Sunshine Brought Successful Finale to Iosco's Centennial

Iosco County's centennial celebration is now past history. The seven-day 100th birthday observance came to a climax Saturday with a two-mile long parade through the Tawas area, along with presentation of awards at the conclusion.

Sunny skies greeted the more than 10,000 persons who lined US-23 and Newman Street to watch the procession of colorful floats, bands, old cars and horse-drawn vehicles starting at the Federal Building in East Tawas and ending at Mathews Street in Tawas City.

Parade Chairman Walter Champion of Tawas City marshaled the procession into line and gave the signal to start at 2:15. Leading the procession was a colorguard from Wurtsmith Air Force Base carrying flags of the United States, Michigan and Iosco County.

Next came a tall "Uncle Sam," followed by the centennial baby, little Janis Harley of Oscoda, riding on a float designed and constructed by officers wives of Wurtsmith Air Force Base.

The parade included a float depicting the 13 original colonies of the United States, a horse-drawn hearse, many exhibits of lumbering days, American Indians, old-time automobiles and horse-drawn carriages, loads of logs, first printing press in Iosco County and a display of an early-day central telephone office, to mention a few.

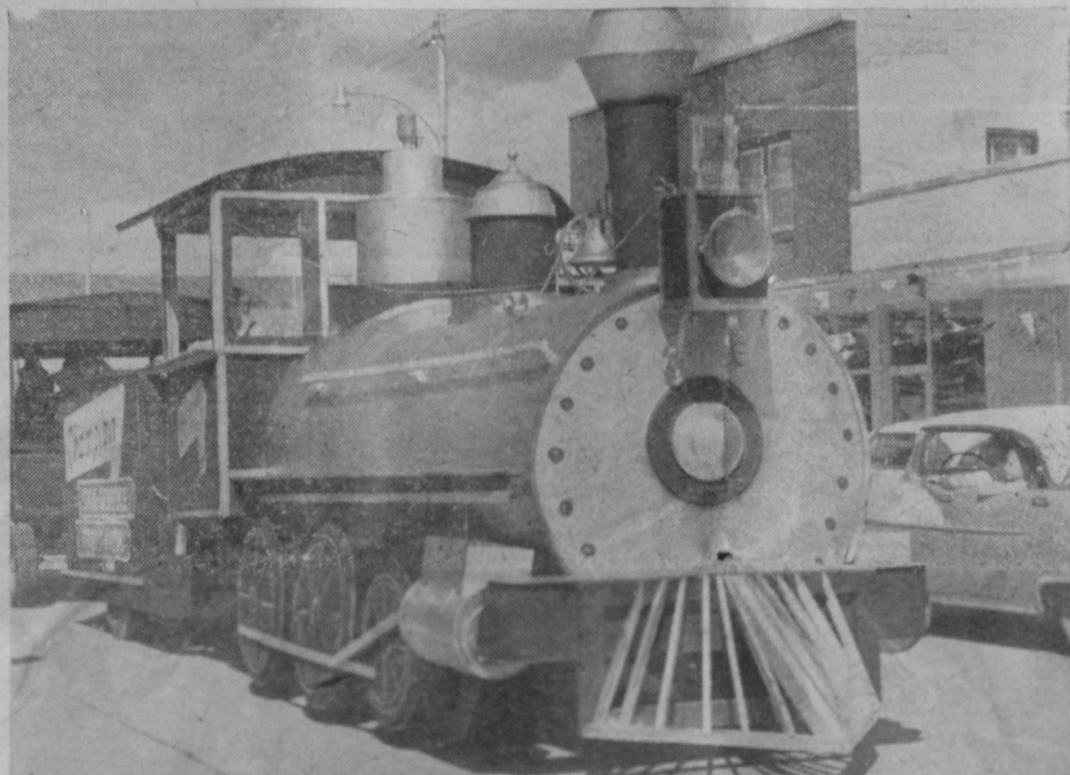

Also riding in the parade, as the honored guests of the centennial committee, were Mrs. Susan Slingerland, Proper and Edward Graham, both 90 years of age, the oldest native-born Iosco residents. Peter Cameron, 105, oldest resident of the county, rode on an old-time horse-drawn wagon entered by the City of Whittemore.

