

OBSERVING his 92nd birthday December 7 will be Emil Schramm of East Tawas, who was an employee of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway for 46 years. He is enjoying good health despite his advancing years and recalled Sunday that it was on May 11, 1894, that he first went to work for the railroad. Born in 1875, his first job at about age 16 earned him 50 cents a day at the Sibley and Bearinger Mill, later earned $1 a day at the Company Mill and worked for $1.25 a day at the Holland and Emery Mill until fires in steam boilers were finally banked for the last time to end the lumber manufacturing era of this area. His work with the railroad included construction of stations along the route before transferring to the Tawas shop. Mr. Schramm said one of his most pleasant recollections was the picnic and rail excursion given employees, families and retirees of the railroad two years ago. He hopes to be around for another day like that one.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Action Reapportions T. City's Three Wards

Changing boundaries of the Second Ward has resulted in complete reapportionment of Tawas City's three wards under the one-man, one-vote ruling of the supreme court.

A report submitted by Aldermen John St. James, Daniel Ulrich and Supt. of Public Works Reginald Bubltz was approved at the Monday night council meeting. It is to be submitted to the state to meet a December 31 deadline for filing.

In presenting the report, Bubltz said that a census conducted by Mrs. Alton Long had indicated a changing population. While there are now fewer empty houses than at any time in recent years, he believed that families were somewhat smaller. He believed that some younger and larger families had probably sought employment in metropolitan areas.

Bubltz said that total population was now 1,795 persons, 15 below the 1960 census. The committee discovered that a number of families were not listed on the report and corrections were made. The census taker was unable to contact several families and, when figures are double-checked, the population will probably be at or slightly above the 1960 figure.

According to the ward-by-ward count, there were 736 persons living in the First Ward, 430 in the Second Ward and 629 in the Third Ward.

As a result, old ward boundary lines were realigned to remove 138 persons from the First Ward, 31 from the Third Ward and transferred to the Second Ward.

Population is now 580 in the First, 618 in the Second and 597 in the Third. Bubltz said that the middle ward was restricted in future growth because of existing houses while both the First and Third Wards have room for expansion.

The old boundary lines of the Second Ward were First Street on the north and Whittemore Street (with a jog south to Third Street) on the south.

The ward's new boundary line starts at First Street, runs to Second Avenue, jogs north one block and extends to the west city limits along North Street. As a result, the Second Ward picked up all but two blocks south of North Street which had formerly been in the First Ward.

The south boundary line starts at Whittemore Street, turns south on Fifth Avenue, west on Mathews Street, south on Sixth Avenue to the Dead Creek bridge and then follows the creek bed to Seventh Avenue. The line then extends north one-half block until turning west on Third Street. As a result, the two blocks south of Whittemore Street and north of Mathews Street, bounded by Fifth Avenue on the east and Seventh Avenue on the west, are now in the Second Ward.

Names of all residents are to be filed by wards in alphabetical order at the city hall. Notices are to be sent to those persons whose voting precincts have been changed in order that they may register.

Tawas Area School Teacher Died Suddenly November 29

John R. Breece, 25, a mathematics teacher at Tawas Area High School for the past two years, died at his home Wednesday, November 29, of a sudden heart attack.

Mr. Breece had been ill for about a week and had remained home from teaching duties. His wife, Dianne, also a member of Tawas Area School faculty, discovered his body on the floor of their East Tawas home upon her return Wednesday afternoon.

Born October 17, 1942, at Flint, he was a graduate of Adrian College. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity, East Tawas Lion Club and the Methodist Church.

He was married to the former Dianne E. Rozeboom on January 23, 1965, at Flint.

In addition to his teaching duties, he was a junior varsity football coach a year ago and advisor for the Key Club.

Two different memorial funds have been established at the school, one by students and the other by faculty members.

Survivors include his wife; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Breece, Flint; one brother, Gary, Mt. Morris; one sister, Ruth Ann Pickard, Flint; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Breece, Flint.

Funeral services were held Saturday at Reigle Funeral Home, Flint. The Rev. Lew Sutton officiated and burial was in Sunset Hills Cemetery, Flushing. A memorial service was conducted Saturday afternoon at East Tawas Methodist Church by the Rev. Donald Turbin.

Finance a Question on Harbor Project

Federal participation in proposed improvements to navigation in Tawas Harbor is still in question, according to a communication received last week from Cong. Elford A. Cederberg, 10th District representative.

While favorable endorsement of the $927,600 project has been given by the Department of the Army, an amendment to the Flood Control Act of 1965 would be necessary for financing.

In a letter to John W. McCormack, speaker of the house of representatives, dated November 21, Stanley R. Resor, secretary of the army, said that his department would consider this project as unauthorized unless it is included in an omnibus bill, or the draft legislation transmitted by letter January 1 is enacted.

"The Bureau of Budget advised that there is no objection to the submission of the proposed report to congress," said Secretary Resor. "However, it states that no commitment can be made at this time as to when an estimate of appropriation would be submitted for construction of the project, if authorized by congress, since this would be governed by the president's budgetary objectives as determined by the then prevailing fiscal situation."

The secretary of the army's recommendation is in response to a resolution of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors of the House of Representatives, adopted March 8, 1945, which requested a review of the reports on Tawas River submitted December 11, 1931.

District and division engineers of the Department of the Army recommend improvements for recreational navigation at Tawas Harbor by construction of a breakwater comprising an extension of the existing State Waterways Dock at East Tawas, with facilities for recreational fishing on the breakwater.

East Tawas Council Studies Zoning Code

After about 2 1/2 years of development, East Tawas Planning Commission submitted a proposed zoning ordinance to the city council Monday night.

The ordinance is part of an overall master plan proposed for East Tawas and Baldwin Township. Raymond Mills and Associates, city planning firm of Midland, had served as consultants.

The city council is to review the ordinance and a special meeting will probably be called within the next two weeks to discuss passage. Baldwin Township's portion of the plan has already received approval.

Felix (Phil) Galavage, chairman of the planning commission, said that the proposed ordinance provided for a 20-year plan for the orderly development of the community.

In conjunction with discussion on the above proposal, councilmen were shown an improvement plan for the Newman Street business section which has been instituted by businessmen and other interested individuals.

Beth Zorn, a Detroit area architect, was hired to study the business district and make recommendations as to improving store fronts. Working from actual photographs of existing buildings and studying the history of the community, she has developed a plan which has caught the fancy of most persons who have viewed her work at O'Connor's Pendleton Shop.

For instance, one businessman

Secretary Resor: 'Would consider this project as unauthorized unless included in omnibus bill, or legislation enacted.'

Lt. Gen. William F. Cassidy, chief of engineers, stated in a letter to the secretary of the army on October 12 that a defined entrance channel and anchorage area would be provided in the project, which would require no dredging, since depths of 12 feet in the entrance and 10 feet in the anchorage area are presently available.

