Owosso and Inkster Mayors Honored Monday in Tawas

Official opening of the 1957 Michigan Week celebration started last Sunday, May 19, with special sermons delivered by Iosco County clergy.

Principal event of the observance here came with exchange of mayors day. Both Tawas City and East Tawas participated in this event.

Heading the visiting Owosso delegation to Tawas City was Mayor George Rubelman, who exchanged with Mayor George Tuttle. Mayor Rubelman was accompanied here by his wife and City Clerk George Vanepp and his wife.

Landing as Iosco County Airport at 10:30 a. m., the delegation was greeted by George W. Myles and a delegation of Tawas City businessmen. After a quick tour of the city they visited the new Tawas Area High School.

At the school, the party combined with the East Tawas delegation and Mayor Donald Olson of Inkster. The group was entertained with a band concert by the Tawas Area High School band, under the direction of Edward Rima. The band, making its last formal concert appearance of the school year, played several request numbers for the visitors.

With Supt. Reynold Mick as host, the group toured the new building.

Next on the agenda was a luncheon at the Vic and Zel Restaurant for the Owosso group, sponsored by the Tawas City Businessmen's Association.

At East Tawas, Mayor Olson was honored at a fish fry at the Holland Hotel, sponsored by the East Tawas Businessmen's Association. The two visiting mayors and other guests were taken on separate tours of points of interest in the Tawas. Among the places visited by the Tawas City group was the United States Gypsum quarry at Alabaster. While there, the group rode through the quarry on a diesel locomotive and viewed methods used by USG to mine gypsum rock. Maynard VanOrnum, works manager, was host.

Mayor Olson and the East Tawas group toured Anderson Coach Company and viewed progress on the new water filtration plant.

The three remaining days of Michigan Week are observances of education day, Thursday (today); our heritage day, Friday; new frontiers day, Saturday.

Among the special events listed here for the week is an invitation extended to all citizens to visit the Michigan State Police post at East Tawas.

Leslie's Bid Accepted for Police Car

A bid submitted by Orville Leslie and Sons for a new police car was accepted Monday night by the Tawas City Council. Three other bids were received.

The successful bid was for a 245 horsepower special Ford police interceptor. With the present 1956 Chevrolet police car as trade-in, the difference in price to be paid by the city park board was $695. Total cost of the car was $2,600 with $1,905 allowance on the trade-in.

Other bids were received from McKay Sales Company, Bronson Motor Sales and Cowan Motor Sales. The bid submitted by McKay, last year's successful bidder, was $60 lower than for the Ford. This was for a 220 horsepower Chevrolet as compared to the 245 horsepower Ford.

Bronson and Cowan both entered bids on Plymouth cars. With trade-in, Bronson's difference was $1,200, while Cowan's bid was $1,247.

Two building permits were approved by the council. These were: Charles A. Katterman, First Street, 28 by 36 foot residence with 10 by 21 garage. Estimated cost $2,000; Henry Oates, 625 Lake Street, remodel residence owned by Ned Lott. Estimated cost $4,600.

The council authorized the purchase of 15 dozen strings of pennants to be used for street decoration purposes during the Iosco County Centennial celebration in June. The pennants will be sold to businessmen.

Authorization was given Oliver Champline, city garbage collector, for an allowance of 36 gallons of gasoline a week to be used in his private truck during the three days of city pick-up.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Keiser Sr. arrived home last Thursday from St. Petersburg, Florida, where they spent the winter.

Impressive Program Held for New School

Impressive ceremonies were held Sunday afternoon at the dedication and open house for the new Tawas Area High School on M-55, the first such program for a high school building to be held in the Tawas in 50 years.

On hand to hear a number of speakers and musical selections by the Tawas Area music department was a crowd estimated at more than 500 persons. Following the program in the auditorium, high school students acted as guides for an inspection of the building by visitors.

After a prelude of musical selections by the Tawas Area High School Band, under the direction of Edward Rima, opened the program, the invocation was given by the Rev. Fr. Robert Neuman, pastor of St. Joseph's Church. Stuart White, president of the board of education, introduced platform guests.

Highlight of the program was an address by Stephen Nisbet, director of public relations of Gerber Products Corporation, Fremont. Mr. Nisbet is a graduate of Tawas City High School.

In his talk, Mr. Nisbet said that residents had every right to pat themselves on the back for a job well done, but added that they should never look back on what is accomplished yesterday or today.

"The thing which is important is what you do tomorrow," he said.

