Three days of Iosco County's big centennial celebration remain this week, with the event's main attraction, a parade through the Tawasess, set for Saturday afternoon.

With the hope of favorable weather for the week-end, the parade and other activities Saturday will climax seven days of fine programs which have been staged throughout the county.

The parade is scheduled for 2 o'clock Saturday and will start at the Federal Building at East Tawas. The route will be down Newman Street to US-23 and then down US-23 through the Tawas City business section.

Edward J. Rima, band director of Tawas Area Schools, said Tuesday that there would be eight marching bands in the parade.

These include, besides Tawas Area's school band, St. Joseph School band of Manistee, Fulton School band of Middleton, Ashley High School band, Davison Community School band, Whittemore-Prescott Area band, Auburn Accordion Band, the Audie Johnson Post American Legion drum and bugle corps, East Tawas.

Parade chairman on Saturday will be Walter Champion of Tawas City. He said this week that indications are that it will be one of the finest parades in the history of the county.

Four straight days of rain have dampened the spirits of Ioscoans celebrating the 100th birthday anniversary of the county.

In spite of showers Wednesday afternoon, several hundred persons were on hand to ride the special train run by the Detroit and Mackinac Railway to Wurtsmith Air Force Base.

A large crowd of persons had to be turned away because of space limitations as the first train left for the air base Wednesday morning. A still larger crowd was on hand to climb aboard the "Centennial Special" shortly after noon.

Coming out of retirement to act as engineer for the run was Edward Moeller of East Tawas. Other members of the crew, all retirees, were Allie Bigelow, fireman; Harvey McMurray, conductor, and Roy McMullen, brakeman.

Tuesday's harness racing events at Hale went off as scheduled, in spite of the weather. Between showers Tuesday night local winners in the beard and costume contests were selected.

Other activities on Saturday, "Iosco County Day," will be final judging of costumes and beards and presentation of awards to the centennial baby and winners of centennial essay contests.

Master of ceremonies during the final beard judging will be Frank Benesh, news director of WJEM-TV, Bay City. This event will be held in the band stand across from the county building in Tawas City starting at 4:30.

During these festivities the "Rae-Vens," a drill team from Pontiac, will entertain. Highlight of Thursday's program (today) will be stock car racing at the Whittemore Speedway. Several special trophies will be awarded to winners. There will be no admission charge at the track.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, there will be a children's parade along Whittemore's main street, plus a dance review at the community building. All county children are invited to participate in special athletic events to be held starting at 2:45. Whittemore will play Hale in a Babe Ruth Baseball League contest at 4 o'clock. A costume square dance will be staged at 9:30 followed by the presentation of local beard and costume awards.

Friday's festivities at East Tawas will include fishing contests at the Michigan Waterways Commission Dock, free boat rides on Tawas Bay and a reminiscing time at the community building. A centennial dinner will be held at 6 o'clock at the Wilber Methodist Church.

Highlight of the program in the evening will be a costume dance at the bank corner from 8:30 to 9:30, followed by beard and costume judging. Iosco's centennial celebration got off to rather wet start last Sunday morning. A rain storm held down attendance at the sunrise services at Lumbermen's Monument, although a fair crowd was on hand for the kick-off program.

Included in the program were talks by Miss Edna Otis, centennial chairman; the Rev. Fr. Robert Neuman and the Rev. W. A. Gregory. James F. Mark, who had charge of the program, led the audience in a community sing. The colors were presented by a color guard from Wurtsmith Air Force Base.

The program Sunday evening consisted of a band concert at the East Tawas State Park by high school bands of the county.

Second day of the centennial celebration again found the weather uncooperative, with showers interrupting the program Monday night in Tawas City.

Starting the program was a dinner at the Barnes Hotel, attended by many persons in centennial costumes. This was followed by the "Rae-Ettes" of Pontiac, who displayed their dancing skills on the apron of the city hall. A threatening rain storm forced cancellation of the square dance which was to follow.

Winners in the local centennial beard and costume contest were selected at the conclusion of the program.

Members of the "Rae-Ettes," who acted as judges, had a very difficult time selecting the winners from a large number of persons who were dressed in "gay 90s" costumes.

Mrs. James Leslie and Donald Seymour were awarded first prizes in the costume contests. Four prizes were awarded in the beard judging contest, first going to Charles Koepke; second James Lansky; third, Walter Champion, and fourth to John McArdle.

Harvey McMurray, retired Detroit and Mackinac Railway conductor, died Wednesday afternoon at Oscoda while in charge of the special Iosco centennial excursion train between Tawas City and Wurtsmith Air Force Base. A heart attack was said to have caused death.

State Police Dispose of Artillery Shell Found in Brush Near Tawas Lake

Latest in the "unusual complaint department" was one handled this week by the Michigan State Police Post at East Tawas. They were called to Tawas Lake to dispose of an artillery shell.

After receiving a call from a homeowner in that area, troopers were dispatched immediately to the spot where some young boys had found the shell. It turned out to be a 155mm shell with fuse still intact. The casing was rusty in spots but the fuse was as bright as the day it was screwed into the end of the projectile.

Although the shell may or may not have been disarmed, the troopers removed the shell, which weighed nearly 100 pounds, and handed it over to the United States Coast Guard for "safe burial" in Tawas Bay.

The police add, however, that many persons have been killed or maimed for life by just such war souvenirs which were thought to be not dangerous.

If anyone else has a shell of this type, or other war weapons collecting dust around the house and the owners wish to dispose of them, the police urge that they call the nearest police post. Such items should not be thrown on the junk pile where they may be found by children.

Tawas Youth Has Narrow Escape

A Tawas City youth narrowly escaped from being struck by a high-powered rifle bullet fired by a person unknown last Friday evening. The slug went through both sides of the "wrap-around" back window of his car.

Dale Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Phillips, told officers that while he was driving on Newman Street near the East Tawas ball field, the back window seemed to explode when it was hit by the slug. The glass was completely shattered, but it remained intact. Distance between Phillips and the hole in the glass was about 3½ feet.

Phillips was alone in the car when the incident occurred. The back seat was covered with glass from the two holes.

Sheriff Ivan L. O'Farrell said Saturday that the slug was probably fired from a high powered rifle. Police ask the cooperation of residents of that area who may have any information about the case.

Stolls to Leave July 15 On Northern Film Trip

Leaving July 15 on a month's trip to the Lake Athabaska uranium country in the Canadian Far North are Peter and Bert Stoll.

Bert Stoll, Northern Trails outdoor writer for the Detroit Free Press, and his son will travel via the Canadian Pacific Railway system to Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton by rail. Thence, by Gunnar DC-3 freight plane some 500 miles northeast to the Gunnar uranium mine on Crackingstone Point, Lake Athabaska, in the extreme northwestern part of the Province of Saskatchewan.

There the Stolls plan to get color features and outdoor stories for the Free Press, as well as shoot color movies on the 22½ million dollar Gunnar uranium development, and the water route from "end of steel," at waterways to Lake Athabaska uranium mines.

They also plan a sidetrip via SGA planes (Saskatchewan Government Airways) to the Stony Rapids and Black Lake area for outdoor stories and movies on Arctic grayling and other sport fishing in virgin waters.

Enroute home, early in August, they will make another side trip from Calgary to Banff and Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies for additional filming and newspaper stories.

During their absence, Mrs. Stoll will "baby-sit" for grandson, Bobby Stoll, in Royal Oak while Mrs. Peter Stoll attends summer school courses at Wayne State University.

Peter Stoll is assistant coach and physical education instructor at Barnum Junior High School in Birmingham. During the summer he assists his father in the operation of Northern Trails Features service.

NEW NAMES FOR JETS—The Delta Dagger and the Delta Dart, these are official names given by the air force to two of its latest supersonic all-weather fighter interceptor planes.

In a departure from single name designations, the Convair F-102 interceptor, flying air-defense command missions since late last year from Wurtsmith Air Force Base, will be known as the Delta Dagger.

Mr. and Mrs. Michigan Travel Visit Tawas on Last Leg of Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Michigan Travel visited the Tawasess Monday as part of a nine-day, 1,200-mile tour of the state. The couple, Jack and Johanna Wayne of Detroit, are making the 27-city tour as guests of Automobile Club of Michigan.

While in the area, the couple toured water facilities. They visited the Western States Flotel. Later as guests of the chamber of commerce, the couple viewed the harbor in a cabin cruiser operated by Bruce Myles. They remained in Oscoda overnight at Wabun Resort.

The couple won the trip and their title at the Detroit Travel Show. Their reason for wanting to take the trip was adjudged best by Auto Club and the Michigan Tourist Council. They wrote that they were recently married and had a limited vacation budget. They reasoned that Michigan gives the tourist the most for his vacation dollar.

Wayne is a social studies teacher in Dearborn while his wife teaches music in suburban Detroit. Following the Michigan tour, they will travel to Harvard University where Wayne will teach summer school.

