State Rep. Charron Proposes Moratorium on Antlerless Deer

A moratorium on antlerless deer hunting for one year is being proposed by State Rep. Sanford Charron, according to an announcement Monday.

The Pinconning representative told the Herald that he did not believe a moratorium was the answer to the deer problem, "but it should provide sufficient time to find the answers."

Charron is a member of the house conservation committee and he is now drafting a bill encompassing this thinking.

"A search for the answer," said Charron, "should include a careful evaluation of the Michigan deer herd and its management policy. A suggested approach includes a careful check on conservation department statistics."

He said the survey should include information on histories of number of deer killed each year by gunfire, the number of deer lost to starvation yearly and what is being done and what can be done to improve the deer herd.

Present improvement programs include limited cutting in deer yards to provide new food growth, said Charron. Definite large losses to starvation occur in winter yards in spite of summer cutting and burning.

"An answer here might be cutting in winter yards when food shortages are the greatest," said Charron. "I feel with expanded deer herd management programs we can harvest antlerless deer for many years to come."

"If and when we have antlerless deer seasons, I would favor hunting three days after the regular season and only the permit holders be allowed to hunt these days. The deer management problem varies from one area to another and it must be met in these various areas with compatible programs."

He said that the one-year moratorium should provide adequate time for study and planning deer herd growth management.

The representative is arranging this week to bring members of the conservation committee to North-eastern Michigan to check timber management being conducted by the Abitibi Corporation to determine "if it is working."

Building Permits Reflect Construction Up in 1965

Construction in Tawas City during 1965, as reflected by building permits issued, saw a $52,015 increase over the previous year's total.

According to a report presented Monday night by Supt. of Public Works Reginald Bublitz, 60 building permits were issued during the past 12 months with a total value of $166,941. This compared to 56 applications and $114,926 during 1964.

All categories of building showed slight increases. The report also included 13 permit denials, which indicated that the proposed construction was contrary to the city's new building code.

There were four new homes constructed at a total cost of $49,600. Eight new private garages were constructed at a cost of $8,000. Home alterations, numbering 29, amounted to $24,951.

A substantial increase was noted in the commercial categories where 10 alterations cost $5,965 and six new commercial permits totaled $63,000.

Included in the latter were Krumrei Distributing Warehouse, $25,000; Clark Service Station, $10,000; Huron Building Supplies, $10,000; Trinklein Marine, $7,500; Dale Motel, $6,500; Tawas Herald, $4,000.

Nontaxable construction included $13,000 for the Tawas City Elementary Unit and $2,425 at First Baptist Church.

A month-by-month report indicated that one permit was approved in January, none in Febru-

East Tawas Issued $228,867 in Permits During Past Year

Construction at East Tawas during 1965 remained at about the same level as the preceding year, according to a report Monday night by Supt. of Public Works Paul C. Ropert.

Total construction during the year as reflected by building permits approved by Ropert was $228,867. This was $143 higher than 1964.

A review of the construction report for the city council indicated that there were four more homes constructed in East Tawas than during the previous year. Total number of new homes was 12, at a cost of $128,400, as compared to eight costing $81,000 in 1964.

There were 12 new garages constructed at a cost of $20,671, six commercial additions cost $31,309, one new church (Church of the Nazarene) cost $19,000. Some 59 home alterations, additions and repairs amounted to $29,496.

There were 90 building applications during the past year, as compared in 113 the preceding year.

HURON BUILDING SUPPLIES COMPANY expanded its operation during 1965 at the Detroit and Mackinac Railway yards. A 40 by 60-foot building was remodeled into a concrete block plant and a new 50 by 80-foot building was constructed to house boiler and curing rooms, pictured above. The firm is presently building a 40 by 60-foot storage building. Huron now employs 11 persons and had as high as 24 on its payroll last summer.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Losco Ends '65 in 'Red' -- But Only $5,227

Losco County came within $5,227.39 of balancing its 1965 general operating budget, according to a year-end report from Grace L. Miller, county treasurer.

"With a difference of slightly more than $5,000 in the red on an operational budget of $371,408, I think it indicates the county has an excellent financial status," said Mrs. Miller.