Eight bands marched in the parade. These included high school bands of Tawas Area, St. Joseph of Manistee, Davison, Whittemore-Prescott, Ashley, the Auburn accordion band, Fulton and the Audie Johnson American Legion drum and bugle corps.

While state and local police and sheriff's department officers cleared traffic on US-23 at the conclusion of the parade, which had backed up for several miles, Frank Benesh, news director of WJEM-TV, acted as master of ceremonies at an awards program at the Tawas City Park.

Clarence S. Everett, chairman of the Iosco County Board of Supervisors, presented a $100 United States Savings Bond to Centennial Baby Janis Harley, daughter of Captain and Mrs. Ernest Harley of Oscoda. She was born at 2:30 a. m. February 16, 1957, the first baby to be born on the exact date of the 100th birthday of the county.

A special award was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Powers, former residents of Tawas, who came all the way from Seattle,

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vigrass of Grand Rapids were honored as the oldest couple married in Iosco County. A duplicate of their marriage certificate was presented to them by State Senator Charles T. Prescott. The original was destroyed in a recent fire and this one was copied from records in the county building. She is the former Ella St. Martin and was married to Mr. Vigrass at East Tawas January 9, 1893. Mr. Vigrass is a former employee of the late C. H. Prescott, the senator's grandfather.

Others receiving awards were the winners of the centennial essay contest, Judith Dorey, Barbara Alverson and Lyle Adams.

During the program spectators at the city park and county building lawn, many of whom were dressed in costume of the "gay 90s," were entertained by the precision marching of the "Raevens" of Pontiac.

Winners of the final beard judging contest were: Charles Koepke, Tawas City, first; James Thursday's activities will be highlighted by the annual fire works display sponsored by the Tawas Chamber of Commerce. This year the colorful sky rockets and other pyrotechnic displays will be fired from the Tawas City Park dock. This event is scheduled to start at dusk, or shortly thereafter.

Many hundreds of spectators are expected to line the shores of the bay to watch the colorful event from various vantage points. The course this year will be 1½ miles in length. Spectators may watch the races from the Michigan Waterways Commission Dock and other docks in that area.

Tune-up races for all classes are to be held at 10 o'clock this morning (Thursday) and at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A family picnic for members will be held at 5 o'clock.

Search Continues for Drowning Victim

Search for the body of an Ohio man who fell out of his speeding outboard motor boat Saturday morning was continued Tuesday by the United States Coast Guard, Michigan State Police and Arenac County Sheriff's Department officers.

Still missing is Carl Mannon, 35, of Middletown, Ohio, who was vacationing with his wife and two sons at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Hopwood on Saginaw Bay, 15 miles south of Tawas City.

Witnesses told investigating officers that Mannon went out on the bay shortly before 9 o'clock Saturday morning to remove water from his 16-foot boat with an automatic bailer.

Witnesses said the boat suddenly speeded up on the wind-roughened bay. Mannon vanished as the craft went into a sharp turn.

The empty boat circled for 45 minutes before a coastguardsmen from Tawas Point was finally able to board the craft and return it to shore.

Board Gives Green Light to Subdivision

Tentative approval for a proposed new subdivision in Tawas City was given to John A. Brugger and Victor Zaharias by the Tawas City Council at Monday night's regular meeting.

The new subdivision, when completed, would consist of more than 50 building lots. The property is located north of the Tawas City baseball diamond, between First Avenue and Wilber Road.

Surveying work for the project is now being completed by R. J. Cooke of East Tawas. This subdivision would adjoin the Burrell Subdivision, not as yet completed.

