Another rung on the long-range property rehabilitation and improvement ladder was reached last week by the Detroit and Mackinac

Reviewing the D&M's expansion during the past six years, Pinkerton pointed out that back in 1946 the railroad owned only 68 serviceable freight cars and many of them were wooden and obsolete; locomotives were old and in need of replacement, too; in fact, the entire 232 mile line was in need of general property improvement.

Lose to Baldwin 47 to 41 At Alma Regionals Friday

The Tawas Elks fell short, by three baskets, in the semi-finals in the regional basketball tourney at Alma last Friday night, and wound up on the short of a 47 to 41 count against Baldwin. The Elks held the Baldwin team on even terms throughout the game and only lacked a little extra punch in their scoring to get out in front. Tawas City earned their chance to play in the semi-finals by whipping Fair-

Both teams exchanged basket for basket in the final stanza with Baldwin cashing in with a 13-10 margin. All of the "Defibaughmen" reached the scoring column with Tom Morley and Art Anschuetz tied with 10 each. ## Playing Politics

SOMEONE who was wise composed a prayer which read like this: "O Lord, grant me the serenity to accept those things which I cannot change; the courage to change those things which I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

Somehow or other it seems that the citizens committee for the Hoover Report, including its agricultural sub-committee, has failed to find the wisdom to know the difference.

Several months ago this column warned that the citizens committee for the Hoover Report, which started out as a bi-partisan effort to remodel and stream-line the executive branch of the government, was playing politics in its efforts to force through some of its recommendations. And during the past two or three weeks the committee, including its agricultural sub-committee, has become engaged in a knock-down drag-out fight along political lines on its recommendations for over-hauling the Department of Agriculture.

Now, Dr. Robert L. Johnson, national chairman of the committee and president of Temple University, has announced disbanding of the committee as of May 31 "to avoid becoming involved in politics." Dr. Johnson said that to date about 55 per cent of the recommendations of the commission, many of which have been endorsed by President Truman, have been enacted into

However, and much to the point, the agricultural sub-committee of the citizens committee, does not intend to disband along with the parent organization, and this is the group, under the guidance of Charles Dana Bennett, as special consultant, which has aroused the ire of the National Farmers Union and of Secretary Charles Brannan of the Department of Agriculture.

The National Farmers Union has devoted much of its last two weekly letters to a two-fisted and vitriolic attack upon Bennett, who, in a speech before the members of the committee at the Shoreham hotel, recently used some intemperate language. Bennett leveled much of his fire against the farmer committeemen in the counties of the nation who are the bulwark of the entire agricultural set-up, elected by the farmers themselves. The committees contain thousands of Republicans as well as Democrats, since they are selected on a non-partisan

Brannan Letter

Secretary Brannan in a public letter sent to Dr. Johnson charged the agricultural committee with "the most flagrant examples of misinformation", some of which he charged was not only "misleading but outright false." In fairness to the Hoover Committee, however, some advertising agency in preparing its copy had taken figures from the Hoover report of 1947 which of course as of today are false and misleading.

In his letter Secretary Brannan said: "The department is carrying on most of the functions in which it was engaged in 1940 plus many new functions such as the rural telephone program, the farm housing program and those arising out of the research and marketing act, the Point Four program and numerous

He pointed out that the department's budget has been reduced by about 25 per cent, from more than $1,600,000,000 in 1940 to $1,200,000,000 in 1952; that total number of employees, full time, have been reduced from 71,000 in 1940 to 57,000 today and number of part-time employees has been cut in half; that organizational structure has been cut from 18 agencies in 1940 to 10 to-

100,000 Committeemen

This reporter believes that the county farm committees who are elected to determine the farm program they prefer in their own counties are probably the closest group to the grass roots thinking possible to have in our democracy. It's true that in Vermont, for instance, a majority of a committee may be Republicans, while in Georgia they all might be Democrats, but by and large politics plays no part in the election of delegates to the county convention which selects the county committees. And these farmers actually decide the program in their own county. There are more than 100,000 of them.

