How many times have you had a summer visitor stop you and ask directions for locating a specific street in Tawas City? Could you give that person a clearly defined answer.

In most cases the answer to the last question would be: "No, I never heard of that street!" Perhaps you did know the location, but your directions were so confusing, the visitor could not follow them.

For instance, recently one businessman gave directions to a visitor who wanted to locate a family residing on First Avenue. The reply was:

"Very simple—turn left at Brugger's corner, cross over the bridge and then make a right turn at the next corner—that's First Avenue, I think."

Yes, these directions would be very simple for a local resident to follow, but to the visitor it was like trying to pin a tail on a donkey while blindfolded!

Now this all by way of leading to one large and important part of this editorial—this community is in great need of a new and comprehensive street marking system.

The present day street signs were erected quite a number of years ago and since that time many of the signs have disappeared from the posts, or are pointing in the wrong direction.

This writer urges the city, or even one of our civic-minded groups, to make a study of our present street marking system this fall and formulate a plan to prepare new street and intersection markers during the winter months.

It would be a very worthwhile project when completed and it would put an end to the present-day confusion on our back streets. Perhaps next spring when someone asks where Spruce Street is located, anyone could give clear-cut directions to find it.

Bible Comment:

Paul Forged Spiritual Armor For Christians

THE Apostle Paul, who was a Christian in a Roman pagan world dominated by power and Roman conquering armies, did not hesitate to draw effective illustrations for Christian life and conduct from the details of happenings in that Roman world. He compared the Christian life to a race, and he laid great stress upon running to win.

In imperial Rome, with its dominance of the world, he saw the material realization of a similar dream of imperialism, but his dream was of a spiritual imperialism of a world completely conquered by Christ and His gospel.

In that sense Paul was an imperialist, and the dream enshrined in the Lord's Prayer, "Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven," is still the dream and prayer of Christians, though it is still far from fulfillment.

That Roman world was one of action, war, and conquest; and in his spiritual world Paul saw the Christian life and Christian duty, individual and collective, as a demanding action, war, and conquest.

The Christian's warfare was against inward evils, temptations and weaknesses from which Paul, himself, was not immune.

But the foes of the Christian were not all inward. Against the forces of evil, within and without, Paul called for Christians, strong and well-prepared.

What the Christian world of today lacks is the Pauline sense of the Christian warfare. We tend to think of Christianity too exclusively in terms of personal character and conduct. What we need is aroused and awakened Christians, following a Son of God, who goes forth to war, and fully equipped with all the available spiritual weapons for offense and defense.

Pass Goal in First Phase of Fund Campaign

The fund raising campaign being held by the Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish has launched the first of a two-phase solicitation program.

Within a few hours the goal of $30,000 was passed, with pledges totaling $31,050.00, the Rev. Fr. J. A. Castanier said.

Father Castanier also said, "While of course, I am surprised at this unusual response and very grateful to God for His blessings and, to our people for their generosity, I am also mindful of the fact that nearly twice the amount of our goal must ultimately be obtained. The more we can raise now the less will the parish have to borrow and pay interest on. I am sure that all of our parishioners recognize this elementary fact and, will support our program with even more enthusiasm."

John Coyne, chairman of the memorial gifts phase, expressed satisfaction with the report to date, but said his committee was "just getting warmed up," and would continue its efforts until every memorial gift prospect had been seen.

The general gifts solicitation will be launched next Sunday at a kick-off dinner in the V. F. W. Hall, according to George Baldwin, chairman of the general gifts phase of the campaign. All the men who have been organized into divisions and teams will begin a general canvass of the parish at that time. They received solicitation instructions and chose their prospects at a meeting last Tuesday night.

Christian Science Services—

How we may prove and experience man's God-given dominion over material bondage of all kinds—sin, disease and limitation will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday. The subject of the lesson-sermon is "Matter."

The spiritual heritage of freedom which belongs to man is set forth in the following selections from the Bible (Galatians 4:6,7): "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ."

The following passage will be among those read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (223:3): "Sooner or later we shall learn that the fetters of man's finite capacity are forged by the illusion that he lives in body instead of in Soul, in matter instead of in Spirit."

Old Landmark Disappears
An old Tawas City landmark disappeared from view Tuesday when a Consumers Power Company crew cut down the big elm tree near the Detroit and Mackinac Railway bridge over Dead creek. The beautiful old tree had become decayed with age and one of its large branches had broken off during a high wind last spring. A Civil War veteran on his return home decided that Tawas City should be beautified with some trees. He set out a large number of elms and maples on many of the streets. Storm, accident and age have taken the most of them and the one cut down Tuesday was one of the few remaining evidences of his work.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Seen from the back, this young miss is taking the steps in strides. Here's a situation in which a back view tells a better story than one showing faces.

