Railroads Must Change With the Times Says Pinkerton in Address at Mackinac Island

"If you think the first beginnings of things can stay still, and by staying still beget new movements in things, you stray very far away from true reasoning," quoted Charles A. Pinkerton, Jr., president and general manager of Detroit and Mackinac Railway, in an address last Thursday before members of the Treasury Division of the American Railroad Association at a Conference held at Mackinac Island. The quotation from the Roman philosopher, Lucretius, keyed Pinkerton's address which emphasized that change is inevitable and continuous and that it must be met with an alert dynamic program for keeping up with the trend of the times.

Pinkerton was the principal speaker at the first day's session of the convention at which more than 300 members and guests were in attendance. Nearly every railroad in the United States was represented. N. W. Salisbury, treasurer, represented the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company at the convention.

In the address Pinkerton pointed out the many changes in conditions which had faced the Detroit and Mackinac in 70 years of existence and how that railroad had endeavored to meet them. Built as a logging road, at the depletion of the forests, how it had turned to agriculture, mining and quarry products, the movement of which has constituted its principal source of revenue. Change has again challenged with competition from trucks and waterways transportation. The passenger traffic of the smaller roads has completely succumbed to competition of buses and personal transportation of the automobile.

Pinkerton's address was optimistic and he concluded with, "If we maintain a philosophy dedicated to effecting self-improvement, then we are going to maintain our position as one of the greatest mass transportation systems in the world."

"The railroads are needed now and will continue to be needed. For in the final diagnosis the flanged steel wheel rolling on steel rail, and the adaptability of any basic railroad car capable of being linked together in trains for collective movement, constitutes the most efficient and flexible transportation system yet developed."

SPORT CARS READY FOR FIELD TRIALS

The Michigan Sports Car Club, with headquarters in Birmingham, held a week-end outing here last week-end. The group of 14 members and wives were guests of the LeClair Cabins. On Sunday field trials were run at the old C. C. Camp in Huron National Forest. The three types of cars represented were the English MG and Jaguar and the German Volks-Wagon. These foreign made cars and one or two American cars are most popular with sports car drivers. The Jaguar is a larger, low-slung, fast-moving vehicle. The MG has a four cylinder engine, a good braking and steering system, averaging 30 to 31 miles to a gallon of gasoline. The conventional automobile is superior in speed on hard surfaces, but on twisting gravel and sand roads the MG holds the road better. The Volks-Wagon is a rear engine drive, sedan type car that is very popular in Germany.

George Laskey of Berkley was in charge of the local outing, and John Hansen of Hazel Park, president of the organization.

Religion of Thanks Typified in Psalms In Praise of God

WHEN the Apostle Paul, contemplating the blessings of God through Christ, sought to express his wonderment and praise, prose failed him, and he burst into the lyricism of psalm: "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift."

The giving of thanks was a deep and impassioned thing in Paul, the Christian.

And the note of thankfulness was deep and strong in the religion of the Old Testament, which was the heritage of both Paul and his Master.

Its highest expression is in the Psalms.

If one had to choose one Psalm that typifies the religion of thanksgiving, one would probably pick the 107th, although the group of Psalms from the 103rd through the 107th are full of the note of thanks.

Thankfulness in religion is not only a proper attitude for blessings received, it is also an attitude of receptiveness.

An unthankful soul is a closed soul. Not much can penetrate the wall of an unthankful spirit.

Probably the most beautiful of all the Psalms are those in which the note of thankfulness is uppermost—the Psalms of praise for what God has done, that call upon men to bless God for His goodness and wonderful works to the children of men, and that express the love of the Lord as the proper response of a thankful heart.

There is such a thing as saying "Please" to God. The Psalmists knew how to say it, as humble suppliants, and they knew how to say "Thanks."

As the Psalms offer us the rich substance of praise and thankfulness, they offer, too, the finest models in beauty of form and expression.

It is not a coincidence, but in frank recognition of this, that in so many churches the responsive readings are drawn from the Psalms.

Explains Wheat Marketing Quota

There has been some misunderstanding among farmers and others about certain provisions of the 1954 Wheat Allotment and Marketing Quota program according to Dornace E. Bellville, chairman of the Iosco County PMA Committee. He states that it is very important that wheat farmers understand these provisions prior to planting time.