Unwise Interference

And while this column is in sympathy with reduction of waste and extravagance, as is the objective of the Hoover Committee, for instance a one-stop farm office in every county-any interference with the local farm committee to interfere

Administration's Foreign Aid Program Faces Fight in Congress

AID TO ALLIES-Although President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson took to the radio and television in an attempt to gain public support for the administration's $7,900,000,000 program for military and economic aid to our allies, the program faces a bitter test before a moneyconscious congress.

The administration feels that the $7,900,000,000 represents a figure that has already been cut to the extreme and has decided to fight any further cuts. Congress, on the other hand, which is considering the largest 'peacetime' budget in the nation's history, must find some way to cut the budget and thus reduce deficit spending. An increase in taxes in an election year, which would be necessary if the budget is not slashed, is an unheard of thing. As a result, one of the items that must be cut, from the congressional viewpoint, is foreign aid.

In view of the fact that the United States is attempting to build up a European army, it is unlikely that military aid will be reduced. That leaves the $2,000,000,000 for economic aid. There is strong sentiment in congress for eliminating this item entirely. Aside from the money angle, congressional reaction to the program will be of importance in that military and economic assistance to nations standing up to Soviet communism is a cornerstone of the administration's foreign policy.

An important fact in the coming congressional battle over foreign aid is the fact it is not drawn along strict party lines. A number of Democrats, as well as Republicans, have announced themselves in favor of a great slash in foreign aid funds, some as much as 50 per cent.

POLITICAL NEWS_Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia has announced he will seek the Democratic presidential nomination. But the senator did not plunge deeply enough into the political pool to suit the bitter anti-Truman wing of southern Democrats. He refused to let himself be regarded as the center of an anti-Truman Democratic rebellion should the President be nominated again. He insists that Truman will not be a candidate for re-election, but admitted he had no facts or information upon which to base his belief.

Russell was firm about one thing. "So far as I can see, I will support the Democratic nominee," he said, but I would not commit myself to support a candidate or a platform injurious to the United States." U.M.T. BILL-By sending the administration-backed universal military training bill back to committee, the house virtually wiped out any chance of the measure getting through congress this year. The subject of bitter debate in the house, and just as warmly debated in the home towns of the country, the measure would have made ablebodied youths liable to six months' military training as soon as they reached 18. In addition, it would have kept them in the reserves, and subject to recall, for 71/2 years after their training was finished. The bill's defeat can be attributed to strong opposition by a number of church, farm, educational, and other organizations. President Truman and most military leaders, including Gen. Eisenhower, had endorsed the KOREA—Russia appears so determined to be one of the "neutral" nations to police a Korean truce that it may wreck the peace talks. This, and the insistence of the Communists that all prisoners of war be returned regardless of their wishes in the matter, have brought the talks to a standstill and what appears a final deadlock.

As for the first demand, an Allied officer recently told the Reds: "I now tell you formally, unequivocally and with the fullest authorization that the U.N. command's decision to reject the Soviet Union as a member of the neutral nation supervisory commission is final and irrevocable. Further debate on this subject is completely futile."

On the prisoner issue, Allied negotiators have been equally firm. They told the Communists there was "no possibility" they would ever agree to deliver prisoners who had to be forced to return to Communist

These exchanges have increased the atmosphere of distrust and bitterness which has surrounded the talks for months. As for the peace, it seems as far from becoming a fact as the day the talks began. There have been hints that a new offensive will be launched if the peace talks

UNEMPLOYMENT_Although unemployment in the United States as a whole is near a record low, the nation is faced with a serious unemployment problem. The problem is caused by the fact the unemployment is centered in a number of definite areas while the country is in the midst of general prosperity.

As an example, Detroit has had a high rate of unemployment for a considerable period of time, due chiefly to curbs on materials for consumer goods, in this case automobiles.

According to a government agency, total unemployment in the country is about 2,100,000. Spread evenly across the country the figure would cause no concern. However, they are in pools that dot the map, most of them in the east, a few in the midwest.

How to remedy the situation is a problem now under study by the Department of Labor. The department will attempt to find long-term answers for these high unemployment areas, many of which are small towns whose economy is based on coal and textile industries.