He stressed the point that the people of the district should not relax in their efforts, now that the high school building is completed. He said that there was always a need for building better schools and that community support would be the measure of utilization of the new school building.

Mr. Nisbet, who has long been associated with education in Michigan, said that the people of the district had given something really worthwhile to commemorate the start of Michigan Week. Formerly president of the Michigan Education Association, he brought official congratulations to the district from the state board of education.

Other speakers included Randall Fox, former president of the board of education, who resigned early this year to assume his new position with Chrysler Motor Corporation in the State of Delaware.

Mr. Fox, pointing to the audience, said that credit for the new school building should go to the people of the district, who made it possible.

Mr. Fox's address was included in the topic, "One Goal Reached," which was also shared by C. J. Creaser, former superintendent of schools at East Tawas, and A. E. Giddings, former Tawas City superintendent. Both men were instrumental in bringing about the reorganization of the district in 1952.

Mr. Creaser congratulated Supt. Reynold Mick on the important part he played in the construction of the school, while Mr. Giddings gave an interesting resume of events which led to the reorganization of the district, formation of school study committees and final construction of the building.

C. H. Haberkorn, general manager of H. E. Beyster and Associates, architects of the new school, said that he was very proud of the part his firm played in the construction. He introduced two members of the firm, Robert Rolston and Clare Herring, who have worked with the board of education on the new school since the (See DEDICATION, page 10.)

Park Board Budget to Include Tennis Facilities

More improvements are in store for the Tawas City Park this year, according to a budget of $5,725 set up by the park board last week and approved by the city council Monday night.

Largest single outlay of money, $3,000, will be for a 75 by 100 foot concrete slab to be used as a tennis court with room for several shuffleboard courts. The slab will be six inches thick and during the winter months will be iced for a skating rink.

The park board also plans to install 12 new outdoor grills of the type used in state parks. Cost of these will be $325.

A sidewalk will be constructed between the bathhouse and beach at a cost of $250 and additional recreational equipment will amount to $150.

The budget includes $1,500 for maintenance of dock and grounds, hiring a park attendant, improvement of the Elms Garden Park. The latter park was donated to the city by N. J. Crocker a number of years ago. Containing a nice grove of trees, located in the Third Ward near Bay Drive, it will be used as a picnic grounds.

Also included in the budget is $500 to be transferred to the city's general fund as the difference for trade-in for the city police car.

A considerable amount of work has been done during the past several years to beautify the park, including a new parking area, new bathhouse, improvement to the dock, raising the level of the park. Rudolf Witzke recently installed a new drinking fountain at the bathhouse while city workers completed the interior.

Jesse Hodder Post, American Legion, contributed funds last year for the purchase of playground equipment. The park is financed by a half-mill raised by taxation and penal fine money.

Members of the board are Clarence Everett, chairman; E. D. Jacques, Gordon Penman, John N. Brugger and Nelson Thornton.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The spiritual basis of true grace and beauty will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Bible passages to be read in the lesson-sermon entitled "Soul and Body" include the following from Psalms (90:16, 17): "Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us; and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (247:19-24): "Comeliness and grace are independent of matter. Being possesses its qualities before they are perceived humanly. Beauty is a thing of life, which dwells forever in the eternal Mind and reflects the charms of His goodness in expression, form, outline, and color."

Got a job for this giant killer?

Here's proof of the reserve strength in GMC's 370 that pays off in any operation.

DEEP in the pine woods, this 2½-ton GMC, with locally added trailing axle, wades into a pile of forest giants, using its power take-off to flip 1,000-pound logs onto its back. In ten minutes it has a staggering load—and practically no road to haul it over.

You may never need to subject your trucks to such grueling service, but experience like this is your assurance of stamina and reserve strength far beyond normal requirements.

And the GMC 370 can be yours for hundreds of dollars less than comparable competitive trucks. Just check with your GMC dealer.

HUB-DEEP RUTS, soft ground, down and up ravines, it totes a Hercules payload day in and day out in the timberlands of North Carolina. Five trips a day, six days a week the year around—and it stays a stranger to the repair shop!

MSU Study Shows Pastureland Most Neglected by Dairymen

There is no best pasture system for all farms, but there is a best one for every farm. Pasture is one of the most important feeds the dairyman has, but it is one of the most neglected, according to C. R.

Hoglund, Michigan State University farm economist.

A Michigan study showed that less than 20 percent of cropland rated excellent, although about 50 percent of the meadows harvested for grass silage and hay rated excellent.

