AN INTERESTING HOBBY of Mrs. Frank Wilkuski, East Tawas, could furnish an idea to others for colorful decorations or gifts at the Easter season. She removes the yolk from an egg by punching a hole at each end and then blowing on one end. The yolks are saved. She then paints the hollow shell with enamel. Add a few bits of jewelry with a spot of glue and the lowly egg shell is turned into an attractive ornament, as evidenced by the example which she holds. "It is rather painstaking work and I have broken more than one shell when a jet plane has cracked a sonic boom overhead," she states. (See page 10.)-Tawas Herald Photo.

Happily, for those who are interested in always looking their best, the current fashion trend is to use the most striking and unexpected combinations of vivid colors or, to create feminine, subtle blends of one basic shade—the choice is yours.

WHY NOT SUIT YOURSELF

... in a versatile Chanel design? Simplicity pattern 5648 gives you so many possibilities to choose from, you'll feel as if you're actually designing your own suit! The jacket can have a cardigan neckline and be brass-buttoned; it can have a tailored notched collar and be casually unbuttoned; you might be very classic and do a convertable collar and bone buttons; or, you can be true-to-Chanel and have double rows of pockets-all of these choices are yours in ONE simple-to-sew pattern! As you can see, it's one of the many patterns that you'll be able to use over and over again.

I would like to bring what might possibly be a new idea to you. Knitting worsted is made in such a kaleidoscope of colors, you can KNIT a collection of tops to blend perfectly or contrast sensationally with any fabric you select for your suit. To show you how lovely an outfit of this kind can be, we had two sweaters designed especially for this suit pattern: the classically simple short sleeved sweater shown here and a sleeveless, boat-necked version for casual dates and to wear over long sleeved blouses.

BLOOM BRILLIANTLY OR GLOW GENTLY

For those of you who would stand out in any group-

A brilliant plum-purple plaid suit would be smashing if you were to knit a top of amethyst and a deep, rich gold tweed could give you some of your most shining hours when worn with a cardinal

As for you who are most comfortable as understated beauties-

A soft, solid coral woolen suit worn with a sweater of pink and white flecked yarn or a grey and white checked woolen with a heather blend of oxford worsted might be some of the most lady-

And for anyone who wants to look more elegant than ever before-

A suit of smooth black woolen with a coffee brown top would be very hard to beat.

BEAUTIFULLY TAILORED KNITS

The pullover is well-designed and trimly tailored. Its self-facing at the neckline and ribbing at the waist and sleeve edges are all fine professional touches yet it is so easy to do in the simple stockinette

Instructions for knitting both these sweaters to compliment your finished suit are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Sewing Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet PK 3810.

CONSIDERING the application of two essential elements in designing accessories-unity and variety-are Mrs. Russell Jameson, left, and Mrs. Charles Bjork, members of Wilber Cooperative Homemakers Extension Group. The group's leaders, Mrs. John Henry and Mrs. Hershal Hyzer, had been trained by Miss Bernetta Kahabka, Michigan State University clothing specialist. This group, and others in the county, have learned that the characteristics of accessories-color, texture and shape-make them important to every outfit that is worn. Guidelines for the effective use of accessories are given in an extension bulletin entitled, "Dressing by Design-Your Accessories," which is available to anyone interested from the Cooperative Extension Service office, Federal Building, East Tawas.-Cooperative Extension Photo.

THIS MODERN, CONTEMPO-RARY VANITY SET would be so appreciated by any gift-getting homemaker. It's so lovely, you'll want to do one for your own home for holiday entertaining! Elegantly simple organdy is narrowly hemmed and trimmed with rows of crocheted Narcissus petals . . . ideal with any decor. Free instructions are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet EI 290.

FEMININE ELEGANCE WILL BE YOURS in this crocheted evening blouse! There's a chic "oldworld" feeling about it which makes it look like an expensive import . . . and you can do it yourself. The delicate motif insets and collar edging are worked separately for that boutique touch. Free instructions are available by sending a stamped, selfaddressed envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper. Ask for Leaflet No. PC 1486.

Growing Highway Hazard

Another slam-bang season has arrived for Michigan motorists and deer. Unless the trend of the last few years is reversed, scenes like this will be repeated 15-18 times every day throughout the state during the April-June period. At this rate, the springtime repair bill for cars and trucks hitting deer will total $3,000-$3,600 daily. Since deer along highways are unpredictable at best, it's all up to drivers to steer clear of accidents with these animals. The best advice the Conservation Department can give them is to slow down at night and whenever they see whitetails, or pass through posted deer areas. Another safe-driving tip is to watch out for deer you don't see. For every animal you spot and avoid hitting, there usually are more nearby, ready at any moment to dash in front of you.