Technical Limitations Restrict TV Range

(This is the second of a series of three articles on the coming of a nationwide television service.)

The expansion of video into non-TV areas is based on the Federal Communications Commission's plan to open up a new section of the radio spectrum, known as the Ultra High Frequency Range, for commercial and educational television. This will permit 70 new channels for TV broadcasts, as compared to the 12 channels now in use in the limited Very High Frequency Range. By opening UHF and expanding VHF, the FCC will offer licenses for nearly 2,000 new stations, divided among every state in the union.

The FCC has indicated that it will put it up to private enterprise in the towns and cities concerned. If they want television they can apply for it, and, following final allocations expected soon, licenses will be granted to applicants found acceptable. On the basis of tentative allocations and provided each state fulfills its license quota under the expansion program, the nation will have this number of TV sta-

This expanded service contrasts dramatically with the present regional allocations.

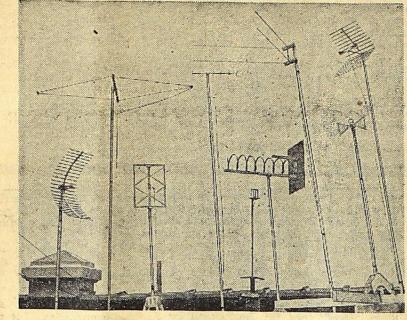

In many one-station cities like Albuquerque and Seattle, network programs have been unobtainable because relay facilities, either microwave or coaxial cable, do not reach them.

But the cables and the radio relay towers are today pushing steadily into new areas. In 1951, a chain of lofty microwave towers which relay video signals with splitsecond precision was completed from coast-to-coast. Coaxial cables are spreading through the south—from Kansas City to Wichita, to Dallas, San Antonio and Houston. Jackson, Miss., a southern terminal, is being tied to New Orleans, a northern branch is headed for Montreal; and cables are being laid from Los Angeles through Arizona, Texas and New Mexico to cover the southwest.

This vast expansion of video relay facilities means that scores of new television towns, with either UHF or VHF stations, will be able to tap into the terminals along the route and relay the major network programs through remote rural

Main Street's Role

It is difficult to forecast accurately today how quickly Main Street, U.S.A., will erect the nearly 2,000 new stations for which licenses might be available and how quickly extensive home coverage will be obtained. There is the question of economy, of local financing of new government plan to extend telestations and of the speed with vision beyond major population cen-

SKYLINE OF THE FUTURE-Here are the various types of antenna developed by RCA technicians to receive UHF television broadcasts. Some of them might soon become familiar landmarks on the rooftops of farms, ranches and city homes in every section of the United States. They bear such colorful names as "Bow Tie" and "Yagi" and "Double V" and "Corner Reflector." With the coming of a countrywide television service, the names of the new video antennas promise to become a part of the national lexicon.

Yet, there is a regional pattern established since 1946 when the National Broadcasting Company introduced regular commercial television in the United States. This was the first era of expansion; in many ways the second era might rival it.

For example, set sales in the present television regions have maintained a fairly uniform pace. In 1951, there were 27,412,700 families residing in TV areas-that is, areas where some type of video signal, however faint, could be picked up on home receivers. Of this total, 15,166,000 had purchased television receivers.

Since 62,914,200 people reside in these areas, the ratio of TV set sales to individuals is about one to six. In terms of families it is a little better than one set for each two families.

And the pattern is fairly consistent between different size cities. New York, for example, has 4,152,-100 families and they own 2,720,000 home receivers. Omaha, Neb., has 210,500 families and they own 104,-000 TV sets.

Using the same yardstick, the scores of towns which look forward to their own transmitting stations can expect an audience of one out of every two families in their municipal and suburban regions. They can anticipate this audience within perhaps three or four years after their first video signal is roadcast.

The number of listeners, course, is dependent on the number of stations erected. Recent history indicates that they will go up fast. In 1948, when the freeze on station construction was imposed by the FCC for fear of over-extending the VHF channels and thus creating interference between stations, scores of small-town business men, industralists, radio station owners and newspaper publishers had applications for station licenses on which the FCC processes license ters into the farms, ranches and small towns of America.

