A SHORTAGE OF PHONE NUMBERS? That's what would happen in the future if the present 2-letter, 5numeral system of telephone numbers were continued. Because of growth in population and the increasing demand for telephones, there just wouldn't be enough usable letter-numeral combinations to go around in the years ahead. So Michigan Bell, along with other telephone companies throughout the nation, is gradually adopting the new "All-Number Calling" system of 7-numeral phone numbers. This will insure enough telephone numbers for our ever-growing population, as well as a uniform numbering system.

STORMY WEATHER'S ON THE WAY. And more than ever on those bitter cold days ahead, shopping by phone is the convenient thing to do. What could be faster, easier, and just plain cozier than ordering whatever you need by a few flicks of the telephone dial? So if the weather's the give-you-the-sniffles variety, or you just can't get away from the house, let your telephone do your running around for you. The Shop-by-Phone habit saves you time, saves you steps, saves YOU.

每 每 每 每 每 每 每 每 每 每 每 每

WE'RE PROUD TO SALUTE the men and women in the newspaper industry this week. National Newspaper Week, October 14-20, serves to remind us of their dedicated work in the endless job of keeping us a nation of wellinformed citizens. And Michigan Bell is also proud of its own role in helping the newspapers in our state get the news to you quickly...for modern telephone equipment and facilities are an essential part of the newspapers' job of gathering and publishing the news.

SPUNKY NEW WAGONS THAT LEAD LONGER, HAPPIER LIVES

What a new kick you'll get out of going places in this one! And what a solvent feeling you'll get as the savings on upkeep mount! There's a full line of models, including three wagons. Basically, we've kept Chevy II's liveliness and roominess and easy loading ways. Kept its crisp looks, too (with a bit of freshening here and there). The changes we've made weren't for change's sake, you see—but for yours. Just for a sample: the brakes are self-adjusting. The new Delcotron generator gives you more electrical reserve power and helps your battery reach a vigorous old age. The Body by Fisher beauty lasts longer, too; air pushes rain and wash water down through the rocker panels (where most rust begins!) in a clever new flush-and-dry system. The ride is smoother and quieter because of a large number of small improvements we've made. And things are a lot plushier inside. Now you've read this far, haven't you? Isn't that good evidence that Chevy

II is made for you? The clincher will come when you take the wheel at your Chevrolet dealer's. the make more people depend or Give meat loaf a zesty flavor with bottled barbecue sauce. This seasoning secret provides a delicious flavor accent. Mellow and mildly sharp, all-purpose barbecue sauce is used to season the chopped beef and also to spark the flavor of the basting sauce.

3/4 cup Open Pit barbecue 1 tablespoon chopped

Combine bread crumbs, egg, onion, salt, parsley, and carrot; blend well. Add ½ cup barbecue sauce and the meat; mix lightly but well. Shape into a loaf in a shallow baking dish. Combine

Spicy Meat Loaf 1 cup bread crumbs 1 egg, slightly beaten 34 cup minced onion 1 teaspoon salt

1½ pounds ground beef 1 can (8 ounces) tomato 2 to 3 strips bacon

½ cup shredded carrot tomato sauce and remaining ¼ cup barbecue sauce and pour half of mixture over the meat loaf. Top with 2 to 3 strips of bacon. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) about 60 minutes, basting frequently with remaining sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Braves Defeat Panthers, 33-0

Pinny Game Friday Finishes NBC Schedule

Tawas Area Braves, again under a full head of steam Friday night, rolled over the Standish-Sterling Panthers by scoring one touchdown in each of the first three quarters and then added the finishing touch with two TDs in the final stanza.

Striking early against a Panther team which had crushed Pinconning, 33-0, the previous week, Tawas Area turned the tables on the S-S squad by the same margin with crisp blocking and hard

This was the game that all Tawas fans had been waiting to see. The Braves have had a rather easy time in dominating the new NBC Conference this season and were waiting for their first real test. Central, too, has a team boasting good personnel, fine speed and a defense that had been improving game by game.