Improved use of fertilizer and different grazing systems are two methods that can be used to improve the productivity of pasture.

The harvesting and storing of more hay silage for mid-summer feeding will boost pasture yields.

Strip grazing, a new pasture system in Michigan, can increase carrying capacity of pastures by 15 to 20 percent, if well managed.

Chopping green grass every day requires the most investment and labor of any system, but can increase the carrying capacity of the pasture land from 25 to 35 percent.

Making silage and feeding it in the summer is about halfway between strip grazing and green feeding, both in time and money invested, and in increased production per acre.

Perhaps some mixture of these plans will be best for your farm, but you cannot afford to pass over a good pasture program.

Ladino clover silage has nearly as much feeding value as good corn silage, according to researchers at Michigan State University.

In Michigan State University tests, milk production held about steady when cows were changed from Ladino silage to corn silage. When compared to good quality first and second cutting hay, the Ladino silage dropped milk production for the first few days but within 10 days to two weeks production equalled or went above that for hay feeding.

The Ladino silage used in the study was harvested on June 15 and ensiled in a horizontal silo. Fifty pounds of cane molasses per ton were added as a preservative.

Moisture content was 77.2 percent with the addition of the molasses.

The Michigan State University researchers point out that the study also shows the promise of Ladino silage as high energy crop.

This is important since Ladino is hard to cure as hay. It is very highly digestible because it compares favorably with corn silage, a combination of grain and roughage.

In this study, the Ladino silage appeared to be more appetizing than corn silage.

Knowing now to use an insecticide properly is just as important as knowing which one to use. J. R. Hoffman, entomology specialist at Michigan State University, points out that it is almost as hard to kill insects with the right spray, poorly applied as it is with the wrong insecticide entirely.

The first step in doing the job properly is to read the directions supplied by the manufacturer of the insecticide, and follow them closely. Do not use the idea that a little extra should be added "for the pot," as if you were brewing tea. And do not get the idea that if a little of the chemical will do a good job, twice as much should do twice as good a job. Unless you follow the directions, you may cause more trouble with your insecticide than the insects would if they were left alone.

Thoroughness is important in insect control. Many pests live on the undersides of the leaves, and you should be careful in applying pesticides to see that you get enough material on the lower sides as well as the upper surfaces.

Do not forget that different plants may require different handling. Plants with glossy foliage may require a spreader-sticker to be added to a spray mix. Spraying or dusting should be done in the early morning to take advantage of the still air so materials do not drift to areas where they are not wanted.

Also, the morning dew will help dusts to adhere to the leaves more effectively. Another advantage of early morning or evening spraying and dusting is that many plants are less sensitive to the materials being applied when they are cool and out of the hot sunlight.

Red stele root rot, the most serious fungus disease of Michigan strawberries, is the subject of a new extension folder available at Iosco County Cooperative Extension Service office.

This disease results in reduced growth and few runners. Near harvest time of the first or second fruiting year, the diseased plants wilt and die; thus, you lose part or all of your strawberry crop.

Worse, the fungus becomes established in the soil, making further planting of susceptible varieties useless.

This extension folder, F-239, discusses the effects of the disease, and tells how to recognize it, both on the leaves and roots of strawberries. Conditions favorable to the growth of the disease are described.

Management practices to prevent the start of the disease in your planting are also described in the folder. Since the fungus is deadly to strawberries and survives in the soil for long periods, preventing its start is the best control method, according to author of the folder, Robert H. Fulton of the Michigan State University department of botany and plant pathology.

"Don't Fence Me In"

Wildlife youngsters, like this fawn, present a temptation at this time of year for well-meaning persons who wish to capture wild animals and keep them as pets. However, that "helpless" wildlife baby will grow up rapidly and, if kept in captivity, can become both troublesome and dangerous. Best advice is: "Leave wildlife youngsters alone."

Michigan Week Revives Interest In History of Great State Seal

Interest in the history of the Great Seal of the State of Michigan has been mounting annually since the first Michigan Week was celebrated in 1954.

The seal, which is imprinted on the official state flag as well as all documents of the state, dates back to the days before Michigan was admitted to the union.

The seal was designed by Lewis Cass, who was appointed governor of Michigan territory in 1813 by President Harrison, and served until 1831 when he was named to the cabinet of President Andrew Jackson.