In other business, the council authorized Supt. of Public Works Reginald Bubitz to proceed with a two-mile road building program in July. East Shore Asphalt Company will lay a single-seal coat on streets to be selected by the superintendent and street committee.

Accept Low Bid---

A bid submitted by Henry Oates was accepted by the Tawas City Park Board Monday for construction of a concrete slab in the park to be used for tennis courts and shuffleboards.

Oates' bid of $3,326 was the lowest of three received by the board. Others were submitted by Eckstein Construction Company, $3,447, and O. S. Rose Builders, $3,800.

C. S. Everett, chairman of the park board, said this week that the contractor is to complete work by July 19, or within three weeks after acceptance of the bid.

Audubon Junior Nature Club Organized in Reno Township

Organization of an Audubon Junior Club in the "Woody Woodpecker Fan Club," formerly the Taft Junior 4-H Gun Club, was announced yesterday by Norman Sibley, leader of the club.

The purpose of the group will be to stimulate interest in nature and conservation among the students. More than 9,500,000 boys and girls have been members of Audubon Junior Clubs.

Newly-elected officers of the club are: Lyle Adams, president; Douglas Harris, vice president; Charlotte Webb, secretary-treasurer and Glenwood Bradley, reporter.

Other members are Sandra Harris, Elsie Liebelt, Kenneth Robinson, Larry Wells and Inge Tooper.

The National Audubon Society, which sponsors Audubon Junior Clubs, has sent the new unit a supply of materials which include buttons for each member, colored pictures of birds, mammals and flowers, as well as suggestions for exploring the outdoors in order to become better acquainted with "the community of living things and its importance in terms of human progress."

Mr. Sibley said, "The National Audubon Society has found that until children develop an interest in birds, mammals, insects, trees or other nature subjects, they have little interest in conservation of natural resources. It is for this reason that the society devotes a great deal of time and money to the organization of Audubon Junior Clubs. These clubs were founded in 1910 with a gift of $15,000 from Mrs. Russell Sage to the National Audubon Society. She was shocked by the widespread slaughter of robins that she observed during a trip through the South and decided that an organized program of nature education would offer the only real solution to the problem."

During the 45 years of their existence, Audubon Junior Clubs have expanded their scope of activities to include all branches of nature and conservation. They study plants, insects, mammals, aquatic life, as well as birds; they learn about soil erosion, forest conservation and water pollution. These clubs are active in every province of Canada, as well as in Mexico, Alaska, Hawaii and many foreign countries.

Although the more than 10,000 Audubon Junior Clubs that are in operation every year are formed primarily in individual classrooms, there are also clubs in Scout Troops, Camp Fire Girl groups, 4-H Clubs, summer camps and religious youth groups, as well as in other youth organizations. The Audubon Junior Club program is regarded as a valuable adjunct to the established activities of these groups.

Any group of 10 or more children, plus an adult leader, may form a club. Many of the nation's leading naturalists and conservationists developed their interest in the out-of-doors in Audubon Junior Clubs. Full details about the procedure for starting such clubs may be obtained by writing to the National Audubon Society, 1130 Fifth Avenue, New York City 28, New York.

Hearier Appellif A Certainly When Eating Out-of-Doors

By Dorothy Scott
Home Demonstration Agent

Everybody, well almost everybody, loves a picnic. Somehow food tastes so much better when eaten outside.

Even picnics can include a variety of foods planned to meet one-third of the days nutrition requirement. Take a protein food as the main dish—meat, fish, cheese, eggs or baked beans. Add fresh fruits or vegetables, a breadstuff, a beverage and a simple dessert. That is all there is to the recipe for a good, healthful, satisfying picnic. Just be sure there are generous helpings of the foods you do fix—appetites are always hearier out of doors.

Children love fingerpainting because it is somewhat like playing in mud, except that it is more fun because of the colors and because so much expression is possible.

