AuSable Township Man Alleges Natural Course Of Water Diverted

In a suit brought Thursday and Friday of last week before Judge Herman Dehnke, damages amounting to $10,000.00 are being sought by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Pennington who allege that a change in the natural flow of water to Lake Huron floods their property.

The suit is against Mr. and Mrs.
N. J. Trottier and the State Highway Department. The Trottiers are neighbors of the Penningtons, and Pennington contends that Trottier had interfered with the natural flow of water by constructing dams and other obstructions. Don Gingerich, with 19 points, led the locals in scoring while Oliver and A. Schroeder collected 10 each for Lincoln.

Play was rough throughout the game and particularly outstanding was the background play of Myles, Leslie and Gingerich as Lincoln had the advantage in height. FG FT TP

Mystery Man

ONE of the most amazing things about "mystery man" Henry Grunewald is the way he has been able to ingratiate himself with those in high places.

Henry is able to slip in to see the Vice President, has a letter of thanks from President Truman for a campaign contribution, drops in to see GOP Senator Brewster of Maine who calls him "Henry," and got GOP Senator Bridges of New Hampshire to help him pull wires on a tax fraud case. He has three limousines, a winter house in Miami Beach, a summer house at Spring Lake, N.J., and uses the Washington hotel apartment of former Secretary of War Harry Woodring.

How he manages all these contacts no one exactly knows, especially in view of the fact that he was unwilling to answer any questions about himself before the King committee.

However, strangest of all connections was with the former alien property custodian, Leo Crowleydespite Crowley's denials. Grunewald had such a close friendship with Crowley that he was actually authorized to speak for him at stockholders' meetings of the big alien corporations in wartime.

Crowley now says: "I don't remember Grunewald." However, at the time he was hired, Crowley's office put a memo in the files showing his astonishing trust in "The Dutchman" by stopping any investigation of Grunewald's past.

Grunewald's Past

"The office of the custodian has investigated Mr. Grunewald," Crowley's office stated on Aug. 25. '42, "and because of the nature of the work to be performed by this man for the custodian, it is requested that the Civil Service Commission refrain from making any investigation of Mr. Grunewald. His record is entirely satisfactory to the custo-

Perhaps what Crowley wanted to cover up was Grunewald's record as a government prohibition agent. This showed he was demoted from $4,000 to $1,-800 a year on January 12, 1922, and finally was kicked out of the government on October 3, 1922, after being indicted by a New York grand jury in connection with the "illegal removal and disposition of liquor."

Later, in a job application, Grunewald gave this version of his indictment: "In October, 1922, while I was a general agent assigned to the New York prohibition office, I was indicted by a federal grand jury in the southern district of New York for conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law. The indictment named a number of individuals, including Mr. Roswell A. Saver and myself. The case against me was dismissed after a verdict was indicated to the jury by Federal Judge, Winslow. . .

50 Years an Alien

Here are some more things which the mystery man might have told the King committee but didn't:

Grunewald was born May 19, 1892, at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, but neglected to become naturalized as an American citizen until February 1942. This was two months after Pearl Harbor and after he went to work for the alien property custo-

For years, as an alien, Grunewald worked for various branches of the government. He served in the U.S. Navy from 1909 to 1914, worked as a desk clerk at the Naval Young Men's Christian Association in Brooklyn, got a job in 1915 as a bookkeeper for Western Electric in New York city.

His first job as an investigator came in 1917, when he secured a temporary appointment with the old FBI. In 1919, he served as confidential investigator for the Republican National Committee at $6,000. In 1921 he got a $4,000-a-year job with the Commissioner of Prohibition which, ironically, came under the Internal Revenue Bureau. It was his relations with ex-Commissioner Schoeneman and ex-Counsel Oliphant of Internal Revenue which recently brought Grunewald into the limelight.

Grunewald has also developed some interesting contacts in the liquor business, and as late as 1944 he was under investigation by the alcohol tax unit for alleged blackmarketing in liquor.

Grunewald also spent from 1928 to 1942 as a personal, confidential investigator for Henry W. Marsh.