She said, however, that some financial problems were anticipated for 1966. With an allocation of 4.8 mills for operation in 1966, rather than the 5.25 mills received during 1965, county operational revenues will fall short of projected expenses.

The county started December with a balance of $11,677.39 in the general fund. Receipts from offices during the month amounted to $6,827.87. Disbursements during the month amounted to $23,732.65.

Sewage Treatment Plant Discussed by E. Tawas Council

Discussion on a proposed addition to East Tawas' municipal sewage treatment system indicates that advantages of a primary type of plant would outweigh a lagoon system.

Orto Schiesswohl, representing Spicer Engineering Company, Saginaw, attended the Monday night council meeting and explained methods of sewage treatment to be considered in the city's request for federal assistance in the program.

It was reported that the city was unable to obtain a grant this year for engineering fees.

Discussion included the possible expansion of the present primary plant to adjacent property recently purchased by the city from trustees of Anderson Coach Company.

Schiesswohl said he could not foresee any problems in this location as there was no difference in disposing treated waste water in the bay rather than in the river.

He pointed out that there would be no construction savings between the two plans as force mains would be required to reach either plant.

It was learned that approximately 160 acres of land would be required for suitable isolated location of a lagoon type of system. One-acre of land is required for each 100 persons using this method.

No Primary in TC; Race for Mayor at E. Tawas

No primary election will be held in Tawas City February 21 due to the lack of opposition for incumbent candidates filing for renomination.

Deadline for filing was 4:00 p. m. Monday, January 3.

A primary will be held at East Tawas where a three-way race has developed for mayor. There are two races there for nonpartisan ward aldermen.

Of principal interest at East Tawas is the race for mayor. Lewis Besanon, former city hall office manager, was the first candidate to file his petition, followed by First Ward Alderman James Campbell. Last week, James Bolen filed his petition for mayor and a primary election was assured.

A race has developed for the First Ward vacancy. Filing petitions were Earl Hester, grocery store owner, and Mrs. Carol Tracy, wife of the intermediate school superintendent.

The other race finds Third Ward Alderman Robert Bolen being opposed by Merton J. Killey.

Second Ward Alderman Edward Higgins is unopposed.

Filing petitions for renomination were Treasurer Grace Pelton, Clerk Fred B. Lomas and Justice of the Peace Carl Eckman.

Veteran Mayor Clarence McKenzie announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

In Tawas City, the three ward aldermen finishing out two-year terms filed for renomination on the Republican ticket. They are Daniel Ulrich, First Ward; Clyde Evril, Second Ward; Howard Hatton, Third Ward.

Council Studies Application for Urban Renewal Survey

Application forms to be submitted to the Federal Housing and Redevelopment Administration for 710 planning assistance under urban renewal were presented to the Tawas City Council Monday night.

Paul Chevis, member of the city planning commission, explained that Vilcan-Leman and Associates, planning consultants, had been working on the survey and planning application since authorization was given by the council two months ago.

The council is to take action on submitting the forms to the federal government at the next meeting. In the meantime, City Supt. Reginald Bublitz is to compile a list of ordinances now on the city's books which are required on the application.

If the forms are adopted, action would confirm appointment of the planning commission as a citizens advisory council. Action would also provide that the city would set November 1966 as a target date for adopting plumbing, electrical and housing ordinances.

Such an urban renewal project is designed to eliminate blight

Former Tiger Miles Main Dies at 81; One-Time Businessman

Miles G. Main, 81, Goodrich, former Tawas City businessman, died December 29 at Beaumont General Hospital, Royal Oak. He had been ill for two years.

Mr. Main first came to Tawas City in the winter of 1913 when he was a pitcher for the Detroit Tigers. He purchased some property at Big Island Lake, bringing with him W. C. (Roxey) Roach and Leon Cadore, also major league baseball players, as hunting companions.

After the 1914 season with the Tigers, a chipped elbow ended his 10-year career in the minor and major leagues and he returned to Tawas City the next year. He purchased a farm in Laidlawville and later moved to his home on River Street.