The proposed improvement would have an estimated construction cost $924,000, of which the federal cost would be $465,500 for construction and $2,000 annually for maintenance, exclusive of aids to navigation.

Remaining cost of the project would be provided by the Michigan Waterways Commission, which has already given its approval.

Maj. Gen. R. G. MacDonnell, chairman of the board of engineers for rivers and harbors, noted in his report that the nearest available harbor facilities are at AuSable, about 20 miles to the north, and Port Austin, about 30 miles to the southeast of Tawas Bay. Both of these harbors have been federally improved.

General MacDonnell reported that the district engineer finds the most feasible plan of improvement for Tawas Bay Harbor, considering the type and number of locally based and cruising craft expected to use the improved harbor, would be to provide for construction of a breakwater.

This would provide for construction of four interconnected sec-

City Seeking Federal Grant To Aid Project

On recommendation of the city planning commission a six-man committee has been appointed to make final negotiations for purchase of property expanding the Tawas City Park.

Immediate steps are to be taken to file for federal assistance in the acquisition of land. County Agent Marvin Davenport, who assisted Iosco County in obtaining a federal grant for acquisition of recreational land at the mouth of the AuSable River, is to work with the committee.

Paul Chevis, planning commission chairman, said that three different federal assistance programs had been studied. The most promising appears to be one administered by the Department of Agriculture, through state departments of conservation, which contributes up to 50 percent of the purchase price.

The planning commission has studied expansion of the city park for about two years and finally decided that it should be extended to the southeast. Proposed improvements as a waterfront recreational area were developed in the city's master plan.

Property included in the proposed expansion would include that owned by Carl Babcock (excluding the 60 by 66-foot portion fronting on US-23), Herbert Hertzler, E. L. Deacon and Jefferson Trucking.

Chevis said that Hugo Groff, owner of Rainbow Service, had been contacted and he did not desire to dispose of any of his property at the present time because of its utilization.

Estimated cost of the four lots between the park and Rainbow Service is $30,350. Whittemore Street, 66 feet wide, extends to the shore line southeast of Rainbow Service and an alternate plan calls for the addition of a 100-foot-wide lot to the southwest of Whittemore Street owned by Delano Myles. This would bring the purchase price to approximately $42,350.

The city has also taken an option to purchase the Clute industrial property located on Ninth Avenue. Financing the two projects is the subject of a report to the council.

Clyde Soper to Resign From School Board

Resignation of Clyde Soper as a member of Tawas Area Board of Education was received this week, according to an announcement Tuesday afternoon by Leonard Sarki, board president.

The letter of resignation, to be effective January 1, is to be acted upon at next Monday night's regular meeting. A successor is to be named at that time.

Soper, who had served on the board since being elected in June 1964, had been re-elected as board secretary at last July's annual re-organizational meeting.

Community Chorus Presents Annual Concert Dec. 10

Tawas Community Chorus presents its annual Christmas concert at Tawas Area High School Sunday, December 10, at 3:00 p. m. The program, under the direction of Jerry Williams, will consist of a cantata called "The Voices of Christmas."

Local soloists are Robert Richter, Marian Toska, the Rev. William Lindholm, Lois Freil and Viola Cater. Mary Lubig will accompany the chorus on the flute and Kaye Phelps and Joan Krueger will entertain during the intermission with piano-organ duets.

Proceeds help to finance a local high school music student to attend summer music camp.

Would Organize New Iosco Historical Society Dec. 20

Following action last week by a study committee appointed by the board of supervisors, a meeting is to be held December 20 for the purpose of organizing an Iosco County Historical Society.

Membership in the proposed organization would be open to any interested person. Officers and a board of directors elected at the December 20 meeting, to be held at the county building starting at 8:00 p. m., would probably be designated as an official county historical commission by the board of supervisors.

John Weible, Alabaster Township supervisor, who was named temporary chairman of the study committee, said it was the feeling of those attending that membership in such an organization should be open to anyone interested in historical matters pertaining to this county.

"We would like to have a good representation from all sections of the county at our next meeting," said Weible. "From school teachers and student groups to collectors, amateur historians, writers, collectors or anyone interested in Iosco's past."

Official sanction of the board of supervisors would probably be needed to designate an historical commission to accept donations of money and historical materials for a county museum.

While construction of a public museum would be a long-term project, immediate activities of the proposed historical society could include encouragement to townships and cities in establishing historical markers, provide space for safekeeping of historical papers and other materials, development of historical display cases for use in public buildings and schools, encouragement to authors of historical papers.

It was noted at the meeting that most material had already been "lost" to the county through donations to outside agencies or through actual destruction by owners.

Weible said that it was the feeling of the group that, after initial organization, meetings could be held in various sections of the county in order to stimulate interest.

Mrs. C. R. McMullen, acting director of the Iosco-Arenac Regional Library, was present and reported that the Michigan Historical Commission had notified her that several county record books being held at Alabaster would soon have to be turned over to the state, according to law.

Mrs. McMullen felt that such materials should be retained in the county because of local interest and use in research. The record books contain records of Civil War veterans and original incorporation records of most churches of the county. The books were once stored in the county building and then turned over to the regional library.

The board of supervisors is to be asked to adopt a resolution returning the books to the county clerk's vault until other arrangements can be made for providing fire proof storage space at the regional library headquarters.

Attending the first meeting were the following study committee members appointed by Charles Smith, chairman of the board of supervisors: Weible, Hazel Silas, Neil Thornton, Miss Edna Otis and Joseph Barkman.

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

TODAY'S Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

Read Hosea 14:1-9; I John 3:9-16

I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely. (Hosea 14:4)

Hosea was a pioneer in proclaiming the everlasting mercy and the unchanging love of God. In the book that bears his name, he presents a great fundamental truth—God's tender love, which is stronger than His anger, "the Holy One in the midst" who suffers with the sinful.

In order to drive home his point, Hosea makes reference to his own domestic life as an illustration. He tells of his abiding love for his wife, Gomer, and of her unfaithfulness in the marriage relationship. Hosea likens God's love for Israel to his love for Gomer. He compares Gomer's unfaithfulness to Israel's breaking the covenant relationship with God.

Israel had treated God in the same manner as a wayward wife treats a kind and loving husband. With words of glowing eloquence, Gosea exhorted Israel to return to the embrace of God's forgiving love.

PRAYER

We thank Thee, dear Father, for a flag ceremony. One visitor, Sandy Palmer, was present. Debby Duquette furnished treats.

for the gift of pardoning grace. We rejoice in being set free from our load of guilt. Help us to give ourselves wholeheartedly to Thee in loving deeds of service. In the name of our Savior. Amen.

acts would require about one mill of taxes for 10 years.

Davenport said he could envision no trouble in obtaining a federal grant to purchase land to expand the city park and believed this could be accomplished within three to five months. He said that the city had complied with one of the most important requirements by adopting a master plan.

The county agent said that one of the first steps after filing would be to obtain services of a federally-approved appraisal firm to establish true cash value of the property. Investigation is to be made to determine if the Gem Survey appraisal would meet federal approval.