In 1835 the seal was presented to the Michigan constitutional convention and was adopted as the coat-of-arms of the state and the official seal. Several changes appeared in the decorations of the emblem around 1879, but the present seal, which was adopted by the legislature in 1911, is a return to the general pattern of Cass' original of 1835.

The Latin motto, "Si Quæris Peninsula Amoenam Circumspice," which means "If you seek a pleasant peninsula, look about you," has remained unchanged.

Other translations of the Latin inscriptions are: "E Pluribus Unum," "From many, one."

"Tuebor," "I will defend."

Thirty-three Northern Counties Represented at Gaylord Meeting

"Northern Michigan and You," a program arranged for people living in the 33 northern counties, was held in Grayling on May 15. Well over 400 people gathered in the Grayling High School gym, including at least 10 from Iosco County.

Mrs. Cyde Montgomery, Mrs. Theodore Olson, Mrs. Harold Black, Mrs. John Cobb, Mrs. Donald MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Everett and Gary, and Harold Hammond.

Sponsored by the Northern Michigan Development Council, the purpose for arranging the program was to alert and inform us who live here as to the future possibilities for use of natural resources and agricultural products.

Opportunity challenges were offered for natural resources, industry, agricultural crops, home industries, forest products and recreational developments. Speakers included: Les Beiderman, Midwestern Broadcasting Company; Joseph Harrington, marketing specialist for Northern Michigan; Stanley Ries, MSU horticulture specialist; Edna Sommerfeld, MSU district supervisor in home economics; Lester Bell, MSU extension forester; Charles Welch, conservation department; Paul Miller, MSU director of extension.

If you would like to know more about what these people had to say, visit with one of our Iosco County people who were there:

Reminder—recipes for rhubarb treats different from the conventional pie and sauce are available to you upon request.

Here are a few do's, and don'ts for salads. Remove the core from a head of lettuce and hold the cavity under running water to wash it. Dry salad greens by draining on a wire rack or shaking gently in a clean towel.

Do not store greens in a paper bag. Use plastic ones or a damp cloth, and keep the greens away from the freezing unit.

Do not cut lettuce, tear it into bite-size pieces. Do not wash wooden salad bowls. Wipe them with a clean, dry cloth or rub them with a piece of bread. Do not discard outer leaves from the lettuce head unless bruised. Lots of good vitamins find their way to the garbage by this route.

Rust on outer lettuce leaves spreads at certain storage temperatures and because of a gas given off by some fruits or vegetables. For best quality, use lettuce within a few days.

Imagination, shaking ability and a good recipe are rated high for dressing making. Your own special French dressing is usually less expensive than bottle varieties. This one is the recipe of one famed for good salad dressings.

Rub one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon paprika, one-fourth teaspoon powdered sugar, one-fourth teaspoon powdered mustard, and a few grains of cayenne together. Then slowly drip in one-half cup salad oil, stirring briskly all the time until the dry ingredients are thoroughly mixed with oil. Into that drip one-eighth cup (two tablespoons) vinegar. Stir and beat or shake vigorously. Pour over contents of your salad bowl.

ETAAC (East Tawas) home demonstration group this week provided a big boost for the Michigan Home Demonstration Scholarship Fund contributions to come from Iosco County. Having more cash on hand than is necessary for their summer picnic, they decided to contribute $5 toward the scholarship fund which helps girls studying at Michigan State University and interested in becoming home demonstration agents.

ery do you ask for when you shop? Gauge is the number of crosswise stitches per one and one-half inches of stocking fabric. The higher the gauge the closer the knit. Most common are 45, 51, 60 and 66 gauges.

Denier refers to the size of the thread in the stocking. The lower the denier number the finer the yarn. Popular deniers are 30, 20, 15 and 12. Yarn thickness and closeness of stitches work in combination to determine sheerness, weight and serviceability of hosiery.

Riparian Rights in Irrigation Needs More Study

In many of the 37 Eastern States the problem of supplemental irrigation has furnished the primary impetus for study and proposed legal changes. Irrigation is a highly consumptive use; it has been estimated that about two-thirds of the water applied to crops is lost through transpiration and evaporation. Therefore, even riparian owners on a small stream with a limited supply of water may find themselves involved in conflicts. Nonriparian owners may find it impossible to obtain surface waters for irrigation.

The needs of municipal and industrial water users are also increasing, but their use of water is largely non-consumptive in character. It has been estimated that over 90 percent of the water used for municipal and industrial purposes is ultimately returned. Basically, the argument for legislation in the Eastern States rests on the proposition that the existing system of law is not adequate to resolve water conflicts and problems on a basis conforming with equity and the highest beneficial use of water resources.