First of all, a farmer must stay within the wheat allotment established for his farm if he is to be eligible for the government 90 percent price support loan or purchasing agreement on his crop. This is true regardless of the size of the farm allotment and regardless of the fact that marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1954 crop of wheat.

Under marketing quotas, Mr. Bellville explains, the penalty provision applies only to those farms planting more than 15 acres and where the farm allotment is exceeded. For example, a farm with a 17 acre allotment with 20 acres planted would have a three acre excess. A farm with an eight acre allotment with 17 acres of wheat planted would have a nine acre excess. However, a farm with an eight acre allotment with only 15 acres planted would have no wheat subject to marketing quotas and no penalty would apply. In each of these examples the farms would not be eligible for the 90 percent support price since the farm allotment was exceeded.

A farm without a wheat acreage allotment and planting more than 15 acres for 1954 will have the entire wheat acreage considered as "excess acres" and all the wheat will be subject to penalty.

The penalty for excess wheat will be 50 percent of the basic loan rate as of May 1, 1954, which would be about $1.08 per bushel, according to Mr. Bellville. This penalty would be assessed on the normal production or the actual production, whichever is the smaller, of wheat from the excess acres. The penalty would be paid before the farmer could sell any of his wheat crop. There will be a provision whereby the excess wheat can be stored to postpone or avoid the penalty. More information regarding the storing of excess wheat will be available at a later date.

Another point which farmers should understand is in regard to wheat to be used as green manure, hay or pasture. If any farmer intends to plant wheat in excess of the farm allotment for this use he must notify the County PMA Committee of his intentions prior to seeding time and designate the fields on which he will seed wheat for this purpose. Otherwise, all wheat planted on the farm will be considered as planted for grain when measurements are taken this fall.

In regard to wheat mixtures, Mr. Bellville explained that any wheat mixture under the allotment quota program must contain less than 50 percent by weight of wheat when seeded and which when harvested produces less than 50 percent of wheat by weight. Any farmer who intends to seed a wheat mixture that will qualify is to notify the County PMA Committee of his intentions prior to planting time and designate the field on which he will plant the mixture.

The wheat marketing quota program applies to all farms in the county upon which wheat is planted for use in 1954, not just for those farms which have or will comply with the Agricultural Conservation Program. The wheat marketing program is designated by the Secretary of Agriculture, voted on by the wheat farmers it concerns and administered through the Production and Marketing Administration.

Growers who have further questions about the operation of the wheat allotment and marketing quota program, get in touch with the County PMA Office.

Be thankful, as the cooler weather arrives, that you do not have to worry about a fuel shortage in this country.

The light that didn't fail

It was 1 o'clock in the morning. To George Stevens, dial telephone switchman, the light on the panel meant that somewhere a telephone was off the hook. An improperly replaced receiver perhaps, or one dislodged by a frisky cat. On the other hand this might be a distress signal. That's what George Stevens thought as he plugged in on the line.

There was no mistaking the weak but urgent voice he heard—a woman calling for help. Quickly Stevens traced the connection to get the telephone number. Then he called another switchman to get the woman's address. Within minutes Stevens had notified the police who sped to the home of the stricken woman in Dearborn.

They found an elderly woman helpless on the floor. Later at the hospital she told what had happened. A widow, living alone, she had suffered a severe heart attack that night. Though partially paralyzed, she managed to upset the table on which the telephone stood to summon help.

Police say that Stevens' prompt action "beyond a doubt" saved her life. Michigan Bell awarded him a Vail citation, a tribute to telephone people for outstanding service in emergencies.

County Agent News

By MARVIN DAVENPORT

Experience was the best teacher at the recent county-wide grass silage tour. We called upon Wendall and Thurman Scofield near Hale to hear about their grass silage experiences. Wendall related that they had about 100 tons of grass in their stack silo. Both Thurman and Wendall believe their silo will be of better use after they have lined it with concrete. They do have a drainage problem, and Gordon Hatch, soil conservationist, will assist them with laying out the proper grade to solve it.

Wendall opened the stack and found about 15 inches of the silage spoiled before he reached the good. Casper Blumer, Acona county agricultural agent, noted that the wheel track where the packing ended was exactly at the point where the good silage was obtained. This shows the importance of sufficient packing to insure no spoilage due to air penetration.

Mr. Hatch determined the acidity of several samples with a soil test kit, finding the range to be pH of 4.5-4.6.

