Concrete gives taxpayers riding quality that lasts... the National Road Test confirms it

Out of the recent 27-million dollar National Road Test comes significant new information on the performance of concrete and asphalt pavements. Sponsored by the American Association of State Highway Officials, this road test was the most scientific ever conducted. Side by side on 5 loops near Ottawa, Illinois, concrete and asphalt test sections carried the same truck traffic for two years. Each loop carried light, medium or

To determine how well test pavements kept their riding quality, a special rating system called the serviceability index was used. Pavement surfaces were rated on a scale from "0" (very poor) to "5" (very good).

After two years of traffic and the impact of more than 1,100,000 loads, the surviving concrete still averaged "very good," while most of the surviving asphalt averaged "fair."

Here is further evidence that concrete performs better and gives taxpayers long-range riding comfort for streets, roads and Interstate highways.

Sometimes the caravan crept along for hours in low gear. It took 17 days to go 1,066 miles! This is the road near Loreto.

Round trip from Detroit to the end of the Baja Peninsula is over 8,000 miles.

M illions of years ago nature fashioned a proving ground for trucks that man can never duplicate. Today it is known as the Baja (bah' hah) California

Peninsula, Mexico. These pictures give you only a bare idea of the place. The road is fine for 140 miles below the U.S. border. Then the beating begins. Rocks and hard-baked ruts bang, jab and jerk the trucks from stem to stern. Loose sand makes them struggle and strain. Dust chokes them. Heat roasts them. Rivers drench them. The Baja Run took this Chevrolet truck caravan 17 days to go the 1,066 miles.

All the trucks performed magnificently. Not one was forced to drop out because of mechanical

What Lures The Waterfowler? Trophies Look High?

fall food festival

BIG GAME COUNTRY, once wrote Stewart Edward White, is often straight up and down: "We found ourselves looking over the sheer brink of a precipice."

THE WHITETAIL DEER was the first big game animal killed for food by the pioneers, and yet it has been said "it will be the last of the large hoofed animals of North America to become extinct." The U.S. has more than 100 years ago.

Does a mounted head look too high to you? A prize rack of horns seem beyond your reach? Look again. You may be closer to a trophy than you think.

Fact is, in spite of booming human population pressures, there are still places in this country where sportsmen can go after more big game than their grandfathers could—and practice conservation in the bargain.

Popular belief to the contrary, the whitetail deer is not a lover of the forest primeval. He prefers young, brushy woodlands, especially those with irregular edges and openings, so he follows close on the heels of lumbering and small-scale farming. Thus there are many more whitetails in the United States today than there were 100 years ago.

As a matter of fact, the whitetail is present in such numbers in some spots that he threatens to eat himself out of house and home. As state after state seeks to crop its deer herd down to the capacity of its deer range, we are seeing regulations that permit the shooting of either sex over an extended season, and in areas close to big cities where the crack of a rifle has not been heard for a generation.

In the western states the mule deer takes the place of the whitetail. He, too, is thriving where intelligent management practices can be followed.

More and more hunters are also experiencing the thrill of going after two other trophy species in the west. One is the elk, or wapiti, he of the rocking-chair horns, now present again in good numbers in and around Wyoming. The other target is the antelope, or pronghorn, the only American representative of a family with many famous branches in Africa. You don't have to "pack in" to reach these animals, but it's well to have a rifle with a long, flat trajectory and a scope sight.

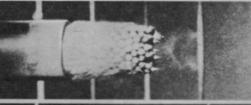

The black bear, too, is back again on the list of shootable animals in many states. Oddly enough, it is tourist garbage dumps that are responsible for the jump in his population.

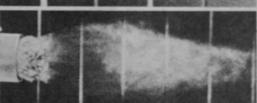

All told, the United States trophy situation is such this fall that a fine set of horns is in reach of many a hunter, thanks to a bountiful Nature that won't let civilization keep her down.

See why no paper shell can guarantee such power and performance

The photographs above show two shot charges as they leave the barrel. The top one is from our plastic shell; the other, from a paper shell. Notice how the powder gas in our plastic shell stays behind the shot, pushing it with maximum power and velocity. The powder gas from the paper shell has leaked past the wad into the shot, weakening the shot charge - proof that only our plastic wad in a plastic body gives you all the power you paid for.

