

TAWAS CITY

Elks Spilt in Two Games This Week

Defeat League Leading Hale 58 to 41; Lose to Pinconning 61-41

The Tawas City Elks were "hot and cold" this week, taking a 58 to 41 decision over Hale Friday night on their home court and losing a 61 to 41 game Tuesday at Pinconning. Tawas City's win over Hale paved the way for a possible four way tie in the Huron Shore League, if Oscoda manages to beat Hale tonight. The four way tie would involve Hale, East Tawas, Oscoda and Tawas City. Oscoda will have their hands full in their contest with Hale, though, as Hale has one of their best squads on record, led by the high scoring Grant Mousseau.

In other games tonight Tawas City will wind up their regular season with a return game against Rose City. This game will be played on the local court. East Tawas will journey to Standish.

Tawas City played one of their best games of the season against league leading Hale Friday night, outscoring their opposition in three quarters. The locals whipped in 12 points in the opening stanza while Hale had seven. Fourteen points were scored by the Elks in the second, while Hale had 11. Both teams had eight points in the third and in the fourth Tawas scored 19 while Hale had 15.

Scoring honors for Tawas City were shared by Gary Humphrey and Art Anschuetz who scored 22 and 20 points respectively. Gackstetter, Brown and Davis played excellent ball, setting up a good defense and passing attack. Grant Mousseau led Hale with 20 points and many times during the game the Hale defense stopped Tawas cold.

In the Pinconning game it was a different story altogether, with Tawas losing by twenty points. Pinny had the locals reeling at the half with a 28-21 lead and the second half they broke loose with thirty-one, while Tawas had 20.

Alabaster Quarry Operations in 1890's

Modern Day Giant in Quarry

50 Years Mark Many Changes in Gypsum Industry

During the half century of operation of the United States Gypsum Company, which was celebrated during the past month, many radical changes have occurred in the industry.

Stripping with horses and wheel scrapers and loading cars by hand labor has been replaced by electric dragline and shovel, and machine loaded buckets carry the rock by aerial tramway to the loading dock.

Pictured above are laborers during the 1890's loading rock in the quarry at Alabaster, and the huge dragline purchased in 1948. This is one of a number of modern draglines and shovels now used in this quarry.

In transmitting the order to the company, Brigadier General K. L. Hastings, said "I wish to take this opportunity to add my personal commendations and genuine appreciation for a job well done."

Auto Crash Victim Funeral Held Monday

Station Wagon Collides With Parked Car North of East Tawas

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon for Richard E. Bird who was instantly killed Friday night when the station wagon he was driving hit a parked car on US-23 north of East Tawas.

Mr. Bird was a resident of East Tawas. He is survived by his widow; one daughter, Leah Mae; two sons, Richard, Jr., and Gerald; his father Richard Bird of Wayne, one brother and eight sisters. He was born February 2, 1908, at Detroit.

The accident occurred at about 8:30 o'clock. The impact carried the two cars about 30 paces up the road. The gas tank of the parked car was punctured and burst into flames. By the time the East Tawas Fire Department arrived on the scene both cars were blazing infernos.

The charred body of Mr. Bird was found slumped at the wheel of his car. Coroner E. D. Jacques said that he probably had met his death instantly in the crash, as he had apparently made no attempt to escape.

There were no witnesses to the accident, but Mrs. Earl White saw the flames shooting from the cars and called the State Police. The accident occurred near the White home. The parked car was owned by George Silver of Oscoda. It was loaded with arm rests for the Oscoda Door Manufacturing Co.

The funeral services were held from the Jacques Funeral Home. Rev. Benjamin Whaley officiated. Interment was in the Tawas City Cemetery.

Former Iosco Man Dies in Florida

Rev. J. Brainard Brown Services Wednesday

Rev. J. Brainard Brown of New Milford, Connecticut, and one time resident of this community, died Monday at Hollywood, Florida. Funeral services were held Wednesday at Miami.

Rev. Brown was born at Ithaca in 1876. Following his graduation from the schools at Ithaca he went west for his health and worked on ranches as a cowboy and attended college in Colorado and Albuquerque, New Mexico. From there he went to the Crozier Theological Seminary at Philadelphia.

In 1907 he came here, where he, his brother, and his brother-in-law L. H. Braddock of this city were associated in the ownership and operation of Elm Forks Ranch on Guiley Creek. During the ten years he was in Iosco county he served in the Hemlock Road Baptist, East Tawas Baptist Church and at times in the Tawas City Baptist church.

The East Tawas church, the first Baptist church to be established in this area, had been closed for a number of years. Rev. Brown reopened it and services in the church were resumed for some time. In 1917 he was married to Miss Esther King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. King of East Tawas.

While at the ranch Rev. Brown served Grant township on the Board of Supervisors.

Leaving here he served in Baptist churches in Illinois and Iowa, later going to Milford, Connecticut. Last October, while delivering a sermon, he was stricken with a blood clot. After treatment in a New York hospital, he and Mrs. Brown went to Florida where they have been spending the winter with their daughter.

He is survived by the widow and three daughters.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round
BY DREW PEARSON

Budget Items

WHAT the average citizen may not entirely realize about the huge new budget facing the nation is that 83 per cent of it is for the military. This includes mutual security aid to Europe, primarily military, and care of veterans.

Thus a 17 per cent chunk of the taxpayers' money remains for civilian purposes, including the Coast Guard, which is semi-military, the FBI, Secret Service and other domestic policing agencies of government. While some further pruning may be possible in the civilian branches, especially in regard to the pork-barrel, rivers-and-harbors bill which no congressman wants to cut, nevertheless, the major opportunity for saving, if any is to be accomplished, must be from the military's 83 per cent chunk.

Yet the military have been less cooperative about even the most rudimentary principles of efficient spending.

Take merely the simple question of bidding against each other. One of the great pleas for unifying the Army and Navy was that it would save money; that the two branches of the armed services could pool their buying, not duplicate a list of thousands of items, such as towels, blankets, rope, pulleys, wrenches, all about the same whether used in the army or navy.

This, however, has not happened. Instead of working together on Army-Navy buying, there is now a third competitive service, the Air Force. It is true that much air force material is purchased for it by the Army, but efficient, unified buying, as done by a private business firm, just does not exist.

Keeps Them Guessing

President Truman is holding his political cards so close to his chest that not even his closest associates at the White House know his plans. Even Charley Murphy, good natured White House assistant, confessed to a friend the other day: "I don't know any more than the man in the moon whether Mr. Truman is going to run."

Actually, the President seems to enjoy playing a game with both his staff and visitors. At one moment, Mr. Truman will put on a long face and describe in great detail the trials of being President. A frequent remark is: "Two terms will kill any man."

The next minute, the President will casually comment how he is looking forward to a grass-roots campaign in the fall, and slyly watch his guest's startled reaction. This on-again-off-again, keep-'em-guessing game was partly behind his final decision to leave his name in the New Hampshire primary. The other reason was the pleas of Democratic leaders in New Hampshire that they would lose their places on the state and national committees if he did not leave his name in.

Best guess of Mr. Truman's intimates is that he is carefully laying the groundwork for a "draft Truman" campaign after the boomlets for all the other candidates have run their course.

Moscow Feud

Ambassador Alan Kirk, retiring as ambassador to Moscow, has handed in a sensational farewell report that a deadly feud has broken out in the Politburo over who is to succeed Prime Minister Stalin.