The final outcome only put the frosting on top of Tawas' cake a little early in the season. Scoring 180 points in five straight victories, only one touchdown has been scored against Tawas' de-

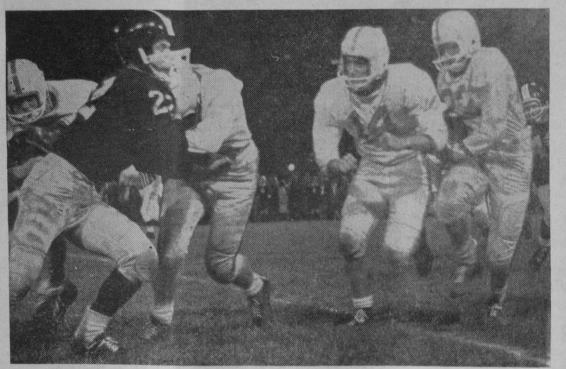

Actually, the two teams played on fairly even terms during the first half, Standish-Sterling controlling the ball for 31 plays and Tawas Area with 16. The visitors had six first downs during that time and Tawas picked up five.

However, the Braves struck fast as always Friday night and that proved to be the big difference.

Central took the kick-off and marched to the 46-yard line in three plays and one first down. A personal foul called against one of the Panthers did not help Central's cause and the drive petered out against Tawas' defensive line.

This set the stage for the first touchdown, the Braves taking over on the 26-yard stripe after a Central punt. Quarterback Jim Mick, who has displayed great field generalship all season, again punt on fourth down. proved his mettle by making good use of his halfbacks.

Providing fun for the whole family, and individuality for Mom and Dad, the top offering in Ford's 1963 station wagon line, the Country Squire, will have optional bucket seats. A nine-passenger car, the Squire has the only forward-facing third seat in the low-priced car field, and one of the widest tailgate openings in the industry—more than 50 inches.

Described as "the most service free standard-size American car ever produced," the 1963 Ford Galaxie features complete re-styling, a new 260-cubic-inch Challenger V-8 engine, 36,000-mile major lubrication intervals and 6,000-mile minor lubrication intervals, and "cushion link" suspension. Through use of improved lubricants, a complete "run-in" of each engine while it is being electronically englyzed and an engine flick present it is being electronically analyzed, and an engine flush procedure, Ford has been able to eliminate the historic 1,000-mile inspection on all of its 1963 cars, except the three van-type vehicles in the Falcon line.

Supervisors Bring in Final Budget of $308,677.16

Iosco County Board of Supervisors brought in a final 1963 county operating budget of $308,-677.16 last week. The October session was completed Monday of this week after six straight days of committee work. Although the 1963 budget is highest in Iosco's history, being $24,494.51 above the current year the board lopped $7,380.73 off the preliminary figure brought in last April. With anticipated revenue from county $283,677.16 will be raised by taxation. Millage for county operation has been set at 5.16 mills.

Adoption of the final operating budget saw reductions in three departments while two county offices received increases over April's tentative figure. Iosco Welfare Department's direct relief fund was cut from $22,000 to $20,000, while the sheriff department's operating expense was cut from $43,488 to Under the tentative April budget, allocation of Iosco-Arenac Regional Library was to have been $12,379, but the figure was cut back to $8,977.75. The board of supervisors had agreed last spring to add 20 cents to the annual 55-cent per capita allocation by this county, to help finance cost of a new library headquarters building, if a like amount was contributed by

pervisors did not include this increase in its 1963 budget and Iosco's figure was readjusted. Budget of Iosco Register of Deeds was increased from $13, 812 to $14,212 to cover the cost of hiring a full-time office clerk, which action had been approved last spring.

Also receiving an increase was Iosco Circuit Court. The budget of this office was upped from $10,117.95 to $13,617.95, representing the salary of a friend of the court. This new judicial aide is to be named by Judge Allan C.

Nutritionists admit water is as important as feed. Top poultrymen say adequate supplies of clean, fresh water are the cheapest way to keep hens producing at their best. Here's a continuous flow fountain that does a good job for this egg producer. He makes certain he has one fountain for each 100 hens and that the fountains are no more than 30 feet apart. Under most conditions 100 hens will consume about seven to eight gallons of water a day.