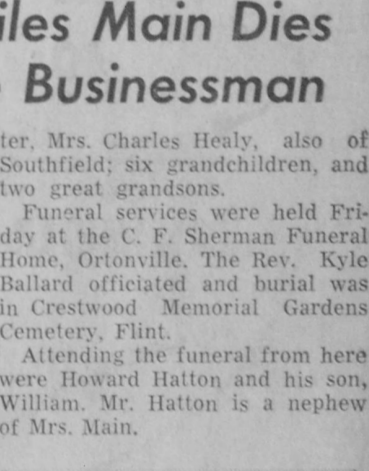

While here, Mr. Main purchased the State Theatre from Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Berube. The name was later changed to the Bay. He later owned a theatre at Oscoda and retired in 1936 as a Ford distributor at Harrisville.

Born in Genesee County, he married the former Clara Hatton in October 1909. He was a member of the Ortonville Methodist Church and the Old Timers Baseball Association.

He is survived by his wife; one son, Gerald, Southfield; a daughter, Mrs. Charles Healy, also of Southfield; six grandchildren, and two great grandsons.

Funeral services were held Friday at the C. F. Sherman Funeral Home, Ortonville. The Rev. Kyle Ballard officiated and burial was in Crestwood Memorial Gardens Cemetery, Flint.

Attending the funeral from here were Howard Hatton and his son, William. Mr. Hatton is a nephew of Mrs. Main.

18-Month to 10-Year Prison Term Meted Confessed Burglar

Donovan R. Osborne Jr., 18, East Tawas, was sentenced to serve 18 months to 10 years when arraigned Monday before Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller.

Judge Miller recommended that he be sent to the Michigan Training Unit, Ionia, to complete his high school education.

Osborne entered a plea of guilty to the December 11 breaking and entering of Cliff's News Agency, M-55, Tawas City. He admitted stealing a strong box containing $1,187 in cash.

State police are holding warrants for two other men wanted in connection with the burglary. Sought for receiving stolen property are Dennis Goddard and Ronald Rall, both 18.

City Cracks Down on Violators of New Trash Burning Code

Tawas City Council has authorized steps to be taken to enforce the city's new ordinance which requires a burning permit from the first tier of lots along US-23 from the river bridge to the east city limits.

While some violations in the area were noted at Monday night's meeting, City Supt. Reginald Bublitz said that others had apparently discontinued the outdoor burning of trash.

George Westcott, city police officer, and Bublitz are to check for violators, whose names are to be turned over to the city attorney for action. A warning letter is to be sent and a court citation issued after the first warning.

Added to the list of burning permits approved by the council were Cholger's Service, United States Post Office and Peoples State Bank.

Trash fires are to be attended in the fire zone and in a trash burner approved by the city superintendent.

In other matters, the council authorized changing city hall office hours on a trial basis. The office will now be open Monday through Friday from 9:00 a. m. to 12 o'clock and 1:00 to 5:00 p. m. Previously, the office had been closed Wednesday afternoons and open Saturday mornings.

Quarterly report of the city treasurer was presented along with the city police department report.

The council approved action of the zoning board of appeals on December 27 which upheld action of Zoning Administrator Bublitz in denying a building application to Milton Snover. Under the new ordinance, a nonconforming property use may be repaired or maintained but may not be enlarged upon. The applicant requested a permit to enlarge a cottage on the bay shore purchased from Joseph Lubaway, which is located in the B-2 business district.

According to minutes of the December 27 water board meeting, approval was given for purchasing a 1966 Dodge pickup truck from Ottawa Equipment Company at a cost of $1,610.51.

Now that ditch grades have been established along US-23 in the current reconstruction program by the state highway department, the city is to maintain closer supervision and inspection of any new culvert tubes to be installed by private property owners to insure proper drainage. Further work is to be completed in the spring by the contractor.

EAST TAWAS COMMUNITY BUILDING was purchased by the city last spring, along with the former state park, and work was commenced on remodeling the old building pictured above. The project is now complete and open house was held there last month.

WEATHER was in the news last spring when frozen storm sewers and heavy rain combined to cause flooding conditions in Tawas City's First Ward north of First Street. Youngsters had a field day with this canoe. Recent rains again saw the area in "flood stage."

No Primary

Also unopposed are the three supervisors, Clement Stephan, First Ward; John Hosbach, Second Ward; Clarence Everett, Third Ward.

No Democratic candidates filed for any office.

