14 Greyhound Buses Bring Young People to Carnival

Adverse weather conditions—high temperature—melted the snow and ice, but did not spoil the fun for some 3,000 people who visited Silver Valley last week end.

Fourteen Greyhound bus loads of Lutheran young people from 19 Detroit churches were among the merry-makers. They came here in their annual pilgrimage to Silver Valley under the leadership of Martin Greuber, a former Zion Lutheran school teacher in this city.

Saturday evening before a capacity crowd at the Community Building, Van Patrick, WJR sports announcer, crowned Queen Ruth Nash, attended by her court, Mary Jane Hinkley of Whittemore, Beverly Shorkey of Tawas City and Carol Rick of Oscoda. The ceremony was followed by the coronation ball. A dance, with music by Spiekerman's Orchestra, followed.

Included in the carnival week end festivities was the Coronation Banquet at the Barnes Hotel Saturday evening. Nathan Barkman acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the Queen and Her Court and the guests.

The 511 Lutheran young people, Sunday morning, attended worship under the pines at Silver Valley. The services were under the leadership of Rev. A. E. Allwardt, pastor of the Good Shepherd Church at Birmingham.

Joan Cook of East Detroit was selected Caravan Queen by four judges. Candidates for the honor were 14 queens chosen while the young people were on their way to Tawas. Queen Joan was presented with a cup by Bert Leidecker, of East Detroit, tour organizer.

Eugene Smith of Saginaw and Edward Stevens of Grand Rapids were here Wednesday and completed the sale. The price was $15,000.00.

Mr. Crabb expects to start construction of a building on the property in March. He has a franchise with Tasee-Freeze of Michigan, Inc., Lansing, frozen foods and custards, and is establishing a chain of drive-in sales.

March of Dimes Exceeds Quota

Thanks Extended for Fine Cooperation

The March of Dimes quota has been exceeded, according to a statement made Wednesday by E. D. Jacques and Nathan Barkman, co-chairman of the campaign. The returns up to Wednesday were $1295.63. Isoco county's quota was $1050.00.

In addition there will be returns from schools, and from cannisters which have not been picked up.

"We have been unable to thank each one individually," states Mr. Barkman. "Some group donations may also have been overlooked in making acknowledgements."

The response this year has been out of the ordinary. The need is so great that regardless of the campaign closing you can still send in your contributions at any time. The chairmen have hoped for as complete coverage as possible. If you have not given and still intend to please mail to either chairman. A full report will be given to the public as soon as all the figures are available.

'Yellowstone' Pictures to be Shown Here

EDWARD BRIGHAM

"Yellowstone Park" is the subject of the Travel Series lecture which will be given by Edward M. Brigham next Wednesday evening at the Tawas City School Auditorium. The popular Travel Series lectures are sponsored by the Tawas Kinwamis Club.

Mr. Brigham, director of Kingman Museum, Battle Creek, is one of the best lecturers in the field, and an excellent photographer. He has made many trips to fabulous Yellowstone, and the films he will present here are the result of these years of photographic research. There is no place on earth quite like Yellowstone National Park. No place with rugged mountains, peaceful valleys, deep canyons, high waterfalls, beautiful lakes, huge geysers, bubbling "mud pots", hot springs, terraces and other weird manifestations of nature's moods. And through it all are delightful shots of flowers, birds and animals. It is like spending an evening in "wonderland!"

Tourney Officials Appointed

According to an announcement by A. E. Giddings, manager of the district basketball tourney to be held here in March, the Michigan High School Athletic Association has appointed Danny Smick and Lauden Collins as officials for the event. In games this week the Elks won over Oscoda Friday night, 47 to 37 and won from Whittemore Tuesday night, 54 to 31. The Elks have an opening in their schedule next Tuesday evening but will come up against East Tawas in a return game the following Friday.

Last Friday night the Elks avenged an earlier loss to Oscoda by posting a 47 to 37 win. It was Tawas City all the way when they racked up 13 points in the first quarter and 14 in the second while Oscoda had 7 in the initial quarter and 8 in the second. Oscoda outscored the Elks 14 to 10 in the third but Tawas bounced back in the fourth with 10 while Oscoda had 8.

Gary Humphrey led Tawas City with 13 points while Somers had the same amount to lead Oscoda. The Elks reserves won in a thriller 36 to 35, when they came from behind in the final quarter to post the win. Oscoda out scored them in the first quarter 10 to 7 and Tawas had 12 in the second while Oscoda had 11. Oscoda added one more point to their lead in the third when they meshed 8 points to the locals 7. The local reserve squad bounced back with 10 points in the fourth and held Oscoda to 6 to win the contest. Ed Davison led Tawas City with 15 points while Curley had 18 for Oscoda. Others who scored for Tawas were Binder 8, Landon 7 and Wendt 6.

Tuesday night the Elks were held on even terms with Whittemore for the first two quarters, the halftime score reading Tawas City 27 Whittemore 21, but in the second half the Elks scored 27 points and held Whittemore to 10, the game ending in Tawas City's favor, 54 to 31. This was the second meeting of the two teams, Tawas City winning the previous tilt. Last Friday evening Whittemore defeated league leading East Tawas in a surprising upset.

Tom Morley led the Elks in the win with a neat 20 point total, scoring 14 points in the last half. Art Anschutz was next with 13 points and kept Tawas City in the game during the first half with several left handed hook shots. Goupl was high for Whittemore with 11.

Ed Davison, with 11 points, sparked the Elks reserve squad to a 38 to 30 win over the Whittemore team. The locals had complete control of the game all the way. Hall topped Whittemore with 14 points. Others to score for Tawas were Landon and Wendt 6 points each, Binder a Clements each had 4, Hanna 3, Rollin and Hughes 2 each.

Tonight the Tawas City High School will stage their annual Homecoming game with the crowning of the Queen being held during the evening.

Truman Submits Record 'Peacetime' Budget of $85 Billion to Congress

THE BUDGET—"A heavy burden . . . the price of peace". With these words President Truman attempted to describe his proposed budget of $85,444,000,000 for the fiscal year which begins July 1. This amount does not include a five to six billion dollar atomic energy expansion program which the President said would be sent to congress in the near future.