Sometimes It's a Good Idea To Take a Back View

The appealing picture above is proof that it is indeed a good idea to take a back view on occasion. While we certainly want most of the snapshots of our favorite people to show their faces, once in a while you can take one with their backs to the camera that is very expressive.

This picture of three young misses is just as expressive as though they were facing the camera, maybe more so. For the person who knows them, it would be possible to guess exactly what their faces were showing at the moment. You could see the pleased and somewhat determined look on the face of the young miss in the middle, whose short legs are achieving a victory over the steps.

Another thing to note about this picture is the camera angle. We're written before about how it pays to look up or down at your subject on occasion rather than to invariably shoot straight on. In this shot, the camera was definitely looking up. This helps give the feeling of motion, as well as giving the snapshot a wonderfully neutral sky background. The subjects stand out against it. There's nothing to attract the viewer's eye or attention from them.

All in all, it's a snapshot that proves it's a good idea to try something different once in a while. Vary the pose, vary the angle for a change of pace in your pictures and to add interest to your snapshot books.

New Price Support Cross-Compliance Ruling Explained

By MARVIN DAVENPORT

Farmers have been wondering about this new ruling, "cross-compliance" that's required for next year's price supports program.

There are actually two rulings. In the first place, farmers must remain within their acreage allotments on all their supportable crops in order to get guaranteed returns from any crop. That's cross-compliance.

The second ruling is this: Farmers are not free to do what they wish with the land they take out of wheat and corn production. These "diverted acres" must lie idle or be put into hay, pasture or green manure crops. This means that the total acreage of all the other crops cannot be increased by planting the diverted acres to them.

Burnell Held of Michigan State College notes that on Michigan farms the only major crops to be concerned with are wheat and corn. Of these only overplantings of wheat are subject to payments of penalties up to 40 percent of the market price, or $1.12.

No matter how much you overplant your corn allotment you will not have to pay a penalty. But because of this cross-compliance ruling you will have to stay within your allotment and get supports on the rest of your crops.

These diverted acres may not be a total loss. Funds are available for the coming year and will be used to help farmers change their cropping practices to conform with the program.

The total acreage figure for your farm is based on a long list of crops sent out recently by the Office of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Commercial fertilizer can help Michigan farmers cut the costs of growing a good wheat crop this winter on shortened acres.

Wheat—the "staff of life"—needed in some form in every home—will be going into the ground in the next two weeks.

The gamble has been cut down—the harvest price is assured before the wheat is planted. The farmer's job is to grow as much wheat as he can, as cheaply as possible, on his government-allotted acreage.

Most wheat ground is plowed, see wheat is cleaned and treated to check early growth diseases, and farmers are making fertilizer decisions.

Wheat benefits from generous use of commercial fertilizer at planting time, and a soil test at Harrisville soil testing laboratory is the best guide to the fertilizer analysis and amount.

A few years ago, farmers used 2-12-6 analysis, 200 pounds per acre. Now they ask for 4-24-12 or 5-20-20 to get twice as much plant food in each bag at a lower manufactured price per food value. And most farmers have gone to 400 pounds per acre for more profit, according to Paul Rood, Michigan State College soil scientist. Five hundred pounds of 4-16-16, 3-18-9, 5-20-20, 5-20-10, or 4-24-12 might be the best answer for many wheat fields.

Farmers also plan ahead for their "springtime special" of nitrogen, and aid spring growth, and it can be put on in late November easier than when soils are sticky in the spring.

Maybe some of our dairymen had better ask James Sturtevant of Reno township how he manages to get nine heifers out of the last 11 calves dropped by his dairy herd. Maybe his new milking parlor or that horizontal silo filled with grass silage has given his cows a change of heart and they believe this is a cow's world after all. Regardless, James has a good "heifer" batting average. I just hope my mentioning this doesn't reverse his luck. He recently had a pair of twin heifers to add to his calf crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schenfeld of Tawas City swear by our vegetable garden bulletin, E-4. They used chlordane to kill the onion maggots and followed the bulletin's recommendations on controlling corn ear worms—nary a worm this year they said.

Here are some suggestions for our sheep raisers. First, antibiotics like penicillin have little effect on sheep foot rot in Michigan, contrary to some results in some other states.

The best way to cure the rot in this state is to make a foot bath out of 30 percent copper sulfate and do a good job trimming the diseased portion of the foot. That's what Michigan State College specialists found.

