Inspecting New Smelt Nets

Two Veterans Say This is Their Final Season

The two fishermen brothers, John and Charlie Trudell, are shown inspecting one of their new nets before setting it this week for the expected big run of smelt. Friday they stated that this year would be their last season of fishing after spending a total of 120 years between them fishing on Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron. They have operated from the Tawas River mouth for a number of years, each one owning a fish tug and stake driver and do most of the work themselves. The brothers both started fishing when they were about ten years old with their father, Louis Trudell, who operated out of Bay City and fished near the Charity Islands. They docked at the Belinda Street Bridge.

In reminiscing over old times, John, at left, stated that the fishing industry today is about in the same shape as it was sixty years ago when they had a few bad years. He said that in the old days when they used sail boats to work from, they received about three to five cents per pound for their catches of white fish and pickeral.

When asked about his opinion on the decline of the fishing industry in Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron, John said that he thought the fish ran in cycles and that fishing should improve. (Continued No. 3, Back Page)

FCC Plan Would Give Iosco County a Television Station

Iosco County can look forward to its own television on a new station which may be built under a plan of the Federal Communications Commission, in East Tawas.

The FCC plan, which has just been adopted calls for 64 new stations in Michigan. Most of them will operate in the Ultra-High Frequency range, which is an untapped section of the radio spectrum. Use of this UHF band and expansion of the present very high frequency service should eventually permit nearly 2,000 new television stations in every section of the nation. The 108 television stations now operating in the United States are in the VHF range.

"The adoption of the UHF plan in conjunction with the expansion of VHF means the beginning of a truly nationwide television service, with visual entertainment and education brought to remote areas miles from the nearest cities," stated Dr. C. B. Jolliffe, vice president and technical director of the Radio Corporation of America, which pioneered the development of UHF television. "We are ready to build the transmitting and receiving equipment to bring about this national television service."

Honored at Anniversary Dinner

Shifting to Grass Doesn't Mean Grain Output Lag

"Grassland farming" is not going all out to grass.

R. G. Hill, Michigan State College Extension Specialist in Soil Conservation, believes too many people have the wrong conception of the aim of those advocating grass land farming.

Shifting of more land to grasses and legumes or using more legumes in crop rotations as soil conservation measures would not result in over-all fewer bushels of grain or row crops in the future. Hill contends. Increased yields of cultivated crops following the grasses and legumes and with the application of other conservation practices would make up for the small decrease in total cultivated crop acreage.

Hill pointed to results of experiments conducted by the Michigan State College Soil Science Department at the Perden Farm near Chesaning. In 1951 on plots where alfalfa-brome preceded corn, the average yield was 63 bushels an acre. Where no legume was used in the rotation, the average yield was less than 14 bushels an acre. All plots were fertilized alike.

Another consideration is the fact that there are thousands of acres of rolling land on which corn is being grown where the average yield is too low to justify its continued production. This same land would produce a greater tonnage of roughage and animal nutrients if converted to grass and legumes. In addition, rolling land used for cultivated crops will continue to become less productive unless intensive erosion control practices are applied.

"If we would put more of our eroded fields that are yielding an average of 40 bushels of corn per acre or less, into grass and legumes, and if legumes are used in regular crop rotations, our over-all production could be increased without adding more acres in crops. At the same time, we would be conserving our soil for future use. There will be greater demands by people and industry from about the same number of acres as the years go by," Hill concluded.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

HAROLD R. CLARK
County Agricultural Agent

Sheep breeders received some good tips on sheep management from Graydon Blank, Extension Specialist in Animal Husbandry of Michigan State College at the two stops we made last Tuesday.

Martin Fahselt's sheep herd had all been shorn and lambs were arriving. Martin has been shearing before lambing for some time and says he would not go back to the old method. It practically controls ticks and they are not found on lambs. Mr. Blank says he likes the plan. The lamb has an easier time finding the first meal and the flock owner can make better observation at lambing time. Anyone who has a comfortable inclosure can shear early.