Old Problem Poses New Threat

OUR GROWING FORESTS

With Michigan's growing forests threatened by the new danger of fast-moving, hard-to-control "crown" fires like this one, the Conservation Department cannot stand "pat" with equipment and techniques which have worked so effectively in the past. In many cases, yesterday's best fire-fighting tools, such as fire-lane plows, have been outmoded by today's changing forests. This is reflected in the chart above which shows what has happened to fire damage in Michigan during just the past few years. True, recent acreage losses are small compared with those raging holocausts in the early part of the 1900's. What the Department is worried about is the possibility of some very large, individual fires in years to come. That's why it is working hard these days on new equipment and techniques in an effort to keep history from repeating itself.

In the Swim on the Roman Riviera

ROME - Although cafe-sitters fondly refer to the Via Veneto, winding through the heart of Rome, as "the beach," the real beach of sun, sand and sea is never far off. What is more, Rome of late has developed a fashionable riviera stretching north and south along the coast from Ostia, 16 miles from the capital.

Watching the bikinis go by is a delightful respite after climbing around the Colosseum or plodding through the corridors of the Vatican Museum. The proximity of the beaches, which links Rome with New York in eight hours by Jet Clipper means that more and more tourists are packing swim suits and sports clothes for a summer stay in the Eternal City.

One of the most elegant seaside colonies on the coast is Fregene, 20 miles from Rome. This resort, less glamorous than Capri or Portofino, nonetheless draws its share of Italian movie stars and wealthy Roman residents, many of whom rent villas for the May to October season. Fregene in recent years has attracted many Americans who take cottages or apartments and commute back and forth to Rome. There are all sorts of restaurants and fine hotels set in the pine woods behind the beach.

THE SWEET SUMMER LIFE IN ROME

Rome nowadays is fashionable as a summer resort. Several hotels in the city and its suburbs boast rooftop swimming pools, and the Appian Way, where the Legions of Rome once marched, is an ideal spot for a picnic on a sunny day. What is more, the beaches such as the Lido Ostia are just 40 minutes by subway from downtown Rome.

The French Riviera, despite its accent on glamor and glitter, has its share of sleepy little fishing ports and hillside villages. The weather is balmy and the air fragrant with mimosa even in February.

Europe there!!

PARIS GENDARMES "PARLEZ" ENGLISH

Paris is still Paris but American frills have been added. Most Parisians speak some English, supermarkets are burgeoning, and everyone is doing the twist or the surf. The quick lunch "a l'americaine" is in vogue and businessmen sitting on bar stools eat hamburgers, sip cokes and spoon chocolate fudge sundaes. Americans in Paris prefer French customs—the leisurely lunch, the glass of wine, the sidewalk cafe.

No Homesick Americans In Paris.

PARIS - While the rest of the world struggles to emulate Paris fashions and the French cuisine, France finds inspiration in the American style. Nowadays, when a Frenchman speaks of life "a l'americaine," he is referring to his own high standard of living with car, dish washer, deep freeze and an assortment of other status symbols.

Taking a tip from the U.S.A., France has acquired some 300 supermarkets and hundreds of snack bars since the war. A bowling alley does a booming business in the Bois de Boulogne, and American movies draw the big crowds on the Champs-Elysees.

The fabled night life of Paris offers up its share of jazz, and scotch, while Parisian teen-agers in tight blue jeans surf and twist with all the frenzy of their American counterparts. What is more, the French language itself has been invaded by scores of English words and phrases, such as "le business," "le weekend" and "le milkshake," to list but a few.

The snack bar, dispensing hamburgers and hot dogs, made its Paris debut in the Thirties. The clientele at the time was mostly American with a few curious Parisians. Today, "le snack" and "le self-service" (as the cafeteria is known) are firmly established and the patronage is Parisian with a few homesick Americans. French businessmen seem to prefer the quick lunch - sitting on bar stools, sipping a coke, eating a sandwich, spooning a banana split.

As a final touch to the American charms of Paris, there is the "Drug Store" on the Champs-Elysees near the Etoile. Styled after the American drugstore, this emporium sells tobacco, souvenirs, perfumes, books, records, theater tickets and popcorn. The "Drug Store" is the place to go for American-type quick lunch or an after-theater snack.

Have a fling in Paris!

Take the Mokuahi to the Makahiki" may sound like a song from Tin Pan Alley, but it's a fitting theme for Farm and Home Cruise Tour members bound for Hawaii this fall.

It's the Hawaiian way of saying, "take the ship to the harvest festival." And the ship is the SS LURLINE with its Aloha-island atmosphere all the way. This year's Makahiki Festival will be held in early November. The LURLINE will wrap up the highlights of the celebrations — as well as high points in Honolulu and the Neighbor Isles — by saling from Los Angeles October 29 celling at Oahn, who revirging a round to Kenzi Monia and Hawaii.

