

BAGGING a buck with bow and arrow is a routine matter for Bruce Sieloff, a commercial photographer from Mt. Clemens. Sieloff, hunting in Alabaster Township Sunday evening, shot this nice eight-point buck from a distance of about 40 yards. It was his 17th deer in as many years of hunting and he shot a bear last spring. He now plans to hunt moose this fall in Newfoundland. He is a nephew of Edward Sieloff of Tawas City.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Missing Since Sunday—

Disappearance of Hunter Has Area Police Baffled

A pellet-riddled raincoat, an empty shotgun shell and bow hunting equipment are among clues in the baffling disappearance of a 26-year-old Flint deer hunter, who has been missing since Sunday. Police fear he may have been shot in the back, dragged off and his body hidden in Huron National Forest northwest of the Tawas.

A massive search has been under way since Sunday evening for Charles Thomas, 1422 New York Street, Flint, who came to losco County for the opening of bow and arrow hunting for deer.

Staying at a Bass Lake cabin owned by his father-in-law, the Flint factory worker left Sunday morning to hunt near Silver Creek. He told his wife and father-in-law, Francis Hurley, that he would return at noon Sunday so they could go partridge hunting.

His family did not become alarmed until he did not show up at 5:00 p. m. They started to search and found his car about 200 yards north of the Bengal Road, Section 20, Wilber Township. This area is west of Monument Road and about two miles from Silver Creek Ranger Station.

Failing to find him there, they notified the losco Sheriff's Department and a search was immediately organized. Sheriff's deputies, auxiliary police, state police, federal forestry workers, Michigan Department of Conservation officers and volunteers combed the woods until late Sunday night.

The search was resumed early Monday morning with airmen volunteers from Wurtsmith Air Force Base joining the hunt.

Shortly before 11:00 a. m. Monday, searchers found Thomas' raincoat, along with his bow and quiver filled with arrows, near where his car had been located the previous day. A search party had passed through that area Sunday night but failed to spot the raincoat in the darkness.

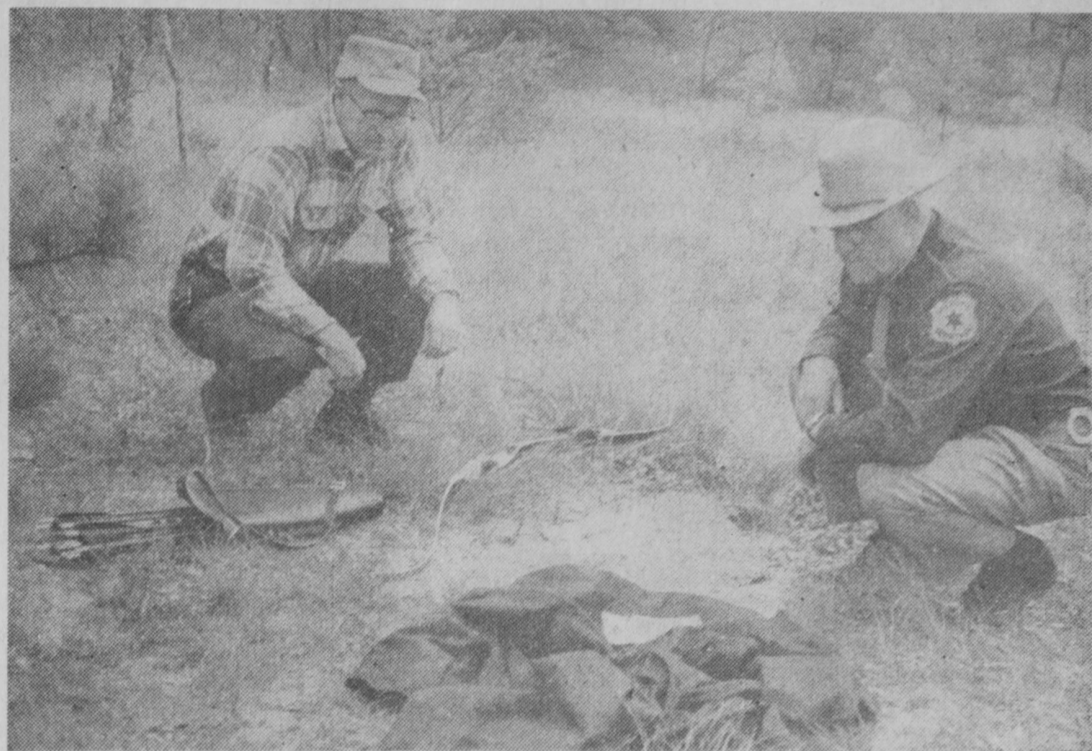

The dark blue raincoat had received a full charge of fine shot in the middle of the back and scattered pellet holes were found in the collar. An empty 12-gauge shotgun shell was found about 40 feet from the raincoat.

Police located marks on the ground which appeared as if a heavy object had been dragged through the tall grass into a valley toward Bengal Road.

This area was again searched by at least 200 persons but no trace was found of the missing man. There were no blood stains on the coat or near the point where it was found, although police said he could have been wearing the garment draped over his shoulders and, if hit by a shotgun blast, the coat could have dropped to the ground.

State Trooper Arnold Jones and his tracking dog, Partner, were called to the scene Monday afternoon. The dog was given the scent from the man's raincoat and began tracking in the immediate vicinity. Search with the dog was discontinued about 2 1/2 hours later when no trail was found.

ASSISTING in the search for the missing hunter was this state trooper and his tracking dog.

Tracy Accepts New Post at Jonesville HS

William Tracy, who has been losco Intermediate School superintendent for the past 3 1/2 years, announced last night (Tuesday) that he would resign this position and assume a new job as superintendent of Jonesville High School.

from the University of Michigan in 1960.

In May of 1962, he succeeded

WILLIAM TRACY

Attending a meeting at Au Gres, at which he called together five area schools to discuss possible reorganization, Tracy said that an exceptional opportunity for advancement had been afforded by the Jonesville offer.

He said, also, that the Hillsdale County position would enable him to continue his education at nearby universities.

Tracy is to succeed L. Dale Bush, former superintendent of Hale Area School.

A native of Ithaca and a graduate of schools in that community, Tracy came here in 1957 after teaching one-half year at Ashley. During his five years at Tawas Area, he had been a social studies instructor in high school and spent one year as junior high principal. He also served one year as assistant football coach and one year as athletic director.

Following four years of service in the United States Navy, he received his bachelor degree from Alma College and master degree Russell A. Rollin Sr. on his retirement as losco County school superintendent.