After polling the city council, Mayor Russell A. Rollin said that aldermen appeared to be very favorable toward park expansion. He appointed Aldermen John St. James and Howard Hatton to act on the committee. Representing the planning commission and park board will be Chevis, Nelson Thornton, Martin Welina and H. R. (Jim) Hilbert. Supt. of Public Works Reginald Bulbitz was appointed as an ex officio member.

Bulbitz told councilmen that a new law enacted by the legislature allows the city to borrow money for this type of expenditure.

Michigan to Delay Further Coho Plantings in Lake Huron

A recommendation that Michigan refrain from a major expansion of its coho salmon planting program until results of natural spawning are assessed and the effects of large numbers of coho on other desirable species determined, was approved by the Great Lakes Fishery Commission.

The international body which is composed of fisheries experts from the Great Lakes states, Canada and the United States Department of Interior, serves in an advisory capacity on Great Lakes problems. It made the recommendations at the final session of its two-day meeting.

The commission made it clear, however, that it welcomed the spectacular survival of Michigan's coho planting as a major step in developing the sport fishing potential of the Great Lakes.

In voicing its go-slow recommendation, the commission also asked Michigan and Ontario representatives to develop a joint plan for the expansion of the coho program on Lake Huron on which would take into consideration the interests of the state and province.

On the opening day of the meeting at the United States Bureau of Commercial Fisheries Great Lakes Research Laboratory where the commission has its headquarters, Canadian commissioners expressed concern over large scale introduction of the salmon into Lake Huron because of a potential threat to its splake program.

Canada started its program of introducing splake (a cross between the brook and lake trout) into Lake Huron five years ago and expects to begin major plantings in 1969-70. Canadian commissioners are fearful that large numbers of adult coho would feed on the young splake, negating the money and effort involved in establishing the new species.

In addition to its other recommendations, the commission called for a detailed discussion of research on coho at meetings of its lake committees in March.

Although the survival of Michigan's first coho plantings and recovery of the lake trout following sea lamprey depredations were the most discussed items at the meeting, the commission also took up the issue of gill net fishing and other Great Lakes problems.

Commissioners agreed with Walter Crowe of the Michigan Department of Conservation that the rate at which young lake trout are being taken by gill nets in some areas at certain seasons could reduce the effectiveness of lake trout rehabilitation and requires measures to minimize losses.

The proposal by the Michigan Department of Conservation to control gill net fishing by a flexible permit system and continue onboard inspections was endorsed by the commission.

The board of engineers for harbors and rivers noted that a definite need exists for parking facilities to accommodate break-water fishermen and that federal participation in the cost of such facilities would be appropriate. ## Important Dairy Meet Dec. 12 at Whittemore-Prescott HS

A meeting to discuss substitute dairy products and a proposed dairy market program will be held Tuesday, December 12, 8:00 p. m., in the cafeteria of Whittemore-Prescott Area High School.

Dr. Glynn McBride, marketing specialist from Michigan State University, and Boyd Rice, manager, American Dairy Association, will present the discussion, "Substitute Dairy Products—A Challenge."

An estimated 25 percent of the market for dairy products has been taken over by substitutes. This means a loss of about 75 million dollars a year to Michigan's dairy industry.

The story of oleo is well known. Other dairy substitutes have entered the picture during the past few years. Now substitute milk is being offered for sale in some states.

Why is this happening? What could it mean to the dairy industry? What can dairy farmers do about this problem? These and other questions about this will be discussed. This could well be the most serious challenge ever faced by the dairy industry.

This meeting is open to anyone interested. Time will be included for questions from those attending.

All members of Jesse Hodder Post No. 189, Auxiliary and their families are invited to attend the annual Christmas dinner-party Sunday, December 10, 5:30 p. m., at the Legion Hall, Tawas City.

Braves Meet Orioles in Season Opener

Tawas Area Braves open the 19-67-68 basketball season Friday night by playing host to an NBC rival, West Branch. Conference teams are starting basketball one week later than last year.

The Braves have seven lettermen returning from last year's squad which had 12 wins and five losses, but every conference team is expected to be strong this year and past performances will have little bearing on the final standings.

Returning for another go in the basketball wars are Ron Doak, forward; Paul Beyer, center; Howard Rollin, forward; Dale Koepke, guard; Dennis Krish, guard; Gene Kushion, guard.

Gary Haglund, last year's starting center, will not see action until later in the season because of a leg injury received last spring in track.

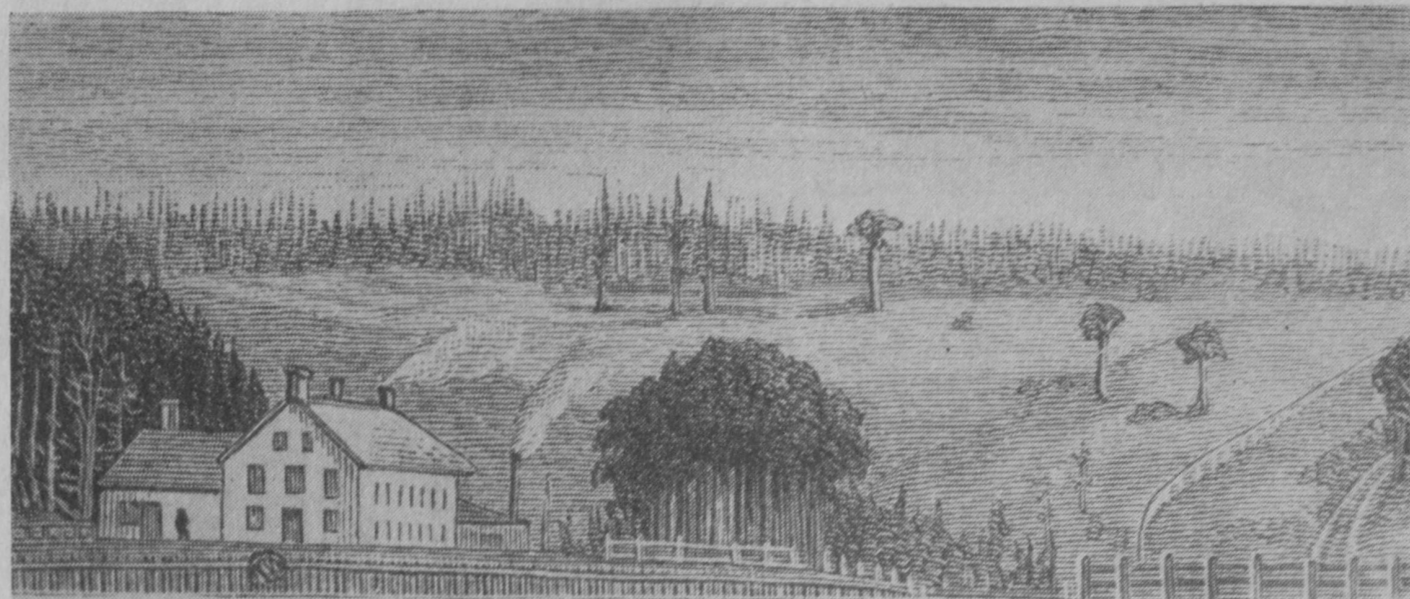

Moving up from the junior varsity will be Dale Rieger, Mike

Yanek, Tom Brown, Bob Brugger, Paul Becker, Mike Hearl and Len Sarki, all juniors, while Dennis Wetzel and Dave Cholger are first year members as seniors.