Kirk reports that Molotov and Malenkov, the Soviet production boss, are openly vying for power and lining up support within the Politburo for themselves.

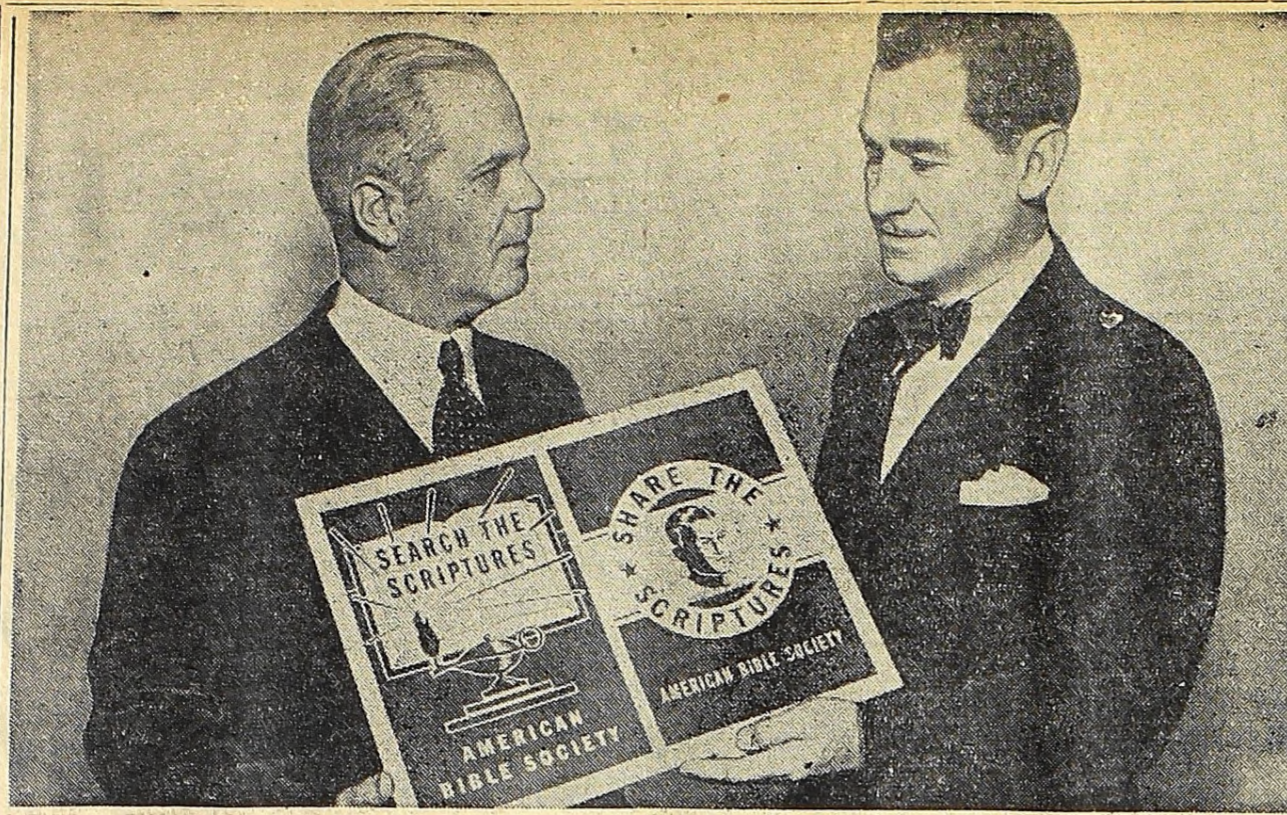

Stalin is reported enjoying the spectacle and so far has made no move to intervene or designate his successor. Winner of this grim struggle undoubtedly will be the man who gets the support of Marshal Beria, head of Russia's secret police. As yet, Beria has stayed out of the fight.

Communist Burma

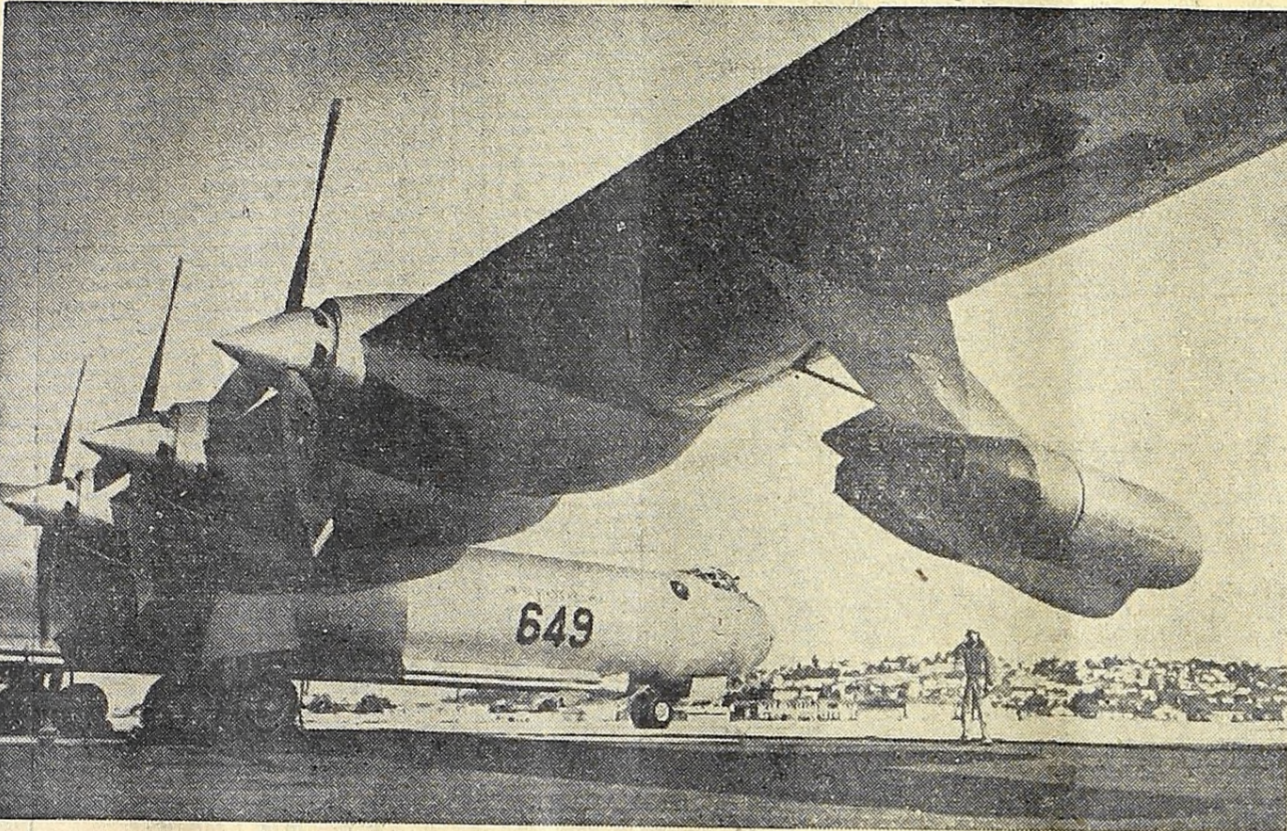

The American delegation to the U.N., alarmed at the threat of Communist attack on Burma, has appealed secretly to the jittery Burmese government to have it ask the United Nations to send a watchdog commission to Burma immediately in order to guard against invasion. Some U.S. delegates, however, think it's already too late and that, by midsummer, Burma will be another Russian satellite.

