SOME 125 young people from 13 Northeastern Michigan counties attended a winter conference Saturday and Sunday at the Holland Hotel, East Tawas. Sponsored by Cooperative Extension Service and Michigan State University, the idea of the conference was to give young people experience in travel and to learn the operation of a hotel. Sessions were also held concerning dating courtesy, grooming, table courtesy and other topics. Looking at a program of activities in the top photo are, seated left to right: Miss Dorothy Scott, county extension agent; Miss Bonnie Rollins, teen editor of Farm Journal Magazine; Jack Post, Arenac County extension agent; Standing left to right are Dean Rhoads, extension agent from Presque Isle County; Norleen Ackerman, Clare County extension agent, and Sidney Trevethan, delegate from East Tawas. The conference registration desk is shown in the bottom photo. Social activities included dinner parties, dancing and roller skating.—Tawas

IN SOLEMN RITES

Lincoln Takes Office as Nation's 16th President

WASHINGTON, D.C.-March 4-In an atmosphere heavy with solemnity yet afire with tension, Abraham Lincoln of Illinois was inaugurated today as the 16th president of the United States.

"We are not enemies, but friends," said the somber man the nation's new leader read his

"We must not be enemies," he continued. "Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection."

An electric spirit gripped the capital city as the day dawned, comfortably cool and fair. All banks, schools and most shops were closed. Crowds lined Pennsylvania Ave. to see Lincoln and aging, outgoing president James Buchanan ride from Willard's hotel, where Lincoln has been staying since his arrival here Feb. 23, to the Capitol.

VIRTUALLY unnoticed in the crowd was an unprecedented se curity force of heavily-armed detectives who, with sharpshooters stationed on rooftops along the property, and their peace and personal security, are to be endanroute, guarded against attempts on the controversial president-

SEVEN BIG DAYS Thursday, March 2 through Wednesday, March 8 Matinee Sunday at 2 PM

JOHN MILLS • DOROTHY McGUIRE JAMES MacARTHUR • JANET MUNRO Adults 65c Children 25c New Look Into Deer Nutrition

Over the years, Conservation Department game men have learned a good deal about deer nutrition: what foods whitetails prefer; what combinations of feed will carry the animals through the winter; effects of malnutrition on growth and productivity. However, they still need to know about the timing of deer digestion on different foods during the winter; many deer starve although autopsies show their stomachs to be full. Recently, with the help of researchers from Michigan State University, the Department started a new study which allows biologists to literally "look into" the problem. Borrowing a technique used on cows and other domestic animals, game men had a "window" placed in the stomach of this deer (above) to see how long it takes the animal to digest various foods at certain times of the winter. This "window" consists of a capped rubber tube (see insert) which extends from the body wall to the inside of the deer's stomach. It does not disturb the deer's normal bodily functions .--- Mich.