And anyone can fingerpaint, so it is an art well within the grasp of the very young as well as fun for the not so young.

Commercial fingerpaints are available but a satisfactory and inexpensive variety can be made at home by boiling starch to a very thick consistency, adding some milk soap flakes and then coloring it with tempera paints or vegetable coloring.

Use a glazed paper, such as shelf paper, or paint directly on an oilcloth covered table instead of paper. A cellulose sponge is fine for cleaning up afterwards.

First dip the paper into water and drain it. Lay it taut to make sure there are no wrinkles. Drop about a tablespoon of paint on the damp paper. Begin by smearing the paper in any way desired. Straight lines, scratches or graceful curves.

Ask the child about his painting not what he is painting. Fingerpainting is a good rainy weather activity when children have to stay indoors. We have been having such weather lately, so this may be "something to do" that is different for them if it rains today or soon.

How long will pasteurized milk keep in the refrigerator? Studies show that it keeps well and retains high quality for four days after home delivery.

How much milk should you have every day? Children, three to four cups; teen-agers, one quart or more; adults, two or more cups; expectant mothers, one quart or more. Have you had enough milk today?

Yes, milk has a place in the reducing diet. It makes valuable contributions to body health. Skim milk can be used to keep calories low. The vitamin A (lost when cream is removed) can be supplied by other foods.

Imitation leather or plastic is often used to resemble leather. These materials are non-porous and require no lubrication as leather does. When they become soiled, they can be washed with soap and water. Furniture of this type is good when there are small children in the house who like to climb. Sometimes imitation leather or plastic upholstered furniture requires a brisk rubbing with a medium stiff brush before it becomes thoroughly clean. Then it should be rinsed with a damp cloth and rubbed dry.

One dime spent for milk gives about twice as much protein as 10 cents spent for round steak, 23 percent more protein than 10 cents spent for hamburger or eggs.

If you are traveling to a picnic, or taking a long trip, pass the time more quickly by playing "59 or Bust" with your family.

The game consists of observing license plates. As a car approaches, note the first and last digits of the license number and add them together. The sums are credited to each of the players in rotation for all the cars that are passed.

For example, player number one takes the sum of the first and last license numbers of the first car that passes. Number two takes them for the second car. If there are five passengers playing, number one adds the sum from the sixth car to his original score after player number five has had his turn. The object of the game is to get an even 59. If a player scores more than 59, he is "busted" back to zero. Each player may keep his own score mentally. However, when playing it with children, it might be better to furnish one with a score card.

POPULATION ESTIMATE

The Census Bureau estimates that the population of the United States, including the armed forces overseas, on June 6 was 171,000,000. The population is growing by about 8,000 per day or 3,000,000 every year.

PICNICS ARE FAMILY AFFAIRS

By GLADYS H. FOSSUM
Program Service Department
National Dairy Council

Family togetherness is the key word of picnic planning. Especially when food and equipment may be prepared and assembled by all members of the family.

Picnic time creates a spirit of helpfulness that makes the backyard supper or a picnic a congenial affair as each one becomes a volunteer in making the meal a special success. Mother is wise to sense the help she will get from the small fry, from dad, or the other members of the family, as she assigns special tasks to each one and dismisses picnic chores from her planning list. Dad may organize the charcoal, lighter, matches and other accessories for the fire, while brother and sister assemble the charcoal stove, the long forks and skewers, the picnic basket and the milk cooler.

Food Important

The food for the picnic is very important—for what is a picnic without food! Milk and other dairy products are right at home at picnics since they are easy to serve and add a nourishing part to the picnic meal. Milk is a fine source of protein for the active picnic group. Cheese and butter are among the standbys in sandwich preparation, and ice cream is an all-time favorite for an a la mode dessert or served with cookies or cup cakes.