Laboratory tests under varied conditions show that ordinary paper shells can lose power and velocity from the day they're made. On the other hand, Remington-Peters plastic shells lose nothing...keep 100% of their power and velocity after a year or more. Unless you're extremely careful in tic design seals powder gas perfectly. There's no escaping storing your paper shells from one season to the next, you gas to scatter or disrupt the charge. Result: better patterns, need the full-power protection you are guaranteed with longer range... thanks to all-plastic construction. Remington-Peters plastic shells.

but only Remington-Peters guarantees it! Regardless of hunting and weather conditions, if even one Remington-Peters plastic shell fails to meet any of the guarantees listed here, through the fault of the shell, we'll send you 100 brandnew shells absolutely free!*

Guaranteed against power loss for up to one year from date of purchase. Only plastic locks in factory-fresh power, regardless of storage or temperature conditions. Paper shells can lose power from day they're made.

Guaranteed perfect power sealing. No paper wad in a paper shell can match the perfect,

You can get powerful plastic shells in all 12, 16 and 20 gauge Remington "Express" and Peters "High Velocity" high-base loads, including buckshot and rifled slugs. And they're priced the same as any high-base paper shells.

The high-speed photograph above shows the shot charge from our plastic shell when it's three feet from the muzzle. Note the short, uniform stringing and good distribution. You get this because our friction-free, plastic-against-plas-

Remington-Peters plastic shells and ordinary paper shells were tumbled in an automatic washer for one full cycle. Our plastic shells were unaffected by the ordeal . . . and subsequently fed, chambered and fired perfectly. The paper shells were completely destroyed. One Louisiana hunter confirmed this amazing plastic-shell endurance by firing plastic shells that had been under water in a duck blind for 12 months. They performed perfectly!

what lures the WALKFUWLLK?

 ${f F}$ aced this fall with some of the most stringent regulations in history, you might think waterfowlers would call it quits! Not so. Across the country they are counting the hours to opening day as eagerly as ever.

This is because a duck hunt is not just a simple sporting event. It is a great American ritual. Its special lure lies in its secret incantations, esoteric garments, and sacred proceedings.

The ceremony begins early in August, with the re-painting of decoys and the camouflaging of boats and blinds, all according to a routine as immutable as a baptism. Caught up in the spell, the duck hunter spends hours staring into sporting store windows or practicing on his duck call.

On a late fall night the ancient ceremony will approach its peak. To keep a date with a storm front moving down from Canada, the hunter flees the city in frantic haste.

The shore of a hidden lake is his lodge room. In the total dark

The shore of a hidden lake is his lodge room. In the total dark that precedes the dawn he loads his skiff by instinct and paddles off. At an appropriate spot he assumes a kneeling position, tosses out the decoys, and mutters a supplication to the gods of the chase.

Off to the east the dawn is wrestling with the night on a mat of low-hanging clouds. The hunter hunkers down in the cattails to wait—and wait. At last out of the west there comes the sussurant sound of winnowing wings. A flock of mallards has joined the ceremony. To the waterfowler this is living. Nothing can match his personal excitement over a batch of feathered beauties coming into range of his buckshot.

Cautiously the ducks look over the set. As they flare they hear a plaintive chuckle from a call. A half-dozen break off and come sideslipping down.

This is the climax of the ritual. No matter how many times he has been initiated, to the water-fowler it is always a breathtaking experience. For him no other occasion is so fraught with primeval drama. For one awful moment there is nothing in time but the hunter, a little stretch of wind-swept pothole, and a huddle of wild waterfowl. For a magic moment he looks right into the eye of nature.

The firing of his gun is strictly anti-climactic, like the benediction after a sermon. If he misses, the waterfowler doesn't care. The ducks have fought a good fight, and he has kept the faith.

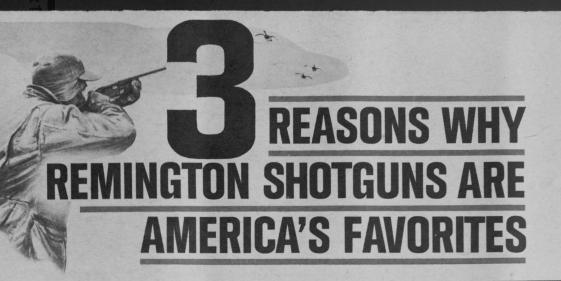

FOUR MAIN "FLYWAYS" mark the migratory routes of North America's waterfowl — the Pacific, the Central, the Mississippi, and the Atlantic. From breeding grounds in Canada the birds flock down the sky trails to Caribbean winter "resorts."

