

Ashmuns to Build 300-Car Drive-In Theatre Near Tawas

Construction Work to Start Next Spring

Johnson Construction Co. Has Contract for Building Project

Ashmuns Theatres announced yesterday (Thursday) that construction would start next spring on the Tawas Drive-In, a new 300 car drive-in theatre. The Johnson Construction Company of Birmingham has the contract.

The site for the new theatre is five miles north of the Tawas on US-23. The land will be immediately cleared.

The Tawas Drive-In will be modernly equipped throughout. There will be individual speakers for each car. Equipment will be furnished by the National Theatres Supply Co. A free playground will be provided for the children.

In addition to eight indoor theatres, including the two in the Tawas, Ashmun Theatres operate drive-in theatres at Saginaw, Bay City and Caro. They are planning to construct two more drive-ins this spring.

More complete details will be published previous to opening of Tawas Drive-In in the spring.

Elks Triumph in Season's 1st Game

Whittemore Reserves Defeat Tawas Team

The Tawas City Elks lifted off the lid of the 1951-52 basketball season Tuesday night by outlasting Whittemore 36 to 29 on the opposition's home court. The Elks reserves lost to Whittemore by a lopsided 35 to 16 count.

After Whittemore took a first quarter 11 to 8 lead, the Elks came to life and turned the tables on them scoring 11 points and limiting the opposition to 5.

In the second half Tawas City kept out in front by cashing in on three field goals and two foul shots for 8 points while Whittemore had 6. In the fourth and final quarter Tawas City outscored Whittemore 9 to 7 to win the game.

Coach Mark Defibaugh is starting out the season with a "green" bunch of boys, losing his entire last years first team to graduation. This years team is composed of sophomores and juniors and only one senior. Coach Defibaugh informed the Herald yesterday that during the next few weeks his charges will be working hard to find the right combination.

Gary Humphrey led the Elks in scoring with 12 points, sinking 3 three point goals and 5 foul shots. T. Morley followed him with 8 points. Goupil led Whittemore with 10 markers.

The reserves were snowed under by a 35 to 16 score by the Whittemore team. H. Ott led the way for the winners with 20 points while Hall had 10. Wendt and Landon had four points each to lead Tawas City. Others who hit the scoring column were Davison 2, Binder 2, Erickson 2, Kendall 1.

Tonight Tawas City will travel to Rose City where they will meet the Ogemaw county team on their home court. Next Tuesday will find the Elks playing at Sterling.

Local Hunters Hit Jackpot

Herbert Ziehl, Wm. Groff, Jr., and Wm. Groff, Sr., above, proudly display the three bears they shot at Ossineke on Thanksgiving day. The largest of the bears, a female shot by "Bill" Jr., weighed about 200 pounds while the cubs weighed over 100 pounds each.

Hugo Groff, owner of the Rainbow Service Station on Lake St. and now residing in Detroit, also became a "big game hunter" as he shot a bear weighing about 225 pounds Sunday.

Hugo, along with hunting companions Jerry Stephan, George Naumann, Clement Stephan, and Dr. Mannor first spotted the bear on their "4-Squares Club," near Curran, Saturday afternoon. Hugo downed the bear the following day after they drove a swamp.

Parade of Religious Floats at Tawas to Depict 'The Nativity'

Eight Churches Of Tawas to Take Part

Will Pass Through Two Cities Saturday Afternoon, Dec. 15

Eight Tawas churches are co-operating in a Christmas season program which will be new to this section of Michigan, and promises to have more than ordinary interest. It will be a parade of floats depicting scenes from the birth of Christ.

The parade will be held Saturday afternoon, December 15, and will pass through the business districts of the two cities.

Participating churches are the two Methodist churches, Baptist church, Christ Episcopal church, St. Joseph Catholic church, L.D.S. church, Grace Lutheran church and Assembly of God church.

The scenes from the Nativity portrayed on the floats will include:

"Open Bible in the Home."
"Knocking at the Door of the Inn."
"Shepherds in the Field."
"Manger Scene."
"Presentation of the Child in the Temple."
"Wisemen With Their Gifts."
"Carpenter Shop With Jesus Working With His Father."
"Child Jesus Among the Doctors in the Temple."
In the parade will be groups of Carol Singers from the several participating churches.

Palestine in Picture And Prophecy At Baptist Church

"Palestine in Picture and Prophecy," a thirty minute, 16 mm. film in gorgeous Kodachrome colors projected by a new RCA projector on a Daylite screen will be shown at the First Baptist Church, Tawas City, on Thursday, December 6 at 7:30 p.m. by Dr. Harold P. Warren of Flint who has recently returned from an extensive tour of Palestine.

Among some of the thrilling "film shots" which he took are: "Above the Clouds," "Haifa to Jerusalem by Train," "Panorama of Old and New Jerusalem," "Mt. of Olives and Gethsemane," "Mosque of Omar," "Bethlehem and the Church of Nativity," "The Jericho Road," "The City of Jericho," "Jordan River and the Dead Sea," "Golgotha and the Garden Tomb," "The Streets of Old Jerusalem," "A Camp of 25 Thousand Yemite Jews," "Villages of Nain, Cana and Nazareth," Galilee, Blue Galilee, and many other informing, inspiring pictures of the "Land of the Book."

In his message on Palestine, Dr. Warren will answer from the Bible the current question, "Will Russia ever invade Palestine?"

This is a unique service of interest to peoples of all faiths, all of whom are invited and welcome to attend. Come early and get a good seat.

Dr. Warren will present a gift to the person driving the farthest to (Continued No. 4, Back Page.)

To Show Double Feature Movie

Wm. Look & Sons announce the showing of a double feature moving picture at their showrooms, Monday, December 3.

The titles are "Progress of Pontiac" and "Stepping Up of the Joneses"

The program starts at 7:30 and everyone is invited. The 1952 Pontiac will be on display.

Smith-Bischoff

Miss Louise Bischoff and James Smith were married November 17 at the St. Joseph parish house by Fr. Eichhold.

A dinner and reception followed the ceremony at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bischoff of Baldwin township. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith of Tawas City.

The young couple are at home in the Rolls Apartments.

The annual 4-H Club Achievement Day scheduled for December 6 at Hale, has been postponed according to an announcement by Marvin Davenport, 4-H Club Agent.

Dr. Carl Schlechte of Rochester enjoyed a few days of hunting here this week.