D and M Linked With Iosco Since County's Early Days

BY JAMES F. MARK
Engineer

The Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company and Iosco County have been linked together in their economic lives for almost 80 of the past 100 years. It was in the late fall of 1877 that S. and C. D. Hale brought in by boat a locomotive, log bunkers and narrow strap iron with which to construct a railroad from their mill at the mouth of the Tawas River to the west county line near Prescott. The track was built in 1878 and much more equipment was shipped in by boat that year, two locomotives and 100 cars comprising their equipment.

The gauge was three-foot, two inches wide. The rails were made from narrow strap iron screwed on two by fours laid on timbers which were sawed flat on top with the rounded bottom laying in notched cross-ties spaced from five to six feet on the ground.

The Hale brothers named the railroad the Lake Huron and Southwestern Railway. They did not bother to get a charter. Even today many old timers speak of lower Tawas City as Hale Town.

In 1880 the C. H. Prescott interests purchased the railroad from the Hales and extended the easterly end to their mill back of what is now the shore line between First and River Streets in Tawas City. They extended the westerly end into Ogemaw County near what is now the town of Prescott and named the organization the Tawas and Bay County Railroad Company. Although the articles of association gave the corporation a life of 1,000 years, the road was sold to the Alger, Smith and Company interests headed by General Russell A. Alger as president in 1881. The road was extended southwesterly across the Rifle River to Alger on the Michigan Central and northerly through East Tawas. It was in the year 1883 that AuSable was connected to the road and in 1885 the road was extended to a point 1 1/4 miles south of Lincoln in Alcona County.

Many logging branches were built off the main line, and the Rose City Branch was one of them. It was built in 1887 to Maltby in Ogemaw County. In 1883 the Alger interests named the road the Detroit, Bay City and Alpena Railroad Company and announced their intentions of having a railroad from Detroit to Alpena via Tawas. J. D. Hawks, who had been chief engineer of the Michigan Central, took over as general manager.

However, in 1893, the Detroit, Bay City and Alpena Railway got into financial difficulty and had to go into receivership, with D. M. Dickenson as receiver. That lasted until November 8, 1894, when the road was sold to a New York syndicate and named the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company.

In 1896 the "southern extension" was built and then torn up after the timber was cut and the north end was connected near Black River in Alcona County to the Alpena and Northern Railroad Company tracks, previously built by the Alger interests.

Although the Detroit and Mackinac Railway hasn't been in existence as long as Iosco County, it has served the county for 79 of its 100 years . . . along with the cities and towns in Northeastern Michigan. Seventy-nine years ago the forerunner of the D and M began to serve people of the region as the Lake Huron and Southwestern Railway. The pictures tell the story how the D & M, like Iosco, has grown up. And today, with a proud history of service to the people, the D & M stands ready with strong, sturdy diesel muscles to provide you with dependable transportation, which Links Our Region with the Nation.

was built and operated between Bay City and Emery Junction (now National City) and the old main between Alger and Prescott was torn up. The gauge had been widened to 56 1/2 inches (standard) in 1886. And the new management announced that they intended to develop the summer resort and hunting features of Northeastern Michigan.

The company purchased several hundred acres of land east of East Tawas and called it "Tawas Beach." They built a depot, dancing pavilion, club house and summer cottages, and ran special excursion trains often during the summer months from all branches as well as from the southern and northern termini to stimulate interest.

The management also encouraged the development of cattle raising and was able to give transportation rates that encouraged the shipping of cattle from Chicago for the feeding season and the return to Chicago in the fall at an increased weight.

Linwood Park was established about eight miles north of Bay City as a miniature Tawas Beach, but did not have the success of Tawas Beach.

As many as 7,000 people were in the Tawas Beach grounds at one time at some of the excursions to that site, the people of the Tawas and surrounding country joining the trainloads for the fun. And even a bicycle path was built from Newman Street in East Tawas to the beach for the many bicycle riders of the period about 50 years ago.

In 1905 it was possible for Mackinac Island vacationers to board our trains at the Cheboygan dock and ride in their coach to the Flint and Pere Marquette depot in Detroit and many people took advantage of that trip. The passengers continued to patronize the railroad for many more years, the year 1913 being the record year with 412,000.

The general offices of the company had been in Detroit since the organization, but the general manager (at that time it was H. K. McHarg Jr.) moved his office to East Tawas in 1920 and the balance of the general offices came in 1921. In 1930 Mr. McHarg built a depot for the two towns in Tawas City and added a second story for the general offices. That building is still in use as originally intended.

During that period the revenues decreased materially and it was found necessary to abandon and tear up most of the branches because of lack of business and prospects of business.

However, discovery of deposits of good limestone, shale, gypsum and concrete aggregate on the land adjacent to the D and M started the development of these products and the formation of the Michigan Limestone and Chemical Company and the Straits Aggregate and Equipment Corporation in Presque Isle County; the Huron Portland Cement Company in Alpena County and two gypsum rock developers in Iosco County—the United States Gypsum Company, which was an outgrowth of the Alabaster Plaster Works, and the National Gypsum Company. All of these companies are considered among the best in their class and are spending large sums of money to enlarge and extend their facilities.

Beginning in 1946 the D and M began to rebuild its physical plant so it could offer modern, efficient transportation to its patrons. Seven diesel locomotives were purchased to replace the, at one time, 34 steamers. New steel freight train cars were purchased to replace the obsolete wooden cars. A great deal of specialized maintenance equipment was acquired to carry out an extensive roadbed rehabilitation program and it might be of interest to know that the D and M has about as fine an assortment of that class of equipment as any other railroad in the United States. Radio equipment from Bay City to Alpena, as well as direct connections over Bell Telephone at most points and between those two cities, was installed as an operational aid.

The main interchange and classification yard at Bay City was modernized and improved. Freight service schedules were shortened. A subsidiary truck line was organized to speed and improve freight handling. Large flat cars were purchased and outfitted for "piggy-back" shipping of trucks and trailers. Standard flat cars were equipped with bulkheads for shipping of palletized plasterboard shipments.

These are some of the major things accomplished under the D and M's president and general manager, Charles A. Pinkerton Jr., to improve service to the shipping public. In 1951 the non-existence of passenger business forced the D and M to remove its one remaining passenger train, and it was in that year that formal industrial development work to aid the economic progress of Northeastern Michigan was again undertaken. Several industries have availed themselves of the advantage of location here and the prospects for more are very good. The county population is climbing and many a so-called summer home has been winterized and used all the year. And the D and M has been keeping pace with the times. Yes, it has been a long time since the Hale brothers came in the fall of 1877, but what they started has blossomed into a modern railroad that can give dependable and economical transportation service and is ready to do all it can to help in the economic life of the community toward a better life for all of us.

Ten years ago ... ANDERSON COACH joined the Progress Parade of the Tawas and Iosco County

HOT SPARKS ARE FLYING as the frame of another Anderson is welded prior to being bolted to the floor. Heavy duty axles and wheel assembly are yet to be installed.

A FIRM FOUNDATION for the coach is assured by the use of this giant dielectric machine. It generates 80 tons of pressure on a four-foot section of floor being bonded.

In 1947 Anderson Coach Company became an industrial citizen of East Tawas and an integral part of a steadily growing community.

Since then, more than 11,200 mobile homes have rolled off the production lines at Anderson Coach.

Our confidence in the community can be best expressed through our continued expansion throughout the years. The annual payroll averages $988,000.00.

Together, as we face the future in Iosco County, we look to the continuing interest and cooperation of our employees and the community. We are, indeed, proud to grow with our friends and neighbors . . . and be a member of the Progress Parade of Iosco County.

IS YOUR COUNTY PLAT BOOK AS OLD AS THE CENTENNIAL?
Is your Iosco County Plat Book as old as the centennial—if you have one at all?

In it are land plats by townships, a county recreation map, advertising, as well as church, county building, Federal Building and city hall directories. It is easy to locate a land owner by consulting the alphabetical index.

Centennial week is a time to look back, reflect and appreciate the progress that has been made today. It is also a good time, too, to get a plat book. They are available in the county building from the clerk, treasurer and register of deeds; in the Federal Building from the Cooperative Extension Service office; and from Quota Club members at various centennial events.

This new up-to-date plat book was made possible by the Cooperative Extension Service Advisory Board as a community service. The last one was published about 35 years ago.

ENROLLS FOR SUMMER SCHOOL AT WHEATON

Robert D. Belson of Whittemore has enrolled in the 43rd annual summer school of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Illinois, for the inter-session period, first and second terms. He is taking courses in speech composition and delivery.

Starting with an inter-session period of two weeks allowing two full credit hours, courses are geared to the demand of business and professional men and women. The first term of the summer school started June 22 followed by the second term starting July 20.

A strong faculty of 75 members conducts courses in teacher-training, graduate school of Bible and theology, Christian education, sciences, music, social sciences, physical education, as well as field sciences at the Wheaton College western campus and science station located in the heart of the Black Hills, South Dakota.

Counseling and leadership courses are held at the college northern campus, Camp Honey Rock, on the famous Eagle Chain of lakes in Wisconsin where practical experience may be obtained in the college camping program serving several hundred boys and girls from ages eight to 16 each summer.

Wheaton College is rated high academically and is on the approved list of the Association of American Universities and a member of the north central association.