For variety, generous sized sandwiches made from small loaves of French bread or finger rolls, and filled with a tasty cheese spread, can be one of the mainstays of a successful picnic. For nourishment and flavor cheese offers many possibilities as sandwich fillings. These spreads may be used for picnics out-of-doors or for the days when the picnic is rained out and the broiler of the home range is rushed into service as a substitute for the outdoor grill.

SEAFOOD CURRY CHEESE SPREAD

- 2 cups shredded sharp American cheese
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1/4 teaspoon onion juice
- 1/4 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 cup diced shrimp, or 5 ounce can

Shred cheese. Combine sour cream, onion juice, curry powder. Mix sour cream, cheese and diced shrimp. Spread generously between halves of buttered rolls or slices of French bread. Place on baking sheet in a 425°F. oven until lightly browned or under a broiler about 5 to 6 inches from heat. Makes 3 cups spread, enough for 6 to 8 sandwiches.

Variations: Crabmeat or lobster may be substituted for the shrimp.

CREOLE CHEESE SPREAD

- 2 cups shredded sharp American cheese
- 1/2 cup finely diced green pepper
- 6 slices diced, cooked bacon
- 6 tablespoons chili sauce
- 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Shred cheese. Combine cheese with diced green pepper, crisp cooked bacon, chili sauce and Worcestershire sauce. Spread generously between halves of buttered rolls, buns, or thick slices of French bread. Place on a baking sheet or wrap individually in pieces of aluminum foil. Place in 425°F. oven until lightly browned or under broiler about 5 to 6 inches from heat. Makes 3 cups spread, enough for 6 to 8 sandwiches.

COTTAGE PICNIC SANDWICHES

- 1 1/2 cups cottage cheese
- 1 tablespoon finely minced onion
- 3 tablespoons finely chopped sweet pickle or
- 3 tablespoons pickle relish
- 1 tablespoon mayonnaise or salad dressing
- Softened butter
- Lettuce
- 16 slices whole wheat bread

Blend cottage cheese with onion, pickle and mayonnaise. Spread 8 slices bread with softened butter. Spread filling on each, add lettuce then cover with second slice of buttered bread. Wrap in waxed paper. Makes 8 sandwiches. Filling may be prepared, refrigerated, and taken to picnic in covered container so that sandwiches may be made at the spot. Bread may be buttered in advance.

PERFECT PICNIC PICTURES

Children and grownups enjoying the outdoors... lots of good food... lots of laughter... That's the picture of the American family in July.

And that happy picture of picnicking family and friends can be kept the year around, if your don't-forget list includes—along with paper plates, pickles and potato salad—the family camera and plenty of film.

The best souvenirs of the day's outing are snapshots, color slides or home movies of all the things that went on at the picnic site.

But to get a real record of it, a picture record you'll enjoy looking over in future years, don't just take snapshots aimlessly. Try to plan ahead to capture the highlights.

Picture Story
And the best place to begin is at the beginning. That means taking pictures of the picnic lunch being prepared and packed, the scramble to get in the family car, and perhaps some shots of Mom trying to tell Junior that it's okay to take his baseball bat, sailboat, tennis racket, model plane, and toy rifle but there's just not enough room left in the car to take his complete collection of toy soldiers.

Once arrived at the picnic site, you can continue the picture story with shots of Dad as he cooks the frankfurters or Mom serving up a plate of food to waiting members of the family. You'll want to take some snaps of the small fry munching away on a giant-size slice of watermelon or taking a mighty drink of soda pop.

Most people are conscious of themselves when they know a camera is being aimed at them. And the resulting pictures are artificial.

Natural Poses
So, instead of posing your subjects, the person with the camera should keep it handy by his side and ready to use when nobody is paying any attention to him. Or move around the picnic site snapping pictures when people are occupied and not mindful of the camera. People playing games, singing, talking, snoring away under a big shade tree, taking a cooling dip... there are so many natural situations worth recording on film at a picnic that it's impossible to mention them all. It's smart to bring along a means of filling in shadow areas to get better pictures. And if the outing continues past sunset, flash will permit you to continue taking pictures of picnic fun.