Tawas and West Branch have long been traditional rivals in prep sports and Friday night's game will give coaches and fans a look at what can be expected during the coming three months.

Season Opens

Hale Area Eagles opened the cage season Friday night by losing a thriller to Fairview, 68-66, at home. Whittemore-Prescott Cardinals open the season this Friday night at home by hosting Harrison.

Historic Thompson Farm

BY JERRY WAGNER

I stood silently in the Thompson Cemetery and gazed at those weathered tombstones. Two of the markers bore the name, "Simons," one had toppled over and split sidewise, its creviced letters barely discernable and the other stood upright but at a grotesque angle. The third old tombstone, a dusky, chalky white, had the name "Kingham" chiseled into its weathered, brittle face.

A slight distance away, a never tombstone, the fourth and the last one in the whole cemetery, boldly declared that beneath it where the earth was delicately indented was the resting place of Ellen Thompson, born 1833—died 1877.

This gentle burial spot lays forlornly in scrub oak and pine country on the south side of the AuSable River, about three miles north of what is now called the High Rollways. The area is flat, but beyond the markers the land drops abruptly into a lush, fertile basin where a small, twisting, swift-moving stream called the South Branch, tumbles over the rocks to the AuSable River only a short distance away.

In this fertile valley, more than 100 years ago, beside this stream, the Thompsons hacked out a home in the wilderness. It was a huge, two story, well constructed dwelling, unique in this wild land and it became known far and wide as the best hotel in Michigan.

Thomas F. Thompson was a rugged backwoodsman and logger and his renown becomes everlasting by this house he made—Thompson House, headquarters for hunting and fishing trips in the AuSable River area for people who came from as far away as California.

W. Mackay Laffin, writing in his article, "Deer Hunting on the AuSable," published in 1888, states: "An invitation to a few weeks deer shooting in the wilds of Michigan was not to be foregone. There had been occasional rumors heard in the West of the winter sports of the Michigan backwoods; rumors that had lost none of their attractiveness by their journey and which served to make the opportunity, when it did arrive, wholly irresistible. I was to join a party of gentlemen who for several years have hunted along the AuSable River in Michigan, upon one of their annual trips; and we were all to meet upon an appointed day at Bay City. Our route thence would be by steamer to Tawas and from Tawas by teams to the hunting grounds in the Michigan backwoods."

Laffin and his hunting party, complete with 14 fine deer dogs were met at the East Tawas wharf by "a mighty hunter of the wilderness, named Curtis, who had come down with his stout team to haul us and our multifarious paraphernalia.

Laffin goes on to relate: "In half an hour we were comfortably ensconced in an inn with an enormous landlord, whose mighty girth shook with unctuous premonitions of an excellent supper. He produced half a deer slain that very day and gave us an earnest of our coming sport in the shape of a vast quantity of broiled venison, all of which we dutifully ate."

The following morning, this eager party and their howling dogs left East Tawas in two wagons on their 26-mile trip to Thompson House. W. Mackay Laffin gives us now an excellent picture of what this area of Michigan was then like: "All was sand, packed hard beneath the horses feet and the wagon wheels and we went over it at an excellent pace.

"All around us was the Michigan forest in all its wonderful variety of growth and richness and all its dreary monotony and desolation. Grass there was in tufts and thin and poor. Thick gray lichens and starving mosses strove to cover up the thankless sand, but nothing seemed to prosper in it but the trees, for which it held mysterious sustenance where their deep roots could reach it.

"But even they made an unlovely forest. The great fires that sweep across this region leave hideous scars behind them. One sees for miles and miles the sandy plain covered with the charred trunks of the fallen forest. Great lofty pines, whose trunks are blackened from the root as high as the fire has reached—huge, distorted and disfigured—stand gloomily above their moldering brethren, their white skeletons extending their dead and broken arms in mute testimony of lost grace and beauty."

And then they arrived at Thompson House: "After viewing a few premonitory symptoms in the shape of fences, of which the purpose was obscure, since they hedged in nothing and looked as if they had been put up for fun or practice, we came suddenly to the edge of a basin or depression in the plateau over which we had been driving and there, beneath us, lay Thompson's.

"Here in the midst of the wilderness was a prosperous, healthy-looking farm, actually yielding vegetables and cereals and having about it all manner of horses, cows, pigs, hay stacks, barns, barking dogs, pumpkins and all the other established characteristics of a well-regulated enterprise. We rattled down the declivity to this enormous house and met with a hearty welcome, most of the party having known Thompson for years."

W. Mackay Laffin's keen pen now gives us insight to Mrs.

Thompson's character: "She is not exactly a backwoodswoman; indeed, she is quite as much of a surprise to one as is the place itself. Mrs. Thompson is an excellent lady and her refining influence has been felt in a very marked degree in this wild region. She can shoot, though. Indeed, she handles a rifle with the greatest coolness and skill—thinks nothing of knocking over a deer or bear and is an excellent wing shot."

It would be difficult to imagine a finer or truer description of Michigan's early "chopper" or lumber hand, than that which W. Mackay Laffin so expertly weaves for us now. We seem to be almost back there inside Thompson House: "Thompson's hands came in the evening—Canadians, for the most part and talking an inexplicable jargon called French. Reinforced by a few lumbermen and trappers, they filled the huge, dimly lighted room which would ordinarily be called the barroom, but which, having no bar, owing

TAWAS RANGER DISTRICT Huron-Manistee National Forests

Herbert White joined our staff here on the district this week as a forester. He replaces Daniel Napier, who recently transferred to the Anthony Job Corp Center, West Virginia.

Herb brings to the Tawas area a variety of work experience which includes several tours of duty in Vietnam. He received his bachelor of science degree in forestry at Syracuse University, New York, in 1961.

Upon graduation, he spent a summer working for the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station, Albuquerque, New Mexico, on disease control research projects. In the fall, he returned to Syracuse to start studies toward a master degree.

The next year, he volunteered for duty in Vietnam with International Voluntary Services, Incorporated. Headquartered for two years at Hue, he worked as an advisor to the Vietnamese government's region 10 forestry office. The work concerned all forestry activities in the five northern provinces of South Vietnam but primary projects included work on their Eucalyptus and Casuarina nurseries, plantations and a charcoal kiln project. He also assisted in coordinating United States AID activities which related to forestry in these northern provinces.