This proposed budget is an increase of almost $15,000,000,000 over the current fiscal year which ends June 30. And it is not far from the record World War II spending of $100 billion in the 1945 fiscal year.

As outlined by the President, more than three-fourths of the total would go for national security programs, including $51,100,000,000 for the armed forces, $10,800,000,000 for foreign aid, $1,700,000,000 for atomic weapons, $811,000,000 for defense production and economic stabilization, and $339,000,000 for civil defense.

The military expansion program, as outlined by the President, would include increasing the armed forces from 3,600,000 to 3,700,000 men, the Air Forces from 90 wings to 143, increase the Army's 19 divisions to 21, add another 16 major combatant vessels to the Navy's 392, build up to 16 large carrier air groups, and increase the Marine Corps from two to three divisions.

All of this, of course, is the proposed plan, depending upon approval of congress. At this point that approval is unlikely, because it would mean another increase in taxation.

Adoption of this budget would mean a deficit of $14,446,000,000 for the next fiscal year unless congress approved the $5,000,000,000 tax increase already requested by the President. But this is an election year and congress will be even more economically minded than in the past.

Congressional debate over this proposed budget during the next few weeks is likely to be bitter. And it will end with congress slashing it as much as possible. At the present moment there is no indication of how much they will cut it. The defense items may be cut some, but the greatest slashes will be foreign aid and less necessary domestic items.

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED—Aging but still dynamic Winston Churchill accomplished his mission to the United States. That mission can be best summed up in his own words as he concluded his speech before a joint session of congress.

He said: "Bismarck once said that the supreme fact of the 19th century was that Britain and the United States spoke the same language.

Let us make sure that the supreme fact of the 20th century is that they tread the same path."

It was the third time in a decade that Churchill had addressed a joint session of congress. His speech was well received and it was evident he had accomplished much in bringing about greater cooperation between his country and the United States. Announcements of policy agreements, the transfer of vital materials from one nation to the other, and accord on military matters in Europe after a series of meetings with President Truman and other high officials, also indicated the successfulness of his mission.

The British leader also promised that Britain would help defend Western Europe against Soviet aggression. And he cautioned the United States "above all things" not to give up its atomic weapons without an iron-clad guarantee of peace.

FARM PROGRAM—The federal farm programs, of vital interest to home towns across the nation, will cost approximately 7 per cent more next year because of a government need to encourage greater crop and livestock production, President Truman said in his budget message to congress.

According to best estimates the greatest part of the cost would be for price supports, soil-conservation payments, and wheat-export subsidies.

The President reported the price-support program is being used to encourage farm production by keeping support prices of cotton, corn, wheat, soybeans, milk, wool, and several other commodities at 90 per cent of parity.

The budget calls for $256,500,000 for payments to farmers who carry out approved soil and water conservation practices, $70,000,000 for subsidies to farmers who co-operate with the government's sugar-control program, $182,000,000 for wheat export subsidies, and $75,000,000 for rural telephone and electrification loans.

EGYPT—The killing of an American nun in the Suez canal zone brought the conflict between Great Britain and Egypt for control of that vital waterway into sharp focus for most of this country. She was identified as Brigitte Ann Timbers, 52, of New York. She had served in Egypt since 1947.

The British charge Sister Anthony was slain by Egyptian terrorists. Cairo newspapers, however, said she was killed by British bullets. She was slain during a four hour battle between British soldiers and terrorists.

KOREA—Another week dragged by and still no important progress was reported in the Korea peace talks. The United Nations command did offer to reconsider an important phase of its armistice prisoner-exchange demands if the Communists would say how many civilians they intend to return to South Korea. In effect, the U.N. dropped its demand for an equal one-for-one exchange of Red prisoners.

There was no progress on the airfield question that has been holding up negotiations. The Reds insist on rehabilitation of airfields during an armistice. The U.N. command has opposed it.

Meanwhile, at home, Senator Taft called the Korean War unnecessary and useless and said it could have been prevented if the United States had stayed in Korea and rearmed the South Koreans after World War II.

He also said he would make a truce in Korea if he were President because "even a stalemate truce is better than a stalemate war."

Gov. Earl Warren of California, a "native son" candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, may be the key to the coming national convention. Should he throw his influence to either Taft or Eisenhower it could be decisive for that candidate. If the two top men should become deadlocked, he could be the compromise candidate. He is shown here talking to Guy Gabrielson, GOP National Committee chairman. Mayor Elmer Robinson of San Francisco stands behind them.

U.S. BABY BOOM

Population Increases 2.5 Millions Yearly

According to a statistical bulletin issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the United States may soon break all world's records in population growth. Americans are being born at the rate of 26,000,000 and more each 10 years. It is estimated that by 1962 there will be 181,500,000 of us.

Births in the United States set an all-time record of more than 3,900,000 last year. After subtracting the deaths, the gain amounts to 2,650,000. This reflects, the report said, the increase in marriages after the start of the Korean War.

There is a general trend to break away from the one-or-two-child family that prevailed before World War II, the report adds. Also, there is a general trend in the United States toward earlier marriages.

SAILER IN TROUBLE . . . Somewhere in the North Sea off England, according to S.O.S. messages this sailing ship, the Pamir, a West German craft was in serious trouble in heavy waters. The struggling vessel carries 79 men and passengers, including 49 who are merchant marine cadets. They are receiving their naval training, part of which must be the handling of this old type of ship. Tugboats were dispatched to the aid of the vessel which sent word it was at the mercy of the wind and the waves and near foundering. There was no word whether or not any of the men aboard had taken to the lifeboats.

WRECKAGE RAISED . . . The shattered remains of the airliner which crashed into the East river in New York City is shown on the deck of a salvage barge as one wing and engine are raised from the water to the deck. Heavy fog hampered salvage crews to get the twin-engine Convair up from the bottom where it was stuck in mud after falling into nine feet of water. A diver attached a cable to the fuselage and a 130-foot barge crane hoisted the wreckage inch by inch. The wreckage was to be investigated at La Guardia airport when experts sought to pin down the cause of the crash in which all 36 aboard were saved.