Potts was in trouble in the second and fourth innings, but pitched out of a tight jam twice with two men on base. In the eighth inning his mates assisted him with three consecutive brilliant plays in the infield.

Top hitter for the day for Tawas City was Cavell, who had a single and a double to his credit. No Mikado batter was able to get more than one hit.

MARVIN DAVENPORT SAYS— Aerial Spraying of DDT Endorsed by Three Government Agencies

The safety of aerial spraying of DDT to control such insects as the gypsy moth and the mosquito has been endorsed by three United States Government agencies.

The public health service, the fish and wildlife service and the agricultural research service made the endorsement, according to Ray L. Janes, extension entomologist at Michigan State University.

Announcement of the joint agency endorsement was made in connection with a current federal campaign to eradicate the leaf-eating gypsy moth caterpillars in the eastern United States.

The three agencies point out that many years' experience with DDT has shown that the insecticide, when used in specified manner, is not injurious to man or farm animals, offers slight if any hazard to birds or other wildlife and is not likely to have any serious effect on fish populations in the sprayed areas.

The gypsy moth control program calls for a single aerial application of one pound of DDT dissolved in one gallon of light oil per acre. At this rate of application, a plot of land measuring 50 feet on a side (2,500 square feet) receives less than one ounce of DDT. A similar application will also control mosquitoes, according to Janes.

Although DDT is potentially toxic to humans who take the chemical internally or are exposed to large amounts of it, there are no substantiated cases of DDT poisoning among residents of areas where DDT has been sprayed from the air.

One of the outstanding accomplishments of the insecticide has been the protection of millions of people in the warmer areas of the world from malaria through the DDT control of mosquitoes. This is a continuing and expanding program and has been given broad approval by the expert committees of the World Health Organization.

DDT powder achieved much fame during and after World War II in the control of body lice that carry typhus. International health agencies report no authenticated cases of DDT poisoning under this program although the dosage applied directly to the body is many times greater than possible exposure resulting from aerial spraying.

"One more for the pot" may be a fine slogan when you are making tea, but not when you are mixing insecticides. Ray Janes of Michigan State University's entomology department says that over-dosing with insecticides is a dangerous practice.

This is especially true, Janes says, with the more powerful chemicals being used to control insects these days. These more powerful insecticides give the user a smaller margin of safety. The chemicals are perfectly safe if used according to directions but you can cause considerable damage by over-dosing. You can burn or stunt plants by putting on an insecticide that is too strong and you run the risk of having too much residue left on the vegetables at harvest time.

With livestock, the danger is even greater. You can cause the death of animals by improper use of chemicals.

Michigan, the water wonderland of the Midwest, is blessed with plenty of lakes and natural waters. But serious water problems may lie just ahead.

Industry, tourist attractions, agriculture, urban developments and navigation depend on the state's water supply. And great quantities of water are needed for all these things.

The average person uses about 150 gallons of water per day directly and a total of about 1,300 gallons per day for all his needs.

For example, 65,000 gallons of water are needed to produce about a ton of finished steel, and 15,000 gallons of water to make an automobile.

A cow drinks 11 gallons of water for each quart of milk she produces, and 10,000 gallons of water are needed for each bushel of corn. A ton of cured alfalfa hay has used up 200,000 gallons of water.

We occasionally suffer from water shortages, even in Michigan. Farm wells sometimes run dry, and the City of Flushing ran out of water in 1955.

Whether this problem is one of insufficient water or of poor distribution of the water we have, the result is the same.

The interests of industry and fishermen may conflict, as may the interests of two or more farms in the same watershed. This problem of conflicting interests poses some legal problems, which promise to become more significant in Michigan in the future.

