County Officers Move Into New Courthouse this Week

Old Building Serves County for 86 Years

Handsome New $250,000 County Building Now Nears Completion

After 86 years of service Iosco county's old courthouse at Tawas City as being abandoned, within a few days the county's business will be established in the handsome new $250,000 structure now nearing completion by the Arthur Vollmer Construction Company of Saginaw.

Crews of men and boys, with trucks, under the supervision of county officials, are moving books, records, filing cabinets, computing machines, Addressograph machines and typewriters. The circuit court law library consists of several thousand volumes. In addition, there are two other libraries, one in the prosecuting attorney's office, the other in the probate court office.

The first to be moved into the new building was the large Photostat camera, with its equipment, for the register of deeds office. This was done last week by men from the Photostat Company.

The vaults contain hundreds of bound volumes of records. These include records from circuit court, county treasurer, county clerk, register of deeds, probate court, prosecuting attorney and other county departments. The safe keeping of these records was the principal reason for the new building, and the moving of them must be in an orderly manner to avoid later confusion.

The offices are all equipped with new steel furniture, desks, tables and shelving.

Ground was broken by the Arthur Vollmer Construction Company for the building in September 1952. Authorized by the voters of the county at the April election of that year, the contract was awarded to the Arthur Vollmer Construction Company on August 15. It has required a little more than a year to complete its construction but the time spent has produced something that the people of the county will point to with pride for many years to come.

In charge of operations of moving into the new building are Supervisor Harold Black of Reno township and Supervisor Elmer Werth, chairman of the special courthouse building committee.

Meridith was going south on US-23. When near Alabaster his car went off the road, he brought it back onto the pavement, but the car, out of control, went across the highway, along a guard rail and into a deep ravine.

After an investigation by State Police a ticket was issued for reckless driving.

US-23 Accident Fatal to Rogers City Resident

Wife and Small Son Seriously Injured

Burial Services of William Swallow Held Thursday At Zion Cemetery

An automobile accident on US-23 a short distance south of Jarvisville Monday evening resulted in the death of one person and two are in serious condition at the Tawas Hospital.

William Swallow died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital at Bay City. The injured are his wife, Lois, and son, Norman.

Mrs. Swallow is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Ross of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Swallow's home is at Rogers City, and they were on their way here for a holiday visit with their parents.

The accident occurred at about 5:30 after they passed through Harrisville. Approaching from the south was a car towing a Ford pickup. A blow-out of the left rear tire caused the pickup to swerve over the centerline of the road, crashing into the Swallow car.

About 10 minutes after the accident and before the injured people had been moved, Philip Ross, a salesman for the Alpena Candy Company, passing by thought the wrecked car looked familiar so he stopped to investigate. The injured were his sister and her family. They were brought to the Tawas Hospital.

It was found that Mr. Swallow's injuries required an emergency operation, but he succumbed on the way to the hospital at Bay City.

William H. Swallow was born November 6, 1917, at Alpena. On January 19, 1946, he married Lois Ross at Saginaw. He is survived by his wife, little son, Norman; his father, Peter Swallow of Alpena, and several brothers and sisters.

Funeral services were held at 12:00 noon Thursday at Rogers City. Interment was at 4:00 in the Zion Lutheran Cemetery of this city. Military rites were given under the auspices of the American Legion.

Tests Reveal 19 With Loss of Hearing in Iosco

Nineteen persons with hearing loss were found in Iosco county as a result of the adult hearing testing program sponsored by the Michigan Association for Better Hearing. It was announced here today.

The mobile hearing testing unit was in East Tawas from September 28 to October 1, to do screening tests on the general population. It was a direct result of these screening tests that the 19 individuals with evidence of hearing loss were found.

The mobile unit was again in East Tawas from December 8 to December 11, to do follow-up or more comprehensive testing on all persons who failed to pass the screening test. This second test averaged about one hour per person.

A report has been mailed to each individual's doctor so that the doctor will be in a better position to decide the difficulty and prescribe treatment.

The Michigan Association for Better Hearing has been instrumental in organizing over 25 lip reading classes for the hard of hearing throughout Michigan. The Association will attempt to organize such a class in this community as soon as a sufficient number of persons who will need such service have been discovered and as soon as a qualified teacher will accept the responsibility of teaching the class.