Also filing were George Tuttle, mayor; Walter Nelson, clerk; Mrs. Albertson, treasurer. Terms of the two justices of the peace, Robert N. Rollin and Roy Bergeron, have not expired.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS TO YOU

"I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people." This promise from Jeremiah, along with many other Bible citations, is part of the communion service on "Sacrament" to be held in Christian Science churches this Sunday, January 9.

Related passages to be read from the denominational textbook includes these lines: "When the human element in him struggled with the divine, our great Teacher said: Not my will, but Thine, be done!—that is, Let not the flesh, but the Spirit, be represented in me. This is the new understanding of spiritual Love. It gives all for Christ, or Truth. It blesses its enemies, heals the sick, casts out error, raises the dead from trespasses and sins, and preaches the gospel to the poor, the meek in heart." ("Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy).

TODAY'S Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

Read Acts 10:1-8
Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path. (Psalm 27:11).

Prior to studying for the ministry, I was employed by a Christian businessman. On one occasion after I had discussed a certain business proposition with him, he said, "I shall take this up with my partner and seek his guidance." Being unaware that he had a business partner, I inquired of another member of the staff. He took me to a small room adjoining my employer's office. There, we found him in prayer. He was discussing my proposition with God, his business partner.

The 10th chapter of the Book of Acts records how guidance through prayer brought together the apostle, Peter, and the gentile centurion, Cornelius, thus changing the lives of both.

in attempting to live on our own. We take chances even in matters of vital importance. But when we realize how helpless we are in directing our lives, we will seek the guidance of God through humility and sincere prayer.

PRAYER
Our heavenly Father, we beseech Thee so to guide us this day that at its close we shall find we have become more like Jesus in all our thoughts, words and acts. Bless us with Thine indwelling presence. Use us for Thy divine purpose, through Christ our Savior. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Guidance is always good when it is God's guidance. Allan H. Ferry (Ontario).

register of deeds offices in the State of Michigan.

It is our opinion that the general public is best served by the local filing and we are sure that the public could not get the same service from the secretary of state that they now receive from the registers throughout the State of Michigan.

Family Living Education

DOROTHY SCOTT, Extension Home Economist

Hello Everyone!

Here we are at the beginning of a New Year. With it comes responsibility for paying taxes—income, property and others. Is there money enough saved up to do it? Will you need to take a look at what your credit can do to help out for awhile?

Will seeking credit really be a help or hindrance?

We are going to consider the pros and cons in planning for credit that will fit in with regular family spending, managing it so that it promotes better family living and keeping it under control. This will happen at a Family Living Education program Tuesday, January 11, 1:30-3:30 p. m. in the Conference Room, Federal Building, East Tawas.

Managing your family's credit affects every family—young, older and in-between. This means every family can benefit from the discussion to be conducted by Miss Anne Field, extension specialist in home management, Michigan State University. Your family is invited.

Miss Field says we will consider the consumer credit you use for the purchase of items such as automobiles, washers and furniture.

Shopping for good credit terms and economical costs will be the basis for discussion. You will learn about the different kinds of credit available, the choices you have in places where you may get credit and the credit "deals" being offered these days.

She will help you evaluate when and if we will use credit, as well as the services and obligations that go with its use.

Because more and more individuals and families are "buying on time" installment buying and installment loans will be considered.

Here is your chance to better understand a subject we often find difficult. Understanding can save you money.

Remember the date—January 11.

GRASSROOTS GLEANINGS

by Bill Stokes

"Nowadays when you finally hang on to a little money," says The Warsaw (Ill.) Bulletin, "you find there's little left that a little money will buy."

"It's easy to tell when you're on the right track," claims The Tazewell County News of Morton Ill., "because it generally runs uphill."

The Pipestone (Minn.) County Star suggests that Nature does make some mistakes in that she sometimes puts all the bones in the head and none in the back.

This philosophy is offered by The Henry (Ill.) News-Republican:

Well, I ain't what I ought to be,
And I ain't what I'm goin' to be,
But at least I ain't what I was.

In honor of National Dog Week, The Wright County Journal-Press quoted Mark Twain as saying, "If you pick up a starving dog and make him prosperous, he will not bite you. That is the principal difference between a dog and a man."

"We don't know of any cure for baldness," reports The Spencer (Neb.) Advocate, "but we do have a formula for a solution that will shrink your scalp and make what hair you do have fit better."