To the scientist, Ultra-High Fre quency (UHF) means a section of the radio spectrum. Another name for the spectrum is radio air waves. The air waves, of course, belong to the people, and it is the job of a government agency to divide among various private and government services wireless channels in which to transmit information elec-

The services to which the government entrusts the public's air waves include police radio, television (in the Very High Frequencies), FM broadcasts, civil radio, amateur radio, government wireless, maritime wireless, ship stations, coastal stations, maritime navigation, general navigation, radar, air navigation, airport control, industrial, scientific and medi-cal wireless devices. Fixed Channels

Each of the services has fixed "channels" in the air waves and cannot intrude upon its sister services. With television, the number of channels used today is not sufficient to carry video signals to every part of the nation.

Since the inception of commercial TV, telecasts have been beamed over 12 channels in the relatively limited Very High Frequency section of the air waves, but with new stations mushrooming around the country, the Federal Communications Commission decided it had better call a halt before TV signals began bumping into each other. Its decision was prompted by the realization that two television signals transmitted over the same channel within range of one another will collide and thus "hash up" the home viewing screen.

The one untapped section of the spectrum which promised plenty of room was UHF. This was the area in which scientists and engineers of the Radio Corporation of America began looking for new television channels.

"Up until RCA engineers began looking into it", according to O.B. Hanson, Vice President and Chief engineer of the National Broadcast-ing Company, "the UHF was the Antarctic of the air waves. Everybody knew where it was on the map of the radio spectrum, but nobody had much practical knowledge

This plunge into the upper frequencies was doubly necessary because television is a great space grabber. A television picture requires much more "information" to be transmitted electronically than a radio broadcast. As a matter of fact, a TV station requires 600 times as much room in ether as a radio broadcast station; it uses a band width of 6,000,000 cycles (6 megacycles) compared to 10,000 cycles for standard radio broad-

Equipment Developed
Out of years of expensive research and field tests, equipment was developed which made UHF practical.

It was found that UHF station, properly situated and properly operated could furnish home viewers a picture that equalled in clarity and definition the standard VHF picture. It was found that present home television sets could receive UHF telecasts through the addition of a simple "tuner" and that receivers could be built to receive both UHF and VHF telecasts: It was found that the enlistment of 70 new UHF channels for television would permit an orderly expansion of VHF service without fear of station conflict. These findings provided the basis of the FCC's plans to license nearly 2,000 new stations throughout America.

Man's Duty By Anna E. Wilson

UNCLE JONAS always held that it was a man's duty to look after his women folks, but that was before he got caught out in his dory in a storm and was brought home with a twisted leg.

THE TAWAS HERALD

9 - Minute Fiction

등

He sat, now, on a discarded sawhorse in Timothy Donovan's backyard and whittled.

Yet not later than this morning, his sister Abbie had said, "It does seem to me, Jonas, as if you could get something to do; ever since you lost that dory, you've done nothing but sit around and whittle. It don't seem right for a man your age to be a burden—not that I'm complaining," said Abbie righteously,
"though it's hard on a woman my age keeping boarders, without," she finished plaintively, "cleaning up a mess of chips."

Jonas had promptly moved his whittling out of Abbie's kitchen and over into Timothy's backyard which he shared with a moth-eaten old goat, Nicodemus.

His gnarled hands handled the knife skillfully, and his fingers caressed the tiny craft his skill had produced. He rescued a piece of calico, purloined from Abbie's work basket and fashioned tiny sails to billow out from the miniature mast and spars, and set her asail in Donovan's pond, a full rigged fishing schooner.

He had just finished and looked up to see Abbe bearing down on him full sail.

"Now Jonas, there's no call for you to sit out here in the sun with that eld goat. Folks'll be saying I drove you out of the

"Folks'll be right," said Jonas stoutly.

Abbie's face broke up, she was close to tears. "Now, Jonas, you don't need to take what a person says to heart."

"Thirty years," said Jonas Stub-bornly, "I kept the house fed and respectable. Don't seem any call for you to go fretting now.

