TAWAS TAKES ON YULE-TIDE LOOK...

With the Thanksgiving holiday over, business districts in Tawas City and East Tawas are being decorated for the Christmas holiday season. Holiday street dress will blaze in all its colors starting Thursday night.

During the past week businessmen of the Tawas began decorating store fronts and setting up window displays. Theme for decorations this year is the religious aspect of Christmas. Businessmen's associations and garden clubs are cooperating in decorations in both Tawas City and East Tawas.

The Tawas City Girl Scouts are constructing a nativity scene in front of the Tawas City Hall. This work is under the direction of Mrs. George Myles and Mrs. Shirley Deering, leaders.

Light posts in the downtown district of Tawas City are being decorated with angels and evergreen boughs by the Champion Sign Service. Department of public works crews installed colored lights over Lake Street.

Bids on New School Close Next Tuesday

Bids for the general trades, electrical and mechanical contracts for construction of the new Tawas Area Junior and Senior High School will be publicly opened at the regular meeting of the board of education next Tuesday night. The bids must be in the hands of the secretary of the board by 8:00 p. m. that night.

Representatives of H. E. Beyster and Associates, architects of the new school, will help your eyes to become adjusted to the lowering visibility, and also make your car visible to oncoming drivers who otherwise might not see it.

Bank Sends Out Annual Christmas Club Checks

The Peoples State Bank at East Tawas sent out checks totaling $30,054.75 to members of its Christmas club this week. A spokesman for the bank said that there were 374 members in the club this year.

In a report to Reginald Bublitz, superintendent of public works, Spicer said that as soon as all costs were available on the project, plans would be submitted to the city council for action. Spicer is obtaining estimated costs on the installations from various contractors.

The proposed water project would include an iron removal plant and 200,000 gallon elevated storage tank. Total cost for the project would be approximately $85,000. During the past summer a test well for the project was drilled near the baseball field. The engineer estimates the well would produce 250 gallons of water per minute.

Sheriff Points Out Traffic Hazards in 'S-D Day' Message

As Iosco County moved ahead with preparations for "S-D Day," Safe Driving Day, Thursday, December 1, motorists and pedestrians were warned today to be mindful of the special hazards of driving and walking at night.

This warning comes from Sheriff Ivan L. O'Farrell, S-D Day director of Iosco County, who points out:

- In proportion to the mileage traveled, three times as many people were killed at night in the United States last year as were killed in daylight. For pedestrians, darkness is especially dangerous; more than half of all pedestrian traffic deaths occur between 6:00 p. m. and midnight.
- A study by experts has shown that, regardless of what may be assigned as the ultimate cause of most accidents, the immediate cause is not seeing the hazard in time.
- Over 45 to be particularly cautious at night, as exhaustive tests have shown that these people find it increasingly difficult to distinguish objects at night.

According to the Automobile Association of America, "this condition does not depend upon the health of eyes, for the same things happen to normal people with normal eyesight as to those who require visual aids. A man of 55 with 20-20 vision needs twice as much light to distinguish the same object as will his teen-age son."

Sheriff O'Farrell offers the following specific night driving hints:

- Turn on your lights at the first hint of dusk. They will help your eyes to become adjusted to the lowering visibility, and also make your car visible to oncoming drivers who otherwise might not see it.
- Always travel within your headlights. In other words, regulate your speed so that you can always stop within the distance you see with your headlights.

3. Be especially careful on rural roads. Slow-moving illuminated vehicles present hazards that led to several thousand serious collisions every year.

4. Do not wear tinted glasses at night, they may reduce the glare from oncoming headlights, but this gain is more than offset by the greatly reduced vision, at the time when top vision is needed the most.

Sheriff O'Farrell also cautions against "Highway Automatism," the condition that occurs on monotonous stretches of highway, when the steady purr of the engine and the absence of alerting distractions lull the motorist into driving automatically.

The sheriff states, "As a precaution, switch on your radio from time to time; lower or raise your headlights occasionally and take periodic coffee breaks or stops that will permit you to get out of your car and walk around awhile."

To the pedestrian, a special word of caution from the S-D Day director: "Remember that just because you see the oncoming headlight of an approaching car, that it is no guarantee that the driver can see you, especially if you are wearing dark clothes. Wear something white at night or a reflector material. If you are out on a county road, always walk facing the traffic and it helps to always carry a flashlight. In winter when darkness comes earlier, more than one-third of the pedestrian deaths occur in the three-hour period, 6:00 to 8:00 p. m.

Dead, 2 Wounded, Toll of Iosco Hunting Accidents in Season's Final Week-End

The 1955 deer hunting season closed Tuesday, the last week of the 15-day season having one hunter killed by gunfire and two wounded in Iosco County.

Ralph D. Everett of Bay City was killed Saturday afternoon in an accidental shooting while hunting one mile west of M-65 on the Sylvester and Felix Hudzinski farm in Plainfield Township.

The victim was killed by a .35-caliber rifle slug fired by Edward H. Bates of VanDyke. The slug was recovered by investigating officers in a stump near the spot where the victim was killed.

Coroner E. D. Jacques of Tawas City conducted an investigation of the shooting with officers from the Michigan State Police Post at East Tawas and Iosco County Sheriff's Department. The coroner ruled Everett's death accidental and Bates was released after he made a statement to police.

State police said that Bates fired at a buck 327 feet away. The slug from his rifle missed the animal and struck the victim in the chest. Police said that Everett was standing about 97 feet from where the buck had apparently stood. The victim's rifle was cocked and hammer back as he was about to shoot at the same deer when he was struck by the fatal bullet.

In his statement Bates said that after he fired at the buck he saw a hunter behind the deer wave his arms and shout "hey." He told officers that he did not fire another shot and knew that his first shot must have come close to the hunter. He climbed through the fence and started over to apologize to the hunter, but found him to be dead.

Everett was hunting on the farm of his two brothers-in-law, Sylvester and Felix Hudzinski. Bates had been staying at a farm near Hale.

Police are still investigating the shooting of William D. Nickolae, 34, of Lansing who was shot in the left side above the hip last Saturday afternoon. The hunter who fired the shot has not been located.

Hunting in Section 24 of Oscoda Township, Nickolae was found by his hunting companions on an old logging trail where he had dragged himself after being shot. After being hit he fired one shot into the air and called for help.

Nickolae was taken to Tawas Hospital for treatment and last reports indicated he was in fair condition. Police said that the slug passed through his body and was found in his clothing.

The third hunting accident occurred Friday afternoon when James Smith, 18, of Route 2, Tawas City, was shot in the neck with 00 buckshot pellets by a hunting companion. Smith was reported in good condition at Tawas Hospital.