Next stop was at the Joseph Barnes farm. He has been self-feeding his stack since August, and maintains that feeding silage during August certainly helped him keep up the milk flow. Another pointer mentioned here was that cutting our hay early helps us to produce more roughage per acre for feed. By getting the first hay crop into silage the second cutting gets an earlier start.

We can get more feed from an acre of hay made into silage than we can by pasturing it. Cattle or sheep spoil much of the pasture by trampling it down, whereas cutting and feeding it as silage uses everything. True, there is some spoilage with silage, but by learning the proper way to make and care for it such spoilage can be reduced to a minimum.

At Ralph Harris' farm we saw more results of a cow's curiosity, even the silage is "greener on the other side of the gate." As a result Ralph had some wasted silage where the cows had broken down the gate.

He had his grass silage in an upright silo last year. Here is what he he says about a stack silo. "Self-feeding a stack eliminates the job of carrying heavy silage. It also means the difference between one and a half days for building the stack as compared to three days to fill an upright."

Ralph is sold on it. His two thoughts for improvement are to build a higher stack on his cement base and using an electric wire to control the cows as they self-feed.

We really had a surprise at Royden Parkinson's farm. When Gordon Hatch and I had been there three days before, just materials were laying about. It took the best part of a day for him to get a real start on his horizontal silo. He has located it in a place where his concrete base will be essential.

He plans to raise it enough to reduce his problem of drainage to a minimum. Casper Blumer suggested he widen his silo from 10 to as much as 15 feet which will help provide enough silage for the number of animal units he wishes to feed for nearer the full feeding time of approximately 210 days.

It is a good idea to select a site for the horizontal silo that is higher than the surrounding area.

Our afternoon tour started at the Victor Herriman farm. He is wondering if and where he could locate a stack of grass silage.

With the help of Gordon Hatch's level, Casper Blumer showed Victor where to develop some grass waterways and improve the drainage around the silo area. If Victor starts planning now, he will have time to develop a good stack in a good location for self-feeding his cows and sheep.

At the next stop, we saw silage in an upright silo belonging to George Prescott. Jack Peters, the farm manager, says the cattle are really going for it. Casper Blumer mentioned that the first 10 feet of grass put in an upright silo. It is most essential that the right kind of bacteria go to work for us. If we put a too wet grass in the bottom, then the pressure will exclude air to a point where the bottom may be spoiled. An acid test on the Prescott silage showed the pH to be about 4.5.

Ray and Charles Kobs have plenty of silage, and they have done a superb job of packing it. That is very important in the reduction of spoilage. When Ray got on top of the stack, he dug down not more than five inches to as good a silage as we had seen on the tour.

How did they do it? They field chopped their grass and put it on the stack and packed it, then packed it some more. Then, as Ray said, "We cut all the grass from our waterways and along the fences, had it good and dry and put it on the top."

There is one caution if any of you plan a large stack—don't set it wider than can be fed fast enough to prevent its getting moldy. This means using as much as four or five inches each day.

Then we were off to see Charles Timreck's two uprights. He plans to feed out of these year-around. A pH test of 4.0-4.2 indicated the Timrecks had done the job of getting faster acid conditions and quicker fermentation to break down the fibers or cellulose of the grasses. How did they do it? By adding 100 pounds of shelled corn to each ton of grass silage. The addition of corn (carbohydrate) helped create the ideal acid conditions that produced such wonderful results.

With Iosco 4-H Clubs

By Dorothy Scott

4-H Club leaders at their September Council meeting asked if it will be possible for the Friendship 4-H Club to present its business meeting demonstration, complete with program and recreation, for 4-H Club members, leaders and parents to see.

Mrs. Fred Pfahl, community leader, said she would talk with the young people and see if arrangements can be made to make several presentations around the county.

So, if you hear about one in your vicinity, it will be your opportunity to see what these young people have learned through their experiences in business meeting demonstration competition. They really did very well at the State Show eliminations contest, placing fifth among 11 teams.

A number of other decisions were reached by the leaders at the meeting which will concern the 4-H Clubs in 1954. Plans were also made for the Community Leaders to meet on Wednesday evening, September 23, at the awards committee. They will advise in the selection of outstanding 4-H Club members to receive medals, pins and special awards at a county-wide event later on.

The matter of continuing a column in the paper for 4-H Club activities was discussed. There was agreement that 4-H Club members like their own place for news and that the column should be continued.

