Arts and Crafts Festival Another Big Success

Ninth annual Tawas Bay Waterfront Arts and Crafts Festival, held Saturday and Sunday at the Tawas City Park and Iosco County Building, proved to be another spectacular success for Tawas Bay Artists and Tawas Chamber of Commerce, sponsors.

With 108 exhibitors listed on the program and another 10 or more registering at the start of the show, the event drew an unprecedented crowd of spectators and purchasers off Bay US-23.

While over-all sales were difficult to ascertain, many exhibitors expressed pleasure over sales during the two-day event.

Except for a brief but heavy downpour Saturday afternoon, the festival enjoyed beautiful weather conditions. The shower at mid-afternoon, apparently "targeted" in on the exhibition area as there was no rain at East Tawas or at a point starting about two miles south of Tawas City.

James H. Brown, Essexville, was awarded a cash prize from the chamber of commerce for his selection as winner of the popular prize, voted by those attending the show. Brown's exhibit of sculpture was located in the district courtroom of the county building. Awards were made at 4:00 p. m. Sunday.

Ribbon awards were as follows: Oil painting—Wayne Cooper, Hebron, Indiana, first prize; Marlene Pellerito, East Tawas, second place; John Easley, Frankfort, third place. Receiving honorable mention were Wanda Locke, Clio, and Audie Kluzik, Oscoda.

Water colors — Daniel Philip Cote, Metamora, first place; Jon J. Bourdo, Williamsburg, second place; Dorothy E. Kleinschmidt, Saginaw, third place. Receiving honorable mention was Stan Paszkiewicz, a member of the coaching staff at Midland High School.

Ceramics: Joanna Price, Dayton, Ohio, first place; Duane Bastion, Roscommon, second place; Ann Wagner, Tawas City, third place. Handicrafts: Nellie Clark, Midland, contour glass, first place; Richard S. Brown, Harrison, woodcraft, second place.

Metal sculpture: James H. Brown, Essexville, first place; Rod Raymond, Clare, second place; J. L. Winston, Dearborn, third.

Jewelry: Del Schuler, Cincinnati, Ohio, first place; Roland and Lois Brown, Sterling, second place.

Graphics and prints: Susan L. Perkins, Lansing; Susan Cheney, Flint, second place; Sylvia Pixley, Monroe, third.

Juniors: Kim L. Schnepf, Oscoda, and Celeste C. Sotola, Wurtsmith, were tied for first place, drawings and paintings; Connie W. Healy, Tawas City, painting, second; Linda Young, Harrisville, third place.

Judge for the show was Michael Church, Extension Service for Cultural Activities at the University of Michigan.

Mrs. Herbert Hertzler and Don Darr, co-chairmen, for the event, report that many compliments were received from exhibitors and visitors to the show, which has become one of the most popular art and crafts events in the state. Co-chairmen of the event thank the following for generous cooperation:

Registration: Mrs. Harold Peterson (chairman), Mrs. Martin Fiedler, Mrs. Harold Spriggs, Mrs. William Lyon, Mrs. Joseph Pellerito, Mrs. Mark Defibaugh.

Hostesses: Mrs. James Thomas (chairman), Mrs. Lewis Besancon, Mrs. Fred Besancon, Mrs. Clarence Everett, Mrs. Charles Schreck, Mrs. Chester Busch, Mrs. DeForest Karpp, Mrs. Michael Freel.

Guides: Mrs. Herbert Blust (chairman), Mrs. Charles Cowan, Mrs. James Hayden, Mrs. Ronald Pribe, Mrs. Roy Szykowski, Mrs. Myle.

Keyettes: Becky Ross, Debbie Harwood, Delmarie Tarter, Charlene Sheehan, Vicki Blust, Sandy Szykowski, Vicky Lardie, Carol Saunders, Nancy Juergens, Yvonne Brooks; Jackie, Bobbie and Cindy McKinney; Vicki, Tina, Cheryl Myle.

Whitman, Kathy Brooks, Sue Michaels, Cindy Helmer, Sue Sanders, Margaret Baerton, Laurie Defibaugh, Michelle Rosenberg.

Thanks are extended to firms contributing toward prizes, including Peoples State Bank, Detroit and Mackinac Railway, Tawas City Businessmen's Association, Keiser's Drug Store and Arthur E. Ziehl. A special thanks is extended to the Tawas City Police Department for traffic control; Bud Fisher, Gerald Reitler and Wayne Freiberg, public address system.

Decision Due Soon on TC Weir Location

A decision is expected within the next week, or August 18 at the latest, concerning Tawas City Council's approval of a site for a coho weir to be constructed in the Tawas River by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Indications were Monday night that the weir would probably be located at the foot of First Avenue, downstream from the First Street bridge, which was one of two sites mentioned in original negotiations started about two months ago.

At the request of the city council, representatives of the DNR are to check with the state lands division this week to determine if that body had made any attempt to secure property suggested by the council as a weir location.

This site, owned by Harold Bulbitz and Pure Oil Company, is located on the US-23 side of the river and upstream from the mouth of Dead Creek. It had been the first choice of the council during original talks, as it was located closer to the mouth of the river.

The council had gone on record giving the state approval to use the foot of Hamilton Avenue across from this site as an anchorage point.

Appearing before Monday night's meeting were John MacGregor and Charles Gunther, representing the DNR.

MacGregor told the council that while the DNR, too, would favor a downstream location, width of the 60-foot Hamilton Street would not be sufficient for a weir anchorage point.

The DNR representative said that an area approximately 150 to 200 feet wide would be necessary for an anchorage. The temporary weir to be utilized this year consists of two series of pipes driven into the river bed.