MEET GRANDFATHER . . . This is the first picture showing Susan Eileen Eisenhower, born Dec. 31, 1951, at Fort Knox, Ky., to Major and Mrs. John Eisenhower. The major is the son of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Atlantic pact forces who recently agreed to accept a Republican draft for the presidency of the United States. Here, the newcomer is introduced to Grandfather Ike, who beams from a portrait on the wall. Susan is held by her mother.

WHERE TWO NAVY FLIERS DIED . . . Two fliers of the United States navy met death recently when this small naval plane crashed on the ice after it overshot the runway of a naval air field near Detroit. The airfield was fog-bound at the time of the accident. The out-of-control aircraft broke through the ice of the lake when it landed and was partially submerged in 18 feet of ice cold water. The navy withheld names until notification of nearest kin.

FIRST IN '52 . . . The first new player put under contract in Hollywood during 1952 was Kathleen Hughes, a willowy blonde, born in Hollywood. She is 5 feet, 8 inches tall, a talented artist as well as a bathing suit beauty.

THE READER'S DATE BOOK There Is Still Plenty of Time To Plan a Local Pancake Day

There is still plenty of time for your community to plan a Pancake Day celebration, a centuries-old tradition that is still maintained in many European communities, and which is gaining popularity in this country. The town of Liberal, Kansas, for instance, has received nation-wide publicity for the annual Pancake Day race held for the community's housewives.

The event is celebrated on the day before Lent each year by millions of people all over the world. The day falls on February 26, 1952.

In the United States, Pancake Day is observed by numerous organizations. Celebrations range from community-wide Pancake Day festivals, like those staged at Liberal, to suppers conducted by church groups and service clubs.

Pancake Day is the perfect opportunity for clubs and church groups to earn money for some worthwhile project. And its traditional background lends itself toward good, local publicity for a celebration. But to put Pancake Day on the broadest possible footing, any sponsor will do well to call on other groups to participate in committee work. For a community-wide Pancake Day, you will want the active co-operation of all groups, including those not represented in your membership.

may help publicize the affair through cooperative advertising.

Here are a few suggestions if you are planning a community Pancake Day . . . plan a parade, select a King and Queen, ask your local high school band to provide music for the parade and other activities, and possibly secure a new concrete mixer or mixing truck to emphasize the huge quantity of pancake batter you are going to mix.

And be sure, when planning to serve a large number of people, to secure a large centrally located room in which to hold your celebration.

These suggestions may help to form a frame work for your money-making Pancake Day celebration. The embellishments are yours and yours is the job of laying out an efficient organization of committees to shape the plans.

Pancake Day always is the day before Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent. The holiday pancake had their start as "shriving cakes." At the tolling of a bell, housewives in Old England rushed to prepare their pancakes, according to a prescribed formula. Then, they flocked to their churches to be "shriven," or absolved of their sins. Hence, the last day before Lent became "Shrove Tuesday," then, as the religious significance dimmed, simply "Pancake Day."

The winner of the Pancake Day Race at Liberal last year was Mrs. Emaline Bruce, 20. She was defeated, however, in the international race between Liberal and Olney, England.

Bette Renick, 18, of Liberal, Kansas, was named Miss Pancake Day last year by the Junior Chamber of Commerce which sponsors the celebration in that community.

A Pancake Day celebration can take any one of a number of forms. With pancakes as a general theme, variations are infinite. Basically, you need only three things for a successful celebration: (1) Facilities for cooking and serving many pancakes; (2) interesting daytime activities, if yours is a community celebration; (3) a special event in which everyone may participate.

Experience has shown that by using volunteer help to make and serve pancakes, an organization will be able to show a nice profit by selling pancakes at 25 cents a plate. This cost may seem nominal, but pancakes are an economical food.

Your local Pancake Day celebration can be just what you make it. Organizing and publicizing such an affair calls for unlimited imagination and a flair for the fanciful. Local newspapers are always happy to promote an event that means fun for the community.

Naturally, when you decide to have a Pancake Day celebration, you will want to work out detailed plans for financing the affair. The easiest way to assure a definite and fixed return is to sell admission tickets before the event. This also has the added advantage of letting you know the number of servings of pancakes required.

Publicity wise Liberal sent this picture of four entrants for the 1952 race to publications in many parts of the country.

Other tested methods of handling the finances are to charge admission before people are admitted to the eating room. Both of these techniques are good and simplify the financing problem.

The cost of the basic ingredients, including a pancake ready-mix, syrup, sausage and butter is moderate when compared to the profit realized from the affair. In many communities, a group of local merchants will help finance the purchase of the basic ingredients. Grocers and retail merchants in your town

As the religious emphasis on Pancake Day dwindled, the day took on the aspects of a merrymaking holiday. From the custom of flipping pancakes to turn them developed the 505-year-old Pancake Day Race in Olney, England. Liberal, Kansas, and Olney now match their housewives in an annual Pancake Day race.

World Day of Prayer Friday, February 29

Thousands of communities across the country, home towns and big towns, will observe World Day of Prayer, Friday, February 29. The 65th annual observance, the day is sponsored by the General Department of the United Church Women of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. Overseas, women of 91 other countries will join in prayer for lasting peace and strengthening of the bonds of Christian unity.

In the home towns of the nation, World Day of Prayer is marked by the ringing of church bells and the closing of many business establishments. Services are held in churches, hospitals and prisons. Special programs have been prepared for children in many of the nation's schools.

The traditional offerings are divided between the council's divisions of Home and Foreign Missions. The Home Missions use the money to provide child care and other social and religious services for agricultural migrants, religious education and social services for American Indians and improvement of the Negro ministry in sharecropper areas of the south.

Funds allotted to the Division of Foreign Missions are used in this country to aid foreign students and abroad to help support Christian women's colleges, and the production and distribution of Christian literature all over the world.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

McGrath Deal

ONLY cabinet member who has outsmarted the President in his accustomed technique for axing an unwanted member of the official family is Attorney General Howard McGrath. Howard was out of the ring, hanging on the ropes, and given the count of nine. But by some of the cleverest footwork ever displayed in Washington, he managed to scramble back into the cabinet.

Here is the inside story of how he did it. By now, official Washington has become quite familiar with the way Harry Truman eases out a cabinet member he doesn't want. Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug, for instance, was axed by a planted story that he was resigning, following which the President said "no comment" at his next press conference, and Krug knew the jig was up.