Any time that a modification of the riparian doctrine is proposed, the appropriation doctrine is considered as a substitute. However, the appropriation system, even though it has proved successful in the West, must not be imported into the East without careful study. In the West, water has been used mainly for non-consumptive purposes where the economic value of the water may be far greater.

Perhaps certain uses or places of use of water might be handled under a permit system. The use of water could be adjusted to temporary shortages on the basis of their relative public importance rather than on a priority based solely on the beginning of an appropriation or an equal sharing among all riparian uses. A few permit arrangements have been introduced in certain Eastern States, especially for irrigation use or for ground water pumping. Some problems as to the place of use could be alleviated by expanding the definition of riparian land to include all land within the watershed. Steps to encourage the sale of riparian rights for use on nonriparian land might have a similar effect.

The obstructive aspects of the unused riparian right might be met in several ways. Various steps could be taken to facilitate the condemnation and purchase of existing rights, to free water for activities that the legislature has declared to be of greater public benefit. Some Eastern States have studied proposals to assign quantitative amounts of water to existing riparian rights so as to leave a surplus for use on a nonriparian basis.

The uses for which water will be available will definitely effect the economic development of most Eastern States. Administrative procedures for coordinating the use of water resources will eventually become as essential in the East as they became in the West, even before the end of the nineteenth century.

All State Police Troopers to be On Duty Over Memorial Week-end

Holiday week-end schedules of the Michigan State Police for 1957, the first such period being the coming Memorial Day week-end, again call for all available enlisted personnel being on either desk or patrol duty, cancellation of pass days, and patrols working 10-hour shifts.

In addition, 180 national guardsmen will be assigned to the state police for traffic duty and 120 to sheriff departments.

The intensified schedule of the state police over Memorial week-end will be in effect from noon Wednesday, May 29, to 12 midnight Sunday, June 2.

Similar schedules are planned over the Fourth of July and Labor Day holiday periods.

Patrols will give particular attention to high accident areas, especially during the hours of the heaviest flows of traffic. Department planes will be used for aerial observation of traffic conditions.

The worst Memorial holiday period on record was in 1941 when 58 persons were killed, and the best was in 1950 when only four died. Last year there were 10 deaths. Part of the difference is accounted for by the length of the periods, which varies according to the day of the week the holiday falls on.

"Our deaths in May are running somewhat higher than in May last year and now is the time to bring about a reverse," said State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs. "This can be done by practicing safety every minute. Many persons think that 'it couldn't happen to me,' but the death tolls show it happens to anyone. It's better to be cautious during your minutes or hours at the wheel than dead forever."

Electrical Code to Go Into Effect in 90 Days

Following a public hearing on the rules and regulations to be promulgated by the new state electrical administrative board, preparations are now being made to complete the final revision and place it in effect.

This procedure is expected to take at least 90 days and will include any changes made by the legislature.

The final draft also must be first reviewed and certified by the attorney general and then filed with the secretary of state after which it will become part of the state administrative code and have the effect of law.

Raymond E. Rider, chairman of the electrical board, presided at the hearing, which was attended by a large gathering of electrical contractors, inspectors, utilities representatives and others interested in the code.

The electrical administration act was adopted by the 1956 legislature and provides for the licensing of electricians and electrical contractors and the inspection of electrical wiring in cities, villages and townships not having similar regulatory ordinances.

Exempt are townships with less than 7,500 population, cities with less than 2,500 and villages of less than 5,000.

HALE LEGION AUXILIARY BEGIN POPPY SALE

To open the selling of poppies of Glenn Staley American Legion Post and Auxiliary No. 422, Hale, Dr. E. O. Douglass bought the first poppy from the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wereley, Mrs. Wereley is president of the auxiliary.

When you buy a poppy, your contributions help the veteran bring himself back to useful life. He receives 1 1/2 cents for each poppy he makes. The rest goes to the auxiliary and post for helping the disabled veterans and the veterans' children.

During the past year, the local post and auxiliary have helped veterans and gave gifts for the veterans in the hospital to send home to their families at Christmas time. They sent robes to veterans in the Battle Creek hospital.

Anyone who has ever visited these hospitals know how much every little thing that has been done for the veteran means to him. "They gave for us to be free and the least we can do for them is buy a poppy," stated Poppy Chairman Florence Mann.