The Michigan Association for Better Hearing is an agency of the United Health and Welfare Fund of Michigan and is financed through United Community Chest, United Fund and Torch Drives.

Moving First Equipment

Photostat camera and other dark room equipment from the register of deeds office were the first things to be moved from the old courthouse to the new building. This required special knowledge and the work was under the supervision of experts from the Photostat Company. The new courthouse has a modern designed darkroom for this important equipment.—Herald Photo.

It's your first day out, 1954. And you're the main attraction, sitting on top of the world. That world you're sitting on top of—1954 seems to puzzle you. Well, it puzzles us too. It's a world of laughter and tears . . . harmony and strife. It's dizzy, but well, that's just the way it is. Let's make the most of it. Maybe we can improve it, just a little bit, this year.

Bible Comment:
We Can Know Jesus as Well as His Friends Did

READING the pages of the Gospels, we can perhaps become more familiar with Jesus than were His friends.

Even at the Last Supper in the Upper Room Jesus had still to teach them the lesson of humility and service by washing their feet.

It seems remarkable that those chosen by Jesus, men of initiative, intelligence and daring, should so seriously have failed to grasp His teaching and understand His mission and purpose.

Their hearts and wills were in the right place, but their minds were blinded by the intensity of their ambition and their vision of glory in an earthly kingdom.

They did not understand Him when He said, "My kingdom is not of this world."

But in the aftermath they understood, as the Comforter brought to their remembrance all that Jesus was, said and did. Under that spiritual guidance and remembrance they became what Jesus had intended.

It was John, whose mother had asked preferment for him and who had thereby aroused the indignation of his brethren, who was to express evidence of the effectiveness and power of the Gospel.

"We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren."

We have the advantage of knowing the Master as John first knew Him, but also as John came to know Him with the fullness of love and insight.

Cartoonist have made money on the subject of parents who "take over" the electric train or the dressing of the doll after all the Christmas packages are opened. Fathers chuckle when they see the cartoons. Of course they like to play with trains. After all, Junior is too young to know how to "make it go." But how much will Junior learn if Daddy does all the putting together and making it go?

And then, too, mother is quite upset when small daughter wants to put the little red overcoat on the nude doll, nothing under the coat at all. So mother takes over and starts dressing it. Is daughter having the fun of working out her own plans?

The nuts you nibble are food. So is the candy. Don't wonder why your favorite dress fits too tightly if you eat the usual meals in addition to the tempting holiday treats.

When you get in the mood for making some new clothes for the doll that came for your child this Christmas, remember it is a good idea to make them with raglan sleeves so that children can more easily dress and undress their dolls without your help.

Little fingers will have more success with big hooks and eyes and big buttons than with the dainty size you will be tempted to use.

MORE ON TROUT CHANGES
The changes in trout regulations recently proposed by our Conservation Commission included a recommendation that the size limit be raised to 8 or 9 inches, depending upon certain findings of research biologists. There's good reason in back of this suggestion—more reason than there may be behind many of the other proposals for change.

Hatchery raised trout number more than one million are planted each year as 7" fish or better, and of course none have ever spawned. With a 7" legal limit on all trout, wild and planted, it is very likely that we are taking a very large number of fish before they have reached spawning age.

Natural Reproduction Adequate, If—
We spend around a half-million dollars or more in raising and planting trout on a pretty lavish "put and take" system, and opponents of this plan say that natural reproduction alone can more than replace the annual fisherman's harvest of trout. This theory might well be more believable if we raised the size limit to the point where we allowed our native trout to spawn at least once before putting them in the creel!

Some anglers will say that the biggest percentage of their catch is the smaller fish—and that often they hook themselves so badly that it's wasteful to turn them back to die. In such a case perhaps the tackle is at fault more than the trout, and changes in that direction might be advisable on a voluntary basis.

If the size limit is raised to eight or nine inches the trout must be raised to this size in the hatcheries before release, which means "board and room" for another year, and a much higher cost per fish. Such an increase could spell the doom of planting any adult trout in the near future.