When sheep are not clipped before lambing the lambs should be dusted with D. D. T. or a rotenone powder to protect them from ticks.

For internal parasites he recommended phenothiazine with salt. The mixture of one pound of phenothiazine and 14 pounds of salt should be kept before sheep at all times... every day the year around. If the ewes are now getting this mixture he advised the flock owner to wait until the lambing season is over. Before starting the phenothiazine it is advisable to drench with nicotine and copper.

Mr. Blank gave a docking and castration demonstration at Arthur Musk's farm. He admitted there were several methods of doing these jobs but liked masculator for docking and knife for castration. The rubber bands were satisfactory but close observation for infection should be given.

In discussing diseases he said stiff lamb disease can be cured by using vitamin E pills. He recommended 100 milligrams daily until recovery is complete. A ration made up of one-third wheat will help to ward off the disease.

Pregnancy disease is another disease which is common at lambing time and is a disease that has caused flock owners considerable loss. In the early stages the ewe becomes less active than the rest of the flock. Later they become weaker, show stiffness and have difficulty in getting up and down.

The cause is usually insufficient consumption of feed or poor quality feed. Treatment, if given promptly, is helpful. Sort out the weak ewes and feed more liberally of higher quality hay and a little grain. Effectuated ewes should be drenched with a cup of cane molasses twice daily. After the lambs are born, the ewes usually make complete recovery.

Blank said wool prices are less than one half of a year ago. A government loan program is in operation in which about 45 cents per pound is guaranteed. To get the loan, the farmer must deliver wool to primary handler where it will be graded, and weighed. If market advances, the farmer can sell and pay up the loans. Loans will run until February 15, 1953. If the wool is not sold the government will take up the wool at the loan price.

Too many farmers look on pastures as a "poor relation" to their crop land.

Furrows plowed up and down hill become race track for rain-drops.

Serve Green Beans For Economy When Family Has Yearning for Vegetable

Green beans may not be favorites with your family but they are important in diet. It might help your children to become more interested in learning to like beans if they could see how much the family is saving by serving them instead of frozen asparagus, for instance. If your family has a yearning for some special treat or special article of furniture, it might be an incentive.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round BY DREW PEARSON

Five Reasons

FRIENDS of President Truman attribute the following reasons for his historic decision not to run again.

First, the wishes of Mrs. Truman; second, his age—he would have been, if elected, the oldest President ever to take the oath of office; third, the advice of party leaders, including Speaker Sam Rayburn and Chief Justice Fred Vinson; fourth, the embarrassing setback given him by Senator Kefauver in New Hampshire; and finally, the prospect that he would have to run against his old friend, General Eisenhower.

For a long time the President has indicated to members of his family and to his closer friends that he did not want to run. More recently he intimated to one close intimate that the barrage of criticism was getting on his nerves and he wanted to get out.

Probably only three or four of his friends really knew how he felt one of them being the chief justice whom the President had urged to be the Democratic nominee himself.

At one time, approximately nine to twelve months ago, it was Mr. Truman's plan to appoint the chief justice to a key post in the administration such as secretary of state or defense mobilizer in order to give him a springboard to the presidency.

This plan was sidetracked in part by Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin, though McCarthy to this day probably doesn't realize it. However, the constant barrage of criticism fired at Dean Acheson made it imperative in the mind of Mr. Truman, whose loyalty of his friends is legion, that Acheson be continued at the helm of the state department.

Taft Tempted Truman

It was at this point—approximately around December and January—that President Truman seriously considered changing his mind about running. This period coincided with Senator Taft's reputed gains of delegates and when the Eisenhower backers were discouraged.

This itching on the President's part to take on Senator Taft was what caused some of his most revered political friends, including Speaker Rayburn and the chief justice, to urge him not to run.