Spies in Soviet

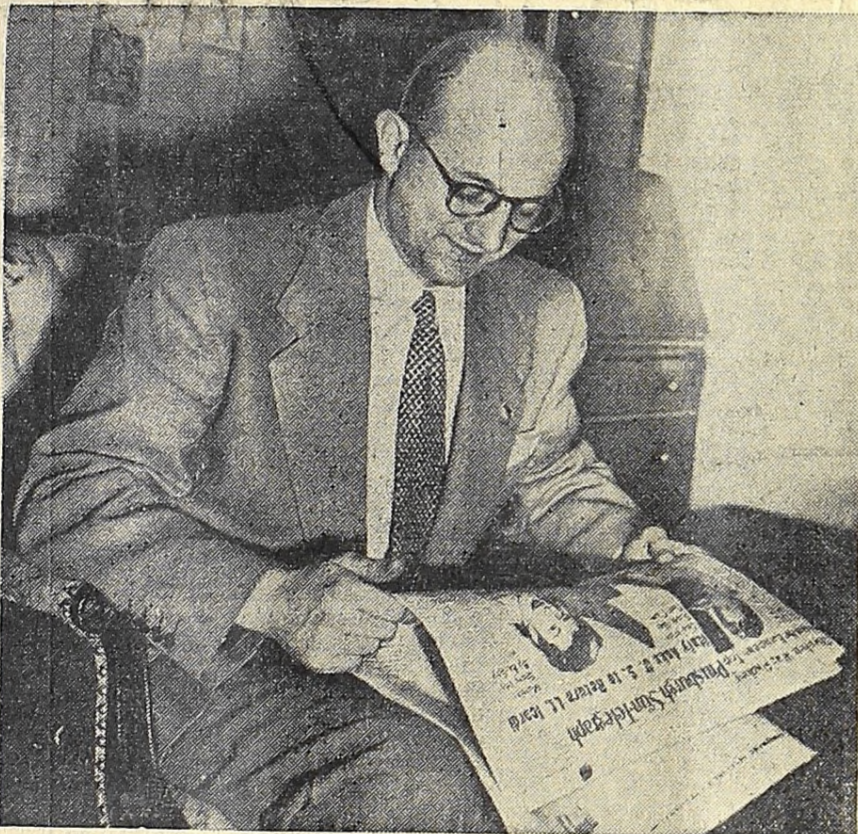

The Russians are having Joe McCarthy scare too. The Kremlin is so alarmed over military information leaking to us that it has banned German servants from working for Russians in East Germany, has built high fences around its airfields, has added new restrictions on American military attaches behind the Iron Curtain, has even cut off nonclassified technical magazines from western sources. They're almost as scared as we are.

SHARE THE SCRIPTURES . . . The Rev. Fredering W. Cropp, general secretary of the American Bible Society, shows author-commentator Lowell Thomas art work facsimile of the seals which are to be used in the society's annual campaign for funds to aid in the worldwide distribution of the Scriptures. Thomas is honorary chairman of this year's seal campaign, which has for its theme, "Search the Scriptures—Share the Scriptures." The seals, which are the size of postage stamps, are to be affixed to letters and packages to publicize the campaign and to remind the public to fulfill the exhortation in the slogan of the campaign.

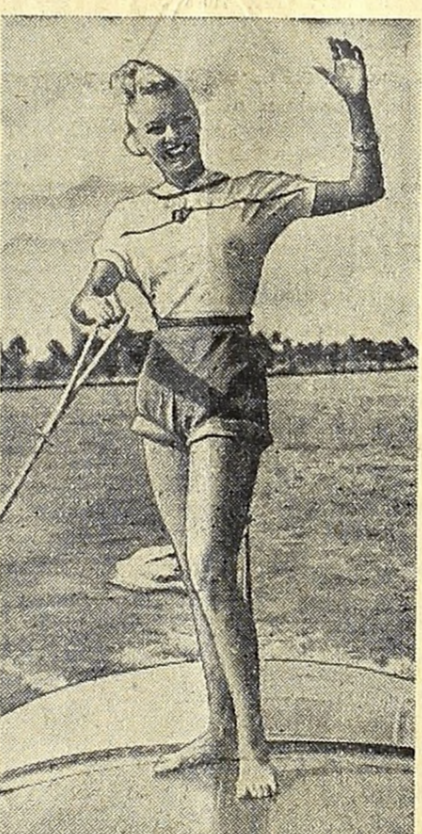

WINGS OF POWER . . . Another milestone in B-36 intercontinental bomber history is reached as a U.S. air force crew readies for delivery to the strategic air command the last B-36 to be equipped with jet engines at the San Diego division of Consolidated Vultee aircraft. This ship, now designated as a B-36 model, provides the air force with a fleet of completely jet-augmented B-36's capable of speeds in excess of 435 m.p.h. at altitudes eight miles high. The four General Electric J-47 engines mounted in pairs under the wings and the six 3500-horsepower Pratt and Whitney piston engines generate 42,000 horsepower for the big aircraft.

FIGHTS EXTRADITION IN OSS MURDER . . . In Pittsburgh, Pa., Aldo Icardi, former lieutenant in the office of strategic service who was accused of involvement in the murder of his superior officer while on a secret mission in Italy during World War II, reads the news story that told of Italy's attempt to extradite and try him for the murder. Icardi said through his attorney that he will fight extradition. Also involved is Carl G. Lodolce of Rochester, New York. He will probably fight extradition too.

DISCUSS RANSOM TO HUNGARY . . . Secretary of State Dean Acheson (right), shown with Senate armed services committee member Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oregon) before he testified before the committee in closed session about the paying of $120,000 to Hungary for the release of four American fliers who landed by mistake behind the Red border last December. There have been rumbles of criticism against our state department for acceding to the Hungarian request.

REGATTA QUEEN . . . Chic James rides the waves at Miami after her selection as queen of Miami's 38th annual Biscayne Bay regatta. The Biscayne regatta is the oldest consecutive run annual regatta in the United States. Chic will reign over all ceremonies.

CRUEL TO BOXER . . . Light-heavyweight boxer Bob Satterfield filed suit for divorce against his wife, Mrs. Iona Satterfield (above), charging cruelty. His attorney asked for an injunction to keep her from hitting Bob.

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS of Main Street and the World

Department of Commerce Reports Personal Incomes at $251 Billion

ELIZABETH II—At first glance it would not seem important to the average American home town that a young woman has assumed the duties of Queen of Great Britain and the British Commonwealth of Nations. But it is important and may have a great bearing on the future of many people in the cross-road towns of this country. It is around this young woman—Elizabeth II—the British people will rally in their last-chance fight against bankruptcy and breakup.

In the last 15 years the empire has been breaking up like a ship drifting in stormy seas. As recently as 1936 the empire was able to pay its way in international commerce. Today, however, Britain is the debtor of the world. And a complete break-down of British economy would be felt in the cross-roads of America.

Britain's present situation is almost entirely due to World War II. To win that struggle she sacrificed most of the money she had saved at the peak of her power when she directly ruled 450 million people. She spent many of her overseas investments to pay for guns and food.