Farm Speaker

EVERETT M. ELWOOD

What's going to happen to farm incomes in 1952? What's new on income taxes? Why do some farmers make higher profits than others? Does grassland farming pay? These and many other questions will be discussed at the "Barnyard Economics" meeting to be held at Hale on Monday December 3 according to Harold R. Clark, County Agricultural Agent. There will be a full two-hour program starting at 2:00 p.m. in the Community Building. Everett Elwood and James Nielson, farm management specialists from the Agricultural Economics Department at Michigan State College will be on hand for the meeting.

The prospects for farm prices, costs and income in 1952 and the outlook for farm products grown in Iosco county will be discussed briefly. Recent changes in tax legislation that farm farmers will be outlined. An important part of the meeting will be the discussion on "How the Hi-Profit Farmer Did It." Nearly half the program will be devoted to grassland farming. The effects of changes in the amounts of hay and pasture on labor, investments and farm income will be stressed. There will be time for those attending the meeting to ask questions and participate in the discussion. Everyone interested in better farming is invited to attend.

Iosco Fair to Hold Annual Meet Dec. 4

Six Members to be Elected to Fair Association Board

The annual meeting of the Iosco County Agricultural Society will be held December 4, at the Hale Community Building.

Every person interested in our county fair is urged to attend, become a member, and take a part in the meeting. To become a member of the society requires the purchase of a membership ticket.

"In order to have a good county fair," states T. G. Scofield, secretary of the Iosco County Agricultural Society, "we must give the association and its officers and directors our moral and financial support. There is no better way than by becoming a member and participating in the election of directors and helping to arrange a program that will be of interest to the people of the county."

"We have six members of the board of directors to elect at the coming annual meet. Attend, we are sure you will have an interesting and pleasant time."

BULLETIN

Water poured through the new Dead Creek cut-off with a rush Thursday afternoon when Carl Rempert, dragline operator, finish ed blocking off the old channel.

A project of the Tawas City Board of Education to improve the original school grounds, and properly purchased during the past year to provide playgrounds for the school, it removes several horseshoe bends from this stream of many bends. The project included excavating a new channel for the stream and filling the old. John Konenski is the contractor.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round
BY DREW PEARSON

Babe-in-the-Woods

REPUBLICANS - for - Eisenhower heaved a big sigh of relief when their proposed candidate finally climbed on his plane and flew back to Paris. During the short time he was here, they estimated that their man had helped Senator Taft pick up about 100 additional delegates for the GOP nomination.

"He may be a great general," mourned one Republican active in the Eisenhower-for-President organization, "but he certainly is a babe-in-the-woods when it comes to politics."

What caused Eisenhower supporters to tear their hair was the way their man cut the ground out from under his chief backer with the statement that he hadn't heard from Sen. James Duff of Pennsylvania "directly or indirectly for a long, long time."

In the first place this was not true. For, earlier in the day, Ike's own aide, Lt. Col. Robert L. Schulz, had phoned Senator Duff from Louisville. He phoned around Sunday noon, and Eisenhower's disclaimer to the press was Sunday afternoon.

Second, word was sent to Senator Duff two weeks before Eisenhower arrived that he was coming and to keep November 4, 5 and 6 open.

Third and more important, Duff had been waging a steady though quiet campaign to organize district leaders throughout the country and take delegates away from Taft. Last month, for instance, he made two speeches in North Carolina urging Eisenhower for President. Immediately following the two speeches, John Gordon Bennett, scion of the famed New York Herald editor, went to North Carolina, began the actual work of pledging delegates.

Anguished Phone Calls

Most essential part of the Bennett-Duff sales talk, naturally, had to be that Eisenhower was a Republican, had given definite assurances that he would be a candidate, and would not leave his followers out on a limb. Without such assurances, no local politician wants to deal.

Imagine their horrified surprise, therefore, when local leaders read in the press that Eisenhower hadn't heard from Senator Duff "directly or indirectly for a long, long time."

Immediately long-distance phone calls began coming in to Eisenhower lieutenants from various parts of the country.

"You said Jim Duff was masterminding the general's campaign," protested one North Carolina Republican. "How can he mastermind the campaign when he hasn't even been in touch with him? You said Duff had assurances Ike would run. But Ike says he hasn't heard from him."

"In view of that," continued the irate North Carolinian, "we're getting in touch with Dave Ingalls (Taft's campaign manager) as fast as we can. We've got to protect ourselves."

What the North Carolinian had in mind was the way Eisenhower rebuffed various Democrats who wanted to draft him in 1948, making them too late to catch the Truman bandwagon. Truman has never forgiven Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, Jimmy Roosevelt, Sen. Olin Johnston of South Carolina and others who plumped for Ike. Republicans know this, and figure Taft might be just as vindictive as Truman.

Those are some of the sordid but essential ABC's of politics which Eisenhower doesn't understand, but will have to learn.

Behind the Peace

Besides the genuine desire for peace, two key factors are behind the American disarmament proposals in Paris:

1. A report from U.S. Ambassador Allan Kirk, just returned from Moscow, that both Stalin and the politburo are suffering a case of war jitters, think the U.S. is ready for war, and that Russia should get the drop on us. Kirk warned that there is grave danger Russia may start war for this reason; therefore urged the President to be extremely careful about all public statements on Russia - at least until the war hysteria dies down.

2. The effective manner in which Russia has put across the idea that it is the real advocate of peace and that the United States is warmongering.

War on Piggy Bank

The Bureau of the Mint has privately declared war on that trusty receptacle of America's loose change, the piggy bank. It's all because of the shortage of pennies.

The government has something like 19,197,534,000 pennies outstanding and another 175,000,000 were minted during the month of October. However, there's still a big shortage, forcing many banks to ration their outlay of pennies.

NEAR CATASTROPHE HITS ATLANTIC CITY . . . A one-million-dollar blaze sweeps a path of destruction through one of Atlantic City's finest boardwalk blocks with the danger of shifting winds driving the fire down other equally fine blocks. Near panic swept over storekeepers as they saw their expensive stocks about to go up in flame. Here, they are running out of their stores with bundles of rare oriental rugs, trying to save what they can as the fire spreads. Much of the stock was insured, but because of its rarity could not be replaced. Firemen frantically battled the blaze as smoke enveloped the area.

DRESSED TO KILL . . . Armed guards are in attendance at all the Korean truce talks now. Guards of both the United Nations and the Communist forces are stationed at the conference tent in Pan Mun Jom. Here two United Nations military policemen, Lieutenant Howard C. Hoppus (left), Warsaw, Ind., and Lieutenant Price Mosher, Brookline, Mass., are interested in the quilted cotton uniform of a North Korean Communist sentry who is armed with a bayoneted rifle instead of the sidearms carried by the Americans. The Communist is impassive under the scrutiny of the men from the West.