Similar procedure was followed with Defense Secretary Louis Johnson. Therefore, when word came out of the White House that the Lamar Caudie hearing had embarrassed the President, shrewd politician McGrath beat the President to the punch, offered his resignation — if he embarrassed the administration.

But Harry Truman, who shies from clashes with people he likes personally, hemmed, hawed, said he had no intention of pulling the rug out from under his friend, did not accept the suggested resignation.

Ambassador to Spain

Nevertheless, he did have Donald Dawson look round for another job with sufficient prestige so McGrath could be eased out of the Justice department without loss of face.

And Dawson soon came up with the ambassadorship to Spain. This seemed a natural. McGrath is one of the top-ranking lay Catholics in the United States.

Shortly thereafter, a carefully planted White House story appeared in the local press that McGrath would go to Spain and that ex-Judge Justin Miller would become the new attorney general.

Naturally McGrath knew exactly what was up. This was the same treatment given Krug and Louey Johnson. Furthermore the McGrath resignation story was followed by a press conference at which the President bluntly refused to comment on the report that McGrath was to go.

All that day, newsmen tried to reach McGrath. Ordinarily easy to reach, he kept ominous silence. However, he was not idle.

Overnight he hauled up two of his biggest guns. One was Cardinal Spellman, who sent a message from Tokyo.

The other was his 84-year-old law partner, Senator Francis Green of Rhode Island.

Truman in Reverse

Meanwhile, Matt Connelly, though ordinarily lukewarm toward AG and in favor of appointing Judge Tom Murphy of New York to head a corruption commission, went to McGrath's defense.

That was why the President at the next cabinet meeting suddenly reversed himself, told the surprised cabinet and the surprised McGrath that with the beginning of the new year he wanted them to know that despite the press attack on his attorney general, he was keeping them all on.

Churchill's Wit

Prime Minister Churchill was getting a progress report on the Anglo-American military discussions from his friend and military observer, Field Marshal Sir William Slim.

Referring to the dispute as to whether NATO should adopt Britain's new automatic rifle or the new American Garand rifle, Field Marshal Slim reported:

"So far we haven't made much progress. Both guns are good and it's difficult to decide which one to adopt."

Churchill listened patiently, nodding his head in agreement.

"It's my guess," Field Marshal Slim continued, "that we'll finally adopt a rifle that contains the best features of both models. It'll be a bastard rifle—half American, half British."

Churchill's eyebrows shot up. With an air of solemn gravity he said: "My dear Marshal, aren't you being a trifle careless with your words? Have you forgotten that I, too, am half American, half British?"

Chicago's 'Cow Barn' Will Be Site of Political Conventions

By Walter A. Shead
WNU Washington Correspondent

To some from the rural areas, Chicago's "Cow Barn" will be a familiar sight, but to thousands of others, both delegates and visitors to the national political conventions next July, the 1952 setting for the presidential nominations may seem unrealistic.

For the site of the two national conventions has been switched from the traditional Chicago stadium to the International Amphitheatre at the Chicago Stock Yards, home of the famous International Live Stock Exposition and other big agricultural shows. This year's conventions add up to 21 national political conventions held in Chicago, 13 to them for the Republican party and eight for the Democrats.

Republicans will convene on Monday, July 7, with the Democrats following two weeks later on Monday, July 21. There will be 1199 Republican delegates, 105 more than were recognized at the 1948 convention in Philadelphia, while the official Democratic delegation will be 1,230, four less than the 1948 total.

International Amphitheatre, Chicago's great convention, exposition and sports building is the site for the Republican and Democratic national conventions in July, 1952. The arena of the huge structure is now air-conditioned for greater comfort of those who occupy its 12,000 seats.

Despite the fact that the stock yards amphitheatre seats 8,000 less than the stadium, there are several compensatory factors which led to selection of the new site. One particularly good reason is that the amphitheatre is air-conditioned and that in itself is compensation when the heat factor on a Chicago July day is taken into consideration. Other factors included the fact that adjacent to the convention hall itself are four large rooms for housing committees and other essential activities of the convention, also air conditioned, plus large adjacent rooms to serve as workrooms for the press and radio, the necessary equipment for telegraph, telephone and teletype machines, dark rooms for photographers and other work incidental to such a big show as a national political convention.

While television received its first big work-out at the Philadelphia convention four years ago, television this year will play a larger part and will have a coast to coast audience, whereas four years ago the audience was confined to the east coast. Another factor taken into consideration is that there is lighted space adjacent to the amphitheatre big enough to park 4,000 automobiles. A first class hotel, good restaurants also are immediately adjacent.

HAROLD BECKLEY and William Donaldson, superintendents of the senate and house press galleries, respectively, and other members of a press committee, with representatives of the Republican and Democratic national committees, already have worked out seating arrangements to handle approximately 1500 reporters for newspapers, periodicals, magazines, radio and television. These temporary stands must be built from scratch, using an entirely new arrangement than heretofore used either at Chicago or Philadelphia.

Members of a joint committee from the two national committees also have worked out their arrangements to handle the delegates, seating and temporary stands, the two committees to share the expense jointly. About the only difference will be that when the Republican convention adjourns, pictures of Republican leaders will be taken down and Democratic pictures will be hung in their places.

Even though the seating capacity does not measure up to the 20,000 which have been crammed into the old stadium, those in charge of the convention are delighted with the better facilities.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

DOROTHY SARNOFF is letting no grass grow under her pretty feet these days. Featured in the best musical in New York, "The King and I", she has been appearing on television more and more frequently. Now she has taken time off to rush to Hollywood and make a picture. This could be merely the preliminary to appearing on the screen in the role she does so beautifully in "The King and I" when that magnificent show reaches the screen; certainly no one could do it better than she does.

Margaret Truman's ability to relax amazed even RCA-Victor veterans during her recent recording session with the Boston Pops' Arthur Fiedler for a new song album.

MARGARET TRUMAN

They'd expected her to be stiffly proper. She removed her shoes between takes, sipped coffee from the thermos jug she'd brought from home, and sent out for hamburgers when a long break permitted.

Nobody was at all surprised when the George Stevens production for Paramount, "A Place in the Sun," was voted the best motion picture of 1951 by the National Board of Review. It's a leading contender for the Academy Award.