Sheriff's officers investigated circumstances which led to the shooting. Apparently Smith was struck by the pellets when hunting companion, Jack Furst of Alabaster, was unloading his gun. The gun accidentally discharged and the pellets went through the rear window of the car striking Smith.

Cederberg Seeks Dirt Farmer Ideas on Farm Problems

"Seldom a day passes that some one, some place doesn't break into print about the present day situation on the average farm," said Congressman Elford Cederberg in a communication this week to Iosco County farmers.

"We hear many irresponsible statements by theorists who never harnessed a horse or milked a cow. In fact I have heard so much from the collar-and-bowtie farmers around the country that I would like to know what the actual dirt farmers of the 10th Congressional District have to say about the farm problem."

"Since congress adjourned early in August I have traveled throughout the 14 counties of the district, exchanging views and seeking opinions on major legislation coming before congress in January. I have met with Farm Bureau, Farm Union and other groups at their invitation. Some farmers have come to see me when I was at your courthouse, but I realize most of you were busy with crops."

"In the last 25 years there have been more experiments, more speeches, more panaceas and more investigations concerning the American farm than any other segment of our economy. Yet the problem is unsolved. We have plowed under cotton and executed little pigs. We have heard about the Wallace plan, the Brannan plan and many others. Today the chief target is the flexible price support plan which has only been in effect a few weeks but which is being blamed for the farm price decline which started before the beginning of 1953."

"Based on my observation and study it appears that high rigid price support works to the advantage of large Southern and Western operators who farm at least a section or more of land and to the disadvantage of the average Michigan farmer because less than 15 percent of the income of Michigan farmers comes from basic commodities under the price support program.

"There are those who advocate return to high rigid price supports with strict government control, those who want Uncle Sam to quit meddling with farming, those who want export subsidy and others who advocate curtailing crops through government rental land."

"What are your views?" "I hope you will write me, telling me the size and nature of your own farm operation and your ideas on handling present surpluses and preventing future ones."

Writes AuSable River Hunting Saga

In 1878 Scribner's Monthly, one of America's leading magazines of that time, commissioned one of its feature writers to go with a hunting expedition to the wilderness of the west—the AuSable River country in Michigan. Through the courtesy of Morgan Cunningham of New York City the 77-year-old story is being reprinted in this week's Tawas Herald on page seven. The story is illustrated with pictures by the author-artist.

The author journeyed west to Detroit and then to Bay City where he joined the "party of gentlemen" under the guidance of John Erwin of Cleveland. Loading their gunbags, hunting equipment and dogs on a steamer, the group made their way to Tawas over Saginaw Bay. We think many of our readers will enjoy reading the story of this pleasant adventure to the then wilderness of northern Michigan.

Tawas C of C Names Six New Directors

Results from the recent election of the Tawas Chamber of Commerce were revealed this week. The new and old directors will meet December 14 to elect officers.

Named to the board of directors for a two-year term, 1956-1957, were D. E. Collier, Richard Harwood, Gordon Huck, Bruce Myles, Claude Nash and Donald Watson.

Second year directors remaining on the board are Harold Bublitz, Howard Durant, Albert Foco, Edwin Habermehl, James Martin, C. V. Miller and Osmond Ostrander.

Other members of the board include Elwood Bronson, chairman of resort owners; George Baldwin, chairman of Silver Valley; John Elliott, president of the East Tawas Retail Merchants Association, and Cecil W. Cable, president of the Tawas City Businessmen's Association.

Plans to Improve Water System Nearly Complete

Final plans for Tawas City's proposed new addition to its municipal water works system are in final stages of completion, reported Clifford Spicer, city engineer, Tuesday.

In a report to Reginald Bublitz, superintendent of public works, Spicer said that as soon as all costs were available on the project, plans would be submitted to the city council for action. Spicer is obtaining estimated costs on the installations from various contractors.

The proposed water project would include an iron removal plant and 200,000 gallon elevated storage tank. Total cost for the project would be approximately $85,000. During the past summer a test well for the project was drilled near the baseball field. The engineer estimates the well would produce 250 gallons of water per minute.

If approved, finance for the project probably would be through the sale of revenue bonds and general obligation bonds, the latter requiring the approval of Tawas City voters. Spicer is also working on plans for enlarging the city disposal plant. These proposed added facilities would enable the municipal sewer disposal system to keep pace with the city's growth at present and in the future. These plans will be completed within two months.

Bublitz reported that the Harris Avenue sewer project has reached the new school site and would be completed within the next 10 days, weather permitting.

Gospel Crusade Campaign At Assembly of God Church

There will be programs every night except Monday and Saturday.

POLICE INVESTIGATE B AND E AT OSCODA

Christian Science

The completeness and integrity of God's creation including spiritual man will be brought out at Christian Science services this Sunday.

The lesson-sermon entitled "God the Only Cause and Creator" will include the following verse from the King James Version of the Bible (Matt. 7:18): "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit."

Among the correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be the following (33:19-22): "It is false to say that Truth and error commingle in creation. In parable and argument, this falsity is exposed by our Master as self-evidently wrong."

The Golden Text is from Isaiah (45:18): "Thus saith the Lord that created the heavens: God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited; I am the Lord; and there is none else."

Big Construction Year Expected in 1956

Americans are expected to spend a record $44,000,000,000 on new construction next year despite some slowdown in farm and individual house building, according to the commerce department's business and defense services administration. Most types of building would hit new highs and while fewer homes are expected to be built, the total value will remain close to this year's $16,000,000,000 level.

Brazil will buy $41,000,000 worth of wheat and other surplus commodities from the United States.

An armed soldier with a fixed bayonet keeps people moving as a general strike, called by the General Federation of Labor, once the strongest supporter of ousted President Juan D. Peron, is called off in failure. The failure of the strike call, which came just 24 hours after the ouster of Provisional President General Eduardo Lonardi, gave the new government of President Pedro E. A. Rambaru a strong victory in a major test of strength.

YULE ANGEL FOR CHILDREN

Nothing will delight the youngsters more than this "sweet" Christmas angel decorated with candy-filled ornaments. It makes an unusual children's party centerpiece or an exciting hospitality tree. The candy-filled, trimmings become very special gifts for the kids.

The angel's body is made from a cardboard cone. To make the cone, cut a half circle of cardboard about 36 inches in diameter. Cover the cardboard with silver-wrapping paper. Then roll into cone shape and hold together with cellophane tape. Cut wings of cardboard, trim with silver doilies and tape to back of cone.

Cut about two inches off the top of the cone and tape a styrofoam ball in place for the head. The features are made with colored tape. Silver lace paper doilies form the collar and halo. They also edge the bottom of the skirt. For an extra touch of glitter, tie sashen ribbon bows to small Christmas balls and tape between the candy ornaments.