The coho salmon would enter the first series of pipes and would be trapped, then headed into a conveyer which would lift them into waiting trucks.

MacGregor said that anchorage opposite the Bulbitz property was not available from the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company.

He stated that the conservation commission had approved an option to purchase three lots at the base of First Avenue for its weir site. He said that a tentative easement had been received for an anchorage site on the opposite side of the river from Robert Roach.

In addition, the Iosco Board of Supervisors gave its approval to use of county land on the same side of the river for an anchorage point.

The DNR representatives said that the weir was now being fabricated at Roscommon and it is hoped that it will be completed by August 8. If the First Avenue site is approved by the council, site preparation would start next week. Actual construction would require from three to four weeks.

MacGregor said that the DNR expects to trap approximately 18,000 surplus coho between the two barriers during the spawning run. He said that the property would be enclosed with a woven wire fence this year to minimize any problem caused by sightseers. He said that unlike its operation at weirs on Lake Michigan, the public would not be invited to the weir in Tawas City.

Considerable opposition to the First Avenue weir was voiced at a special meeting July 14 by adjacent property owners, who believe that the weir will attract large numbers of spectators and that there will be a serious problem with trespassers.

A group was present at Monday night's meeting which also voiced objection to location of a weir on the downstream Bulbitz site, with proposed anchorage on Hamilton Avenue. Among those present was Mrs. Ruby Williams, who has circulated a petition opposing that site, along with Elder Guy Yager of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and other neighbors.

Mayor Russell A. Rollin stated that it was obvious that regardless of the site, there would be objections from neighboring property owners. He said, however, that if a weir was not constructed in the river and the surplus fish were not removed, "the fish would die and the entire river would become a stinking mess."

William Borosch, realtor, questioned why everyone was crying now about the coho, when only two years ago the majority of the people in the Tawas and other communities along Lake Huron were claiming that the DNR was showing discrimination toward Eastern Michigan when it was slow in planting coho on this side of the state.

MacGregor stated that the DNR was going to do everything possible to eliminate dead fish in the river. He said that because of the warm shoal water in Tawas Bay, the coho run was not expected until late September, October and early November. The number of fish expected here this year is far below the 87,000 salmon which were removed last year from the Platte River.

The DNR representative said that department biologists at Alpena have recommended large plants of lake trout, rainbow, chinook and coho salmon in Lake Huron. "We expect tremendous things as the result of lamprey control—this is only the beginning," he said.

MacGregor said that the council has the authority to stop construction of a weir on the First Avenue site, if it so desires. He hopes that the DNR receives favorable action next week in order that preparations might begin for construction.

He said that there probably would be some trespassing problems at any site selected, but that the state would do everything in its power to minimize the problem.

Community School Director Reports on First Year Program

Substantial progress has been made in the community school program at Tawas Area Schools, according to a year-end report submitted by Gene Gerber, community school director.

A number of accomplishments are listed in Gerber's first year report, during the period of August 15, 1968, to August 9, 1969.

The community school program got off to a slow start, but, since February, huge strides have been made toward making people realize the importance of our school and education," said Gerber. "Many people are now realizing that the school can serve not only the school-age student, but the total community as well."

Gerber said that when the program started a year ago, he had to call people and ask for help. Now people are calling him to ask if they can help.

While progress has been made, Gerber said that there is much more to be done. "It will take a cooperative effort from everyone to make our school and community one," he stated.

Gerber surveyed and analyzed community needs for education, enrichment, recreation and cultural activities, as well as working closely with most local and county service organizations.

An adult high school completion program was established and 37 adults participated. Two received high school diplomas in June. (See SCHOOL, page 6.)

ET Council Rules Against Carnival

Tawas Chamber of Commerce will be looking for a new location for its 1970 tourist festival carnival, according to action taken at Monday night's meeting of the East Tawas Council.

Following discussion on the 1969 festival, the council definitely decided that the old fairgrounds site on Bridge Street was not suitable for holding a carnival.

Reasons given included the fact that it was located in a residential area, that the site did not have suitable sanitary facilities and that too many complaints had been received concerning the carnival earlier this summer.

John Austin, president of the chamber of commerce, along with a delegation from the board of directors, appeared before the council seeking approval of the old fairgrounds for next year's carnival.

Austin pointed out that the tourist festival drew a large number of people to the area and that the carnival was the principal means of financing the festival.

Mayor James Campbell said, that while he was not opposed to a carnival, he was opposed to locating it at the fairgrounds. He said that many legitimate complaints had been received from neighboring property owners concerning unsanitary conditions.

It was also pointed out that the police department had closed three different gambling concessions during the carnival, as well as receiving reports of the use of obscene language around children by persons working at the carnival.

Austin asked if the city would be willing to contribute $1,000 to the chamber of commerce to help defray cost of the tourist festival, should the carnival not be held. He believed that some of the complaints should be overlooked due to the importance of this event.

In other business, the council authorized the fire department to purchase 200 feet of 2 1/2-inch fire hose and 150 feet of 1 1/2-inch fire hose.

Authorization was given to Supt. Paul Ropert to purchase a well-point pump.

Building applications approved during the past two weeks were as follows:

James Campbell, 304 West Lincoln, fence, $200; Louis Dubovsky, Lot 8, Bennington Addition, dwelling, $10,000; William Stonehouse, 110 Evans, storage shed, $100; Hugh Smith, Tawasentha Subdivision, dwelling, $8,000; Leo R. Bergeron, Tawas Lake, shed, $250; Victoria O'Callaghan, Emery Brothers Addition, aluminum siding, $1,250; Hubert Klenow, 103 Wadsworth, new roof.