"I know, Jonas," said Abbie, wiping her eyes with her apron, "But it does seem-

Nicodemus had finished chewing the label from a tomato can, he bleated, his vindictive little eyes swinging around in Abbie's direction. Abbie left in a hurry and Jonas patted the goat.

WHITTLING could be hard work, W he thought, when you did it eight hours a day. He counted his little fleet carefully, they were all there; stout, water tight, in full sail. He looked up to see Abbie coming down the street with a man.

Abbie's voice was uncertain. "Mr. Golstein came all the way down from the city to see you, Jonas. Mr. Golstein keeps a curio shop—" but Mr. Golstein was shaking hands with Jonas, showing all his teeth. "Well, well, I see you've got them finished. Are they all there? He started counting them into his bag." Jonas nodded, he was unaccountably tired, a man got that way working under strain; his shoulders ached, his fingers were blistered, and his bones cried out against the hardness of the sawhorse.

Mr. Goldstein finished packing the ships, took out his wallet. "$250," he said cheerfully counting it out. "And say, Jonas, that figure of the little goat is going over big. Can let you have an order for a hundred of them. Same price."

He turned to Abbie, "Lucky day for your brother and me, Miss Abbie, when he came into town to have his leg attended to and saw some carved figures in my window. Tell you what, Miss Abbie, not many people's got so much foresight these days." He went off chuckling.

"Now Abbie," said Jonas gently, 'there's no call for you to be crying. It's a man's duty to look after his women folks. I didn't tell you before because Mr. Golstein wasn't sure. He wanted to see them first. Seems that now it's getting colder, we could let the boarders go and I could sit in the kitchen. It's more companionable like - for you and

World Population Up In Postwar Period

Resurgence of births and declining mortality in large areas of the globe have resulted in a spurt in world population during the postwar period.

In the United States the annual excess of births over deaths has averaged better than 15 per 1,000 population, which is above the level immediately following World War I, and about twice the rate during the depression decade of the 1930's.

The trend has been similar in Canada and New Zealand.

In France, where virtually no population gains had been made for a century, and where as re-cently as 1940-1944 deaths exceeded births, the rate of natural increase has averaged better than 7 per 1,000 each year since 1946. In Ireland, which had been losing population for a century, the excess of births over deaths has been somewhat more than 8 per 1,000 during the past six years.

YWL Makes Gift to Sherman County Library

Thanks to the Young Women's league of the Tawases eight exceptional volumes have been added to the collection of books available to Iosco County readers. They have been bought by the League and presented to the County Library as memorials to recently deceased relatives of League members. Leonora Hass, county librarian, made the book selections and had them processed for distribution. In addition to the regular processing which all library books receive, these have a special book plate bearing the Branch on business Tuesday.

Ted Lomason was called back to the week-end at here home here.

Ted Lomason was called back to the week-end at here home here.

The Earl Harrington family of the book was given and the name of the donor of the book. The books are selected with a thought for the interests of the person in whose name the book was given. They are all recent publications and are among the best in their individual fields.

The first book purchased was "The American Glass Book," by McKearin. It is a memorial to Mrs. Ella Austin, mother of Mrs. John

"Woman's Home Companion Household Book" is a memorial to Mrs. Anna Nash, mother of Marie

"Festivals USA" was given as a memorial to Howard Fohey whose wife is a Young Women's League member. Our Tawas Perch Festival is one of the events described in this book.

"Yeats Poems," is a memorial to Alfred Peterson, father of Mrs. Robert Bontekoe.

"Button Book" by L. S. Albert, is an unusually beautiful book with an appeal not only to the button collector but to those with a more casual interest in the subject. It is a memorial to Mrs. Ruby Simmerson, mother of Mrs. Leon DeRosia.

"McCall's Dressmaking Book," is a memorial to Mrs. Anna Whipple, mother of Emma Whipple.