BRUTALLY BEATEN . . . Masachi Kobayashi, shirt manufacturer, is given first aid in New York city by ambulance attendant after he was brutally beaten by three thugs in his office apartment. The thugs who emptied his pockets got a mere $8.

MOUNTIES READY FOR ACTION . . . Solid wall is set up by mounted police at a New York pier ready for action as the French line's luxury ship, Liberté, docked. Not a single strike picket was there as 100 workmen walked on the dock to begin unloading the craft. Another deadlock came out of nearly 12 hours of negotiations in the strike of the longshoremen. The strike was called to a halt recently as leaders of both sides reached accord.

WILL HE? . . . Or won't he make himself available for nomination for the presidency by one of the parties? That is the big question concerning General Dwight Eisenhower since his visit home. He seems to be in some perplexity.

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS of Main Street and the World

Reds Reject President Truman's 'Foolproof' Disarmament Program

DISARMAMENT—No one who heard President Truman's "foolproof" disarmament plan and his blunt statement that "if we can't get security and peace one way, we must get it the other way", really expected the Russians to accept it. The Soviet's immediate "no", therefore, had no element of surprise.

What, then, it might well be asked, does the U. S. expect to gain by continually seeking disarmament when everyone knows the Soviet has no intention of participating?

There are several reasons, but two stand out. In the first place, there is always an outside chance that the Russians might change their minds and some method of disarmament worked out. But more immediate is the "propaganda" benefits the U. S. realizes by putting forth a definite plan, while the Russians have nothing to offer but their continued talk of wanting peace. By turning the plan down Russia has become branded in the eyes of the world.

The President's speech was broadcast to the world, and especially to those nations behind the iron curtain by the Voice of America. The main points of the plan:

1. An inventory of armies and armament all over the world, including eventual disclosure of information about atomic weapons—the number of which is presently top secret in both America and Russia. (This inventory would develop into a permanent international inspection system.)
2. The negotiation of specific arrangements for reducing armed strength and determining the size and composition of forces which each nation should have. Ultimately atomic weapons would be prohibited.
3. Actually putting the reductions in effect "as soon as that can be done with full knowledge and fairness to all."

KOREA PEACE—Reports from Korea indicate U. N. and Communist negotiators are in almost complete agreement on a buffer zone. But the question of when to time the cease fire still separates the two on final agreement.

The Communists want the cease-fire line indicated and effective immediately. The U. N., however, insists that it become effective only after other matters are settled—such as exchange of prisoners—and an armistice is ready for signing. The Allies contend that a cease-fire now would prevent an armistice ever being reached because it would halt the shooting and thus relieve the Reds of any necessity of negotiating the other questions.

It would seem that the chasm of distrust that exists between the Communists and Allies is more likely to delay an armistice than the establishment of a cease fire line. The Allies continue to charge the Communists with stalling.

CHURCHILL—Prime Minister Winston Churchill was again in the news. In a London speech he expressed the opinion that neither Russia or the United States really wanted to fight and pointed out "it must not be forgotten that . . . we took peculiar risks in providing the principal atomic base for the U. S. in Eastern England . . . We have every need and every right to seek and receive the fullest consideration from Americans for our point of view."

A short time later it was announced that Churchill will visit Washington for talks with President Truman.

Some observers believe that the London speech was an indication of Churchill's mood and determination to have a greater say in the battle against Communism. He may even succeed in getting the President to agree to a meeting with Premier Stalin which Truman has not wanted. Churchill will also discuss the possibilities of a U. S. loan to relieve Britain's critical economic situation.

DEFENSE—There is a slight possibility the home town taxpayer may get some relief from high taxes next year. The possibility was brought about by an announcement by Defense department officials of a cut in the next military budget as much as $1,500,000,000 below this year's.

Officials said the leveling off in armament outlays earlier than expected is due to two reasons. One is that because of long "lead times" in the production of aircraft, tanks, ammunition and other "hardware" for the armed forces, funds already authorized cover much of the scheduled expansion. The other is a growing awareness among military men that unless military demands are regulated and spaced, a "breaking point" in the civilian economy might result in the loss of public support for the long-term preparedness program.

Since the start of the Korean conflict the Defense department has been given total spending authority totaling approximately $110,000,000,000.

RUSSIA—Most people in the home towns of the United States have no idea of real size of the Soviet Union. Last week Soviet population figures were released that will startle the average American.

The Russians report a total population of 207,000,000 and an annual rate of increase of 1 1/2 per cent. In 1940, the Soviet population, including inhabitants of areas annexed during 1939 and 1940, was roughly 193,000,000 persons. The gain to 207,000,000 at present, despite the losses of World War II, implies an average annual population growth over the eleven years since 1940 of about 1,300,000.

If these figures are accurate, then the Soviet Union has roughly 50,000,000 more people than the United States.

LEGION—The American Legion will ask congress next year for an increase of at least 10 per cent in compensation rates for disabled veterans and the widows and orphans of veterans, Donald R. Wilson, new national commander, has announced.

Wilson said that the Legion recognized the fact that the national economy was undergoing severe strain and "we are aware of an unalterable obligation not to make any undue demands upon that economy". But there still exists, he said, inequalities that must be leveled.

He pointed to the recently 10 per cent pay increase congress voted to most Civil Service employees and said veterans' compensations should be increased likewise.

Big Three Meeting
U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson (left) greets British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden (right) as French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman smiles approvingly. The big three conference took place prior to the opening of the sixth regular session of the United Nations.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT NEA Reports School Enrollment Is Up

Elementary and secondary-school enrollment totaled 26,567,374 as of October, 1951, the National Education Association announced in its annual research report. The new figure is an increase of 800,000 over last year.

Dr. Frank W. Hubbard, the association's research director, termed the year of 1951-52 one of lag in school construction, teach-

President Truman as he appeared as he left on a five-week vacation after proposing a "foolproof" disarmament plan to the world.

- ers' salaries, supply of elementary-school teachers, and financial support, "as enrollments continue to increase steadily and the purchasing power of the dollar continues to decline."
- Dr. Hubbard said the school problem was further complicated by "man-power conditions, the restraints upon construction through lack of steel.