Many changes in the office have taken place since Tracy took over. The first came when the title was changed to intermediate school superintendent. He has been one of the leaders in the current study on a proposed vocational training program for Bay-Arenac and losco Intermediate School District.

Possible reorganization of area schools into one district has also been a concern of his office. Last summer saw a successful millage proposition for the intermediate school district for a special education program which is now in operation.

He said that the new position had been in the offering for about two weeks. He is to make the move within 30 days. No successor has been named as yet by the intermediate board of education.

Tracy, his wife, Carol, and their three children reside at 702 Washington Street, East Tawas. He has been an active member of the East Tawas Lions Club.

Atomic Energy Program Coming to Two Schools

Tawas Area High School and Oscoda Area High School are listed among 51 Michigan schools which will participate in a demonstration program sponsored by the United States Atomic Energy Commission during October, November and December.

The program, called "This Atomic World," consists of a 40-minute assembly presentation followed by classroom sessions with science students, designed to increase understanding of atomic energy among secondary school students.

The program is to be held October 20 at Oscoda and October 21 at Tawas Area.

Side roads of the Huron National Forest have been checked, along with hospitals of Eastern Michigan. A recheck of back trails was started Monday afternoon and is to continue.

Relatives of Thomas were at the scene Monday and could offer no clues as to his disappearance. His wife and two children remained at his father-in-law's cabin.

Officers said that Thomas' 12-gauge shotgun, which was found in his car, together with an empty shotgun shell found at the scene, were to be taken to East Lansing Tuesday for a comparison. Also to be checked in the state police crime laboratory were the bow and quiver.

The civil action stems from a motorbike-auto crash at the intersection of Fifth Avenue and First Street, Tawas City, on July 16.

Two Hunters Shot as Season Opens

Opening week-end of small game season in the losco area saw two men injured by gunfire.

Harold V. McKinley, 39, Madison Heights, was treated at Tawas Hospital for a gunshot wound on Saturday. Hunting for partridge with Douglas Lee Kennedy, 29, Keego Harbor, near the losco-Alcona line, McKinley was injured when Kennedy propped his shotgun against a tree and it dropped to the ground. The gun discharged when Kennedy made a grab for it.

Jerry Seitz, 32, Midland, was treated at Tawas Hospital and then transferred to Bay City General Hospital Sunday after being wounded in the left side. Hunting on the north side of the AuSable River about two miles down stream from Cooke Dam, Seitz was struck by a rifle slug which had been fired from the south side of the river.

William S. Grose, Midland, a hunting companion, said they had heard numerous shots from across the river and suddenly Seitz was struck by one slug. When the injured man cried out, the shooters fled the scene.

Conservation Officer A. G. Leitz reported Monday that three men had been apprehended shining deer in the area and paid fines in justice court.

Crash Victim's Dad Starts $360,000 Suit

A $360,000 damage suit was filed in losco Circuit Court Thursday by the father of a 16-year-old East Tawas boy, who died last July from injuries received in a motorbike accident.

Named as defendants were Nelson N. Schlicker, the City of Tawas City, John Gutek and Gary Young of Suzuki Rental Systems, Incorporated.

Deadline Looms for Engineering Grant

Final negotiation on securing property for East Tawas' proposed new waste water treatment plant was authorized Monday night by the city council.

According to a letter read by Supt. of Public Works Paul Roper, the city has until October 24 to secure an option on the property or to commence condemnation proceedings.

After that date, the city would lose its $31,000 federal engineering grant if no action is taken.

Proposed site of the new treatment plant is a 15-acre parcel near the East Tawas bridge located north of Franklin Street.

Roper said that plans had been completed by Spicer Engineering Company and await approval of the state health department before forwarding to a federal agency.

Drop City Hall Remodeling Plans—

Council Committee to Study Garage Expansion

Tawas City Council's buildings and grounds committee is to study the possibility of constructing a steel equipment storage shed at the city garage located on Fourth Street.

During discussion at Monday night's council meeting, this construction was offered as an alternate proposal to a study made some time ago on remodeling the city hall.

Additional space is needed in the fire department side of the building to house the city's three trucks. It was said that quarters are cramped to such an extent that if one truck failed to start, the other trucks could not be moved out.

It was proposed to build the steel storage shed addition at the city garage for transfer of, some equipment presently stored there. The fire department's tank truck could then be stored in the heated portion of the building.

The city had received an estimate of $3,515 for remodeling the city hall. It was felt that there should be further study on replacement of the fire department's doors, but other expansion be dropped.

In other business, a report was read from City Attorney A. C. Watson concerning water level of Tawas River. As a future reference, the city measured the water level at Whittemore Street bridge. (See COUNCIL, page 6.)

Plainfield Roads are Being Reconstructed

Reconstruction is now under way by losco County Road Commission equipment and crews on 4 1/2 miles of county roads in Plainfield Township.

Commencing at the four-corner intersection one mile west of Hale, Esmond Road and Londo Lake Road are being completely rebuilt to the Ogemaw County line.

This includes grading, drainage, a 12-inch sand fill and six-inch stabilized aggregate base. The two roads are to receive a wearing surface of prime and double seal bituminous asphalt next spring.

This project is being undertaken solely with road commission funds. Estimated cost of the 4 1/2 miles is $150,000.

Otis Love, road commission engineer, said Monday that county road crews had just completed 80 miles of centerline striping on county roads.

As soon as the Esmond Road-Londo Lake Road project is completed, work is to start on two miles of grading and gravel surfacing on Kokosing Road beginning at Long Lake village to the South Branch Road and continuing two miles east.

TODAY'S Meditation from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

Read Ephesians 5:15-21 Be strong in the Lord and in the strength of his might. (Ephesians 6:10, RSV)

During the "open hearts" hour at the beginning of a youth camp, many young people expressed their uncertainties and weaknesses, feeling they did not have enough faith. As the days went by, we counselors felt that Jesus was challenging them to achieve a victorious life.

At the last service around the campfire, each person told of his experiences during the week. Many expressed victories. Some had discovered how to forgive offenses. Others told of new strength for their lives.

Someone rose and asked that all pray for the young person whom he invited to stand beside him. This young person, with the same invitation, then asked that they all pray for another young person in the group. Thus, they moved around the circle, with each person praying for the others. This formed a circle of love in Christ Jesus.

On the way home, they sang and made plans to influence other young people to have the same experience of faith, prayer and victory in their lives.