Proposed Changes Reasonable?
In summary you may ask if these proposed changes in trout laws are really necessary . . . and it's a good question. The elimination of "hard-ware" in trout streams has almost been accomplished without legislation simply because this heavy type of lure doesn't fit the requirements of the trout fisherman. The proposal prohibiting fishing between midnight and six o'clock in the morning affects so few fishermen that it just doesn't have much bearing on fish conservation. However, the raising of the size limit looks like good common sense and might be the BIG step in maintaining trout supply in keeping with rising demand. Think it over!

Don't wait to dehorn your 4-H Club beef calf. Do it at the start of your project.

Dehorning is a good idea, not only as a safety measure but as a welfare measure. You won't have to polish horns before taking the animal to the fair.

At the start the project is a good time to dehorn because the calf will not be thrown off feed. You may lose some gain on the calf when you do the job later.

The calf should be castrated immediately for that same reason.

This is a good time to start saving for a 1954 Christmas bonus.

That is the wish of its present members."—Herald Photo.

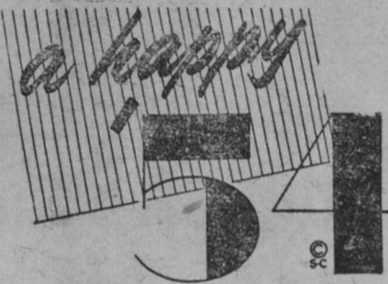

THIRTEEN'S A CROWD—"Heidie" has her troubles, as the lines on her face plainly reveal. The Boxer has 13 pups, but only the conventional eight milk outlets. So the pooches have to eat in shifts to get a share of the food. Helping Heidi with her king-sized feeding problem is her mistress, seven-year-old Nancy Stadler of Salina, Kan.

spent on toys and other playthings by the average Michigan family, so Mrs. Lennah Backus of the home management and child development department at Michigan State College, suggests what we can do with outgrown toys. Give them a chance for a second useful life, she urges. For example, a child's blackboard fastened to a kitchen door or wall can be most convenient for jotting down items for food shopping—or any other day-to-day reminders. An outgrown coaster-wagon or sled can save packing heavy baskets of clothes back and forth to the clothes line. A toy broom is handy to use with a dust pan, or for brushing snowy overshoes at the doorway or ashes at the hearth. Children's cooking sets often include small pans or molds of just the right size for individual servings—on an individual's tray, for example. Crayons are worth keeping handy for labeling boxes or other containers stored in closets or attics. (The color can aid quick identification. Those smooth, small cement play blocks may be used by home dressmakers as weights to hold down patterns for pinning accurately. As for the sturdy small tools the young carpenters use, many of them can take a permanent place in home workshops or tool benches. Even when your children have grown and gone a bag of toys in the house is useful for entertaining young visitors who come with their parents.

This is another picture turned in by Mrs. John Katterman. She did not know how old it was, but did know a couple of the men above. How many can you recognize? This year is Centennial year for Tawas City and only six months until "its" 100th birthday. If you have any ideas or wish to help on this big project, see C. L. McLean or Hugo Keiser, Jr.

Blanket Is Styled for Baby's Protection

New design in baby blankets that are attached to crib by plastic rings eliminates fear that child will be smothered or entangled in the covers.

BY EDNA MILES

KEEPING a baby safe from accidents in the home is not an easy job, as mothers know. Every year there are countless newspaper stories of babies who have smothered in their cribs, despite constant watching.

Knowing that this constitutes a major problem for mothers, one manufacturer has produced a baby blanket that cannot slip, slide or tangle around baby.

It attaches to the crib by means of plastic rings that fasten to the bars of the bed. While it eliminates all possibilities of smothering, it also keeps the baby completely covered and warm.

Made of filled and quilted jersey which will not shrink, it is moth and mildew proof. It's also made in wool and cotton or may be obtained in satin comforters.

Ribbon bound, the blanket is designed to fit in neatly at each side of the crib and thus provide maximum protection and warmth.

EXTENSION SERVICE—FARM NOTES

Calendar:
January 4, Monday—Bang's Control meeting.
January 7, Thursday—"Barnyard Economics" meeting, Grant Township Hall, 8:00 p. m.
January 14-15—Little Farmers' Week.