THE READER'S DATE BOOK M-Day Is Holiday Possibility; Prosperity Week, November 26

No Funds Provided
CONGRESS was quick to override vetoes on two measures affecting veterans' benefits in the first session of the 82nd congress. But congress was not quick to provide the money to administer these laws.

One law passed over the President's veto provided for government purchase of 150,000 automobiles for some 10,000 veterans of World War I and II and Korea who had lost one or both hands or even whose sight was seriously impaired, but who had suffered no serious impairment of mobility. The first law which was passed by the 81st congress provided for automobiles to veterans who had lost one or both legs on the theory that an automobile would enable that veteran to look for jobs and earn a living, after being fitted with prosthetic appliances. The new law makes no such provision, however.

In the next week or so every home town in America will begin decorating for the holiday season. The nation's Main Streets will be decked out in holly and greenery, bright lights will be strung across streets and from lamp post to lamp post, and above the noise of happy people preparing for Christmas Day will be heard the traditional music of Christmas carols.

All this will reflect the preparations of Americans for one of the happiest days of the year. They will go about their business of buying shiny toys amid the sparkle and tinsel of Christmas decorations un mindful of the approach of one of the most tragic days in the country's history. It will be "M-Day"—the day the millionth traffic death in the nation is recorded.

A MAIN STREET FEATURE

The day will be announced by the National Safety Council. There are only two factors that could delay "M-Day" beyond the pre-Christmas period, the council reports. One would be bad weather that would keep most automobiles in garages. The other would be a sudden shift to cautious driving on the part of motorists. Neither appears likely.

The millionth fatality could be someone in this home town. For that reason, it would seem appropriate for local merchants to incorporate safety slogans in their Christmas advertising, and even promote a safety campaign that could insure a happy Christmas for the local community.

Up to the end of September 990,200 Americans had been injured fatally in automobile accidents. Since then an average of 110 deaths a day have occurred from accidents. It is just a matter of time until the millionth has happened.

Five days before the millionth fatality, the Safety Council will begin to issue daily bulletins, but will not attempt to identify the 1,000,000 victim. It would be an almost impossible task. For instance, suppose the count rises to 999,998 and then three men are killed in a collision on a highway. Which would be No. 1,000,000? The National Safety Council has compiled actual traffic deaths since 1933. The statistics on deaths before that time are the best available records and estimates.

The earliest vehicle death the council has been able to find occurred in New York City, September 13, 1899. The New York Times printed a five-paragraph story. It began: "H. H. Bliss, a real estate dealer with offices at 41 Wall Street and living at 235 West Seventy-fifth Street, was run over last night at Central Park West and Seventy-fourth Street. He was injured fatally."

"Bliss was alighting from a trolley car when he was knocked down and run over by an automobile in charge of Arthur Smith of 151 West Sixty-second Street."

More and more such stories began to appear in newspapers. In the last two decades the automobile accident story probably has been printed more often than any other newspaper item except such fixtures as weather forecasts.

The annual toll of fatalities passed the 20,000 mark in 1925, pushed beyond the 30,000 level

New Types of Glass Work Modern Magic

Startling new uses for glass are proving again the magic in a grain of sand.

Electrified glass that glows has been announced in terms of an entirely new form of lighting for homes of tomorrow.

Coffeemakers that heat themselves by conducting a current; photographs printed in three dimensions inside photosensitive glass; transparent mirrors; glass-fiber panels sawed and nailed like plywood; glass-filled soft cushions supported by glass coil springs; window panes with built-in Venetian blinds; glass furniture, fishing rods and plumbing; glass tablecloths, neckties and curtains that frustrate moths and never rot—all these are found in homes of today.

In unnumbered ways glass enters more into modern life every day. Yet it is as old as the earth, its first use by man hidden in antiquity. Its substance is sand; its secret, fire.

Evasion Tactics

General Eisenhower on his quick trip home gave Washington reporters an outstanding example of how to conduct a press conference, using up some 1500 words, eloquently and with charm, without saying "yes" or "no" or even "maybe" as to his political intentions or his political future.

About the only definite statement he made was: "Now I will say this: if the time ever comes when I feel that my duty compels me to say a word of any kind, I will say it and you won't have to worry. . . it will be stated positively and definitely. I hope that's clear." To most it was very unclear, but it was interesting to read the interpretations given to his statement. To his friends, it was a green light. To his opponents, it was the stop signal. The general admitted he had talked to Sen. James Duff of Pennsylvania on the telephone, but not about politics.

Senator Duff is probably the general's most outstanding booster for the presidency.

Gen. MacArthur

In contrast, General MacArthur has to a certain extent overcome his "modesty" and in his latest utterances leaves no doubt but that he is in politics if not an outright candidate. At Miami he told the American Legion a much better story than he told his senate investigating committee, first there was "little doubt" that the yielding of Formosa and seating of Red China in the United Nations was "fully planned" when he called upon the enemy commander in Korea to meet him to arrange armistice terms.

In the next paragraph he sweeps away any "little doubt" when he says: "The opposition I expressed to yielding Formosa and seating of Red China, with the overwhelming support of the American people, unquestionably wrecked the secret plan to yield on these issues as the price of peace in Korea."

So General MacArthur joins the ranks of those using the "loose statement" to becloud the distinction between truth and falsehood.

Beef Controls

With its slaughter quota knocked out on the beef control by the congress, Office of Price Administration with the Army as an aide, announced plans for a beef set-aside for Army purchases in excess of each slaughterer's kill in the same period of 1960. Packers declare this set-aside is a substitute for slaughter quotas, and will discourage buying and killing more than their proportional share.

YANKS IN KANGAROO-LAND

27 American Families on Large Construction Job in Australia

Over the past few years, Australia's hustling program of national development has called for the introduction of more men, more material, and more money. People, equipment and dollars have gone from the United States to help in the creation of a greater nation through the building of great hydro electric undertakings and irrigation projects.

After Japan surrendered in September 1945, Australia quickly set about a program to build and strengthen this nation of 7,000,000. A big migration plan, plus industrial expansion and resources development, went into force, and today the population is now approaching 8,500,000.

This figure will continue to increase rapidly as Australia relaxes many of its immigration laws.

Many American ex-servicemen in Australia during the war married Australian girls, and after the war a two-way traffic took place across the Pacific—Australian war brides going to settle in the United States and a smaller number of American ex-servicemen returning to build a new life in Australia

Wives Like Australian Community Life

While the American and Australian dam workers are eye-ing off one another's methods and learning to get along on the job, a pattern of community life is growing in the construction village. Families from Colorado, Montana, California, Nevada, Kansas, and Missouri, share the fast-growing village with families from England, Scotland and Holland, besides Australians. Ultimately their village will consist of 700 houses with shops, a new school, a public hall and business offices.