Their view was that Harry Truman would go down in history as a great President, if for nothing else, because of his courageous foreign policy. Historians, the chief justice is understood to have told the President, would overlook the petty political bickering and the corruption issue and would focus attention upon Truman's courage in saving Greece and Turkey from communism, in putting across the Marshall Plan and in conceiving the North Atlantic pact for the defense of Western Europe.

Ike Was Feared

Of all the deterrent factors, perhaps the most important was the probability that Mr. Truman would have to run against Eisenhower.

Friends of the president who sat with him on the "back porch" of the White House in June 1948 recalled how worried he was over the prospect that Eisenhower would consent to have his name entered in the Democratic convention in Chicago. Truman made no secret of his belief that Ike could take the Democratic convention by storm, and he stewed mentally over some means of taking Eisenhower out of the race.

It was on this particular evening that George Allen was sent to New York to get a letter from the General guaranteeing that he would not run.

Almost four years later, in the late summer of 1951, Truman again took confidential steps to make sure he would not face Eisenhower as a candidate. He remembered first a commitment he had made to Ike through their mutual friend, George Allen, in 1948—that if Ike wanted to run in '52, he, Truman would help him.

Truman told Allen that he considered the North Atlantic pact one of the most important cornerstones for world peace and that Eisenhower's leadership was essential to it. He added that he was worried over Republican statements that Eisenhower was available for the GOP nomination, and he felt that both the United States and our allies should know whether Ike was running the North Atlantic pact or running for President.

Finally, the President suggested that George Allen fly to Paris and have a heart-to-heart talk with Eisenhower.

Allen countered by suggesting that Mr. Truman write a friendly note to Ike summarizing his views which he, Allen, would deliver in Paris.

This was done. Allen delivered the note and reported to the White House later: First, that Eisenhower would not quit the North Atlantic pact in the near future; second, that the NATO job would be completed by this spring; third, that if he did run, he would talk to Truman first.

CHRYSLER FirePower
is so much more than HORSEPOWER

+ It's worth remembering that today's Chrysler V-8 is not a "warmed-over" engine, but basically brand new... the first truly new type engine of modern times. It does, indeed, open new horsepower potentials, but what it can mean to you goes way beyond just that...

+ FirePower is also a better-built engine throughout. It doesn't require premium fuel. It runs with less waste, less heat, less wear, less carbon deposit than other type engines can do. More of your gasoline's energy is turned into actual road power, greater reserve for passing and top speeds when needed...

+ FirePower gives your gasoline a better place to work... the first hemispherical combustion chamber in a stock-car engine. It makes possible more power from every drop of gas. You feel it the minute you open up a Chrysler, in greater accelerating power than you've ever had at your command...

+ Why not drive this revolutionary new-type engine, and feel its wonderful difference for yourself? Let your Chrysler dealer show you how much more than horsepower your money can buy in the engine Chrysler has designed from scratch to do an engine's job better, longer, and more efficiently than previous engines can hope to do!

not a 10 or 11 year old gets into club work is determined by the parents. All our adults can learn what 4-H Club work means by observing our demonstration teams and Talent Acts that are visiting various organizations in the county. Those of you that see these young people in action should ask them questions about their 4-H Club work. All their stories will not be alike. Some communities have larger clubs and better programs. It all boils down to parent understanding and cooperation. We are very proud of the accomplishments of our 4-H Club members and leaders. The parents of 4-Hers can be proud of them too.

Want to be entertained and learn about 4-H Club work from the 4-H Club members? Here is what they have to offer. David Fortune is a soloist and one of our accomplished young men of Whittemore. He lives near Whittemore and is another example of what can be accomplished by our older young people. He is 15 years old. Joan Bielby and Mary Jane Douglass of Hale are an example of team work. Their duet will be heard around the county by Farm Bureau groups. Other groups can hear them (and the other acts and demonstrations too) by writing me in the Federal Building, East Tawas. Art Abbott and Ruth Meyer play the "electrical guitars." To hear them is reason enough to wish I were young again so I could learn to use some of that wasted time (I had it too) for something constructive as are Art and Ruth. Clarinets? My folks saw to it I had some appreciation of music through two years of clarinet lessons, but believe me, Carol Runyan and Judy Grabow put me to shame. Their clarinets will be heard around the county too. Then there is Aileen Ward. Her Junior Leadership work has distinguished her in the past and her portrayal as "Mrs. Miggs" doesn't detract a bit from a bright future.

