Fire Destroys Hansen Home

50,000 Gals. of Water Applied to Flames

Last Saturday evening fire destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hansen on Lake street. Both building and contents were a total loss.

The fire was discovered about 7:00 o'clock by Mr. Hansen. Apparently starting in the basement, the flames had spread into the sidewalls of the building when the fire department arrived. The interior soon became an inferno of smoke and flames. Although there was a light wind, the metal roofing and the more than 50,000 gallons of water applied on the flames by the fire department, confined the fire to the interior of the building. A break through the sidewalls or roof and the fire would have threatened the adjacent Tawas City Recreation and other nearby buildings and homes.

The Hansen residence was built in 1913 by Bramwell Bowen. It originally was the home of Len J. Patterson, former Tawas Herald owner, and for a number of years postmaster here.

Mr. and Mrs. Hansen are now residing in the Bay-Vue Apartments. About two weeks ago they reopened and are now operating the Bay-Vue Grill.

Tool and Die Shop Moved to Case Building

Bopp-Busch Mfg. Co. Plan to Start Work Next Week

A tool and die shop for the Bopp Busch Manufacturing Company of AuGres is being established in the Case building here this week. Orville Cray of Flint is superintendent of the shop.

The Bopp-Busch Manufacturing Company manufactures automotive parts, telephone parts for Western Electric and cabinet hardware. The company also has a defense contract for stamping the hardware for overseas shipping cases.

"The plant at AuGres used 5,000,000 pounds of steel last year in manufacturing small parts," said C. C. Busch, vice president and general manager.

The Bopp-Busch Manufacturing Company has been at AuGres for the past four years. The officers of the company are: A. J. Bopp, president and treasurer; C. C. Busch, vice president and general manager and E. D. Sullivan, secretary.

Mr. Bopp has been in the steel industry for 35 or 40 years. He was the founder of the Bopp Steel Corporation of Dearborn.

Mr. Busch, a former Detroit, now resides at Forest Glen. He served as a Colonel in the Air Force during World War II. He came to Michigan from Kanosha, Wisconsin.

Mr. Sullivan is a Detroit attorney.

The making of tools is a precision job, and the shop was brought to Tawas City to segregate it from the noise and vibration of the stamping plant," said Mr. Busch. When fully in operation the local plant will employ five experienced tool and die makers.

Superintendent Cray is from Flint. He has had 35 years experience in engineering and making tools and dies. He and his family will make their home in the Elwood Bronson residence on US-23.

"Our trip to Silver Valley was a success in every way. One hundred and forty-seven of us had the time of our lives, and your people's courtesy and neighborliness did a lot to make the affair a memorable one. If the Tawas area had no other inducement than its hospitality, we would still enjoy coming up to spend a week-end.

"Please extend our appreciation and best wishes to all concerned via this letter and let them know how much we regard their friendship."

"We had a splendid trip," said Bert H. Leidecker, organizer of the Lutheran Young People's caravan. "The program of ceremonies was excellently planned and carried out with the cooperation of your members. The day was one I always will remember, and I always look forward to the next year."

Home of Farmers and Merchants Bank

Home of the new Farmers and Merchants Bank is in a building recently constructed by Ira Scofield, insurance and real estate agent, at Hale.

State Bank Opened Yesterday at Hale

Yesterday (Thursday) marked the opening of the Farmers and Merchants Bank at Hale. During the day many Isoco county people visited the bank and congratulated the personnel of the new organization.

Banking quarters are located in a building constructed by Ira Scofield. Interior trim is of mahogany wainscoting, with plaster walls and acoustical tile ceilings. Asphalt tile covers the floors.

Dr. E. N. Douglass is president of the new institution. Dale M. Bradley, former cashier and director of the Olivet State Bank, is vice president and cashier. John A. Mortenson is also vice president. All are members of the board of directors, which also includes Carl F. Adams, E. S. Herzog, Fred Holzheuer, D. D. Pearsall and E. H. Taubert, all of Hale. Miss Maxine McKenzie will be teller.

The bank is capitalized at $50,000.00 and has a $15,000.00 surplus. The sale of stock was oversubscribed by local people.

In addition to the handsomely equipped lobby for customers there is a large modern vault, a private office and directors room.

At one time the home of two banks, during the past 26 years the people of the area have been without a local bank. The increased activity and growth of this area emphasized the need of local banking facilities which has been met by the new organization. Hale's first bank was established in 1905 by Mr. and Mrs. Stacy B. Yawger and was known as the Hale Exchange Bank. It was later purchased by Bell, Niggeman & Co. In 1910, Ealy, McKay & Co. established a bank there and the town had two banks for a time.

Elks Win in Home-Coming Game Friday

Miss Arlene Rakestraw Crowned Queen of Home-Coming Event

The Tawas City Elks won both ends of the Homecoming Game last Friday evening at the local auditorium, with the Varsity squeezing a win over Harrisville, 45 to 37 and the JV winning in the preliminary 33 to 25.

A large crowd of alumni were on hand to witness the special program at various times during the game. During the first quarter time out George Strauer, master of ceremonies, welcomed the alumni. At the half skits were presented representing changes during Henry Fahselt's time as school custodian. Mr. Fahselt crowned Miss Arlene Rakestraw as Homecoming Queen. During the third quarter time out George Strauer presented gifts to the queen and her court and to Mr. Fahselt. Dancing was held after the game.

During the ceremonies the Elks were having their hands full with a fighting Harrisville squad. The first half proved to be a defensive game, for both squads, with the locals having seven points and Harrisville 4 in the first quarter. Harrisville outgunned the Elks in the second stanza scoring 10 points to the locals 6, and the halftime score read 14 to 13 in favor of visitors.

During halftime coach Defibaugh must have given his charges an injection of something powerful, and they whipped in 21 points to sew up the game. Harrisville out scored Tawas City in the final quarter, 12 to 11, but fell short of Tawas' big third quarter.

Art Anshuetz led the locals in scoring with 19 markers, by hooping eight field goals and flipped in three points via the free throw line. Holmes topped Harrisville's scoring threat with eleven points.

Binder led the Tawas City JV squad to a 33-25 win over their Alcona county opponents with nine points. The local cagers had little trouble in finding the top rung as they out scored Harrisville in every quarter but the third. Others who crashed in on the scoreboard; Hanna 7; Clements 1; Mulving were Davison 2; Wendt 6; Lanigan led Harrisville with 12.