To make the candy-filled trimmings, you will need an assortment of construction paper and gift wrap tapes — and lots of candy. Cut the paper to form various holiday motifs such as bells and stockings. Cut two of each and tape together leaving the top open so it can be filled.

Decorate with gift wrap tape. Cornucopias and snappers can also be made with construction paper and gift wrap tape and filled with candy.

Or, you can cover chocolate bars with colored paper and decorate with strips of tape to form a circus wagon. Peppermint patties lend themselves to angel or clown faces. There is no limit to the variety of designs you can dream up.

GIFT SUGGESTIONS FOR THE SPORTSMAN

If you're hard pressed in a choice of a fitting Christmas gift for a sportsman friend or relative maybe we can help with a few suggestions taken at random from the many new and extremely practical items now on general sale in hardware and sporting goods stores in Michigan.

For Winter Sport

Ice fishermen, rabbit hunters or bobcat trackers can always use some of the new lightweight, super-warm underwear recently perfected, and proven in field use by army and navy research groups. Notable in the new list of such underwear are two bearing the trade marks "Allen A" and "Weatherall." Ice fishermen who move around but little would best choose the latter brand. Light weight outer clothing or jackets will suffice if this type of underwear is used.

The ever-popular hand warmers introduced several years ago always make good gifts. They come in several sizes, and this year some have an accessory "muff" with a pocket in which the warmer slides. While you're waiting for that fish to bite you sit comfortably with your hands in the muff, which is suspended with a neck strap. These pocket sized hand warmers have another innovation this season—a small hole in the top permits one to light a cigarette from the flameless warmer.

The Boot Problem

A few years ago the "Korean" type boot was introduced as the answer to cold weather footwear. However, some people don't agree—and for them the simple addition of a foam rubber innersole might work wonders. The "Korean" type insulated waterproof boot makes an excellent gift for any and all cold-weather sportsmen. The wool-lined high-top pull-over rubber boot which fits over regular shoes is effective, too, but won't wear as well.

Gifts for Fishermen

The variety of items for the angler seems almost endless. Fishing knives which serve as a weighing device are new and ingenious. Their double utility value appeals to almost all sportsmen. The display of lures on the market has never been greater. Old stand-by types like the Dardle are specially packaged as a gift item, with six different sizes in one handsome case. The new spinning reels are improved, too . . . and your dealer will help you choose a good one at the price you want.

Shopping for your sportsman friend this year is easy—and many of the best gift suggestions are made right here in Michigan!

Special Refreshments for Holiday Entertaining

Everyone does some special entertaining during the holiday season. The smart hostess is the one who plans not only for invited guests, but for those who drop in unexpectedly.

So offer for callers and for little impromptu gatherings of friends, a refreshing drink, accompanied by cookies or cake, is sufficient to serve. And it is well to be prepared to offer a preference of choice in beverages, since individual tastes differ.

You might have a selection of pale dry ginger ale and some of the bottled fruit-flavored beverages, such as orange, true-fruit black berry or grape. All of these are popular drinks, served thoroughly chilled, and they are good mixers for your favorite party recipes.

This drink, delicious in flavor and attractive to the eye, is one that you might like to try for your holiday guests.

Friday, December 9—Get set for social security and income tax filing a la 1955, 1:00 to 3:30 p. m., Plainfield Township Hall.

Chairmen and council delegates are reminded of the regular home demonstration council meeting in December. Be sure to bring along suggestions for content of the January lesson in home nursing and first aid. Who in your community wants to take part in finishing and re-finishing furniture in January? Have you seen any pictures of braided rugs lately? If so, we can use them in the braided rugs lesson.

You, me and everybody—we're all alike about putting off until tomorrow what does not have to be done today. You will be sorry, though, if you put off until January beginning to plan for filing income tax and social security returns because the opportunity for some guidance in how to go about it is going to be here in December.

On December 9, to be exact, at Plainfield Township Hall from 1 until 3:30 o'clock, Everett Elwood, Michigan State University specialist in agricultural economics, will offer information to any and all who will come to meet with him there.

Those who heard Mr. Elwood discuss social security and income tax reporting last year know that he can put the information in a way which is easily understood. They will be sure to come again to be posted "up to date." Take a leaf from a notebook and come.

What happens when the 85 become the 15? Take a look and a listen on Channel 5 at 12:30 p. m. Sunday, December 4.

For a "honey" of a spread to top off bread or rolls, team honey with butter in equal parts. You will really like this spread on toast with chopped nutmeats at breakfast time. Really hearty for a cold morning. Children like a sandwich with one slice spread with peanut butter and the other oozing with sweet, pure honey.

Books for the children's Christmas! Yes, by all means. Remember, though, that it is important for the children to enjoy literature they read and hear. A book may be good according to our standards but not fit the children's standards.

Children of all ages like stories of home life depicting the members of the family as closely bound together in love and loyalty. Laura Ingalls Wilder has written books for later childhood, ages 10 to 12 years, which draw a continual sense of warmth and well-being though the family is often endangered. Among them are: "By the Shores of Silver Lake," "Little House in the Big Woods," "Little House on the Prairie," and "Farmer Boy."

You are probably familiar with other authors whose stories give children emotional and spiritual security. Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women" is one. Such books show that righteous people will sooner or later master hardships and evils of all kinds, if they try.

These are books that build a child's religious faith, that inspire them from the lives of others such as "Florence Nightingale" and "Father Damien."

Stories about people from other countries can be so im-

Such books give the younger reader an insight into the attitude problems and everyday life of these people. "The Good Master" by Kate Sereby and "Young Fu of the Upper Yangtze" by Elizabeth Foreman Lewis are examples.

The first tells the story of a Hungarian tomboy, Kate, and her uncle, the Good Master; Hungarian festivals and legends, the household crafts, work of the ranch, good food, warm family life. All these help children better understand other peoples.

The second appeals to ages 10 to 12 and won the Newberry Award in 1933. It tells of the 13-year-old Chinese country boy Chungking as an apprentice to a skillful coppersmith.

Put a good book choice on your shopping list for children in your family.

Not taking yourself seriously is usually a sign of brains.

AuSable River Hunting Saga of 1878

Author-artist's conception of T. F. Thompson's home on the bank of the AuSable where the hunting party was made welcome the first night.—Scribner's Monthly, 1878.

By Special Feature Writer, Scribner's Monthly, New York, October, 1878.

We had a delightful run up Saginaw Bay on a beautiful October evening, on which the sun went down with one of those gorgeous displays of color which England's most eminent art critic has told us are seen but very seldom in a life-time. It was an impressive and singularly beautiful spectacle, but one of which our West is prodigal, and which is not consistent with insular conditions of fog and moisture. A note of admiration sounded within the captain's hearing had the effect of eliciting his practical valuation of it. "Humph!" he said, "rain-like blazes all day to-morrow." It was a matter of common regret that the barometric impressions of this worthy navigator were invariably correct.