Dr. Frank Thorp, Jr., a veterinary researcher, and Graydon Blank, extension animal husbandry specialists, tried up to 2,000,000 (M) units of penicillin on foot rot before discovering that the foot bath and trimming worked better.

Oregon scientists, on the other hand, cured foot rot in less than a week with penicillin. Thorp suggests that the reason for the success is different climatic conditions, or a different organism there may be causing the disease.

Good results have been obtained in Michigan with a penicillin treatment of cattle with foot rot.

KOREA'S CHILDREN

By W. Neil Thornton
Photos by the Author

One cold morning last January, a small child stood on a street corner in Taegu, Korea. With cup in hand, he begged money from American servicemen who walked along the street, in order to gain enough money to pay for something to eat.

The child was clad in a worn-out pair of summer shorts, a burlap bag, which substituted for a jacket and a pair of canvas shoes. His ragged clothing failed to offer protection against the winter wind.

Kim Chun Moh, age 11, had no home or family ties whatsoever. Both of his parents died along refugee trails during the early days of the Korean conflict—in the bitter winter of 1950.

The boy had survived many distressing experiences during the three years in which he had lived in the gutters—surviving by his wits alone. He was much older in experience than a normal boy of eleven years.

He could not foresee the future. Kim lived from day to day—from hand to mouth. His body was covered with a skin disease; open sores marked his face and arms. He needed medical attention, but there was none to be had.

Today, thanks to American servicemen and generous Christian donors in the United States, Kim is leading a happy, normal life. He was picked up from the street corner by three American soldiers, taken to an Army compound where he was fed, washed and clothed and then given a home at an orphanage in Taegu.

This orphanage is supported by our American troops who, out of the generosity of their hearts, have given more than 25 million dollars from their own meager pay to help support institutions such as this in Korea.

Many stories have been printed about children such as Kim in the past, but many more children remain in the streets of Korean cities, in absolute destitution.

The servicemen in Korea know what the United States is doing for Korean relief, but they realize that it is not enough. It has been estimated that there are 2,000,000 Koreans children, included in this figure are approximately 100,000 orphans, some 40,000 living in orphanages and about 17,000 living in private homes. Where are the rest? Roaming the streets of every major Korean city, including Seoul, Pusan and Taegu.

Orphanages have been built to house these unfortunate children throughout Korea. Many are sponsored by United States military forces to buy clothing, food and materials to repair present buildings or construct new ones.

Aiding orphanages has been one of the major projects sponsored by the Armed Forces Assistance to Korea Program, a plan formulated by President Eisenhower last November in which the military services "help the Koreans help themselves."

Most of the orphanages are overcrowded and have no funds for expansion. They must operate on small appropriations from the ROK government, donations from private citizens, United States military forces or Christian donors from other countries.

The total actual cash contributions received by one orphanage in Taegu amounts to the equivalent of about 25 cents a child a month. The salaries drawn by the orphanage staff totals $6 a week.

Last April the American-Korean Foundation launched an "Aid Korea Drive." Within a few days thousands of tons of clothing, food and relief goods were collected in the United States and shipped to Korea.

The American-Korean Foundation is headed by Dr. Howard

Korean street urchins eat a lunch of popcorn, while waiting for a likely looking prospect to pass by from whom they might beg some money.

Many stories have been printed about children such as Kim in the past, but many more children remain in the streets of Korean cities, in absolute destitution.

A. Rusk, distinguished American medical journalist and world-famed authority on rehabilitation. The Foundation's major aim is not to rebuild the country, but to put into Korean hands the essentials with which the Koreans will do their own rebuilding.

Doctor Rusk once said: "There is an old saying that once you visit Korea, you can never leave. This is true. Your body can leave but you can't. You keep remembering things you have seen there. You keep remembering the kids especially."

Doctor Rusk referred to the thousands of unfortunate children who suffer from malnutrition, tuberculosis and leprosy; the children who have no home or families.

Recently, J. Calvin Clarke, president of the Christian Children's Fund, said:

"We are now conducting an orphanage survey in Korea at the request of the United States Army. We are hoping that we shall be able to get the men to continue some support when they return to the States."

"There are many orphanages which have been greatly helped and even entirely supported by our Armed Forces overseas in Korea. But, if the men return to the States and forget the children, the orphanages will be

Doctor Clarke continued, "Of course, Christian Children's Fund will try to keep such orphanages from being closed up; but, we are swamped as it is in trying to help 70 different orphanages in Korea. We could certainly use a lot more money than we are getting."

In Korea, a country halfway around the world, where we fought a war which we did not win, we have a chance to win the peace. There are many ways in which we, as freedom-loving Americans, can help repay the Korean people for their sufferings and steadfast opposition to Communist aggression.