Graves and Luitje, Hale, are the owners of two registered Guernseys that have recently completed herd improvement registry production records, according to the American Guernsey Club.

Thum Gold Cassie, a seven-year-old, produced 11,062 pounds of milk and 534 pounds of fat in 305 days. She was milked two times daily.

Plainfield D. Francine, a senior two-year-old, produced 9,258 pounds of milk and 467 pounds of fat in 305 days. She was milked two times daily.

These official production records were supervised by Michigan State University.

Calendar:
Friday, July 12—6:30 p. m. Tour on weed control. John Carver, Michigan State University specialist resource person.
Tuesday, July 16—Extension Service Committee, joint meeting at 11:30 a. m., with Les Bell, Michigan State University forester, at the Holland Hotel.
Wednesday, July 24 through Saturday, July 27—Isosco County Fair at Hale.
Monday, July 29—Northeastern Michigan Sheep Day at Hale Fairgrounds.

COURT MARTIAL—Accused Col. John C. Nickerson Jr., pleaded guilty to charges of carelessly handling rocket and missile secrets after the army dropped its espionage charges. As the proceedings continued in Huntsville, Alabama, for a week, Colonel Nickerson is shown as he paused for a brief interview before re-entering the court room where closed session testimony of rocket experts continued.

Stay-at-Home Duck

A female mallard, one of Michigan's year-round waterfowl residents, gives a Conservation Department photographer a quizzical look while posing for this picture. About 195,000 ducks, geese and swans made their winter quarters in the state this year—the second highest winter concentration in the state.

SOVIET SHIPS PASS THROUGH SUEZ CANAL—Three Egyptian merchants row over to one of two Soviet destroyers in the Suez Canal at Port Said, Egypt. A Soviet navy tanker accompanied the two craft as they headed south through the canal. They are the first Russian warships to pass through the Suez Canal since World War I.

the Snapshot Guild

Snapshots like this—tucked between the pages of a letter or placed in a special folder—will be welcomed by family and friends.

Snapshots Make Your Letters Welcome

How many times has something like this happened at your house? You get a batch of wonderful snapshots back from the photographer, and immediately decide you must enclose a picture or two in your next letter to Aunt Mamie or Cousin Fred. But somehow weeks slide by and the letter just doesn't get written—or if it does, it's posted without a picture because the prints have already been put away.
Well, we think we've found the answer to this little problem. Next time you pick up a set of prints at your camera store, take a look at the attractive folders—complete with envelopes—that are available for your convenience. Aptly enough, they're called "friendship folders"—and each is especially designed so that a wallet-size print may easily be inserted. Four little slits hold the corners of the snapshot firmly in place inside the folder.
One of these folders we particularly like has a colorful scene of a house, lawn and trees on the front cover, along with the words "Just dropping in to say..." Inside, the message continues, "Hello—Now I'd like to see one of you," and an open door reveals the space in which a snapshot is to be inserted.
All you have to do is slip-in your snapshot, tuck the folder into its envelope, address it and send it on its friendly way to someone you're thinking about. Some folders are available with Happy Birthday greetings printed on them; others, without any printed message, may be used for any occasion or as party invitations and special announcements.

WIMBLEDON FORM—Great Britain's Shirley Bloomer plays high gear tennis as she goes low to return a shot by Great Britain's Pat Ward during their women's single match at Wimbledon, England. American players advanced their position in the championship tournament but through the quarter-final round the British opposition was still strong.

MR. AMERICA-1957—Ronald Lacy of Lexington, Kentucky, flexes the muscles that won him the coveted Mr. America title of 1957. Lacy also won a leading trophy during the AAU weight lifting championships in Daytona, Florida.

The plane was demolished as it crashed into a field five miles south of Lincoln in Alcona County and about 10 miles north of the airfield.

Thompson suffered only minor bruises and lacerations. The pilot was assigned to Wurtsmith on temporary duty from the 71st FIS, stationed at Selfridge Field.