R ate of production makes a big difference in egg profits. Flocks that produce much less than 200 eggs per hen during 12 months of lay seldom make a profit for the operator. On the other hand, records of Midwest egg producers show that, when production averages 18 dozen eggs per hen annually, net profits often run $1 or more per bird; and at the 230-egg level some producers are realizing a return of $1.50 or more per hen.

Basically most flocks of pullets are quite similar in their genetic or bred-in ability to produce at a high rate. However, actual performance after a year's lay will vary greatly from flock to flock. The reason is usually due to different levels of stress to which the flock is subjected.

NEW BIG POWER

...the D-19
Turbo-Charged
Diesel

Turbo-Charging is the modern way to get more power more efficiently out of a big farm diesel . . . without the need for the excessive bulk of bigger-displacement engines . . . without running smaller engines at "revved up" speeds.

Turbo-Charging adds 20% to engine power. The power output depends on the oxygen available to burn fuel efficiently. Turbo-Charging simply pushes more air into manifold and cylinders. The compressor that does this job is driven by exhaust energy normally wasted.

Turbo-Charging sweeps out burned gases. Exhaust valves remain open momentarily after the intake valves are opened. A stream of clean, cool air rushes through each cylinder for a clean sweep between each power stroke.

Turbo-Charging cools valves, nozzles and pistons. The cooling action of this air on valves, injector nozzles and pistons lengthens engine life significantly.

Just what is stress? It can be defined as any outside force that places an undue strain on your birds. No poultry flock is entirely free from stress because some of the things that are done to protect the flock, such as vaccinations, are actually stresses in themselves. However, these are essential to preventing more severe problems. Your main concern must be to reduce the length of stress from various management practices and eliminate those that can be controlled and prevented.

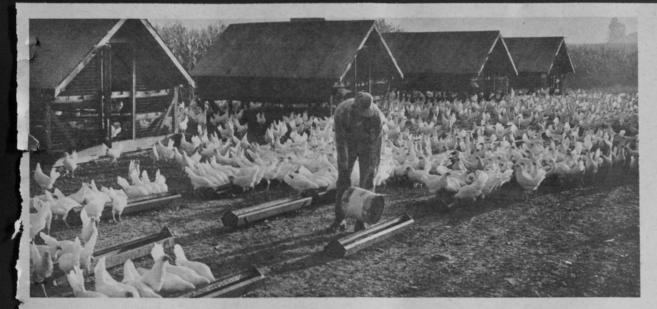

How can you recognize undue stress? You first must know how your hens should act when they're completely contented, healthy and performing well. Whenever a slight change from normal occurs you had better start looking for the cause. To do this you must constantly be on your toes to spot troubles before they get started.

Housing environment is one of the biggest causes of undue stress during winter. Unnecessary drafts and sudden changes in weather can quickly throw birds out of best condition. During winter, proper ventilation and a plentiful supply of water can often be equally, or at times, more important than feed. If the house is damp or if wet, caked spots develop in the litter and ammonia fumes become great, you can be sure the hens are under an undue stress.

Overcrowding and inadequate feeder and water space can also put a stress on your birds. Even inadequate nesting conditions will disrupt your hens and keep them from producing at their best. With plenty of feed and water space and adequate ventilation you can house up to one hen for each square foot of floor space. But it takes the most optimum conditions under such a high population to get satisfactory production with a minimum of management problems.

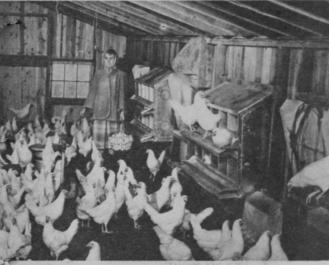

Feeds and feeding methods can often offset or prevent undue stresses on a flock but they won't counteract poor housing management. Tremendous strides have been made in the field of poultry nutrition during the past few-years. Tailor-made feeds, containing additives to counteract various forms of stress and improve performance, have been a great boon to the egg producers. Contact your feedman.

The stresses mentioned above can become even more severe if several are present at the same time. For instance, if your laying house should be poorly ventilated, litter is wet and hens have an insufficient amount of feed and water space, your risk of diseases developing can be quite severe. No matter how good your feeding program may be, it's hard for the feed to counteract poor management on your part.