"Introduction to Geography," by Kendall is a memorial to George Prescott, II, father of Mrs. William Especially appropriate as a me-morial to two coast guardsmen is "Janes Book of Fighting Ships. Because it is a more costly book than any of the others the memorial card carries the names of two men: John North, father of Dorothy North and Robert Bontekoe, husband of Mrs. Marian Bontekoe. This is a book which will be of great interest to the people of this

A companion book to the one above mentioned and one that will be equally useful is "Janes All the World Aircraft." This book is on order and will be purchased jointly by the Young Women's League and the County Library. The memorial card will bear the name of Frederick Misener, husband of Mrs. Betty Misener.

All of these books will be at the branch libraries and may be cir-culated to the general public, with the exception of the two Janes books. Because of the format and the cost per volume of these books, they will be kept on the reference shelf for all to see and

YES

PROPOSALS

This WILL NOT CHANGE your tax rate. It is only an extension of the present two-mill building fund.

East Tawas, Mich. March 10, 1952 Voters of Iosco County:

When the new Court House Proposals were presented at the Board of Supervisors' meeting my first thought as a taxpayer of this county was, "Is this new building required now?" Also, "Will it increase the tax rate of this county?" After serious consideration and study, I find that the present building is not large enough for our growing county business. To repair or remodel this present building would not be practical because of its interior being in such poor condition.

I am sure anyone who has visited the court house recently will agree that this is correct. Also, I find we are now and have been assessed 2 mills for the building of the new court house. As per the proposal on millage, this will not be increased. The same 2 mills on tax rate will exist as is now. By voting "Yes" on both court house proposals will not increase tax rate but will provide the county with a new court house rather than waiting 10 years until taxes are collected and will eliminate continued maintenance on an old building and high insurarce rate.

Elmer R. Werth, Supervisor 2nd Ward, City of East Tawas Here is what your Supervisors have to say about the need for a new Court House. THEY KNOW!

East Tawas, Mich. March 10, 1952 Voters of Iosco County:

I am whole-heartedly in favor of the new Court House proposals because it asks for no increase in tax rates and it would provide for the urgently needed county building immediately.

I feel that most people of this county are familiar with the conditions that exist in our pres-ent building. Also, that you are fully aware of a great hazard of personal and property records in case of fire.

Therefore, a "Yes" vote on both court house proposals would be appreciated on April 7th election.

Henry L. Klenow, Mayor, City of East Tawas Whittemore, Mich.

March 13, 1952 Why we need a New Court House. I would call the old building a fire hazard. It is not a safe place to keep the records that are in the building at present. Upkeep and maintenance would also be less on a new building than the present one.

If we have a new building of fire-proof construction, our records would be safe.

If our records were destroyed it would mean a great loss to the county as some records could never be replaced.

Ed Dickey Mayor and Supervisor Whittemore

Whittemore, Mich. February 12, 1952 Special Court House Committee I voted "yes" on the quesetion of submitting the court house proposal to the voters because:

1. The present building is a fire hazard and in case of fire the people of the county would be required to spend a tremendous amount to replace the records lost, and many of them could not be replaced.

2. The present building is inadequate. When I came on the board of supervisors 25 years ago, the basement was used for storage only. At the present time all available space is in use and is still not sufficient. The county Library and the County Agricultural Agent have been forced to seek quarters elsewhere. Considerable remodeling has been necessary to accommodate present equipment.

3. We are not getting anywhere at the present rate. Any money raised for building fund has been eaten up by increasing costs during the past 10 years.

4. The proposition will not increase the present tax. It will only permit the tax to be spread over a longer period of time. The tax will cease to be spread when the building is paid for.

5. The extension of time was recommended by the Michigan Securities Commission and the Michigan Municipal League as a means of making the bonds a better risk and insuring a more favorable bid when they come up for sale.

"Sheriff, I think you're following the wrong line," the ranch man-ager said, his face even grimmer than usual. "I don't believe that the attack on Conroy, which must have been made by the Mexican, had anything to do with what happened here tonight. You see, I talked with Philip Garrison several days ago in Lanassa. He told me that Conroy had a grudge against him and that he feared Conroy." Hanlon paused. "I think it would be well to ask Conroy just where he was when Garrison was shot tonight."