Mrs. Poath, who, like her husband, comes from Missouri, says it was worth flying across the Pacific to settle at Eildon.

"It's somehow queer to think of Australia as a foreign country," she said. "Everybody's so easy to know and everybody makes us feel so much at home that it's really difficult to believe we're in another country."

Duffer

The boy had caddied for Sammy Snead during an exhibition match the previous week and lost no time telling the duffer so. When the hacker would call for a three iron, the caddy replied, "Snead used a six from here." Or he'd take out a brassie and the caddy would stop him with, "Sammy hit a two iron."

The duffer finally fell victim to the sarcasm and began trying to hit the same clubs Snead had used. The strain made his usually poor game even worse. On the eighth, an awesome dogleg with a creek and trees to the right, the golfer finally lost his temper and snarled, "Well, know-it-all, what would Snead tell me to use here?"

The lad grinned. "He'd probably tell you to use an old ball."

Save $2.00 On This Home Mixed Cough Syrup

Easily Mixed. Needs No Cooking.

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Mix 2 cups of granulated sugar with 1 cup of water. No cooking! Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get from your druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This gives you a full pint of wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving because it gives you about four times as much for your money. Never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough medicine. Swiftly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, makes breathing easy. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable, soothing agent for throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

It gives you a lot to be thankful for

Let's suppose that this is you. The car you're riding in, as you can see, is a Buick. But what you can't see is the satisfaction which being behind that wheel brings to every day in the year. Take the feel of it — the way it goes into action when you nudge the gas treadle. Quick. Eager. Willing. No effort at all. You just swoop up to the miles per hour you want. That's because there's a high-powered, high-compression, valve-in-head Fireball Engine under the hood that makes every drop of gas do extra duty. And it's because there's a Dynaflo Drive,* feeding that power back to the rear wheels as smoothly as cream flows from a pitcher. Take the way it sits the road. Balanced. Poised. Sure-footed. Snug. That's because of a long list of things that Buick engineers have done to its ride—including a torque-tube keel that keeps rear wheels tracking true—and soft coil springs that individually cushion each wheel. Take the way it steers. Easy. Light. Firm. On a straightaway—or coming out of a curve—it seems to know what you want it to do. That's because of something the engineers call "front-end geometry"—and because 60 steel balls roll in their own little race track to ease each turn of the wheel. Take its room, its comfort, its smart good looks—and its price. Any way you size it up, here's a car to make you thankful for your good judgment in picking it, against the field. All that is needed to complete this picture is you at the wheel of a flesh-and-blood Buick—out on the road for a sample of what we've been talking about.

That's easy to arrange. Just give us a call, and we'll do the rest.

RESIDENT NURSE

A SERIAL STORY
BY LUCY AGNES HANCOCK

THE STORY SO FAR:
Nurse trainee, Gay Gaynor, Bethesda orphanage "product," is studying to become a children's nurse and aspires to be resident nurse at Bethesda. She has gained her position on the Bessemer hospital staff through intercession of Dr. Borden who quelled snobbish objection to employing orphans with "questionable family background." Gay dislikes Thad Borden, Dr. Borden's son, because of his insolence toward her as an orphan's niece and because of his attentions to Vivian Poole D'Archer, "glad girl queen" of Bessemer at the expense of his medical training. However, she hears at the hospital that Thad is aiding his father in surgery.

CHAPTER XV

"Oh, no, he doesn't have to, Myra," Gay said hotly. "Thad Borden's supposed to be a doctor. What's he doing chasing all over creation when he should be ministering to the sick? No, he goes around with her because he's still in love with her. She jilted him once but he simply refuses to stay jilted. That's love, my dear Myra. Real, honest-to-gosh Love with a capital letter."

"I don't believe it," Myra said stubbornly. "But let's forget Thad for a minute. It's Doc I'm worried 'bout. He's in a bad way. Why don't you run over to his place and see him, Gay? Twon't hurt you none, and I'd like to know what you think about it. It worries me—Doc's one of my best friends—yours, too."

Gay demurred for a moment, but when she discovered it was Doctor Borden's office hours and would still be for the next half hour, she consented. It wasn't far to the old Borden estate and Gay rang the bell and walked into the waiting room now only sparsely filled. She sat down and looked about. It had been a long time since she had been in this room and much had happened. She knew none of the patients seated there. A woman with two small children who looked anything but in need of medical attention; a boy with a bandaged hand; a man who kept jingling the coins in his pocket while staring at the ceiling; and a young girl who spent her time examining the face reflected in her compact, turning from side to side, perfectly oblivious of the others in the room with her. At last the inner door opened and Thad Borden came in, looked about and motioned to the boy.

Thad Is Worried About His Father

For a moment Gay knew a wild desire to leave and yet why should she let Thad Borden drive her away? He was probably pinch-hitting for Mrs. Potter who acted as office nurse during office hours. And after all, she came to see his father, not him. She picked up a magazine and tried to concentrate on its contents, but she was acutely aware every time the inner door opened and closed. At last she was alone in the office. She would be next. It was five minutes to three. Someone said, "You wish to see my father?"

Gay got to her feet. "Yes," she said. "May I go in?"

"Dad is resting," his son said evenly. "I am taking over his office hours for the next few days. Is there something I can do?"

The girl said nothing for a moment, then, "Is the doctor ill? Myra is worried about him and sent me to see for myself."

"Dad's been working too hard, but you know Dad. He never considers himself. Then you are not ill? I mean—"

"No, I am perfectly well. It was just that I wanted to talk to Doctor Borden—a personal matter." She turned to leave.

"It was kind of you to be concerned, Miss Gaynor," Thad said stiffly. "I'll tell him and—sure there is nothing I can do—"

"I'm sure," Gay said, her hand on the door. It was then the doctor reached the lower hall and they met face to face. He greeted her cordially and Gay saw how very worn he looked.

"This is a surprise, my dear," he said, taking her hand in both of his. "Surely you're not in need of a physician, Gay. You're blooming as a rose in spite of hard work, long hours and little time for recreation. Come into my office. I have a few minutes before I must drive over to Wayne Tyler's."

He led Gay into his office, still clinging to her hand. She sat down in the patient's chair across from the big shabby desk. Thad came in and busied himself at the filing cabinet and Gay remained silent.

