If it didn't say Chevrolet on the flanks of the superb automobile you see here, you'd have a hard time proving it's a low-priced car. GO CORVAIR for '63'

Hard as it may be to believe, this year's Chevy II is better, better than last year's and better than anything in its class. It combines all the new easy-care features of the big Chevrolet with its own wonderful attributes of parkable size, four- or six-cylinder fuel economy and interiors that'd do justice to cars with twice its price and half its charm.

CHEVEOUS

Change it? Calm yourself, nobody's going to mess with a winner like this one! We did add self-adjusting brakes and a more fully aluminized muffler; interiors and outside trim are refined a bit, but the rest is pure Corvair with all the over-the-road goodness that implies. Oh yes, we changed the taillights so all those people you pass will know you're driving a '63.

Over 1,500 Attend Kids' Day Program At Wurtsmith AFB

More than 1,500 youngsters at tended the annual Kiwanis International - United States Air Force sponsored Kids' Day event September 15 at Wurtsmith Air marked the air force's 15th anniversary.

James Abney, Oscoda Kiwanis Club, was chairman of the event for the Kiwanis clubs and 2-Lt. James B. Odom, Wurtsmith inormation officer, acted as the air orce project officer.

Youngsters arrived at the base at 10:00 a. m. and were escorted to the static display area where they viewed some of Wurtsmith's air power. They had the opportunity to view and go through one of the KC-135 jet stratotankers from the 379th Bomb Wing, inspected an F-101 "Voodoo" jet from the 415th Fighter Interceptor Squadron and saw a fire equipment display.

The youngsters later witnessed demonstration by Wurtsmith's sentry dog unit of the 379th Combat Defense Squadron.

Highlight of the event was when the visitors were served approximately 2,000 hot dogs and other refreshments in one of the hangars. Six serving lines were set up to take care of the noon,

But even though you may not hear it, high-speed knock can pound away at pistons-even lead to costly damage.

Fortunately, high-speed knock isn't too common. But Shell scientists have known about it for a long time. Ever since they pioneered the development of a substance called Alkylate to help control high-speed knock in aircraft engines. Today, Alkylate is an ingredient in Super Shell gasoline.

Here are the recipes to do justice to the fresh flavor of apples-recipes for now and next month, when a whole new crop of good baking apples will appear!

PINEAPPLE BARS

- 2¾ cups sifted all purpose flour
  1 tablespoon sugar
  1¼ teaspoon salt
  ¾ cup butter
  1 pkg. dry yeast (or 1 cake compressed yeast)
  2 tablespoons warm water for dry yeast, lukewarm for compressed
  4 egg yolks (room temperature)
  1¼ cup scalded milk

Measure the sifted flour, sugar, salt and butter into a medium-sized bowl. Blend butter into dry ingredients with a fork. Scald milk.

Dissolve yeast in water. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes, then stir. Blend in yolks and cooled milk. Add yeast mixture to flour mixture. Blend. Cover bowl and refrigerate 4 to not more than 24 hours. (This is a rich dough, it rises very little.) Prepare filling desired. When ready to finish, grease two 9-inch square pans or one 12x18-inch pan. Remove % of the dough from the refrigera-tor at a time. Roll out into a 10-inch square on lightly floured surface. Pick up the square of dough and press into pan, letting edges extend up the sides, about ½ inch. If the 12x18-inch pan is used, press one square into half the pan, another into the other half. Being a rich dough, it is easier to handle in small amounts.

Spread filling on dough. Roll out squares to cover the filling. Cover pans with foil and let rise in a warm place about one hour or until dough is puffy when pressed gently with the finger. Bake 25 to 35 minutes or until golden brown, in preheated 375° oven. Carefully remove from pan and cool on rack. To serve, cut in thin slices and shake confectioners' sugar over the top.

½ teaspoon dry mustard ¼ teaspoon pepper ½ teaspoon basil 2 eggs, well beaten 1 teaspoon salt ½ teaspoon garlic salt

Soak cabbage leaves in boiling water for about 2 minutes. Drain. Combine remaining ingredients and mix well. Spoon about 4 tablespoons of mixture into center of each leaf. Fold over envelope style. Secure with toothpicks, if necessary. Place in shallow baking dish. Pour sauce over cabbage rolls and bake in moderate oven (325° F.) 45 minutes. Serve from chafing dish. Serves 8.