In addition, the war altered the balance of power in the world, making the United States and Russia the dominant powers. Here again Britain becomes important to the United States because she is an ally by history, treaty and language.

So, the new Queen becomes a symbol of unity in the empire and an important figure in the balance of power between the United States and Russia. She is the figure around which the British people will rally. Whether she succeeds or fails is of vital importance to this country economically.

CONTROLS—The fight is on. It began when President Truman requested an unenthusiastic congress to strengthen anti-inflation controls and extend the Defense Production Act for another two years—until the middle of 1954.

Again the President slashed out at the Capehart, Herlong, and Butler-Hope amendments which he unsuccessfully attempted to have appealed last session. He also swung a haymaker at congress generally by declaring "most people" already are having trouble paying present prices and congress should devote itself not to legislative formulas for raising prices, but instead to finding ways of moving prices downward.

The President's strong language caused many of the legislators to believe the chief executive was making 1952 campaign material. Controls and inflation are touchy subjects they know from experience. They also know they must take some kind of action that will impress the people in the home towns, but how they will get around the pressure groups, if they do, is another question.

PERSONAL INCOME—The Department of Commerce reports total personal incomes of Americans in 1951 was 251 billion dollars, 12 per cent above 1950. The department said that by the end of 1951 total individual incomes had advanced to an annual rate of 257 billion, compared with 238 billion at the end of 1950.

Except for a steady increase in farm income and in government salaries, other phases of the economy reported on showed incomes had become stabilized over the past six months.

The department reported the biggest increase was in government payrolls. They jumped by 33 per cent to an annual total of 29 billion. Farm incomes increased almost 25 per cent to a total of 17 billion. Higher farm prices accounted for most of the increase, the report said, but there was also slightly increased production.

In private industry, payrolls increased from 123½ billion in 1950 to 140 billion. Increased employment and higher wage rates were credited with the increase.

VETERAN TRAINING—Since enactment of the original GI bill, 7½ million veterans in the United States have taken advantage of its educational and vocational training provision, a house committee studying new legislation for Korean veterans reports. The bill's educational provisions—by far the most widely used and most expensive benefit—have cost the taxpayers $12,347,162,546 as of July, 1951.

Subsistence payments to veterans in school amounted to $8,645,203,670. Educational institutions received $3,276,046,930 in payment for tuition. Other payments for books and supplies (including tools for veterans in trade schools) came to $425,911,946.

Although not begrudging the money to veterans, the committee reported "graft and waste plagued the program" and an excessive number of VA employees took bribes, gifts, unusual loans, gratuities, services and ownership in schools.

Under the new bill just introduced in congress payments of all educational benefits will be made in a lump sum directly to the veteran. Single men would get $110 a month. Married veterans would receive $150.

FOREIGN AID—Fearing congress may severely cut foreign aid funds, the United States has warned European leaders to agree quickly on plans for a European defense force, including German troops, if they want to increase their possibility of getting economic assistance.

Secretary of State Acheson and other administration leaders feel that congress may become stubborn over foreign aid funds if they can not show real progress in European unity and the incorporating of German troops in the defense plan.

The greatest difficulty appears to get French Foreign Minister Schuman and West German Chancellor Adenauer to stop their bitter feud which threatens the whole defense project. There are two main points for their disagreement: (1) France is afraid of a resurgence of aggressive German nationalism once the Germans begin to rearm; (2) West Germany wants assurance that if its troops are to participate in the defense set-up it will have a voice in N.A.T.O. decisions.

Big Drop in Farm Labor Is Forecast

Increasing use of chemicals on American farms is expected to displace about 3½ million farm workers by 1970, a senate labor-management relations subcommittee said in a recent report.

Conducted by Dr. Francis J. Weiss for the subcommittee, the study reported "we are at the threshold of a new era that promises plentiful food and fiber, but is also fraught with the dangers of economic and social disruption against which we have to prepare our nation no less than against the dangers of armed aggression."

Weiss' report says chemical and mechanical labor-saving devices will reduce farm workers from the 1950 level of 9,320,000 to 7,785,000—a 17 per cent drop—by 1960 and another 2 million by 1970.

Taft Gaining Ground

SENATOR Robert A. Taft of Ohio, the "Mr. Republican" of the GOP, is ranging far afield and is outdistancing his Republican opposition in his fight for the Republican presidential nomination, according to reports coming in to Washington. Senator Taft is also taking the lead in a two-fronted attack against the administration of President Truman which the reports declare are bringing him over-flow audiences.

He is being dubbed a "new Taft." He has been known to give forth with a real "belly" laugh reminiscent of his father, President Howard Taft; he has become affable and on occasions has evinced a rollicking good nature, entirely different from the "old" Taft known to be so precise, so correct and unsmiling.

Not only has he attacked the administration with vigor, but he is lashing out at General Eisenhower with falling blows, asking no quarter from those in his own party who express the opinion that he is driving a wedge between the GOP factions which may not be healed after the GOP convention in Chicago next July. At any rate, Senator Taft is campaigning as if he were the GOP nominee today and in so doing is setting up the issues in the campaign, not waiting for any platform in either party. With the long start, he may be making it difficult for Democratic candidates to batter down the barriers he is raising in his pose as a new fighting, battling Bob Taft.

Truman Favored

On the Democratic side of the picture, the reluctance of President Truman to make known his intentions, if it has not dampened the ardor of administration stalwarts to get into the campaign, has delayed start of a real campaign to answer Senator Taft and to carry the administration program to the people. Many Democratic leaders are chafing over this delay in getting their campaign underway. Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who is making his bid for the presidency on the basis of his conduct of anti-crime investigation is the only announced candidate, although Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota has entered the primary in his home state, and Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma has entered in his home state and in the Nebraska primary, just in case. President Truman has decided to remain in the primary in New Hampshire on advice of Frank E. McKinney, the Democratic national chairman. Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois is being given a slow build-up, but the majority of opinion here in Washington is that President Truman will run and of course win the nomination, with Governor Stevenson as a possible running mate.

Potato Supports

The Department of Agriculture paid out $65,000,000 to support the 1950 potato crop. The American people paid out $610,000,000 for the same crop, buying 231,000,000 bushels of potatoes at an average retail price of $2.64 per bushel. This makes price of the 1950 crop $610,000,000 in payroll money, plus $65,000,000 in tax money total $675,000,000 to the consumers.

But congress discontinued price controls on the 1951 potato crop and without supports, retail price of potatoes rose to an average of $3.54 per bushel. The American people paid $808,000,000 for approximately 228,000,000 bushels at $3.54 for the 1951 crop. So $808,000,000 of payroll money, plus nothing for tax money, makes total cost of 1951 potatoes to the consumer $808,000,000. Or, it cost the consumers $133,000,000 more for about 3,000,000 less bushels of potatoes. Which was cheaper—potatoes with or without price supports?

Mink Breeders Kick

Mink breeders are complaining over adverse publicity about mink coats. One Wisconsin mink cooperative complains top price of a sapphire mink pelt, which was $360 last year, sold for only $140 this year. Department stores report sale of mink coats lagging behind those of other costly furs. Pastel minks are a drug on the market. A pastel mink, about which we have heard so much, is a pelt with bluish underhairs obtained by a process of in-breeding. A sapphire mink is one with a ruby tinge to the underhairs. And to top it off the Federal Trade Commission has cited the Mink Traders Association, Inc. New York, to answer charges of conspiracy to suppress competition.