"Thanks, Thad," his father said, no doubt surmising that Gay would be reluctant to talk with him in the room.

Thad turned. "I'll just take these cards into the study, Dad and go over them. Be seeing you." Without another glance at Gay, he left.

"Now, what's on your mind, Gay?" the doctor asked, settling back in his chair. "Everything going all right at the hospital? All set to graduate next month? Your Chief tells me you head the class, my dear. Good work! I'm mighty proud of you."

"You've been very kind to me, Doctor," the girl said. "I owe you a very great deal. Have—have you heard anything more about the Bethesda job, Doctor Borden?"

She saw his face cloud and went on hastily, "Don't answer. I know. Well, I can always do private work or I can stay on at Memorial. Both Doctor Cushing and Miss Smith want me to, but—well, you know Bethesda has been my goal, Doctor. I don't think I shall give up—not entirely."

"Of course not, my dear. After all, it's an innovation, you know, and the Board doesn't take kindly to innovations. We'll both keep plugging and—Thad, too. You know he is taking over that part of the work. He specializes in Pediatrics, or didn't you know that? The kids at Bethesda adore him. You would have worked well together, I know, but—was that what you came to see me about, Gay?" he asked,

"Please don't be angry, Gay," he pleaded. "I—I meant no harm. We couldn't help seeing the ring—" quick to see the stiffening in the girl's attitude.

"Myra sent me," she said tersely. "Myra? And what ails Myra?"

"She's worried about you. She says you don't look well, and I can see that with my own eyes. What have you been doing to make you so hollow-eyed and—well—haggard?"

"Worrying, perhaps," he said softly. "And yet I warn my patients to avoid worry as they would the plague. I'm going to ask you something, Frances Gaynor, and don't you dare take offence. Why do you hate Thad?"

Gay was startled. "But—but I don't. I—I—"

"Oh, yes you do, my dear, or at least you manage to give a better than reasonable facsimile. It used to worry Grace—she loved the boy, and it worries me, too. After all, Gay, he is all I have. He's restless and unhappy and I think he feels your treatment of him keenly."

"My—my treatment of him? Why, I—I never see him—"

Dr. Borden Asks Gay Forgive Thad

"That's what I mean. He can be in the same room with you—as close as I am to you this minute and yet you never see him. He has never mentioned it to me, but I know it ranks. He never told me what happened years ago when you were both children—"

"He was no child, Doctor Borden," Gay said sharply.

"Oh, well, he was young and no doubt feeling his oats. I could never get it out of him, but he told Grace about it—"

"He did!" Gay cried.

"Yes, and she told me. She knew I was concerned. Of course I can quite see your point, and yet I'm sure he meant no harm. The boy hasn't a vicious thought in his head, my dear. I'm his father and I know. He was angry and it is obvious he took the quickest, easiest way to get even."

Gay sat stiffly in the chair opposite and stared at her hands. "The way you tell it makes it all sound very silly and—childish, Doctor Borden," she said at last. "But—after all—my pride was all I had. Viv—his friends—never missed an opportunity to make me uncomfortable—embarrass me whenever we met. I was never allowed to forget I was a product of Bethesda—an orphan—a nobody. It hasn't been easy—"

"Listen, my dear," the doctor interrupted. "This doesn't sound like you. Aren't you the girl who told me no one had the power to hurt you? Well, they haven't—really. Annoy you, perhaps. Life is full of little annoyances. They are part of our training—they help build our characters. You're a strong, well-balanced, level-headed young woman today largely because of the very handicaps you have overcome and the annoyances you have weathered in those old days. Today you are a poised, beautiful woman, my dear—one all of us privileged to know you can love and admire. Have I talked too much, child? You know I have always felt for you a father's interest and affection. Grace knew it—together we shared you—watched you grow into young womanhood, proud and happy in your development."

The eyes Gay raised to his were bright with tears. "You make me feel so ashamed, Doctor Borden," she whispered.

There was a light knock on the door and at the doctor's "Come in!" Thad thrust his head inside.

"Mrs. Perkins is— Oh, I'm sorry, I didn't know—"

"Come in, Thad," his father said, getting to his feet. "I'll just see Mrs. Perkins—I'll be back, Gay Don't go—"

Silence followed, heavy and disturbing. Gay fidgeted. After a moment Thad said tentatively, "Are we to congratulate you in order to extend good wishes?"

"Thank you," Gay said, relaxing somewhat. "Of course I am happy about it. I never expected to be first. I thought there were others who stood higher. But I am proud and happy that I lead the class. It is a great satisfaction to me—a Bethesda girl." She added the last defiantly and was instantly ashamed.

Vivian Poole Returns To Adrian D'Archer

"I—I wasn't thinking of that," the young man said. "I referred to your engagement to young Boothe. It is an engagement, isn't it?"

"For your information and not because it is really any of your concern, it isn't," she said coldly, and got to her feet. "Tell your father I will see him again," she said and started for the door, but Thad was there before her.

"Please don't be angry, Gay," he pleaded. "I—I meant no harm. We couldn't help seeing the ring—"

"I'm quite aware that you saw it—and certainly misconstrued the entire picture," the girl said. "Please let me go."

"Dad wants to see you," he reminded her. "Won't you sit down again? He won't be long. wish you could persuade him to take a vacation—go over to the cottage for a few weeks—fish and swim and just loaf."

"I doubt if I have that much influence with him," Gay said.

"He's extremely fond of you—"

"And I love him," the girl said quickly. "He's wonderful!"

"Wonderful and stubborn," his son said. "His patients would no doubt set up a howl, but after all, I'm a doctor, too, and no doubt they would get used to me. If they didn't—why, there are other doctors here."

"Is that what's worrying him?" Gay asked.

"I—I suppose it is," Thad said after a moment, his fine eyes searching her face. "What else could it be?"

Gay didn't answer. She had an idea he knew more than he was willing to admit. Well, it was none of her business.

Two days after her visit to the doctor's office, the morning paper printed an interesting item:

"Mrs. Adrian D'Archer left last evening for New York where she will join her husband, the well-known and popular painter. Mr. and Mrs. D'Archer expect to go immediately to their summer place near Portland, Maine, to remain until late fall, at which time Mr. D'Archer will return to the metropolis where he will give a private showing of his paintings."

"Mrs. D'Archer has been a guest for several weeks of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Poole, of Bessemer Heights."

Gay said nothing. So Vivian hadn't waited for Thad. She wondered what he thought about it.

