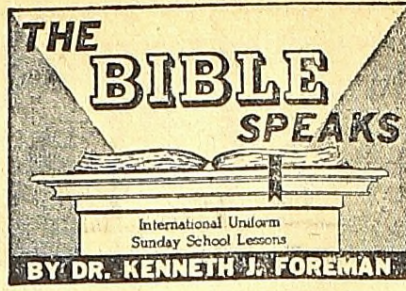

Sulphur plays a key role in many fields other than medicine. In some form or other it goes into the manufacture of almost everything we eat, wear or use—notably steel, fertilizers, rubber, paper, paints, plastics, explosives. That is why a current world-wide shortage is causing deep concern in industry and agriculture and has spurred a global search for new sources. One recent result was the discovery of a large new sulphur deposit near the mouth of the Mississippi river, where Freeport will build a plant expected to bring up a half-million tons a year of the yellow element.

Mother Perishes in Fire After Saving Three Children

NEW YORK—A Brooklyn mother perished in the flames that destroyed an apartment building after she had dropped her children, one by one, to safety from her third story window into a blanket held by neighbors.

Mrs. Irma Randall, 35, shouted to attract passers-by when she noticed the building was on fire. She calmly tossed a blanket to the ground and then dropped her children, from 18 months to 8 years of age, to safety.

The blanket was too flimsy to support her own weight and neighbors were unable to reach her because of the flames.

Why We Worship

Lesson for November 25, 1951

FEWER than two out of every three Americans belong to any church or synagogue. Yet the traveler across America is never long out of sight of some house of worship. With or without a cross, with or without paint, every few miles there will be a church or chapel or meeting-house, where like-minded people meet to worship the One God.

Variety

It is amazing, the confusing variety of ways in which God is publicly worshipped. Some churches are liturgical; that is, the form of the service is prescribed, printed in a book, used with little change from generation to generation. Roman Catholic churches are of this kind (though there is a wide range of detail in the procedures of different Catholic churches); so are the Lutheran, the Reformed and the Episcopal churches, among others.

Other churches are non-liturgical, or free, in their mode of worship, varying all the way from churches with optional forms of worship on out to snake-handling sects like the "Church of God with Signs Following," where you never know one minute what is going to happen next.

The liturgical churches, too, are different as can be. Some liturgies are filled with chanting, incense, long and not easy for a stranger to follow. Other liturgies are brief and simple. The insides of these various kinds of churches are just as different as the interiors of hotels—all the way from the elegant Waldorf-Astoria down to the ransacked boarding house of a frontier town. The leader of the worship may be clad in vestments gorgeous in the extreme, or in a plain black gown, or dressed in shirt-sleeves.

The "man from Mars" would be so bewildered by all this that he would ask: Is there anything at all that these different kinds of worship have in common?

Communion

FOR an answer, we can go back more than 3,000 years to the time when Moses was organizing his people's worship as he organized the rest of their lives. You would hardly have recognized that little "tabernacle" in the wilderness as a place of worship at all; it looked like neither church nor synagogue.

And what went on in the tabernacle would look strange to a Jew of today, stranger still to a Roman Catholic, stranger of all to a "non-liturgical" Protestant. And yet, what went on to make that tabernacle possible in the first place, and what went on in it afterwards, give us the answer to the question: What do all the innumerable forms of worship have in common?

First of all is communion with God. In true worship we become aware of Him! in the New Testament phrase, we "approach with boldness the throne of Grace." Worship is right when it actually brings the worshiper into a cleansing consciousness of the nearness of God,—when, indeed, he feels and knows that it is "in Him we live and move and have our being."

Not every one reaches this divine awareness in the same way.

Consecration

BUT there is another side to worship: Consecration. However varied the order of worship may be, one part of it will be found nearly everywhere: the offering.

This is actually one of the most important parts of the service, though it is often neglected and "skipped." For the offering is not only important in itself, but it is a great symbol of what worship ought always to be, a call to dedication.

Into the offering plate go bits of silver, green paper, checks and money? Yes, and more. This represents something of the life and work of the worshippers. Every man has some better moments when he would generously like to do something to help the world. On Sunday the church harnesses his vague good will. It gives him a channel for his generosity.

What a man gives ought never to be TO the church but THROUGH the church; it would be an expression of gratitude to God from one who knows that his whole life is God's gift.

An immigrant who had recently become a naturalized citizen was applauding a contingent of Loyalty Day paraders in New York City. A man standing in front of him turned and with a superior attitude demanded to know why he was applauding.

The Russian-born citizen replied, "I am applauding good people who are affirming their faith in democracy."

"And if you don't like it," he suggested, "why don't you go back to where I came from."