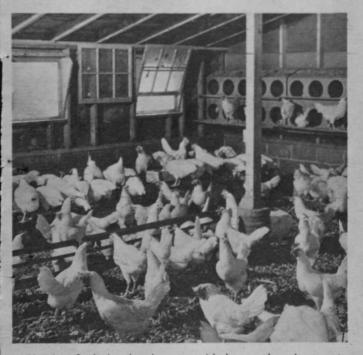

When these pullets are housed they're going to be put under stress. The less you disrupt their routine, the less problems you'll have when you get them into the laying house. New pullets should be vaccinated and wormed at least three weeks before they are housed. This gives them time to recuperate and get back to normal. When housed, clean, well-ventilated conditions will help reduce stress. Also, your feed dealer can give you tips on how antibiotics can help offset stresses during housing.

A shelf in the Killeen living room displays the art work of many hours doing. The empty parakeet egg shell is shown at the right end of the graduating sizes on the top shelf.

This closeup shows the intricate sewing on the velvet lining of a jewelry case, gathered to fit the top. Little pearls and pink seashells form the flower design.

WHO SAYS THROW AWAY THE EGG SHELL?

"And there you have it in an eggshell," Mrs. Caroline Killeen might tell you after showing her fascinating hobby.

Most housewives throw away chicken eggshells or put them through the disposal. But the ordinary eggshell becomes a thing to look at through the skilled hands and imaginative artistry of this Dell Rapids, South Dakota housewife and mother of five school-age children.

Her patience is a great attribute to her art. So is the patience of her family as she spends extra hours in her hobby room after supper. Even little fiveyear-old Patty is interested in Mama's hobby and knows each tiny eggshell scene and describes her favorites explicitly to visitors. Their eyes beam as she shows each intricate scene in a shell.

Chicken eggs are not the only source of shells for Mrs. Killeen's hobby. She has goose eggshells as large as six or seven inches in length. However, she has not found an appropriately delicate scene for a tiny parakeet shell a friend has given her.

Scenes inside the shells vary from snowmen, Santa Clauses and Easter bunnies, to ballet dancers,

- 1. First Mrs. Killeen cuts a circular "window" in each egg with a razor blade. She later evens off the rough edge with manicure scissors.
- 2. She then paints the shell inside and out with tempera paints and then shellacs over this.
- 3. She then decorates the edge of the egg opening with gold tape or a tiny string of pearls, then glues flower designs made of tiny colored seashells.
- 4. The "standard" on the bottom is a small plastic ring of pearls glued on.

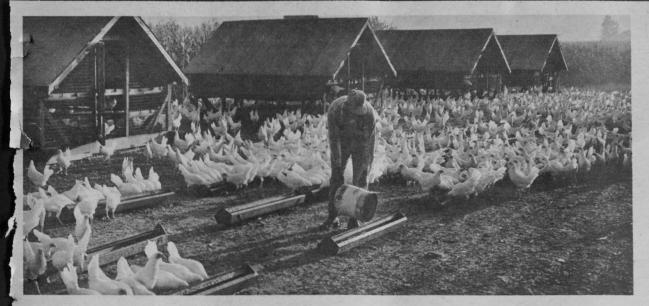

Hawaiian figures, Chinese themes or Madonna

Store-bought images of ballerina dolls, farm animals and reindeer are sometimes found in children's toy departments or on party favor counters. But Mrs. Killeen constructs snowmen out of poppit beads, cattails out of toothpicks and felt and bird-houses out of construction paper. She cuts little birds off greeting cards. She cuts up small pieces of plastic artificial ferns and leaves to make fronds and branches in the tiny scenes. She also uses many tiny colored seashells, bits of real coral, beads and stars which she buys from hobby catalogs.

She prepares in advance all the things the scene will contain. The objects of each scene are pushed into place in soft melted wax poured into the "floor" of the eggshell.

The goose eggs also make ideal jewelry boxes. Each one is lined with richly-gathered velvet linings. The outsides are bedecked in colors corresponding to the inside linings, with gold or silver braid, pearls and shell flowers. A tiny hinge holds the top on and one poppit bead forms the handle for opening the top.

"Such things as the pearl beads and gold tapes can get to be quite expensive," Mrs. Killeen said, "but any hobby is going to run into a little money if you let it."