Last Six Years Cost US More Than 160 Previous

By Wright A. Patterson

FROM THE FOUNDING of this republic as a government, with George Washington as its first President, down through all the years—more than 160—to the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt, this government spent $158 billions.

That covered all the cost of all our wars since the Revolution. It included the cost of our second war with England, the Mexican war, the Civil war, the war with Spain, the first world war, and practically all of the Second World War, as well as all the lesser wars.

It included the cost of conquering the West, the building and rebuilding of the national Capitol. It included all the costs of our vast internal improvements, and the construction of the Panama canal, the purchase of the Panama railroad, the building and rebuilding of our navy, and the vast fleet of merchant ships built during World War I.

It included all the welfare expenditures of the Roosevelt administration. That $158 billion included every dollar paid out by the United States treasury over those years, down to the inauguration of Harry S. Truman, approximately six years ago. During those approximately six years of the Truman administration the treasury has paid out the staggering total of $160 billion.

A large portion of us, as tax payers, howled our heads off at what we considered the "wild" spending of President Roosevelt in efforts to restore prosperity, to undo what World War I had done to us, but we know now that as a spender he was but a "piker" compared to President Truman.

The record of the six years of Truman is so unbelievable that when radio commentator Fulton Lewis, Jr., saw the figures he would not believe them. He took them to the treasury department for verification. From its records, the treasury department verified the figures. It was all true. In approximately six years Harry S. Truman had spent more than all the presidents who had preceded him through a period of 160 years of our national history.

The President was not responsible for spending that vast sum of $160 billion. He did not ask for all of the appropriations made by congress. Members of Congress, imbued with the idea of spending, provided some considerable sums on their own account in addition to meeting the requests of the President. Among the items of expense for which the President is responsible is the cost to the nation, year after year, of that army of bureaucrats he has built.

The President still has in his hands, as appropriations by congress some $40 billion that has not been spent, but which presumably is to pay for our re-armament, for planes, tanks, artillery, and additional naval vessels, that have not yet been ordered.

After all the wild spending we have witnessed during the past six years, we are still not prepared to meet Russia, if, as the President has

NOT A GOOD RISK

By Maud McCurdy

JANET had said, "I'm not going to marry you, George!" He had bought a run-down mansion at the edge of town, which he'd had converted into apartments.

The place was surrounded by meadows. Janet and George were out on the grounds, looking over the patios, the tennis courts, and the lily pond. There was still space left over for playgrounds of most any size.

This was where the trouble started. Janet said, "Think what this will mean to children you've never had room to run and play."

George looked startled. "We can't take children, Janet," he said. She was astonished. "But this is such an ideal place for them."

George shook his head and Janet flushed angrily. "I don't believe you even like children. What else would you do with all this ground?" She hesitated a moment, then added, "I'm not marrying you, George. You wouldn't be a very good matrimonial risk."

George tried the best he could to defend himself, explaining that children were destructive. He argued, but Janet only looked at him in bewilderment.

"If you feel that way," she whispered, "you really are not a very good matrimonial risk." She left him standing there still trying to defend himself.

George tried to see her. He called her every day at the newspaper office, but she was out. It was plain Janet didn't want to see him again and there seemed to be nothing he could do about it. No matter what he tried, he could not get to see her.

Finally the apartments and grounds were complete. Peter Bolton, his partner, put a full page advertisement in the newspaper.

George looked startled. "We can't take children, Janet," he said.

WITHIN an hour after the paper came out people began coming, prosperous-looking young couples, every one with children. They were excited over the place, anxious to sign leases at once.

George was bewildered. He asked Peter what on earth had he put in the ad. "Only couples without children," Peter said firmly.

George began to feel a little desperate. There was one pretty young mother, with violet eyes, almost the color of Janet's, who said feelingly, "Mr. Hartley, the mothers of this town will call you blessed."

"But I..." George started to say a mistake had been made, but was stopped by another young couple shaking his hand and saying, "This is wonderful. It's like a dream."

George was perspiring. He found a moment, and took a look at the ad. There it was in bold type, "Only couples with children need apply."

Leaving Peter in charge, George drove to the newspaper office. Before he could get to the advertising department a reporter button-holed him. "Mr. Hartley, the whole town is talking about what you've done. You've really made news. This will make every newspaper in the state."

George pulled away from him, hurried to the advertising department. A voice said, "Yes?" and a pair of violet eyes looked up and met George's. A quick flush came to her face. "George, they only put me on this desk yesterday and I—I made the mistake. I'm sorry."

George stood there looking at her as if he never wanted to stop. "Look, Janet. I was looking at the matter in a cold-blooded, business way." He drew a long breath and went on, "You didn't make a mistake. I did. The place is just like you said, a natural for children. And they're there already, about a dozen of them with their parents."

"George, you mean that?" Janet asked. "You're not just saying it to get me to change my mind?"

"I never meant anything more," George answered.

"I'm glad," Janet said. "You know... I must have had my mind on the children. I didn't make the mistake in your ad on purpose. I really didn't, George, and don't you ever say I did."

George just smiled. The whole office force might be looking, but he didn't care. He bent his head and kissed her.

DESERT DESTINY
A SERIAL STORY OF THE MODERN-DAY WEST
WRITTEN BY JOSEPH CHADWICK

THE STORY SO FAR:

Tracy Hayden lives at Garrison Hacks, ends, loved by Senora Garrison, hated by Ruth and Juan, grandchildren, and Ramon, son. The Senora sends Tracy to find Phil Garrison, a grandson she has never seen. Tracy interrupts Jim Conroy ransacking Phil's room, and assuming him to be Phil, takes him west. Ramon's wife informs Tracy that Jim is masquerading, and Conroy admits his identity to Tracy. He disarms a Mexican and accuses the Garrisons of setting a trap for him. He tells Tracy that Phil shot the him and left him to the mercy of the Japs when they were fighting pilots in China. Tracy's new love for Jim wanes somewhat.

CHAPTER VIII

Jim fought down a stab of guilt. He said, "My heart tells me nothing about Tracy Senora. My one concern at this moment is to know the whole of this matter. I want to know what really made you ill. It was more than worry. It was fear!" He could see the shock in her eyes, and then a sudden remoteness. She withdrew from him, somehow. She merely whispered, "Your eyes are too sharp, Philip. Go now I want to rest."