Proposed School Sites Studied At Tawas Area Meetings

Requests were recently sent by a joint committee of the East Tawas-Tawas City Boards of Education to the other eleven Boards of Education of the districts in the Tawas Area to send representatives to a joint meeting. The purpose of the meeting was to consider recommendations for a high school site for the reorganized district after the new district is formed. One meeting was held Wednesday evening, January 27, in the school building at Tawas City, and a second one was held at the same place one week later. Randall Fox of the Tawas City Board of Education acted as Chairman of the assemblies.

Some of the possible sites mentioned during the two meetings were the former Prescott farm near Tawas City, the former Beale Nursery between the two towns, the Newman property adjacent to the present school site at Tawas City and the Tom Hill farm of 36 acres near the English mill. After considering the matter for the two evenings, it was moved by Mrs.

Bernice Herriman of the Watts District and seconded by Mrs. Sophia MacDonald of the Laidlawville District that the meeting go on record as recommending the Tom Hill Property. The motion was carried and another motion that the chair appoint a committee to secure an option on the property for the necessary length of time was made by Arnold Bronson of Tawas City and seconded by Mrs. Polly Rescoe of the Lower Townline District. This motion was also carried. The Chairman then appointed Carl Look of the Upper Townline District, Glen McLeod of the Anshuetz District and William Herriman of the Watts District as members of this committee.

It should be noted however, that this action taken by the group is one of recommendation only. It has no legal status. The Board of Education of the reorganized district, with the advice and consent of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, is the legal body to select a site for a reorganized district of this nature.

America's Strength

"YOU CAN'T watch fields growing without feeling awe for the Infinite Power which makes them grow. And you can't grow up learning to combine pride of personal ownership and neighborly concern for others without understanding the real meaning of democracy."

This excerpt from a speech of Under-Secretary of Agriculture Clarence J. McCormick recently at Milwaukee, unwaveringly points the finger away from the confusion endangered by political hucksters and directly and unwaveringly at the great strength that is inate in the nation's backbone—the great well-springs of religion and tolerance, of self-reliance and responsibility, and of neighborliness and brotherhood at the grass roots of rural America—on the farms and in the home towns of the nation.

For where there is reverence for the Infinite Power and neighborly concern for others, there can be no communism. Where there is pride of personal ownership, there can be no socialism. Where there is self-reliance and responsibility, there can be no fear or loss of confidence in government and in American institutions.

Where there is religion and tolerance, the eyes of grass roots America are crystal clear in peering through the grime and slime of character assassination, of the pillaging of people's reputations, of the violation of basic human rights in our democracy. There is tolerance of human weaknesses and frailties, but no condonement of graft or corruption either of private or public trusts.

The great masses of the grass roots population will not be confused by what Senator Lehman of New York brands as "creeping myopia"—the growing fear and suspicion and distrust in many sections—born of the smears and violations of the Bill of Rights which we see and hear daily here in Washington, both in and out of government circles. This is an election year. Controversy will be bitter. The issues may not be so much political as personal. There will be attempts at "backstreet campaigns" such as a senate committee designated the last election in Maryland. Political montebanks will throw mud and dirt and unproven charges. But as you observe Brotherhood Week in many thousands of forums February 17 to 24, the great ideals proclaimed should serve as lighthouses to mark the course rural America should serve as a bulwark and guide to the selection of leaders who will bring the nation safely through these critical times.

Survivors Insurance

For the first time in a major disaster in the United States, every one of the 119 coal miners who lost their lives in the tragic explosion at West Frankfort, Ill., recently, was insured under the federal old-age and survivors insurance program.

The families of these men will receive approximately $1,464,000 from that federal program in compensation.

Child Labor

Because investigators for the Department of Labor have found an unusual number of children under 16 working on farms, the department has issued a pamphlet, entitled "What Farmers Should Know About Child Labor Provisions." Copies may be obtained from the Wage-Hour Division of Labor Department, Washington, D.C.

The department found more than 3,000 children employed illegally on farms. The anti-child labor law provides that it is illegal for farmers whose crops or products go either directly or indirectly into interstate or foreign commerce to employ children under 16 during school hours. The farmer is responsible for finding out the correct age of the children. The law does not apply to the farmers' own children.

Grain Storage

Despite what you may have heard or read, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan declares unequivocally, that neither the department, any employee thereof, nor any cooperative is involved in any charges against the agricultural grain storage plan. Brannan charges that the attack against the grain storage probably comes from the same sources which crippled the program in 1948.

Civil Service

At this time when the "bureaucrats" are under fire from so many different quarters it is fitting that this year is observed as the 69th birthday of competitive civil service in the government. Since 1883, when first established, 93 per cent of all federal workers have been placed under civil service, holding their jobs by virtue of having won them in open competition with their fellow citizens and retaining them under the merit system.

In reply to Red claims, the United Nations has asked for a re-investigation of the incident, as the Reds have issued many false claims.

Hoover Revives the 'Great Debate'; Association Reports on Farm Labor

GREAT DEBATE— Ex-President Herbert Hoover, in a major radio and television address, revived the "great debate" and possibly an important issue in the 1952 presidential campaign.

The 77-year-old former chief executive expressed alarm at the "dangerous overstraining of our economy by our gigantic expenditures" and urged reduction in our armies as a way to cut down on spending. Instead of armies, he would have the country concentrate on highly mobile air and sea forces for defense.

In explaining his viewpoint, he said: "The first purpose of this republic must be the defense of this final Gibraltar of freedom—that is, the Western hemisphere." Western Europe, he added, must be told that it must provide its own ground armies and that the United States will provide air and sea shields and munitions, all that the country can afford.

For the home towners, who have been gravely concerned about the possibilities of war, the former president had a reassuring comment. There is a lack of alarm in Europe because of a number of reasons. These included the fact the Russians could have conquered Europe before this if they wanted; that the Russians do not want to absorb any more nations now; that the Russians would be hard hurt in an atomic war, and that Stalin's first interests are in Asia at the moment.

Hoover's last major speech was December 20, 1950. In it he criticized the administration's foreign policy and the handling of the Far East conflict. In his latest address he again attacked the Korean situation by saying "we denied ourselves victory" by not bombing Red China and using Chiang Kai-shek's armies.