Quota Club to Sell Candy During Iosco Centennial

Iosco County Quota Club will sell packaged candy during centennial week.

The school for lip reading held this past winter proved so beneficial to those in need of aid with their hearing problems that plans for future courses are being formulated. This will be partly financed with profits from sale of candy. The club has a very good grade of candy and members certainly believe the cause justifies the help of everyone being contacted during the sale.

WARNS FARMERS OF FAKE ROOF AND PAINT EXPERTS IN COUNTY

In a recent talk with Sgt. Frank Roi of the Michigan State Police, I learned that our farm building and roof "paint experts" are on the loose again. Our combined advice to you farmers, do not buy a paint job from anyone you do not know. Local painters should be contacted. They are interested in doing a good job, but are these "fly-by-night" operators?

I have just completed several spray demonstrations for the control of poison ivy, other noxious weeds and spraying gardens for control of weeds. One of the most interesting answers I received from Mrs. Helen Siegrist of Burleigh Township was, "It's amazing" to see how the sweet corn plots treated with Simazin have been weed free. She says the weeds show up, wilt and die.

Earl and Dorothy Crown are co-operating with me on a poison ivy demonstration. When their supervisor, Henry Oates, told me of the poison ivy plastered all over the township, the method demonstration with Earl Crown was set up.

You might ask the Crowns how to control poison ivy. Another poison ivy demonstration is set up on the Coast Guard Road, 2½ miles east of US-23. Signs and posters tell the story.

Recently Gene Coates, Phillip Watts and Elmer Anschuetz sprayed their small grain fields with MCP. They can tell you about it.

I assisted James Irwin with the spraying of his beef and dairy cattle for control of flies. We used a methoxychlor because Mr. Irwin did not use it last year. I watched Charles Timreck do the same spray job on his dairy animals. It pays to keep the flies off because it means more milk in the pail if the cows do not have to fight those flies.

June may seem like a strange time to talk of Christmas trees, but it is really a very appropriate time to discuss them if you are a Christmas tree grower.

Les Bell, extension forestry specialist at Michigan State University, points out that this is the best time of the year for pruning red and Scotch pines. And a good many of them will need pruning if they are going to achieve that compact, conical form that Christmas tree buyers like.

The pines are inclined to grow too rapidly, which develops a sparsely branched tree. This is referred to as being "leggy." Some branches may grow more rapidly than others, making the tree look irregular.

Bell says that surveys show two-thirds of the trees in an average plantation will not make good Christmas trees without some type of shaping. With proper pruning and cultural work, this percentage of undesirable trees can be cut to about 10 percent.

Pruning should be started in a plantation when the trees have reached a height of 18 to 24 inches. Prune only those that appear to be growing too rapidly or are becoming unshapely.

The terminal shoot should be cut back to give 12 to 14 inches of growth. Next, the laterals of the terminal whorl should be cut three to four inches shorter than the terminal. Then, prune the new growth of lateral branches to give the tree a conical outline.

NAME DELEGATES TO 4-H CLUB MEET AT UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Named as delegates to the 1957 4-H Club Week event at Michigan State University are Martha Smith, dress revue delegate; Nathaniel Jacobs, and Phyllis Watts. Martha is a member of Reno Topnotchers, Nathaniel is a Hale Happy Hustler and Phyllis belongs to Friendship 4-H Club.

These 4-H Club members were selected for outstanding 4-H Club work and will join other 4-H Club delegates similarly chosen to represent all Michigan counties in the Lower Peninsula.

Completed 4-H Club projects will be on display at the Iosco County Fair held in Hale July 24-27.

Remember, 4-H Club members, that a complete project is one which has been approved by extension agents and for which a report has been sent to the county extension office. Open house events and tours are places where club members, families and extension agents see projects being done by boys and girls. Reports are due in the extension office no later than July 15.

Livestock project members are also reminded to check up and find out whether their animal must be blood tested before fair time. Arrangements will be made to provide the test for those animals that need it.

Demonstrations, judging and fun festival contests to represent this seven-county district at the state 4-H Club show late in August will be selected at the district round-up event in Gladwin on July 30. Can we help anyone get ready to take part in a contest?

Last year Iosco County 4-H Club members made up a large proportion of the campers at Hardwood Lake in August and everyone had a wonderful time.

Some planning has been done for a camp this year, but we have not heard much about going to camp from our 4-H Club members. How about it? Who wants us to have a camp this year? Let us hear from you, just a post card will do.

July 9-12—4-H Club Week at Michigan State University.
July 24-27—Iosco County Fair.
July 30—District 4-H Club Round-up at Gladwin.
Early August—District 4-H Club Camp at Hardwood Lake.

WEDDINGS . . .

Bissonette-Schriber

At a 9 o'clock Nuptial High Mass, June 22, at St. Joseph Church, East Tawas, Miss Joan Marie Schriber of East Tawas and Robert D. Bissonette of Oscoda were united in marriage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Schriber of East Tawas and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bissonette of Oscoda.

For the double ring ceremony, the altar was decorated with vases of blue and white carnations. The Rev. Fr. Robert Neuman officiated. Miss Donna Groff, vocalist, was accompanied by Mrs. Rex Kochenderfer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown fashioned of imported rosepoint lace over bridal blue satin, styled with a scalloped bateau neckline, encrusted with seed pearls and iridescents. Brief gathered sleeves and molded bodice extended into a full paneled lace floor length skirt with scalloped lace tiers and appliques of iridescents and seed pearls, falling into a full court train. Her pleated tulle French plateau headdress with seed pearl trim was secured to a fingertip veil of imported English illusion and she carried a white orchid and stephanotis on a white missal.

Miss Joan Look of Detroit, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. The Misses Jean Lixey and Lillian Bolen, both of East Tawas, were bridesmaids. Their identical gowns of powder blue lace and tulle, fashioned with alternate bands of lace and tulle on full skirts, featured strapless bodices, topped with brief jackets and mandarin collars. Matching picture hats completed their ensembles and they carried bouquets of white carnations with baby blue carnations.

Mary Ellen Schriber, petal girl, wore a white dress with blue satin accents and carried a small basket of baby blue carnations. Jean, Jane and June Trudell, flower girls, wore white dresses with blue satin accents and carried baskets of blue daisies. Brian Wilkinson of East Tawas was the ring bearer.

Donald Schriber, brother of the bride, was best man and groomsmen were William Freund and William Klenow. Ushers were Frank Bissonette and Hugh Bissonette, both brothers of the bridegroom.

A breakfast for the wedding party and immediate family was served at Lixey's Restaurant following the ceremony.

An evening reception for 200 guests was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Following a one-week trip to Northern Michigan, the newlyweds will make their home in Oscoda.

Wilson-Birkenbach

Sacred Heart Church of Oscoda was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday morning, June 15, at 10 o'clock when Miss Nancy Leone Birkenbach exchanged marriage vows with Paul N. Wilson of Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Oscoda. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Birkenbach of East Tawas and Adam Birkenbach of National City. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Grace Wilson of Canaseraga, New York.

officiated at the Nuptial High Mass. Altar decorations were bouquets of white peonies.

The bride wore a waltz length gown of white Schiffl embroidered nylon tulle over satin with wrist point sleeves. Her silk illusion veil of fingertip length was held by a pearl seeded crown and she carried a white prayer book topped with an orchid.

Miss Sharon Lorenz of East Tawas was maid of honor in a pale yellow embroidered nylon gown over taffeta. Her cascade bouquet was an arrangement of lavender carnations and red roses.

John Manning of Wurtsmith Air Force Base was the bridegroom's attendant. James Harold Birkenbach of East Tawas, brother of the bride, seated guests.

A reception for 200 guests was held at the Eagles Hall in East Tawas Saturday evening.

BURLEIGH WOMEN'S CLUB MAKES TOUR OF TAWAS BUSINESS PLACES

"I've lived around here for 60 years but I learned a lot I didn't know today," said Mrs. Mabel Colvin, one of 18 Burleigh Rural Women's Club members, who toured places in the Tawas area last Thursday.

Following is a sample of information they learned: Rays from a 300-watt bulb are reflected by glass prisms to make our light-house lamp visible; lead is cast into letters for newspaper printing and can be melted for re-use over a period of many years—even the formula has not changed much since first devised; oil filters contain felt and sawdust; there are as many as 250 rooms on the Western States; 12 to 14 thousand no-nail hangers can be put through a machine in one day; it takes two days to complete a trailer coach; poison ivy can be spray controlled; aluminum bars can be molded by a marvelous machine and heated, and then, believe it or not, stretched; many safety features are built into a modern detention home; a variety of government agencies provide service to Iosco County families, all are conveniently located in the Federal Building.

When reducing weight is the goal, milk pays its way by contributing generous amounts of protein, calcium and other needed nutrients, along with a very moderate number of calories.

How much do you know and understand about Iosco communities? Tours are a good way to find out.

Yellow rocket is the attractive looking, but very mean to get rid of, weed now visible along roadsides and in some fields. Spray or cut it so more seed is not spread around.