BURIED SON'S NAME ON PRISONER LIST . . . The parents of a Kansas City, Kansas, soldier, whose body they supposedly buried last summer were overjoyed when they read that his name was on a prisoner of war list submitted by the Communist Chinese command in Korea during the exchange-of-prisoner talks with the U.N. command. Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Smith are shown with their daughter, Mary Ann, 10, as they read the good news concerning their son, Pvt. James W. Smith, 19. This photo made at sea from the French luxury liner He De France, which docked in New York recently, shows the British freighter Chiswick wallowing in the heavy seas during the mid-Atlantic gales that delayed all New York liners with high swells. The Ile De France, the boat davits of which are in the foreground, stood by the Chiswick for 11 hours, ready to take off the straining freighter's crew of 45 and save them from the angry waters. With the abatement of the gale, the Chiswick rode easier and the skipper decided he could make it to port.

FROZEN SMOKE? . . . When the thermometer dropped to 10 degrees below zero recently, shivering Milwaukee, Wisc., citizens would have sworn the above scene depicted a column of smoke solidified in the frigid air as it attempted to rise from the chimney of a local residence. Actually this "smoke" was caused by the engine fumes of a high-flying plane passing over, or so says the news service photographer who made the picture for us. It is one of those camera illusions that make picture snapping interesting.

The party for the young debutants occupied the grand ballroom at the Waldorf Astoria and also four adjacent suites of the hotel. Proceeds went to the New York infirmary as charity.

PEACE TALKS—As home towners had expected, the 30-day provisional cease-fire-line agreement in Korea expired without final agreement between the Communists and the United Nations in their peace talks. As a result, it will be necessary to redraw the cease-fire line whenever all other armistice points are settled.

Although progress in the talks has been slow, the over-all picture is encouraging. Results are beginning to show.

First, and possibly most important, is the slackening of fighting, resulting in a great drop in the number of casualties on both sides. This policy is likely to continue as long as the talks are in progress, because, as Gen. James A. Van Fleet told correspondents: "We will not sacrifice our men needlessly. What is the use of thousands of casualties if it is questionable what good they would do?"

Second, the United States and its allies have a general idea, although somewhat inaccurate, of the number of fighting men held by the Communists in their prisoner-of-war camps. United Nations negotiators, however, are still pressing for a full accounting of more than 50,000 unlisted Allied prisoners. The U.S. has asked specifically what has become of 1,058 Americans not on the official Red prisoner-of-war list.

How soon a final agreement can be reached in the talks is anyone's guess, but distrust on the part of both sides will not hasten it. As an example, the Reds charge the lack of agreement due to "extraordinary antics . . . colossal bungling, criminal negligence, and master-race arrogance" by the Americans.

On the other hand, the Allies charge the "Communists have run true to form . . . With few exceptions the talks have been marked by the familiar Red pattern of delay, deceit, and diversionary tactics.

PRICE CUTS—Rural and small town families, by far the largest group of mail order patrons in the country, are wondering if the announced price cuts on thousands of items by the firms located in Chicago is an indication of things to come during 1952.

Midwinter sales catalogues of the four biggest mail order houses in the business list lower prices on thousands of items. It is the biggest

One form cut the price on an 11-cubic-foot refrigerator from $262.72 to $212.75, a 25 per cent mark down on men's shirts, and price reductions ranging from 80 cents to $2.30 on tires from last fall's levels. The firm also listed 400 price cuts on both wood and metal furniture.

SALES SAG-The Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Trade Commission, in a report of business conditions during the last quarter of 1951, said sales in the nation dropped under the previous quarter's level for the first time since 1949. The report also said the profit sag, which began at the end of 1950, continued with manufacturers returns amounting to 15 per cent before taxes and 23 per cent after taxes. Sales fell off $2,600,000,000 during the period.

Only four of the 22 industries covered in the report recorded an increase of profits before taxes in the third quarter of last year. They were petroleum, food, tobacco, and apparel and finished textiles.