Tracy looked at Jim, along with Aside From Tracy, there were Ramon, Juan, Ruth, Helene, Pete Donohue, Clint Hanlon and Jim everyone else. # Business Woman

Lesson for March 23, 1952

THERE were no timetables and no maps on the ship that carried Paul from Troas to Samothrace and Neapolis. But even if there had been maps posted in the passengers' cabin, and even if they had had the words ASIA and EUROPE where they ought to have been, it is doubtful whether Paul or any of his party would have thought that as important as we think Dr. Foreman

For the Christian religion was now for the first time, so far as we know, leaping from the continent of its birth to the continent where it would have power for more than a thousand years. But Luke, writing Acts, does not even notice this fact. To educated people of that day, the name of the continent of "Europe" meant little or nothing. It was mostly populated by barbarians anyway.

The important world of that day was centered around the Mediterranean. Going into Macedonia from Troas was simply going from one province of the Roman Empire to another. Centuries went by before Christians realized what an epochmaking step this was.

She Was at Prayer-Meeting

TF there were no maps, there were no Hotel Red Books, either. There was no way of wiring ahead "Darling, you mustn't tax your-self like this," Tracy said. "You are rived in Philippi, a strange city. rived in Philippi, a strange city, he did not look up the Travelers' Aid or the Chamber of Commerce; he hunted up the nearest prayer-meeting.

> There he met and converted the woman named Lydia, the first European ever to become a Christian. She is in many ways a kind of sample of many and many a Christian after her. For one thing, she was a business woman, a seller of purple, that is, the purple dye which was so expensive and so much in demand in those days.

It is an interesting fact that while Christianity draws from every level of society, top to bottom, the first convert in all Europe was not a rich man, not a beggar, not a professional man, not a slave, but an independent, middle-class business

Then Lydia was also a successful woman. Some religions, such as Islam, appeal especially to men, and leave women out of the picture except in so far as they can be useful to men.

Christ, on the contrary, ever since the earliest days in Galilee has made an appeal to both men and women. Indeed, one of the greatest triumphs of Christianity has been what it has done for womankind.

His Goldangest Funeral To Be Second Burial

BURLINGTON, Colo.-A 68-piece band from Cleveland is going to attend the funeral of Jim Gerhart, 75, a retired farmer. It will be his second funeral.

Jim, who spent an estimated $15,-000 on last year's "funeral" services, said he had received word from the drum major of a Cleveland band and he and his organization would fly here for the second in the series of services. He did not disclose the identity of the drum major nor the band.

Costly Event

"I aim to see I ain't buried like a dog," he told reporters in announcing last year's event. He said also that he wanted to spend as much of his $75,000 fortune before he dies as is possible—"to make sure them dern relatives of mine don't get my money."

A few weeks ago Jim announced plans for the second "funeral." He said at first, it would not be "near as big a blowout as it was last time." But the probable process time." But the probable presence of the band has changed his mind about the scope of this year's event. "It'll probably the the goldangest funeral on June 8 you ever saw."

Problems already are plaguing him. He originally had planned the funeral for June 1, but the new Bonneville Dam near here is to be dedicated that day. So Jim decided upon June 8, instead.

Same Preacher

The armory, where last year's services were held, won't be available this year. He said they are locking it up for a couple of weeks -just when I needed it." The armory is under repair.

At least one item has been set-tled, the Rev. S. H. Mahaffey of Konorado, Kans., who Jim says, received a $100 fee and the prom ise of an $3,000 inheritance last year, has agreed to do the preaching again.

Jet and Rocket Propulsion Stairway to the Stars?

NEW YORK - The invention of workable reaction motors for both jet and rocket propulsion awaited the 20th century. Though based on the same law, the two methods of movement differ importantly. In jet propulsion air is taken frontally into the motor, compressed, mixed and burned with gas, then ejected with great force at the rear.

The power plant of the modern rocket, on the other hand, carries its own exygen-in turn mixed and burned with gas, then thrust out as with the jet. Theoretically such a mechanism should be able, at some future stage of development, to operate beyond the earth's atmosphere. By 1919 scientific reasoning on the subject tended to support the conclusions of Robert H. Goddard, whose modestly titled paper, 'Method of Reaching Extreme Altitudes," sought to establish the possibility of space-travel in man-controlled rockets.