The Reinbeck (Iowa) Courier claims that most butchers would rather wait on newlyweds because they don't remember what the prices used to be.

The Napoleon (N. D.) Homestead suggests for service in the diplomatic corps, the man who said, "I never tell my wife that she snores, I tell her that she purrs."

One advantage of being fat, according to the Devils Lake (N. D.) Daily Journal, is that you never have to give your buddy the shirt off your back because it would never fit him.

The Clermont Sun of Batavia, Ohio says, "One branch of higher learning today consists of finding ways to raise money to keep the children in school."

The Angola (Ind.) Herald tells this one:
Husband: "I suppose you're mad because I came home with this black eye last night?"
Wife: "Not at all, but you didn't have that black eye when you came home."

"Middle age is when a broad mind and a narrow waist change places," says The Review of Portageville, Mo.

"Women are a dime a dozen," it said in The Tell City (Ind.) News, "It's only when you cut the number down to one that it starts costing."

The Wapello (Iowa) Republican says, "These in-door days call for old friends, cups of steaming coffee, and good conversation."

The Davison (Mich.) Index reports on the student who, when asked to name two documents on which the United States Government is based, replied, "Forms 1040 and 1040 a."

The Lanesboro (Minn.) Leader tells about the wife at the breakfast table who said to her husband, "Pretend I'm a bartender and talk to me."

"Don't sponge your way through life," advises The Chamberlain (S. D.) Register, "it wipes out friendships."

"Most people don't care how much they pay for something as long as it's not all at once," says The Democrat-Tribune of Mineral Point, Wis.

RUSSIAN

A couple years ago my husband and I along with my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Card of Webster, S. Dak., rode the Berlin to Moscow express train across East Germany, Poland and the western Soviet Union. It is a pleasant trip — and one which provides a revealing look at Polish and Russian countryside. One rides for miles through marsh and scrub forest with little villages of wooden houses and dusty streets. And naturally after 36 hours on the train we were interested in food.

The Russian foods we sampled were excellent. There were tasty appetizers — caviar and herring — served with heavy, whole grain bread; rich flavorful borsch; and piping hot tea in glasses with metal holders. The meals we had in Moscow restaurants were imaginatively prepared, well seasoned and graciously served.

Recipes in this Farm and Home Section are Americanized versions of Russian favorites. Many illustrate "typical Russian cooking" with their liberal use of "smetana" — sour cream to us. Try the Borsch or Beef Stroganoff for taste pleasing examples of a hearty meal with Russian country folks.

BLINI

(Russian Raised Pancakes)

- |   |                              |
|---|------------------------------|
| ½ package or cake yeast, active dry or compressed | 6 tablespoons soft margarine |
| 2 cups milk                                       | ¾ teaspoon salt              |
| 3 cups flour                                      | 3 egg whites                 |
| 2 tablespoons sugar                               | Caviar or smoked salmon      |
| 3 egg yolks                                       | Sour cream                   |

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in cooled milk. Stir in ½ of the flour (1½ cups) and sugar; mix until well blended. Set this sponge to rise in a warm place for about 1½ hours. Cover the bowl with a cloth. Beat egg yolks and margarine until well blended. Stir in remainder of the flour and salt. Beat these ingredients into the sponge. Permit the sponge to rise again for about 1½ hours or until almost double in bulk. Whip egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Fold them into the batter. After 10 minutes bake the batter, a very small quantity at a time, in a greased skillet or on a griddle. Turn to brown lightly on the other side. Serve each filled with 1 tablespoon caviar or smoked salmon and garnished with cultured sour cream. Makes 24 2-inch cakes.

BORSCH

(Beet Soup)

- |                                 |                                    |
|---------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| ½ cup carrots                   | 1 cup very finely shredded cabbage |
| 1 cup onions                    | 1 tablespoon vinegar               |
| 2 cups beets                    | Sour cream                         |
| 1 tablespoon margarine          |                                    |
| 2 cups beef stock (or bouillon) |                                    |

Peel carrots, onions and beets; chop until very fine. Barely cover these ingredients with boiling water. Simmer gently, covered, for about 20 minutes. Add margarine, beef stock, cabbage and vinegar and simmer for 15 minutes more. Place the soup in bowls. Garnish each serving with sour cream. Serve hot or cold with Pumpernickel bread. Makes about 5 cups.