In 1965, he served as forester in the Daniel Boone National Forest out of Whitley City, Kentucky. Being proficient in the Vietnamese language, he again had an opportunity in 1966 to return to South Vietnam, working for a private research corporation for a year. Upon completion of this study this fall, he returned to the forest service to be assigned to our district.

You will be hearing more from Herb in this column in the future.

This is 'The Month'

Ready or not—this is December and the busy, exciting holidays are just a head of us. Much of your holiday baking calls for walnuts and raisins, two items that we depend on from California. You will find a bit higher price on these items this year due to reduced harvests.

Did you know that 90 percent of the raisins used by homemakers are made from Thompson seedless grapes? You will find the 'package labels' offering "seedless," "seeded," "bleached" and "unbleached."

Golden seedless raisins are "unbleached" raisins put through a special process that changes their normal dark brown color to yellow or amber and are favorites for light fruit cake and cookies.

Muscad raisins may be purchased seeded or seedless. They are larger, sweeter and more moist than those made from Thompson seedless grapes. Some brands of muscads have been treated with raisin oil to make them pour more easily instead of clinging together in that tight, sticky mass we have all known.

ring to cranberries. Long ago, a farmer spilled a bucket of cranberries as he walked up the steps of his home. The fresh berries bouncing down the steps gave him an idea for testing cranberries so that only the fresh ones would be shipped to market. This method is still in use today. Cranberries are bunched tested over several wooden barriers as they pass through the grading machines and only the lively ones go to market.

Buying Toys For Children

If you are still looking for toys for the children, consider these points: Select toys for the child's particular interests and his stage of development.

Is the toy safe? Paints should be nontoxic and all surfaces should be well finished.

A toy should be challenging but not frustrating.

Toys which imitate the adult world have limited value to a child.

Is the toy a size the child can manage? In addition to proper toys, the home should provide an atmosphere where the child is free to play and where his young efforts are respected, appreciated and encouraged.

Get Straight Information on SS Benefits

People who rely solely on information from friends and neighbors about social security are being short-changed because they are paying for more reliable information, Paul M. Ellifritz, district manager of Social Security at Bay City, noted.

He added that no one should hesitate to ask for information about his rights and responsibilities and pointed out that many people understand one part of the law but do not understand some other part which may be just as important to them.

For example, most people come to the social security office to complete their application for benefits when they are about to retire, but many are not aware that a telephone call ahead of time asking what to bring with them may save an extra trip.

Most people know that if they are permanently and totally disabled, they may qualify for disability benefits, but many do not know that a disabled person may now qualify for disability benefits if his disability is expected to last 12 months.

Those who know that widows and minor children receive monthly benefits if the "breadwinner" dies may not know that dependent parents can also receive monthly benefits.

It is common knowledge that people over 65 are eligible for medicare, but many people do not know that they need to sign up two or three months before they are 65 to become eligible for the supplemental medical insurance as early as possible.

The office is located at 1009 North Madison Avenue, Bay City, and is open from 8:45 a. m. to 6:45 p. m. Mondays; 8:45 a. m. to 4:45 p. m. Tuesday through Friday.

to Mrs. Thompson's way of incalculating temperance principles, cannot so be called.

"They were noisy, well behaved and good humored and they crowded around the stove and bedewed it pleasantly and copiously with infusion of Virginia plug. There was a great deal of talk about lumber; how many feet such and such a one expected to 'get out'; where such and such camps were about to be located; the prospect of sufficient snow to move the heavy ox-drawn lumber sleighs and a variety of topics that had more or less savdust in their composition.

"They spoke with loud, individual self-assertion and there was a curious touch of defiance in every sentence that involved a direct proposition. This quality of their speech, coupled with a degree of profanity which was simply startling in its originality, its redundancy and its obscurity of purpose, made a stranger feel as if a fight might occur at any moment.

"But there is no danger of anything of the kind. They live and work in this atmosphere of exploitation and brag, with entire amicability and good nature and only fight when the camps break up and the men are paid off. Then, they congregate at the lake settlements where the AuSable flows into Lake Huron and get frightfully drunk for weeks and wreck brothels and saloons and shoot and stab with a liberality and self-abnegation that suggests that they ought to have a special literature created solely for them."

Such was my initiation to the awareness of Thompson House from W. Mackay Laffin's informative work.

Thaddeus Norris, in his excellent article, "The Michigan Grayling," describing a fishing trip on the AuSable in August of 1874, states: "We ran this beautiful river from the station called Grayling, on the north branch of the Jackson, Saginaw and Lansing Railroad, to Thompsons, a distance of 160 miles. After a brief, pleasurable stay at this most excellent and hospitable establishment, we loaded our two boats on a stout two-horse wagon and occupying another with springs, we set out for Tawas City, a distance of 25 miles away."

My interest in Thompson House was heightened, in that both of these early writers were writing objectively of the things they witnessed on their trips into the wilderness of the United States and consequently had no reason or desire to portray Thompson House as something which it was not.

So, fortified with this information, some speculation and an abundance of hearsay, I set out, 100 years or so after the first stone of its foundation was laid, to discover some venerable remains of the Thompson House.

Turning at the High Rollways sign, on a rather good blacktop road, I sped through typical flat, oak and pine country, so synonymous with this part of Michigan and soon came to a fertile gorge with a small stream winding along through its bottom lands.

Without question, I knew it to be the site of Thompson House. For, other than a new growth of trees, the general terrain is much as it was when those bygone writers described it. Seeing several large white pines towering over the area, I suspected it was possible the Thompsons had also viewed them, at least when those trees were younger.

Driving over the bridge spanning the stream, known now as the South Branch River, I proceeded up the incline and was amazed to see on a roadside post a rough, hand-lettered sign, reading "Thompson Cemetery, 1877". Immediately beneath it hung a weathered wreath of red and white artificial flowers. It was then I noticed the tombstones.

A recent attempt had been undertaken to restore some order to this sacred spot, for rubbish and broken limbs had been piled to the side, off the graves and a rusted single strand wire fence supported by several weathered posts, randomly encompassed the area.

On closer inspection, it became evident that many unmarked graves, some with mature trees growing up from them, spot the area within the enclosure and mounds and depressions announcing additional graves may be seen among the pines and oaks far out from the confines of this wire.

My interest now centered on finding the exact location of Thompson House and talking to the person or persons who had restored some order to this historical burial ground.

Much driving and inquiry led me at last to a small, pleasant home in South Branch, where I proceeded to announce my desire for this information to a fine, pipe smoking gentleman, crowding 90, who promptly told me to come in when I had but half voiced my reasons for bothering him.

"These are the things I knew to be true about the Thompson place," he said, leaning over the kitchen table where we sat and, pointing at my notation pad, "write them all down there; then when we're through put that in your pocket and I'll tell you all the gossip."

We talked and the afternoon passed quickly. He is an active woodsman and deer hunter and showed me his first deer license, which he bought in 1900. He also has the finest collection of old-time lumbering relics and other antiquated objects, that I have ever seen.