Calorie Conscious? Gloria and Bernice Seigrist will tell all where they can avoid calories, but neither of them are worried about it yet. Don't worry girls! there will come a day.

Judy Cataline, Pavo Bloomquist and James Laidlaw have already performed before the Lower Hemlock Farm Bureau group and at Achievement Day. You can't help but enjoy what they say and do.

Jack Burt is electrifying in himself. He knows his electricity, and he can tell it too. If you're interested in hearing Jack's electrical demonstration let me know.

The story of 4-H Club work is portrayed in part by the 4-H Friendship club with Barbara Wisniewski, Joan and Joyce Anschuetz, Sanda and Judy Ulman, Dorothy and Joyce Wellan and Darlene Groff telling you the story.

After Herb eWndt and Charles Wilson finish telling you the story about our deer herd, you'll think twice about the future of the deer. I know most all our rural folks will hear them sometime this summer.

Gloria Runan and Bernice Seigrist have a demonstration on clothing while Pauline Degesie and Gloria Seigrist can teach you older folks a few knacks about knitting.

Joanne Wendt has a demonstration on "Biscuits the Easy Way." You may learn the latest methods of making biscuits.

Cow Disease Shows Up in Mich. Herds

Conservation Men Tell Of Disease Spread to State Deer Herds

Anthrax, a dreaded livestock and human disease has made its appearance in several counties in the southern part of the state. Authorities are of the opinion that it is not likely that Isosco county will experience an outbreak. However, due our wide range of communication it could happen here.

It is a fatal and very infectious disease to which all farm animals and humans are susceptible. The animals infected become ill and carry a high temperature. Because of the lack of experience with the disease a veterinarian should be called immediately in the case of a sick animal so that a positive diagnosis can be made in the early stages. In the early stages the animal can be treated and cured and the rest of the animals can be immunized by vaccination.

A directive from Dr. Lee Davison, State Veterinarian, states:

1. Dead animals must not be removed from the premises until cause of their death is diagnosed.
2. Farmers holding dead animals should cover them with something to protect chickens, dogs or other animals from coming into contact with the carcasses. This material should be destructible material such as straw, which should be burned. Do not cover with manure and then spread on the land.

Rendering plants have been instructed not to pick up any dead animals without a certificate from a veterinarian. If the animal has died from Anthrax, it must not be removed from the premises but must be buried deep or thoroughly burned.

The most important instructions given is, "Do not wait. Call a veterinarian immediately."

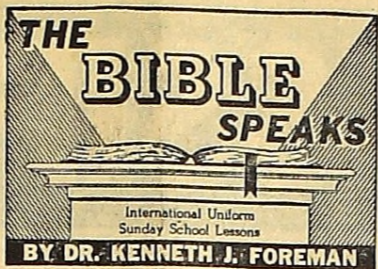

There are no known cases of anthrax disease spreading from cattle into deer herds and no outbreaks are expected if proper farm control measures are taken when needed, the conservation department points out.

"Worst that I anticipate is a small local outbreak or two, if that," assures Dr. Stanley C. Whitlock, game research head.

Game men began showing extra concern when anthrax infection spread into cattle as far north as Oceana county or into deer country.

Melvin Timreck and Neil Abbott should be old hands on "Pure Air." They have and will be glad to present their demonstration to any groups interested.

Read Miss Scott's column and tell me if she explains "Family Fun." I see by the calendar that Friday, April 25 is "Family Fun Day," in the Women's Extension Dept. Everyday of the year is a merry-go round for me!