On this sailing, the Makahiki mood, naturally, will permeate the ship and the ports of call. Hawaiian residents are reviving the ancient "welcome to winter" celebrations by recreating the days of old Hawaii, giving thanks to the god Lono for the harvests of the land and sea, and staging different events replete with the atmosphere of yesteryears. Top activities — like Lahaina's festive Whaling Spree — will be timed to coincide with the LURLINE'S arrival at each port.

HEN a lot of people put their heads together and use their collective knowledge for a common goal, good things usually happen. If you were one of the many thousands of farmers who attended the Corn-Soybean Clinics in the past few months, you know what we're talking about.

Modern agriculture was the topic. The experts came from commercial and non-commercial walks of life to bring the very latest methods of production to corn and soybean farmers in the Midwest. The speakers represented the seed industry, the farm equipment industry, the fertilizer industry, the chemical industry as it applies to weed and insect control. The "experts" spoke with a great deal of authority, too, as they actually represented the companies that must continually keep ahead of the demands of farmers who are constantly looking for better, more efficient ways to manage their farming operation.

This special Farm and Home Section Corn-Soybean Clinic Report will attempt to hit most of the important highlights of the clinics. It will not come close to substituting for the actual sessions, but will at least point out the latest trends in corn and soybean production.

The pictures on this page help illustrate some of the topics covered in the Clinic sessions which were climaxed with a panel of experts in all fields answering questions from the floor.

Farmer clinics can provide those who desire to improve their managerial know-how with much of the information they need to do so. Illustrated talks covered nearly every conceivable subject from plowing through harvesting.

AMCHEM PRODUCTS, INC., Ambler, Pennsylvania

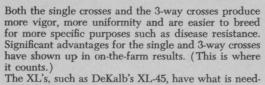

What can you expect now, and the years ahead, in corn production? Thousands of farmers who attended one of the more than 50 midwest Corn-Soybean Clinics during the past couple of months heard some of the answers.

Spokesmen for DeKalb Agricultural Association, Inc., speaking at the meetings, offered some food for thought along this line. They said that in the 70's we may be planting corn up to 30,000 plants per acre—in fact, some farmers are already looking at this possibility. To go along with this, we will up our fertilizer rates, use more chemical weed controls, probably plant in narrower rows and have hybrids that are re-sistant to disease and insects. In fact, they felt en-couraged by the progress scientists have made in breeding resistance to the much talked about stunt

"As far as DeKalb is concerned," the seed specialists commented, "the XL varieties are showing tremendous gains, as are 4-way crosses carrying this new improved breeding. There is a strong trend toward single crosses and 3-way crosses.'

CORN PRODUCTION ...a look ahead

ed for high population corn. They have a strong stalk, they are short, they have an ear on every stalk, have strong shanks, are resistant to a wide range of diseases and insects.

Narrow Rows Best

There were two reasons given for going to narrow

- 1. Narrow rows yield more at the same plant
- population.

  2. Narrow rows tend to shade out the weeds, conserve moisture.

Narrow rows, it was pointed out, can show signifi-cant advantages as was demonstrated in a Dayton, Iowa test. Corn planted in 20" rows out-yielded corn in 40" rows at the same population by 19 bushels per acre. This is one year's result and is far from conclusive, but the potential is clearly evident. The hybrid used was especially suited to high plant population, DeKalb XL-45.

10-Point Program For Profit

"If farmers will follow these 10 steps," the seed specialists concluded, "it may increase yields an average of 10 to 30 bushels per acre." Briefly the 10 points are:

- (1) Handle water supply efficiently this means drainage if necessary, keeping a good over winter cover and improving tilth by plowing down crop residues.
- (2) Test soil for N, P, K, as well as lime and trace
- (3) Use minimum tillage to reduce labor, soil compaction and erosion.
- (4) Fertilize for yield goal. Boosting corn to higher yield levels may require about 2 pounds of extra nitrogen (actual) per bushel increase, 2 pounds of P<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub> and 1½ pounds of P<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub> and 1½ pounds of K2O.
- (5) Plant early Last week in April or first week in May is usually best in the corn belt. Early plantings, year after year, produce higher yields, reduce lodging and advance the harvesting date.
- (6) Plant Higher Populations Stands of 20,000 and up at harvest time usually give top yields. Shoot for a stand that produces ears about one-half pound to six-tenths pound in
- (7) Plant in narrow rows makes better use of fertilizer, helps control weeds (especially if you use a chemical weed control) and increases yield in most cases.
- (8) Plant a modern hybrid check for short stalks, strong shanks, yielding ability, ability to take high populations, resistance to disease and insects and maturity adapted to your
- (9) Control weeds and insects chemically follow manufacturer's directions on the label.
- (10) Harvest early and carefully—adjust equipment and don't get in too big of a hurry.