Reed Murder Trial Opens Before Jury

A jury of eight women and four men was impaneled Tuesday to try Alvin (Jack) Reed, charged with murder in the fatal wounding December 17 of Mrs. Norma Williamson at Whittemore.

Reed has been held at the Iosco County Jail since four days after the shooting, when he was returned from a Bay City hospital where he had undergone treatment for what was believed to be a self-inflicted throat laceration.

Also wounded in the December 17 shooting spree was the deceased woman's aunt, Mrs. Margaret Bronson, and Mrs. Bronson's son, Earl.

A list of 36 jurors drawn previous to Tuesday was narrowed to 24 at the start of the trial Tuesday morning. An additional 12 names were required before the final panel was selected.

After hearing testimony starting at 1:30 p. m., Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller, at 4:30 p. m., recessed the trial until Wednesday morning (today) at 8:30 o'clock.

Testimony was heard Tuesday from Earl Bronson, Whittemore Police Chief Kenneth Bronson, Sheriff Ivan O'Farrell, State Police Trooper Charles Petrach, State Police Det. Donald Schuiteman and State Trooper David Larsen. Schuiteman is a fingerprint expert while Larsen is a ballistics expert.

Last to testify Tuesday afternoon was Leona Bronson Reed, estranged wife of the defendant.

Reed is being defended by Raymond King, West Branch attorney, while the state's case is being presented by Iosco Prosecuting Atty. Kenneth Myles.

The trial is expected to continue through Friday.

Registration desk was located in the county building.

Tawas City Council Approves Its Share of New Ambulances

Approval of its share of the cost of purchasing three emergency ambulances under a program adopted recently by 12 local units of government was given Monday night by Tawas City Council.

Tawas City's share of the $11,000 total is $1,507. A check for this amount is to be sent to the East Tawas Council, which is acting as the official purchasing agent for the program.

Representatives of the various units of government adopted a plan whereby the emergency equipment would be financed on a plan based on population and assessed valuation of each unit.

Cost of the equipment purchase to the other local units of government is as follows: Plainfield, $1,936; Wilber, $374; Baldwin, $1,210; East Tawas, $2,035; Reno, $319; Grant, $759; Tawas, $858; Burleigh, $484; Whittemore, $319; Sherman, $485; Alabaster, $726.

Acting as the official representative for this program, the City of East Tawas has made application for federal highway safety money which is to pay one-half of the total cost of $22,000.

Since July 1, all calls for emergency ambulance service have been coordinated through the Iosco Sheriff's Department. New state regulations governing ambulances became effective on that date and the three funeral directors in the Tawas and Hale are not licensed by the state to operate ambulances.

A used ambulance purchased by the 12 participating units is stationed at the county jail and operated by Orle Hodge, who has had considerable experience in ambulance work.

When the sheriff's department experienced difficulty in handling calls because of a manpower shortage, Hodge volunteered to operate the ambulance week-ends.

"I don't know what we would have done without him," said Under-sheriff Leon Putnam. "He has stayed right here at the jail over week-ends to be immediately available for emergencies. He has been on call during the week and other men in the department have assisted."

Handling operation of the emergency ambulance service by the sheriff's department is to continue until October 1, when it is expected that a new ambulance service will be inaugurated in cooperation between Tawas Hospital and the 12 local governmental units.

Delivery is expected soon on two new, four-seat ambulances. It is expected that one of the three units will be stationed at Hale, where 40 volunteers completed first aid training sessions this week under Deputy Sheriff Francis Block, a qualified American Red Cross instructor.

Two Fishermen Hit by Lightning

Gary Ruffini, 22, and Ronald Hazen, 21, both of Saginaw, were treated at Tawas Hospital Sunday afternoon after being struck by lightning on the AuSable River.

The men sustained temporary paralysis and shock, according to state police.

The men had been fishing from an island below Cooke Dam. Other fishermen in the area brought the men to shore and they were rushed by ambulance to the hospital, where they were treated and released.

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Read II Timothy 1:1-7

I thank God... when I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee. (II Timothy 1:3-5)

This letter paid Timothy a great compliment in telling him he had "unfeigned faith." Even though he was a young man, he had a mature faith in Christ.

Many young people today are like Timothy. They, too, have faith in God. Some of us who are older seem to think that youth do not have faith in God, that they do not care for spiritual things, for the church, for Christ's way of life. However, millions of young men and women around the world do have a sincere, genuine faith in Christ. Dedicated to the way of Christ and to the advancement of His kingdom in the world, they are putting that faith into action.

The need today is for youth to be given words of encouragement and the help of their elders as together we all put our faith to work for Christ our Lord.

PRAYER

Lord, we pray for the youth of our world who are not afraid to stand up and call you their Lord and follow in Your steps. May they not waver in courage or in their faithfulness to You. We ask in the name of Jesus, who taught us to pray "Our Father who art in heaven... Amen."

TO YOU

"No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us. Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit."

This verse from I John is part of this Sunday's Christian Science lesson-sermon on "Spirit."