The "great debate" has been revived and it will become a growing issue as this presidential year progresses. And congress, now considering one of the greatest peacetime budgets in the nation's history, will watch closely for reaction to the former president's speech in the home towns of the nation.

EGYPT—King Farouk of Egypt, who is one of the most unpredictable rulers in the world, dismissed the nationalist government that had brought his country and Britain to the verge of war. The action came after Cairo was made the scene of rioting, looting, and destruction of property by anti-British mobs.

The new Premier, Maher Pasha, held the same position early in World War II and is believed to be a little less anti-British than the ousted Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha. But it was evident that Britain still faced a serious situation in Egypt and the Suez canal zone. The new Premier announced he would continue to press for the evacuation of British troops from Egypt and the unification of Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan under Egyptian rule.

Meanwhile, Cairo was put under strict military rule and martial law declared for all of Egypt. At least 35 buildings were destroyed by fire during the rioting and 100 persons killed. Martial law will remain in effect for at least two months, the government announced.

FARM WASTE—The National Planning Association, a nonprofit, non-political organization of leaders in industry, agriculture, labor and the professions, reports the productive effort of 2,000,000 farm families in the nation is being wasted.

The association said these families are not producing for a number of reasons, including insufficient land, lack of capital, unsuitable methods, low educational standards, isolation from markets, and "static" community standards.

As for underemployment, the association reported it most pronounced in the cotton South—excluding highly mechanized area, the southern Appalachian and Ozark mountains, the cut-over lands of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, the mountainous areas of northern New Mexico and Arizona, and the southern counties of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio.

CRISIS AHEAD— In a report on the government's year-old effort to hold prices and wages in line, government officials report moderate success, but warn of a crisis ahead. Charles E. Wilson, mobilization director, was the official who warned that there is a crisis ahead in the battle against inflation.

Michael V. DiSalle, director of the office of price stabilization, said: "It is gratifying to realize that after a full year the cost of living has been held to a very moderate increase."

And Nathan P. Feinsinger, chairman of the wage stabilization board, said: "I believe it can fairly be said that the control of the movement of wage rates since the establishment of our program is as good if not better than hoped for by experienced and objective observers."

The latest consumer's price index by the Bureau of Labor was 189.1—or 89.1 per cent higher than the average for the 1935-1939 years. That is an increase of 2.9 per cent since February, 1951, when the wage-price freeze was first reflected.

UMT FIGHT—One of the great fights shaping up in the present congress is universal military training. Congress has approved UMT in principle, but has not authorized machinery to get it into operation.

One round of that fight took place at a house armed services committee hearing. Chairman Carl Vinson, striking back at critics of the program, denied charges that the program is un-American, anti-Christian, immoral and would lead us to financial chaos.

Said Vinson: "If it is un-American and anti-Christian to defend the greatest Christian nation in the world through a fair, effective and less costly system of military training, then I plead guilty."

He said congress must approve UMT or defeat it and explain to the taxpayers that they must maintain an armed force of millions of men for the next 20 years through operation of the draft.

Many observers believe that Congress may enact a temporary measure this session, delaying action on a permanent measure until the 83rd congress meets.

ASIA— There seemed to be a general feeling in Washington and Korea that truce talks between the Communists and United Nations' delegates is on the verge of collapse. It was because of this feeling military leaders have been meeting to consider what steps should be taken in such an event.

Meanwhile, the United States, Britain and France served plain notice they would call for United Nations action to meet any new Communist attack in southeast Asia.

Russia recently charged that the West has been building up strength along the Burmese and Indochinese frontiers for an attack on Communist China. This, the three powers say, is to cover up for a possible Communist military move in that part of the world.

If nothing else, these charges and countercharges are an indication that trouble is building up in other parts of Asia.

U. S. NEWSPAPERS

Use 60 Per Cent of World's Newsprint

According to the United Nations' 1951 yearbook, the United States used 60 per cent of the world's newsprint in 1950, but was only seventh in circulation.

The highest daily circulation in 1950, in proportion to the population, was recorded in the United Kingdom with 599 copies for each 1,000 inhabitants. Australia had 455 copies a thousand; Luxembourg, 441; Denmark, 414; United States 357, and Switzerland 354.

Those countries which have suffered serious curtailment in newsprint supplies, especially England, have maintained circulations by a drastic reduction in size. In Burma, India and Iraq there was only a circulation of six copies of daily newspapers per thousand population, the book reported.

LIFE SAVING

Improved Artificial Respiration Method Is Adopted by Red Cross

An improved method of artificial respiration, known as the back-pressure arm-lift has been adopted by the American National Red Cross, the armed services, several industrial firms, and other agencies and organizations.

Used in Norway, Denmark, and other European countries for many years, the method permits greater exchanges of air and can be administered without undue fatigue to the operator.

Research leading to the change in method predates World War II, when investigators first doubled the superiority of the prone pressure method. Since that time the Red Cross has conducted extensive studies in the fields of respiration and asphyxia. The armed forces became intensely interested in artificial respiration in connection with the possibility of poison gas or nerve gas warfare. About two years ago the

To start the cycle the operator places his hands on the victim's back so that the thumbs just touch and the heels of the hands are just below a line running between the armpits as illustrated above.

Army Chemical Corps assigned four research teams to study comparative values of various methods.

The results of the research showed that the prone pressure method was less effective in the amount of air exchanged. It compresses the chest but does not actively expand it. However, in the two-phase method—such as the back-pressure arm-lift, the hip-lift, and the Silvester—the chest is actively expanded and compressed by the rescuer.

Research also showed that the hip-lift back-pressure method and the hip-roll back-pressure method are difficult to perform and cannot be done at all by frail rescuers on heavy victims. The Silvester method, for which the victim is placed on his back, was considered unsatisfactory for use by the general public since it is difficult to keep the air passages open.

The back-pressure arm-lift method was recommended because it does not tire the rescuer unduly, can be performed by a small person on a heavy victim, and is relatively easy to teach.

The Red Cross will include the new method in first aid and life saving courses as soon as possible. Three million supplements on the new system are being printed for inclusion in its first aid and water safety textbooks. The supplement will be available through Red Cross chapters at no charge.