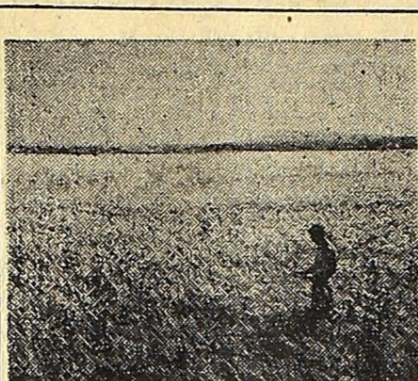

Capital Notes

About 46,000 acres of national forest land was replanted in 1951, a rate which will take 100 years to reforest the backlog of 4,000,000 acres. The 1952 federal budget carries $7,800,000,000 merely to carry out legislation enacted by the 80th and 81st congresses. Farmer members of 62 additional production credit associations now fully own their credit cooperatives, paying off their last government stock during 1951.

TULE LAKE

Fabulous Crops Being Produced On Dry 90,000-Acre Lake Bed

Modern pioneers have struck pay dirt in the now dry bed of a 90,000-acre lake near the California-Oregon border. Instead of rich ores, in the past five years they have taken $27,000,000 from the rich soil in the form of Klamath potatoes, malting barley and clover.

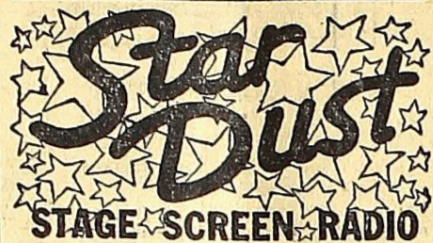

This is a typical field of barley nearing maturity in the Tule Lake homestead area. The old shoreline of the lake can be clearly seen at the base of the hills in the background.

The new farmers, most of them veterans of Uncle Sam's fighting forces, homesteaded and developed the area, after the waters of shallow Tule Lake had been drained by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

At first, even the surrounding terrain was inhospitable. It lies on a 4,000-foot high plateau, rimmed by rugged mountains and the desolate Modoc lava beds.

But the soil was fabulously rich, and needed only irrigation water and the hard work of the willing veterans to eventually transform the area into a prosperous, modern, comfortable agricultural community.

EVEN after appearing in more than 25 pictures John Beal was still hoping for a big break, the one role that would take him straight to the top. It was given to him by Stanley Kramer, the star maker; Kramer called him, in New York, to ask if he'd like to play the prison psychologist in "My Six Convicts", at Columbia. Beal says he reacted very calmly—except that he still has a lump on his head from hitting the ceiling of his hotel room. Between films he has done radio, television, and appeared on the New York stage; two plays he starred in were bought for the movies, but someone else was given the roles he created.

Just how valuable are movie stars in radio? "Pulse of New York", a top research organization, has reported the result of its survey. The week all those M-G-M programs featuring such stars as Bette Davis, Ann Sothern, Lionel Barrymore and

Truman Will Be in Ring Fighting for Nomination

By Wright A. Patterson

AT A PRESIDENT'S PRESS conference in Washington, with the bright and shining lights of the nation's correspondents in attendance, Harry S. Truman stated he would not reveal his political plans until the last week in April. The Democratic primaries for United States senator from Missouri will be held the last week in April, and the always-awake newspaper boys immediately popped at the President the question: "Do you intend to enter the race for that senatorial post?" but he would not say.

They knew he could not seek both the presidential and the senatorial nominations. Those newspaper correspondents figured that as a democratic presidential candidate, he might be beaten. As a democratic senatorial candidate in Missouri he would have a far better chance of winning. They knew that as a Missouri senator he had been far happier than as president.

They jumped at conclusions and wired their papers that he would attempt to secure the Missouri senatorial nomination, but the President had not said he would make such an attempt.

The correspondents pointed to the fact that he could not have both nominations and that he was never happier than when serving as Missouri's United States senator about the close of World War I and as chairman of a committee to renegotiate army war contracts through which he saved the government large sums. There were no criminal charges involved then as there have been in the internal revenue scandals, which, as President, he has not cleaned up.

As a Missouri senator he cannot continue to be the big boss of the Democratic party. He would have to listen to others, and that would not be acceptable. The President likes the sound of coins jingling in his pockets. He has not turned his salary back to the treasury as did Hoover.

He has spent his $50,000 expense money, and he paid no tax on it, nor was the account audited. He has enjoyed the privilege of using the President's yacht as a diversion; he has appreciated having his boon companion General Vaughn in the White House to distribute deep freezes. He likes to spend his winter holidays at the Key West naval base, which he could not do as a Missouri senator, but can continue to do as President. Such are some of the prerequisites he would have to surrender when he quits the job of President. And then, instead of living in the rent free White House, he would have to again pay rent.

Now what would he gain by a switch from the presidential to a senatorial job—if he could get that? It is only reasonably possible that he could. Instead of a $50,000 untaxable, unaudited, expense account, he would have only $12,500, quite some difference. Instead of some 1,200 White House employees to do his bidding, he would have one, probably Bess as his secretary. And her salary could be added to the family income. He would just have to get along without the solace of Harry Vaughn's presence, and without deep freezes. He could use taxis instead of private planes and travel fare. But he would not go so much and Bess would have to hold back a bit on her entertainment of distinguished guests. The bulk of the company would be Missouri farmers, and they would not command expensive rations.

Margaret can help with the apartment. That will mean a maid less to pay for. But what is the use, boys, in attempting to figure it out, Harry probably says. Whether I am to be beaten or not for the presidency, I have intimated I will make a fight for it, and the senatorial place must wait for another time. I can do without a job, or I can again turn to selling haberdashery until that time comes, but I cannot turn the boys down.

Those extra intelligent big city newspaper correspondents knew Harry S. Truman would not turn down the big chance until he had been counted out. He could be counted upon to be still in the center, battling so long as the show was on. But the next Missouri senatorial race will be a new story and a new answer.

President Truman has enjoyed doing things that astonish the American people. He has liked to establish exceptional precedents. It might be he would resign as president, and give the Veep a chance for a brief term.

THE FICTION CORNER

SHARE ALIKE

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

THE second week after they reached the cabin on Wolf Creek, Sid Condon, exploring a tributary alone, found gold. He spent half a day estimating the value of the find. It was a pocket and would probably net a total take of between $40,000 and $50,000. Sid filled his pipe and sat down to meditate. The thing to do, of course, was to get Duke Brandon, his partner, clean out the placer, and hit for Big Rock settlement before the snow came.

3-Minute Fiction

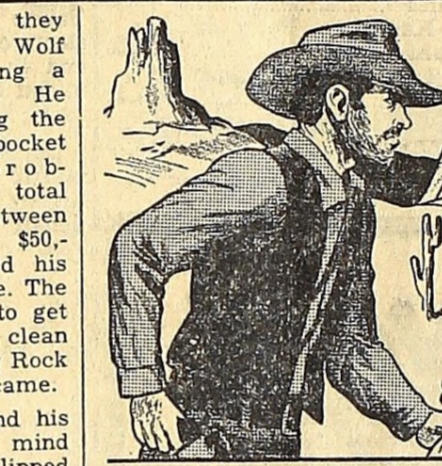

Sid sucked on his pipe, and his eyes grew crafty. Into his mind there came a picture of thin-lipped Duke Brandon. Why should he share this find with Duke? A man with $40,000 could retire and live for the rest of his days in comfort. A man with only half that amount would have to scrimp. Forty thousand dollars!