January 11-12—At Hale Community Building.
January 13-14—At Whittemore Community Building.
January 15—At Grant Township Hall.

Have we heard from you Grange or Farm Bureau organizations about who will be your representative at the Bang's Control discussion meeting on January 4? Time is getting short.

"Barnyard Economics," the 1954 model, will be discussed by agricultural specialists and Isoco farmers at 8:00 p. m. at Grant Township Hall.

This is one of several area meetings being sponsored in Michigan by the Cooperative Extension Service, local bankers and the Agricultural Department of Michigan State College. Speakers will be Karl Wright and Lauren Brown, farm management specialists, from Michigan State College.

Areas to be covered are "What's New on Income Taxes and Farm Records," "What To Look For in '54" and "What Farmers Can Do To Meet the Present Cost-Price Squeeze."

This promises to be outstanding farm management program which no farmer can afford to miss.

The first part will cover changes in income taxes affecting farmers, some suggestions on how you can make some tax savings and how Michigan's new business receipt tax affects you as a farmer. Making the best use of the new income tax record book will also be included in this discussion.

The second part of the program will include a short report on a recent survey showing what changes 400 Michigan farmers plan to make in their farming operations for 1954. With this will be a brief report by the specialist as to what he thinks the coming year holds for farmers.

The third and main feature of the program will be a discussion and illustrations on what Isoco farmers can do to keep net incomes up when farm prices are falling.

If you have questions on any of these subjects, be sure and bring them to the meeting. Plenty of time will be allowed for questions and discussion. The meeting is one the whole family will enjoy, and wives are especially invited to attend along with their husbands.

Isoco county farmers will have Michigan State College right here at home when Little Farmers' Week opens on January 11.

The purpose for this series of meetings is to help farmers make their farming a better business.

Agricultural specialists from Michigan State College will appear in teams of two each day for the week-long program. And that means farmers will be able to select the programs in which they are most interested.

Local chamber of commerce organizations in Hale and Whittemore are assisting in planning for the meetings in their community. They will make exhibits and provide door prizes for holders of lucky attendance tags.

Here is a partial list of topics, speakers and the dates on which they will appear. The program opens at 1:30 p. m. each day.

Does it pay to have your soil tested?

How soil testing can take the guess out of keeping cropland fertile will be stressed during Little Farmers' Week January 11 at the Community Building in Hale.

E. D. Longnecker, extension soil specialist at Michigan State College, will discuss that topic at 1:30 p. m. on Monday.

The extension soil specialist is considered an outstanding authority on Michigan soils, having been active in soil science for many years.

Pointers on building horizontal silos to prevent as much feed waste as possible will be presented during Little Farmers' Week, January 11, at the Community Building in Hale.

Arthur J. Bell, extension agricultural engineer at Michigan State College, will show Isoco county farmers how to build that type of silo at 1:30 p. m. on Monday. He will cover the trench, bunker, bale and snow fence types of silos with discussion and illustrations. Bell also will present pointers on how cattle can be self-fed from these types of silo.

How to save labor in meeting the farm price-cost squeeze will be emphasized during Little Farmers' Week January 12 at the Hale Community Building.

Extension Dairyman Donald L. Murray of Michigan State College will talk on that subject at 1:30 p. m. on Tuesday.

He will illustrate his talk with charts and pictures to show how many labor saving devices save time and how a farmer can boost his income and handle more sows by using good practices.

Murray holds a Master of Science Degree from Kansas State College and has had several years of experience in the dairy industry.

Learn Value of Farm Bureau

The farmers of Isoco county have learned the value of unity. The growth of the County Farm Bureau is good evidence of this fact. The Farm Bureau is an organization made up of farmers themselves to do the things together they wish to have done.

Its aggressive program in behalf of agriculture and good citizenship has been the foundation on which this membership has been built. So, Mr. Farmer, join your strength and your interest to a farmer's own organization and work with your neighbors to help build a sound program for agriculture.

Join the Isoco County Farm Bureau today during the 1954 Membership Roll Call. The 203 membership goal has not been reached. January is the deadline date. You may call Arthur Roper, Hale 62-F2, or Mrs. William Herriman, Route 1, Tawas City, phone 1165-W.