The Red Cross pointed out that because of the widespread teaching program the changeover cannot be accomplished immediately. Millions of persons already trained in the prone pressure method, which has saved many lives, should continue to use it until they have received training in the new method.

THE VICTIM is placed face down in a prone position with arms overhead and bent at the elbows, one hand upon the other, and the head turned to one side so that the cheek rests on the hands. The rescuer, on one or both knees at the victim's head, places his hands on the victim's back, with thumbs just touching and the heels of the hands just below a line running between the victim's armpits. The rescuer rocks forward slowly, elbows straight, until his arms are almost vertical—exerting steady pressure upon the back. Next, the rescuer rocks backward slowly and slides his hands to the victim's arms, just above the elbows, which are raised until resistance is felt at the victim's shoulders—then, the arms are dropped. This completes a full cycle, which is repeated 12 times a minute.

GRASSROOTS

Present Administration Certainly Has the Brass

By Wright A. Patterson

AT THE CLOSE of World War II we had in the uniform of our armed forces close to 12 million men, of which a little more than 300 were generals or admirals, in other words "top brass."

Now with armed forces totaling only about one and a half million men we have over 3,000 generals or admirals. In the matter of "top brass" we are attempting to emulate the Mexican army, or the number of colonels on the staff of the governor of Kentucky.

An investigating committee of the senate is attempting to find the "why" of such an increase of high ranking officers, and what they are doing. That committee has demanded of the defense department a statement showing their jobs.

There are more than 3,000 generals and admirals, and it is the belief of members of that committee that they are but muddying the waters of the preparedness effort and adding materially to the cost of that preparedness.

This large number of "top brass" has not only filled the mammoth Pentagon building, but has forced the government to rent outside offices to accommodate the generals and admirals, and the members of their staffs, and the several thousands of civilian secretaries and clerks, the bureaucratic army over which they preside and command.

The general public, and especially the Republican party, may not be able to evaluate the good these generals and admirals do for the nation, or what they do to keep themselves busy, but they do know the why of the army of secretaries and clerks, the civilian bureaucrats. The close-to-200,000 of these have important jobs. At the coming election they will vote for those who provide them with jobs—jobs that pay them better salaries than they could earn elsewhere, and also keep them from the necessity of donning uniforms as privates in the armed forces.

Not only will these bureaucrats vote, but so will their relatives and friends, who are concerned with holding the jobs for the bureaucrats, a total of close to one million votes against the Republican candidates. The more generals and admirals, the more clerks they will employ and the more votes they and friends and relatives will cast.

The votes represented by the army of bureaucrats employed by the defense department in the Pentagon are but a part of the hurdle GOP candidates must be able to jump if they are to win.

No group in the nation is so close to political conditions and sentiment in the grass root areas as the editors of the rural newspapers. Their guess as to the political sentiment of the people of their communities are nearer correct than that of even the local politicians. The Publishers Auxiliary, a paper published for that group, some time ago took a poll of those rural editors. The Auxiliary asked each one of them to name his choice for a Republican candidate, and his guess

THE FICTION CORNER

THE RED MUFFLER

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

CONSTABLE Simon McCall, noticed that the fringe of Bruce Wyatt's long woolen muffler was stained a deep red. Wyatt saw the officer's look of inquiry and glanced from the muffler, which still hung around his neck, to the dead form of Jim Cary.

"I must have got the blood on the muffler when I went over Jim on the bed there," he said.

Constable Simon nodded and glanced at the doctor, who was conducting an examination of the corpse.

"What time did you get back here?" Simon asked Bruce.

"About 15 minutes before I called you. I saw Jim on the bed. I knew he was dead, but I thought the doc ought to be called."

Simon listened only half attentively. He was trying to think of some one who would have a reason for killing Jim Cary. Cary and Bruce Wyatt were partners.

"Been dead about five hours," Doc Leland said, finishing his examination.

"Five, eh?" Simon mused. "That would make it about 10 o'clock last evening. The dance was at its height then. No telling who left and who didn't."

He turned suddenly to Bruce.

"Where'd you go after the dance, Bruce?"

"Over to Jake Dearborn's. Him and me and some others played poker till about 2:30."

Simon smiled faintly. "Well, if Jake and the others back that up I guess we'd better look elsewhere for a suspect."

"Where yuh goin' to start? Who'd want to kill old Jim?" Wyatt asked.

"Old Jim? He's not so old. About 30, I guess," Simon said. "Thirty,

"Been dead about five hours," Doc Leland said, finishing his examination.

and just now falling in love. I expect you knew about Jim's interest in Freda Burnett, Bruce?"

WYATT looked up quickly. "Why, no," he said. "No, I didn't know."

"You didn't?" Simon's voice was almost eager. "Well, well. That gives me the motive, then."

Wyatt stared blankly. "Eh?"

"I said, that little remark of yours provides a motive for the killing, Bruce. It makes you out a liar, too."

Bruce Wyatt thrust out his jaw in an angry gesture. "What the devil are you talking about, McCall?"

"About why you killed Jim."

"Me? Killed him? You're crazy!"

"Oh, no, I'm not. You killed him because you were crazy about Freda yourself and you couldn't stand to see Jim getting in there ahead of you. You did it last night about 10 o'clock when every one was at the dance."

"You must be sick yourself, Simon. You don't know what you're saying. You can't prove that. You said yourself no one would be able to tell who left the dance long enough to come over here, murder Jim and get back again."

"That," said Constable Simon easily, "is something I won't have to worry about. The fact is, I know you've lied to me twice, and I know you were with Jim a minute or two after he died. That's enough to make an arrest on, since you're so all-fired careful about thinking up alibis."

Wyatt opened his mouth and closed it again. He stood still, waiting, still puzzled.

And Simon explained: "The blood on your muffler, Bruce. You probably got it there when you bent over Jim all right, but that was shortly after 10 last evening. Blood, you know, dries and hardens within a few minutes. None would have got on your muffler five hours after the wound was made."

Doc Leland made a gasping sound, which was at once confirmation of the statement.

Bruce Wyatt's glance darted to the face of the doctor, and without looking again at Simon he leaped toward the wall.

But Constable McCall was a good shot. The interior of the tiny cabin fairly rocked with the crash of his service gun, mingling with the cry of pain from Bruce Wyatt as the heavy slug tore through his hand even as his fingers coiled about the rifle barrel.