HAPPY JACK-O-LANTERN CAKE

Here's an easy to do specialty cake for Halloween and one sure to delight all the children in your family. It's a Happy Jack-O-Lantern cake made with fresh California walnuts.

You can put a cake together in a jiffy using your favorite yellow or chocolate cake recipe, then a filling of whipped cream and bananas, plus a frosting. For the final decorating touch, use walnut halves or large pieces for the eyes, then outline the eyes with whipped cream, and use whipped cream for the mouth and nose. If you like, add ½ cup finely chopped California walnuts to the cake batter, too, before baking.

Two final hints on the cake preparation. Put the whipped cream and bananas together at the last so that the bananas won't turn dark from standing. The easiest way to outline the jack-o-lantern face is to make a pastry tube of an envelope, then snip off one corner, fill the envelope with whipped cream and squeeze.

1 layer cake, chocolate or yellow 1 cup whipped cream

1 teaspoon vanilla 2 bananas, sliced

3/4 cup chopped California walnuts

Prepare cake, baking in 8 or 9-inch round pans. Cool. Shortly before serving, prepare frosting. Whip cream with vanilla. Reserve % cup whipped cream for decorating. To remainder of whipped cream, add sliced bananas. Put cake layers together with banana-whipped cream mixture. Swirl frosting over top and sides of cake. Use chopped walnuts to decorate sides of cake, pressing walnut pieces gently into frosting. Use halves or large pieces of walnuts for "eyes". Outline eyes, nose and mouth with whipped cream. Makes one 8 or 9-inch cake, or 12 to 14 servings.

Really startling costumes can be built around full head masks, made with surprising ease from household aluminum foil. The sparkling foil is merely shaped around a large balloon. When the shape is completed, the balloon is deflated and removed. Each mask requires only a single roll of foil, a few simple props, and a large balloon. Here's how they are made:

1. Using a 25 ft. roll of foil, tear off the entire roll in three-foot lengths. Crumple one length into a ball to make a nose.

2. Blow up the balloon until it is 11 to 14 in. in diameter (should be smaller for

3. Place the balloon, with blowing spout up, on the center of the first sheet of foil and shape the foil up around the balloon. Place it again on the next sheet so that the foil will shape around the uncovered portions of the balloon. Repeat with a third sheet of foil.

4. Place the wad of foil for the nose in position and hold with cellophane tape. Then wrap the next length of foil around the center of the balloon and over the nose to hold it in place, forming it to the nose shape.

5. The remaining foil sheets can then be applied like the first three to complete the form of the mask.

6. Tuck in the ends smoothly around the head opening, at the spout end of the balloon, allowing 7 to 9 in. diameter for passage of the wearer's head. Then the air is let out of the balloon, and it is removed.

This completes the basic construction. Decorating then can begin, to give the mask identity. Desired eye and mouth shapes are cut out with scissors. Ears, shaped from paper, cloth or foil, are fastened on with a white glue. They should be held in place with tape, until the glue dries. Features and markings can be added with colored plastic tape, or poster paint. Hair can be made from rug yarn or ribbon.

CREAMY CARAMELS

- 2 cups sugar
  2 cups warm light cream
  1 cup light or dark corn syrup
  ½ teaspoon salt
  ½ cup margarine or butter
  ½ cup broken walnuts
  1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, 1 cup of the cream, corn syrup and salt in a large heavy saucepan. Cook over medium heat about 10 minutes; stir constantly throughout all cooking periods. Pour in remaining cup of cream very slowly, so that mixture does not stop boiling at any time. Cook about 5 minutes longer. Stir in margarine about a teaspoon at a time. Turn heat to low and cook slowly to 248°F. until a small amount of the mixture forms a firm ball when tested in very cold water. Remove from heat; add vanilla and walnuts and mix gently. Allow to stand about 10 minutes and nuts and mix gently. Allow to stand about 10 minutes and then stir only enough to distribute the walnuts. Pour into one corner of a lightly-buttered 8 x 8 x 2-inch pan, letting the mixture flow to its own level in the pan. Do Not Scrape The Cooking Pan. Cool to room temperature. Turn the block of candy onto a cutting board; if candy sticks, heat bottom of pan slightly; cool before cutting. Mark off into X-inch squares and cut with a large, sharp knife. Wrap each caramel in waxed paper. If candy is to be eaten right away, it may be dusted with confectioners sugar. Makes about 2 pounds of candy. Makes about 2 pounds of candy.