"A man by the name of Ed Roe was the last squatter at Thompson House before the government tore it down," he told me.

He also knew the exact location where it once majestically stood by the South Branch and he knew the approximate sizes and arrangements of the "L" shaped barn and other buildings scattered around it.

Our first meeting wore out an afternoon, so we made arrangements to meet again in two days when he then would show me this sacred spot.

I returned at this time, on a bright, clear, July day and picked him and his dog up and we drove to Thompson Cemetery.

"You see," he said, sweeping his cane out over the rusted wire, "some estimate that 25 people are buried here, but there is really close to 50."

And it very well could be so. For if there were not four markers and a sign proclaiming a cemetery existed, because of the tall, closely-growing trees, one might pass by without knowing anyone was buried here at all.

We got into the car again, drove a short distance and he said, "Stop here."

We walked a short distance and within five minutes time he pointed out the remains of Thompson House. "They got their water out of that spring over there." I knelt down and chipped away a baseball-sized chunk of moss be-plastered, weathered grey concrete off a larger piece, jutting out from beneath the soil. Then I found a scaly, rusted, hand forged nail; then a slab of crumbly, skeleton grey board, from its roof or sidewalls; and a half-dollar sized portion of white, baked clay crockery.

And then, something within me was appeased. I had in my hands portions and pieces that had made up Thompson House. Briefly, in my reverie, I could almost hear the noise of those creaking wheels and see the wagons rattling down out of the plains, carrying hunters for food and lodging and see those pumpkins in the Thompson garden gleaming in the balmy, feeble October sunlight.

We left the Thompson House site soon after. Although an admirable attempt has been made by this fine, old gentleman from South Branch, to preserve the identity of the Thompson Cemetery—"Because I just could not bear to see any more rubbish piled on them"—there is nothing to memorialize Thompson House. It is buried in the ages, as its remains now are buried in the earth. Hopefully, somehow, someday, something can be done. Not only for what this house and those people were then, but what this house and those people stand for and will stand for ages to come.

ANNUAL TOUR

by Jerry C. Curren

HAWAII THIS WINTER

Vacations . . . are for memories . . . are for good times . . . shouldn't cost a fortune. Now it's time for the yearly Farm and Home tour to the holiday islands of Hawaii.

This year's tour will be extended one day over those of other years. We will be together for 15 days instead of 14. But the biggest news is the price! This year's tour costs less than the price of the 1967 F&H Hawaiian Holiday.

For example, from Chicago the 1968 Once Upon An Island Hawaiian tour will be $557.00 plus tax per person. Compare that to last year's price of over $700.00!!

And once again only the best hotels . . . only the top accommodations will be utilized. Once again we will fly from the West Coast to Hawaii and return via the world's most experienced airline — Pan American. Once again we will not be spending all of our time in Honolulu, but will go "island hopping" throughout the Hawaiian chain of islands.

The Farm and Home Hawaiian tours over the years have gained a wide and enviable reputation as the most first class, the best conducted, yet the most economical Hawaiian tour being conducted from the Midwest! Ask those who have gone with us in other years, they'll tell you "F&H is the best I've ever been on."

What about departure dates? Well, we know that our Midwesterners like to "get away from it all" — especially the snow — in January and February so we have arranged five departure dates . . . all leave the West Coast on Saturdays . . . and you can choose any of the five following Saturdays: January 27, February 3, February 10, February 17, or February 24.

LOOK WHAT YOU'LL SEE AND DO:

- UPON ARRIVAL IN HONOLULU A BOTTLE OF SPARKLING CHAMPAGNE AWAITS YOU IN YOUR ROOM.
- GUEST AT A "CHAMPAGNE BRUNCH" ON YOUR SECOND DAY IN HONOLULU.
- SOAK UP THE WONDERFUL HAWAIIAN SUN WITH FIVE GLORIOUS DAYS IN HONOLULU SWIMMING ON THE BEACH AT WAIKIKI.
- ATTEND A "CHAMPAGNE COCKTAIL PARTY" ON TUESDAY EVENING IN HONOLULU
- TWO NIGHTS ON THE ISLAND OF KAUAI—THE "GARDEN ISLAND."
- RIVERBOAT EXCURSION OF THE WAILUA RIVER TO FAMOUS "FERN GROTTO."
- VISIT HAUOLA—CITY OF REFUGE —AND THE ANCIENT TEMPLE OF MALAE HEIAU.
- TWO NIGHTS ON THE ISLAND OF MAUI—THE "VALLEY ISLAND." SCENIC TOUR OF IAO VALLEY.
- KONA—HERE TWO NIGHTS. DELIGHTFUL CRUISE TO CAPTAIN COOK'S MONUMENT INCLUDING A GLASS BOTTOM BOAT TRIP THRU CORAL GARDENS.
- OVERNIGHT AT HILO.
- TRAVEL THRU THE TREE FERN FOREST . . . SEE THE FABULOUS RAINBOW FALLS.
- STOP AT FAMED VOLCANO HOUSE ON THE RIM OF KILAUEA CRATER.
- STAY AT TOP HOTELS IN HONOLULU, KAUAI, MAUI, KONA AND HILO.

GRASSROOTS GLEANINGS

by Bill Steiner

From The Ripon (Wis.) Commonwealth-Press comes the following: "A sensible girl is more sensible than she looks, because a sensible girl has more sense than to look sensible."

If men had no faith in one another, comments The Sibley (Iowa) Tribune, all of us would have to live within our incomes.

"Teen-age marriages are a risk, but so are the other kind," says the Pipestone (Minn.) County Star.

The Clear Lake (S.D.) Courier defines a high-brow as: A person who enjoys a thing until it becomes popular.

On the subject of men's colognes, The Lima (Ohio) News quotes a cosmetic expert as saying, "In many homes scents are already interchangeable, and the husbands and wives use the same fragrances and deodorants."

First the sexes start to look alike, then they start to smell alike. What next?

The Custer County Chief of Broken Bow, Neb., tells about the doctor who left the following instructions for his patient: "Give him a tranquilizer at three o'clock and my bill at four o'clock."

"Some roads are so bad," says The Clay City (Ind.) News, "that it seems as if the highway departments are promoting detourism."

"It's other folks' dogs and children that make most of the bad feelings between neighbors," claims The Jamestown (N.D.) Sun.

The Winner Advocate of Winner (S.D.), reports that, "A member of the Women's Auxiliary Corps of the Army may marry after enlistment but if she becomes a mother she must resign."

Does this mean that Uncle Sam doesn't like mothers or babies?

The trouble with today's young people, according to The Morris (Minn.) Tribune, is they all want to look different in the same way.

"Keeping your husband in hot water will not make him tender," advises The Slater (Mo.) News-Rustler.

The Devils Lake (N.D.) Journal reports the following item of natural science: "The unusual and twisted windpipe of a crane, a large bird, may measure five feet from the throat to the lungs."