The refreshment that milk gives is truly wonderful. Serve it at snacktimes as well as meal time.

Strawberry time is here, but the season is ever short—over and done with before we know it.

Buy strawberries to freeze when supplies are heaviest, quality is best and prices are lower. Suggested varieties for freezing are Premier, Dunlap, Catskill, Sparkle and Gem. Two-thirds quart will yield one pint of frozen strawberries; one crate (16 quarts) will yield 20 to 24 pints of frozen berries.

Dairy foods provide 30 percent of the food-nutrients we use at a bargain price of 15 to 20 cents from each food dollar spent.

Looking forward to canning season?

First re-read the directions so you are thoroughly familiar with your pressure canner or cooker. If the directions are lost, write the manufacturer for a new set, sending the model number and any other information you can find on the utensil.

When processing, use enough water to heat and cool jars at a steady rate and to insure against boiling dry. Two or three inches is usually enough.

As you begin heating, leave the petcock open or weight gauge off until steam is coming out in a steady stream—about 10 minutes after the first steam appears.

Heat rapidly to reach the desired pressure; then regulate the heat to keep it steady. When the processing time is up, turn off the heat. If you are using glass jars let the canner cool until the pressure is zero and wait one minute more. Then, open petcock slowly.

After the steam has stopped flowing from the vent, remove the cover. For your own safety, always use dry pot holders or heavy towels in handling a canner or cooker.

Here's something else that comes to mind because the weather has turned plenty warm and your family may have picnics.

Picnics are fun, but let's not have anyone get sick from something he eats. When this happens it often turns out that one food caused the trouble and in every such case the illness could have been prevented.

Illness is caused by the toxin produced when bacteria multiply very fast in a food. This particular bacteria has food favorites. Watch these as "red-flag" foods: Cream-pie filling, cream puffs, ham, potato salad, chicken, meat or fish salad, gravy, creamed dishes and custards.

How to prevent growth of bacteria? Keep food either below 55 degrees Fahrenheit or above 150 degrees Fahrenheit, if you are holding it for any length of time. In other words, it is "just warm" temperatures that encourage bacteria growth.

It may be your copperware is in for a seasonal cleaning. Here is a suggestion you may not have heard. Copper can be cleaned by rubbing it with a thick slice of lemon dipped in salt. Wash in hot suds, rinse and dry. Because copper is soft, do not scour it with powder or steel wool.

Old Timer Recalls A Good Many Things Gone By

Arthur F. Rogers of Tawas City recalls a good many things about days gone by in this "In Memoriam" which he sent to the Herald this week:

"Ten-cent shaves; 25-cent hair cuts; bustles; hoop skirts; button shoes; pointed-toe shoes; hoods; fascinators; hat pins, the deadly weapon; straw ticks, when first filled we needed a ladder to mount them; the "A" drag, it dodged the stumps; scythes; grain cradle; the hay tedder; baby's cradle; dried apples, when strung on strings and hung on rafters they made a good roost for flies; cigar store wooden Indian; jeweler's clock, time 8:18½; sulphur matches, also called eight-day matches; the ox team; the shovel plow; "boarding around;" the "assessor" as a school board member; the high-wheeled bicycle; stiff bosom shirts; checked gingham sunbonnets; nine o'clock washing tea, "when the hour hand points to nine, have your washing on the line."

Sobeck Homers Twice as Lincoln Defeats Tawas City

The long-ball hitting of Catcher Dick Sobeck of Lincoln spelled the second defeat of the year for the Tawas City Indians last Sunday. Sobeck, league all-star receiver last year, blasted two home runs and a double off two Tawas City pitchers to lead his team to a 3-7 victory.

A big five-run first inning for Lincoln actually proved to be the big gap which the Tawas City team could not overcome, although coming within one run of tying the game in the eighth inning.

With Don Westcott starting on the mound for Tawas City, Lincoln promptly greeted him with six hits including the first of Sobeck's homers, with a man on, and added a double for good measure.

In the second frame Herb Look took over the mound duties and limited the winners to four hits. The last blow, however, was the clincher for Lincoln. Sobeck's second home run leading off the seventh.

"Lefty" Krentz was the winning pitcher for Lincoln, allowing Tawas City 11 hits. The losers had three players with three hits each, Cavell, C. Herriman and Look.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lemke Observe Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lemke of Tawas City celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 23. Their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, all from the Detroit area, attended services at Zion Lutheran Church where the couple had spoken their marriage vows, 50 years ago on June 19, 1907.

After the service, dinner for 60 of their relatives and close friends was served at the Barnes Hotel during which the children presented a program of reminiscences of their childhood and a brief history of the couple's 50 years of wedded life.

In the afternoon, the Lemkes held open house at their home at 211 Seventh Avenue where they received the felicitations of their many friends and relatives. The table was tastefully decorated with gold candles, yellow roses and chrysanthemums, artistically arranged in gold vases surrounding the three-tiered anniversary cake, also resplendent with yellow roses.

The out of town guests were: The Lemke children and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lemke and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Lemke and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stephenson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frantz and family; also the brothers and sisters of Mrs. Lemke from Detroit and Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Katterman, Mr. and Mrs. William Katterman, Mrs. Augusta VanHorn, Mr. and Mrs. George Wolf, Mrs. Eleanor Lozon and Mrs. Dora Trombley. Small Industrial Plants Located in the Area Tend to Stabilize Iosco County's Labor Force.

Miles of Shoreline—On Lake Huron and Many Inland Lakes—Are one of Iosco's Principal Assets.

Dairy and General Farming is an Important Industry in Iosco County.

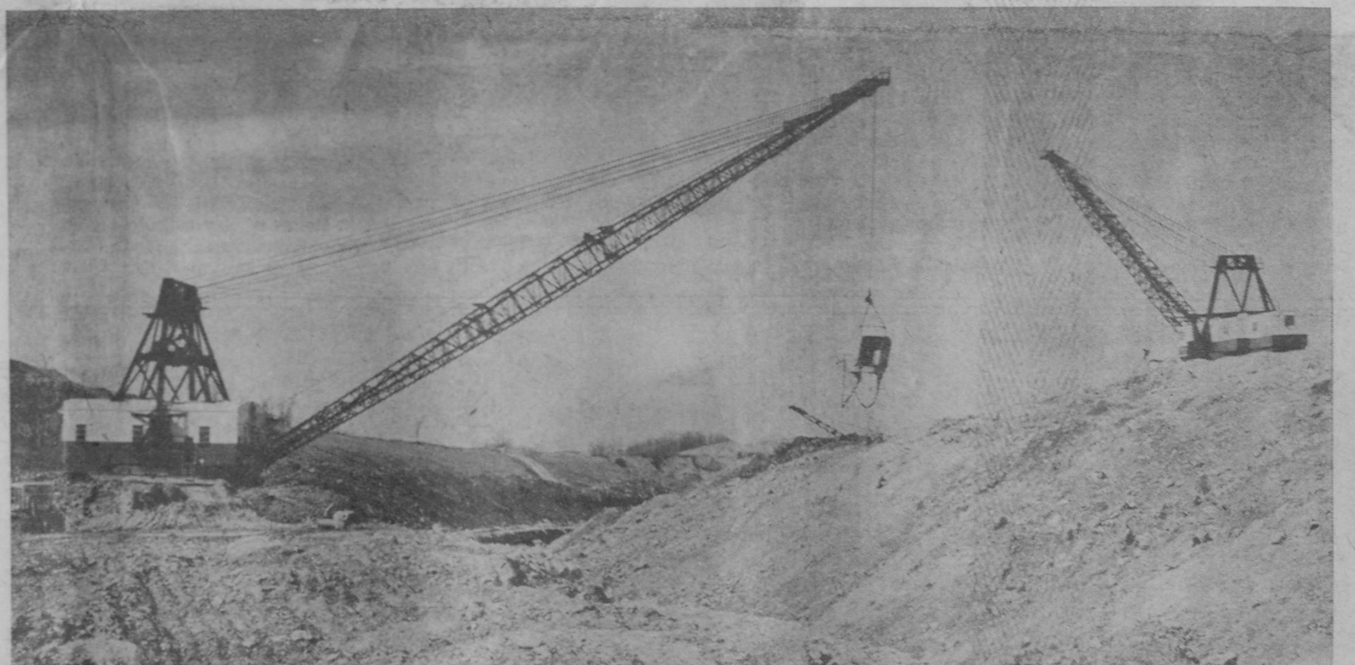

From Sawdust Roads to Supersonic Jets...

In the late 1890s, the thoughts of Iosco County residents turned toward the future... what would happen to the area when the white pine was gone? Would farming and salt manufacturing take over where the lumbering industry left off? This question was not answered until after 1900.