Planting, fertilizing and application of a pre-emergence herbicide is quite often done in one operation. Getting the most done by one man in the shortest possible time is important in today's farming. It's part of the minimum tillage picture.

Modern p productio

FARMING, like all other business, has become a matter of making the right decision at the right time . . . a science of matching machinery and manpower to achieve maximum efficiency.

What are some of the major "power and production" decisions today's good farmer must make? The subject has been well explored by specialists from the Allis-Chalmers Company and, according to the experts, the following things are important.

They start their presentation by suggesting that the word "farmer" no longer properly describes the role of today's men of agriculture. They are managers. Their big job is to select the best possible tools to work with in order to minimize production costs and maximize profits. This is no small task.

Sticking closely to corn and soybean operations, the first major consideration is tractor power. How many tractors should be used in a given operation? What size should they be? What is the labor situation? How much time is available to drive them? How many acres of corn and beans will be planted? These are all important. So, too, is the question of whether the hired man will be staying with you and whether the boy will be off to school.

One factor involved seems always to come out on top. CAPITAL IS CHEAPER THAN LABOR. There are a number of studies available which can suggest to a farmer whether he should have, for instance, two 3-plow tractors or one 7-plow tractor. The choice depends usually upon the number of hours of use, hourly cost of labor and fixed annual costs.

Fewer people on a farm can take one of the new big horsepower tractors and end up with much better use of manpower and greater fuel efficiency. A disadvantage, in some minds, is the 11-thousand to 16-thousand pound weights of the big tractors. Soil compaction becomes a consideration. But, keep in mind it can pull six or more bottoms, it is comfortable and easy to handle compaction is immediately broken up.

There are so many things for a farmer to consider. He is, indeed, a manager.

These company experts live farming efficiency. Their corn and soybean clinic presentations go into planting methods and techniques, as well as consideration of planting and related equipment. They relay research facts that show the advantages of early planting. Many farmers displayed surprise in learning that corn should be planted during a certain early 2-week period . . . ending early in May in most corn belt areas. Foul weather usually reduces the period to about 8 actual days for "ideal planting." Not getting the corn in Narrow rows is another topic of intense interest. Here a farmer cultivates in a field planted to both corn and soybeans in 30-inch rows. Many feel 30-inch rows are the most practical narrow width because of mechanical problems.

ower and n methods

early can easily reduce yields by 10 percent. On a hundred acres, yielding 80 bushels per acre, this is $800.

The planting discussion also included such things as use of a 24 cell planter plate which slows down rotation speed and gains a better chance of filling again. Then there's planter flexibility, the weight factor, the size and efficiency of the planter attachments. use of squadron hitches and, with "big tractor power," the use of dolly hitches to be able to double up operations each time across the field.

What Is Minimum Tillage?

Here, of course, we are talking about the art of doing several things with each pass across the field to cut down on labor and other operating costs

Yes, indeed, farming is a business of making very important management decisions.

The strong tendency is to ever narrowing rows in corn and soybeans. Coupled with this trend is increased use of chemicals for weed and insect control and minimum tillage to just generally cut down on production costs. It is not at all uncommon today to see a farmer enter a fall plowed field in the spring with a mounted cultivator on a big tractor, trailing a 6-row wheel track planter with fertilizer attachments and a boom spray rig at the rear to apply a pre-emergence herbicide or insecticide.

Many ask . . . "Why are we talking 30-inch rows and not narrower?" . . . The experts answer . . . "It's sort of like why we had 40-inch rows for so long . . . that's how wide the horse's rear was. Today, to get proper power use, a wide tractor tire is needed . . . perhaps a 17-inch tire. When soybeans start getting bushy, to go into the field means to run over plant foliage in extremely narrow planted rows. And, sometimes it is necessary, in order to get maximum yields, to break that crust or get rid of the weeds."

Farming Is Complicated

Farming gets more complicated every year. But, the changes are of the kind that the average farmer can accept as necessary and progressive. Farm experts will have an ever increasingly important role in supplying our farmers with advice and technological data on how to KEEP UP with the major changes that will keep him in business in years to come.

You used to hear the statement . . . "Get big or get out." Perhaps the trend continues to larger farming units, but the statement that one hears more often now is . . . "Get efficient or go broke."

Farm chemicals offer new opportunities

S UCH names as Amiben and Aldrin, as well as the promise of new chemicals to come were of big interest to farmers who attended the recent mid-winter corn and soybean clinics throughout the corn belt. Such chemicals as Amiben for the control of weeds and Aldrin for the control of soil insects make much of today's high yields possible. And, when you include the new advancements in fertilizer technology to the list of farm chemicals that were discussed at the meetings, you will probably agree that you are speaking of the tools that result in at least 50 percent of today's yields.