PIROSHKI

(Meat Pastry)

Dough:

- |                                |             |
|--------------------------------|-------------|
| 1 3-ounce package cream cheese | ¼ cup flour |
| ¼ pound margarine (½ cup)      |             |

Filling:

- |   |                                      |
|---|--------------------------------------|
| 2 tablespoons margarine                 | 2 chicken livers (or 1 turkey liver) |
| 2 tablespoons flour                     | 1 teaspoon grated onion              |
| 1 4-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces | 1 tablespoon minced parsley          |
| 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate         | 3 stuffed olives, chopped            |
| 1 chicken bouillon cube                 | Salt and pepper to taste             |

To make dough, work cream cheese, margarine and flour together well until you can form a dough. No liquid is necessary. Chill several hours or overnight. Roll the dough thin and cut into circles about 2½ inches in diameter. Put a spoonful of the meat filling in each circle. Fold into semi-circular tarts, crimping the edges tightly with tines of a fork or fingers. Prick top of each with fork to allow steam to escape. Bake in 425°F. oven for 10 to 15 minutes.

To make filling, melt margarine and blend in flour. Drain mushrooms. Dissolve a chicken bouillon cube in 1 cup boiling water and add enough mushroom liquid to make 1½ cups. Add liquid to blended margarine and flour. Chop mushrooms and livers and add to the sauce along with remaining ingredients. Cook slowly about 10 minutes or until mixture is fairly thick. Fill each circle of dough with ½ to 1 teaspoon of liver mixture. Make into turnovers moistening edges of pastry so that filling will not leak out. Then proceed as instructed under directions to make dough. Makes approximately 2 dozen.

*Note: These can be frozen unbaked or baked, if necessary, but should be served hot.

BEEF STROGANOFF

- |  |                                 |
|--|---------------------------------|
| 2 pounds choice round steak, sirloin or lean part of beef tenderloin, cut in ¼ x ¼ x 2-inch strips | 1 teaspoon dry mustard          |
| ¼ cup margarine  | OR 2 teaspoons prepared mustard |
| 1 large onion, minced  | 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce |
| ½ pound sliced fresh mushrooms   | 1 teaspoon salt                 |
| OR 1 4-ounce can mushrooms   | ¼ teaspoon pepper               |
| 2 tablespoons flour  | ½ teaspoon sugar                |
| 2 cups beef bouillon or consommé   | 1 clove garlic, crushed         |
| 2 tablespoons tomato paste   | ½ cup sherry                    |
|  | 1 cup sour cream                |

In heavy skillet (or electric frypan) melt margarine and sauté the beef strips until brown all over. Stir constantly as they will stick. With slotted spoon lift out meat and put in Dutch oven along with ½ teaspoon sugar. Add another 2 tablespoons margarine to skillet and sauté minced onions and sliced mushrooms. Add to meat in Dutch oven. To the remaining margarine in skillet (or you may need to add a little more margarine) blend in flour, letting it brown evenly. Then slowly add the beef bouillon or consommé to form a smooth gravy. Add tomato paste, crushed garlic, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, sherry, salt and pepper. Blend well. Pour sauce over the ingredients in Dutch oven, cover and let simmer very slowly for about ½ hour, or until meat is tender. Taste and rectify the seasoning, adding more sherry, if necessary. When ready to serve, add the sour cream, heat, but do not boil. Serve over hot rice or buttered noodles (as pictured). Serves 6.

MAZOURKA

(Walnut Cake)

- |                                    |                                    |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 9 egg yolks                        | ½ pound candied fruit peel, ground |
| 2 cups sugar                       | 2 tablespoons lemon juice          |
| 9 egg whites                       |                                    |
| 3 cups flour                       |                                    |
| 1 pound California walnuts, ground |                                    |

Beat the yolks in a bowl; add sugar and beat well. Beat the whites in a separate bowl until stiff but not dry; carefully fold into the yolk mixture. Add flour, walnuts, candied fruit and lemon juice; mix lightly. Grease and lightly flour a flat cake pan about 8 by 12 inches. Pour the mixture into it. Bake at 325°F. for 30 minutes, or until a cake tester comes out clean. Dust with confectioners' sugar. The resulting cake will be about 1 inch high and should be served in long, thin slices.