A related passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Every trial of our faith in God makes us stronger. The more difficult seems the material condition to be overcome by Spirit, the stronger should be our faith and the purer our love."*

Midland Church Scene of Mielock-Fegan Wedding

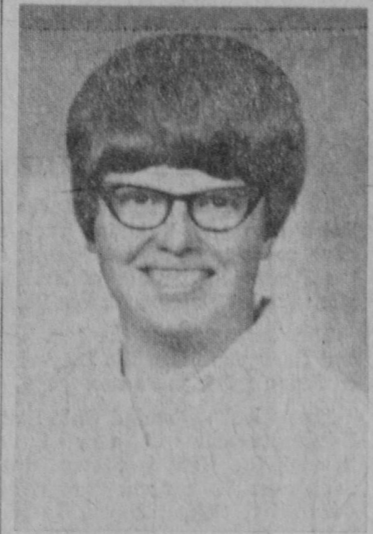

Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church, Midland, was the scene of the double ring ceremony Saturday, August 2, uniting in marriage Karen Kaye Fegan of Midland and Charles John Mielock of Whittemore. The Rev. Fr. Henry P. Durssel officiated at the Nuptial Mass for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Fegan of Prescott and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Mielock of Whittemore.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, approached the altar, which was decorated with yellow and white gladioli, wearing an imported white silk organza, skimmer floor length gown with Peau D'Ange lace gracing the Edwardian neckline, bodice and modified bishop sleeves. Applied motif of lace accented the skirt and sweeping detachable court train. Fresh Stephanotis blossoms in her coiffure held secure an imported English illusion court length veil. She carried a French flower ball of yellow sweetheart roses, stephanotis and variegated English ivy.

Miss Cathy Fegan of Prescott attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Gary Mielock of Royal Oak, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; Mrs. Stanley Goeckel of Royal Oak, and Miss Karen Nash of Owosso.

They were gowned in mimosa yellow skimmer floor length gowns with self-covered buttons and embroidered floral bands accenting the high neckline and banding the full chiffon bishop sleeves. Matching Dior bows with bubble veils complemented their attire. They carried a French flower ball of yellow baby carnations, daisies and lacy pompons.

Misses Brenda Collins and Debra Eminger of Dearborn Heights is spending two weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. Frances Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Alverson Sr. of Wilber Township announce the engagement of their daughter, Leona Ruth, to William F. Payea, son of Mrs. Mildred Payea of Omer. The bride-elect is a graduate of Oscoda Area Schools and Saginaw Business Institute. Plans are for an October 11 wedding.

A February wedding is being planned by Joann Davis and SP4 Phillip Pickett, who is serving in Vietnam with the United States Army. Their engagement has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Davis of Tawas City. Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine Pickett of Whittemore are parents of the prospective bridegroom.

Douglas S. Humphrey Takes Jan I. Thompson as Bride

Miss Jan Irene Thompson and Douglas S. Humphrey were united in marriage Saturday, August 2, in St. Rose of Lima Church, Roseville, Minnesota. Officiating at the 5:30 p. m. Nuptial Mass was the Rev. Fr. Harold E. Whittet. Bouquets of white gladioli and blue chrysanthemums decorated the altar and aisle columns were bedecked in white and blue chrysanthemums.

Miss Thompson is the daughter of Mrs. McDonald Thompson of East Tawas and Duluth, Minnesota, and the late Raymond A. Thompson of East Tawas. The bridegroom is a son of the Honorable and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey of Waverly, Minnesota.

Dr. Reynolds P. Flom of St. Paul, Minnesota, escorted the bride to the altar. She chose a Priscilla creation of white silk organza and ivory re-embroidered Alencon lace. The A-line skimmer silhouette was enhanced by a stand-up collar of ruffled Alencon lace. Scattered motifs of ivory lace graced the front of the gown and chapel length train. A band of matching lace encircled the hem of the gown and train. Her matching lace Priscilla cap held a silk illusion veil which flowed to floor length. She carried a colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Miss Thompson chose Miss Carolyn McKay, East Tawas, as her maid of honor. Other attendants were Miss Roseann Crocker, East Tawas; Miss Ami Hennum, Minneapolis, Minnesota; Mrs. Raymond Bourque, Battle Creek; Mrs. Peter Gallagher, Duluth; Miss Barbara Makinen, Beverly Hills, California.

Their soft blue, tissue faille gowns were fashioned in a shirt-waist effect with petite pointed collars, puffed sleeves, Empire sheaths, rhinestone buttons down the front and on the cuffs. Headpieces of matching faille with silk illusion veiling completed their ensembles. The maid of honor's bouquet consisted of red roses and the bridesmaids carried white carnations with blue cornflowers.

Mr. Humphrey asked his brother, Robert Humphrey, Burnsville, Minnesota, to serve as best man. Groomsmen were his other brother, Hubert H. (Skip) Humphrey III, James Lord, Mick Andreas, all of Minneapolis; William Krell, Denver, Colorado, and Donald Legendre, Duluth.

Ushers were Bruce Wuotila, Barry Wuotila and Bruce Birkholz, all of Minneapolis.

Miss Thompson selected a silk silver blue, floor length gown accented by silver beading. Mrs. Humphrey wore a floor length gown of hyacinth blue cellophane lace.

Following the rites, Mrs. Thompson hosted guests at a reception at the Minikahda Club, Minneapolis. The couple left Sunday, August 3, by plane for a three-week trip to Madrid and Majorca, Spain; Sicily and Capri, Italy. They will reside in Minneapolis.

Miss Thompson attended the University of Minnesota and the Minneapolis School of Business. Mr. Humphrey will be a senior this fall at Hamline University, St. Paul, where he is majoring in anthropology. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity.

Following the wedding rehearsal August 1, parents of the bridegroom entertained 30 guests at a dinner in their St. Paul home.

Consumers Power Orders Air Quality Control Equipment

Consumers Power Company announced the placement of a $6,910,000 order for new air quality control equipment at the John C. Weadock generating plant, Essexville. Eight electrostatic precipitators are expected to be in place by July 1971.

L. L. Shepard, manager of the company's Bay City division, said delivery of the equipment to the site is expected beginning in April 1970 and that construction will start soon after.