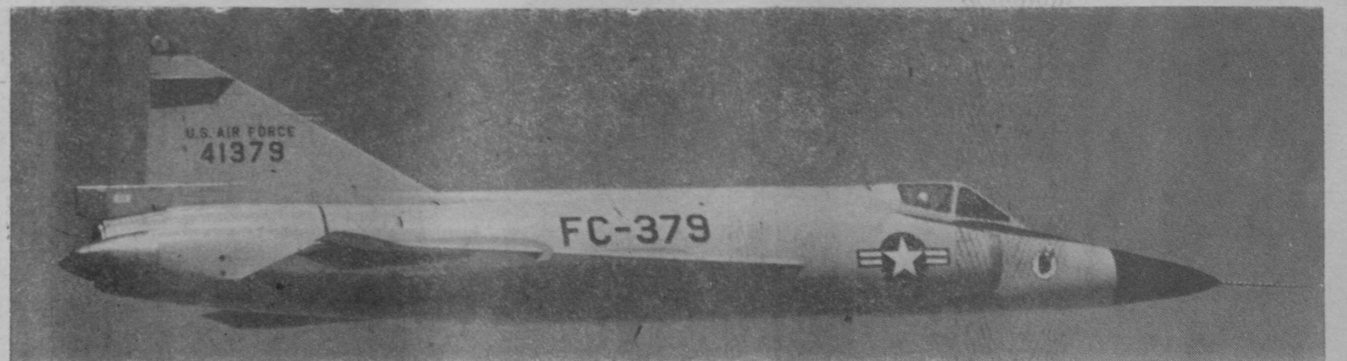

By the time the lumbering industry and the days of Paul Bunyan faded out of existence, a new industry was developing—the resort business. One of the first to recognize this valuable source of revenue was the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company... with its excursions to Tawas Beach.

The advent of the automobile added impetus to this new found business—where there were no roads, it created them, where cities were separated by miles, the car reduced miles to minutes.

Today, the resort business is one of the most important industries in Iosco County. On the horizon, however, is the ever expanding gypsum industry and the entrance of small industries into Iosco County. These businesses, along with the tourist trade and farming, make Iosco County even more diversified with a still greater future ahead.

Tells Background of Early-Day Pioneer Life in Baldwin Township

BY JUDITH DOREY
(A prize winning entry in Iosco County Centennial Contest.)

My grandmother has often entertained me by telling me stories about when she was a young girl in the early days of Iosco County. Her father was a veteran of the Civil War. He came to Michigan in the fall of 1868 and took up a homestead in Baldwin Township.

Here he built a log cabin from cedar poles. The building was approximately 12 by 20 feet. There were three all year round rooms, while the kitchen in summer and a wood shed in winter. The roof was covered with shakes, made by splitting cedar slabs with a froe, into slabs similar to today's shingles.

When the house was completed, then it was time to send for his family.

My grandmother's mother, with her little two-year-old daughter, came to Michigan from New York in May of 1869.

After they had left the dock at East Tawas, the wagon box containing all the possessions they had just brought from the old home, was carried by four men to the new house. There was only a trail through the woods, and the distance was over four miles.

Among the things which were brought to the new home and are still in the family were a cherry table, a mirror, a portion of a bed quilt, some feathers from a feather tick and a pair of steel yards with which all the Otis children were weighed and possibly some of the neighbor children.

My grandmother still has in her possessions, pieces of one of two dresses made for her more than 85 years ago. The other was used as a burial robe for an infant, who died in the neighborhood.

Here my grandmother, the first of four other daughters, was born December 7, 1871.

My great grandmother came from a fairly well-populated section of New York, but lived in her Michigan home for six years, before seeing the light from a neighbor's window in the evening.

Deer and bear were often seen at the edge of the clearing and once the children were called out to see a bobcat perched on the limb of a tree, not far from the door. With their father in front of them with a stout club, they all got a good look at the snarling beast.

Gray Creek, on the bank of which the house was built, furnished the water supply, and when the children wished for a cool, refreshing drink, they never ran to the corner store for a bottle of coke, instead they ran down to the creek, scooped up the bright sparkling water and drank from their hands (how unsanitary?).

Once a friendly old gentleman, an acquaintance of the family dropped in to "pass the time of day" and wishing to be friendly with the children, he held out in the palm of his hand, two coins, a dime and a nickel, saying, in as much as she was the smallest, he thought she should have first choice. Gingerly, she took the nickel, and was praised so highly for being so generous. It was quite some time before the truth came out, the choice had been made be-after an hour or so she gave up the mouse and was helped down from her perch.

Many changes have taken place in our ways of farming since a man living in a cabin where the Arthur Leitz home now stands, used to hitch his wife along with the cow, to the plow to plow the garden, to our modern way of farming with the tractor.

The first school to which my grandmother went was built in Wilber and served children from both Wilber and Baldwin Townships. The building is now part of the modern farm house belonging to Harry Krueger. For the first two years there was school only three months out of the year, during June, July and August. There was only the framework of a building covered with the inch board sheathing, with about an inch space between the boards. There were no windows, but those cracks let in plenty of light, and it was also very convenient for the pupils to keep track of all the traffic up and down the public highway. Their seats were a high bench which ran along the west side and the north end of the room. Their books, when not in use, were piled between them on the bench, but when studying their lessons, were held in their hands. There was a table built against the east wall, which had been used as a carpenter's bench, and it was there my grandmother learned penmanship.

Those cracks, which were so useful in some ways, were not so nice when the rain came down. Then the children were huddled in the middle of the room until the storm was over.

Compare all this with our Tawas Area School buildings.

The family lived in the first house until October 1882. Then they built a new home, a half mile to the north on the townline between Baldwin and Wilber Townships.

In 1886 they moved to East Tawas where one member of the family still lives.

From the Herald Files—
April 20, 1928

My grandmother's older sister was very much afraid of a mouse, dead or alive. One day after an argument between the girls, along came the cat with a dead mouse. Quick as a wink, the child grabbed the mouse and started after her sister. At the edge of the clearing there was a large tree which had recently been blown down. Using the upturned roots as a ladder, the older girl scampered up to the trunk of the tree and ran out on it for several feet, then jumped to the ground. The pursuer, when she got that far, looked down at the ground, a distance of four or five feet, and being afraid to jump, she sat down, still clutching the mouse. Her sister told her if she would throw away the mouse she would help her to the ground—but nothing doing. After a while her mother hearing her cries for help, went to her rescue, but she still held onto the mouse. Finally,

Iosco County

We came to Iosco County eighteen years ago because of its natural appeal, and settled at Tawas City. We found a progressive community of friendly people—where everyone is afforded a wide variety of means for relaxation and pleasant living.

The ensuing years brought us many pleasant associations here and in the surrounding area, both in work and at play. These fine relationships and the multitude of advantages; such as, hunting, fishing, boating, swimming, winter sports and the like, have permitted us to fully enjoy the area.

We are proud to live in Iosco County and take this means to salute the county on its 100th birthday. Congratulations.

Packtown, Potts' Point, Loudtown and Stovepipetown Flourished Near AuSable

BY BARBARA ALVERSON
(Prize winning essay in Iosco County Centennial Contest.)

During the flourish of the lumbering days of Oscoda and AuSable, many small villages began to appear. Most of which disappeared after the great AuSable fire.

Probably few people in this day and age, know the stories of such places as Packtown, Potts' Point, Loudtown, Holmesville, Piety Hill and Stovepipetown.

ABSOLUTELY THE GREATEST...

Today's modern Automatic Electric Ranges will make cooking a pleasure. Your kitchen will stay cool and stay clean . . . when you cook with a fully Automatic Electric Range.

CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY

Perhaps the best-known of the places mentioned above, is Packtown. It was located on what is now US-23. It was built because the employees and firm members of Pack, Woods and Company, needed places to live after they moved to Oscoda. Over 100 sturdily-built houses were constructed of a high quality of lumber. This kind is very scarce today.

Potts' Point was just across the river from AuSable's business section. It was called Potts' Point because the Potts' Salt and Lumber Company was located on this tract of land.

In the early 1890s the Potts' Salt and Lumber Company failed, leaving many men unemployed.

Loudtown housed the employees of the Loud mills. The houses were all built of the same plans and built in rows so it was difficult to tell one house from another.

They soon solved this problem by painting the houses in rows and numbering them.

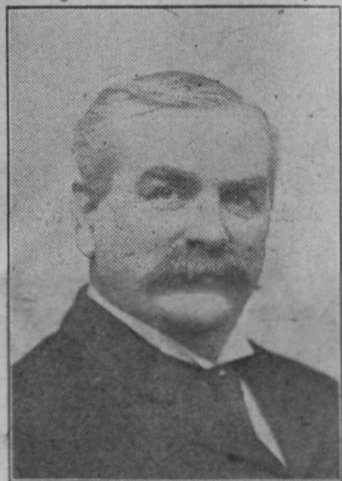

Holmesville was in the beginning just a joke. Actually it was a part of Packtown, but was given a different name because the houses of that particular section of Packtown were made of a poor grade of lumber instead of the high grade in the greater part of Packtown.

A reward of $25 was offered for information leading to the identity of the person who named Holmesville. At that time $25 was a large amount of money, but no one ever claimed it.

Piety Hill was just a small community southwest of Packtown, and very typical of communities of that period. Piety Hill was chosen, after the AuSable fire, to be the center of the new Oscoda. Oscoda High School is near the center of where Piety Hill once stood.