"Do you know, Myra," she said one day, "I should like to have a sort of convalescent home for children right here in this house. Oh, I know we couldn't accommodate very many, but we could manage four or five, perhaps. I want to take care of children and it seems as if the Bethesda Board is set against having me there. It won't be long until Tom will graduate from his crutches and no longer need me. Do you think we could work it, Myra?"

"Sure," Myra replied. "Anything you plan'll be all right with me. I'd be kind of pleasant having a bunch of kids around again. Why don't you talk to Doc about it? Prob'ly he's got a lot of kids he'd be tickled to sent to you."

"We couldn't take a 'lot,' Myra," Gay reminded her, "but perhaps he might like the idea. I'll call and make an appointment right now."

"What are you muttering about, Myra?" Gay asked, returning as quickly as she had left.

"Oh, just mutterin'. Well, what did Doc say?"

'There Is a Tide'

Lesson for December 2, 1951

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune; Omitted, all the voyage of their life Is bound in shallows and in miseries."

SO Shakespeare said, and he was at least half right. Opportunity sometimes knocks twice; but don't count on it.

The Bible lesson for the week is a failure-story, not a success-story. It is the story of some persons who contracted the grasshopper complex, a mental disease that still attacks people today. The story is from the wild days when the Israelites, now two years out from Egypt, were first knocking at the doors of the Promised Land.

The Israelites were land-hungry, but the only land they wanted was what we now call Palestine and it was not theirs for the asking. They would have to fight for it, every foot of it. They all knew this, Moses knew it. There was no going back to Egypt and slavery. Nobody wanted to stay in the desert. The obvious thing was to go ahead into Palestine. But there were two questions filling the people's minds: (1) What kind of country is it, really? and (2) can we fight our way into it?

Investigating Committee
SO a committee of investigation was formed, of one man from each of the twelve tribes,—grown men, trusted leaders, by no means "boy scouts."

Don't think of these men as sneaking through Palestine from bush to bush; peeping out Indian fashion to see what they could see. They walked into Palestine, not unobserved but unmolested. They spoke Egyptian, of course, and could easily pass as Egyptian traveling salesmen. They spent around six weeks in that country, visiting the cities, no doubt talking with the people.

In late summer they went back to the encampment on the edge of the desert, carrying with them some of the fruits of the land. (Incidentally, those pictures showing bunches of grapes six feet long are a funny misunderstanding. Palestine has good grapes, but not quite that good! They carried the grapes on poles because that was the best way to keep them from being crushed.)

At the big mass-meeting at the desert camp, the twelve made their report. On the facts, they were all unanimous. It was a wonderful country, "flowing with milk and honey," a great country for cattle and bees. Palestine did look marvelous to their desert-burned eyes. But on question number two there was a serious division: Can we fight our way in? Yes, said the majority of two. No, said the minority of ten.

Grasshopper Complex
THE majority put their reasons in a single revealing sentence: We were as grasshoppers in their sight, they said, and so we were in our sight.

Nowadays we call this state of mind the "inferiority complex"; our name is a new one for an old trouble. Think of yourself as a grasshopper, and grasshopper is what you shall be. Take yourself at other people's lowest estimate, and that is all you will be worth.

The trouble with the grasshopper complex is that it is catching. The majority report was wrong, as majority reports so often are. But the people believed them rather than the courageous pair who stood up to declare boldly, We can do it, with the help of God.

Well, what did God do about it? That is perhaps the saddest part of the story. He did nothing about it. He let the people impose their own sentence. Grasshoppers? Very well, so be it. Grasshoppers die, they never amount to anything, no one bothers to kill them, they just die. God was believed to strike men dead in anger, or command the earth to open and swallow up the wicked, or hurl lightning from the skies on his enemies. But he wasted no miracles on these self-elected grasshoppers. He only let them die. Ten, twenty, forty years . . . just drifting about in the wilderness, till they all died, and a new generation took their places.

Opportunity did not knock twice. There was a tide in those men's lives.

Medical Care Said Relatively Cheaper Than in 1935-39

CHICAGO—The American Medical Association has reported that the price of medical care, including drugs, hospital room rates and physician and dental services, was relatively 15 per cent cheaper in 1950 than during 1935-39.

This was revealed in the Consumers' Price Index, compiled by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. The Bureau's Index indicated a 72 per cent rise in the cost of living since the 1935-39 base period while, at the same time, showing that medical care prices rose only 48 per cent.

The increase for food, the Index showed, was 104 per cent; apparel 88 per cent; rent 81 per cent; fuel, electricity and refrigeration 41 per cent; house furnishings 90 per cent, and 57 per cent for the items which the Bureau of Labor Statistics classified as miscellaneous.

The 72 per cent rise in the cost of living as compared with only a 48 per cent rise in medical care prices indicates that for every $1 paid for goods and services generally in 1935-39, the 1950 consumer had to pay $1.72. On the other hand, the medical care purchased for $1 in 1935-39 cost only $1.48 in 1950.

An analysis of the Index discloses further that a dollar in 1950 could buy 68 cents worth of medical care but only 58 cents worth of all goods and services, or 86 per cent as much. The 1950 purchasing power of the dollar was 86 per cent as high in terms of goods and services, generally, as it was in terms of medical care prices only. Thus, in terms of the purchasing power of the 1950 dollar, medical care was relatively 14 per cent cheaper than in 1935-39.

Physicians' fees, according to the Index, rose 40 per cent or only a little more than half as rapidly as the entire cost of living, which rose 72 per cent.

Only hospital room rates, which increased 135 per cent, have risen faster than the entire Consumers' Price Index.

"The high hospital rates," on A.M.A. study of the Consumers' Price Index said, "reflects the fact that hospitals are singularly exposed to the forces of inflation."

Commenting on the relatively cheaper medical care prices today, Dr. John W. Cline, San Francisco, president of the A.M.A., said that "physicians recognize that the cost of medical care, especially hospital care, is a serious budget item for many persons. Therefore, the doctors are strongly supporting various voluntary pre-payment insurance plans to help meet these costs."

"The fact is, however," Dr. Cline continued, "that, as shown by official government statistics, medical care prices today, as compared with the prices of all goods and services, are relatively less than they were 15 years ago."

'Truck Driver of 1949' Charged Drunk Driving

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The "Truck Driver of the Year 1949" has been convicted of drunken driving.

Lloyd Reiser, picked for the national title in a contest based on driving skill and safety, was charged with drunken driving by officers who said he drove his automobile through a traffic signal. He was fined $10.25 and his drivers license suspended for 90 days.