The plant has eight coal-burning boilers with a total generating capacity of 615,000 kilowatts. The Weadock plant is part of a complex which also includes the 530,000-kilowatt Dan E. Karn plant. The Karn plant was completed in 1963 and already has highly efficient air quality control units.

Mr. Shepard said the mechanical dust-collectors presently in use at the Weadock plant were installed at a time when the technology of air control was not as highly developed as it is today. They will be replaced with equipment rated at better than 99 percent collection efficiency.

This program brought in an extra $3,828 to the school district.

Organized fall, winter and spring term youth and adult enrichment-recreation activities involved more than 1,000 people per week in such classes as contract bridge, lapidary, shorthand, sewing, furniture refinishing, upholstery, slimmastics, men's recreation, oil painting, welding, cake decorating, creative dramatics, square dancing, bookkeeping, blueprint reading and tennis.

An organized summer fun program involved more than 700 persons each week in such activities as mathematics for fun, reading for fun, typing, arts and crafts, gymnastics, junior homemaking, tot lot, peewee baseball, men's and women's softball, basketball, archery, knitting, girl's softball, track and field for boys and girls, sailing, golf, baton twirling and badminton.

Youth programs were designed to supplement and enrich the program of the regular school day. Gerber promoted and assisted with the Knot Hole League and Pony League baseball programs, as well as the Red Cross swimming program.

There were 75 entries from Tawas in the Mid-Michigan Olympic games held at Alma-St. Louis, competing in basketball, table tennis and track.

These programs increased utilization of the school and its facilities from eight hours a day to 14 hours a day; from five days a week to six days a week and from 39 weeks a year to 52 weeks a year.

"Parents no longer come to the school only on occasion where there is some problem with their child, but they come frequently to engage in activities of their own particular interest," said Gerber.

Jordan Attended Public School Fund Accounting Meet.

Officials from throughout the nation attended the ninth annual program in public school fund accounting this summer on the campus of Michigan Technological University, Houghton. Attending the program was Supt. Ernest Jordan, Isoco Intermediate School District.

The program is designed to assist state departments of education and to encourage public schools to use generally accepted accounting principles recommended by the Association of School Business Officials of the United States and Canada. The director is Prof. Sam B. Tidwell, CPA, director of Michigan Tech's Institute of Accounting Research.

Participants included school business officials, administrators, school board members, college and university teachers of education administration and accounting, CPAs and staff members who audit school funds.

Bears Taste Revenge; Beat Worth, 20-1

East Tawas Bears had a taste of revenge Sunday, defeating Worth, 20-1. The Worth nine had administered the Bears their only defeat of the year earlier in the season.

The winners cracked 20 hits during the day, including homers by Bob Erickson, Don Lear, Dale Koepeke and two by Ken Blust.

The first inning was scoreless for both teams, but East Tawas then went on its scoring rampage, pushing two runs over in the second, three in the third, four in the fourth, three in the sixth, three in the seventh and four in the eighth.

Bob Erickson cracked six hits in seven trips, followed by four hits by Lear and three by Blust.

Grant Mousseau started on the mound and was followed by Erickson and Sieloff. O'Loughlin started for Worth and was relieved by Kern.

Aid in Crackdown on Speeders

Michigan State Police patrol troopers in the third district at East Tawas will strengthen their speed law enforcement with use of an electronic computer (VASCAR) beginning on August 19, Sgt. George Briggs, post commander, announces.

The third district includes the post areas of East Tawas. Other districts are already using the computer in actual speed gauging.

Two troopers from this post have been trained in the use of the computer and have been certified as qualified operators of VASCAR (abbreviation for "visual average speed computer and recorder"). The training and certifying were done by district traffic safety officers who first were schooled and qualified by VASCAR company officials.

The department began training about 200 officers in the use of VASCAR in April and expects to be using the computers in enforcement state-wide. Prior to enforcement, the state police are orienting judges and prosecutors and other concerned officials in this speed checking technique.

The state police, with the aid of a federal grant of $85,000, have purchased 100 VASCAR units to provide for one or more of the computers for each of the department's 50 posts. They are installed in both regular and semiregular patrol cars.

VASCAR is a small, two-part instrument which is mounted on the dash of a patrol car. One component is called the digital display module. It provides an instant digital read-out of the calculated speed of a motorist and is reported to be extremely accurate.

The other component, called the control module, enables the officer to enter the factors of time and distance into the computer which then determines the average speed electronically. It is reported to be used in more than 30 states.

Versatility of VASCAR allows an officer to "clock" a vehicle regardless of its direction or speed in any kind of weather, day or night, and whether the patrol car is parked or cruising.

The officer by means of the control module's on and off switches enters the time factor as a target vehicle traverses a selected distance. Then the officer, again using on-off switches, enters the distance factor as he drives his patrol car over the selected distance. The computer then will give the digital read-out of the target car's average speed. The distance factor also may be "locked" into the computer prior to the timing of a suspected speeder.

The department began training about 200 officers in the use of VASCAR in April and expects to be using the computers in enforcement state-wide. Prior to enforcement, the state police are orienting judges and prosecutors and other concerned officials in this speed checking technique.

The state police, with the aid of a federal grant of $85,000, have purchased 100 VASCAR units to provide for one or more of the computers for each of the department's 50 posts. They are installed in both regular and semiregular patrol cars.

VASCAR is a small, two-part instrument which is mounted on the dash of a patrol car. One component is called the digital display module. It provides an instant digital read-out of the calculated speed of a motorist and is reported to be extremely accurate.

The other component, called the control module, enables the officer to enter the factors of time and distance into the computer which then determines the average speed electronically. It is reported to be used in more than 30 states.