PRAYER O God, we beseech Thee to blot out our sins and prepare us for growth in Christlikeness. Grant us victories of the spirit. Teach us to pray for others. Strengthen us as we spend ourselves serving Thee. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY In Christ, our lives attain vital victories. Erasmo Ungaretti (Brazil)

Community Chorus Invites Patron Members

Many businesses and friends of the Tawas Community Chorus received letters last week inviting them to become patron members of the chorus by giving financial support. Patrons receive a season ticket for the entire family and a name or business listing in concert programs. About one-half of the current year's budget is expected to come from this drive.

Anyone not receiving a letter from the committees but wishing to take advantage of the season ticket is requested to call Mrs. Dan Cator or Mrs. James Martin for details.

The chorus is a nonprofit organization. Proceeds from the concerts presented in December and April are used to provide vocal music scholarships for high school students. Central Michigan University scholarships have been awarded the past four years. If enough funds and a suitable candidate become available, an Interlochen scholarship will be offered.

Singers interested in joining the group for the Christmas concert are welcome to attend rehearsals every Tuesday evening, 7:30 o'clock, in the multipurpose room of the East Tawas Elementary Unit.

Hale Area Eagles lost their homecoming game Saturday to Rose City, 25-14.

The visitors scored first when Heaton intercepted a pass and then rolled 50 yards for a touchdown. The run for point after touchdown was good and Rose City held a 7-0 lead.

Hale bounced back in the late stages of the first quarter when Quarterback Dan Maas found Mark Brindley in the open and completed a pass. Brindley then went the distance to score, the play covering 47 yards. Brindley kicked the PAT to tie the game.

Heaton put Rose City ahead in the second quarter when he plunged over from five yards out. The try for PAT was missed and the visitors held a 13-7 margin.

Following ceremonies at half-time which saw the crowning of Hale's homecoming queen, the Eagles roared to life as Larry Drenberg scored from nine yards out on a reverse. Brindley then booted the conversion to put Hale into the lead, 14-13.

Rose City was not to be counted out, however, after recovering an Eagle fumble. Killackey scored on a plunge over the middle to put Rose City ahead, 19-14. In the last seconds of play, Heaton intercepted another pass and rolled 57 yards to score Rose City's second touchdown of the quarter.

Fumbles hurt scoring chances of both teams.

With a record of one win and two losses, the Eagles play this week at Atlanta.

W-P Cards Lost To Harrison Friday, 19-0

Whittemore-Prescott Area Cards dropped their third straight game Friday night to Harrison, 19-0, but not before giving a good account of themselves.

Playing without the services of five regulars, the Cards held a tough Harrison team most of the game. Harrison scored early in the first quarter after taking a W-P punt and then ground its way down the field.

After that score, the Cards stopped a good Harrison offense in its tracks.

The winners scored two TDs in the final quarter on a couple of alert but freak plays.

Quarterback Pat Phelps of the Cards faded back to pass and was hit by a Harrison defender. The ball popped out of his hand and was intercepted by a Harrison player, who ran for a touchdown. Later in the quarter, a W-P pass was caught and then dropped into the hands of a Harrison player and another touchdown resulted.

Whittemore-Prescott was knocking on the scoring door late in the game only to have the clock run out.

The Cards used five sophomores in the backfield and two seniors in the defensive backfield. The later two players were in their first game.

Jerry Osborne led his mates in tackles with eight.

Two Iosco '66 Grads On CMU Team

Two 1966 graduates of Iosco schools are members of the freshman cross country roster at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant. Dick Grebe, who was a member of varsity football, basketball and track squads at Tawas Area High School, has donned colors of CMU. Jim McMurray of Hale Area High School, a varsity football, track and basketball player in his high school days with the Eagles, is the second athlete from the local area to be listed on the CMU roster.

Tawas Braves Fall to Carrollton, 20-6

Tawas Area Braves showed improvement in their third outing of the 1966 football season but lost to the Carrollton Cavaliers, 20-6.

The tough Cavaliers utilized two long runs to score two markers in the third quarter and, other than that, the Braves played on fairly even terms.

The Cavaliers scored first in the initial quarter on a good sustained drive. After Tawas drove to Carrollton's 35 and fumbled on fourth down, the Cavaliers put together three good plays and Darwin Nichols scored from 11 yards out. Dan Schrader booted the PAT and Carrollton had a 7-0 lead.

The second touchdown came on an intercepted pass in the third quarter. Bob Buncheck grabbed the ball on Tawas' 34-yard line and raced 77 yards for a touchdown. The try from placement was blocked.

Tawas drove deep into Carrollton territory later in the quarter only to run out of steam. On the first play from scrimmage, Nichols ran 75 yards for the third and final Cavalier touchdown. The PAT was kicked by Schrader.

Lone Tawas touchdown came in the fourth quarter on a good sustained drive. Taking the Carrollton kickoff, the Braves marched down the field and Dennis Harten went the final five yards to score. The run for PAT was stopped short of the goal line.

Carrollton dominated the offensive play with 356 yards on the ground and in the air. Tawas had 256 yards. The Braves had 13 first downs compared to 15 for the winners. Tawas completed five out of 12 passes and the winners completed three out of five.

Leading tacklers for Tawas were Stan Pardell and John Lorenz.

Despite the loss, Tawas showed good spirit and improved play over two previous losses to West Branch and Bangor.

The Braves take on a tough Pinconning squad this week in the first home game of the season.

Tawas Area Junior Braves lost to a strong Alpena High School JV Thursday night, 39-6. Tawas' record now stands at one win and one loss.

Overpowered on the ground by the visiting Alpena squad, Tawas played on fairly even terms during three quarters of the game. The third quarter saw the visitors score 26 points and turn the game into a complete rout.

The fatal third saw Tawas punt into the wind three times and was in trouble after each kick, deep in its own territory.

Tawas Area's lone score came in the fourth quarter on a pass from Quarterback Dennis Krish to Fred Look. The play covered 65 yards.

Action this week finds Tawas Junior Braves playing at Pinconning Thursday night. The freshman squad is to play at Oscoda Wednesday afternoon.

A Visit With an Iosco School Superintendent

Paul Southerland—A Man With a Problem

Hale School Seeks Classroom Solution

Paul Southerland, 40, is a man with a problem. In seeking answers, he is attending various meetings around the state to learn from the experience of others and is also drawing on his own 15-year career in his chosen field.

As superintendent of Hale Area School, Southerland and the school district are faced with a variety of uncertainties—what to do about overcrowded classrooms, attempt to augment the faculty by hiring four additional teachers and to remedy a situation which saw the school lose its accreditation last year.

