Last Chance to See Caucuses in Action Here

Residents of Tawas City have an opportunity to watch history in the making and, at the same time, participate in selection of candidates for city offices for the coming year.

Party caucuses are to be held at the city hall starting this weekend. Democrats are to meet Saturday and Republicans on Monday, both sessions starting at 8:00 p. m. Ward caucuses are to be followed by a city convention for each party, at which nominees for the offices of mayor, city clerk and treasurer are to be named.

Tawas City has used this method of selecting candidates for city offices since its beginning as a village. The 1964 caucuses will be the last, however, as starting next year the city will utilize the nominating petition-primary system in naming candidates.

While the caucus system has drawn criticism in recent times, it was once the area for hot battles in city politics. Such sessions are steeped in tradition which are to be witnessed for the last time

The nominating petition-pri mary system has been advocated here in recent years. During a a search of statutes, City Attorney Alf Watson has been unable to find anything which pertains to cities holding caucuses, although townships may nominate candi dates in this manner.

from the state highway department, but at least we have had the satisfaction of telling our side of the story. Speaking Monday was A. J. Sevener, vice president of Huron Wood Preserving Division of Mackinac Truck Lines, who last week urged an easing of strict state highway department specifications on hardwood for guard posts.

Sevener, who directs operations of the wood preserving plant located at the Detroit and Mackinac Railway yards in Tawas City, said that a request by Michigan State University for $11,500 to study possibility of a new wood processing plant to spur Michigan economy was not needed.

He pointed out that Huron Wood Preserving's plant here had been host to a number of different study groups in past years, including agricultural agents and state foresters, and anyone interested in such research was always welcome at the local plant.

The wood processing plant was created here in 1955 at an estimated investment of $50,000. Formation came after discussions with representatives of the Michigan Department of Economic Development. Purpose was to find a market for second growth hardwood, which abounds in the area and usually goes to waste.

The railroad company is one of Huron Wood Preserving's largest customers, using large quantities of preserved rail ties. In addition, the firm also furnished guard rail posts to the Michigan State Highway Department, plus posts for farm use.

The guard post business has steadily gone downhill. For instance, in 1960, the company sold 4,174 posts to the state; in 1962, a

"There's no guesswork with this system," explained Robert A. Doles, Rural Route 7, Greensburg, (Decatur County) Indiana about his system for weighing all feed that his cattle eat. "My sons and I have worked out a method of weighing every bite of feed for the county that writhout their every work or the system." fed to our cattle — without taking any extra work or time at feeding. With today's competitive markets, we figure we better know what we're feeding so we can keep check on production costs.

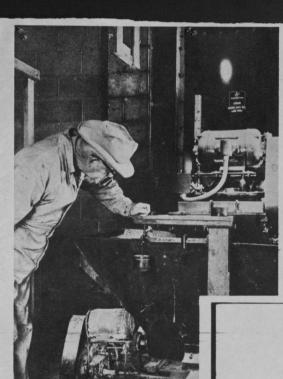

Doles and Sons have one of the slickest cattle feeding systems in the country. It's a setup designed to feed 350 head at a time. Three feed bunks - under one roof and equipped with augers - run out from a central feed room. Feed storage is provided by two 20 x 50 Harvestores.

"We used to have an unhandy feeding system where we fed in four different barns," said Doles. "Now we do the whole job from one feed room at a central point.

"It's comfortable to feed here in all kinds of weather. By looking through the windows, we can watch the cattle from inside comfort while they're

The Doles feed cattle the year around. With their three bunks they can feed three different rations to various size groups of cattle. Feeders get a mixture of haylage and high-moisture shelled corn, in varying amounts.

Their measuring system is simple and makes use Their measuring system is simple and makes use of parts that are easy to obtain. Basically, here's how it works: The unit with shelled corn empties into a metal hopper mounted on an old platform scales. This hopper holds 600 lbs. of shelled corn. In the bottom of this hopper is an auger powered by an electric motor through a variable-speed drive, so it can be set to empty the shelled corn at varying rates.

"When we turn on the unloading auger of the haylage hopper, the same switch also starts an electric clock," he explains. "We watch this to know how much haylage has been fed."