We made some stoppages at points upon the shore, where seemingly unaccountable wharves projected from the outskirts of desolation. At these we took off people who might have been fugitives from some new Siberia, and debarked people who might have been exiles going thither. But at half-past eight o'clock we reached East Tawas, where, as the boat came alongside, we were cheerily hailed out of the darkness by a mighty hunter of the wilderness named Curtis, who had come down with his stout team to meet us and help to carry our multifarious traps.

We disembarked amid a dreadful howling of the dogs, who charged about in every direction, dragging their masters in the darkness over a manner of calamitous obstructions, regardless of kicks, cuffs or vigorous exhortation. In half an hour we were comfortably ensconced in an inn with an enormous landlord, whose mighty girth shook with unctuous premonitions of an excellent supper. He produced half of a deer slain that very day, and gave us an earnest of our coming sport in the shape of a vast quantity of broiled venison, all of which we dutifully ate.

Our captain, for we had a captain, as every well-constituted hunting party should, was John Erwin, of Cleveland, a gentleman at whose door lies the death of a grievous quantity of game of all kinds, and whose seventy years seem to have imparted vigor and activity to a yet stalwart and symmetrical frame. Hale, hearty, capable of enduring with his rifle, full of the craft of the woods and an inexhaustible fund of kindly humor, he was the soul of our party. We were under his orders the next day, and so remained until our hunt was over. He was implicitly obeyed; none of his orders were unpleasant; they simply implied the necessary discipline of the party.

We left Tawas in the early morning. We had two wagons, one of which carried nine of us, the other, Curtis's, had the heavier baggage in it, and was accompanied by the remaining three on foot. They had the option of getting into the wagon by turns, if tired, but they were all good walkers. We had twenty-five miles to make to "Thompson's," where we were to halt for the night, and on the following day proceed leisurely to Camp Erwin, six miles further.

As we left Tawas it rained, according to our nautical prophet of the previous evening, and it continued to rain during the entire day. There is nothing particularly exhilarating in driving in a drenching rain, even when it is done under particularly favorable auspices. There was some novelty for one, to be sure, in the great wastes of scrub-oak, the groups of stout Norway pines, the glistening white birch, the maples, the spruce-pines and the beeches; in the impenetrable jungles of tangled undergrowth and in the iteration and reiteration of the landscapes with no landmark or peculiarity whereby one might distinguish one from the other. All this was in one sense a novelty, inasmuch as one might never have seen anything like it before, but the enjoyment of it were it really susceptible of being enjoyment, was marred by the steadiness with which the cold rain beat in our faces; extinguishing cigars and making pipes a doubtful blessing; drenching everything exposed to it and imparting the peculiar chill to which mind and body are alike liable under such conditions.

Another dispiriting element was the road, of which a large part was what is known as "corduroy," from some obscure resemblance, which does not exist, between its structure and a certain well-known fabric affected by "horsey" gentlemen. The jolting we got over this was painful to a degree which it is disagreeable to recall. It jarred every bone in one's body, and embittered the whole aspect of life. It alternated with a series of diabolical mud-holes, into which we dived, and rocked, and swayed, and splashed interminably.

At last we emerged on a higher plateau of sand, and left the marsh behind us for good. Above us was the Michigan forest in all its wonderful variety of growth and richness, and in all its dreary monotony and desolation. The great fires that sweep across this region, leave hideous scars behind them. One sees for miles and miles the sandy plain covered with the charred trunks of the fallen forest. Great lofty pines, whose stems are blackened from the root as high as the fire has reached, huge, distorted and disfigured, stand gloomily above their moldering brethren, their white skeletons extending their dead and broken arms, in mute testimony of lost grace and beauty. Nothing could be more desolate than these "burnings," as they are called. They present the aspect of such utter hopelessness, dreariness, and such complete and painful solitude as one might imagine to exist only within the frozen circle of the Arctic.

At half-past one o'clock, after a few premonitory symptoms in the shape of fences, of which the purpose was obscure, since they hedged in nothing and looked as if they had only been put up for fun or practice, we came suddenly to the edge of a basin or depression in the plateau over which we had been driving, and there, beneath us, lay Thompson's. Here in the midst of the wilderness was a prosperous, healthy-looking farm, actually yielding vegetables and cereals, and having about it all manner of horses, cows, pigs, hay-stacks, barns, dogs to bark, pumpkins, and all the other established characteristics of a well-regulated farm. We rattled down the declivity to the house and met with a hearty welcome, most of the party having known Thompson for years. He is a bluff, hearty backwoodsman, whose years of uninterrupted prosperity have made rich. He owns thousands of acres of timberland, and his house is known far and wide as the best hotel in Michigan.

Mr. Thompson's welcome in the course of an hour took a practical form, when we all sat down to a magnificent roast of venison, broiled chickens, and the most delicious of vegetables, for it seems that when one does get a bit of Michigan and when it will consent to be cultivated, it turns out to be remarkably good land indeed. Thompson's hands came in the evening,—Canadians or the most part, and talking an inexplicable jargon called "Rensselaer," forced by a few lumbermen and trappers, they filled the big, dimly lighted room which would be ordinarily called the bar-room, but which, having no bar, owing to Mrs. Thompson's way of inculcating temperance principles, cannot be so called. They were noisy, well-behaved, and good-humored, and they crowded around the stove, and bedewed it pleasantly and copiously with infusion of Virginia plug. There was a great deal of talk about lumber; how many feet were such an "one" expected to "get out," where such and such camps were about to be located; the prospect of sufficient snow to move the heavy lumber-sleighs, and a variety of topics that had more or less sawdust in their composition.

We left Thompson's hospitable place the next morning after an early breakfast. Curtis and his team carried all our traps, and after a tramp of two hours or so over the wet sand and through the desolate "burnings," we arrived at Camp Erwin. It is a deserted logging camp. One of the buildings was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Bamfield, the latter of whom has engaged to cook for our party, while the former, a stalwart and extraordinarily powerful blacksmith, "assisted," and made himself indispensable by his general handiness and utility, his readiness to do everything, his good-humor and his entire novelty.

The first day in camp was devoted to unpacking our traps and provision, filling our ticks with straw, disposing handily of our various knickknacks, overhauling the rifles, and wasting ammunition under excuse of getting one's hand in. My share being accomplished at noon, some of us started down to take a look at the AuSable River. After a walk of 15 minutes or so, we came out of the forest abruptly on the edge of a high sand-bluff, and there it lay about 150 feet below us. It came around a short bend above; it swept around another front of us, and below us it wound around a third. Its waters were the color of dark-brown sherry, and its current was silent, swift and powerful. Beyond, the bank was low, and the forest stretched back over successions of slightly rising plateaus to the horizon. Here and there one could see the scars of fires, and a sinuous track of the darkest foliage revealed the tortuous course of the AuSable.