The commissions did not attempt to interpret the general decline in business. It was obvious, however, that decline was due to a consumer buying lull that started early in 1950, sharp increases in defense taxes, shortages of materials and controls on scarce metals. Most observers believe the trend can be expected to continue during the early part of

THE OLD SOCK-According to Secretary of Commerce Sawyer the average citizen in the home towns of the nation are putting more and more of their money in the old sock and keeping it there. He says savings are greater now than at any time in the last five years. Sawyer is all for this saving spree of Americans-amounting to an annual rate of $22,000,000,000—because he believes it has helped turn the tide against rampant inflation. He warned, however, that if Americans spend these savings in a new wave of buying, inflatary pressures

Personal incomes rose from $225,000,000,000 in 1950 to $251,000,000,000 in 1951. Now, in the early days of 1952, the rate is about $260,000,000,000.

GOP CIRCUS-The race of Republicans to secure the GOP president nomination is taking on the atmosphere of a circus-so many are joining the show that spectators are going to miss some of the acts. The latest is Harold E. Stassen. Aready active are Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio and Gov. Earl Warren of California. Remaining to join the big show is Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, considered by many the white hope of the Republican party.

The other candidates had this to say of Stassen's announcement: "Every American has a right to run for President and it's well that the Republicans should have a wide choice."-Taft. "His (Stassen's) candidacy should stimulate discussion of national issues and he will undoubtedly be an important factor in the Republican convention."-War-

AS we go into a new year this reporter believes that 'o save democracy as a form of government in these United States, it is essential to (1) believe in the principles of democracy and (2) to have confidence in our democratic govern-

This is an election year and indications are that cotroversies in the campaign will be bitter. The electorate must learn to distinguish facts from lies, the real from the phoney. And above all, the electorate must not lose confidence in the government.

The American people are, by and large, able to determine their own destiny. They have done a pretty good job up to now. Once in a while first opportunity they generally correct those mistakes. That is the record of the past and the saving value of our system of elections.

The election this year is an important one. We not only elect a new house of representatives, but enable the American voters to ask also 32 members of the senate and a President and Vice President. Of the 32 senate members, only 12 are Democrats and 20 are Republicans. Europe. Of the 12 Democrats, only two seats are in danger of Republican succession, but at least six of the 20 Republican seats may be captured by Democrats.

If the people of this country are to be well informed on the real issues of this campaign, the responsibility will rest upon the weekly and small town daily press of the country. The responsibility of getting this material to the grass roots press rests not only upon the candidate, but the Republican and Democratic national commit-

The metropolitan newspapers carping and criticizing today are the same ones who have done so for the past 25 years, that is, through five national elections. They represent 90 per cent of the newspapers in the metropolitan field and more, than 90 per cent of the circulation. However, these newspapers have had little or no influence with the American people en masse, representing as they do the thinking of only a small segment of the people. And despite their determined opposition, they have lost every national election on every issue since tees.

They will lose the 1952 election because the American people still have confidence in themselves and are able to distinguish the real from the sham issues. Recently an accurate and comprehensive poll of weekly newspaper publishers of the nation indicated that President Truman would be the Democratic nominee and he would be reelected. Every poll of metropolitan newspapers points to the defeat of President Truman. Polls by these papers predicted President Truman's defeat in 1948, while the grass-roots editor's poll predicted his election.

Newspaper Policy

This reporter has a great respect for the newspaper profession. But we have little respect for a newspaper which orders its reporters to slant the news, to write "policy" stories. There can be enough criticism of any administration without manufacturing issues and writing halftruths; without using the slanted headline which in no way bears out the story; and without asking questions in press conferences of the "have you quit beating your wife?" type.

In addition, the corporation turned over to the treasury $75,-600,000 as net profit on its synthetic rubber and tin operations, and $4,000,000 net on liquidation of assets of the old Smaller War Plants Corporation, a total of $95,345,812 for the year.

The East-West Struggle Places Europeans in Political Quandary

By FARNHAM F. DUDGEON Editor, WNU Second in a Series

Europeans today are having an extremely difficult time trying to face in two opposite directions at the same time. There is, of course, the ever present Soviet threat of military invasion.

Europe Is Concerned

But, as the United States enters into a crucial election year in which the fate of European military and economic aid will be determined in congressional debate in next November's election, these people are extremely concerned with political events in the United States.