Stovepipetown was a rather unique little village located near AuSable. It was just a cluster of primitive frame houses which had pieces of stove pipe for chimneys. The people in Stovepipetown believed there was no need for concrete chimneys because AuSable had a first class fire department, in those days, so why worry about fire hazards?

Rent was about $3 a month for an average sized house and about $5 per month for a larger house.

Our sad-faced friend is Bill McGoo,
Who thought he'd bought a car, brand-new;
And while he got a "special deal"
His disappointment he can't conceal
While others drive in Swept-Wing style
Poor Bill just mutters curses vile:
"They got new styling, features, too—
"I bought a 'deal'—boo-hoo, boo-hoo!"

Moral: Yesterday's looks and features are no bargain at any price!

No car is a bargain if it's obsolete in styling and engineering features. And the Swept-Wing Dodge actually obsoletes other cars in its field with its low, low look of tomorrow and revolutionary advances like Torsion-Aire Ride, Push-Button TorqueFlite and Total-Contact Brakes. So don't get "bargain-talked" into yesterday's styling and features. The same money buys the car that's years ahead. See your Dodge dealer. Join the swing to the Swept-Wing Dodge.

Consumers Power Made Important Contribution

An important contribution to the progress and wellbeing of this community during the past 38 years has been made by the Consumers Power Company. Anticipating the residential, commercial, industrial and agricultural needs in advance, the area has seemingly had an unlimited source of electrical power.

The power company has made important contributions to the progress of this area in addition to its service. In 1905 many lumberjacks, who faced a bad winter as the timber was about depleted and few such workers needed, were called back to work. Swamps and woodmen were needed to clear survey lines along the Ausable River.

A tremendous new idea had been formulated by the Loud family: Why not harness the river to industry? The stream, which had been for a long time in their timber operations was put back to work again. Surveys were made of their holdings along the river and a prospectus prepared. Foote Brothers of Jackson became interested in the project, and along with George Erwin of Grand Rapids, are recognized as the founders of the parent company which eventually became the Consumers Power Company, when merged with other similar groups throughout the state.

In the early organizational period, Hoenpyl, Hardy and Company became affiliated with Foote Brothers in the new hydro-electric power project.

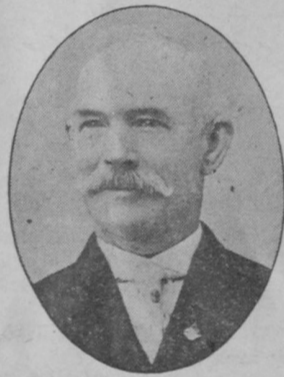

A construction program extending over more than a decade, and involving many millions of dollars and the labor of hundreds of men, built a series of dams, which for many years, furnished an important part of the power used in some of Michigan's industrial centers. The use of electricity in industry has outgrown the dams and now the major producers are modern steam plants at Zilwaukee, Bay City and Erie.

During the years of construction the power company furnished employment for many men in this area. Some of those men are still with the company today.

Another contribution to the area is in the way of taxes. With its large holdings of land and industrial installations along the river, the power company is its largest taxpayer.

Free advice, regardless of its origin, is almost worthless.

USG'S Alabaster Quarry is County's Oldest Industry

The Alabaster plant of United States Gypsum Company, the oldest continuous industrial operation in Iosco County, traces its history back to 1865, when the county, itself, was only nine years old. Thus, Alabaster has been since the closing year of the Civil War one of the most important sources of gypsum rock in the country—the rock providing plaster, wall-board, lath and sheathing for thousands of homes in the Midwest. In addition, gypsum quarried at Alabaster has been converted into dozens of other products; such as dental and surgical casts, statuary and precision molds. Also, rock quarried here has been processed into building materials used in commercial, institutional and multi-residential construction.

M. H. VanOrnum, works manager for United States Gypsum at Alabaster, recalls that the Alabaster deposits of gypsum were discovered in the late 1850s, almost coincident in time with the birth of Iosco County.

The deposit was discovered by a mail carrier who came upon it during one of his trips between Bay City and Alpena. One story is that the mail man, driving a dog sled, stumbled over an outcropping of rock in the forest along the shore of the lake. Another version of the discovery is that the mail carrier saw the white rock glistening in the water of the lake.

However, the mail carrier did discover the deposit one way or another and he carried samples of the rock away with him. After passing through several hands, it was identified as gypsum. When he took interested friends to look over the deposit, they found an old squatter laid claim to the parcel of land surrounding the site of the present Alabaster quarries.

The squatter, discouraged by the thinness of the soil which prevented him from planting a garden, was eager to sell his rights to the property, and is reported to have made the deal for $10 and two coon dogs, according to the Michigan Geological Survey.

The property was never developed, however, until it was sold a few years later to B. F. Smith, who was engaged in the gypsum industry in Ohio. By 1865, Smith was quarrying gypsum in Alabaster and shipping it by boat to Detroit for calcination and processing into plaster. Later, Smith built a grinding and calcining mill at the site and named the location Alabaster, the Biblical name for gypsum.

The Alabaster plant continued operations under the name of the B. F. Smith Company until 1891, when the company was reorganized following a fire which destroyed the facilities at the plant. The new company name was the Western Plaster Works, which rebuilt the calcining plant in 1892, but in the meantime (1891) a new gypsum processing plant was built in South Chicago, Illinois, to meet the growing demands for gypsum plaster in the Middle West and particularly to provide plaster for the Chicago World's Fair of 1893.

Gypsum historians will recall that many of the buildings erected for the Great Columbian Exposition in Chicago were faced inside and out with gypsum plaster quarried at Alabaster. The Fine Arts Building of the 1893 Fair, with its beautiful outside walls, freizes and statuary, was built with calcinated Alabaster gypsum. A replica of this building in stone, now houses the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago's Jackson Park. In 1898 the name of the company was changed from Western Plaster Works to The Alabaster Company. It retained the latter name until 1902, when United States Gypsum Company was founded, taking Alabaster into its fold as one of the most important and valuable components of the new corporation.

During the years, the village of Alabaster was established with comfortable homes for workers. The 600-foot pier built for loading sailing vessels was replaced by aerial tramline; old hand quarrying methods gave way to modern equipment. Progress and production continued at Alabaster.

Several things contributed to the continuous production of gypsum and gypsum products at this location for 91 years. The three main factors have probably been the same throughout the years. First, the fine quality and extensive deposits; second, the ease of quarrying; third, the proximity of navigable water.

The deposit of gypsum at Alabaster is extensive. Located on the shore of Lake Huron, it is known to extend far out under water and some miles inland. Quarrying back a short distance from the water involves removing many feet of overburden. The extent of this operation introduces one of the most interesting features of the work at this location. The quarry is elliptical in shape, the overburden (earth) being cast in mountainous heaps in the center as quarrying operations proceed outward. The earth is removed by huge draglines, the largest of which has a 235-foot boom and is believed to be one of the longest ever installed for this purpose.

After the deposit is stripped, the rock is removed by blasting. The large masses thrown on the quarry floor are loaded into open cars by electric shovels and conveyed to the crusher plant over a standard gauge railroad served by diesel electric locomotives. Although millions of tons of rock have been removed through the years, the reserve is large.

When the rock arrives at the preparation plant, it passes through crushers and over screens of various sizes, the final process being determined by the product desired. A quantity of selected rock is dried and ground for special uses; such as, filler for paper and paints, or for use in the preparation of certain foods. Large quantities of a particular size rock are shipped to Portland cement plants. The products are shipped by rail, but the main output, crushed rock for USG plants at Detroit and East Chicago, is shipped by boat.

This brings us to another of Alabaster's interesting and unusual engineering feats. It is necessary to convey the rock by an aerial tramline, running out over the lake one and one-third miles, to a bin where ships may dock and load. Visitors to the plant usually rub their eyes at the sight of an endless procession of buckets, each carrying two tons of rock, on their journey from shore bin to lake bin. Each incoming bucket rolls around the loading bin suspended from a track, is loaded from a chute, automatically clamped onto a traction cable and whisked onto its way to the lake bin. At the lake bin the buckets are automatically tripped at the spot desired and the rock discharged. At regular intervals chartered lake freighters arrive at the lake bin, pick up their cargo and steam off to East Chicago or Detroit with a load of rock for manufacture into gypsum products.

The First 100 Years ..

Of all the things which are good to share with our friends and neighbors, progress is perhaps the most satisfying because it is so mutual, so representative of the efforts of so many. Such a thing is the growth of this county and its people.

One hundred years ago, February 16, 1857, Iosco County received its charter and since then the county has grown, built its buildings, its schools, its churches and its businesses. And in this growth, every Iosco citizen—past and present—has left something of himself.

This week we celebrate Iosco County's first centennial. It is an event lifted from commonplace because pride in the growth of our county is something that all of us share equally—something of which everyone can be justly proud.

A HISTORY OF IOSCO COUNTY; FROM THE SAGINAW TREATY TO PRESENT DAY

BY LYLE ADAMS

(A prize winning essay in Iosco County Centennial Contest.)