GIRL CAGERS CAPTURE IOWA FANCY

William C. Nelson

It's basketball fever — girls' style. Since the late 1920s, Iowa has been a hotbed of girls' basketball. A talented girls' team puts on a sensational show. A high-scoring outfit will scorch the nets with 80 to 110 points a game. The two fine teams that clashed for the 1965 state title, South Hamilton of Jewell and Valley of West Des Moines, averaged an 83-46 margin over their opponents going into the finals.

Iowa's individual game scoring leader is 6 foot 4 inch Norma Schoulte of Monona. In 1952 she had poured 111 points through the hoop before the gun sounded. And she's not the only girl to crack the century mark.

The offensive stars are aided by a rule which permits only three of the six girls in the starting lineup to work in the offensive half of the court. Thus, only three girls can score. One offensive girl shoots all the free throws for her three defensive teammates, too.

The girls are surprisingly adept. They maneuver in intricate screens and picks, pass the ball quickly, pivot on a dime and drive hard for the basket when a pathway opens. On the defensive court, the guards scrap tenaciously for the ball. The centers screen out their opponent brusquely and leap high to pull in the rebound.

By the time the distaff cagers are in high school, they've been practicing basketball for 10 to 12 years.

Scoring whiz Connie Kraai of Holstein is a classic example. As a cute 2-year-old toddler, she sparkled as the team mascot in 1951. Fourteen years later, she had blossomed into an attractive 5 foot 10 and a top-flight scorer. Connie could be counted on for 41.6 points a game.

Despite their physical development, however, the girls seldom lose their femininity.

A curvy brunette will arch in a 15-foot jump shot, then pause to fluff her hair as the ball leaves her half of the court. Askew hairbands are straightened at the first opportune moment. The girls look rather attractive, too, in their shiny silk shirts and shorts.

The court queens often outdraw the boys' team. At one time, many schools played double-headers, but the practice has largely been discontinued. A mediocre boys' team would find the stands half-empty after a crackerjack girls' team left the court.

Always on the girls' minds are the 16 berths in the state tournament. The teams that battle their way to Des Moines are treated like royalty. They meet the governor, chat with legislators, eat fancy banquet meals, appear on state-wide television.

The 1965 state tournament drew 72,000 spectators in its five-day run. That makes the Iowa event the largest girls' tournament in America, says the Iowa Girls' High School Athletic Union, which guides the program.

The state meet, in fact, outdraws most boys' state tourneys, the Girls' Union adds. It's one of the five biggest high school tournaments (boys or girls) in the nation. The total viewing audience is many times greater, too, thanks to radio and television broadcasts beamed across the state, and into several adjoining states.

When a hard-fought game ends, the reaction is almost as predictable as the Iowa corn crop. Both teams break down in tears—tears of joy for some, tears of despair for others.

The Iowa girls' basketball program is rivaled by several Dixie states. Among them are Texas, North and South Carolina and Arkansas. In all, 27 states have girls' basketball competition.

One doctor said of the sport: "It puts the girl in good physical condition. Her posture becomes better, her muscle tone and stamina improve, her cheeks get rosy . . ."

Less than 1% of the girl cagers go on to play basketball competitively after high school.

"Top Yields Cut Feed Costs"

Competition is stiff in livestock farming today. If you hope to make top profit and still be operating 10 years from now, you have to put the latest money-making ideas to work in your setup for increased efficiency and top returns.

Farm management specialists admit that good management doesn't come easily—you have to work at it. Common sense is the key—plus a willingness to accept new ideas that can make your operation really click.

As these farm management experts pointed out at the "Corn and Soybean Clinics" throughout the midwest last year, there is no set formula for profits. Smart farming pays off—if it's a day-to-day proposition. The accent is on the first syllable of management . . . behind every successful farming operation is a top-notch manager.

Harold Elliott has welded his resources into a highly efficient corn and beef operation near Cropsy, Illinois. Typical of many livestock feeders today, husky, hard driving Elliott is so busy he talks to you over his shoulder while he goes on with his work.