American taxpayers can feel fairly sure on one important aspect of this situation. Their representatives from both houses of Congress have poured into Europe in good numbers to observe first-hand the pothey make a mistake, but at the litical and military situation as it

When the great debates start, both in the halls of Congress and on the campaign platforms of America's home towns, there will be a store of first-hand observations, which will direct questions and be reasonably sure of getting well-founded replies with regard to the stake we have in Both American officials and the officials of other countries told us that these congressmen and senators, who visited them, took a good look and should be able to present a clear picture. We noticed that both political parties were well represented in these congressional inspection teams.

No Backing Down

If economic and military aid from the United States were to be withdrawn, or seriously curtailed, it would be difficult to speculate on the outcome of such action. These countries certainly would not immediately back down, or "go over to the other side"

Countries like Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia have no choice but to stand as firmly as they can against the Soviet Union. In Turkey we were told, for example, that the world would not be in such a sorry state today if other countries had taken as firm a position against Russia as have the Turks.

In Yugoslavia there is great concern on the part of many observers, as to whether or not the people of the United States are completely convinced that the Tito defection from the Kremlin has been complete and unqualified. Our representatives in Europe voice the general opinion that Yugoslavia has, indeed, cast her lot with the West.

In countries like Italy and France, there are thousands of people who still vote as "Communists". However, the general appraisal of these voters by American officials seems to be that only a small percentage are real "hard-core" Communists. They ally themselves with Communists and vote for Communist candidates as a protest against the other political parties which currently govern these nations.

If the cold war turned to a one, these people would undoubtedly fight against the Russian Communists. There would be some local sabotage, of course, but the majority would support the west.

A subject of continuing speculation by thinking men in Europe today is this problem of the "will to fight". Europe is tired. Its economy has been shattered by almost nonending wars through the first half of the Atlantic seaboard of the United this century. Its people bear physi- States.

Much of the physical property which was destroyed during World War II has been rebuilt. But the minds of the people who have survived these wars are not rebuilt. They look with understandable suspicion upon alliances, which conceivably could thrust them into another war. And yet, at the same time, they know that their fate is completely tied to the democratic principles of government best personified today by the United States. In their attitude toward peace and war, these people are little different than Americans. They know, even better than we do, the high and horrible price of war. But, somehow, one senses that they know, too, that unity must be maintained against Russian aggression.

Somehow, you feel that they instinctively agree with General Eisenhower, when he says:

Political Federation

"I believe that there will be no permanent position of serenity and confidence for the western world as long as we are confronted with the Communist menace. As a counter, there must be created a United States of-or political federation of -Western Europe; and Western Europe must include at least Western Germany, and preferably United Germany.'

Many of the American officials with whom we spoke sincerely believe that such a federation of European countries is the only answer to the economic and political problems of these countries.

Such a union will not come easily, but the Europeans themselves know that something other than continuing subsidization by the United States must be done to give them an equitable status in the world's family of peoples. And it is here, in this realm of future long-range planning, that one encounters a European viewpoint, perhaps not thoroughly understood or appreciated by the American taxpayer.

Two Personal Questions

In the early stages of our trip, we encountered an American businessman, who was primarily concerned with getting us to find the answers to his two most important questions: (1.) "Do these people (the Europeans) really appreciate what we are doing for them?" and (2.) "When are they going to get "off the back" of the American taxpayer?"

"Appreciation" is hardly the word for the feeling which most Europeans have for the United States, with regard to the financial and military assistance which it has rendered They know, and say freely and openly, that this aid has been their salvation. But by and large, these people are strongly nationalistic, and they are not happy with their fate of being the recipients of American benevolence."

They don't feel that we are 'giving' them anything. They feel that we are buying their partnership in an alliance against a common enemy. They feel, also, that they would ike to have the aid, which we have been giving them, terminated just as soon as it is militarily and economically safe to do so. They feel that we are buying much with the money we are spending in Europe.

Many of them are frank to say that it is much better for America to have a "front" against Soviet Russia located where it is today, than it would be to have a front on

We did it Again!"