As you may suspect, with Mr. Davenport away at school, the home demonstration agent will have three news columns to plan. It will help greatly to keep the 4-H Club news interesting and regular if all 4-H Club news reporters get "on the ball" and keep news of their activities rolling in.

4-H'ers will want to welcome members of the new Vine Community 4-H Club, just getting started. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bennington have been very helpful in making the arrangements for its organization. At present they have seven members, all boys, who will have handicraft and electrical projects. They are: Arthur Abbott, Jack Abbott, Michael Blust, Howard Blust, James Curry, Robert Curry and Dennis Bennington.

The county's largest area, largest membership Hale Community 4-H Club has decided it is big enough to divide four ways. Two of the areas agreed upon have already had organizational meetings at the Lyke and Hula homes. These are the North and West areas. Hale Grange is helping to sponsor the development of better 4-H Club opportunities for the 4-H'ers in the community.

Two 4-H Clubs will also grow where one was before in the Tawas-Grant townships area. Members of the Friendship 4-H Club travel long distances from fringe to fringe, so it has been decided to have a club in Grant and one in Laidlawville.

Any families having children between 10 and 20 years of age interested in belonging to any of these 4-H Clubs should contact members in their area or

HDA NOTES

By DOROTHY SCOTT

County-Line Home Demonstration Group came into being with an organization meeting held in the home of Mrs. David Runyan on September 11. Other county groups and the home demonstration agent join in saying, "Welcome."

Officers elected are as follows: Mrs. Roderick Heilman, chairman; Mrs. Clyde McFarland, vice-chairman; Mrs. George Bissonette, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Albert Lauer, community chairman; Mrs. Harry Seaver, recreation leader. Project leaders are Mrs. Donald Stiltz and Mrs. Neva Caton. Council delegates are Mrs. David Runyan and Mrs. Fred Timlick.

Mrs. Roderick Heilman will be hostess to the new group's next meeting on September 23. A membership drive is in progress and the group extends an invitation to anyone interested to contact Mrs. Heilman, or just come to the next meeting, suggests Mrs. Lauer, news reporter.

Mrs. Charles Attwell, Hale group reporter, tells about the first meeting of the Hale Home Demonstration Group this fall, held on September 9, at the school. Following a discussion, it was decided to reorganize the group since there are enough women interested to have a group of their own near the county line.

A special meeting will be arranged soon for the Hale women to select their 1954 officers and leaders. Women interested are invited to join now.

Following the business meeting Mrs. Donald Stiltz gave instruction in the making of various types of darts used in clothing construction. Several of the ladies made a trial one with good results.

Two October events of general interest to women are the tour on October 6, which is being sponsored by the home demonstration council and the garden clubs, and the family meeting on October 21 for which we shall have the assistance of Mrs. Lennah Backus, parent education and child development specialist from Michigan State College. More details about these meetings will appear in the next few columns.

Group lessons this fall and winter include a series of three on better methods of clothing construction. They are called "Dress Finishes" but most of the methods considered are used in sewing other garments than dresses. There then is planned a craft lesson in basket weaving, and two meetings to show how to have fun with frostings.

If these lessons, meetings and workshops sound interesting to you, why not get in touch with us right away so we can help you take advantage of them?

Haste rarely saves time.

New word for GETAWAY "TT" DYNAFLOW!

The 1953 Buick Super Riviera. Wire wheel covers, illustrated, optional at extra cost.

We'll get right to the point.

The comments we've been getting from many new Buick owners about the new Twin-Turbine Dynaflow are terrific.

And the reason is—this fully automatic transmission is, in itself, terrific.

It has a new, firm, solid "take-hold"—gives you instant getaway response.

It has new quiet—you can barely hear the acceleration build-up.

It has unique and utter simplicity of operation. You just move your Selector into Drive range, press the pedal, and go. That's all.

But the sweetest thing of all about TT Dynaflow is its smoothness.

You move from standstill to your legal speed in one progressive build-up of power delivery.

You feel a constant "carry" of forward motion, unbroken in any way—because here no gearshifting takes place, either manually or automatically.

Even your deceleration is infinitely smooth and gradual, with the cushioned control of flowing oil slowing down.

Wouldn't you like to sample this wonderful new getaway and pleasant quiet and immaculate smoothness?

We'll be glad to seat you at the wheel of a new 1953 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow—and let the thrills come where they may. Drop in soon, won't you?