"My main aim in farming today is to squeeze as much feed as possible out of every acre I farm," says Elliott. "The more I raise, the less I have to buy.

"I need a lot of feed for all the cattle I market every year, and the difference between a good yield and a poor yield is a matter of real money."

Elliott feeds out 500 to 750 head of cattle

each year. Until this year he fed anywhere from 300 to 800 head of hogs a year. While continually trying to increase his feeding power, here are some of the things he accomplished during the past year:

- Entered the DeKalb 200 Bushel Corn Club with a test plot of XL-45 which measured 147.38 bushels per acre of No. 2 corn.
- Raised over 45,000 bushels of corn on 300 acres, averaging nearly 150 bushels per acre.
- Calendarized his corn planting so that harvesting was spread out during the fall, allowing him more time to handle his livestock chores, and permitting him to harvest all his corn in its peak condition.
- Turned to heavy silage rations to take full advantage of big yields and further cut his feed costs.

These things, along with sound soil management and the gumption to try something new, have raised Elliott's yields to bin-busting proportions and cut his feed bill to the bone.

You needn't make a personal visit to the Elliott place to learn that he's a firm believer in feeding plenty of silage—it's obvious from more than a mile away. Three tall silos tower over his well-automated feedlot, which has taken much of the backache out of beef feeding for him.

"I feed a lot of corn silage," Elliott explains. "I'm fully convinced that the more roughage I can stuff into my cattle, the farther I'm stretching my rations and the more I'm cutting feed costs. I'm sure I'm getting more T.D.N. per acre by harvesting the whole plant rather than just the grain." Last summer he filled in with Sudax until he could start cutting silage.

Elliott is constantly on the alert for new practices which might hike his efficiency and give extra profits. In spite of the high average yield from his corn acres last year, Elliott is still far from satisfied. He's already looking forward to this fall's harvest when yields should be even better.

Elliott's corn yields weren't always this good. "I used to just 'plant corn' like everyone else, until I realized one day that it takes just as much work to grow a poor yield as a good yield," he explains. "With the number of acres I have in corn, just a 5-bushel increase can mean about 1700 extra bushels of corn. So I decided to try a little harder."

Elliott did a lot of reading, talked with some of the people at the DeKalb Agricultural Association, and attended various meetings such as the Corn and Soybean Clinic.

"Then I went out to my test plot, and tried some of these new-fangled ideas," he says. "I didn't try anything big right away. Sometimes certain crops and methods work better on one farm than the next, so I usually play it safe and try a little at a time."

He tried several new hybrids, including the XL-45 which he is now so fond of, and moved to heavier fertilization. Gaining confidence through his test plot results, he applied what he learned on the bulk of his acreage.

This year he averaged 20 to 22,000 plants per acre. He applied 100 lbs. of potash last fall, put down 135 lbs. of actual nitrogen at the pre-plant stage and added 100 lbs. of a commercial blend. On some fields he applied as much as 150 lbs. of actual nitrogen. And he already plants to fertilize at a higher rate next year.

SAYS PROFIT PACESETTER

Elliott has eliminated one cultivation, too. This year he controlled weeds with a granular application of a pre-emergent herbicide in a band, plus two cultivations. "The chemicals gave me a 90% kill," Elliott reports.

On a large livestock farm such as Elliott's, there's real competition for his time during peak crop periods. To even out these peaks, Elliott has turned to calendarized corn production.

The basis for this program is selecting hybrids of increasing maturity to spread "best" harvesting dates over a longer period. Most farmers put in some short-season hybrids after their long-season varieties are planted; Elliott does the opposite.

"Calendarized corn works perfect for me," he says. "My livestock takes a good chunk of time out of every day. We can't stay in the field from dawn to dusk like some fellows can. My calendarized schedule spreads planting and harvesting over a two-week period.

"Then, too, weather around here during corn planting time is about as unpredictable as a woman," he adds. "The way I figure it, I can spread my risk by spreading my planting. Chances are better that I'll get most of my corn planted and harvested at the right time than if I used all the same maturity." And chances are the way we see it, that Elliott's yields, profits and efficiency will continue to grow. Any way you look at it, this pacesetter farmer is piloting an outstanding crop-livestock production unit—and he is constantly trying to improve the job he's doing.