The Indians of the Iosco County area belonged to the Saginaw band of the Chippewa tribe. The Indians held possession of this region until 1819 when by terms of a Saginaw treaty they gave the land to the United States Government. The government then set aside eight thousand acres for the Indians, but they soon had to give that land back to the government. The well known fur trader, Louis Chevalier, once owned land in Iosco County region. The first settlement made in Gideon O. Whittemore. At first there were only two townships, namely, AuSable and Tawas. The county seat was at Tawas City. The first county officers were elected in July 1857. All of the officers except one were members of the Whittemore family. Henry Dager of AuSable was named surveyor. The Whittemores filled most of the county offices for a number of years.

Then, in 1857, Samuel W. Chilson and 24 others petitioned the board of supervisors to create the Townships of Plainfield and AuSable. In 1869 Oscoda Township was formed by an act of the state legislature. In 1870 Thompson Township was formed from part of Oscoda Township by the board of supervisors. This township was later attached to what is now Plainfield Township. In 1878 Wilber Township was organized from parts of AuSable and Plainfield Townships.

Farming was tried in many places on the plains, but the soil was too sandy for farm crops and the farms had to be abandoned. There are still to be found a few signs of the old farm sites. One of the old sites was owned by my great grandfather, but he soon learned that the soil would not produce crops and he had his buildings moved off. The clearing is all that remained of this farm until late years when it was purchased by Daniel Thayer, who has planted it to nice pines. Many of the rivers, lakes, streams and landmarks were named after these early farmers.

For the religious life of the early settlers, traveling pastors preached to them at midway houses. It was not uncommon for these settlers to travel as far as 10 miles to the services.

The first sawmill of the plains community was built in 1869 or 1870, by Spencer and Bennett, on Long Lake (now known as Indian Lake).

The lumber business started to boom in Iosco County in the late 1860s. The pioneers in the Iosco County lumbering were Backus Brothers, Absalom and Albert, who built their sawmill on what is now known as Potts' Point. These brothers sawed wood for a larger mill. Then, in 1867, the first mill burned, but the larger mill was successfully operated until 1875, then it was sold to J. E. Potts of Canada. Potts operated the mill individually until 1883, then he organized the J. E. Potts "Salt and Lumber Company." The Potts mill became one of the largest in the world. It had a capacity of over 75 million feet of lumber a year. The last year of its existence the cut exceeded 98 million feet.

In the year 1890 the Potts Company failed. This was one of the blackest days in the history of our county. But soon after this many small mills were built in and around AuSable and Oscoda. Mr. Loud was one of the owners of the little mills. Today we have the Loud Dam named in his memory.

Often there was rivalry between mills and camp crews to find the crew that could do the most work. One year Pack, Woods and Company cut 63 million feet of lumber. This was the largest cut ever made by a single mill. The capacity of their mill running night and day was 40 million feet.

The tragedy that closed the lumbering era in AuSable and Oscoda happened in July 1911, and it was known as the greatest fire of any time. It gave the people of these two towns the sympathy of the whole State of Michigan. Four persons lost their lives in the fire. The fire started about 1 o'clock in the afternoon on July 11. It was a very hot day, and the wind was blowing terribly hard. This wind was blowing the flames in the direction of the two towns, AuSable and Oscoda. The stores all closed and every available man went to fight the fire. But there were intense blasts of heat, and explosions in the tree tops so great that man power was useless, and by 2 o'clock the fire was coming over the hill headed directly for the town, urged on by the strong winds. The fighters gave up and rushed to their families to salvage what little they could carry and took refuge in the lake. Some fled to swamps along the railroad tracks, some had small boats and some got on the steamer "Congo," and went north and many just went into the lake. In the evening, relief trains were sent out from the Tawas and 600 were taken to Tawas and fed and housed wherever a place could be found. The losses from the fire would reach a total of about $2,000,000. One-half of the loss was by the Louds, who had the largest amount of value in the town. The towns were completely wiped out only two hours after the fire hit them. That fire was about 46 years ago, but one can still see some of the remains of it.

On the banks of the AuSable stands the Lumbermen's Memorial, with its figures—the timber cruiser, the sawyer, and the riverman. This is the work of Robert Aitken, a New York sculptor. This memorial cost about $50,000, which was paid by the posterity of the old lumbering families. The memorial stands for many things but most of all it is a tribute to the days when white pine was king of the Iosco County forest.

At present a large part of Iosco County is in the Huron National Forest with its headquarters at East Tawas. The name "Huron" was taken from the once-powerful tribe of Indians, the Hurons. The forest, now run by the national government, is a controlled harvest of wood, which is taken off each year. New trees are planted each year so that we now have a continuing forest. The greatest enemy of the forest yet today is fire. On May 16, just this year, about 700 acres of our beautiful forest was burned, and 200 acres of this was red pines that had been planted about 10 years ago. It is a very complicated thing even today with our modern fire fighting equipment to extinguish a fire under hazardous conditions. The Huron National Forest offers a vast playground for the year around sports. It is a game reserve, a water wonderland and a winter carnival. This is the 100th birthday of our county. We are celebrating our county centennial the week of June 23 through the 29, 1957. May we say a sincere thanks to all who have made Iosco County a pleasant place to reside.

Desperado Jack Hayes and His Pals Were No Match for Constable Bob Johnson

By Edna Otis
Iosco County Historian

On display in the East Tawas Community Building this week is a beautifully chased pearl handled revolver. On the handle is engraved this inscription:

"Presented to Robert Johnson by the citizens of East Tawas, as a token of their appreciation of his courage and fidelity as a Police Officer."

Back of the display and the inscription is a story of lumbering days, and a man who earned the name of "desperado" in the 1870s. The story is being revived, and piecing together the second and third-hand versions of it, we feel safe in offering our version of it to the public.

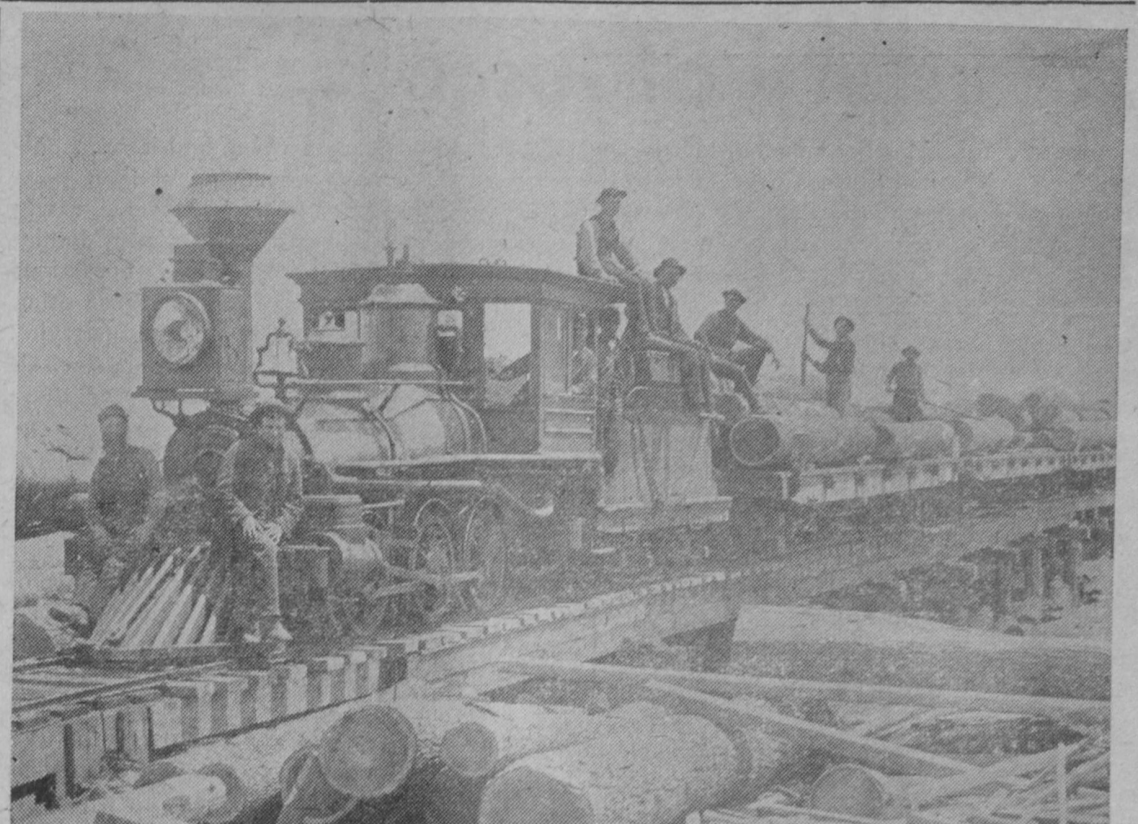

Picture Newman Street in the late 1870s. Where the Evans Store building is now located stood several wooden buildings, one or more of them always housing a saloon. Across the street on the north side of the lot whereon William Look has his garage, stood a one-story house, back several feet from the wooden sidewalk. South of it, and running to the corner of Newman and Westover Streets were several store buildings, known for so many years as the Dr. Gates block. Across the street and south the Carlson building is now located. It stood there some 80-odd years ago, and was a hotel

—the American House, run by James Curry.