To feed, they first start the corn machinery — that has been adjusted to the rate desired. Then they turn on the hay-lage hopper that fills the feeder at the rate of 175 lbs. per minute. All this machinery is controlled from the panel of expitches nictured. switches pictured.

Doles likes haylage and high-moisture corn for cattle. "Haylage, properly prepared, is just as good as any cattle feed you can get," he declares.

Doles likes hay lage extra dry and thinks 30% to 35% is just right.

"This system lets us feed directly from storage — without touching the haylage or corn by hand," he says. "After pouring the seed corn into the planter, machinery takes care of everything else right on up through the time when it is fed to the cattle — without any hand labor at all."

Convict - Author reaches for a Star

The author of this article is an inmate in a Michigan prison. The story he has written on this page is a masterpiece! May we suggest that before you read his "Detour to the Stars," you read the author's note below which was written by Mr. Simone, himself.

Author's Note

Even as I write, wall lights slant a grim pattern across my paper, placing some of the words behind bars . . . just as life treats people, however deserv-

I've come a long way since I was nine, at which age I worked the streets of Detroit for my dad. He was the odd-jobbingest man imaginable. He always got paid in personal checks. My job was to cash these checks for him. They bounced all over town.

Years later, a grade school diploma under my belt and the Depression on everybody's back, I courted the notion that I could live high without working.

Up went a private little underworld of my own. Counting time off for three wives, four youngsters and six penitentiaries, I've spent 43 years "working" for myself.

The underworld has many stars. I reached for a few, found each was phony. I thought I spotted a real one in a $22,000 check fraud. They nabbed me in Baltimore (4-6-62). The sentence: 12-14

Fortunately, prisons offer self-betterment programs. I decided to detour toward a legitimate star; to try free lance writing.

Further, I have a steady prison job. It pays $2.10 for a seven-day week, and consists of aiding the guard captain in counting some 4,700 inmates.

DETOUR TO THE STARS

Did You Ever See a Star Fall?

by Pete Simone

Two years ago a South Dakota farm wife saw a star fall. And everything she'd dreamed of, and worked hard for, fell with it. A lingering illness killed her husband. He left her a run-down 80 acres, two cows, two under-teen boys. There was no insurance. The future seemed incurably blighted. She had taught piano for young-sters prior to her marriage, but had no other special talents which might be turned to a "get by" living. She loved her farm, how-ever, and just couldn't bring herself to selling out and moving into some town. In the first place, her boys one day would be old enough to take over where then dad was forced to leave off, and perhaps resurrect the farm they all loved. Meantime, piano lessons. But how? That was the problem . . .

Would it be humanly possible, in such a 'way out, sparsely-settled area, to get enough paying pupils to come to her home for lessons? No, she wisely decided. So she'd just have to sit herself down and think up another way. And she did.

Letting all bills go hang for a while, she sold one of the cows, then the family "rattle-trap of a car" in order to amass sufficient cash to purchase a "yearling" panel truck. Then, relying on ingenuity in lieu of muscle, she and the boys converted the panel into an almost perfect piano studio on wheels.

The instrument itself sits on foamrubber-padded feet, and is securely strapped into position for farm-to-farm travel. "The children couldn't come to the piano," she said, smiling prettily, "so I took the piano to the children." And she's still doing it — quite profitably, thank you.

Detouring, but never taking her eyes off her farm home, she'd reached for and grabbed off a "get by" star, gambled almost everything on it, and won — an accomplishment which no doubt makes her the most musical, if not courageous, female trucker in our nation.

There's Always Another Star to Reach for.

Have you ever seen a star fall?

Four years ago, a Wisconsin youth had been well on his way. Hard work, coupled with common sense, had paid off in a hurry. At 24, his military obligation already under his belt, he'd been moneyed enough to make a substantial down payment on an idle, run-down dairy farm. And off he'd gone, garnishing muscles and ambition with ingenuity, farming toward the stars in the way he'd dreamed about "ever since I was bree high to a whipperspaper." He'd knee-high to a whippersnapper." He'd known busy, contented days and nights full of promises of profits to come. Within three years, he'd hired a hand, and bought the second new tractor. The world on a blue ribbon seemed to be his. Then the ribbon was unraveled by a cerebrovisceral accident (the stark naked word for it is stroke).