Yanna-Bariger Nuptials

The Emanuel Lutheran Church was the scene of a lovely candle-light wedding ceremony Saturday evening when Miss Darlene Bariger and Richard Joseph Yanna were united in marriage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bariger and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Yanna.

The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Leonard Newman. The altar was decorated with vases of painted daisies and stock.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace and nylon tulle with tapering wrist point sleeves. The fitted bodice of lace over satin was adorned with iridescent and complemented by a nylon net yoke with mandarin collar. The full bouffant skirt of tulle was floor length and was enhanced by two wide circular bands of imported scalloped lace. Her bridal veil of imported silk illusion in fingertip length was secured to a tiara studded with seed pearls, rhinestones and iridescent. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations with lace and ribbon streamers.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Albert Yanna Jr. as matron of honor and Misses Suzanne Groff and Diane Nordman, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. They chose lace taffeta waltz length gowns featuring full circle skirts, Sabrina necklines and empire bodices graced by deep bands extending to a back bow with streamers. The gown of the matron of honor was yellow and the bridesmaids' gowns were pink and blue. They carried colonial type bouquets of matching colors.

Vickie Groff as flower girl wore a green net over satin dress and carried a basket of white daisies and yellow roses.

The bridegroom was assisted by his brother, Albert Yanna Jr., and ushers were Dale and Karl Irish, cousins of the bride. Junior usher David Bariger, brother of the bride, assisted.

"Oh, Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer" were sung by Miss Donna Groff, accompanied by organist, Wilbert Mueller.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for 600 guests at the Eagles Hall. A bridal table cloth used by the bride's grandmother and mother covered the bride's table.

The young couple left on a wedding trip to Colorado and California. The going away costume of the bride was a charcoal suit with pink accessories.

They will reside at Little Island Lake after their return in three weeks.

Telephone Lines of the Tawas

CHET MAHER Michigan Bell Manager

"MOM, can I stay at Tommy's for lunch?" Just a simple telephone message, but because of it Mom knows just where her youngster is. The telephone makes it easier to keep track of the children. Remind them to call you if they're going to be late getting home from school or if they stop off at a friend's house. And, Mom, you can check on Junior's whereabouts just by calling the neighbor down the street. Why not let your telephone help you all it can? It's always there, ready to serve you whenever you need it.

TELEPHONE OFFICES on wheels are being used in a number of fast-growing communities. Eight of these large trailers, carrying complete dialing equipment, are now in use. They were wheeled into rapidly built-up towns where the demand for telephone service increased faster than anyone could foresee. They serve up to 1,200 customers apiece. These trailers were put into operation in a matter of weeks. Michigan Bell was one of the first telephone companies to use this ingenious mobile central office to help provide service until telephone buildings can be enlarged to house permanent equipment.

BELL SYSTEM Credit Cards are now more convenient than ever. They make it so easy to telephone Long Distance when you're away from home. Just say to the operator: "I want to make a Credit Card call. My card number is..." Your call goes through and is charged to your own telephone. You'll find it comes in mighty handy when you're traveling or visiting in another's home. So, if you don't already have a Bell System Credit Card, call our Business Office and ask for one. Credit Cards are furnished free of charge, of course.

Rural Patrons Urged to Clean Up Mail Boxes and Approaches

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, in conjunction with the Michigan Chapter, National Association of Postmasters, is urging all postal patrons served on rural or mounted routes to clean up and repair their mail boxes during the rural and mounted route mail box improvement period—beginning June 3 and ending June 15.

Tawas City Postmaster Martin Kasischke said, "Too often, postal patrons who eagerly anticipate the mail and attach justifiable great importance to it fail to provide adequate mail receptacles, or let them become dilapidated or fall into disrepair and are most unsightly along the highways, they being the highway billboards of the postal service."

A few days before June 3, patrons on such routes will receive a notice from his local post office advising them of improvements which should be made to their mail boxes including the approaches and possible chock holes in front of mail boxes.

"A simple and practical rural box would be one that has a post firmly planted with the height of the shelf on which the box is placed about three and one-half to four feet above the surface of the ground," states Postmaster Kasischke. The box should be on the right hand side of the road, in direction of carrier's travel, so that the box can be serviced without the carrier dismounting the vehicle. The box and post should be painted with either white or aluminum paint, with the patron's name inscribed on the box in neat block letters about one inch in height on the side traveled by the carrier.

A call to the local postmaster will find him happy to advise you. All rural patrons are urged to do their part during this mail box improvement period.