Taking one problem at a time would be quite a task, but tackling all three at one time, and still perform his administrative duties besides teaching two classes, is something else again.

"I could probably attend a meeting somewhere in the state every week, but I have to be selective in order that I attend only those meetings which have something to offer our own particular situation," said Southerland.

Right now he is compiling information relative to the strain being placed on Hale Area Schools through an increased enrollment this fall.

For example, he attended a meeting last night (Tuesday) at Au Gres at which administrators of five school districts of Iosco and Arenac were to sit down to discuss a survey for possible reorganization of the schools into one district.

"I really do not know at this time if reorganization would answer Hale Area's problem," Southerland said last Wednesday. "Any reorganization would be years in the future and our need is immediate. Residents of the district will have to decide, after information is obtained, whether Hale Area will reorganize with another district or combination of districts or go it alone by building more new classrooms or a new school."

"I have some question to ask at the October 4 meeting and I hope to get some answers," he said.

One of the questions which he has in mind is the matter of transportation. Hale Area School District is 16 miles in length from north to south and 15 miles from east to west borders. Transporting students to a central high school would be one of those problems of which he speaks.

With a district valuation of more than 9.7 million dollars, Hale Area has a high valuation behind each of its 515 pupils. He awaits an answer from the Michigan Department of Public Instruction if it would be feasible for the district to go into debt to replace its combination wood-masonry high school for this number of pupils.

"Perhaps we could build a new school and turn the present structure into a location for industry," he said. This may sound far-fetched, but probably is worth investigation.

Already operating at capacity, Hale Area School had 25 new students register on the first day of school this fall. This enrollment increase, coupled with a teacher shortage, put a severe strain on already overcrowded classrooms. Effective September 19, the high school went to an eight-period day in order that classes would be smaller and the teaching staff could handle them.

With an increase of 68 pupils during the past three years, Hale Area has one of the fastest-growing student bodies on this side of the state.

"I haven't figured out yet exactly where these students are coming from. Additional employment at Rose City—only 17 miles distant—may have something to do with it and other families may have moved into the inland lakes area and fathers are commuting to Bay City or other communities for employment. We will not know until a complete survey is made of registration cards."

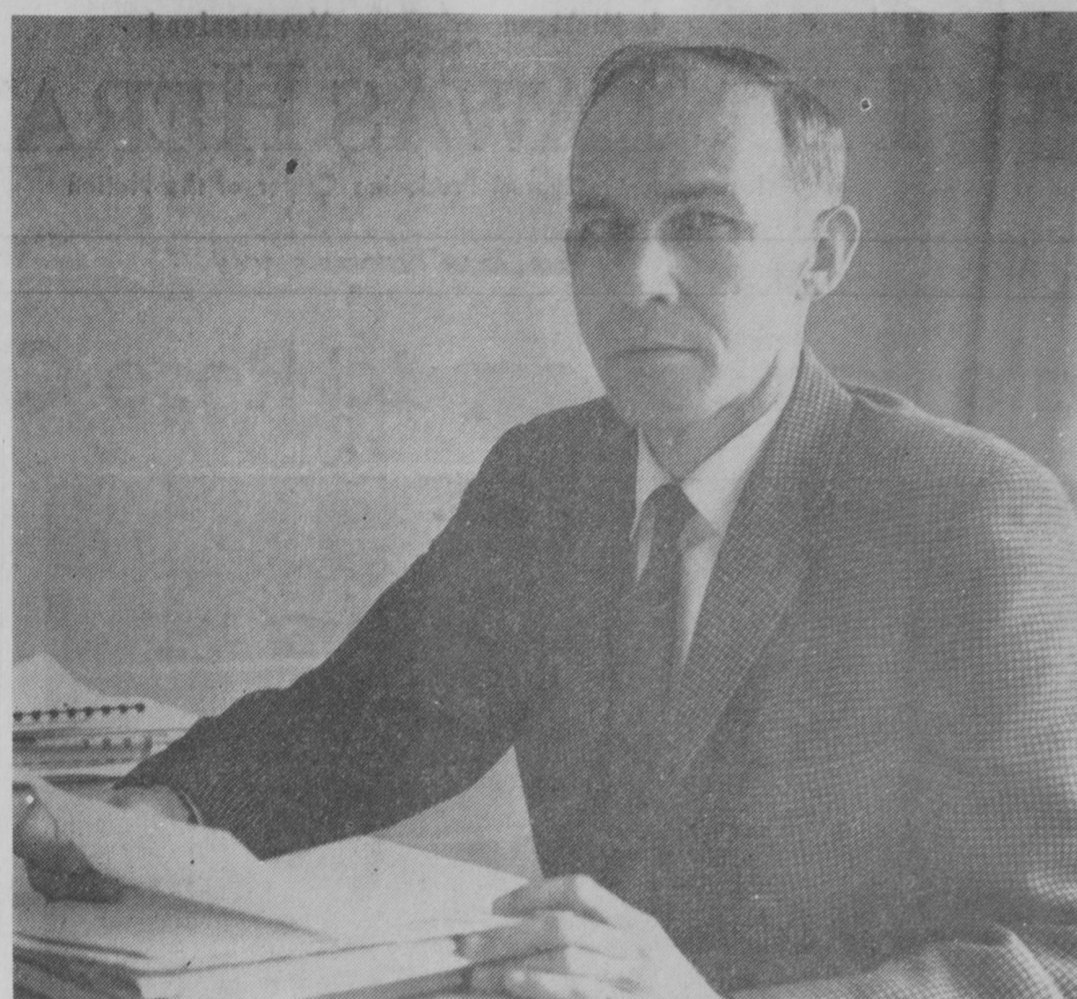

Southerland is in his second year as a superintendent, after serving three years as principal at Rose City. Prior to that, he taught 10 years at Breckenridge.

A native of Indiana, he came to Michigan in 1952 after teaching one year in Illinois. He received his bachelor of science degree from Butler University, Indianapolis, and master degree from the University of Michigan.

As superintendent of a small school system, he is directly involved in all programs of the school. Instead of delegating detail work to others, as is the case in larger systems, much of the administrative work is handled by himself.

He feels that problems facing the district offer a tremendous challenge to him, as well as to members of the board of education, teachers and residents.

Glancing at the wall clock in his office, Southerland closed this interview by stating that he was late for his mathematics class. He is still attempting to hire four teachers—but where to find them?