The first evening in camp, around the council-lamp, was spent in discussing the prospects of the morrow, in shooting over again all the deer that had been shot upon previous occasions, in comparing the target shooting of the day and in the assignment by the captain of each man to his position on the river. Curtis and two of our party were to "put out the dogs," and the rest were to be stationed at the different runways. This explains the method of hunting. The river for a certain number of miles was divided into runways or points at which deer, when hard pressed by the dogs, would probably take to the water and afford a chance for a shot. The dogs, 12 in number, were divided among those who were to have charge of them for the day, and they took them in various directions into the forest. When a fresh and promising track was discovered, a dog was let loose upon it, or perhaps two dogs, and the deer, after a run of greater or less duration, took to the river in order to elude pursuit. If it went in at a guarded runway, it stood an excellent chance of being shot; but, of course, a large majority of the deer driven in entered the river above or below, or crossed it shortly after reaching it.

A tick filled with straw and laid upon the floor makes an excellent bed, and sportsmen's consciences are always good, for they sleep with exceeding soundness. The ventilation of the apartment was generous in the extreme. The roof was tight, but all around were the open chinks between the logs, and through these the stars could be seen by anybody that had nothing better to do than look at them. Up through the middle of the floor and out through a high hole at the ridge-pole went the stove-pipe, always hot enough to worry an insurance man, and an excellent spot to hang wet clothes. Elsewhere it was cold as charity, and I supplemented by blankets with my heavy frieze ulster, and went to sleep to dream of giant bucks and a rifle that wouldn't go off.

A tremendous uproar awoke me at the moment when for the hundredth time my rifle had exasperated me. It was Mr. B., shouting, "Breakfast! breakfast! Turn out for breakfast! The captain's up and waiting!" It was half-past four, and everybody woke up at the summons, as was indeed unavoidable. There was a scratching of matches and a discordant chorus of those sounds which people make when they are forcibly awakened and made to get up in the cold, unusual morning. Down-stairs there was a prodigious sizzling and sputtering going on, and the light through the chinks in the floor betrayed Mrs. Bamfield and her frying pans and coffee-pot, all in full blast. We were all downstairs in a few minutes, and breakfast was ready,—plenty of rashers of bacon, fried and boiled potatoes, fried onions, bread and butter, and coffee, hot and strong. These were speedily disposed of. Coats were buttoned up, rubber blankets and ammunition belts slung over shoulders, cartridge magazines filled, hatchets stuck into belts, rifles shouldered, and we sallied into the darkness through which the faintest glimmer of gray was just showing in the east. Half an hour or so later, by the time we had gotten to our runways, the dogs would be put out. Off we trudged over the wet, packed sand of the tote-road, the gray dawn breaking dimly through the wilderness.

After a couple of hundred yards of climb, crawl, and tumble through the swamp, my companion took his place under the shelter of the cedars and indicated mine at a little distance up the river. It was one of the best of our runways,—a long stretch of open bank, where the cedar swamp did not reach the river's edge. I got there, took my stand, and indulged in expectation. The exertion of getting through the swamp had warmed me uncomfortably, but I soon ceased to regard that as an objection. The place was exposed; there was no shelter; the cold wind and the driving snow and rain had it all their own way. I stood my rifle against a tree, stuck my hands in my pockets, and watched the river, while my teeth chattered like miniature castanets. I was undeniably, miserably cold. But hark! I seized my rifle. Yes, there it was, sure enough, the bay of a dog in the distance! I forgot to be cold. Nearer and nearer the dogs came, but no deer appeared, and the dogs held their course, on down, parallel with the river. "Better luck next time," I said to myself somewhat desolately, but I was disappointed. Presently the sharp, ringing crack of a rifle rang out and reverberated across the forest, another and another followed, and as I began to get cold again, I tried to console myself by meditating on the luck of other people. The snow and rain abated, and the hours went by, and stiff and chilled was I when, at half-past twelve, young Curtis's canoe came poling up the river to pick up deer if any had been shot above and had lodged in the drift-wood, instead of floating down to his watching-place, three miles below. The dogs were all in, he said, and the doctor had shot a big buck and a fawn.

Next morning I was at my place, still unsubdued and hopeful. I heard a shot fired on the river below me; I heard the baying of the dogs and listened to it as it died away in the direction of some other runway. But I watched steadily. And as I watched I saw the brush about some cedar roots open, and out there sprang into the shallow water a noble buck. He was a stalwart, thickest fellow, his legs were short and compact, his fur was dark in its winter hue, and his antlers glistened above his head. He bore himself proudly as he stood in the water and turned to listen for the bay of the dogs he had outrun. I hesitated a moment, doubtful if I should let him get into the stream and swim down, or shoot at him as he stood. I chose the latter, aimed quietly and confidently, and fired. He pitched forward; the current seized him, and he floated down with it and past me, dead. In eight minutes, by my watch, Mr. M's "Jack" came to the bank, at the spot where the buck had come in and howled grievously over the lost scent. He was worn out and battered, and he came to me gladly when I called him. I had brought some luncheon down with me that morning, and I must confess that I was weak enough to give Jack every bit of it.

That afternoon when I reached camp, I found that I was the last to come in, and that my buck had already been seen and his size noted. I was received with exclamations, and a proposition to give me, as a measure of affected precaution, with the hoops of a flour-barrel, was made and partly carried into execution. There were sung, moreover, sundry snatches of the forester's chorus from "As you Like it." "What shall he have that killed the deer?"

When the day arrived for breaking up camp, we had hung up in our barn 23 deer, my buck being accorded the place of honor at the head of the line. Of the deer killed by our party, there were no less than three that weighed over 225 pounds. Our dogs were in, looking it is true, rather the worse for wear, but all there, which is something unusual at the end of a hunt in this part of the country. The fact is, the natives discourage hunting with dogs, if not, indeed, all hunting in which they themselves do not participate. They place meat which contains strychnine on the deer-paths, and also, when occasion offers, shoot the dogs. A party of gentlemen from Bay City came into our neighborhood, a few days later than we did. They contemplated a three-week's hunt, but during the first three days had two dogs shot and three poisoned. They were discouraged, and left, their leader, Colonel Fitzhugh, offering three hundred dollars reward to any one who should afford him a few minutes' conversation with the individual that had done the mischief.

The immunity our party enjoyed had been gained somewhat as an ancient proprietary right, they having hunted there for so many years. Besides, they had in various ways rendered themselves popular with the natives; no visitor ever left the camp hungry—or thirsty.