It was neither the 19 weeks of being laid up nor the physical discomfort itself that finally got him down and out, however. What did it was watching his dreams shatter and fall into the great dismal swamp of bankruptcy. Everything was lost. He had none of life's goodies left — and little will. And now, as he ventured out into the clear Madison night to walk some strength back into the stricken half of his body, he'd begun to be seriously concerned about next week's room rent.

He stopped at a small restaurant, ordered black coffee and a hamburger, then changed his mind. "Skip the burger," he said. "Just coffee." The gnawing he felt inside wasn't hunger. It was worse; hopelessness.

But the waitress offered a dazzling smile with his coffee. Then, as he sat there staring at the cup, right out of the blue, she asked, "Did you ever see a star fall?"

He looked up at once. "Yeah," he replied, staring briefly at the girl, noting her pretty face; that her eyes were alive with blue-white facets. "It's supposed to mean good luck, isn't it? Or that your wishiest wish'll come true, or something like that?"

Then he got up, twirled a coin on the counter, and walked out — just like that.

He walked and he walked. It was like walking a tight rope over Tartarus, each step threatening to be the last before he lost his mental balance and plunged into the seething pit of self-pity. He walked right up on the place—a laundromat, of all

Resting for a moment, he stared at the two women inside. They sat in comfortable-looking lounge chairs, sipping Coca Colas, and reading while the automatic washers did the work. Somehow this made him recall a vacation he'd had with his parents when he'd been nine years old — just before they'd both been killed in a car-train

They'd gone to a northern wilderness for two weeks of fishing and fun. They'd camped out, and roughed it good. And what a wonderful time it had been! He even recalled seeing his mother wash out some necessaries in a campsite stream. If only she had had an automatic washer away

And suddenly a whopper of an idea came whirring down the highway of his mind. "Of course," he told himself, "I'll have to borrow money for a tractor and semi-trailer, but the outfit could be a used one. And I've still got a friend or two left back home in

"Hey, blue eyes," he felt like shouting, "look who's reaching for another star!"

If you happen to be numbered among th hardies who like to rough it in our state or national parks or any other big wilderness vacationland, you just might discover a huge truck with a semi-trailer parked out in the woods where water is handy. And you just might require the convenience it offers, because the rig is completely equipped with its own electric plant and water-heating system. Inside the long semi are eight automatic washers, four dryers — and even outlets for its steam-electric irons. Also, you're apt to see a young lady with living facets in her blue eyes. Not only does she "wait tables" almost exclusively for him now but, because he is still not well enough to drive any great distance yet, she is his pilot-in-chief. If you do see this happy pair, let the sight remind you of a young man who, at one of life's lowest ebbs, dared to travel toward another star . . . on which he found the golden contentment of a good outdoor Rising in popularity with young and old alike is a great weekend institution — the breakfast that's really lunch, or the lunch that's really breakfast. It's a hearty spread that seems to say, "This should hold you over until dinnertime.'

For the hostess brunch has the advantage of informality combined with an air of cozy hospitality. It's best served buffet style — indoors, or out, depending upon the weather. One or two main dishes, interesting breads, and plenty of coffee are the backbone of most brunches. Eggs are always good — and especially when given a "New Look" in Cheese and Egg Puffs, Western Style Omelet, or Fruited Cheese Ham Souffle. Or try a grilled or creamed dish served from a casserole or on toast points, waffles, or pancakes. Unless griddle cakes or waffles are the main course of your brunch, be sure to have lots of fresh hot rolls ready for your hungry guests. Dessert certainly isn't necessary for this type of meal, but a first

Chilled fruit, an icy sauce, coconut and marshmallows make this Ambrosia a perfect appetizer for your brunch.

Ash Wednesday, February 12, marks the beginning of another Lenten Season. And with this seafood takes on added importance in our menu planning. Meals can be interesting and ever so tasty when fish gets a bit of special treatment, be it sauce, stuffing or unusual seasoning.