Duke Brandon was in a surly mood that night. He had had no luck. The food supply was getting low. Snow would come soon. Why not quit now while their chances of getting out were good?

"Wait a week," Sid urged. "Might as well make sure we ain't missin' anything."

So Duke was prevailed upon. The next morning they started out again in opposite directions. Sid went south, circled west and came to his claim. Working feverishly he panned a handful of gold and carried it up stream a half mile, caching it beneath a large moss-covered rock.

The next day and the next and the next it was the same. Duke became more disgruntled. He decided to remain only one more day.

The next morning Duke headed north. Toward noon he swung west and south. At midafternoon he came to a moss-covered rock lying near the shore of what was to him an explored tributary. He sat down to smoke and rest, and as he sat there the slanting rays of the sun fell upon a dull, yellow piece of metal. Duke blinked, then leaned forward. He picked up the piece of metal and saw beyond it a small opening beneath the rock.

He knelt and reached into the hole and took out a handful of gold.

Sid Condon had stood in the bed of the stream when caching his placer gold, so there were no footprints nor other signs to indicate his having been there.

There must be $30,000 worth of metal in the cache. Half of that was his, according to the unwritten law. The other half—but what could a man do with a mere $15,000?

DUKE took a small sack from his pocket and filled it full with the dull, yellow dust. His breathing was heavy as he knelt there. His eyes glowered feverishly. He knotted the sack together and rose from his knees—and stopped dead still.

Sid Condon was standing not 15 feet away. Sid's left hand contained a sack similar to the one in Duke's. It was not full, but the bulge was evidence enough as to its contents.

For split seconds the two men stared at each other. Significance of the meaning of the situation dawned slowly in their sluggish brains.

Sid Condon's lips flattened against his teeth. His eyes narrowed to slits.

"So!" he cried hoarsely. "So! This is how it is! Partners, eh?"

"Partners," Duke Brandon echoed. "Partners!" he repeated in ugly scorn. "You louse!"

Sid Condon laughed harshly. He was bigger than the other man, and he felt confident.

With the speed of a snake his hand flashed to his hip where hung the revolver. His finger contracted on the trigger and flame belched from its muzzle.

Sid Condon saw his partner's body jerk convulsively, and he knew he had scored a hit; knew it only dimly though, for the sound of his own gun had come from a great distance, and there was a drumming and pounding in his ears. He sank to his knees, and through the haze of his vision he saw that Duke Brandon was also on his knees.

Then he knew that Duke had equalled him in speed at the draw. They lay, so close they could almost touch, each holding firmly to a sack of gold; lay and cursed and were eventually silent while the silvery stream rippled on, and night finally came.

Buick even keeps the Sun in its Place

Of course, this new glass—which reduces glare and incoming sun-heat—is a Buick feature in '52

Wheel Crests standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other series.

WITH all the new things we've had to talk about in 1952 Buicks, we're just getting around to this one.

It's called "Easy-Eye Glass"—a new kind of glass with a cool, soft, blue-green tint, which filters the sun's rays entering your car—cuts down their glare and heat.

You'll appreciate the "glare control" at any time—and when you hit your first stretch of hot-weather driving you'll find that this glass does a great job of keeping the heat out of your lap.

We know—because thousands of happy Buick owners already have this new comfort feature. The rest of the automobile industry is just beginning to discover what Buick discovered a year ago. It's a great idea, which costs you very little extra if you order it when you're buying a new car.

But this still leaves the other folks with a lot of catching up to do.

You'll look a long way before you'll find anything that approaches a Buick's million dollar ride.

You'll look a long way before you'll find anything so completely satisfying as Dynaflo Drive.*

You'll find it hard to match the style and beauty and harmonious good taste of a 1952 Buick's interior trim and fabrics.

And when it comes to what you get for what you pay—we'll gladly match price tags with the field.

Have you had a good look at the '52 Buicks? That's something you ought to do soon.

Don Kinsey of Lansing Attends Committee Meeting

The Isoco County Farm Bureau Community group committee met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Newvine Friday afternoon to make plans for the year. 210 Cows Tested in Isoco DHIA

At the rate the 210 cows in the fourteen herds of the Isoco Dairy Herd Improvement Association have been producing in the last seven months the association average butterfat production will be well over 350 pounds. That is about 130 pounds better than the average Michigan cow produces. DHIA members have found by their records that a cow has to produce more than the average cow to pay for her feed. Consequently DHIA members culled out average cows because they won't pay wages.

Clarence Carpenter, DHIA Supervisor reports that the January average production for the association to be at 688 pounds of milk and 25-1 pounds of butterfat.

Judy, a registered Holstein four years old, owned by Arthur Povish again topped the association for the third consecutive month. Judy's production in January was 2550 pounds of milk and 81.6 pounds of fat. Her total for three months is 7420 pounds of fat, an average of 86 pounds of fat.

Raymond and Charles Kob's June again led the two year old class with 1430 pounds of milk and 54.3 pounds of fat. Her December production was 1500 pounds of milk with 54.0 pounds of fat.

Dina, a registered three year old Holstein owned by the Waldo Cury's led her class with 1050 pounds of milk and 62.4 pounds of fat. Teddy, a grade four year old Holstein owned by Julius Anderson produced 62.5 pounds of fat but had to take second place in her class because of Judy's high production. William Herriman's No. 15, a grade Holstein led the mature cow class with 1920 pounds of milk and 63.4 pounds of fat.

Julius Anderson's herd of ten cows led the association with an average of 903 pounds of milk and 34.7 pounds of fat per cow. Following closely was the Kobs herd of 20 cows with an average of 903 pounds of milk and 32.1 pounds of fat per cow.

DESERT DESTINY

A SERIAL STORY OF THE MODERN-DAY WEST
WRITTEN BY JOSEPH CHADWICK

THE STORY SO FAR:
Tracy Hayden lives with Senora Maria Garrison, widow of cattle baron, Jeff Garrison. The Senora sends Tracy to Leslie her grandson, Phil, whom she has never seen. Sen Ramon and grand-children Ruth and Juan disapprove. Tracy mistakes Phil's enemy, Jim Conroy, for Phil and brings him home. Jim, masquerading as Phil, accuses the Garrisons of creating an incident in which a drunken Mexican almost shot him. Tracy, in love with Jim, is ambushed by discovery of his imposture. Jim's horse is shot from under him by hidden marksmen and ranch manager Clint Hanlon blames Jose, the berserk Mexican. Clint makes love to Tracy.

CHAPTER XI

"I don't know what he did or said," Jim went on, "but I'm sure he caused her illness. I think he's behind this other business, too—this Jose business."

Tracy said nothing, but her eyes were troubled.

After a moment, Jim said, "I'd like to go into town, if I may borrow a car."

"Of course. I could drive you into Lanassa and do some shopping. Or—" Tracy paused. "Or perhaps you would rather have some one else drive you in. Ruth, for instance."

As they went out to the garage together, they saw Juan tinkering with the engine of his plane on the stretch of ground which had been laid out as a landing field. Jim felt a sudden homesickness for the air.