Versatility of VASCAR allows an officer to "clock" a vehicle regardless of its direction or speed in any kind of weather, day or night, and whether the patrol car is parked or cruising.

The officer by means of the control module's on and off switches enters the time factor as a target vehicle traverses a se-

Supply and Demand Controls Meat Price

Inflation has to take most of the blame for the higher price of beef, but another important influence has been the fact that it is just too popular. It is the old law of supply and demand.

H. A. Gifford, vice president of the Detroit division of Kroger Food Stores, says that in the 30 years since his company's Tenderay Brand Beef was first introduced, per capita consumption of beef has more than doubled.

Sherman News

The John Lipka family of Tawas spent Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. Walter Smith, and family.

The Floyd Smiths of Niles and the LeRoy Schlagel family of Flint spent the week-end with their parents, the George Smiths, and also attended the Bamberger-Oxborn wedding and reception on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kohn Sr. and sister, Mrs. Louise Buchtel, were supper guests at the Martin Eckstein home during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon Boger and the Gerald Boger family attended the wedding last Saturday at Otisville of Rhonda Schaffer and Dale Howitz. Rhonda is a granddaughter of the Bogers.

Several from here attended the wedding last Saturday of Anna Edie and Joseph Price at St. James Church, Whittemore.

The Orville Revord family of Tawas and Mrs. Joyce Burke and children spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. Walter Smith, and family.

Mrs. Walter Smith, Thomas and Sandra were in Ann Arbor Monday where Thomas received a medical checkup.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Magalski and girls spent the week visiting relatives and friends in Detroit.

Mrs. Roger Wood was a Thursday caller in Bay City.

The George Smiths visited the Harold Hammonds Monday at Whittemore.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pierson returned home this week from a week's fishing trip in the Upper Peninsula.

Tony and Todd Jordan enjoyed the week with their aunt and uncle, the Gilbert Schmitzers, at Frankenmuth while their parents were on vacation.

Immediate

In those first stores, Kroger beef sales rose 60 percent in a few months.

The discovery was pioneered through Kroger Food Foundation research in cooperation with Westinghouse Electric Corporation and the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research. It took several years of scientific study and experimentation and required some 175,000 pounds of beef.

Mr. Gifford explains: "Few people realize that fresh beef is almost always tough. Some companies add tenderizing agents; other 'age' the beef. That is, they hang it in refrigerated rooms for several weeks while natural enzymes in the meat itself actually turn tough connective tissues to gelatin."

Kroger research indicated that tenderness is one of the leading factors sought by beef shoppers. But old-fashioned slow aging is expensive and wasteful and many prefer a fresher flavor.

(That is how the idea of Tenderay was born.)

An interesting sidelight: Research into the secret of naturally tender beef was originally thought of (in the depths of the great depression) as a way to make the lower grades of beef palatable.

But consumer tastes were changing. American beefeaters wanted higher-grade beef, with "marbling" (that is, fat-ness) for the flecks of fat through the muscles that signal flavor and juiciness.

The result—only United States Department of Agriculture choice grade beef is used for Tenderay. This is the most popular government grade in the country today. (Only United States prime is a higher grade and most of that is reserved for the fancy restaurant trade because people just do not want to buy that much fat.)

Kroger has long been a pioneer in the area of meats. The company was the first chain to combine meats and groceries under one roof back in 1904, marking the beginning of today's convenient one-stop shopping.

It also was among the first companies to offer self-service meats, and more recently, was the first in this area to introduce clear plastic meat trays which allow shoppers a view of both sides of the steak.

Nothing is added to the meat. The principle is the same as old-fashioned slow aging. But it becomes tender 12 times faster—in hours instead of weeks.

The secret is precisely controlled temperature and humidity while the meat is hung in special rooms where the air and meat are kept pure and protected through the use of sterilamps, a Westinghouse development.

At the time of its introduction, the process by which Tenderay is prepared was described by scientists as the "most important contribution to the meat industry since mechanical refrigeration."

The reaction of shoppers was

New Home Service Representative

A graduate of Western Michigan University, Camilla J. Carruthers, is starting a new career as a home-service representative working out of Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's northern district headquarters in Mt. Pleasant.

Miss Carruthers, who grew up in Bancroft, graduated last June with a bachelor of science degree in home economics.

Her duties will take her throughout Northern Michigan as she prepares and presents cooking and homemaking programs at gas company offices for area residents.

"Working for Michigan Consolidated is my first experience as a college graduate," she said. "I am very anxious to travel to all the areas of the northern district and meet the people living in this water wonderland."

District FL Council Held Exchange

Members and friends of Area 15 Family Living Council were guests of Iosco County in the first of three exchange tours planned to better acquaint each other with neighboring counties.

Wednesday, July 30, 135 ladies met at the main gate of Wurtsmith Air Force Base. They were taken by bus to view base housing, planes B-52, F-101 and fighter FC-135. A tour of the NCO kitchens was also on the program.

A chicken barbecue prepared by three county extension directors, Reuben Kaare, Marvin Davenport and Jerry Malosh, was held on the beach of VanEtan Lake.

Miss Mary Peters, extension home economist; Mrs. Merle Bodenhorn, area 15 chairman, and Mrs. Donald Leitz, Iosco County council chairman, planned the well organized program.

A fall event is in the planning stages and will be hosted by Arenac County.

"SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW, SOMETHING BORROWED, SOMETHING BLUE" is a phrase known to all brides-to-be. What could be more appropriate for this wonderful occasion than an exquisite prayer book cover to be cherished by any bride for a lifetime. What bride won't feel just a bit more confident walking down that almost "endless" aisle with a bible tucked under her bouquet?