You knew that all along?

The Marshall (Minn.) Messenger reported a mysterious purple man was seen in the area east of the Tracy cemetery.

Could it be that Santa Claus has got some kind of a new "hip" uniform?

"One thing about the speed of light," laments The Salem (S.D.) Special, "is that it gets here too early in the morning."

The Morris (Minn.) Tribune says, "Most people who insist their child is a thinker—lisp."

"How can a horse full of hay give you such a rough ride?" asks the Lancaster (Pa.) Farmer.

The best salesman is the one who knows how to miss a six-foot putt by one inch, says The Dell Rapids (S.D.) Tribune.

Uncle Sam is stronger than Atlas, claims The Traer (Iowa) Star-Clipper, because he carries the world—with both hands in his pockets.

The Macon (Mo.) Chronicle-Herald reports that at a recent women's club meeting it was estimated that 60 per cent wore rouge, 35 per cent of those present tinted their hair, 75 per cent plucked their eyebrows, 80 per cent had permanent waves, 85 per cent wore eye shadow, 90 per cent wore fingernail polish, 100 per cent used lipstick, and 10 per cent wore false eye lashes and other cosmetic camouflage.

The subject of their discussion was, "Deceptive Packaging."

This one comes from the Culver (Ind.) Citizen:

The bright pupil looked long and thoughtfully at the examination question which read, "State the number of tons of coal shipped out of the United States in any given year."

Then his brow cleared and he wrote: "1492—None."

"Turtles and fowls have no teeth," reports the Tell City (Ind.) Thursday News, which means that the Christmas turkey cannot bite back, unless, of course, you make a pig out of yourself.

To Hawaii.
Have a ball.

And one Pan Am® ticket does it all. Including any connecting flight you might need.

Fly First Class President Special from California to Honolulu or to Hilo.

Or fly the next best thing to first class, Pan Am's Rainbow Economy service.

The menu is from Maxim's of Paris. The stewardess is from Paris or Papeete or Pocatello. The movies and music (we have them on most flights) are from our easy-to-watch Theatre-in-the-Air®.

And the service is out of this world. The same kind of service you'll find on Pan Am flights to 121 cities in 84 lands 'round the world.

(Incidentally, we do have one other less expensive service. It's called Thrift. The only hitch is: no Maxim's Sigh.)

See a Pan Am Travel Agent and let him set up your whole Hawaii jaunt. He'll do the work. You'll have the ball.

Pan Am makes the going great.

| 1 cup (1/2 pound) margarine  | 1 cup flour        |
| 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar | 1 teaspoon vanilla |
| 1/4 cup cornstarch           | Pinch of salt      |

Sift together cornstarch, confectioners' sugar and flour into bowl. Have margarine at room temperature. Blend margarine into dry ingredients with a spoon until a soft dough is formed. Shape into balls about 1 inch in diameter. Place on ungreased cookie sheet about 1 1/2 inches apart. Flatten cookies with lightly floured fork. Bake in slow oven (300°) for 20 to 25 minutes or until only the edges of the cookies are lightly browned. Remove cookies carefully from the pan while still warm. Frost when cookies are cooled. NOTE: If dough is too soft to handle, cover and chill in refrigerator about 1 hour.

| 2 1/4 cups sugar                                  | 1 1/2 teaspoons salt            |
| 6 eggs  | 1 teaspoon baking soda          |
| 2 cans (1 pound each) whole berry cranberry sauce | 1 1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon |
| 1 1/2 cups chopped California walnuts             | 1/4 cup margarine               |

Cream 3/4 cup margarine until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Beat in cranberry sauce and walnuts. To 4 1/2 cups flour add salt, baking soda and cinnamon; add to batter and beat well. Divide dough into thirds. Spoon 1/2 into a well-greased 9-inch square pan. Bake in 350° oven for 35 to 40 minutes. Cool in pan; cut into 24 1" by 3" bars.

To the second third of the dough add 1 cup of the flour. Blend well and drop mixture by teaspoons on a well-greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 375° oven for 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes about 40 two-inch cookies.

To the last third of the dough add 2 cups of the flour and 1/4 cup margarine. Knead dough on a heavily floured board until smooth. Roll out to 1/2-inch thickness and cut with cookie cutters into desired shapes. Bake in a 375° oven for 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes about 3 dozen cookies, depending on size of cutter.

WALNUT CRESCENTS

- |  |                              |
|--|------------------------------|
| 2 cups finely chopped California walnuts | 1 cup margarine              |
| 1/2 cup sugar                            | 3 egg yolks, slightly beaten |
| 2 egg whites, slightly beaten            | 3 to 5 tablespoons milk      |
| 3 cups sifted flour                      | 1 egg white, slightly beaten |
| 3 tablespoons sugar                      | Plain or decorator's sugar   |

Blend together walnuts, 1/2 cup sugar and 2 egg whites; set aside. Sift together flour and 3 tablespoons sugar into mixing bowl. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Blend together egg yolks and 3 tablespoons milk. Add liquid all at once to flour mixture, stirring until flour is moistened. If necessary, add more milk to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board or pastry cloth; divide in half. Roll out each half 1/16-inch thick. Cut out circles with floured 3-inch round cutter. Drop 1 teaspoonful walnut mixture in center of each circle. Fold in half; seal edges securely. Place cookies on greased baking sheets and shape into crescents. Brush tops with egg white; sprinkle with plain or decorator's sugar. Bake at 400° for 12 to 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove to wire racks and cool completely before serving.

too short?
too green?
too much?

by One Tired Reporter

The assignment: Go out and work on a Christmas tree lot to see how people buy Christmas trees.

The report: To most people, buying a Christmas tree as a symbol of the season of good cheer is only slightly less serious than choosing a tombstone.

Buyers argue and bicker and pout, and one fellow struck me a glancing blow with the bough of a Norway pine, though he claimed he was only trying to brush the snow off a tree and I got in the way.

I arrived at the Christmas tree lot early, and listened while the owner told me where the various species were located — spruce over there in the corner, scotch pine out in front, etc.

My first customer was a portly lady who was being followed by a small man who had the look of an anemic beagle about him.

"Merry Christmas," I said, "can I help you?"

"No," the lady said, "I don't like the looks of your trees," and she turned and stalked out. Her beagle husband followed her. His ears were drooping.

Another couple came in, and I started to show them Christmas trees. The woman very nearly agreed to a fine spruce, but decided at the last second that it was "too skinny."

The next one was "too short." And then while I wrestled trees—sometimes two at a time—she said:

"The trunk is crooked."

"It's too skimpy in the middle."