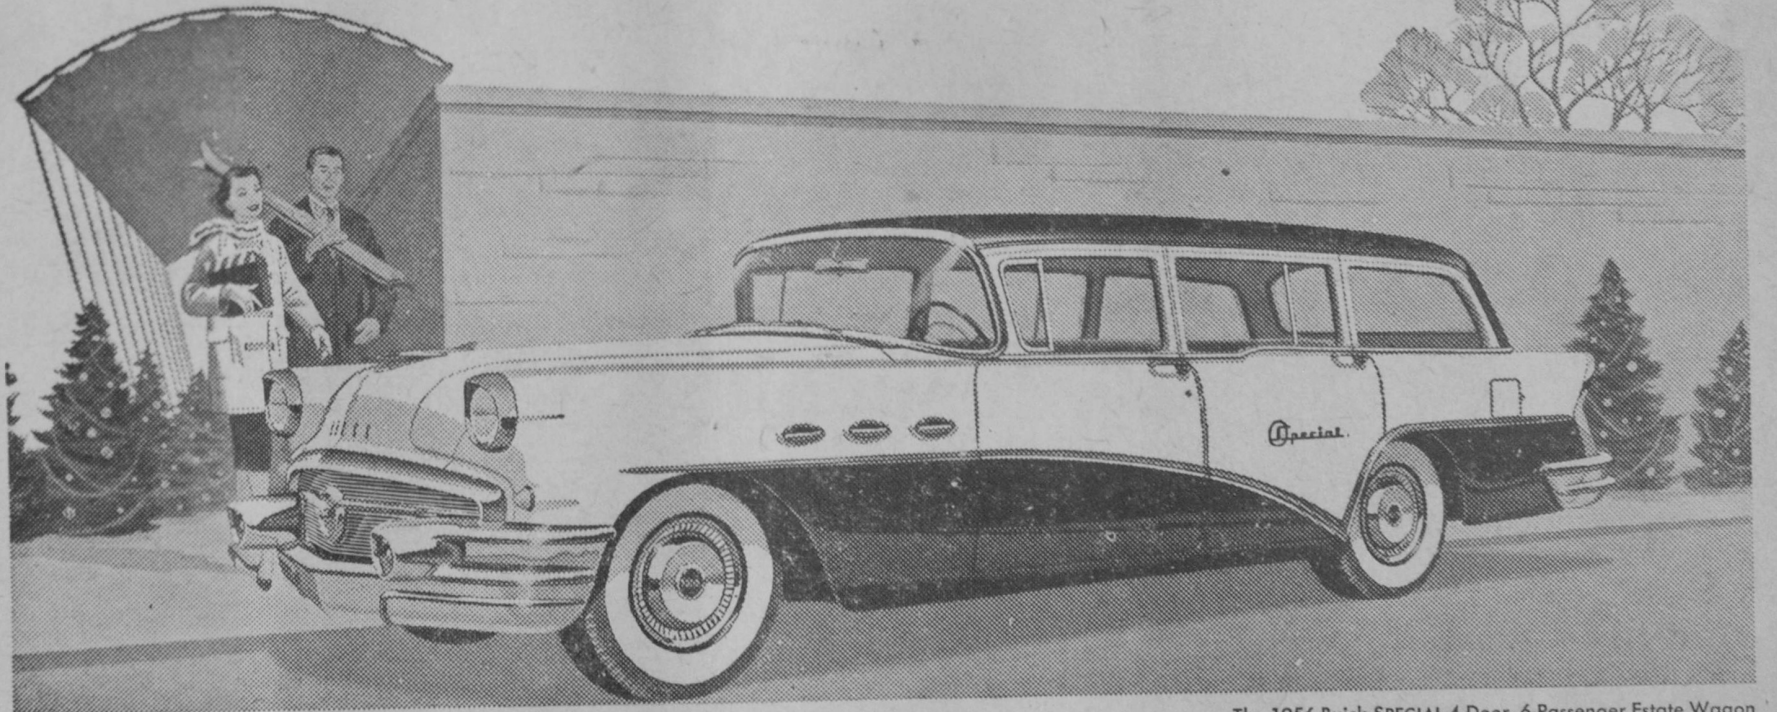

We brought out our venison safely and in good condition, a ton and a half of it or thereabouts. At Detroit we went our ways, ending an expedition which had in it, luckily, no mishaps to mar it, but plenty of wholesome recreation to make one's recollection of it wholly pleasant.

Israel has asked the United States to sell her 40 or 50 late-model jet aircraft as well as anti-submarine vessels, heavy tanks and other heavy armament.

In no uncertain terms, this one makes your travel hours prideful as well as practical. It's all Buick, you see—all 1956 Buick.

Which means a new lift to anyone's spirit—from the new sweep-ahead look of it—the new might of its 322-cubic-inch V8 engine raised to lofty new power highs—the new sizzle of its advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo®—the true sweetness of its great new ride.

But it's a lot more than that. It's Buick's highly versatile Estate Wagon—now substantially lowered in price for 1956—and how much more practical can you get than that?

For with this one, and for an easy-to-reach figure—you have a car with all the suavity and comfort of a smart sedan plus the all-duty handiness of a suburban vehicle.

You have a car completely steel-bodied, so its exterior upkeep stays simple and inexpensive—and a car more than roomy enough to carry six and their gear.

You have a covered platform that's wonderful for a host of things. It can take an inflated air mattress for sleeping. It can freight a small rowboat and camp equipment. It can hold vacation luggage, or golf clubs and such—or the results of a mad shopping spree, even if you go in for antique furniture.

You can even have the folding rear seat come, at your option, in a handy split-section arrangement that lets you carry both rear-seat passengers and extra-long loads like skis, or fishing rods, or young trees, or two-by-fours.

So what more can we say, except come see it. The Estate Wagon is available in Buick's two lowest-priced Series—the budget-tagged SPECIAL, and the great CENTURY. And, we repeat, both newly lowered in price for 1956.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

When Thomas Nelkie was in the office the other day we got talking about the "whereabouts" of some good heifer calves for herd replacements. I told him how Claude Harder, James Sturtevant, Earl Daugherty and others had received calves from other counties through inseminators. I asked him if he had any. "Yes, I have 11 at different ages, but they are not for sale."

The latest addition to his growing herd of Holsteins was a heifer sired by an ABA bull, Kingdale Lochivar, and out of a young cow that produced 15,000 pounds of milk with 550 pounds of butterfat in 305 days. That gives you the reason he is not selling heifers, but raising them for herd replacements. Using the services of proven sires offered through our ABA bulls is the best way and the most reasonable way to improve the dairy herd. For facts and figures on the services offered, contact Rupert Bentley at Hale, Randolph 8-2165, or Thomas Nelkie of Tawas City, Forest 2-2179.