Little more than two decades later, the Nazis' giant V-2 rockets turned Goddard's stairway to the stars into an arch of hell for the beleaguered people of Britain. Meanwhile, the first successful jet plane was perfected by the young British inventor, Frank Whittle, and flown in May, 1941. Jet aircraft have since been breaking speed and flight records with motonous regularity.

Handling Children Special Problem for Dentists Only

CHICAGO — A recommendation that parents should stay out of the dentists' operating room while their children are receiving dental treatment has been made in The Journal of the American Dental Association.

Dr. Frank L. Lamons, chairman of the department of orthodontics at Emory University School of Dentistry, and Dr. Mary Lynn Morgan, both of Atlanta, Ga., said parents should be informed fully about the conditions of their children's mouths and the treatment needed. But they added:

"Departure of the parents from the scene of action brings miraculous results in every instance of behavior difficulty. Although there is no apparent behavior problem, the dentist's relationship with the child and the parent will be a happier one."

In the opinion of the Atlanta dentists, if a child is impudent or resentful, the behavior problems should be settled between the dentist and the child.

1951 Broke Records In National Parks

U. S. rangers have closed their books on the greatest travel year in the history of America's national parks.

From Maine to Alaska and Hawaii, more than 36,700,000 people -one in every four Americansvisited historic shrines and saw majestic scenery that they themselves own as part of the far-flung national park system. The figure broke the 1950 record by nearly four million.

Uncle Sam's public park domain -mountains and monuments, canyons and caves-embraces more land than the combined area of Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Delaware and half of New Jersey. Half of the total is in 28 National Parks; the remainder in 175 National Monuments, historical sites, battlefields, and memorials. National forests, ten times as big, are not included. Yellowstone is the largest National Park. A fantastic land of geysers, hot springs, mud volcanoes, waterfalls, mountains, and forests, it sprawls across more than two million acres of Wyoming, Montana, and Idaho.

Who's Right?

Sensational catches of largemouth and Kentucky bass in the impound-ed TVA waters in the past two years are adding fuel to the argument by many anglers that bass do not actually hibernate during the winter.

At Kentucky Lake, Dale Hollow,

Lake Herrington and even at newlyimpounded Wolf Creek Reservoir (since officially named Lake Cumberland by the Kentucky Legislature) catches of bass during even the coldest weather have been amazing.

What does this prove? It proves, asserts the "bass-don't-hibernate" school that the scrappy species can be taken the year round, wherever water is open, and that the reason this knowledge hasn't been shared by all the angling fraternity is that too many of the members sit around a warm fire vegetating during the winter when they could be out catching bass, if they knew their business.

There is no gainsaying the fact that many and big bass are being taken in the winter in the big lakes, and we can add a personal note that it has been done in the streams, too. For instance, in Elkhorn Creek, near Frankfort, Ky. one plugster took five smallmouth in five casts on a cold, Febmary day. The creek was clear, but about two feet high when he pulled the feat.

We'll grant that this is not a performance that can be duplicated day in and day out during the winter months, but we think any reasonable angler will have to re-examine his views on the matter of bass fishing being dead in the wintertime, if he is aware of what anglers have been doing in the lakes. The English harrier, halfway between the beagle and foxhound in see, was developed in England for pack hunting of hares. While some have found their way to America they have never been very popular

Many hunters like fox or 'coon hounds for running rabbits. These faster hounds are usually inefficient in hunting cottontails as these rabbits are likely to "hole up" before fast hounds. However, varying hares are much different quarry. These big "snowshoe" hares will run for hours ahead of the hounds and seldom hole. In the deep snow of the north woods many prefer a fast foxhound for this sport-the faster the better. Few hounds are fast enough to catch these speedsters but it can be done.

Coon or tree hounds. Perhaps the aristocrat of hounds is the "straight 'cooner." by "straight is meant a dog that will run nothing but raccoon. Such hounds usually do not reach perfection short of three or more years of age. Other "varmint" hounds run oppossum and skunk.