Jesus and the Law

Lesson for April 20, 1952

THE ELKS' CLUB has a constitution and by-laws, but if you are not an Elk you can pass by the clubhouse a dozen times a week and never so much as wonder what the by-laws are. No Elk will think the worse of you for it, either. The laws of the Elks are for Elks, not the general public.

The Christian church also has a set of laws posted somewhere in every church building, or at least written in a book you will find in every church; namely the Ten Commandments.

People who do not belong to the church sometimes give these laws no more thought than they would give to the Elks' constitution or to the ritual of the Signa Phi Nuthin' fraternity. But that is a mistake. The Ten Commandments are a kind of constitution of mankind, not a set of rules for a private club.

No Ladder to Heaven

HOWEVER, even inside the church, Christians often have mistaken notions about the law of God, particularly the basic laws embodied in the Ten Commandments. Two of these wrong ideas are almost exactly opposite each other, with the truth in the middle.

One mistaken idea is that the law is a kind of ladder to Heaven. That is to say: God is supposed to run a sort of book-keeping department, with a Recording Angel (or perhaps millions of them, one looking over every man's shoulder), jotting down everything a person does from birth to death. Every time he acts in accordance with the Commandments, down goes a plus mark. Every time he breaks one, down goes a minus mark. At the time of his death the account is balanced. If there are more pluses than minuses, then the man is admitted to heaven; if the minus side puts the man "in the red" with God, then off he is hustled to Hell. In other words, on this theory (which is very popular though false), you write your own ticket to Heaven, you climb there on a ladder of your own good deeds.

Jesus did not hold to this notion, indeed taught quite the contrary. Call no man good! he said. For one thing, plus-marks do not cancel out minus marks, and for another thing, seen with the eyes of God, as the famous Richard Hooker said, "the best things we do have somewhat in them to be pardoned." Jesus, the New Testament, and the church after them, teach with one voice that we are saved by faith,—it is God that saves us, not we ourselves.

Love Is No Excuse for Sin

THE mistake at the opposite end of the line is to fancy that if we love God we can do as we please. In other words, the idea is that love is a substitute for obedience. If we just love God fervently enough, then his laws do not apply to us.

Now this mistake is just as bad as the first one. What would we say to a man who is a careless driver, and when arrested for hit-and-run driving tells the Judge, "Your honor, I love everybody, I have nothing against anybody, I love my country, and you ought not to bother me with traffic laws!"

What could we say about a man who claimed he loved his wife very much but never paid any attention to the common rules of politeness when in her presence? What would a grocer say to a man who owed him fifty dollars if the customer claimed to be such a good friend the grocer ought not to send him a bill?

No: Jesus did not teach that God's children have any right to disregard their Father's will.

Living in Obedience

ON the contrary, a Christian will be all the more eager to do what God commands, not because he fears punishment, not because he thinks he can earn his way into God's love, but because obedience is the way God has given us by which we can sincerely show our love to him and to our fellowmen.

As Cardinal Newman put it: "Justification (the theologians' word for a person's being on right terms with God) is received by faith; consists in God's inward presence, and lives in obedience." To put it another way: Doing what God desires is not the cause of being saved; it is the result of being saved. When we have done all we can, indeed all we have been commanded, Jesus said, we are still "unprofitable servants;" we have nothing to boast of, at our best, for our best comes from God.

New Books

Among the new books this week is a handsome volume of "Mr. President." It is President Truman's evaluation of himself and the unique position he maintains. The private notes of the President were culled by William Hillman, a veteran Washington correspondent and from them emerged Mr. Truman's reflection on a luncheon with the late King George VI his private thoughts after visiting Washington critic, the attitudes he assumed about his family, graft and corruption, public opinion polls. There are letters to and about Stettinius, Churchill, Forestal, Gen. Marshall, Taft and others. There are sections on Truman's personal religious beliefs, his advice to young men who want to go into politics, his interest in military science and the history of the Republic and above all, his opinion of where the President stand and should stand in relation to the American people.