Standing in back from left are Leon Brunson, shotgun-toting father of the bride; Arlon VanHouten, minister; Fred Friebe, ring bearer. The bare-footed bride wore a hillbilly dress with lace curtain for a veil. Her bouquet was a head of cabbage. The flower girl was dressed in similar attire. White aprons accented lace dresses worn by mothers of the bride and bridegroom and one wore a cape which was over 80 years old. The white vest worn under the minister's swallow-tailed coat was from the suit in which Mrs. Wells' father was married during the Civil War. A doughnut served as a ring for the ceremony. Plainfield Township electors approved a $10,000 bond issue for the purpose of completing a new unit in the Hale schools. The new $40,000 unit was started last spring with Hugh Slosser as contractor. A large amount of the work has been completed and, with the successful outcome of the bond election, the six-room building will soon be ready for use.

One hundred seventy members of the American Association of State Highway Officials, making a three-day tour of Michigan highways, enjoyed a fish fry during their stop at East Tawas Friday. The dinner was served at the community building. Gov. Murray D. VanWagner and G. Donald Kennedy, state highway commissioner, were hosts to the tour.

Injuries received Friday evening when his automobile struck an Erie and Michigan locomotive at the Alabaster crossing were fatal to John D. Dagarui, Detroit. Investigating were Sheriff John Moran, State Troopers Nick Reelcho and Donald Marion. The driver apparently tried to cut around the approaching train and struck the pilot on the front of the locomotive.

The first victory of the war of any real import to Britain has been announced in most positive terms by Winston Churchill. He told the house of commons that the Royal Air Force had attained mastery of the air. The information was given to parliament just as London celebrated its second month without an air raid.

Persons Nearing 65 Should Apply Early for SS Medicare

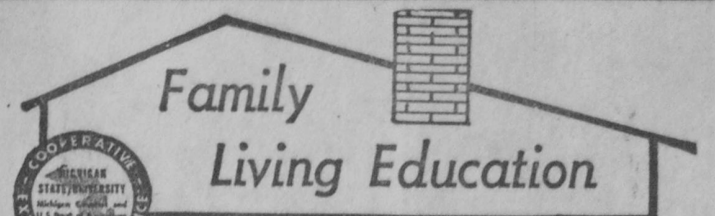

An early application is advised by Paul M. Ellifritz, Bay City's social security district manager, for all persons approaching age 65 who wish full medicare coverage.

The best time to apply, according to Mr. Ellifritz, is in the three-month period before the month in which one reaches 65. During this period, an application for medical insurance benefits, which supplement the basic hospital benefits under medicare, will be effective at age 65. Later filing will result in a delay in this coverage.

Mr. Ellifritz's advice to prospective medicare applicants includes a reminder that practically all persons are eligible at age 65, regardless of their past or present employment. Many who are still employed or self-employed at this age can receive some monthly social security payments because of the new limits on earnings under the retirement program. Simultaneous applications can be made for all social security and medicare benefits to which one may be entitled at 65.

A social security representative will be in the area Thursday, October 13, at the Isoco County Building, Tawas City, from 10:30 a. m. until 2:30 p. m.

Food Storage Problems

Two questions you often hear are part of the discussion in the "Prevent Food Poisoning" meetings held recently in several places throughout the area. They are:

What foods can safely be placed in an automatic oven at 7:00 a. m. with automatic controls set to switch on at 11:00 a. m.?

This is a dangerous practice. Four hours at room temperature (or temperature of unmet oven) provides ideal conditions for the growth of bacteria. If meat placed in the oven is frozen or thoroughly chilled, the danger period is shortened since the frozen food requires time to thaw, thus shortening the period of time when bacteria might grow. Foods that should not be held for four hours at room temperature or in a preset oven include creamed dishes, fish, ground meat and eggs.

Is it true that foods will sour unless cooled to room temperature after cooking before they are placed in the refrigerator?

No! This is not true. Souring is caused by spoilage organisms which survive the cooking process or are picked up by contamination. They grow in food when it is held at temperatures favorable to the organisms. These temperatures occur when foods are not refrigerated promptly. Prompt refrigeration will prevent souring, not cause it.

When You Buy A T-Shirt

Suddenly, you find your little family members need more of those easily-washed, no-iron clothes. When buying T-shirts, look for firm, even, close knitting with no thin places. Look for knit loops that are round and relaxed instead of long and stretched. (Look at the wrong side for this). The more round the loops, the better the chance that the knit will retain its shape through washings. Also, check the neck band so it stretches to go over wearer's head but firmly knit enough to return to original measurement. Reinforcement at the shoulder seams prevents tearing out.

You probably should buy a size larger than ordinary, especially if you plan to dry them in an automatic dryer. Some manufacturers, however, are guaranteeing shrink resistance, so you will no longer need to buy a bit larger.

WANT TO CHASE A B'AR?

Come along on a crisp fall morning to the wild wilderness of a northern state where men and dogs gather in the misty, grey light of dawn to put Mr. Bruin up a tree.

Wear your runnin' shoes and bring a handkerchief to mop your brow, because this is a hunt with more action than a police raid at the country club.

Pioneered by the Michigan Bear Hunters association some 20 years ago, and since copied by Wisconsin hunters, the modern bear chase is aimed at putting more sport into bear hunting. Prior to the chase method of bear hunting, most bruins were taken by hunters who stumbled across the animals' dens during deer seasons. There is little comparison between den-shooting a bear and following a howling pack of dogs through swamp and woods to put a bear up a tree.

The hunts are conducted earlier in the fall when the bear are gorging themselves to store up fat for their winter sleep.

A typical hunt starts long before dawn, when men, boys and dogs gather in bear country to seek out the sign of recent bruin activity. An "Alley Oop" footprint along a dirt road is enough to set things going.

A "strike dog" is turned loose to sort out the track, and when he has done his job and begins to make "bear music" the rest of the pack is turned loose to join in. Bear hounds are bred for stamina, courage and "guts," with the pedigree or breed of relatively little importance. Walker, Redbone, Bluetick and Plott are hound breeds most frequently combined.

Once the dogs are all on the track — packs of three to six are most common—the hunters plunge into the woods behind them. Only the most hardy hunters, such as those in Michigan who condition themselves with roadwork months in advance of hunting, are able to stay within howling or hailing distance of the dogs.

It is the nature of a chased bear to head for the thickest, most impossible cover. A spruce swamp, full of windfalls and black, mucky holes is a favorite place for bruin to lead the chase. Many a hunt has ended in such terrain when the best efforts of experienced dogs and men are not enough to force the bear up a tree.