Actually, though, weed killers, insecticides and fertilizers are probably no more important than the other things that make a good crop — good seed — good equipment — and a cooperative weatherman. It takes all of them to produce large, economical yields. More and more farmto be true. This is especially evident with the chemical weed killers.

One-Fourth of Soybeans Treated

In Illinois, for example, 24 percent of all soybean acreage was treated with chemicals last year. The picture is even better when you figure that 34 percent of all farmers who plant 100 acres of corn and soybeans, or less, treated all or part of their crop with weed killers - and it jumps to 85 percent for those who plant 500 or more acres of corn and soybeans. Amiben accounted for half of the treated soybean acreage.

Speaking for Amchem Products, Inc., producers of Amiben, specialists gave some helpful suggestions. They said it is a good idea to plant and apply Amiben at the same time — but use good ers (especially the larger ones) are finding this equipment, have a uniformly smooth seed bed and inspect the nozzles regularly.

> Chemical weed control with Amiben has several advantages, they said. It kills both the annual broadleaf weeds in bean fields, as well as the annual grasses. It is a clean product to work with and is completely water soluble. You can use it in any crop rotation.

Amiben requires about a half inch of rain after application to carry it into the soil where seeds sprout. However, it was pointed out, that if insufficient rain falls within 7 days after application and there is enough soil moisture to germinate weeds and grasses, you should work it in with a light cultivation using a rotary hoe, if possible. At the same time the shallow mixing of Amiben in the soil will not interfere with the action of Amiben when rain finally comes.

A study made by the University of Illinois was cited which determined that an acre can normally produce about 4,200 pounds of dry matter.

If there were 50 weeds per foot of row present, it would reduce this yield potential by 1,200 pounds of dry matter. This is more than a 25 percent reduction.

Insecticides Pay

Speaking for Shell Chemical Company, specialists told farmers in attendance that soil insecticides more than pay for themselves in 9 out of 10 corn fields in the country. In the 10th, they say, it will pay for itself. "You can expect to make $5 to $10 per acre extra," Shell spokesmen figure, "... and in some cases it might even make you 30 bushels or more per acre."

There are three types of insects to be on guard

First, are those that attack the seed. These include such insects as the seed corn beetle and the seed corn maggot.

Second, there are the seedling attacking insects.

This group includes the wireworm, cutworm, billbugs and corn field ants.

Third, are those that attack the root. This includes the aphids, the white grubs and the corn rootworm - of which there are three kinds, northern, western and southern.

Aldrin, company experts say, is the most economical control available and should be used in all areas where the rootworm is not resistant. Resistant areas include Nebraska, southeastern South Dakota, southwestern Minnesota, eastern Iowa and northern Kansas. In these resistant areas you should use an organic phosphate or Shell's new Aldrex.

Aldrex is a new soil insect control that contains 10 percent Aldrin and 10 percent ethyl parathion. This makes it an effective control over 20 soil insects that eat away at corn profits - in Aldrin resistant areas, as well as non-resistant areas. Aldrex comes as a granular and should be applied in the row at about 10 pounds per acre when planting.

Soil insecticides should be incorporated into the soil immediately after applying. One economical way to apply soil insecticides is to mix it with your liquid or dry fertilizer. In some cases you can buy fertilizer with the soil insecticide already

Profitable way to boost corn yield: use aldrin to kill all soil insects waiting to attack your crop.

Aldrin insecticide is very economical to use and has a remarkable 14-year record of 1) guarding corn, 2) preventing spotty stands, root damage, and lodging, 3) improving ear quality, and 4) increasing corn yields up to 20 bushels per acre.

THE RECORD shows that soil insect L control with aldrin returns several hundred percent on investment-year

Hundreds of measured tests show that the protection of aldrin produces an average extra yield per acre of 11 bushels. And that's an overall average. Individual yield increases can be double the average.

With aldrin you control all major soil insects at the lowest possible cost

Compare insecticide cost with extra yield and the profitability of aldrin is easy to see.

Weeds in soybeans can easily cut yields by 3 to 9 bushels depending on the seriousness of the weed problem. This winter thousands of farmers who attended the Corn and Soybean Clinics heard informative reports on how to eliminate this loss.