Feeding Cull Beans—Gerald and Ernest Bellen asked me several weeks ago about feeding beans to dairy cattle. I have had similar requests lately. Raw cull beans are palatable only if they are ground coarse. Even so, they should not make up more than one-fifth of the grain ration (20 pounds of each 100 pounds of grain). They are approximately equal to one-half the value of soybeans.

Social Security—Do you realize that some of our Isosco County farmers stand to lose from $50 to $125 per month for the rest of their lives. If they do not get properly organized and take advantage of the social security program that starts paying eligible farmers in July 1956 they will stand to lose that and more.

I have talked with several farm folks and their sons about partnership arrangements. Are they legally and properly set up? They had better be by December 31, 1955, or they are out of luck. In order to better inform you folks about "social security farm programs and profits," I have asked Russell Mawby of Michigan State University to be with us Friday, December 9, at Plainfield Township Hall from 1:00 p. m. to 3:00 p. m. There will be a question box at the meeting so you can drop your notes in the box and have them answered at the meeting.

DRAB CLOSETS GET YULE LIFT

Santa waves a magic wand and presto! He changes a humdrum closet into a magic alcove of enchantment.

How does he perform this marvelous feat? With the gala gift of beautiful closet accessories, calculated to transform the most uninteresting rooms into a delight to the eye and a mighty handy place to hang one's clothes.

A complete change from drab closet to clothing palace requires new usage of shelves, hanging racks and floor space. When Santa wants to go "whole hog," he brings accessories for top to bottom dressing up.

"Pick a color, almost any color" is a start for Mr. Claus. For a man's closet, he'll take neutrals or sport patterns. The lady may get a flowered design or soft solid colors and the children get their favorite nursery patterns.

Now the shelves are supplied with boxes — for storage, flat-folded clothes and hats. Many are covered with quilted fabric, others with smooth plastic. A goodly number of covered hangers to match and one or two extra-wide suit hangers take care of clothing.

WHO ASKED FOR IT?

TV has produced Superman and Pinky Lee, but viewers' demands for the strange and unusual is apparently unstated. The current TV GUIDE reports some of the strange requests received by stations and networks. One gentleman suggested a program in which the screen would be entirely blank except for a large electric light bulb. His title: "TV to Read By." Another wanted to see a man walking on the water, without gimmicks on his feet. And a third pleaded, "Show us an angel. I hear they can be picked up by radar." Some resort to threats. TV GUIDE reports a telephone call received by Walt Disney, in which a small voice menaced, "I'm calling for the Clearview Grammar School and I've been chosen to tell you that you'd better get Davy Crockett out of the Alamo — or else!"

Few friendships avoid at least one acid test.

KERRY DRAKE

By Alfred Andriola

Michigan to Increase Cherry Production 28%

If mother is not an expert and frequent baker of luscious, red cherry pies she had better practice up if Michigan's tart cherry consumption is to keep abreast of the probable increased production that lies ahead.

In six years the state will have about 28 percent more bearing red, tart cherry trees than at present, according to Director G. S. McIntyre of the Michigan Department of Agriculture. The figure is indicated by the Federal State Crop Reporting service following a tree survey made this year. Montmorency is the main variety. Michigan for many years has been the nation's No. 1 producer of red, tart cherries, some years producing as much as 60 percent of the total national crop. At present there are about 3,450,000 bearing trees in the state. Yields for the past five years averaged about 77,500 tons a year. And some of those five years were poor yield years because of unfavorable weather conditions. Had frosts not have taken a toll, the average per year would have been higher. More young trees have been set out. In six years there will probably be about 4,400,000 trees putting out gorgeous white blossoms in spring and crimson-red cherries in summer. This is expected to be the largest number of red, tart cherry trees in the state's history. Cherry production in the future will probably equal and surpass the peak year of 1950 when Michigan's crop amounted to 100,000 tons. And 100,000 tons of cherries is a lot of cherries. Nearly all of Michigan's crop is raised in a narrow strip in the western part of the state extending along Lake Michigan from the Indiana line to nearly the Straits. About 55 percent of the crop is raised from Manistee north, with the area around Traverse City probably the greatest concentration in America. The area south of Manistee to the Grand Rapids section takes in another 25 percent. Twenty percent of the crop is produced in Berrien, VanBuren and Allegan Counties where recent cherry tree plantings are heaviest and where much of that 28 percent increase is expected to come.

FOR CHILDREN'S INTERESTS ARE "THE LONG CHRISTMAS"

by Ruth Sawyer and "Told Under the Christmas Tree," a collection by the Association for Childhood Education.

Ever new is the account of Tiny Tim's Christmas Dinner or Donner and Blitzen's ride through the air. And, for new volumes with treasures you have not met, your Iosco-Arenac Regional Library is an excellent place to go.

Your local branch library will have, or can get, something for you to enjoy.

There are choices other than books at your library which might be helpful to your program—a filmstrip, some recordings or a filmmaker reels about Christmas topics. Two more book titles of Christmas stories are "Wind in the Willows" by Kenneth Grahame and Eugene Field's "Why Do Bells of Christmas Ring." If too long for your 4-H program, borrow them to read at home.

Smoke pours from the bow of the Italian coaler "Dea Mazzerla" after an SOS from the ship had alerted the United States Coast Guard. Some 35 crewmen from the ship brought the fire under control. The ship, enroute to an American or Newfoundland port from Nova Scotia, was 1,200 miles northeast of New York when the fire struck.

With Our SERVICEMEN

Christmas greetings were extended to the editor of The Tawas Herald this week by S-Sgt. and Mrs. James E. Carpenter formerly of Tawas City, now in Germany. Mrs. Carpenter is the former Miss Gloria Farley.

Word from Pfc Claude DeLosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. William DeLosh, Tawas City, reveals that he is on a month-long field problem in Germany, about two miles from the Russian border. He sends Christmas greetings to all of his friends here. His address is: Pfc Claude DeLosh, US55 530 572, Co. M, 87th Inf. Regt., APO 162, New York, N. Y.

Pvt. Wesley A. Hobart, son of Henry W. Hobart, Star Route A, East Tawas, recently was graduated from the supply records course at the Quartermaster School, Fort Lee, Virginia.

The eight-week course included administrative procedures, study of the army supply system, unit supply, station supply, commissary operations, depot operations and storage operations.

Private Hobart entered the army in June of this year and was stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, before arriving at the school.

The 19-year-old soldier is a 1955 graduate of Oscoda High School.

New address of: Pvt. Robert C. Champine, Battery A, 93rd Armed F.A.B., Sixth Armored Division, Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

NEW INDOOR GAMES MAKE IDEAL GIFTS

There is a boom in family interest in all types of indoor versions of outdoor sports which make way for more interesting gift ideas. Ice hockey gets a realistic board game version in a new Poosh-M-Up Ice Hockey game which permits parlor sportsmen to manipulate players and pucks in a highly realistic manner.