The length of a chase varies from a few hundred yards to the breadth of a county and back again. A Wisconsin chase once went on for 17 hours and ended without a bear because hunting hours were over when the critter was finally treed.

The killing of a treed bear is anticlimactic to the rest of the hunt. A hunting code in general use allows the first man to the tree the first shot at the bear, but not before the hounds have been put on leashes to prevent their being injured when the bear topples down.

While bear hunting with hounds is likely to grow in popularity, most bear will continue to be taken when the horde of red-shirted deer hunters take to the woods in states that allow concurrent bear hunting.

In one such state where about 600 black bear are killed annually by deer hunters, over half of them are shot in dens. While there are those who claim that den-shooting is not sporting, it is not without its thrills.

A courageous or foolhardy archer, depending on your point of view, once found a dened bear and decided to roust him out for a cleaner shot at the animal. To accomplish this, he stood on top of the den—a mound of dirt and leaves—and dropped a package of lady-finger firecrackers into the den opening.

Mr. Bear came out of the den like a volcano, upsetting the archer and hurtling off into the woods like a big black cannonball.

And the black bear does get big. During a Wisconsin deer season several years ago, a 16-year-old high school girl killed a bear that weighed 635 pounds and held the state record until several days later a hunter killed one near Glidden, Wisconsin that dressed out at 665 pounds.

This tremendous size has a modest start. A newborn cub is about the size of a red squirrel. They are born in January or February while mama bear is dened up for her winter rest. The youngsters — usually two to a litter, but as many as four — grow rapidly. Eleven months after birth they weigh an average of 55 pounds.

A bear's diet consists generally of whatever is available, but is made up primarily of vegetable matter—berries, shrub fruit, and roots. They also eat grubs, ants, rodents, and, of course, honey. Few things give old man bear more pleasure than tearing into a bee tree where he wallows in the honey, apparently unmindful of the irate buzzing bees.

The black bear's varied eating habits frequently get him into trouble that is his downfall. Conservation wardens in bear states are often roused from bed in the wee hours of the morning by a telephone call from a farmer who has suffered an unwelcome visit from a bear. Usually the "guest" has visited the sheep pasture for some fresh mutton, the orchard for apples, or the apiary for a honey feast. Occasionally, however, the visitor has gone after a bigger meal. The warden records in one northern state show a recent complaint where a bear tore boards off the side of an ancient barn to get inside where it killed a cow and calf.

This bear, along with others like it that become trouble makers, have been removed from the scene by the wardens.

Some states pay farmers for damage caused by bear.

Game officials would rather that a bear be taken by a hunter instead of killed on a complaint, and this is another reason for the early hunt in some states.

Bruin's dietary habits have made him important in another aspect of outdoor recreation. This is the appetite that he has developed for the garbage in rural dumps. Thousands of tourists wait at dumps on summer evenings for their first look at a wild bear.

Because many of the "city folks" apparently fail to realize that they are dealing with a wild animal, they do foolish things, such as approaching the animals at close range and even offering them food from their hands.

"Someone is going to get hurt," a warden warned, and cited the more than 100 bear injuries recorded annually at Yellowstone National Park.

Bear are less dangerous to the hunter who, of course, is usually armed with a high-powered rifle. Of some 500 successful bear hunters who responded to a game questionnaire, only four of them reported that the animal charged them after being shot. These charges, which could have also meant that the bear was simply traveling toward the hunter in confusion to escape, were all stopped in plenty of time with additional shots.

Admittedly, it is a lot more fun to chase a bear than to be chased by one, and that brings us back to where we started. You can be a bear chaser simply by putting yourself on the scene. Contact a state conservation department where the hunts are held for details on participation.

And, remember, bring your running shoes.

Why "Power Piston" shooters seem to have all the luck.

from deforming against one another. Pellets start round, stay round. So more of them fly true.

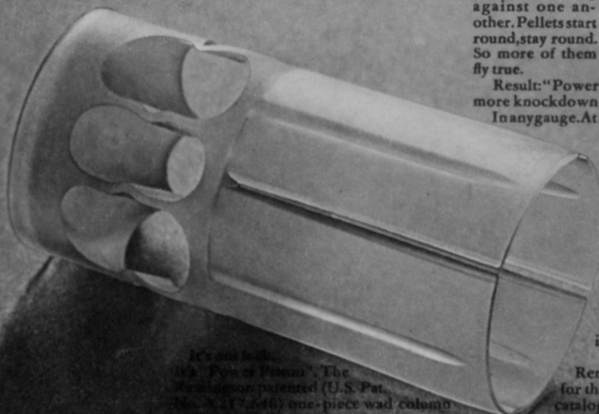

Result: "Power Piston" puts up to 10% more knockdown power in every pattern. In any gauge. At any range. With any gun.

Now you can get all the advantages of "Power Piston" in 12, 16, 20 and 28 gauge Remington "Express" loads. And in 12, 16 and 20 gauge Remington "Shur Shot" field loads. All with famous Remington plastic-shell construction. All at your Remington dealer's.

It's not luck. It's "Power Piston". The Remington patented (U.S. Pat. No. 3,172,248) one-piece wad column and shot support.

"Power Piston" puts up to 10% more knockdown power in every pattern of every Remington shotgun shell.

Some Remington shooters consider "Power Piston" a sort of secret weapon. But there's no secret in why "Power Piston" does what it does: The rounder the shot's kept, the more effective the pattern. Round shot travels straighter, travels farther, hits harder.

"Power Piston" helps keep the shot round... all the way to the target.

It's that simple. "Power Piston" helps prevent pellets from flattening against the inside of the barrel. Prevents them

BIG YIELDS . . . HOW TO

- EARLY HARVEST
- ON-THE-FARM DRYING

BIG NAME for BIG YIELDS

The modern, short, tough corn that takes heavy fertilization

Sensational DeKalb XL Corn Varieties are made-to-order for the quest toward higher corn yields. In fact, it's such short, tough, responsive hybrids that make intensive cultural practices a practical—and profitable—reality. Concentrated breeding gives DeKalb XL's the ability to thrive in narrow rows at high populations; the ability to respond in extra bushels to higher levels of fertility, and the ability to stand and retain ears well for a clean, fast harvest.

Want proof? Look to the records of farmers in the DeKalb 200-Bushel Club . . . yields mechanically harvested from measured acres, elevator-weighed and tested, figured as No. 2 Corn: In 1965, 96 of the top 100 yields were made with XL Varieties. Average of these top yields was 177.5 bushels. Go with XL—BIG name for BIG yields.