Reiser was also cited once by the Indiana Motor Truck Association for saving the life of a girl who appeared to be bleeding to death after an accident at Louisville.

Marine Engineering Officer Braves Danger for Parts

WITH THE FIRST MARINE AIRCRAFT WING IN KOREA—The last time Uijongbu airfield was abandoned to the Reds, a damaged Marine Corsair fighter was left on the airstrip.

First Lieutenant Harry Wilson, of Andrews, Texas, a first Marine Aircraft Wing engineering officer, needed spare parts for two Corsairs grounded for repairs.

He took six Marine enlisted mechanics with him in a truck, and despite warnings of military police along the way, passed through the front lines and drove to Uijongbu.

As artillery shells hissed into Communist ranks only a few hundred yards away, they hastily "cannibalized" the Corsair and hauled away every useable part except the fuselage and wings.

Marine Fliers Have Dropped 22 Gondolas of Explosives

WITH THE FIRST MARINE AIRCRAFT WING IN KOREA—A single squadron of fighter-bomber aircraft, flying with the First Marine Aircraft Wing, have dropped 1132 explosive bombs of all types, and 707 napalm fire bombs on the Communists during a single 30 day period.

In addition, the Leatherneck pilots fired 489,050 rounds of 20mm. cannon ammunition, and 7,419 high velocity aircraft rockets, each the equivalent of a 5" shell, into enemy positions during the period.

Save Time
Try to figure out the quickest way for doing everything around the house. You'll be amazed at how much more interesting your daily chores become.

Wall Paper
Large wall paper designs make rooms seem smaller. They are usually reserved for living-rooms or for foyers where there is little furniture.

Arranging Furniture
Always allow for traffic in arranging your rooms. Furniture you can't get around without snagging your nylons or detouring is badly placed. At night it can be very dangerous.

Don't Soak Vegetables
Do not soak vegetables before cooking them! This causes loss of vitamins and minerals. Exceptions are Brussels sprouts, broccoli, and such vegetables as must be soaked to get clean.

Keeping Cake Fresh
A slice of fresh bread fastened to a cut cake with toothpicks will help keep the cake from getting stale.

Prevent Rug Slipping
Three rubber jar rings held together by thread and sewed under the corner of a throw rug will prevent it from slipping.

It's Wonderful The Way Chewing-Gum Laxative

Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE—NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different.

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion. Flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic self! Get FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25¢, 50¢ or only 10¢.

Red-Held Isles Strongly Linked With Japanese

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Habomai Islands and Shikotan, mentioned as possible bones of contention in eventual treaty negotiations between Russia and Japan, consist of half a dozen islands and numerous islets, rocks, and shoals lying a 60-mile chain off northeasternmost Japan.

Soviet forces have occupied these land spots since shortly after VJ-day (1945) according to reports. In garrisoning them, Russia is seen to hold that they are part of the 730-mile-long Kuril (Chishirika) Islands chain granted to Russia at the Yalta conference in 1945.

Japan cites geology as well as history to show that the Habomais and Shikotan are a short extension of the Nemuro Peninsula and not part of the Kurils. The Nemuro Peninsula is the eastern land tip of Hokkaido, northern of Japan's main-islands.

Japanese Fishing Grounds
The six islands line up roughly parallel to and some 30 miles southeast of Kupashiri, southernmost large island of the long Kuril chain. Lying partly within eyeshot of Hokkaido, they are exposed summits of the same ancient ridge as the Nemuro Peninsula, the Japanese point out, while the lofty Kurils are of much later formation. And in shifts of the past century involving the Kurils, Russia has not before questioned Japan's right to the Habomais and Shikotan.

The islands have long been important in Japanese commercial fishing. Crabs, scallops, and cod rank high in the commercial fisheries catch. About two-fifths of the kombu, a seaweed of major importance in Japanese diet, is harvested in this off-Nemuro chain. Fishermen flock from the Hokkaido towns in season, swelling the islands' normal 5,000 population.

Shikotan, with 60 square miles, has double the total area of the five Habomais. It stands alone as the outer anchor of the short chain, separated from Taraku, its nearest neighbor, by a channel 14 miles wide.

Shakotan on Shikotan
Shakotan, on a bay indenting Shikotan's cliff-bound north coast, is foremost of the island's dozen fishing villages. The 800 island residents of a decade ago were Japanese except for a tiny remnant of Ainu, a primitive Caucasian people resettled there from the northern Kurils in 1884.

The complete chain is sometimes called the Shikotan archipelago. Existing maps and sailing guides, however, generally refer to the five smaller, inner islands as the Suisho group, after the island closest to the Nemuro Peninsula, or the Goyomais, after Goyomai Strait, separating Nemuro and Suisho. Habomai Islands is the name favored in recent years by the Japanese. Habomai is the name of a town on the Nemuro Peninsula close to its tip.

Historians Include A-Bomb Among 'Most Decisive Events'

HARRISBURG, Pa.—The atomic bomb is one of the "Ten Most Decisive Events of History," according to an informal poll of historians by Professor Louis L. Snyder of the College of the City of New York and Professor Richard B. Morris of Columbia University. While at least half of these events are of military nature, historians also include the discovery of anaesthesia, making possible surgery's progress, in the list which was compiled in connection with the new book "They Saw It Happen: Eyewitness Reports of Great Events" edited by Professors Snyder and Morris.

The "Ten Most Decisive Events" in chronological order—not in order of importance—are:

The Destruction of Carthage, 146 B.C.; Battle of Adrianople, 378 A.D.; Invention of Printing from Movable Type, c.1450; Discovery of America, 1492; Advent of the Steam Engine, 1769; Declaration of Independence, 1789; Discovery of Anaesthesia, 1846; Assassination at Serajevo, 1914; D-Day: Invasion of Fortress Europe, 1944; The Atomic Bomb, Alamogordo, N. M., 1945.

Most of the historians felt that the greatest event in the history of the human race was the discovery of fire, which took place ages before the historic period of written records.

False Teeth Provide Urgent Gold Weather Problems

WITH THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION IN KOREA—Marines of an infantry company here say one cold-weather problem still remains to be solved—and they doubt it can be done.

It seems their first sergeant, before "hitting the sack" one bitterly-cold night when the Chinese Reds were sitting back licking their wounds, put his false teeth in a canteen cup of water.

Next morning the whole mixture—cup, water, teeth—was a solid mass of ice.

"Even a first sergeant can't solve that one," admit the grinning Leathernecks, "although an ice pick might help."