Jim drove fast. The top of the car was down, and the blazing Arizona sun was hot. They didn't talk at first but, finally, Tracy broke the silence.

Jim Thinks He Sees Phil Garrison

"Ruth knows about you," she said. "I told her yesterday."

"I guessed that," Jim replied. "Her manner last night was not exactly cousinly."

"That pleased you, I suppose?" Again, there was that barbed note in Tracy's voice.

Jim glanced at her. "You haven't told me that I shouldn't be friendly with Ruth. If you wish me to avoid her, you might say so."

Tracy shrugged. "Why shouldn't you be friendly with her? It doesn't matter in the least to me."

"No?" Jim smiled. "I get the impression that you resent it. Maybe I'm wrong."

Anger flashed in Tracy's eyes. "Oh, don't be so smug! What do I care if you make love to Ruth? Every man who comes here does. She sees to that. If it weren't you, it would be Pete Donohue, and if not Pete, some one else. I really don't care. As a matter of fact, I was occupied with an admirer of my own while you were out walking with Ruth last night."

Jim felt amused by this school-girlish outburst, but he refrained from smiling. He knew Tracy wanted him to ask who her admirer was and so he did.

"I had a proposal last night," she told him. "From Clint Hanlon."

"See here, Hanlon isn't the man for you," he blurted.

"What right have you to say anything against Clint?" Tracy evaded.

"You know nothing about him."

"But a man has his hunches about other men, Tracy—and I've mine about Hanlon. I'm sure he isn't really in love with you!"

"Am I so unattractive?" Tracy demanded angrily.

Jim stopped the car and turned to face her squarely. "It's true I know nothing about him, but I know my reactions to him. I think he's a fortune-hunter. He sees you as a Garrison and, therefore, as a darned attractive catch."

"I'm not a Garrison."

"You are, in all but name. If you want proof, ask the Senora." Jim searched Tracy's face, then asked "What did you say to Hanlon?"

She gave him a mocking smile. "Wouldn't you like to know, Mr. Conroy?"

As he started the car again and drove on, uneasiness grew within him. Clint Hanlon proposing to Tracy... The thought stayed with him that Hanlon wanted Tracy only because he knew that, one day, she would be a part-owner of the Garrison ranch.

Nothing more was said during the remainder of the drive to town. Lanassa was a small place. There was a sleepy-looking main street lined with a few small stores, a bank, a hotel of sorts, a feed warehouse, one or two small restaurants, and a hole-in-the-wall movie house.

bank than he had expected, but the time was not wasted. Mr. Grier, the bank president, was able and very willing to give the information that Jim—posing as Phil Garrison, of course—desired. Jim learned the actual financial status of the Garrison ranch; he learned what the banker thought of its prospects.

Finally, he asked, "So you think that, despite its present difficulties, it still is a good investment?"

"If it's properly managed, Mr. Garrison. But I know Ramon Garrison, and Juan too, and they are unfitted for the job. However, you seem to be a different proposition. If you'd take the reins in your hands, and work as hard as old Jeff Garrison did in his time..."

"I'm no cattleman," Jim said. "I've never set foot on a ranch before. But this Clint Hanlon, the manager, strikes me as a capable man. What do you think of him?"

"He's capable all right but, after

His silence seemed to put more fear into Phil than angry words.

"Give me a break, Jim!" Phil pleaded hoarsely. "I was crazy back there in China. I didn't know what I was doing. Look—" He plucked at Jim's arm. "I thought you were going to leave me behind for the Japs to get."

Jim felt a vast contempt for him. "You lie, Phil. I had already put you into the plane. You shot me before I could climb aboard."

"Styness crept into Phil's eyes. "Yes, but you were going to run into the brush. You didn't think the plane would fly!"

Jim shook his head. "You'd lie out of anything, Phil. However, I can understand why you shot me. You were crazy all right—crazy with fear. But you weren't crazy when you got back to the base, reported me dead—and then stole my money. Phil, I want that ten thousand dollars!"

The screen door slammed again, and Jim turned to see that Tracy had entered. He had the swift thought that this would be unpleasant for her—meeting this subject coward, Phil Garrison. It would not be fun for her to have her illusion shattered.

Then, suddenly, he saw a look of panic come into her face.

She cried out, "Jim, watch out! Behind you!"

He whirled to face a gun that Phil had drawn.

In the instant of crying out her warning to Jim, Tracy realized who the man with the gun must be—realized that this was the real Phil Garrison.

His face was strained and white as he stood facing Jim.

"Don't you lay a hand on me or I'll shoot!" he shouted.

Jim's lip curled. "This isn't China, you now. You can't get away with that sort of thing here."

Jim Chides Tracy For Romanticism

Phil began edging toward the door. Tracy saw the cold glint in Jim's eyes and knew that he had some idea of trying to stop him.

"Let him go, Jim!" she cried. Then, turning to Phil, she said, "Put up that gun—one is going to harm you."

"I'm taking no chances," he told her. He reached the door and paused there. "I'm warning you, Conroy—keep away from me!"

Then he was gone, the screen door slamming after him.

The waitress behind the counter, who had stood as though paralyzed, now began to chatter hysterically.

Jim started after Phil, but Tracy stopped him.

"Please," she said. "Don't go after him."

Jim looked at her. "You're very anxious that he get away, aren't you?"

"It's good for one of us to think clearly," she retorted. "I'm afraid he might really shoot that gun."

Crossing the street, they climbed into Tracy's car. This time, she took the wheel. As she headed out of town, she drove fast.

After a while, Jim said, "Well, at last you've met him. Is he like the picture you've carried in your heart?"

"Oh, don't talk nonsense!"

"Admit the truth. You're disappointed. You've had an illusion smashed. You've seen that this man you've idealized is a coward."

Tracy stiffened. "No! He's not ill. Oh, not physically ill—but ill just the same. The look in his eyes—"

"That, my dear, was fear."

"You put it there—you made him fear you!" Tracy accused. "You hate him for something he did when he wasn't himself, and you're out for revenge. Can you blame him for fearing you? Don't forget that you had a gun in your hand that day I found you in his room in Baltimore. I think—yes, I think you might actually have killed him if he, instead of I, had come into that room!"

"I know now the reason for your coming to the ranch," Tracy rushed on. "You knew that he would come here eventually—somehow you knew. And you've been lying in wait for him."

Jim sighed. "That isn't so, but I suppose I can't make you believe me."

Tracy's heart sank as she realized the problem that Phil's unexpected arrival created. She had presented Jim Conroy to Senora Maria as her grandson. If Phil had not turned up, the deception could have been carried on until Jim departed—and no harm done.

"How much money did you say Phil took from you?" she asked.

"Ten thousand dollars."

"If I managed to get that much money for you, would you go away and not attempt to harm him?"

Jim looked at Tracy wondering. "Is it worth so much to you to protect him? So you still think yourself in love with him?"

"I'm not in love with anybody! Answer my question! Will you leave the ranch if you get back the money you claim he stole?"

"If I do that, what about the Senora? What will you tell her?"

"I'll tell the truth."

"You don't dare."