SAUCE: Combine 2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce, ½ cup chili sauce, and 1 tbsp. horseradish. Heat.

Let's discuss some of the requirements of a program to prevent introduction of diseases into your herd or onto your premises:

1) Know where your replacements come from. Purchase only from sources known to be reliable and having a low disease history. Do not patronize sales, auctions, etc., unless you are willing to assume the risks involved.

2) Examine stock at the seller's farm. If possible use a veterinarian to advise you. This should include blood tests for brucellosis and leptospirosis. Results of the exam should be in your hands before moving animals.

3) Isolate new acquisitions at your farm. The isolation period should be at least 21 days, and preferably 30 days. During this time the animals should be under the observation of a competent veterinarian.

4) Several states now have Swine Health Certification programs. In these programs, breeding herds are given periodic examinations and certified free of certain diseases.

5) Determine whether new stock has been vaccinated for such diseases as hog cholera and swine erysipelas. If hogs have not been vaccinated for hog cholera give them hog cholera serum before transporting to your farm, then if normal at end of 2 weeks isolation, vaccinate them using attenuated virus and serum. If you do not vaccinate for cholera, give all purchased pigs a large dose of hog cholera serum before bringing them to your farm in addition to the isolation period of 30-

6) If atrophic rhinitis and virus pig pneumonia are problems consider repopulation with SPF pigs.

7) You, your help, and visitors all can spread disease on your farm. Do not permit visitors in your farrowing houses, etc. Foot baths, etc., are of little value in prevention of disease in Thy opinion and only give the farmer a false sense of security. Adopt a work program as follows: Feed and care for young animals first, secondly the breeding animals, thirdly the feeder stock, and lastly the new acquisitions in isolation.

8) When animals are moved on the farm, haul them, do not drive them. Try to avoid driving through pastures or pens in which other animals are kept. This avoids spread of disease and internal parasites.

9) Good equipment kept clean will help in he problem. This is especially true in the farrowing house. Farrowing equipment should not be used for other purposes and should be thoroughly cleaned before use (steam cleaning and strong disinfectants recommended). Sows should be washed with soapy water if weather permits, otherwise brush them well using a dry disinfectant non-toxic to them. Pens should be cleaned daily or else slatted floors, etc., should be used. Proper manure disposal regardless of method of housing is a must. Baby pigs must be kept warm and dry.

10) Care for newborn pigs properly. Dip each pig's navel in a disinfectant as soon after birth as possible (7% iodine solution is still a good one!). If necessary, tie off and clip navel cord, but this is not usually necessary unless it is extremely long. Clip "needle teeth" immediately. At about 3-10 days, depending upon product used, use an injection of iron-dextran compound to prevent baby pig anemia. Usually one injection is enough, but if pigs are going to stay on concrete it may be necessary to give another injection later. At about 4 weeks of age all male pigs should be castrated. An identification system such as ear notching will help you to make a record of performance of your herd and will pinpoint animals not of good breeding or those which may be more susceptible to disease, etc., than others within your herd. Merely keeping records is not enough, one must study them and then make proper use of them! Young animals should be vaccinated for hog cholera 10 days to 2 weeks before weaning (if weaning at 5-6 weeks of age). Erysipelas vaccination should be done according to recommendations of the veterinarian and the type of vaccine being used.

IN ANIMAL HEALTH PRODUCTS . IN GOOD FEEDS

After carefully studying the twelve points of Dr. Morrison's "Swine Health Program in a Nutshell", one of Wisconsin's better hog farmers remarked, "I agree with Dr. Morrison 100 percent . . . except in one area."

These were the words of Mr. Don Prill, farm manager of Dr. W. E. Brown's 500-acre farm just west of Waukesha,

The farm represents the kind of place that most people in the area sort of dream of. On it, you'll find about every type of soil imaginable. This is because the terrain has its ups and downs, its hills and valleys. Everything about it, including Prill's commercial hogs, seems to blend into the countryside ... the natural beauty of the kettle moraine country.

Don Prill is an agricultural graduate from the University of Wisconsin, Madison. He farms with skill, enthusiasm and imagination. He does every practical thing within his power to keep his hogs healthy. He knows how many live hogs it takes to pay for every dead one. Perhaps this is why he agrees 100 percent (almost) with Dr. Morrison.