Pecking Order Sets Standing Among Animals

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Tortoises are snobs. In New York's Bronx Zoo, a herd of giant Galapagos tortoises sleeps, eats and travels in cliques according to some mysterious social ranking.

Barnyard hens strut or sulk in relation to their standing in a caste system, with each chicken kept firmly in place by the next higher in order. Certain fishes have social ladders extending to the last lowly member of a school, bullied by all the other members.

Among many different branches of the animal world, scientists have observed highly developed social systems. The phenomenon is often called the "pecking order." It determines which birds in a given flock, for example, can peck which others and get away with it.

Henpecked is Right
At Kansas State College a few years ago, a group of eight hens was brought together. Within five days the pecking ability of each had been recognized by the rest, and a hierarchy was established. The leader could scratch, roam or roost wherever she chose, pecking all the other members of the flock with impunity. Hen number two could shoulder aside all but the leader; and so on down the line to the last hen.

Social hierarchy may have been handed down among the now nearly-extinct Galapagos tortoises, the scientists at New York Zoological Park believe, from long centuries of one-way traffic on the turtles' rocky home islands in the Pacific, 600 miles west of Ecuador.

Tremendous numbers of the land turtles, migrating with the seasons, once wore deep trails between highlands and seashore in the Galapagos. Only wide enough for one tortoise at a time, the gullies forced the shellbacked travelers to move in single file, all at the leader's pace. Traffic control may eventually have imposed a sort of social order on the tortoise herds.

Fourteen different techniques of aggressiveness have been catalogued among the great armored crawlers. A pair will snap sluggishly at one another across the back of a third, their eyes blinking fiercely, their necks stretched to the utmost, but their heads still a foot apart. "Over-climbing" and the "bulldozer" techniques are other methods for establishing who has higher standing in tortoise society.

Cardinals, redpolls, waterfowl and many other birds follow pecking orders, Dr. Arthur A. Allen of Cornell University reports in his book "Stalking Birds with Color Camera," published recently by the National Geographic Society.

Cardinals will fight their own window reflections in guarding their prerogatives. A ruffed grouse rumbles like a miniature freight train; prairie chickens stamp and boom; mallards do fight in the air—every bird has some method of establishing superiority.

A goldfish put alone in a bowl will become so lonely and frustrated as to actually wind up a "mental case." But the vicious piranhas of South America are so scared of one another that they will try frantically to escape through the glass walls of a tank when two or more are put together.

Pain In the Neck Can Be Very Serious Affliction

CHICAGO—A pain in the neck—literally speaking—can be a very serious thing.

In children, acute neck pain is usually due to an infectious process in the nose or throat, the central nervous system or the lymph nodes. In adults, they said, neck pain is often due to dental or other oral infections, postural and structural changes in the neck, muscular affections and injuries. In the elderly, such pain may be due to cervical arthritis, blood vessel disease or malignant tumors.

Among the diseases which cause such pain are a sore throat, diphtheria, infections of lymph nodes and glands resulting from German measles and mumps, meningitis, meningism and poliomyelitis. Boils, carbuncles and cysts anywhere on the neck are common causes of neck pains, the doctors stated, as are a thyroid condition, goiter, certain skin inflammations of the neck, inflammations of the mouth and osteomyelitis. Acute neck pain often may be associated with, or as the presenting symptom of, a virus infection of the respiratory tract, according to the doctors. Tumors, arthritis, tuberculosis of the larynx, syphilis and bursitis are also causes.

Woman Draws Fine Because She Turned off Radio

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. — A Mount Vernon woman was recently fined in court for turning off the family radio. She did it with a pistol.

Mrs. Susie Norman told Justice of the Peace W. O. Page that her husband was playing the radio too loudly. When he refused her request to turn it down, she took the pistol and fired, cutting the radio cord. Her husband called city police, who arrested Mrs. Norman and charged her with disorderly conduct.

It looks like a "POWER YEAR"

New Horsepower—new Brake Power—and new Power Steering blossom on Buick's ROADMASTER for 1952

MAYBE you've heard—horsepower has hit a new high on the ROADMASTER.

Brake power has done the same.

But today, we'd like to concentrate on the third member of the power trio—Buick's own version of Power Steering, available on ROADMASTERS at a moderate extra cost.

What is this Power Steering like? It's something like a helping hand, something like a "hydraulic slave"—that relieves you of all steering strain, but lets you keep command.

What we mean is this:

Power Steering is handled by a special hydraulic unit—and engineers can design this unit to take over any amount of steering effort—even to a point where the wheel seems to float in your hand.

But in that case, you'd surrender all control to that hydraulic unit—get no steering "feel" from the wheel.

Now suppose you're telling two agile tons of automobile what to do in traffic. We think you'd like to have it know that you're in command.

And—out on the straightaway—we believe that a part of the joy you get from owning a Buick is the sensation of having something alive and eagerly willing beneath your hands.

So we're glad to announce that Buick engineers didn't spoil this thrill. They've kept the fun of driving, and simply eased the effort.

When you're rolling along smooth and straight, it takes almost no effort to keep any Buick on course. It almost steers itself, as every Buick owner knows.

But—when you want to get away from a curb —back into a parking spot—make a turn—Buick's Power Steering comes into action, saves four-fifths of the effort required with ordinary steering. Power Steering does the extra work.

And—in case you wonder what happens if Power Steering gets out of kilter, the answer is nothing. Your Buick steers just as it always has.

That's why we've been saying, "This is Power Steering as it ought to be."

Come in. Try it out. We think you'll agree.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

Sure is true for '52

DESERT DESTINY A SERIAL STORY OF THE MODERN-DAY WEST WRITTEN BY JOSEPH CHADWICK

THE STORY SO FAR: Tracy Hayden lives with Senora Maria Garrison, widow of a cattle baron.

CHAPTER IX

Jim shot her a look, "Clint Hanlon?"

"Yes, But it couldn't have been he."

To the east was the range of hills of which the one where they stood was a part.

They descended, crossed the gulch. They came to a tunnel-like break in the sheer rock wall.

Jim gestured for the girls to move back into the tunnel. They obeyed, but Tracy watched him move through the rocks and climb upon one that was table-shaped.