Be "Fish Wise" when you go shopping. Don't let the sight or names of many different fish throw you. Buy your fish with kitchen work in mind. This is easy because fish can be purchased as steaks, dressed and fillets.

A real boon to the homemaker today is the vast variety of frozen seafood available in the supermarkets. Frozen fish may be purchased in household-size packages which can be conveniently stored in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator until time for use. Once frozen fish is thawed, it should not be refrozen.

Easy and delicious, these Fish Fillet Roli-Polies are something you'll want to serve often during the Lenten season.

There's no better time of the year for entertaining than Spring. This year include a tea on your list of social events. It can be one of the most pleasant of entertainments - also one of the easiest and most comfortable meals to serve, if properly planned. Teas are a charming way to welcome a new neighbor, honor the graduating senior girls, acquaint friends with a favorite house guest.

By all means serve tea - and coffee, punch or chocolate, if you like. And with the tea serve dainty refreshments. Something savory, something crisp, something sweet is the time honored rule for a tea menu. There's no limit to what you serve, except that imposed by your own time and taste. In general, the larger and more formal the tea, the more elaborate and the greater the variety of foods.

When it's a small group, of a dozen guests or less, the tea service or tray can be put on a cart or table beside the hostess. You then pass a cup of tea to each guest and offer food throughout the party. When it's a larger party, say 25 or so, this individual service isn't practical and a buffet works best. Most people use the dining room table with everything set out for easy "serve yourself" fare.

Cut chiffon cake into tancy shapes and pretty ways to make these Pineapple Petits Fours.

Pretty and tasty Chocolate Party Petites make any party a special event.

A cake, more than any other creation of the kitchen, truly expresses the spirit of festivity. And the magic of a cake extends beyond the festive occasion, into the cozy family world of everyday. The cake that Mom whips up for a family dinner gives a party air to the most modest meal.

England was beginning to develop the fine art of cake baking back in the 16th Century. By Colonial times there was no higher evidence of good housekeeping than the baking of a perfect cake. In olden days most cakes resembled a yeast bread enriched with eggs, sugar and fruit. These cakes were huge in size. Flour was measured by the peck, other ingredients by the pound and eggs by the dozen. Since sugar came in large hunks, it took hours to blend it with the butter.

Today with the specialized ingredients such as cake flour and baking powder and established techniques and rules to follow, cake baking can be quick and easy. Fine cakes are still the mark of a good cook, but recipes are no longer written in complicated manuscript form or trusted to memory. Instead, we have cake recipes - plain and fancy carefully developed in test kitchens across the country. The recipes here will guide you on the way to successful cake baking every time. Do women drive better under water? They seem to do more driving under water than men, according to the Dickinson (N.D.) Press. The Press carried a brief item about two Montana women who drove their cars into the Blackfoot river at Missoula.

What this may suggest is an answer to the traffic problem of men and women driving on the same roads, and there can be little doubt that such a problem exists. I, for one, am perfectly willing to let women drivers have the river bottoms all to themselves—if they will promise to stay off the roads.

While we're on the road, the Gladwin County Record, Gladwin, Mich., reports that it is safer on the nation's highways than it is at home. More people are injured at home than are hurt in traffic accidents, the story goes.

A look at weekend traffic indicates that most of the people are hurt at home as they rush to get into the car on Friday.

Doesn't anybody stay home anymore? We tried it one weekend, but people kept driving by and staring at us until we couldn't stand it. We leaped into the car and joined them.

A truck driver in Ohio was fined $25 for not resting, The Evening Journal, Lisbon, Ohio, reports. The charge was that he didn't rest, as state law requires, after driving for ten

The people of Ohio have taken a giant step toward establishing some of the finest law of the land. I would like to suggest that they require a father who drives with five children of assorted sizes, to stop and submerge his head in cold water once each thirty minutes.

It isn't necessary to force a driver with kids to rest. There are other things that automatically keep him alert, not the least of which is a half-eaten ice cream cone that slides down the back of his neck, or a bottle of carbonated strawberry drink that someone shakes and then loses control of.

Ohio should take their rest law and apply it to life in general, particularly home life. We all ought to have a twenty-minute break every half hour while mowing the lawn or shoveling the driveway free of snow.