The readers who have enjoyed Miss Carson's "Sea Around Us," which has held first place on the Non-Fiction Best Sellers list for the past eight months will want to read her book "Under the Sea-Wind." The mystery and beauty of the sea comes into view again with Miss Carson's portrait of the birds and fishes that inhabit the eastern rim of the continent. All the creatures in the sheltered marshlands along the coast to life through the author's excellent command of the English language. "Life" is depicted in the cycle of Scomber, the mackerel and Anguilla, the eel.

The arm chair traveler will want to read Tom Crichton's true account of his 4,000 mile vagabonding journey across Europe and the near East in his twenty-five foot sailboat which he describes in "Sailboat Tramp."

"Catholicism and American Freedom," by James O'Neill answers some of the accusations contained in the Paul Blanshard book "American Freedom and Catholic Power." The author of this new book is chairman of the Speech Department at Brooklyn College. He is neither a trained theologian or an official spokesman for the Catholic Church. His aim is to convince readers that Blanshard is wrong in claiming that the Catholic Church is an enemy of American freedom. Everyone who is making use of Mr. Blanshard's book owes it to himself and those he seeks to influence to lay Mr. O'Neill's reply on the same table along side it.

The other new books are: "Devil's Advocate," by Taylor Caldwell; "How to Get Rich in Washington," by Blair Bolles; "Sprock of Democracy," a biography of Dwight Eisenhower by Kenneth Davis; "Private Papers of Senator Vandenberg," edited by Arthur H. Vandenberg; "Diving for Adventure," by Bruce Catton; "Give the Lady What She Wants," by Lloyd Went; "Contest Story," contesting for fun and profit, by John R. Burnham.

Will Conduct Lectures

JOHN W. BLACKSTOCK

John W. Blackstock, District president of the Reorganized church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will hold a series of lectures at the church in Tawas City, beginning April 20 through Friday, April 25.

The general theme will be "The beliefs of the Church of Jesus Christ."

Sunday evening services will start at 7:30. Week-night services at 8:00. Visual education aids will be used each night. The public is invited.

Calendar: Tuesday, April 15—Michigan State College Alumni potluck supper meeting, East Tawas High School, 6:30 p. m. Friday, April 25—'Family Fun' training meeting for leaders, Reno Townhall at 10:00 a. m. The last meeting of the Hale Home Extension group was held April 9. The lesson on "Fabrics" was given by Mrs. Frank Abbinate and Mrs. George Dodge. We plan to have a picnic at Mrs. Roy Heilman's June 10. It is to be pot-luck and I know we will have a good time. Mrs. William Werely had some "Membership Surveys" which we filled out. A nice lunch was prepared by Mesdames Stan Shellenbarger and William Werely. The latter brought her sister, Mrs. Laura Mosier to our meeting. Others present at the meeting were our chairman Mrs. Charles Attwell, and mesdames, David Runyan, Neva Caton, Donald Stiltz, Ira Scofield and your reporter Lu Hatfield. Our next meeting will be the last of this season. It will be held on May 14 and the lesson will be on "Family Fun." —Mrs. Lu Hatfield, Hale News exporter.

STRICTLY BUSINESS

by McFeatters

"I want you to meet our research chemist when he comes back from his latest experiment!"

With the varied interests which families experience outside the home today it is easy to believe that having fun at home is a thing of the past. To further complicate the situation we are told that many people have more time for fun these days. Certainly helping young children learn how to play is a necessary part of family fun. Play is serious business with the young child and in addition to being a pleasant pastime for the child, it is also a way of learning. Some adults have never progressed to the point where they really know how to play. Family fun should include, in addition to the simple games and hobbies practiced at home, a desire to take advantage of spontaneous fun. To be willing and ready to inject a little mirth into the family group is a technique no adult can afford to overlook.

Sharing the tasks and interests of family members can be fun when one has the welfare of each at heart. And as the family participation as a group in community affairs can be a growing part of family fun.