The sound of the horse came closer. Suddenly, Jim lifted himself up, then dropped from Tracy's sight.

Jim Suspects Hanlon Of Attempted Murder

Running forward, she and Ruth came upon Jim just beyond the table-rock. He had flung himself down on a rider, dragging the man from his mount.

The man was Pete Donohue. Jim said, "This gun has been fired. It's a forty-five, and it could kill a horse from quite a distance."

"I saw a rattlesnake, and took a shot at it. What's the idea, dragging me off my horse? You darned near broke my back!"

"I didn't want to give you a chance to mistake me for a rattlesnake," Jim said. "Are you sure that you didn't shoot at me a little while back?"

"Shoot at you?" Pete bristled. "Why should I shoot at you? I've got nothing against you."

"All right, friend—all right." Jim handed Pete the gun, but Tracy saw that he wasn't convinced that the man was innocent.

He turned to the girls. "We may as well go back to the horses. There is nothing to be learned here."

As they started back toward the tunnel, Pete shouted at them. "Look here—I don't like this being accused of attempted murder!"

Jim turned and faced him again. "If I've made a mistake, Donohue, I'm sorry."

"You play too rough," Pete said angrily. "You better make sure of your man the next time you jump on somebody." He started after his horse, then swung back.

"If you're interested in blaming anybody besides me, you might look through these hills for that Mexican, Jose. I saw him an hour or more ago. A couple of miles from here."

Clint Hanlon overtook them in the station wagon before they were halfway to the ranch house.

"Did your horse bolt and set you afoot, Mr. Garrison?" he called to Jim.

Jim said tersely, "So, nothing like that."

He walked to the car, opened one of the rear doors and looked inside. Reaching in, he brought out a rifle.

Tracy's glance darted to Clint Hanlon. Was it possible? No... she saw only surprise in Clint's expression.

She looked back at Jim. He had opened the rifle's magazine. He closed it again, returned the gun to the car.

"How about a lift to the ranch house?" he asked Clint.

Tracy concluded that the rifle had showed no signs of having been fired recently. She felt a vast relief.

When Jim had climbed into the station wagon, Clint Hanlon drove on, leaving behind the two girls on horseback.

this, Hanlon gave him another look. "See here, you're not serious in suspecting me, are you? Why in the world should I fire at you?"

"I saw this car go by out in the hills only a few minutes after the shot was fired," Jim said. "If that makes you a suspect—all right. I'm ready to suspect anybody."

Hanlon bristled. "You looked at my rifle and saw that it hadn't been fired."

"I didn't say it had been fired," Jim replied. He was thinking, "The fellow could have cleaned his rifle."

Aloud, he continued, "It's true that I had a run-in with Jose last night, but somebody else put him up to the stunt he pulled. He let that out after I'd disarmed him. When and if you round him up, Hanlon, I want to talk to him."

Hanlon's swarthy face was darker than usual. "All right—you can talk to him, I'll get him if I have to follow him all the way across the state."

As they started back toward the tunnel, Pete shouted at them. "Look here—I don't like this being accused of murder!"

"Ruth, I'm scared," Tracy said. "This is the second attempt on his life. He was fortunate both times but, if there is a third attempt, he may not be so lucky."

"It's that Jose," Ruth said. "He shouldn't have been let loose after last night."

"It's my fault. I took him at his word when he said he would behave. We've got to do something."

Ruth Finds Out Jim Isn't Phil

"But what can you and I do, Tracy?"

"We must get him to leave the ranch. He'll be stubborn about it because he won't want to run away from danger, but you can persuade him."

"Why should I do it?" Ruth demanded. "After all, you brought him here."

"Yes, but I can't get him to leave. Ruth, it's up to you," Tracy looked squarely at the other girl. "He'll listen to you."

"What makes you think that?"

"I saw you two from the hill this morning, while you were at the spring, just before the shot was fired. I—I saw him kiss you."

Ruth's dark eyes flickered. "Oh, that! That didn't mean a thing. We're cousins—"

"Ruth," Tracy interrupted, "he's in love with you. He wouldn't have kissed you otherwise."

Ruth laughed. "This is almost funny. It was we Garrisons who didn't want him here, and now it's you who want him to leave. No, Tracy, he's your responsibility—not mine. As for his being in love with me, that's ridiculous!"

She lifted her reins and started to ride on. Tracy rode after her.

"Ruth, if I convince you it isn't ridiculous, will you talk to him?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that there's no reason why he shouldn't be in love with you. He's not your cousin, Ruth. His name is Jim Conroy, not Phil Garrison."

Ruth had jerked her horse to a stop. She stared at Tracy in astonishment.

"Do you mean to say you brought a stranger here and palmed him off as Phil Garrison. Why?"

"I didn't know," Tracy explained. "He let me believe he was Phil Garrison. I didn't know he wasn't until last night when—well, when Helene told me."

"Helene knew? What is this, anyway—a conspiracy? What is this, if you'll let me explain..."

"Go on," Ruth said.

Tracy told her story in detail—told how and why Jim had permitted her to believe him Phil Garrison. Then she explained that, when she discovered his true identity, she asked him to stay on at the ranch and continue his imposture because his presence gave Senora Maria pleasure.

"That's the only reason I had, in the first place, for wanting Phil Garrison to come here," she finished. "I don't want him to come between you other Garrisons and the Garrison money—which is all that you are concerned about. I merely wanted the Senora to be happy in the little while she is still with us. Her heart was set on having her grandson with her—"

"And now," Ruth broke in, "she has a grandson who is not a grandson at all. That's really interesting! I wonder what Ramon and Juan will say to this!"

"Oh, you mustn't tell them!" Tracy begged. "They might cause trouble—might tell the Senora. And that would cause her such unhappiness. Don't tell them until after he has gone. And you can get him to leave, Ruth. I know it!"

Ruth was silent for a long moment.

Then: "All right—I shan't give your secret away, Tracy. If Helene can keep it, I can, too. But I'm not going to ask Mr. Jim Conroy to leave. Oh, no, not now! Not when he turns out not to be a cousin."

That afternoon, when the doctor came to see the Senora, he was amazed to find her so much better.

Taking Tracy aside, he said, "It's as though she has taken a new lease on life. Three days ago, I feared she wasn't going to recover. She seemed then not to want to live. Do you suppose—" He broke off with a shake of his head.