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Effective Cough Syrup, Mixed at Home for Economy

No Cooking. No Work. Real Saving. Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, and is still one of the most effective for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

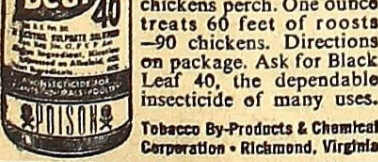

Make a syrup with 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup water. No cooking needed. Or you can use one cup syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

New put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

And you'll say it's really excellent for expectant action. You can feel it take hold quickly. It loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Don't suffer longer with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exertion or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Tips For Deer Hunters

Be sure of your target. Don't lose that cripple. Save that meat. According to Henry P. Davis, public relations manager of the Remington Arms Co., these should be the three cardinal principles of the deer hunter. The nimrod seeking deer, Davis advises, should keep saying them over and over to himself.

"First and foremost of all tips on deer hunting," says Davis, "is 'Be Sure of Your Target!' Most deer hunters are prone to make snapshots. Sometimes this is necessary if one is to get in a shot at all, but it only takes a fraction of a second to make sure that your target is really a deer and not a cow or calf or even a man. And if all deer hunters will only hesitate for that fraction of a second to be absolutely certain, the hunting accident rate will fall like a barometer before a hurricane.

Always Go Slowly

"In still hunting, go slowly. Be sure of your footing before each step. A cracking twig, a dislodged stone . . . and there may go your trophy before you can catch a glimpse of him. If you are hunting with a companion (and you should for hunting alone is dangerous), be sure that you know where he is at all times.

"When you do get a shot, try hard to make it good. Try to put your bullet, slug or buckshot in the chest area—the closer the heart, the better. The chest area is between the elbow and the shoulder. The vital neck area is a good spot if you can hit it. Anything behind the ribs is usually very bad. Hold low and forward.

"If you should cripple him, stay on the trail until you get him, even if you have to wait until the next day. Unless you know the deer is down, wait for at least 30 minutes (an hour will be better) before you follow. He will probably lie down in the first good cover and if allowed to stay there awhile will probably stiffen up too much to move far later. If you get after him too soon, he may travel miles before he beds down. If it's too dark to follow, take up the trail again at dawn.

"Dress your deer out at once. Body heat spoils meat. Cut from the breast thence to the base of tail, being careful not to puncture the intestines. Cut around vent and pull in. Roll out viscera, cut gullet, loose and drain. Then be sure to swab whole cavity clean and DRY. Swab the carcass as quickly as possible.

Skin Out the Deer

"In bringing your meat home, don't just throw it on the fender and let it go at that. If you have a long, hot trip home, skin out your deer, quarter the carcass, rub salt into the meat and wrap in cheese cloth or packer's cloth. If your trip runs into the second day, cool the meat during the night and repeat the 'insulating' process.

"In getting your deer to camp, and you have a partner with you, don't hang the deer by its feet to a single pole. Cut two poles and tie the carcass on so that the bulk of the animal's weight is on top of the poles. If you are by yourself, it is best to drag the carcass into camp, using a short light rope. If possible, attach a red handkerchief to the deer's antlers or body so that another hunter won't take a pot-shot at you.

A deer's antlers grow so fast that the process is almost, if not wholly, without parallel in the animal kingdom.

Can You?

If you caught a trout could you tell whether it was a brook, brown or rainbow?

A surprising number of trout fishermen, roughly 40 per cent, cannot, judging from a poll conducted by the conservation department's institute for fisheries research.

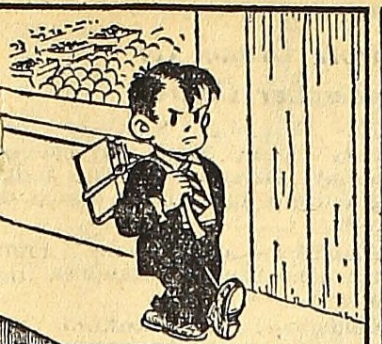

Over 300 trout fishermen working specially designated sections of the Pigeon and Rifle rivers and Hunt creek in Michigan were asked to identify the three kinds of trout which were exhibited at checking stations. All three trout were correctly identified by 62 per cent of those who co-operated in the test at the Pigeon river checking station, 56 per cent of those at Hunt creek and 54 per cent of those braving the test at the Rifle river station. A few declined to hazard a guess.

The institute reports 64 persons tripped on identifying the brown, 60 on the rainbow and 54 more had trouble choosing the brook trout.

Never Too Cold

Have you ever done any fishing through the ice for your favorite panfish—say, crappie or bream? You're missing some good sport and meat on the table if you have not. The trick in creeling winter panfish is the use of special "ice" panfish flies which are appearing in increasing numbers on the market. These are flies, sparsely dressed, as a rule, and sufficiently weighted to get them down deep where the fish lie in winter.