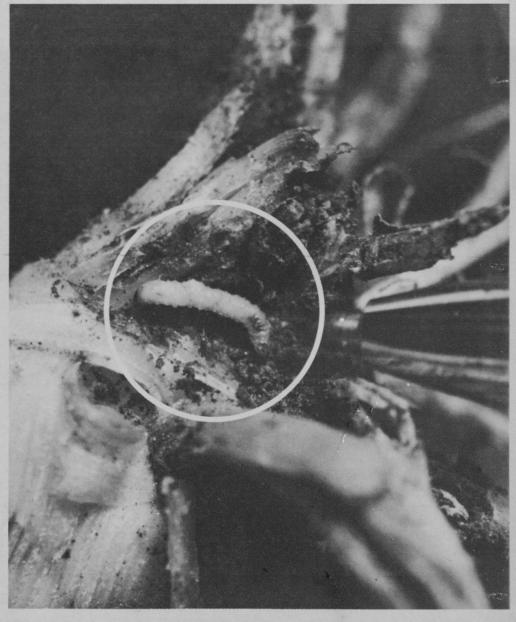

Questions on chemicals were most frequent at the recent Corn-Soybean Clinics. Here Roger Didrikson, Shell Chemical Company, attempts to answer a farmer's question on Aldrin.

many farmers doubt the need for fertilizers, but just how much to apply is nearly always a matter of concern.

Soil tests give us a fairly accurate guide to what is in our soils, crop signs can tell us if they are in bad need of a particular element or so, and tissue tests are often valuable tools we can use. But beyond these things, it is more a matter of deciding what kind of a yield we think we should be able to reach. Many things have to be considered: type of soil, past fertilizer and cropping history (including whether a legume crop was plowed down), price of fertilizer, as well as price of corn or beans, weather cycles, plant population, weed control, kind of hybrid, available capital, whether you are limited in acreage and that certain something that determines a man's ability to make everything work together for the crop's best interest.

As a general guide, for the first 50 bushels of corn increase over 100 bushels, it is necessary to add about 100 pounds of actual nitrogen, 100 pounds of phosphate  $(P_2O_5)$  and 88 pounds of potash  $(K_2O)$ . In most cases the efficiency of each pound of plant food after that will decrease rather rapidly.

Building a high fertilizer program will usually result in not only more money the year of application, but will offer some benefit in years to come. In fact, fertilizer sometimes works better the second year after application with soybeans.

Insect control can be accomplished in several ways. Planned crop rotations can reduce infestations, but intensive corn growing leads to serious insect problems. Here, a corn rootworm feeds on a root system. Chemical control and inbred resistance offer the most promise for the future.

Model A<sup>II</sup> Gleaner with narrow 3-row corn head (30" centers).

Model CII Gleaner with 4-row corn head for the big harvests.

Regular or narrow row-the Gleaner completes your system

When you've followed a careful crop management system from soil preparation and planting through the growing season, the crop deserves harvesting with one of the great Allis-Chalmers Gleaners!

Gleaner capacity starts with its downfront cylinder design, which permits 13 feet of separating area—controlled separating that's at work where most combines are still just feeding. Your crop is controlled within 34'' of the cylinder, and across its entire width. With the new variable speed control you can quickly change cylinder speed for the crop condition.

The Model E has 8', 10', 12' or 13' headers for beans or grain; changes in a jiffy to a 2-row corn combine.

The Model AII offers 2- or 3-row corn heads, including the new narrow row model pictured. Headers come in 10', 12', 13', 14', or 16' widths as you choose.

The giant Model C<sup>II</sup> field shells corn 4 rows at a time; hardy state beans or grain with headers at the 24 feet width. with headers up to 24 feet wide!

Which one best fits your crop plan? To complete your system right through harvest, talk to your Allis-Chalmers dealer about Gleaners—the combine folks have given a good name to!

W hen you open the refrigerator door and shrink away in horror as you view yesterday's delicious beef roast, that bit of turkey and chicken left over after the party, and last week-end's ham, don't give in to your impulse to clean that refrigerator right into the garbage can. Use your imagination and that food won't go to waste -- or even be recognized as leftovers!

That "bit of turkey and chicken left over after the party" can be made into Poultry Pinwheels with Pickle Sauce or Baked Eggs on Turkey Hash. You can substitute ham for the turkey in the turkey hash. What's better than the traditional combination of ham and eggs?

As for last week-end's ham, use it in casseroles with noodles, spaghetti, macaroni, rice or mixed vegetables such as in Ham Vegetable Bake. (You can use any cubed meat in this manner.) This casserole uses frozen Brussels sprouts with celery soup and sour cream. The unusual seasoning is dill leaves. Your favorite jello salad would go well with this meal. A pudding served warm with a nut garnish would make a delightful finale. There are many more ways to use up these leftovers too.

You might like to fold diced meat into omelettes or make a meat pie with mashed potato topping. You can add leftovers to a cream sauce with green pepper and pimento (a la king) and serve it over toast, baking powder biscuits, corn bread or rice.

Delicious sandwiches can be made when the meat has been warmed in its own gravy or a barbecue sauce.

If you enjoy salads, Garden Vegetable and Rice Salad will make good use of diced ham, luncheon meat as well as leftover vegetables that are also to be found in that overfilled refrigerator. This salad is especially nutritious, combining several vegetables and meat together. Remember when you cook the rice not to rinse the vitamins away. Since the rice has been highly refined, the natural nutrients have sometimes been replaced on the outside of the rice grains. Start your unwashed rice in boiling water and it will be more nutritious.