Creamy Raisin Caramels: Add 1 cup raisins, chopped, with

APPLES-ON-A-STICK

- 8 medium red apples
  8 wooden skewers
  3 cups sugar
  ½ cup light corn syrup
  ½ cup water
  1 drop oil of cinnamon
  1 teaspoon red vegetable coloring

Wash and dry apples; remove stems. Insert skewers in stem end of apples. Combine sugar, corn syrup and water in a heavy deep saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Then cook without stirring to soft crack stage (285°F.) or until a small amount separates into threads which are hard but not brittle when tested in very cold water.

Remove from heat; add flavoring and coloring, and stir only enough to mix. Hold each apple by skewer end and quickly twirl in syrup, tilting pan to cover apple with syrup. Remove from syrup; allow excess to drip off, then twirl to spread syrup smoothly over apple. Place on lightly buttered baking sheet to cool. Store in cool place.

DON'T SETTLE FOR ANYTHING LESS THAN THE BEST

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR THE WORLD'S MOST TESTED, MOST TRUSTED ANTI-FREEZE

... about the author

These reassuring words for Rural America come from an old friend, G. B. Gunlogson of Racine, Wisconsin. An agricultural engineer and expert in many fields, GB "retired" recently but did not mean it for a minute. He is now busily engaged in the greatest project of all — telling our rural people what a won-derful life is right in front of them — if they just do things begging to be done.

A recent study of conditions in rural areas among small town and farm people has brought to light many interesting findings which signify the beginning of important changes in the future of Rural America. Despite the recapitulation of trends and various opinions expressed in print and on the air about the widespread migration of people toward cities, the countryside is not about to wither away and become a "no-man's land". All the enduring elements are still there and the roots are firmly in the ground to assure a healthy future and, in due time, a resurgence of growth. Here are some facts which may be of interest:

The countryside comprises nearly ninety per cent Ine countryside comprises nearly ninety per cent of the land area of the country, not counting public lands. It contains a large and very important segment of America's total population and economy. The census places the rural population, people living on farms and in towns of 2500 or less, at 55,000,000. Actually we may add to this five or six million more who live in slightly larger towns but are essentially rural.

This adds up to 60,000,000 or close to a third of the total population, about 25 per cent of which live on farms.

While the basic economy is farming, these people are engaged in highly diversified enterprises. This is the third of the population which not only produces but also forms the first link in connecting the rest of the population with the necessities of life. This is the third which annually produces more primary wealth than all the rest of the population.

This is the propertied part of the population. In addition to the 1.12 billion acres of farm land in their hands the per capita ownership of homes and their hands the per capita ownership of homes and other property (except in a few areas) is consider-ably higher than for the rest of the country.

These people are different and their environment is different. They are more independent and less regimented or group controlled. The percentage of enterpreneurs, self-employed and owners of businesses is far higher. These conditions and experiences have made for greater resourcefulness, enterprise and better work habits than is generally found among city people. They are closer to the realities of life and their values are different.

For many years rural people would look to the city for advancements and advantages. They were enchanted by big industries, big businesses, big payrolls, glamor and adventure. The lure of big pay and easier work attracted millions. During war and in prosperous times intensive recruiting campaigns for factory workers reached almost every rural community. Most of the recruits remained although some returned when work gave out, rather than join the ranks of the city unemployed.

Young people from the country who had education frequently attained much success in the city. To "make good in the city" became a great challenge in many communities. While this has been a two way blessing, it has tended to make country people look too much in one direction and overlook oppor-

Except for the local weeklies (and farm papers going to farmers) nearly every type of media reaching the country is city oriented and slanted. There is little in any of the general run of periodicals that is geared to country people, or identified with their way of life, opportunities and aspirations. Essentially these publications are designed to serve the urban level and interests

THE TIDE MAY BE TURNING. There are signs that the tide may be reaching its crest. The process of change is many sided and it is being shaped by people—people with desires, needs, values and who reason and plan for their future. For one thing cities are becoming less attractive. Many are suffocating from over-population. Many are facing serious financial problems, unemployment, influx of aliens and indigents, inefficiency, slums, growing crime and disintegration of human values. These conditions are tending to worsen and their solutions grow increasingly difficult. The big city complex may be likened to an old structure that has been repeatedly added to, shored up and patched up. It has become inefficient, outdated and unsound. Many city people are living on a thin margin and many are disillusioned. Country people are becoming increasingly aware of some of these conditions.