Sluggo, a new baseball bagatelle game gives players control of batting. Basket is a new table version of basketball that captures much of the thrills and excitement of the original game. Miniature billiard tables with folding legs are enjoying a wave of popularity.

Looking busy has become one of the great talents in government work.

His hair tossed by a stiff autumn breeze, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles pauses at the National Airport in Washington, D. C., after his return from Europe. He stayed only long enough to confer with various government officials and then took another plane for Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, to report to President Eisenhower on the recent foreign ministers conference in Geneva.

TB ASSOCIATION NAMES FIRST SEAL BUYERS HERE

Tawas City's first 10 buyers of colorful TB Christmas Seals were announced recently by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. The MTA said that the following residents were the first to answer the 1955 Christmas Seal call for contributions: Davison-Rose Builders, Incorporated, 435 West Lake Street; Lester Kelly, 100 Eleventh Street; A. E. Giddings, 436 West Lake Street; Arthur Waggazer, 117 Mathews; Edward Burtzloff, 310 Fourth Street; Donald MacDonald, 1212 Laidlaw; Charles McCormick, Route 2; Robert Short, 432 West Lake; Lewis Braden, 112 First Avenue, and Howard Freel, 209 Second.

Since the Christmas Seal campaign opened on November 16 an encouraging stream of checks and cash has been pouring into the state TB association headquarters. "It is gratifying to see that Michigan citizens are aware that TB is a constant menace and that with Christmas Seal help we can lick it," declared Theodore J. Werle, executive secretary of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

In spite of the millions of dollars spent by the United States in exploring the Antarctic continent, no move has ever been made to claim any portion of Antarctica.

Large Array of Christmas Gifts for 'Do-It-Yourselfers'

Gifts for "do-it-yourselfers" loom large on the Christmas scene, this year. More and more men are daily joining the ranks of amateur handymen, till it now seems as if "every family has one."

Manufacturers have kept pace with this burgeoning movement by improving old tools and developing new ones—all with a view to making do-it-yourself projects easier, quicker, safer and a lot more fun.

Generally speaking, do-it-yourselfers come in three varieties: (1) the man who is just getting started; (2) the "midstreamer" who has pretty well mastered the use of hand tools; (3) the "advanced" type who has graduated to power tools, and is still looking about for new fields to conquer.

Taking these different "varieties" in order, here are some practical gift suggestions.

First thing the beginner needs is a good set of basis hand tools. These include: (1) cross-cut saw; (2) the man who is just getting started; (3) the "midstreamer" who has pretty well mastered the use of hand tools; (4) awl for marking lines on wood or metal; (5) putty knife; (6) snips for metal cutting; (7) keyhole saw; (8) auger bits; (9) C-clamp; (10) try square; (11) whetstone; (12) claw hammer; (13) level; (14) light and heavy screw drivers; (15) brace; (16) slip-joint pliers; (17) benchplane; (18) tape measure; (19) adjustable crescent wrench; (20) pipe wrench; (21) hatchet and (22) hacksaw.

Each member of the family may give one or more of the needed tools. Or all may get together on the complete set, in a handy metal chest or with a pegboard that designates a space for every tool.

For the "mid-streamer" who already has about everything he needs in the way of hand tools, the next step up calls for power tools to broaden the scope of his activities.

A good start would be a portable electric drill kit including attachments for drilling holes, buffing, polishing, grinding, sanding, mixing paints, etc.

These kits make the handyman's work about the house a thousand times easier, because he can take them to the spot where he is working—even out to the garage to polish the family car.

Another popular item is the portable power saw. It comes in lightweight but sturdy models, specially designed for the small builder, handyman and workshop hobbyist.

One of the most important developments in the do-it-yourself power-tool field is the multipurpose tool. Combining all basic operations into one unit this tool can be used as a saw, disc-sander, lathe, vertical drill press and horizontal drill. It is especially practical where space is at a premium and a compact working set-up is essential.

Now we come to the "advanced type" of the do-it-yourselfer, who already has what he needs to you like a pretty complete lineup of power tools he wants. As his skill increases, his horizons widen and his interest begins to soar in specialized professional-type power tools, such as lathe, radial saw, arbor saw, drill press, band saw, jointer, shaper, sander and grinder.

To successfully gift the "advanced type" do-it-yourselfer it is necessary (1) to know what tools he already has, and (2) to learn just what he needs and wants.

If you are in doubt about the matter, most any hardware, lumber or electric appliance dealer can help you make a wise selection, if you let him know what tools are on hand and the type of work toward which your do-it-yourselfer is trending.

Wilber News

Mrs. John Newberry was the hostess at a meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service Thursday, November 17. The Wilber Methodist group observed the 15th anniversary of the organization of the society at this time.

A program built around the theme, "Remember, Rejoice and Review," was presented, and consisted of hymns, Scripture lesson, prayer and readings.

Three charter members of the society, Mrs. Herbert Phelps, who was the first president, Mrs. John Newberry and Mrs. Harry Cross, were honored at the meeting. They were presented with corsages of yellow and white chrysanthemums by the president, Mrs. Ray Cross.

A pleasing feature of the program was the birthday cake made by Mrs. Alton Abbott. This was baked in the form of a church, with a lawn about, dotted with flowers. Green, white and chocolate frosting made a very realistic effect.

In antique crystal holders 15 pink candles were arranged about the church, and these were lighted by members and guests as activities of the W.S.C.S. to the number 15, were enumerated. A 16th candle, the "one to grow on," was placed at one side, and was lighted by the president, Mrs. Cross. For the lunch that concluded the party, the hostess served salad, hot rolls, coffee and the birthday cake.

Mrs. William Phelps has spent a portion of the week in East Tawas at the homes of her sister, Miss Edna Otis, and her son, Francis Dorey.

Riley VanTine and son, Jack, of Detroit spent a portion of last week at the John Newberry home. They were here hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Phelps made a business trip to Bay City last Friday. From there they went to Midland to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Terryah where they spent the night, returning home early Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dorey and Miss Dorothy Kline of Lansing called on Mrs. William Phelps on Sunday. They also visited in the Francis Dorey home in East Tawas.

The Ray Cross family spent part of last week at the C. C. Harwood home in East Tawas. A new furnace was being installed in their home.

The W.S.C.S. recently sent Christmas boxes to Norman Harris, a former Wilber boy, now stationed in Korea. The box consisted of children's clothing which will be distributed among the needy ones at Christmas time. Through the faithful efforts of the supply secretary, Mrs. Herschel Hyzer, the W.S.C.S. made and sent a box of 25 woolen hoods to Korean women and children.