In the future, when you have meat to store, you can save precious room in the refrigerator by cutting the meat from the bones and storing it covered in a small container, or wrapping it tightly in wax paper or foil.

Now when you look in that refrigerator, imagine all the fun you'll have using those delicious leftovers!

HAM AND TURKEY ROLLS

- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
  6 thin slices cooked turkey or chicken
  6 candied dill pickle strips
  1 cup sour cream

Spread ham slices with mayonnaise, top with slices of turkey or chicken. Place a pickle strip on one end of each ham slice; roll up jelly-roll fashion and fasten with toothpicks. Place ham rolls in greased shallow pan and spread with sour cream. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 20 minutes. Makes six servings.

Imaginative Leftovers...

- o ounces orona noodes
  2 tablespoons fat
  ½ pound diced pork
  ½ pound diced veal
  ½ cup chopped onion
  1¼ cups water
  1¼ cups condensed tomato soup (10½-ounce can)

- ½ cup sliced mushrooms (4-ounce can)
   1 cup shredded American cheese
   1½ teaspoons salt
   ½ teaspoon pepper
   1 teaspoon sugar
   1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

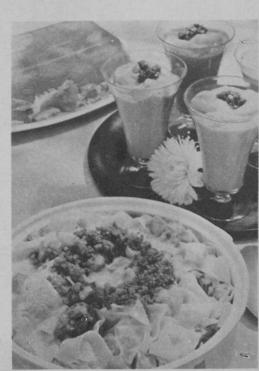

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender (about 5 minutes). Drain and rinse. While noodles are cooking, melt fat in skillet. Brown pork and veal in fat. Add onion and cook 15 minutes. Add water, tomato soup, mushrooms, cheese, salt, pepper, sugar and Worcestershire sauce. Simmer 5 minutes. Add noodles and simmer 20 minutes, or arrange noodles on hot platter and pour meat sauce over. Makes 4 servings.

- 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of celery

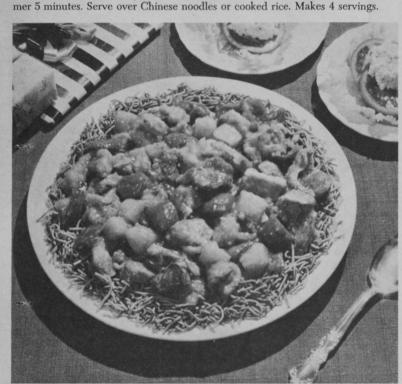

- soup
  1/3 cup sour cream
  1/2 cup water
  1/4 teaspoon dried dill leaves
  1 cup diced cooked ham
  1 package (10 ounces) frozen Brussels sprouts, cooked and drained
- 2 cups cooked wide noodles (about 4 ounces uncooked) 2 tablespoons buttered bread crumbs

In 11/2-quart casserole, blend soup, sour cream, water, and dill. Stir in ham, brussels sprouts, and noodles. Top with crumbs. Bake at 350°F. 30 minutes. Four servings.

- 1/8 teaspoon pepper 2 tablespoons lard or drippings 3 green peppers
- 1 can (13½ ounces) pineapple chunks 2½ tablespoons cornstarch 2½ tablespoons soy sauce ¼ cup sugar ¼ cup vinegar ½ cup pineapple juice Chinese noodles or cooked rice

Beat together egg, flour, salt and pepper. Thoroughly coat cubes of pork in egg-flour batter. Brown on all sides in lard or drippings. Cover and cook slowabout 15 minutes. Pour off drippings. Drain pineapple and save juice. Remove stems and seeds from green peppers. Cut peppers into 1-inch squares and boil 10 minutes in water to cover. Drain. Add green peppers and pineapple to meat. Cover and cook slowly 10 minutes. Mix together cornstarch, soy sauce, sugar, vinegar and ½ cup pineapple juice. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened and clear, about 2 minutes. Pour over meat mixture and sim,

BAKED EGGS ON TURKEY HASH

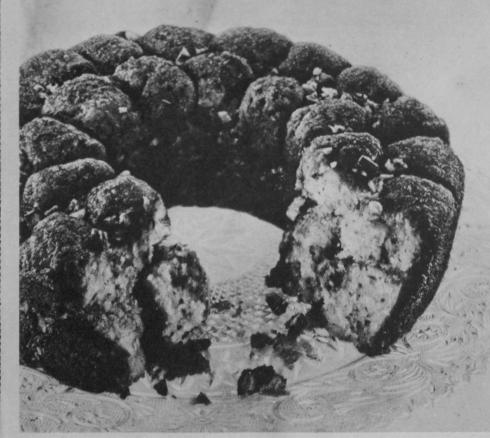

- Cook celery and onion in drippings until onion is transparent, but not browned. Add turkey or ham, potatoes, and milk. Cook slowly stirring occasionally until heated thoroughly. Season to taste.