THE CANADA GOOSE is to the waterfowler what the moose is to the big-game hunter — a trophy target. Goose populations are higher now than they have been for many years, thanks to modern management techniques.

"RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF THE BLOCKS!" This is the duck hunter's "home run" — when a mallard whistles by, looks over the decoys, makes a wide, wary swing, and then comes racing back to set his wings out in front of the blind.

When the hunters return with their game bags filled, you'll want to prepare for those conquerors, a wild game feast extraordinary. And, here are four suggestions to make your hunting table

These wild game recipes have been tested and tried by hunters and hunters' chefs. There's no knack to preparing a wild game meal. Cooking wild game can be fun, but eating it is even more enjoyable. Just think, pheasant under glass in your own dining room.

Cut in half 6 medium-sized tomatoes of uniform shape. Sprinkle each with salt and pepper and a few grains of cayenne, top with bread crumbs and dot with bits of butter. Place on broiling rack.

Mash finely with a fork 1 hard cooked egg. Add and mix 3 tables spoons soft butter, % teaspoon prepared mustard, salt, pepper, 3 drops Tabasco sauce, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon sugar and 2 tablespoons wine vinegar. Stir in 1 large egg spoon sugar and 2 tablespoons wine vinegar. Stir in 2 sugar and 3 tablespoons wine vinegar. Stir in 2 large 4 minutes or until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and allow to stand.

Put the tomato halves under the flame of the broiler and broil until the crumbs brown, top each half with a spoonful of the deviled sauce.

WILD RICE AMANDINE EN CASSEROLE

Wash 2 cups wild rice in several changes of cold water and drain. Heat ½ cup olive oil or butter, stir in 2 tablespoons each chopped onion and chives, 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper. Stir the mixture into the rice and cook over a very gentle heat stirring constantly, until the rice begins to turn yellowish. Stir in 4-4½ cups hot chicken broth or game stock, made with the bones and trimmings. Season to taste with salt and freshly ground pepper and lastly add ½ cup blanched, shredded almonds. Turn the mixture into a casserole and bake, covered at 300 for 45 minutes or until rice is tender.

ROAST WILD DUCK PROVENCALE

Soak one dozen pitted ripe olives for one hour in a little olive oil flavored with a sliver of garlic. oil flavored with a sliver of garlic.

Melt 4 tablespoons butter in a skillet, add one onion and 3 stalks of celery, all finely chopped, and saute them until soft. Remove the skillet from the fire, add % cup toasted bread crumbs, the olives, 2 teaspoons cognac and salt and pepper to taste.

Divide the stuffing between two wild ducks. truss the ducks and 2 teaspoons cognac and salt and pepper to taste.

Divide the stuffing between two wild ducks, truss the ducks and butter the breasts generously, sprinkle with salt and pepper. You red the ducks on a rack in a roasting pan, pour over them 30 minutes, wine and 4 cup water. Roast in a 450 oven for about 30 minutes, basting frequently. Lower heat to 300 and cook for one hour, covered.

Skim off the fat from the pan juices, stir in ½ tablespoon cornstarch mixed to a paste with a little water. Stir until the gravy is starch mixed to a paste with a little water, do not boil. Pour the thickened. Add two tablespoons butter, do not boil gravy over ducks.

PHEASANT LA CHASSEUR

2 fresh tomatoes, peel 1/2 cup chicken broth 1/4 cup minced parsley Pinch tarragon

Cut pheasant in serving pieces, rub the pieces with lemon juice, salt and pepper. In a heavy iron skillet put the butter and olive oil, when hot brown the pheasant until golden. Then add mushrooms, onions (including the tops), brandy, wine, tomatoes (chopped), chicken broth and parsley. Cover and cook over a gentle fire for % hour to 1 hour depending on the age of the pheasant—or until tender. Before serving, sprinkle with tarragon.