Talent for Goodness

Lesson for March 2, 1952

MANY people can paint, or swim, or who have no special talent for painting or swimming. So, many people are good who do not seem to have a special talent for goodness. This talent is not so common as we all wish it were. Goodness, real goodness, has many limitations. Two of the commonest are goodness and good-for-nothingness. Good-for-nothingness is the worst of all. Good-for-nothingness is not so irritating, but it is far from satisfying. Don't we all know persons of whom it is said, "He is good, but—"? Now of a really good person you never say "He is good, but—". You say, "I only wish there were more like him."

Dr. Foreman

He Chose to Help
SUCH a man was Barnabas, one of the leaders of the first Christian church. He was called "our beloved Barnabas" not by a single congregation but by a great church council. The whole Christian family of his time thought of him as "our Barnabas," and they loved him.

He was not what you would call a specially gifted man. He was very impressive in personal appearance, for we know that among superstitious people he was taken for Jupiter or Zeus, the most powerful of the Greek gods. But he was no gifted speaker, and if he wrote anything we do not hear of it.

His one great gift, his God-given talent, was goodness. He is described as a "good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith." He is first heard of as a property-owner who sold his land and turned over the proceeds for the benefit of his fellow Christians. He was one of those who "called not anything their own" but contributed all they had.

He Could Take a Back Seat
I F I can't be corn I don't want to be shucks" is a proverb Julius Caesar might have thought of if he had been a farmer instead of a general. Once that famous man was marching through a miserable little mountain village and one of his aides said something about "this hole." The general turned on him: "I would rather be first in this village," he said, "than second in Rome."

Most of us know how old J. C. felt, because most of us are not very good. But a really good person never feels that way. Your imitation-good person will take a back seat hoping soon to get his invitation to come up higher, and if he doesn't get it he will feel very peevish about the whole business.

A truly good person will be just as contented with the back seat if there is an abler man in the front seat. Now Barnabas was a good man, and he could take a back seat gracefully, could even do what is most difficult, resign from the front and slip into the rear.

He and Paul were the first missionary team in Christian history. During the time of their work together in the city of Antioch, and at the time the church commissioned them as missionaries, they are mentioned as "Barnabas and Saul." But, when they came back from that journey they were "Paul and Barnabas" and so they remained.

Paul was Barnabas' protegee, his pupil, his assistant; and some men would be mildly irritated if their smart young assistants push into first place; but not Barnabas. He had that talent for goodness which includes being glad to play second fiddle to a better musician.

He Could See God
BARNABAS had another rare quality found in pure goodness: he could see good in others that was not on the surface. When Saul had just been converted everybody in Jerusalem thought he was faking; but Barnabas was the first to take him by the hand and believe in him.

When the church at Antioch, an inter-racial experiment, was worrying the old-line church at Jerusalem, Barnabas was sent up to look the situation over. Where others saw only a doubtful experiment, Barnabas "saw the grace of God and was glad."

Barnabas was the leader who recognized he could not do everything alone; he was the one who went after Paul and gave him his first real chance to become a Christian leader. Later on, when Paul wanted to fire young Mark as a quitter, Barnabas believed in him—and turned out to be right, too. It takes the truly good to see goodness!

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

Doing Okay

When it comes to multiplication, the vaunted, rapidly-reproducing rabbit can take a backseat to that old slowpoke of the woods, the opossum.

The Missouri conservation commission can cite figures to prove that the "possum can give Brer Rabbit a run for his money when it comes to producing young.

A mature cotton tail rabbit produces a yearly average of about 17 young in four litters. The labor-saving "possum may produce just as many young in a year and does it in only two batches.

The "possum may be slow about most things but the freakish little animal has the shortest gestation period of any North American mammal—only 12½ days. However, the time is lengthened a little because the young spend six to eight weeks in the mother's pouch.

At birth, young opossums are quite undeveloped and it would take 270 of the tiny creatures to make an ounce. They are so small that a litter of 16 would easily fit in a tablespoon.

The "possum has many peculiarities not shared by fellow North American mammals. The American freak has a pouch similar to a kangaroo, a monkey-like prehensile tail, a grasping clawless thumb on the hind foot and more teeth than a dental laboratory window—50.

Although not possessing high grade fur, "possums bring trappers in Missouri about one-sixth of their income. The hide isn't worth much—only 30 cents—but it is used in jackets, coats and trimming.

The "possum will eat almost anything and conversely, almost anything will eat a "possum. Baked, the omnivorous little mammal is a gourmet's delight to some. For this reason, the "possum which weighs from four to 12 pounds and attains a length of about two and one-half feet, seldom lives longer than eight years.

Possum hunting has almost become a national sport. The wily little rambler of the woods is found in almost every state. Any dog, from the pedigreed to the cur, can tree a "possum and bring home the bacon, or "possum. There's a reason. The "possum just isn't very bright.

Out of the Past
In the "olden days," only the nobility, or personages of high rank were able to indulge in the sport of hunting. "Certain species of game belonged exclusively to the crown."

Large areas were set aside for the hunting pleasures of the king and those he chose as companions of the chase. Ownership of hunting dogs was prohibited in areas bordering or close to these restricted lands, unless the dogs were crippled.

The chase had its set rules and regulations, formalities and ceremonies. The taking of a wild boar or a stag was the occasion of celebration and feasting, and the whole sport of hunting was encased in ritualistic glamor. In this country, hunting has always been an informal pastime for the most part, the notable exception being the manner in which the fox is hunted in some sections. The Colonel and Judy O'Grady's boy friend are on a common level when they are attired in hunting garb, and class distinctions are not recognized. We, too, have a hunting nomenclature when it comes to game and guns and methods.

We have a covey or bevy of quail, a brood of grouse, a flight of woodcock, a flock of ducks, a wedge of geese and many other descriptive terms.

But, in describing game, the ancient Nimrods dug up adjectives and nouns long since dropped from general use. Joseph Strutt's "Sports and Pastimes of the People of England, Including the Rural and Domestic Recreations, May Game, Mummeries, etc. from the Earliest Period to the Present Time" (edition of 1801) contains some passages of nomenclature that should be of interest to the present-day sportsman. Here's a sample:

"It was necessary for every lover of the chase that he be acquainted with when beasts went in companies—a pride of lions, a lepe of leopards, a herd of harts, a bevy of roes, a sloth of bears, a singular of roars, a sownder of wild swine, a route of wolves, a sculk of foxes, a cete of badgers, a richness of martins, a fesyenes of ferrets, a huke or down of hares, a nest of rabbits, a clowder of cats, a shrewdness of apes, and a labour of moles."

Henry P. Davis, Remington Arms Co.

Action's The Thing
Color, contrary to many opinions, may or may not be the deciding factor in a plug's effectiveness. While it is true that at spawning season, a red and white lure seems to be absolutely "tops" and later in the summer the more natural colors such as perch, pike, and shiner finish are the dope, we feel that the plug caster should outfit himself with a good selection of colors the year round.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Floor Boards
Winter is a good time to fix spaces between boards in a floor. For then the home's heating system is in operation and the floorboards have shrunk. Clean the space between boards and fill with a paste mixture of fine sawdust and shellac, whitening and color.

Knots in Wood
Knots in lumber contain resin and pitch which will eventually "burn" through if covered directly with ordinary oil paint. To eliminate "burning" and provide the best coverage, give each knot a preliminary coat of shellac before painting. The shellac will seal in the resin and the pitch.

Boiling Hint
To keep macaroni or spaghetti from boiling over while cooking, put a tablespoon of butter or margarine in the water.