That's the jubilant news that comes from Flint to every Buick dealer-and here we pass the thrilling story on to you. It sure is true for '52 that better automobiles are being built - and Buick is building them. Read the good word and you'll agree.

TET's pare this down to plain statements of fact and let them speak for themselves:

The dynamic darling pictured here is the 1952 ROADMASTER.

It has the mightiest engine in Buick history.

It has the biggest brakes of any postwar Buick.

It is the quietest car that Buick ever built. It has the richest fabrics and smartest tailoring that ever graced a Buick's interior.

It has the greatest trunk space since spare tires moved off the front fenders.

It has the most superb ride in Buick history.

It has the finest carburetor that Buick research has ever devised.

And with all its new power, it delivers more miles per gallon.

But that is not all.

For those who wish it, there is a brand-new version of power steering that works like a helping hand-gives you the same sure feel of control you have always known in straightaway driving-vet takes less than one-fifth the effort needed to turn the ordinary wheel standing at curbside.

Sure, we're putting our best foot forward when we talk about ROADMASTER.

But you'll find a host of notable features in Supers and Specials too - plenty to make them, as always, the standout buys in their helds-for ride, for comfort, for style, for room. and for power.

Come in-look this triumphant trio over-and you'll know why every Buick dealer from coast to coast is going around with a smile on his face.

Tracy replied, "No, not at all." She didn't mind now; she was more concerned with Phil's strange behavior, with wondering why he was upset because Helene had once met him. There was a tension in the atmosphere of the room, as if everyone had noticed Phil's embarrassment. Pete Donohue relieved the tension by starting the juke

"Don't give me that eyewash, darling," Pete drawled. "I know when something's amiss. The Garrisons are hiding an epidemic of nerves because of the newcomer. All but Helene, and she has got the Indian sign on Cousin Phil."

"She met him once, two years ago at a party," Tracy reminded him.

She caught Helene's words-saw the sudden shocks in Philip's eyes. "Once seems to be enough. Don't look now, but Helene keeps her eyes Helene's eyes, her voice, were mocking. At that moment an urgent knock sounded on the natio door. One of the vaqueros, a frightened man, stood there with sombrero in hand. The Mexican's coming made Tracy's words almost prophetic. Pete Donohue was to be supplied story material. And the newcomer to Garrison Ranch was to be testedas perhaps Tracy wanted him to be tested.

Ramon Garrison went to speak to the terrified Mexican, and the excited flow of crude vaquero Spanish carried over the sudden hush in the rumpus room of the Hacienda. One of the men in the village, Jose, was on a rampage, following a drinking bout. In the fracas one man had been knifed, were quite disappointed when I told and now everyone in the little

It was Helene's smooth voice that said, "Why not let Phil go? After all, the Senora has been telling us that he is a real Garrison—a second Jeff Garrison." She put aside her magazine and walked half across the room to the man. "Aren't you going to live up to the Senora Maria's build-up. Phil?"

Tracy said, "Now that is non-sense! Phil doesn't know anything about the villagers."

He said, "Naturally I'll tackle the Mexican, Helene—if your husband will accompany me."

Helene Tells Tracy Jim Is Not Phil

Tracy silently applauded that retort. She saw Helene shrug. There was a lengthy moment of silence, then the coming of the foreman Pete Saba, a leathery-faced old cowhand, was a distraction. Looking uneasily about, his eyes sought Ramon's frowning face. 'You know how it is, sir," said

Old Pete. "I can take the boys with me and go to the village. We can tackle Jose. But the others will throw in with Jose-against us. Then there'll be real trouble."

Tracy understood that Old Pete wasn't refusing to go, he was merey outlining what would happen so that the responsibility would rest on Ramon. She looked at Ramon. His face sagged with weakness. A mocking smile twisted his daugh-

Then Tracy looked at Jim. And she was startled. He was smiling in a thin-lipped way; his eyes had the strange, bright look of a cowboy about to tackle a killer horse at a rodeo. Helene was looking at Conroy, too — a challenge in her gold-flecked eyes.

It was Conroy who broke the strained silence, but Tracy didn't recognize his voice. It was unlike a Garrison voice-low and chill, with the sharpness of steel in it.