Did you ever have eraserophagia? Don't be too sure. Eraserophagia is the habit of nibbling—and swallowing—the erasers from pencils, the Weekly Valley Herald, Chaska, Minn., relates.

It is most common among school children, and it is not serious, thank goodness, because some of us still have it.

Our youngest has a severe case of something similar to eraserophagia, except that he often chews on the business end of a ballpoint pen. This, of course, gives him a blue mouth. We're trying to interest him in erasers.

Someday they'll sneak vitamins into pencil erasers, and this will end eraserophagia for all time. No school boy is going to sit in a class-room and chew a vitamin.

Tuna Leuten Triumphs

by Shari Gruits

When we realize that "creative cookery" is possible with tuna, many of us will look forward to this Lenten season. It might be that canned tuna means only the time honored casserole to you. However, that's certainly not the case.

Tuna can come to the company table as Tuna Sweet 'N Sour or it can delight the gathering of girls when served as Tuna Rarebit. Another item about tuna to please the girls is its calorie

The United States Department of Agriculture quickly shows canned, drained, solid tuna to be lower in fat, lower in calories and higher in protein than any meat listed! This refers to the "drained" tuna. The best selling packs have a little vegetable oil, about an ounce, added to keep the tuna moist and at high quality during the pasteurizing process.

Once opened this oil has served its purpose. Today many recipes call specifically for drained tuna, since even the small amount of oil would unbalance the amount of butter in a cream sauce. And most women "pour" off anyway.

Tuna readily ranks first in United States canned fish, and probably can be accorded that place on an international basis. For as the main dish of the meal, tuna can be used instead of meat or another high protein food.

TUNA SWEET 'N SOUR

This delicious new idea makes a little gourmet meal in itself. It tastes as good as it looks. Add the tuna last in the recipe, and handle it carefully so the meaty chunks will maintain their identity in this attractive and colorful dish. Bright red pimiento, sunny pineapple tidbits and chopped green pepper and celery make a dish worthy of your prettiest serving bowl or platter, and provide a variety of important food elements. Try Tuna Sweet 'N Sour for a Sunday supper.

- 11/2 cups pineapple tidbits and
- juice
  ½ cup coarsely chopped green
- pepper
  1/2 cup sliced celery
  1/2 cup coarsely chopped
  pimiento

  12 cup sugar
  1 tablespoon soy sauce
  Tabasco
  3 tablespoons cornstarch

  1 giant size 12½ oz. can tuna

Mix pineapple tidbits and juice, green pepper, celery, pimiento, vinegar, water, sugar, soy sauce and few drops tabasco in saucepan. Bring to boil. Combine cornstarch with water to form paste. Add to vegetable mixture. Boil I minute. Add tuna. Heat to serving temperature. Serve over Chinese noodles. Serves 6.

TUNA PILAF

Tuna blossoms into a fine family meal when it's combined with rice, bits of flavorful vegetables and aromatic herbs. The pilaf can be prepared in short order, and, because tuna is so rich in protein, supplies first-class nourishment.

- 2 cans (6½ ounces each) tuna 1 cup diced celery ½ cup chopped onion 1 large green pepper, diced 3 cups cooked rice ½ cup diced pimiento 1 can (3 or 4 ounces) sliced mushrooms

Drain oil from tuna into skillet; heat. Add celery, onion and green pepper; cook until vegetables are crisp tender (about 3 minutes). Add tuna, rice, pimiento, mushrooms with liquid and seasonings. Heat to serving temperature. Yield:

CHICKEN OF THE SEA TUNALULUS

TUNA RAREBIT

The popular Welsh Rarebit, featured as a luncheon specialty in the finest restaurants, comes home to dinner now—with the addition of tender chunks of protein-rich tuna to make it a well-rounded mainstay. Hearty, cheesy, quick and easy—it is sure to be a classic with your family! Use tuna generously in this recipe, since it is to be the protein mainstay of Well, it's about time! This hearty tuna chowder is truly a gourmet experience. Because we want the tuna chunks to maintain their firmness and character in the chowder, use tuna that's all prime fillet (the one with the mermaid on the label).

- 1½ teaspoons salt
  1½ tablespoons flour