"DEKALB" is a Registered Brand Name. "XL" is a Variety Designation.

The line at many country elevators is getting as long as the one at the ball park's pop stand. And it threatens to get longer.

Advances in corn growing practices, such as those described at last winter's Corn-Soybean Clinics, have increased yields and grain volume to the point where many elevators are finding it difficult to handle harvest deliveries either quickly or efficiently. A growing number of farmers have found the solution to this problem by side-stepping the elevator line completely with on-the-farm grain drying.

Mechanical drying has a lot more advantages than simply avoiding the wait at the elevator. Farmers with bin dryers have found that they can use later maturing hybrids and harvest them at relatively high moisture during the normal harvest period. This greatly reduces the danger of bad weather damage normally associated with late hybrids, and can give them the increase of up to 20 bushels per acre that full-season hybrids often yield over 100-day varieties.

In some cases, a 10 to 20 bushel increase can boost profits 25 to 50%. You have to go through most of the motions to plant, control weeds and harvest the crop anyway, so any extra yields can result in substantial profit increases.

Then, too, on-the-farm dryers keep field losses at a minimum because they allow owners to harvest corn at 25 to 27% moisture. One owner who is particularly aware of this fact is H. N. P. Small, Letts, Iowa.

"With the extra corn I saved in the field, plus the increasing market price of stored corn as the season progresses, I paid for my drying system in no time," says Small. "I wouldn't want to go back to farming without one."

Another Iowa farmer who has found the benefits of harvesting early and drying corn in his own system is Dean VanderHeiden, Wheatland, Iowa. "I can't begin to count the advantages of using a dryer system," he says. "Getting the corn out of the field early helps me harvest all I raise, and I have enough cattle and hogs to use what I grow. The extra corn I gain from early harvest helps reduce my cost of feed. It's just another hidden benefit I've found in using a dryer system."

VanderHeiden and Small aren't the only farmers highly satisfied with their grain drying equipment. Many Cornbelt farmers heard and heeded the advice of batch drying experts who appeared at the Corn-Soybean Clinics held throughout the midwest last winter.

As G. L. Joseph of Behlen Mfg. Co. puts it, "A few years ago, not many farmers considered drying their own grain before selling it. But those who have changed over to this new method are finding more profits than they ever imagined."

For the past seven years, the market price of corn has been at its lowest point at harvest time. Then, generally, the price rises from that time until spring, and this price increase for farmers who dry their corn and sell at these later prime market dates has helped them pay for their drying and storage systems in a hurry.

Small adds evidence to that fact: "We found that we can market our corn when the price is right. And our corn always sells for a better market price because it has been dried."

Another farmer who makes efficient use of a dryer system is Ned Brown, Galesburg, Illinois. Using both a 6,500 bushel dryer and a 10,000 bushel storage bin, Brown has been able to dry 1,300 to 1,400 bushels of corn per day.

"Our previous methods of storing grain were inconvenient, slow, and just didn't fit in with the newer, quicker harvesting methods we're using," Brown relates. "We get our moisture content down to less than 14% for less than 3¢ a bushel. This is quite a savings over the 10¢ a bushel we'd have to pay at the elevator, and we don't have to wait in line, either."

Another farmer drying corn for 3¢ a bushel is Don Lull, Sugar Grove, Illinois. His drying and storing facilities have grown to such an extent that they could put some commercial elevators to shame.

"Owning a dryer has always made a lot of sense to me," says Lull. "You can start to harvest earlier, and the dryer almost pays for itself simply by saving the amount of grain you would otherwise leave in the field."

One common warning is issued by all four of these dryer owners: Improper use of a drying system can eliminate many of a dryer's benefits.

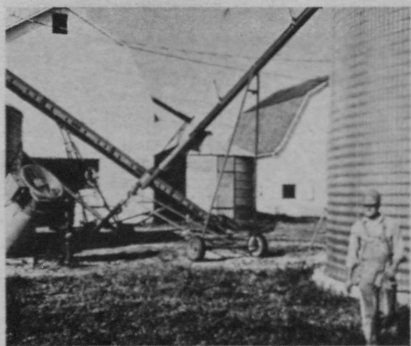

For example, many farmers dry their corn to a much lower moisture percentage than needed. This results in very hard kernels, and feeding is almost impossible unless it is first ground or cracked. Secondly, corn dried under extremely high temperatures is often damaged, and commercial buyers won't bid much for corn dried in a bin that's too hot.

HANDLE THEM

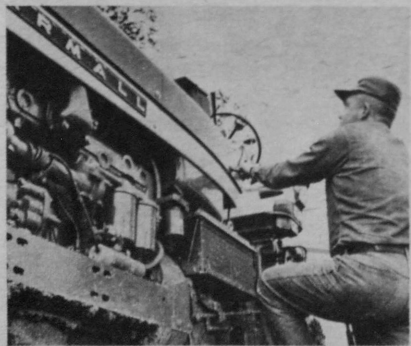

Used properly, on-the-farm grain dryers offer owners great opportunities at harvest time. It makes little sense to do everything in your power to grow top yields, then leave a good portion of them in the field because you lack proper drying and storage facilities. Used with the efficiency for which they're designed, a dryer can save you time, and more importantly, put more profits in your pocket.

Big yields are common to H. N. P. Small and his son, Ted. They've been raising over 100 bushels per acre since 1946 . . . and use a drying system to help them harvest every bushel they grow.

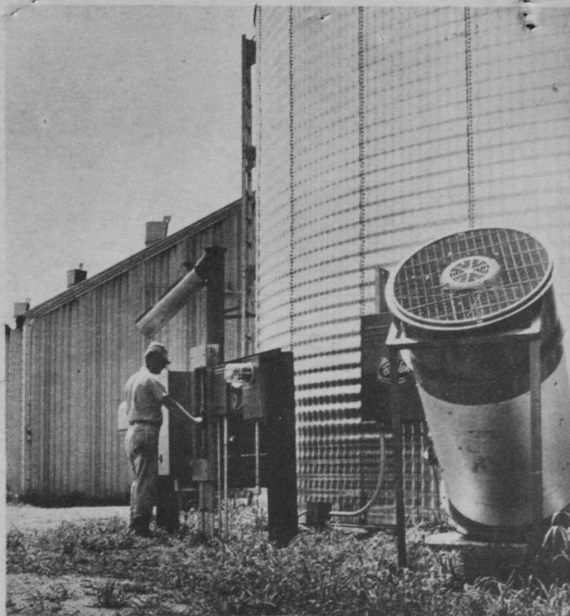

Ned Brown took the kinks out of his previously slow, inconvenient corn harvesting methods by switching to a large volume dryer and storage facility. He now dries 1,300 to 1,400 bushels of corn per day.