BEAUTIFUL BIBLE COVER
The cover itself is easily fashioned of fine white fabric; a moire or satin would be most lovely. The binding strip and cross are delicately tatted in mercerized crochet cotton using the traditional white, cream or ecru. For that "touch of blue", a bride might be so compelled as to use a pale robinette shade for the design. When the wedding is over and only pictures bring back those happy memories, this beautiful bible cover will remain as lovely as when it was first used. Put it on your night table or in a shelf in the living room for an extra touch for religious beauty.

GIVE AS A GIFT
What could be a better gift to give than a bible cover? Easy-to-make and beautiful enough to give, this religious book cover will be appreciated and welcomed by all. SIXTH ANNUAL dawn patrol sponsored by the Iosco Flying Club drew nearly 100 aircraft at the Iosco County Airport Sunday morning. A pancake and sausage breakfast was served to participants, followed by an acrobatic show and tour of Wurtsmith Air Force Base. Patricia Ann Cleary, Miss Michigan Aviation, was unable to attend the event as scheduled.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Keep Your Cool

by Betty Stern

Beverages to tame the effects of that hot summer sun are always welcome. Be different this summer. Instead of just opening a bottle of this or that, combine these delicious ingredients and wow your guests or family. Nothing is more appreciated than a cool drink. Of all things served, they will remember the most what quenched their thirst.

Tokay Cordial

- |  |                                 |
|--|---------------------------------|
| 1 10-ounce package frozen, sliced strawberries | Ice mold                        |
| 1½ cups white Tokay wine                       | Fresh mint leaves for garnish   |
| 1 quart cold tap water                         | 1 hollowed out large watermelon |
| 5 tablespoons instant tea                      |                                 |
| 5 tablespoons sugar                            |                                 |

Combine and let stand 1 hour the sliced strawberries and wine. Pour 1 quart of cold water into large pitcher. Add instant tea and sugar and stir briskly. Add Strawberry-Tokay Wine mixture. Place ice mold in watermelon shell. Pour tea mixture over ice. Garnish with fresh mint leaves, if desired. Makes about 12 servings. Can double recipe, if desired.

To make scalloped watermelon shell: Cut slice off top of watermelon. Cut around inside edge of melon. Make 3 cross-wise cuts and lift out melon in chunks (refrigerate and use for another purpose). Scoop out seeds in bottom and scrape with spoon to make inside smooth. Cut a scalloped pattern from a piece of cardboard, and using point of small knife make an outline pattern at top edge of melon. Cut along outline.

To make decorated ice mold: Use empty 46-ounce size juice can. Add 2 cups water, set upright and freeze. When frozen, add 3 or 4 mint sprigs and 1 cup water and freeze solid again. Fill remainder of can with water to ½-inch from top and freeze. Pour boiling water on outside can to loosen mold.

TO HUNT A GENIUS

By: Robert V. McCormick

A wild and twisting flight when under fire, a challenge to the finest of shotgunners, a raucous and ceaseless voice, these are the trademarks of the crow, a bird that to the dismay of many farmers suffers little from the depredations of man. As a crop thief, a predator of domestic and wild bird eggs, the crow, historically, is your enemy. But, some early morning, conceal yourself in a blind, match your calling ability, ingenuity, and reflexes against him, and you may experience, as I have, a change, a grudging admiration for him as he defies your shotgun, seemingly able to dodge loads of pursuing shot, almost braking in mid air, sideslipping, dropping below the charges. It is then that you will join the ranks of a sport fast becoming popular with farmers in every section of the country: crow hunting.

When first I hunted crows, as a boy on a Wisconsin farm, it was only because my farmer-grandfather and his neighbors wished to keep their population down. Little sport was involved, and any method was fair. Now, although hatred between agriculturists and crows has lessened little, crow hunting on the farm has become refined, and as such can offer to you the finest in wing shooting.

No one, least of all men who make their living from the soil, need to be told of the brainpower of the crow. He is ever watchful, posting sentries, communicating in forty to fifty separate calls, rarely displaying himself within range to the man with unconcealed weapon. And yet, as it took me so long to learn, too many of us think that because crows are overly plentiful they should be easy to shoot, a perfect example of self-deception. The crow, although rarely classified as a game bird, is one of the most evasive of birds to hunt—and, therefore, one of the most pleasurable.

The accessories of the modern crow hunter are wide in range and price: electronic calling devices, live owl and pet crow decoys, to name but a few. For the average farmer-hunter, nevertheless, a good mouth operated call, available at most sporting goods stores for a minimal price, a basic knowledge of blinds, a shotgun of any of the popular gauges stocked with a good supply of No. 7½ or 8 shells, a working knowledge of crow behavior, and you are in business.

As a man who, daily, has the opportunity to observe wildlife behavior, you are in the perfect position to pit your skills against the crow, much more so than the average city-bound hunter. During chores, for example, watch for large flocks of crows, observing night roosts and the paths they take to reach them, usually stands of trees. Observe where they feed, a most important factor in crow hunting. The latter, of course, can change, from a field of corn, to a dump grounds, to any spot which will satisfy the crow's large and amazingly varied appetite. Once scouted, these feed areas plus the flight paths to night roosts, if properly blinded, will provide the ultimate in fast and continuous shooting. Remember, the action travels with large flocks, not solo strays.

Building a crow blind means exactly what the words say, "blinding" yourself to the keen vision of the crow. Natural blinds are found in brush at the edges of woods, in fields of standing corn, in spots wherever cover is sufficiently thick to camouflage the hunter, yet sparse enough to allow free movement of weapon

LET'S UNCOMPLICATE

Picking the right gun, shell and shot size to improve your field shooting is no problem if you follow this simple Remington-Peters guide.