"That brings us back to where we were before Pete came in," he said. "I'll talk to Jose if you will go with me, Ramon."

"This isn't our job, Phil," said Ramon. "We better let things go as it in the morning."

Old Pete snapped, his voice rough: "Jose can do a lot of damage before morning. If you want somebody to go with you, sir-"

There was another brief silence. Tracy watched the two men. Pete Saba took this as part of his job. Jim took it as a challenge. Tracy had the panicky thought: "There is danger-I can't let him go!" The next instant she knew that she could—and would. The Senora Maria would want him to go.

He moved across the room, and said, "All right, Pete." And they went out into the night together. Tracy stood rigidly frightened. She heard Juan say, "What's the idea, Helene, baiting him like that?"

"I'm sorry, Tracy," Helene said "I shouldn't have done that. If anything happens, I'll be to blame. But when I discovered his masquerade it seemed like an awfully amusing gag to show him up. I never thought he would do it, since it's not his responsibility.'

Helene poured out the words breathlessly. Staring at her, Tracy demanded:

"Masquerade? What do you mean by that?"

"Don't keep up the pretense with me, Tracy. I know what you are trying to do, You brought this man here and had him pose as Phil Garrison to help Senora Maria make Ramon and Juan and Ruth-and me, too, toe the line. It would have worked, too, if I had not met the real Phil Garrison two years ago." Tracy's mind reeled under the impact of that blow. She said shakenly, "You meanhe is not Phil Garrison?"

Helene was recovering her poise. She laughed a little. "tend innocence, Tracy." "Don't pre-

"I didn't know!" Tracy spoke half to Helene, half to herself. And she asked: "Then who is he-who is this man?" Every window was shuttered, every door was barred in the small adobe huts that made up the Mexican village. Pete Saba braked the station wagon, gave Jim Conroy a look that offered friendship

About Face

Lesson for January 20, 1952

TAX collectors and customs officers in these days are highly respectable men. They are not (officially) popular; but every one knows they are necessary. What they collect is fixed by law, and they get no commission on their collections. They live on a salary also fixed by law. If anyone feels "gouged" by taxes he never accuses the collector, the fault is somewhere else.

Now in Palestine, in the time of Dr. Foreman Christ, it was different. Throughout the gospels the name "publican" or, as translated in present-day English, "tax-collector", is evidently a name for a mean man. Jesus himself used publicans as examples of the lowest level of society. The reason was this: In the Roman system of tax collection, the privilege of levying taxes in a given district was "farmed out", that is to say, offered at auction. The highest bidder was given the franchise, and then he, or men he hired, would proceed to collect all the traffic would bear. Palestine at that time was under the Romans, and the Jews had the army of occupation with them year after year. What the tax collectors did was to turn over to the Romans what the Romans wanted, and everything over and above that amount went into the collector's strong-box.

A Christian's Job

ONE day Jesus just said "follow me" to one of these men, named Matthew, and the man got up and followed him. So far as we know, he never set foot in his office again. Very likely, as a great preacher has suggested, this was not the first time Matthew had seen Jesus. Possibly they had had conversations before, out of business hours. The preacher goes on to suggest that Matthew may have come to loathe his job, but never have seen just how he could leave it.

Be that as it may, Matthew understood quite well that he could not be both a publican and a follower of Jesus. This raises a question: Are there occupa-tions today which a true Christian cannot follow without sin?

There was a dope peddler one light sitting on a stone wall outside a New England church. Somehow the Spirit of God blessed the singing that night, for one of the hymns sang its way straight into that man's heart, and that very hour he threw they are. Clint Hanlon can handle his packet of dope away and became Christian. He never went back to that business. We can all see that he was right; but are there other businesses also that cannot have the blessing of Christ upon them?

Whom Do You Follow?

THE story of Matthew suggests also that every one is some kind of follower. Some people just "follow their noses", that is, they just keep on in the routine of their lives, doing today what they did yesterday just because they have the habit of living in this way. Others follow an ambition, others a desire for revenge, others follow pleasure, others attach themselves to a leader (political, social or what not) and follow somebody else's band-wagon.