Some years ago industry began to decentralize because bigness in one place created certain prob-lems which could best be solved by establishing other units. Behind such moves many factors are involved such as sources of materials, accessibility to markets, transportation, over-crowding and other environmental conditions. Now many industries are studying how this process may be carried on still farther. Actually new approaches may be evolved enabling certain industries to disperse their production into still smaller units.

In recent years another movement got under way. People began to suburbanize and business centers began to spread into the country. This may be the beginning of a broader movement which may reach out still farther. This country has never stood still. Free people will always continue to seek better living conditions and new opportunities.

THE COMMUNITY PACKAGE CONCEPT. There are two new developments which are likely to halt a long trend and almost certainly will help to shape a new future for Rural America. A number of small towns are making a reappraisal of themselves and what the community has in resources and people and potential opportunities. This has stimulated local planning and efforts which in many instances has brought significant improvement in local attitudes and economic conditions.

There are many factors which are changing this attitude and are bringing the farmer and townsman together in a common purpose. Better roads, of course, have brought the farm and town closer together. The consolidated school has been an important influence in many counties, enabling children to occupy the same class rooms and enjoy the same cultural, social and recreational activities. Farmers and businessmen are joining together in community, business, recreational, social and church affairs.

The results may be widely noted in the growing number of new hospitals, clinics, homes for the aged, parks and public works. At the same time planning on the economic front has not been over-looked. Many communities have active committees (or Chambers of Commerce) made up of local businessmen, farmers and professional people carefully surveying every likely area for economic development. This has included processing of farm products and other locally oriented enterprises or service. Some manufacturing plants turning out various products or parts have been successfully established in many small towns.

These committees have discovered that the countryside has many hidden assets and attractions which can be developed to make the community better and provide opportunities for people. They are also discovering that to succeed a community must have self-starting and generating forces within itself.

Never before has there been more widespread interest and endeavor in behalf of rural development. One noteworthy example is the rural development program launched a few years ago by the De partment of Agriculture. Some of the Agricultural Colleges and the Extension Services have undertaken various studies. These agenices have not only been helpful but they have shown readiness to cooperate in these local undertakings. The agricultural college operates largely on state basis and is freer from Washington politics than some of the agricultural agencies

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER. There is much evidence to show that a good local newspaper is one of the key factors in the life and progress of any country community. Without it the community is somewhat like an individual deficient in speech, hearing and eye sight. The newspaper is the instrument which can help most to keep together and keep moving ahead the many-sided interests in a country community. It alone can present the living pulse and progress of a community to the local people and the outside world. It records family gatherings, births, school doings, Sunday sermons, local sports, field and crop conditions, and the affairs of local business and industry.

Nowhere else are the character and the prospects of a community reflected more clearly than in the columns of the local newspaper. Indeed, if one were selecting a new location for a business one of the first things to look into would be the quality of the local

TIME IS ON THE SIDE OF COUNTRY PEO-PLE. To know much about the country one has to experience it and sense its qualities, magnitude and infinite variety. Within its boundaries of oceans, the Rio Grande and Canada it has nearly 3 million square miles of land outside cities and their suburbs and many regions and climates. It has 3 million miles of highways, 15,000 towns and about one million different businesses and services. Never have the opportunities in this vast and varied country been

The growing population pressure in populous centers will place ever higher premium on the very things which now are in super abundance in the countryside: land and congenial living space, products of the good earth, beauty of the landscape, woods, clean water and wild life. It is inevitable that people of the cities must turn increasingly to the country for these essential needs of life. No wonder that people in many rural areas are beginning to reappraise these assets and their strategic position. No wonder that many city people are beginning to look and to long for the country.