He went, and took with him the uneasy knowledge that the Senora Maria's frail heart held a secret. Jim left the house, crossed the patio, and passed through the gateway in the vine-covered wall.

Jim Talks Business With Ranch Foreman

For a moment, Jim stood drinking in the harsh beauty of the country, then brought his gaze back to the adobe and rough-board ranch buildings. A Mexican was in the corral, trying to drop a rope over one of the horses. Jim walked to the railing. The horses, bunched up, were running at a gallop, and the cowboy was having trouble catching a mount.

Jim called, "If you have any luck, friend, saddle a pony for me."

A station wagon stood before the long, squat adobe bunkhouse. Jim looked up to see a man come from the bunkhouse to the car. He wore a black suit, a light gray sombrero, spurred boots—and had an air of authority. Jim knew instinctively that this was Clint Hanlon, the ranch manager, and he recalled that Senora Maria had suggested he have a talk with Hanlon.

As he walked toward the station wagon, Hanlon saw him and waited by the car. The manager's mouth was thin-lipped and stern, his eyes narrow. He had a hardness about him, Jim decided. But he could unbend enough to step forward and hold out his hand.

"You're Phil Garrison? I'm Clint Hanlon, the manager."

They shook hands firmly, and swiftly appraised each other.

Jim said, "I talked to the Senora this morning. She said I should talk to you about the ranch. I'm no cattleman, Hanlon, so I'll have to ask a lot of questions. Some time, when you're not busy, we'll talk."

Hanlon said, "Come inside. We may as well talk now."

They entered a small office in the bunkhouse. Hanlon opened a desk drawer and brought out several ledgers.

"Here are the accounts," he said. "You can go over them any time you wish."

"Later, perhaps," Jim replied. "I'm no man for bookkeeping. Just tell me why the ranch isn't making money as it did in the past."

"There was a drought," he said. "Two years of it. During the dry spell, the cattle died by the hundreds. We sold as many as possible, to avoid bigger loss, but every other rancher in the Southwest was selling at the same time. Prices were down. We came out on the short end."

"And now you're trying to build up the herds again?"

"Right. And that takes time and money—lots of both."

"But the ranch will again make money?"

"Possibly."

"Then, there's no good reason for the Senora to sell out?"

"There is, in my opinion," Hanlon said. "My reason for saying the Senora should sell is simple enough. There isn't a stockman in the family."

Finally, Hanlon said, "I heard about your meeting with Jose. He's a bad actor when he's drunk. They should have told you I would take care of him when I got back from Tucson."

"I'll leave him to you next time." Jim crushed out his cigarette. "Well, thanks for the information. We'll talk again."

Ruth reined in beside him. "Mind if I ride with you?" she asked.

"Maybe you'd better. This country is big. I might end up lost."

"No," Ruth shook her dark head. "You wouldn't get lost unless you wanted to. You've been around, I think."

He gave her a grin and they rode on, stirrup to stirrup.

After a moment, she said, "Do you still think we Garrisons tried to have you murdered last night?" Her tone was a trifle mocking.

"After a night's sleep, it does seem fantastic. The Garrisons are really charming people."

She laughed at that. "You talk as though you were not a Garrison." And then, giving him a look, "Did I say before that I wish you weren't a Garrison?"

"Something like that," Jim said. By then, they were riding into the Mexican village. He reined in, "I'd like to talk to my pal Jose. I think he lives in that house . . ."

Tracy rode far, taking a seldom-traveled trail that led to the hills.

There was a young woman standing in the doorway of the adobe house. Jim saw that she was watching him with a look of fear.

Ruth was off her horse and beside him almost at once. Her face was white.

"What is it?" she asked breathlessly. "What happened?"

They waited, crouching there behind the rocks, but no more shots came. Then they saw a rider coming down the slope on the far side of the Valley. Jim recognized Tracy Hayden by her golden hair.

Tracy had heard the gunshot and, jerking her pony to a halt, had swung round just in time to see Jim and his horse fall. She sat rigid until she saw Jim roll to shelter behind a stand of rock.

Then, her eyes searched the slope above him. It was studded with boulders and an occasional clump of brush. Whoever had fired that shot might be hidden somewhere on that slope. Even as this thought passed through her head, she caught a glimpse of a man stealthily making his way up the hill. He disappeared among the rocks, reappeared an instant, then was gone.

She put heels to her pony and rode down into the valley. There could no longer be any doubt that Jim's life was in danger—that some one on the ranch was desperately anxious to get rid of him.

As she drew near the rock formation behind which he and Ruth were crouching, they rose to face her.

Tracy drew her horse up short and swung down.

"A man was up on that slope," she said breathlessly. "Hiding among the rocks. I saw him from the opposite hill."

"Did you recognize him?" Jim demanded.

"No—the distance was too great."

Jim turned toward the slope. He began to climb, moving upward among the jutting rocks. Tracy and Ruth followed.

When they overtook him, he was staring down at some prints in the dust. The marks had been made by high-heeled cowboy boots. They told nothing, for nearly every man on the ranch wore such boots—the vaqueros, the range foremen, Clint Hanlon, and, at times, even Juan Garrison. Ramon was the only exception. Tracy could not recall ever having seen Ramon wear range clothes of any sort.

Jim muttered, "The fellow fired from here, all right."

He continued climbing, with the girls following.

To the west lay the flatlands. There was a herd of cattle a mile's distance away and beyond the herd, were three horsemen. Nearer almost below, a car was coming along a road from the direction of the ranch house. It was a station wagon, and Tracy knew its driver was Clint Hanlon.

Reining in, she suddenly stiffened. Below and across the valley, stood two saddled horses. The riders had dismounted and were beside a spring bubbling from a formation of rock. Jim Conroy and Ruth Garrison.

Tracy watched them, felt a tightening in her chest. Jim was supporting Ruth as the girl leaned over the spring to drink. Now Ruth raised up and turned—turned into Jim's arms and remained there. An instant later, Jim bent his head and kissed her.

Jim, finding Ruth in his arms, had kissed her on impulse, but her response was more than he had bargained for. She slid her arms about his neck and clung to him.

"That was no cousinly kiss," he said. "My dear, I was right about you—you are a flirt."