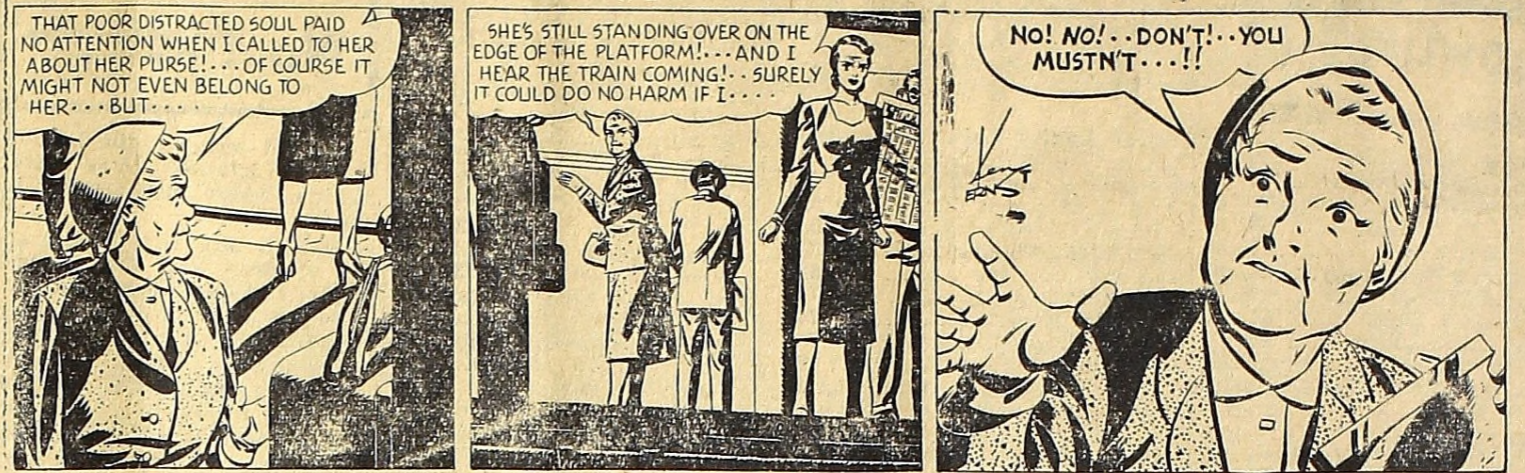

Mrs. Lennah Backus, Michigan State College specialist in parent education, has provided us the above as a preliminary message about our next leadership training meeting, "Family Fun," which is to be held on Friday, April 25, at Reno Townhall, beginning at ten o'clock.

If you haven't investigated the roller for painting your walls—ask your neighbor about it. She will tell you that the time saving is great. If your husband is helping you paint your walls you will be able to change the face of a wall—an average sized room in one evening. That is easy house cleaning, fast too.

You can lose weight by eating toast, milk and juice for breakfast, and butter too. When you eat a breakfast like that you are not tempted to snack before noon meal. Those snacks have no place in the plan for the adult whose doctor has advised her to cut down on her food intake.

Michigan F. B. Leads All States In Membership

This year Michigan is first again. The Bureau reached its 1952 membership goal of 51,500 on March 26, with a total of 51,530 families as paid up members. Last year Michigan Farm Bureau smashed through to the uppermost level in the membership campaign of the American Farm Bureau Federation by becoming the first state to reach its annual membership goal. Roll Call campaigners of Michigan Farm Bureau from Membership Director Wesley S. Hawley right down to the greenest of the 5,000 or so Farm Bureau members who gave their "All" for the membership drive are patting one another on the back for "A job well done for the second time in a row." Iosco County went over the top with 164 paid memberships, 115% of its goal. Under the leadership of Orville G. Strauer roll call manager and he and his captains are to be congratulated for the fine job well done. Michigan Farm Bureau is now at an all time high. Best previous record was 48,000 in 1947. This year it was done two weeks earlier than in 1951.—Mrs. L. Newvine.