  Divide hash into four individual baking dishes. Make a hollow in each and break egg into hollow. Place in a moderately hot oven (375°F) or in a broiler shout 2 inches from host. Cook until eggs are desired consistency. 5 to 8 min about 3 inches from heat. Cook until eggs are desired consistency, 5 to 8 minutes of baking. Chili sauce is the suggested accompaniment. Makes 4 servings.

The new way to cook is with Karo!

What a treat for your bunch at Easter brunch-or any time! Try this light-hearted, melting good coffee cake and just taste the delicious new flavor and appetizing new texture Karo adds to foods. Simply great!

Karo Chatterbox Coffee Cake:

Prepare your favorite rolled biscuit dough...using 4 cups flour or biscuit mix. Form the dough into 1-inch balls. Mix 1 cup of sugar and 1 teaspoon of cinnamon; sprinkle 1/3 of mixture on bottom of greased 9 or 10-inch solid tube pan. Add 1/2 cup chopped nuts to remaining sugar mixture. Dip half the dough in 1/3 cup melted margarine; place on bottom of pan, just touching. Sprinkle with half nut mixture. Repeat for second layer.

Drizzle 1/3 cup Karo Crystal-Clear Syrup over dough. Bake in 350°F. oven 1 hour. Remove from pan at once and invert. Drizzle 1/4 cup Karo over top. Break into warm, spicy "conversation pieces." Karo comes in pint and quart bottles; also available in 5 and 10 lb. tins.

The Changing Church...

Today's Architecture Giving Modern Angles To Religion

An interesting feature of modern architecture is the fact that some of the most striking designs are found in churches. Roofs flaring off at odd angles, stretches of glass, textured surfaces mark new church buildings of various denominations. From its start in this country not too long ago, modern church architecture has spread at an increasing rate.

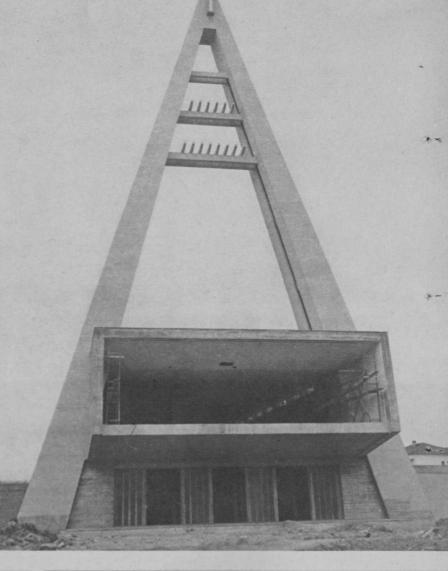

Pictured on this page are examples of the modern architecture found in churches, both in this country and abroad. Perhaps even your home town has a more vivid example of modern church architecture than what is shown here.

Theologians tell us that contemporary architecture in churches is good. It makes the congregation feel like their church is "up to date," not only in the teachings of religion but in the external appearances as well.

The tower in the shape of a giant capital "A" is a striking part of the new Roman Catholic St. Konrad Church, an ultra-modern edifice, in Offenbach, Germany.

The Bee Ridge Presbyterian Church in Sarasota, Fla. Above a base of rough hewn stone, squares of glass are set at an angle under the steeply slanted roof.

The new First Congregational Church, near Vancouver, Wash., has already become a landmark known as "Noah's Ark." It stands on the highest knoll in the area.

Welcome the Spring season with this new dessert idea from Pillsbury

Here's a delicious new Spring creation by Pillsbury. A tall, moist Torte made with Pillsbury's Bavarian Creme Yellow Cake Mix and Buttercream Recipe Lemon Frosting Mix. You add your own personal touch to this Spring creation with peach slices and toasted coconut flakes.

Here's all you need to make . . .

PEACH AMBROSIA TORTE Developed by Ann Pillsbury 1 package Pillsbury Bavarian Creme Yellow Moist Cake Mix

1 cup mashed canned peaches

½ cup water

2 eggs

1 package Pillsbury Buttercream Recipe Lemon Frosting Mix

11/2 cups whipping cream

1 cup drained, sliced peaches

1 cup flaked coconut

Prepare cake mix as directed on package adding mashed peaches and reducing water to 1/2 cup. Bake in 8 or 9-inch layer pans as directed. Cool.

Combine frosting mix and whipping cream. Chill 10 minutes. Beat until thickened. Fold in diced peaches and coconut. Split cake layers. Spread filling between layers and on top. That's that. Just chill until served.

Bake up a Peach Ambrosia Torte for your folks tonight. It'll be as welcome as Spring itself.