"Love Is a Thing No One Can Force"

After dinner that evening, when Tracy went to the Senora's room, she found Jim there. He and the old lady were laughing merrily.

Tracy halted just inside the door, feeling almost like an intruder.

Jim said, "The Senora was just telling me about a time when a rustler bushwhacked Grandfather Garrison. The rustler made the mistake of missing with his first shot. He didn't get time for a second. Grandfather had him ridden out of the country on a rail."

"I was telling this young rascal," the Senora said, "that his grandfather would have hunted down the man who ambushed him this morning. But he says Jose is not that important. Ah, he will know how important that Jose is if Jose shoots at him again!"

"I think that—that Phil is right," Tracy said. "It's best that he shouldn't be reckless. Clint Hanlon took Pete Saba and some other men to hunt for Jose. They have been gone since morning."

"They will not find him," the Senora said. "It is easy to hide among those rock hills."

"If he is not found," Tracy continued earnestly, "I think it would be best for Philip to go away. We do not want anything to happen to him. It really is dangerous for him."

The old lady frowned. "It would not be good for a Garrison to run from a man. This is strange talk from you, my child. Why would you make a coward of Philip?"

Tracy could not answer. She was afraid for Jim, but she knew there was more than that behind her anxiety to have him depart. The truth was that his presence at the ranch upset her. Though she hated him for having deceived her and hated herself for having loved him, yet he still had the power to stir her. She could not forget the flash of angry jealousy she had felt on seeing him with Ruth Garrison that morning.

Tracy felt suddenly unstrung. Rising, she walked to a window and stood staring out into the night.

The Senora looked from her to Jim. "What is wrong between you two? I brought you together with the hope that you would love each other."

Tracy swung around. She saw that, in Jim's eyes, there was a hint of amusement.

He said, "Senora, love is a thing no one can force—not even you. Suppose Tracy loves another man?"

"Nonsense! What other man could she love? Juan? Bah! Clint Hanlon? He is too grim. Pete Donohue? Or the other men Ruth brings here? They are not Tracy's kind."

"Perhaps she has a picture of a man in her heart."

"She has—but it is a picture of you!" the Senora exclaimed. "Go and take her in your arms, Philip. Do as I say! I am still mistress here—still to be obeyed!"

"Senora, you are a veritable dictator," he said. He turned to Tracy, and she saw that the amusement was now gone from his eyes. "Tell her, Tracy, that we are not for each other."

Before she could speak, a clatter of hoofs outside arrested her attention, Clint Hanlon and his posse must be back from their man hunt. She looked out the window and saw six men riding toward the corral, but it was too dark to see whether one of them was Jose.

Jim swung toward the door. "I have a little business with Jose—if they have brought him." He left the room.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Homes for Christ

Lesson for February 17, 1952

WHAT is a Christian home? It is no solemn place, for "solemn" is not another word for "Christian." It is not an "American" home, because while Christians can be Americans, and vice versa, the two words do not mean the same thing.

Dr. Foreman

Does Jesus Get Beyond the Front Door? THE home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus, where Jesus often visited, we can think of as in many ways a Christian home.

Now Christ is most at home (as any one is) where people are congenial, where the attitude to the things men live by—work, play, love, worship—is the same as his attitude.

Also in the Bethany home they listened to Jesus. It is well to have a Bible in the house; but that alone will not make it Christian. Is it read? Do the children when growing up hear the words of Jesus from the Gospels? Do they hear his voice as often as they hear the voice of Mr. Cassidy or the Lone Ranger?

How the Home Can Serve THERE are three ways in which the home of today can serve Christ. One is in connection with the church. Except in rarest cases, every Christian home should be an actual part of some Christian church.

The liveliest churches, on the other hand, are those where homes and church do the best team-work. To take only one example: Does your home work together with your church in the recruiting of ministers?

Ministers have to come from somewhere, and the best ministers don't all come from preachers' homes by any means. How about the boys in your home? If one of them felt an urge to be a minister or a missionary, would the rest of you laugh him out of it?

Another way for the home to serve Christ is in treatment of strangers. When strangers move into your community, or live there for a short time as school teachers sometimes do, is your home open to them? Is your house a "home away from home" for lonely people?

When you have a party, do you invite always only those who can invite you back, or do you (as Jesus suggested) include people who will probably never be able to repay you? A home that prides itself on being "exclusive" has forgotten Jesus' words—"I was a stranger, and ye took me not in."

Serving the Children A Christian home, moreover, will serve its own children in Christ's name. In it children will hear about Christ, not as a past figure in history but as a Living One. Parents will teach them Christian patterns of living.

This will not be merely something they hear about in Sunday school, it will be the pattern of life in which they are trained from day to day, beginning even before they can remember. This home, if it serves its children as it should, will show them how to help Christ.

The children will know about the church ("His body," said Paul) and what it is doing in his name around the world. From their earliest years they will be helpers in this work. They will not grow up thinking of "missions" in some vague way, but they will know and be thrilled by the great story which that single word carries.

And the children in a Christian home will be helped by Jesus far more than they help him. Even at the beginning of childhood they will learn to say "Dear Jesus, help me," when the mean word or the angry act are just almost exploding. Even as children they will learn something of what in older years will mean much more, the "practice of His presence."

But no one can learn from the ignorant. And children will never learn these things at home without help. A home does not begin to be Christian with the children, but with the parents. Whatever good the children learn, father and mother must learn it first.

Entebbe Airfield Cuts Travel Time Across Vast Africa

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The new British airfield recently opened at Entebbe, Uganda, is Africa's largest, with runways two miles long capable of handling the latest jet planes.

Built 250 miles south of the southern border of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, the field occupies a strategically important position between the Middle East and South Africa. It has the advantage of year-around good weather. Entebbe, capital of the British Uganda Protectorate, nestles on the north shore of Lake Victoria, where seaplanes also can land.

Reports from the Capital say Uganda's nearly five million tribesmen have taken the arrival of the jet age in stride. Early missionaries considered these Africans the most advanced of the entire central section of the continent. They quickly learned to cultivate cotton — now Uganda's most valuable cash crop. Tea, rubber and coffee plantations are profitable.