Your help is needed—support the American-Korean Foundation (its address is merely c-o the local postmaster), or send your contributions to such worthwhile organizations as the Christian Children's Fund, Incorporated, China Building, Richmond 4, Virginia.

Still another way in which you can take an active part in the current drive, would be to mail old clothing directly to your servicemen stationed in Korea. He will appreciate your interest and will know just where to distribute the clothing. Act now—the children whom we save from starvation and want today will be our allies in the future.

Hereford Calf Association yards in West Branch, I'd like to pass this bit of advice along to our late spring lamb raisers.

To help speed up the fattening and marketing of late spring lambs, Harold Henneman of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State recommends starting them on about one-quarter pound oats per head a day as soon as they are weaned.

The grain feeding should be slowly increased with some corn or barley added until approximately one and one-half pounds of grain is being fed daily.

Other management tips include recommendation for good legume pasture while they're getting this grain.

Many farmers have some second cutting hay fields with a good share of legume that would be ideal.

Farmers should limit the grain to the amount the lambs will clean up in about 15 or 20 minutes. As for marketing, the flock should be topped out quite often with those weighing 90 to 100 pounds in the choice to prime grade being sent to our pool on dates already mentioned.

Want Divider Changed—
Businessmen located on US-23 between Standish and Pinconning, although "delighted" with the new four-lane pavement, are appealing to the state highway department to make a change in the three-foot concrete strip which divides the north and south bound lane. One Standish businessman said that motorists will not cross the divider, resulting in cutting his business in half. The businessmen want a break in the divider in front of their businesses.

With the Isoco 4-H Clubs

By DOROTHY SCOTT

Calendar:
September 19—All County 4-H Picnic, 1:00 p. m. Aulerich Park.

Burleigh Wizards 4-H Club folk are looking forward to hosting the 4-H Club picnic at Aulerich Park on September 19.

The picnic spot is located on M-55 approximately three miles west of the M-55 junction.

We have heard from three 4-H Clubs—Burleigh Wizards, Taft Junior Farmers and Laidlawville. They are working planning the projects to be carried during the coming year, especially deciding upon those which will be started right soon and who will enroll for them.

The project leaders will then plan to talk over plans for their project with extension agents, get bulletins and other supplies which may be needed.

Would you like to read about

4-H Club member Carol Bellon's experiences with her dairy project this year?

"I got my calf at Christmas for a Christmas present and I liked it very well. I started leading her as soon as it was warm enough to take her outside. I led her as often as I could, but I have to leave her at my grandfather's because I don't have any place to put her at my home. I go down to grandfather's with my father at night to help with chores so I can take care of my calf. The day of our tour I led my calf for our leaders and the rest of the 4-H Club.

Carol is 12 years old, and plans to continue her dairy project work this next year.

Gardens had a tough season this summer. Here is Bernice Siegrist's story. "My garden is 60 feet wide and 81 feet long. My dad went in the garden and worked it up for me.

"I planted in May but with all the rains and wet weather it took it a long time to come up and get started.

"I enjoyed working in my garden. It is the family garden and my mother helps me keep it clear. We haven't had so much to eat yet—only radishes, lettuce, onions, beet greens, swiss chard and peas.

"I have learned a lot of things about gardening that will help me in other years. I have learned one thing—you sure have to watch the bugs or they will eat your garden up."

Eleven-year-old Rosanne Siegrist tells about the lambs. "My two lambs had no mother so my dad gave them to me. I fed them with a bottle. I gave them warm milk every three hours because they were weak. They had to be kept at the house until stronger and then we took them to the barn. It did not take long for them to become pets and I know who was a friend.

"One day the flock was put in the pasture for the summer, but our two pets were left at the barn. One night they ran away back in the woods. I did not take much coaxing for them to come up, they would follow me any place with those bottles. So they were just pets. Grandma said 'pests' because they would nibble on the flowers and eat the chicken's mash.

"I had lots of help when it came feeding time. My little cousins wanted to take turns feeding them. It was lots of fun to watch them and see them down the bottles of milk."

HDA NOTES

By Dorothy Scott

Are you confused about that often-used phrase "soap and other detergents?"

A detergent, by definition, is a cleansing agent. Soap is a detergent, so is water, and so are the many special cleansing agents you can buy.

But the word "detergent" has come to be widely used to indicate a particular class of cleansers which are really synthetic detergents.

Synthetic detergents are manufactured by complicated chemical processes. In contrast to soap, which is made simply by combining fat, lye and water in right proportions.