"Cousin Phil," Ruth sighed. "Why do you have to be that?"

He turned away and walked to the horses. Ruth followed him. He held her stirrup for her as she mounted, then gave her a frowning look.

"This has got to end here," he told her. "Next time, you ride with Pete Donohue. He's your game."

"But dull game," Ruth said. Her voice was bitter. "Here I am, a girl who likes exciting men—and the most exciting man I ever met has to be my cousin. Darn you, Phil Garrison—darn you!"

Hidden Marksman Kills Jim's Horse

He didn't want to become involved with Ruth. She was out of his month's visit was over. The her and he was broke. He thought, "I've got to watch my step here in more ways than one"—and wished his class. There was wealth behind Garrison ranch wasn't a safe place for him.

How unsafe the ranch was, he learned that very moment. He'd just mounted and swung his pony about to ride alongside Ruth, when the gunshot came. It was just a distant crack, no more. Then his pony reared up, made a shrill animal sound, and collapsed under him.

Jim flung himself free of the saddle, so as not to be pinned under the falling horse. As he landed on the ground, he rolled over and over, until he was sheltered behind a rock formation.

Ruth was off her horse and beside him almost at once. Her face was white.

"What is it?" she asked breathlessly. "What happened?"

They waited, crouching there behind the rocks, but no more shots came. Then they saw a rider coming down the slope on the far side of the Valley. Jim recognized Tracy Hayden by her golden hair.

Involuntarily, she said, "He's coming this way, not driving away."

Two Rich Men

Lesson for February 10, 1952

EVERYBODY knows that Jesus took an interest in the poor. But there is another side of the picture: Jesus took just as keen an interest in the rich.

Some of his most famous and penetrating sayings were spoken in conversations with wealthy men. The truth is, Jesus was interested in people, as people.

Whether they were rich or poor was for him, a side issue. And still he knew that a man with money has both temptations to evil and opportunities for good that the poor man never has.

Two Rich Men
JESUS met two men of means who were quite different from each other.

One, who remains nameless, had much to recommend him. He was rich, but perhaps that was the last thing people thought about when they saw him. He was young and vigorous; when he came to Jesus for an interview he did not walk, he ran. He was a man of executive ability, for the story calls him a "ruler." He was good, at least he claimed to have kept all the Ten Commandments, and Jesus did not contradict him.

Furthermore, he was eager in the right direction. His principal ambition was not to have more money, but to have eternal life. On top of all this, Jesus loved him. You would certainly think that a man like that couldn't miss. But he did.

On the other hand was the man Zacchaeus. Being a publican, and rich, it is perfectly obvious that he couldn't have been either honest or generous, for it was only the greedy and the dishonest in those days who could amass fortunes by collecting taxes. He was no doubt middle-aged, for it took time to rise to the top in the publican game. As for eagerness for spiritual things, he seems not to have felt a bit of it.

We may guess that Jesus was not the only one who loved the rich young ruler; but if Jesus loved Zacchaeus, and he must have, he was perhaps the only person then in Jericho who did. No community loves a man who bleeds it white. Yet, strange as it seems, it is this rich man, this bad rich man, who comes out in the end with a higher rating than the "good" rich man.

Money the Master
THE last thing we see of the good rich man is his turning his back on Goodness. He had a chance to follow Christ—the same chance that Peter and Matthew had, the same command. Follow Me!

What great service Christ had in mind for him we shall never know. All we know is that he made the great refusal. Perhaps he thought better of it and came back later on; but it is not likely. The last we see of him is his back, as he "went away sorrowful."

Jesus never said of him what he said of Zacchaeus. Salvation never came to his house. He never inherited the eternal life he wanted. When it came right down to a choice: money, or eternal life, he chose money. He was willing to be a Christian, but not a sacrificing Christian. He only wanted to be an inheriting Christian. He thought of himself (no doubt) as master of his money; instead, money was his master. His money talked so loud he could not hear well what Jesus said. His money talked so fast that it made what Jesus demanded sound like nonsense.

Money the Servant
JESUS did not ask all his followers to get rid of every penny they possessed. Zacchaeus, for instance, did not renounce all he had. What he did was to give back all that did not belong to him, and give away a good deal that did. Jesus did not ask this man to do more.

A doctor does not always prescribe the same operation for every one. For some men, an appendix is a source of danger and must be removed at once, for others, an appendix may safely and most wisely be left where it is.

Jesus could see that the younger man was at the point where money was about to be his master; so indeed it was for the older man. But the first could not shake off the tyranny of his wealth, his own wealth; the other man could.

For the servant of Christ, money is not in itself a sin. It is a root of sin when its voice is louder than the voice of the Master. It is the means of sin when it stops the ears to a cry of need. No one can call himself a Christian when he refuses his money in the service of Christ.

Shell Collectors Dredge Mollusks On Ocean Floor

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Since prehistoric times adults and children have collected sea shells, picking up pretty and unusual specimens found along the shores.

Scientists have used shells to explain marine life, the nature of coasts and waters and the geologic past. Fossil shell remains have guided geologists almost since the study of geology began.

The collection of shells for their own sake, on a scientific basis, however, has steadily gained in popularity in the last few years. The science is called conchology, and some collectors have spent thousands of dollars in pursuit of shells.

Heavy expenditures followed the discovery that the best shells are not found along shores as often as on the ocean bottom or on reefs.

Almost all shell collectors start by picking up specimens on the beach. Then they wade out in shallow water, using water glasses to locate their quarry.

From this stage the really earnest conchologists move to boats. They find that the shells have greater beauty and brilliance if taken when the mollusks are still living inside.

For this reason a small number of collectors, many of them in Florida have equipped cabin cruisers and fishing boats with small power dredges to explore the ocean floor at depths from two to more than 100 fathoms.

Off both Florida coasts shellers dredge the bottom and bring up living mollusks of all sizes, which are sorted mechanically through progressively smaller screens down to the size of ordinary window screen mesh.

The Florida enthusiasts, particularly those working in the Gulf of Mexico, also use their boats to reach outlying reefs where, in very calm water and at low tide, they collect shells found nowhere else.

This work, like offshore wading, is done with the aid of water glasses and rock turners, long iron rods with points and hooks used to uncover mollusks hiding beneath underwater rocks.