A fight developed in the saloon, and there was gun play. Did Jack Hayes, the desperado, fire the shot? The innocent bystander was Owen McDonald, who lived in the house across the street. Small of stature, Mr. McDonald, when in his cups, always described himself as "Wee Ownie McDonald." "Wee Ownie" was shot in the foot, and his cries of "I'm mortifying, I'm mortifying," were groundless, because he suffered only a flesh wound.

But a fight in the lumbering days could have serious consequences, especially if there was gun-play. There were no telephones, but someone ran for Bob Johnson, the constable. By the time he arrived on the scene, Jack Hayes and some of his pals had moved over to the American Hotel. It was a belligerent mob, but they knew when they saw Bob Johnson that he was after their man.

Cried out a boastful fellow, "If you take him it will be over my dead body." But Bob Johnson paid no attention to the boast. He strode over to Hayes, and announced that he was under arrest. Hayes resisted him. One version of the story that has come to our attention is one recalling that Hayes had been released from jail a few days previously, because of a misdemeanor. Was he celebrating? It could be. It was the Fourth of July.

A few weeks ago, when the Kunze building was being torn down, workmen came across a book of old cemetery records. There is an entry that reads: "John Henry, better known as Jack Hayes, shot while resisting an officer, July 4, 1878." He was buried in Greenwood Cemetery on July 6, 1878.

A grateful citizenry gave brave Bob Johnson the revolver a few weeks later. And soon afterwards he removed from the community. In the passing of years he was lost even to memory.

How did we come into possession of the revolver after a lapse of 79 years? That is another story.

With the closing of military maneuvers at Oscoda Field for the season, it is found that much has been accomplished in improving air defense at this field during the past month.

Major Carl Spatz, commander of the air forces at Selfridge Field believes that more has been accomplished at Oscoda during that time in the development of air defense than during all the remaining period since the war and the science of shooting from planes has been revolutionized.

"There is nothing fancy or intricate about what they have accomplished," he said, "but they are hitting ground targets five times as often as the expert aerial machine gunners did during the World War, and are hitting aerial targets six times as often as the experts did during the war.

"This improvement in accurate shooting from airplanes is not a gradual development. It is not more than a month old. What the fliers of the First Pursuit Group have done, any flier can do by applying the same methods.

"These methods can be easily adapted to practical training that will be swiftly effective in a national emergency. I think their discovery and application here at Oscoda is the outstanding advance in military aviation since the war.

"The principal explanation of the remarkable shooting at Oscoda since May 1 is a very simple new sight developed at Oscoda. Chief credit for its discovery is given Lt. Oliver W. Broberg, regarded as champion aerial machine gun shot.

A History of Iosco

BY EDNA OTIS,
Centennial Chairman

Iosco County lies wholly in the tract of land ceded to the United States Government by the Chippewa Indians in the Saginaw Treaty of 1819. When government surveys were made in 1840, the county was called Ka-no-tin, after an Indian chief. In 1843, the name was changed to Iosco. This is a word of Schoolcraft manufacture, and is said to mean "water of light."

An Act of the Michigan Legislature, approved February 16, 1857, created Iosco County as we know it today. At the time there were less than 200 persons living here. Iosco's first white settler—one Louis Chevalier—lived here as early as 1800 on the banks of the AuSable River. He was a French fur trader. The American Fur Company had an outpost at the mouth of the AuSable in 1828.

Fishermen were attracted to AuSable in 1848. Morace D. Stockman and George Hulet Duell spent the winter of that year in the region, and thus was the first settlement in the county made.

At that time a band of Chippewa Indians, with their chief, O-ta-was, lived on the shore of the bay that bore his name—O-ta-was' Bay—where they hunted and fished, and fishermen (Peter Hart and his son, James, and family) were attracted to this section in 1849. (Tawas, a name of common use in the county, is a contraction of the old Indian chief's name.)

When the United States Government saw the need for building lighthouses along the shore, one was erected on Tawas Point and in operation in 1852, to light entrance to the largest natural harbor on the Great Lakes.

In 1853, Gideon O. Whittemore of Oakland County, visited the region in search of white pine. He returned the following year, and founded Tawas City. After locating some 5,000 acres of valuable timber, he built a steam saw mill in the virgin forest as the nucleus of the community. The accomplishments of the Whittemore firm in the next three years stagger the imagination. By 1857, a mill and dock had been built; a general store building had been erected; dwellings for the pioneers, who had come to make their home in the wilderness, had been built; the river meandering to the bay as it did "at the dawn of the morning of time," had been cleared out to permit logs to float down to the mill; a town had been platted, and a postoffice had been established.

Not content with building a town, the Whittemores realized that some form of local government was imperative; and, accordingly, they were instrumental in having the county organized in 1857. Two townships were created—Tawas and AuSable—dividing the county equally between its northern and southern boundaries.

The county seat was established on O-tawas' Bay—a fact that showed the political sagacity of the Whittemores. At the first election for county officers in April 1857, six of the seven county offices provided for were filled by members of the Whittemore family.

Ten years after the founding of Tawas City—1864—another town sprang up on Tawas Bay, called East Tawas by common consent. It owes its existence to a lumbering firm—Smith, VanValkenburg and Company. This firm equalled the energy of the Whit-temores in building a town, and it soon outstripped the county seat in population.

In the mid-1860s, fishing at AuSable was outranked by lumbering, when a firm dominated by Henry M. Loud started operations there, to be followed by a number of other firms. Also, in the mid-1860s, the quarrying of gypsum rock was begun at Alabaster, although the rock had been discovered there some 20 years previously.

As the years went by, the Townships of Thompson (later vacated), Oscoda, Plainfield, and Wilber were carved out of AuSable Township. Reno, Grant, Baldwin, Burleigh, Sherman and Alabaster were carved out of Tawas Township.

The close of the Civil War, which opened the way for establishing of new frontiers, and the discovery of large tracts of virgin pine, were largely responsible for Iosco County's growth. From a mere 175 population in 1860, it reached an all-time high in 1890, when the decennial census that year listed 15,224 persons. The population in 1950 was 10,906.

For 50 years the manufacture of lumber was the principal business of the county. Fishing, farming and the quarrying of gypsum rock were of secondary importance. The tourist industry was unknown.

Besides the shore towns in the eastern section of the county that owed their beginning to the lumbering industry, two settlements in the western part of the county sprang up as Iosco developed: Whittemore, with its reputation of being the smallest city in Michigan, and Hale, the lively unincorporated area in Plainfield Township.

Education and religion claimed the attention of Iosco residents at an early date. Schools at AuSable, Tawas City and East Tawas were opened in the 1860s. The religious life of the county owes much to Mrs. George P. Smith, who came to East Tawas in 1866, to find not a house of worship, nor an organized religious group, here. She organized the Methodist Sunday School, out of which grew the Methodist Church, to become the pioneer religious group, and the church, built later, the oldest edifice for worship. The first newspaper in the county was established in 1868 by the Whittemores. Telegraph lines were built up the shore in 1872. The first railroad—a logging road—was built in 1878. Telephone service was established at the turn of the century.

A disastrous forest fire practically wiped out the towns of AuSable and Oscoda on July 11, 1911—spelling the doom of the fast dwindling lumber industry.

The impetus given the building of good roads in Michigan in the 1920s, opened up Iosco County for resorting and the tourist trade. Fishing and hunting became recreational attractions.

Today we find the number one industry of the county the tourist and resort trade. US-23 parallels the county's shore line. M-55 crosses the county from east to west. Small industries are in operation all over the county, two gypsum plants give employment to local citizens, fishing is still an important industry and farming continues to hold its own.

A fine modern courthouse—dedicated in 1953—supplants the one that the Whittemores built 85 years ago.

And on the banks of the mighty AuSable the Lumbermen's Monument was erected in 1932, depicting those colorful characters of another day—the timber cruiser, the sawyer and the riverman—a memorial to the industry of Iosco's glory—that forever tells of the days that are gone and the memory of the dead.

All whittlin' sticks, and a-thinkin' hard—
Waitin' fer our time check, to go.

Ye'r through with the drive, an' no logs to ride:
"Let's go git our time check, Phil."
We git it—an' we git another thing too—
An' that is our Wanigan bill!

An' they give ye a check that looks mighty small.
Ye wonder where the winter's work's gone
But ye see they've figured yer Wanigan bill,
An' that's what ye've already drawn.

Yes, the Wanigan bill is a hungry thing,
It takes "baecy, an' sock" an' trash.
But the worst of it all, at the end of the drive
It eats up all the cash.

Here's "Peerless" fer pipes,
"Twenty packs."
Now I never smoked that much myself.
An' here's—well, a good many things
That I never even seen on the shelf.

An' so ye find ye've got "baecy an' socks,"
Cards, Mackinaws, mitten an' trash,
An'—durn it—it's all in the Wanigan bill,
So it eats up all the cash.