The term "synthetic detergents" seemed complicated for everyday use. So we fell into the habit of saying "detergents" to designate the special group of manufactured products.

But a fairly new word, which you may have seen, is "syndet," a good word to describe a synthetic detergent.

Syndets are convenient to use in hard water because they do not combine with the minerals (as soap does) to form soap scum or curd—the source of that "sattle-tale-gray" we used to talk about.

Because syndets do not form a curd (as soap does in hard water), they are easier to rinse out. The greater ease of rinsing makes syndets in general more satisfactory for use in an automatic washer, and easy to use in any washer.

But many syndets produce a great deal of suds. And suds may give trouble in an automatic washer, causing what manufacturers call a "suds lock."

So manufacturers went a step further and gave us low-sudsing syndets. Though we have always associated suds with cleansing, it is a fact that the low-sudsing kind of syndet may do as good a job as a high sudsing syndet.

In spite of syndet advantages, some of us still stick to soap for certain jobs.

Soap is best for removing soil from fabrics; if used in soft water or softened water. The best answer for softening water is a softening system installed in your home. Next best is the use of a non-precipitating water softener, or "water conditioner" as they are often called.

Also trisodium phosphate is an old standby as a water softener and cleanser. And it is the principal ingredients in many commercial softeners. But although it is an excellent softener, it leaves a precipitate in the water which gives a white clothing ring as well as in the wash water, to get good results. Whatever kind of softener you use, you must use it in the first rinse, or in the automatic washers' rinse, as well as in the wash water, to get good results.

"To the unknown Operator who saved my life..."

That's how the letter began. It was sent to Michigan Bell by Mrs. Ida Vaughn of Ann Arbor. Here's why.

One evening, Mrs. Vaughn, who then lived alone, suffered a severe heart attack. She was able to reach her telephone but was choking so badly the operator could hardly understand her.

The operator checked the address and notified the hospital. Then she learned the family doctor's name from Mrs. Vaughn and telephoned him.

She asked if there were any relatives she should call. Mrs. Vaughn gave the name of her daughter. The operator called her and soon she was on the way to the hospital with her mother.

Mrs. Vaughn's letter ended this way,

"I frankly do not think I would be living today if that operator had not been on the job that evening. Many, many thanks for wonderful service at a time when most needed."

The "unknown" operator is no longer unknown to Mrs. Vaughn, of course. She is Mrs. Bonnie Walker.

For her alertness, presence of mind and resourcefulness she has been awarded a Vail Citation, a telephone company award for outstanding service.

in the program. He is the chief engineer of the Automobile Safety Foundation, Washington, D. C., and has worked on similar projects in states, such as California, Arkansas and West Virginia.

Graves, the new executive director of the federation, said, "A proper highway system can mean the difference between prosperity and strangulation to our state and nation."

The former Michigan representative, who retired from the legislature this fall, pointed out that traffic on Michigan highways has increased over 60 percent to what it was in 1946. To illustrate the increase in traffic, Graves said if you took every car in Michigan and put them on the highway at one time there would be about eight feet between each car and the roads would be jammed.

During the discussion, Graves drew a parallel between the increased tourist traffic of last year over traffic in 1947. He said that 14 million persons used state parks in 1953, an increase of three million over 1947. In that same year the state sold 800,000 hunting and fishing licenses, while it is expected that these sales this year will reach the two million mark.

In addition, industry is gradually moving from large down-state industrial centers to small communities. These industries will need modern highways with which to move manufactured goods to big cities for assembly.

Agriculture, which directly supports 664,000 persons in this state, annually moves 120 million dollars worth of dairy products over the highways and an additional 11 million dollar cherry crop is transported over the roads each year.

"Roads which could be built for $40,000 in 1940, at present-day costs would require from $110,000 to $125,000," said Graves. The modern expressway being constructed in Detroit costs approximately eight million dollars a mile to build.

"With the Mackinac Bridge and the St. Lawrence Seaway Project coming into the picture, the next 13 months will be very important to the state's road-construction program," said Graves.

Plan Work Bee for Sunday, September 26

At the regular meeting of the Silver Valley Winter Sports Committee held Monday, September 13, it was decided a work bee will be held Sunday, September 26, for the purpose of oiling and repairing the shelter at the Silver Valley area.

The Silver Valley Committee urges all persons interested in keeping the winter sports area in good condition and the Tawas publicized throughout the winter months to attend the work bee.

Arrangements are being made for installing a ski-tow and building a new beginners ski area to be placed in operation this season.

A survey is being made on the possibilities of "Perchville." Some financial aid will have to be had if the winter fishing village is to be maintained again this winter.