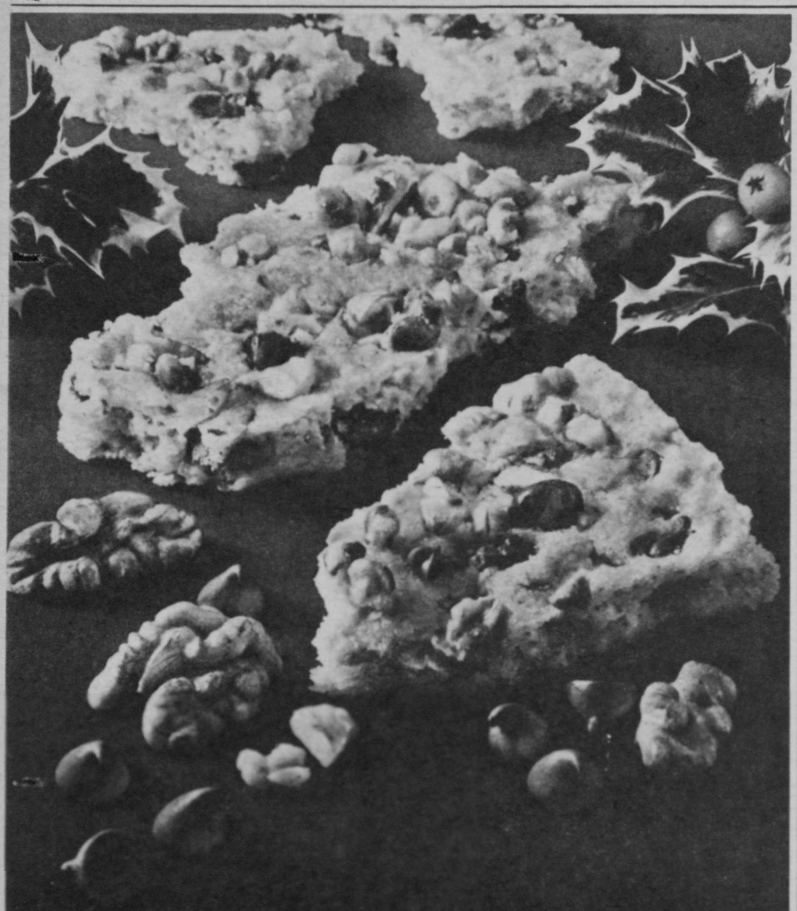

"I don't like the color."

"That kind sheds its needles too soon."

"There's a branch missing on the right side."

"That one is not bad except it doesn't have a nice top."

The lady's husband, meanwhile, had gone over into a corner of the lot and dozed off, standing on one leg with his head under his arm, like a chicken.

The lady looked at every tree in the lot, some of them twice, and then she went and got her husband and left, remarking that maybe they would go get a metal tree at the drug store.

My next customer was a large fellow who looked at about fifty trees, and kept mumbling to himself, "I'll find a tree this year that will please her or die trying."

He didn't find a tree on our lot, but he didn't die there either, so in one respect we were lucky. I said Merry Christmas to him as he left and he just stared at me.

A kindly looking lady walked in next, and I bravely went up to her and said, "Can I help you?"

"No," she replied, "I live in back of the lot and I'm just going home from the grocery store."

A father with four sons came in, and each son picked out a tree that was just right. Two of the sons got into an argument and the argument developed into a fight, and they wrestled until just their feet were sticking out from under a pile of boughs.

The father more or less jumped on the boughs, as if he was trying to flush rabbits out of a brush pile, and then he sent the wrestlers to the car. He left shortly thereafter without buying a tree.

Then came a lady who looked like somebody's mother. I held up a tree for her, and she said, "I'll take it."

It was too much of a shock. I held onto the tree for support, and when my vision cleared I said, "You don't mean it!"

"Yes," she said, "it's just right. Would you put it in my car, please."

"Now, look," I tried to tell her, "you just don't buy a Christmas tree like that. You've got to look at about a thousand trees to see first what you don't want and then you . . ."

It was no use. I couldn't talk her out of it. I ran to get the lot manager. "What do I do," I panted, "somebody wants to buy a tree?"

"Charge them $2.50 and help them get it into their car," he said, matter-of-factly.

I was so nervous about making a sale that I could hardly tie the twine to hold the lady's car trunk cover down.

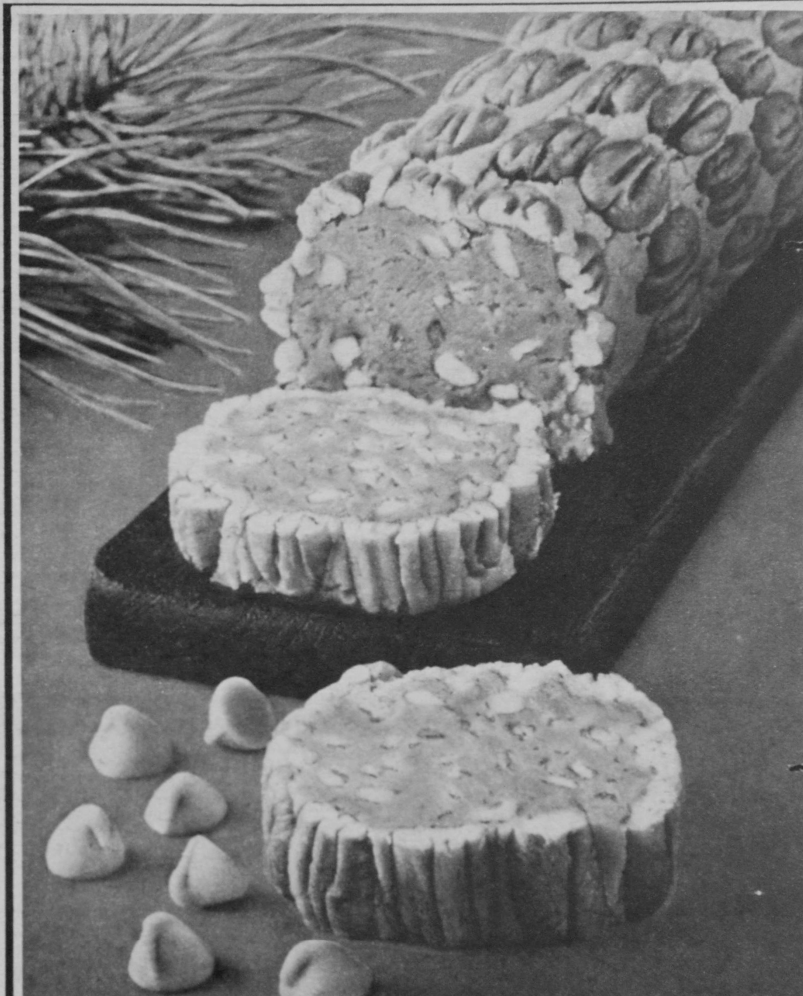

I wished her a Merry Christmas, and she returned the greeting with a smile.

It was a shattering experience. I went into the warmup shack and tried to collect myself.

The other tree salesmen tried to pull me out of my depression, but it was no use. I didn't return to normal again until I went back out onto the lot and asked a customer if I could show him some trees.

"Well," he said, "I didn't come in here to try on shoes."

Then I felt better.