The tragedy of the Christian church is that although every Christian, or rather every church member, has solemnly promised to follow Jesus Christ, they don't all follow him, by any means. They go right on following habit, or pleasure, or ambition, and they do not ask (as Matthew must have asked) whether these things are such as Christ can bless, or not.

In spite of Jesus' plain statement: You cannot serve God and Mammon (the god of money), people go right on serving Mammon in spite of their Christian profession.

About Face!

THE word "conversion" means simply "turning around". It means turning all the way around. When the sergeant says "About Face!" it won't do for the rookie to twist his face around, or to turn one foot. It's all the way or nothing.

Yet when Jesus our Commander gives the command "About Face!" how many Christians barely move a muscle!

The church is too well loaded with half-converted people. They are turned around enough to go to church, but the rest of the week they are headed just the same way the world is headed. What we need is more Matthews, converted 100 per cent.

Nature Depends Upon Precisions Of Adjustments

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Mother Earth is a precisely adjusted ma-

The physical phenomena of nature, amid which man lives and upon which life depends, often themselves depend on precisions of adjustment that might baffle the best watchmakers. This is particularly true of weather, where profound changes may result from nearly unmeasurable differences in adjustments. Since 1852 the Smithsonian Institution has issued at intervals—as measurements became more exact and extended to new fields—of-ficially accepted Meteorological Tables giving values for all the constants of nature that have a part in the determination of weather phenomena. The latest edition has just been published, with changes and additions resulting from two decades of intensive, research all over the world. The tables were prepared by Robert J. List, of the U.S. Weather Bureau. Throughout the work a Weather Bureau advisors ing committee served as advisers. Preparation of the tables was under the general supervision of L. B. Aldrich, director of the Smithsonian Institution's Astrophysical Observatory whose work is conserved with tory, whose work is concerned with precise observations of radiation from the sun reaching the outer limits of the atmosphere and penetrating it to the surface of the

Data Important

Some of the new data have assumed great importance. The upper atmosphere, for example, was virtually unknown when the last tables were published. In the interval it has been probed extensively with a variety of instruments-radio beams, automatically recording instruments attached to pilotless balloons, and lately with rockets. The region has been found to be a weather factory of outstanding importance, a better understanding of which now is essential.

This region of atmosphere, so thin as to be almost nonexistent, is theoretically a very hot place. Tentative temperature values are given in the tables. At an altitude of 120 kilometers, about 72 miles, there is a probable maximum temperature of approximately 520 degrees Fahrenheit. At ground level the maximum temperature probably experienced on earth is around 115 degrees F. At 11 kilometers, about 61/2 miles, the maximum falls to well below zero, but at an altitude of about 30 miles it rises to a maximum of close to 220 degrees F. These figures necessarily are ten-tative, depending partly on actual measurements and partly on deductions. Owing to the thinness of the upper atmosphere the actual temperature sensations of a human being-assuming that by some miracle he could remain alive in such a rarefied realm-remain quite de-

New Method

Tables in the past have stated the otal solar radiation falling upon the outer edge of the earth's atmosphere. Now this is computed in terms of the amount of radiation in different wavelength bands from the invisible infrared through the visible spectrum of light and then through the invisible ultraviolet.

Of interest also are latest values for some of the more familiar physical constants, such as the weight of air as it changes with temperature and pressure.

The new tables comprise a book of 527 pages.

1951 Reported Healthiest On Record for Americans

NEW YORK, N. Y .- The year 1951 promises to be one of the healthiest on record for Americans, according to the experience among the industrial policyholders of the Met-ropolitan Life Insurance Company during the first nine months. The death rate was 6.58 per 1,000, only slightly higher than the all-time record low of 6.40 for the like period

The small rise from the 1950 figure reflects the epidemic of respiratory disease earlier in the year and the losses in Korea, the company's statisticians report. In three months-January, June, and September-new minimum death rates were established this year.

The death rate from enemy action in the first nine months of the current year was 5.9 per 100,000 policyholders, compared with 4.1 per 100,-000 in the comparable period of 1942, the first year of our participation in World War II.