Impatient Pin Setter Fined for Hasty Strike

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — An impatient bowling pin setter was fined for scoring a strike on his boss.

William Hardesty, 24, according to testimony, rapped on the floor with a pin because bowlers were going too slow to suit him. He got paid by the game, not the hour. The bowlers complained to ally manager Peter Edelman and when he remonstrated with Hardesty, was struck in the mouth. Edelman has lately hired a less temperamental pin setter.

Wolf Menace Increasing Rapidly in Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — The wolf menace is increasing rapidly in Yugoslavia. Last year (1951) the livestock losses attributed to wolves were much higher than the 37,000 reported for 1950. The animals have become so bold, it is reported, that they freely roam the plains around Belgrade.

Observers say that the continued increase in the number of wolves may be accredited to the war. During the war there was no time nor ammunition for hunting wolves. At the end of the war, the people had to turn in their guns, leaving only scattered members of hunting associations to hunt the animals.

In Slovenia, a province that once had no wolves, or so few they were rarities, there is now a reported 150. A hunting federation pays $150 for each full grown wolf that is killed.

Nosy Nosepuncher is Hard Man to Give Information

NEW YORK — How nosy can a nose-puncher get?

Edward Wilkins, 18, of Hoboken, N.J., was arraigned and charged with breaking the nose of a Pennsylvania Station baggageman in two places.

Detectives who arrested him at the scene asked Wilkins why he had beaten Murray Dworsken, 35, the station baggageman.

"I asked him how to get to the Hudson tubes and he directed me wrong," they quoted Wilkins as saying.

"But how do you know he directed you wrong," they asked, and Wilkins replied:

"I knew how to get there. I just wanted to see what he'd say."

All-Round Champ

Ben Hardesty, 22 year old tackle salesman from Detroit, has just about run out of laurels to capture after his recent fourth successive sweep of professional casting honors at the National Association of Angling and Casting Clubs Tournament held this year in Washington, D.C. In addition to successfully defending his "U.S. Professional All Accuracy" title, Hardesty took back to the motor city the "Fishermen's All 'Round" trophy, too. This was won in a series of casting events designed to simulate casting under fishing conditions, with standard fishing tackle.

Ben is the newly appointed Shakespeare tackle salesman in Detroit and Southeastern Michigan. He has demonstrated his proficiency in the use of the tackle he sells by racking up the unusual score of 385 out of a possible 400 points against the top casting "pros" of the country. The accuracy contest at the NAACC tournament, the country's largest, is divided into four events: bait casting with 3/8 and 1/2 ounce plugs, and fly casting with wet and dry flies. There are a possible 10 points that can be scored on each of ten targets in each event. By taking top honors in the accuracy events and the fishermen's casting, Hardesty earned the five star title, "U.S. Professional All Accuracy and Fishermen's All 'Round" Champion.

Shells Better Now

Dampness and scuffing have far less adverse effect on shotgun shells today than they did only a few years ago. Western-Winchester has the answer when it explains that today's shell tubes are made of high wet-strength paper.

This plastic-treated material has been used by the famous sporting arms and ammunition firm since a series of tests showed it to be tougher and more water-resistant than the old-style paper.

One of the tests developed by Western-Winchester involved the use of a mechanical device which reproduced the rough treatment received by shells carried loosely in the damp pocket of an active sportsman.

Soaked In Water

Shotgun shells made with tubes of the new paper were soaked for half an hour in warm water and then given a severe drubbing for 15 minutes in the "hunter's pocket." Ballisticians found these new shells suffered no ill-effects from the mistreatment.

A similar test given old-type resulted in fraying to the tubes so extensive that chambering of the shells in a shotgun was difficult or impossible.

High wet-strength paper first was used as a packaging material and for maps during the war. It was chosen after the paper suffered "no apparent damage" when it was soaked in water, daubed with mud, paint and gasoline, tramped over by an entire regiment and then rolled over by a tank.

Wildlife Week

National Wildlife Week in 1952 will be dedicated to preservation of a species of wildlife about to pass from the American scene—the diminutive Key deer of Florida. Plans for the annual observance, March 16-22, were announced in Washington January 1 by the National Wildlife Federation. Chairman for the Week will be Ed Dodd, creator of the popular newspaper aid radio outdoors feature, "Mark Trail."

National Wildlife Week has been an annual observance since 1938. The 1952 celebration will mark the beginning of a new series in which each year a particular kind of wildlife—some species in critical or precarious condition—will be given special attention. The 1952 goal will be to save the Key deer from extinction. As part of the observance, the Federation has created a special fund, known as the Key deer fund.

River Largemouth

Most largemouth rivers are sluggish, southern streams, and fishing them is not a great deal different from fishing a lake. Occasionally largemouths occur in a stream made up of alternate pools and riffles, and there they usually inhabit the pools.

In such a river, the spot where the current runs out into a big pool often is good. At other times they are found in the deepest, quietest parts, or after minnows in the shallows.

One ride and You'll say:

"That's the Smartest Million Dollars BUICK Ever Spent"

WHEN we tell you that every 1952 Buick rides like a million dollars, we're not just slinging slang—we're talking real money—right-on-the-barrelhead cash.

A million dollars and more were poured into research and testing—design and tools—engineering, production and components—to team up the combination of ride features you'll find on a Buick—and on no other car in the world.

A million dollars and more was the price paid to work out control of end-sway and side-roll on curves—to double-check vertical "throw" with shock absorbers and big soft-acting coil springs for all four wheels—to V-brace the torque-tube keel and X-brace the frame—to cushion body and engine—and to silk out the whole operation with Dynaflo Drive.*

You may not care how the job was done, or what it cost. But we'll lay you this: You're going to say "thanks a million" to Buick engineers once you get this spirited smoothie under your hands and haunches.

Old familiar roads take on a new smoothness. Gone are the weave and wander, the jitter and jounce that you've felt in lesser cars. You ride with road-hugging assurance and level ease.

All of which only begins to tell you what really great cars these 1952 Buicks turned out to be.

Never before have style and stamina—comfort and character—power, performance and price been brought together with such satisfying skill.

The obvious thing for you to do is come in and look them over. How about taking half an hour off to do that—today?

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Buicks.