Dean VanderHeiden was acknowledged as one of the top corn producers in Iowa last year. He credits his grain dryer for having helped him raise his bushel-per-acre average, and lowering his livestock feed costs due to the greater volume of grain.

Don Lull's drying and storage facilities compare well with many commercial elevators. He gets his moisture content down to storage level for less than 3¢ a bushel, quite a bit under what he'd have to pay to have it done commercially, and under the price he would be docked

The News of Knox, Ind., quotes a businessman who came up the hard way as saying, "About all you can do on a shoestring these days is trip."

"Most of the wide open spaces left in this country are surrounded by teeth," says The Ripon (Wis.) Commonwealth-Press.

"Just about the time I make up my mind to fight temptation," says the Burlington (Wis.) Standard-Press, "I get the nagging thought that it might not come again."

The Le Sueur (Minn.) News Herald reports, "Statistics show that more people die in bath tubs than in swimming pools, proving to small boys that water with soap in it is extremely dangerous."

"Nature has a way of evening up things," says The Sibley (Iowa) Tribune. "You are probably just as repugnant to your relatives as they are to you."

"Life goes on," says The Lanesboro (Minn.) Leader, "and there comes a time when you don't have to pay girls to spend their evenings with your son."

A sign of the times, according to the Steuben Republican of Angola, Ind., is using instant coffee to dawdle away an hour.

Two "filler" items on the same page of the Tipton Daily Tribune of Tipton, Ind., were:

One. "The alcoholic beverage industry today employs one out of every 42 working American adults."

Two. "The Pacific horned lizard squirts blood out of its eyes when it is frightened."

"Your mind is like a parachute," claims the Wayne County Press of Fairfield, Ill., "If you expect it to work, it first has to open."

"People who have the ability to laugh at themselves are constantly amused," says The News of Tell City, Ind.

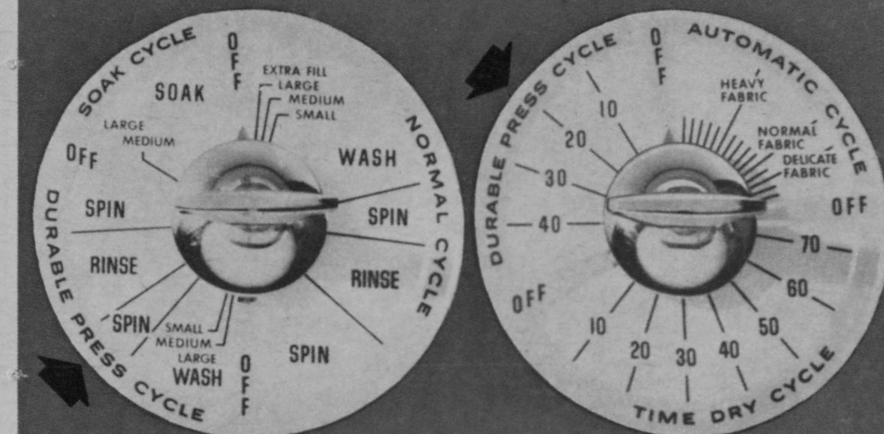

The Lima (Ohio) News claims that the world population is divided into three groups: the small group that makes things happen; the large group that watches things happen; and the multitude that never knows what happens.

The working class was never more aroused than by the fellow who invented the alarm clock, comments the O'Brien County Bell of Primghar, Iowa.

ice cream sundae only on sunday

BY RAY TETZLAFF

It was in the old confectionery store that the ice cream sundae came into being served by Edward C. Berners in Two Rivers, Wisconsin. Back in 1881 a customer, George Hallauer, from Marshall, Illinois, stopped at Berners and ordered a large dish of ice cream. While waiting for his dessert a thought occurred to him.

"Say Ed, put a couple of spoonsful of that chocolate stuff on top of that ice cream."

"What chocolate?" asked Berners.

"That same stuff you put in ice cream sodas—I want it on top of my ice cream."

With some hesitation Berners followed orders. The new chocolate covered ice cream was so delicious that Hallauer ordered another one, 'with the chocolate stuff on top.' Other customers came in, tried the new dish and enjoyed it too.

Soon there was a demand for the new but tasty ice cream combination. Mr. Berners added other flavors such as strawberry, raspberry and marshmallow. Going a bit further he heaped on nuts, bananas, and fruits and made up names for these eye and taste appealing treats. He added raisins to the chocolate dish and called it the 'Mudscow.' He crushed cereal, used it as a topping, and named it the 'Golden Glow.' One dish of ice cream, dripping in raspberry juice, trimmed with puffed rice was called the 'Ricity Popa.'

Many new dishes were concocted, each with its own original name, such as the Flora Dora, the Gold Fish and an extra large serving of ice cream swimming in fruit juices was called the Two Rivers. More combinations were thought up using chopped nuts, whipped cream, cherries, and dabs of candy—all for the price of five cents.

At Manitowoc, Wis., six miles away, another confectioner by the name of Charles Giffey heard of this competition serving the exotic ice cream dishes with fantastic names. Giffey appeared at Berners and asked for a dish of "that ice cream with the chocolate on top." He was pleased with the dessert and the trimmings but not so pleased when he saw how much was being served for only five cents. He imagined all the ice cream stores going broke if they served so much for such a low price.

Between Mr. Berners and Mr. Giffey they decided that the price would be kept at five cents, used as a sales leader and sold only on Sunday.

It was little Peggy Giffey, the ten year old daughter of George, while visiting at Two Rivers, came into the Berners store, seated herself at a table and ordered "One of those dishes of ice cream with all that 'stuff' on top."

"Oh," said Mr. Berners, "We serve that only on Sundays."

"I know, but I want some of that ice cream now—"

"Can't, sold only on Sundays."

"Well, I want some now. We can make believe today is Sunday," she insisted. Little Peggy won the argument and was served her dish of ice cream with all that 'stuff' on top.

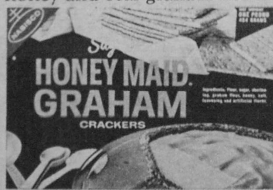

The name 'Sundae' came into use when a crockery salesman, taking an order from Mr. Berners for the long canoe shaped dish, placed his order with the factory and called them 'Sundae Dishes.'

The ice cream sundae has changed over the years with new flavors, new colors and new names. The price has changed considerably too.