Modern methods and transportation have altered customs for many native families. They now live in rectangular stone and wood homes, rather than in rude beehive thatched dwellings. City men wear European clothing instead of bark cloth and animal skins. The women are inclined to cling to brilliantly colored native dress, and in the far interior, to old style brief covering.

Along with the jet age, inflation and price control have penetrated even the remote jungles. The local government was forced to do something when the prices of brides rose sky high. The price is now "frozen" at five head of cattle, five goats, and the equivalent of $2.80 in cash, per bride.

Grandma's Sayings

LOTS O' FOLKS might profit by the realization that hardenin' o' the heart ages much faster than hardenin' o' the arteries.

SPEAKIN' O' STYLE, all I can say is Miss Nu-Maid really sets the style in modern yellow margarines. Pure, sweet Nu-Maid is delicious tustin', smooth spreadin'. If you set a modern table, set it with Nu-Maid. If you keep a modern kitchen, cook with Nu-Maid.

STRIKES ME the only thing wrong with child psychology is that the children don't understand it.

WHEN I LOOK for margarine, I allus look for the picture of Miss Nu-Maid on the package. And folks there's a package that's really sumpin'... modern in every way. Seals in Nu-Maid's "Table-Grade" flavor. And that churned-fresh flavor makes a big difference in my cookin' and bakin'.

$5 will be paid upon publication to the first contributor of each accepted saying or idea... $10 if accepted entry is accompanied by large picture of Miss Nu-Maid from the package. Address "Grandma" 109 East Pearl Street, Cincinnati 2 Ohio.

ALWAYS LOOK FOR SWEET, wholesome Miss Nu-Maid on the package when you buy margarine. Miss Nu-Maid is your assurance of the finest modern margarine in the finest modern package.

Soldier Needing Blood Gets Some He Donated

SAN FRANCISCO—The merits of being a blood donor were highlighted by the story of the soldier who needed blood and got it—blood that he had given two weeks before.

Pvt. Richard A. Norman, 23, Wapota, Wash., was injured when a lamp exploded in a kitchen while he was on mess duty. Severely burned about the legs, he needed a quick transfusion.

Two weeks before, Norman had donated a pint of blood to the armed services. A doctor just happened to pick up Norman's bottle when he started to give the transfusion.

Army Unit Goes All Out To Set New Blood Mark

Members of the 136th "Bearcat" Regiment, 47th Infantry ("Viking") Division, fall in at the blood collection center with a "pay line" enthusiasm—everyone is there.

As a result, the former National Guard regiment recently became the Army's first major unit to post a 100 per cent donation record.

The unique response over-subscribed the blood collection quota for the division's station at Camp Rucker, Ala., and drew the praise from both the Chief of Army Field Forces, General Mark W. Clark, and the 47th Division commander, Major General Norman E. Hendrickson.

Sparking the campaign's success was a former member of the 136th Regiment, Private Richard C. Gilley, Warren, Mass., who was wounded in Korea. A national magazine's picture (Life, Oct. 22) of Private Gilley became a symbol of his one-time troop-mates in Company I and 10 other "Bearcat" units.

Major General Hendrickson personally congratulated the last man to contribute to the regiment's "all-out" collection campaign, Private First Class Dale Dunn, Brigham City, Utah.

And General Clark's congratulations were delivered in a letter to the regiment's commanding officer.

Run-Away Romeo Wanted Just a Goodbye Kiss

DETROIT — Just one more kiss was all he wanted, a 27-year-old man said when recaptured after escaping from guards while under a sentence for burglary.

Police had found him at his girl's home.

The run-away Romeo was Donald Mace, Akron, Ohio. When captured, Mace complained that a jail guard wouldn't allow him to kiss his girl friend goodbye when she came to visit him.

He said that he had to talk to her through a wire screen and "since I was going away for a long time, I wanted to kiss her good-bye."

Man Proves He's 'Irish' By East Glimbing Feat

EAST NEWARK, N.J.—"I'm Irish and I just wanted to prove it," police quoted a man who teetered atop a 365-foot chimney for an hour.

Clarence Gillen, 31, Harrison, N.J., almost overcome by smoke, climbed down from his lofty perch and was led away to jail for investigation.

Police said that he used scaffolding around the brick chimney of a mill plant to aid his climb. When police arrived, Sgt. Joseph Duffy called to the sitter "Are you going to jump?" Gillen peered down and replied, "Do you think I'm that crazy?"

Car Comfort Is Aim of Americans

Americans cheerfully spend about two-billion dollars a year to give their cars "the comforts of home," says Carol Lane, the noted feminine authority on car comfort.

Today's passenger car can be converted into a home-on-wheels with every convenience except indoor plumbing, she points out.

Miss Lane covers 50,000 miles a year as women's travel director of an oil company, ferreting out ideas and testing gadgets that add to the family's driving enjoyment.

Without leaving the driver's seat, the motorist can reach into a portable refrigerator for a cold snack, tuck baby into an inflatable crib, write memos on a desk attached to the steering column, or make a phone call. There are collapsible pots, cutlery, stoves, tables and chairs that nestle compactly in the trunk. Or an expandable "bedroom" for three that perches securely on the car roof, to mention a few of the conveniences available.

The average new car owner spends about $230 on such standard motoring comforts as a radio, heater, seat-covers, automatic window-washer and extra mirrors, Miss Lane says. Owners of older cars invest from $50 to $100 on a variety of gadgets ranging from a plug-in baby bottle warmer to a heated steering wheel for winter-haters.

And in some states, where it's legal, the motoring family can enjoy TV in their cars too!

Night Coughing Quickly Relieved by Home Mixture

Saves Big Dollars. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions because it makes such an effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any drugget get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial irritations.

Then make a syrup with two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

This cough syrup takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, helps clear air passages. Money refunded if Pinex doesn't please.

The elevator girl in the hospital waited pointedly for the man to call his floor. "What's yours?" she said at last. He beamed. "It's a boy." She let him off at the seventh floor, maternity.

Up and Down

The elevator operators at the Capitol in Washington are given to brooding over the world's troubles. "How's business?" a passenger asked one of these up-and-down philosophers. The operator looked at him moodily. "I'm not a man," he said despondently. "I'm a yo-yo."

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE -NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different! Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out. But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes mostly waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, run-down feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic self—full of life! Get FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25c, 50c or only 10c.