Maybe we ought to explain his one small area of partial disagreement. It has to do with item number six of Morrison's article. Prill believes that Specific Pathogen Free hogs would be fine if it were possible to run an operation that would keep them that way. But, he feels that in perhaps the second or third litter, a lack of natural immunity is liable to catch up with the pigs. He added that, in fairness to Dr. Morrison, it should be pointed out that he (Morrison) didn't recommend them across the board. Only if a specific health problem or two is prevalent on a farm.

One of Prill's friends is just getting started in a SPF hog operation. Don intends to just sit back and watch. He said, "I may have to eat my words, we'll see."

MARKETS 600

The progressive young farmer, who has managed the Brown farm for several years, raises all his own pigs. He has been marketing around 600 hogs a year and selling a few feeder pigs now and then, as well. The hogs are a nice long, lean three way combination Landrace, Poland China and Hamp. Good commercial conformation; the type that does to well when marketed on a grade and yield plan.

Prill looked back at Dr. Morrison's item number six, shook his head as he recalled a costly spring experience, and told of his recent bout with baby pig pneumonia.

"It was probably my own fault, too," he partially admitted.
"We had 31 sows farrow during the month of March," he went on. "Needless to say, we had far too many baby pigs for the size of the barn."

To make a long story short, overcrowding, high humidity, grouping the baby pigs too soon to make room for other farrowing sows plus a few other reasons, led to a 20 percent pig loss due to pneumonia.

CALLS THE DOCTOR

Prill told of another health problem he had on the place that seems to have been corrected now. Baby pig scours. He and farm owner, Dr. Brown, M.D., got their heads together and apparently came up with something that worked. Don had long believed that the organism that actually caused scours did its dirty work only after the baby pigs had been weakened by an irregular or spasmodic flow of the sow's milk. Working on this theory, Dr. Brown prescribed 10 to 20 cc's of calcium glutinate per sow to stimulate the flow of milk by merely relaxing the muscles.

Referring to Morrison's item number ten, Prill remarked, "These things are most important, too. Farrowing sows should be watched carefully and the baby pigs cared for quickly."

He said they always clip the needle teeth, disinfect the navel in an iodine solution, tie and clip off navel cords when necessary and give each an iron shot. They also try to cas-

trate at 10 days of age to minimize shock. LITTERS GET TOO BIG

What about the size of the litters? Don says they have had many litters of from 15 to 20 pigs. He doesn't like big litters like this at all. The pigs are uneven. Some weigh a pound; some five pounds. The small ones just can't compete like they should for their dinner and you are always faced with the decision of letting them die or try to wet-nurse them. In litters this large you get far too many small pigs to suit Don Prill. He'd rather have 10 to 12 pig litters of uniform size.

Morrison's point number twelve was then referred to. Our hog raising specialist says we can't emphasize too strongly the necessity of controlling parasites. He said mange and lice are so prevalent on so many farms that quite often they are never treated for. He says he knows for a fact that either or both can slow down gains considerably.

As a rule it takes the profit from several hogs to pay for one dead one. This is one reason why farm manager Don Prill observes such basic rules of herd health as stated by Dr. Morrison on the opposite page.

Some 600 hogs per year are housed and marketed through these buildings under the management of Don Prill, a leading Wisconsin hog producer. The disease threat is multiplied more and more as hog numbers increase.

On the theory that it might reduce scours in pigs, Dr. Brown and farm manager Don Prill tried an injection of 20 cc's of calcium glutinate per sow. The idea was to relax the sow's muscles and help her milk flow more evenly. It worked.

There is something new in corn... something both new and great... and it's DeKalb's "XL" Family. In 1959, DeKalb introduced a new single-cross—DeKalb 805. Overnight, 805 became one of America's "most wanted" seed corns. Its all-around performance was outstanding and demand for seed far exceeded supply. This year, the seed supply of 805 has been greatly increased, but in spite of that, the supply could still run short. Now, also for 1963 planting, DeKalb is announcing an entirely new family of crosses—the "XL's." This remarkable new family, consisting of Single Cross and 3-Way Type Varieties, is a triumphal achievement in DeKalb Research. These varieties have proved themselves consistent high yielders—excellent "standers" and show remarkable uniformity. But their supply is limited...so see your DeKalb dealer quickly. Make certain you try one or more next season.