Find yourself a bit confused by the array of shotguns and shells available for upland game hunting?

You're in good company. Even veteran field shooters aren't always 100 percent sure of the best choice. And complicated charts and tables don't seem to help much.

Which is a shame. Because the basics of matching gun and load to the game are really quite simple. If you follow them, you can't go very wrong... even making allowances for personal opinions.

Let's start uncomplicating things.

Choosing the right gun.

The first and most important decision you have to make is what kind of game you'll generally be shooting. A gun that will help your shooting should have the action, barrel choke and barrel length that match up with the kind of game you have in mind.

What about actions? Books have been written extolling the relative advantages of automatics, pump guns and the traditional doubles. Everybody has a right to his opinion. But Remington believes that the two actions that best fit the modern shooter's needs are the automatic and the pump. Apparently the majority of shooters agree because these are far and away the most popular actions.

The Remington Model 1100 Automatic is the shotgun that just a few years ago changed the underlying attitude of American shooters toward automatics. Before the 1100, there was always a question regarding the durability and reliability of automatic actions. Early automatic designs also seemed to be on the clumsy side. The Model 1100 is a sleek beauty that has demonstrated its reliability both in the field and with trap and skeet shooters who fire thousands of rounds a year.

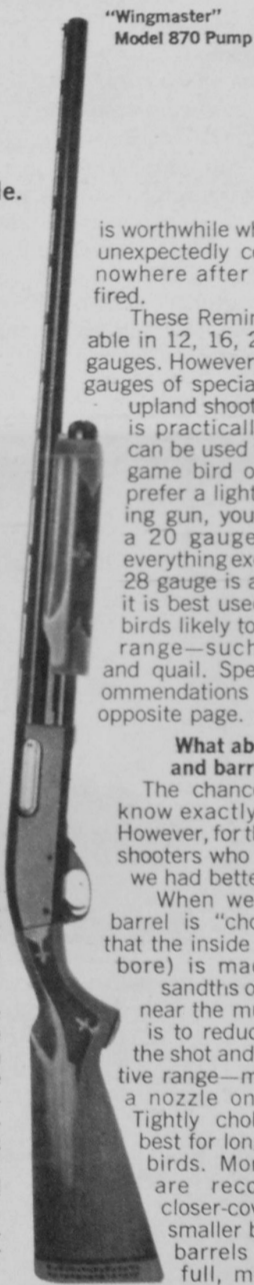

A special advantage of our gas-operated action is that it reduces recoil. There's more of a push than a "kick". The Remington 1100 is extremely pleasant to shoot. Which makes it a top choice if you figure on letting your wife, daughter or other females do some shooting. The Model 1100 with ventilated rib, illustrated here, is priced at $189.95*. Other styles start as low as $164.95*.

The "Wingmaster" Model 870 is the pump action of the Remington line. The "Wingmaster" has two action bars, a Remington first, which prevent the twisting and binding found in less carefully engineered, single-bar pump actions. Seasoned shooters claim that this action is so smooth that they can equal the speed of most automatics. Could be. This pump gun is fantastically fast. The Model 870 with ventilated rib (illustrated) sells for $134.95*. Other styles as low as $109.95*.

Model 1100 Automatic

Both the 870 and the 1100 have two obvious advantages over conventional double-barreled guns. A single sighting plane and a magazine holding several shells. This last advantage is worthwhile when another bird unexpectedly comes up out of nowhere after you've already fired.

"Wingmaster" Model 870 Pump

These Remingtons are available in 12, 16, 20, 28 and 410 gauges. However, there are three gauges of special interest to the upland shooter. The 12 gauge is practically standard and can be used for every upland game bird or animal. If you prefer a lighter, faster-swinging gun, you'll probably find a 20 gauge adequate for everything except turkey. The 28 gauge is a sporty gun, but it is best used on the smaller birds likely to be shot at close range—such as woodcock and quail. Specific gauge recommendations are given on the opposite page.

What about choke and barrel length?

The chances are that you know exactly what choke is. However, for the benefit of new shooters who might not know, we had better explain.

When we say a shotgun barrel is "choked", it means that the inside of the barrel (or bore) is made a few thousandths of an inch smaller near the muzzle. The effect is to reduce the spread of the shot and gain extra effective range—much like putting a nozzle on a water hose. Tightly choked barrels are best for long shots on tough birds. More open chokes are recommended for closer-cover shooting and smaller birds. Remington barrels are made with full, modified and improved cylinder chokes which cover all upland game shooting requirements.

Now we have a nice surprise for you. You don't have to buy a closetful of guns to get an assortment of chokes.

and good overhead vision. When natural cover is unavailable, man made blinds should always match surroundings, using native materials if possible, and keeping in mind that any blind mismatched in color, texture, or height of surrounding landscape makes the hunter as obvious as a bull in a field of clover. Blinding should not end with surrounding materials; your clothing also should match, bright colors and freshly shaven faces being strictly taboo.

The importance of cautious movement and silence at all times on the crow hunt can not be stressed too highly, and is well illustrated by an occurrence that frustrated me this past spring. I had situated myself in a fine spot, in a brushy depression on the edge of a woods overlooking an open field where, from prior scouting, I knew large gatherings of crows were congregating. Within minutes my call was working well, drawing a small flight of crows toward me when suddenly, a hundred yards off, another hunter stood up to yell to a friend, a perfectly stupid move. One short lung burst by this fool, the kindest word I can think of to describe him at the moment, and the spell was broken, my potential targets last seen as a dozen rapidly disappearing spots in the sky.

The call, for most hunters, is a source of enjoyment in itself, and an important facet of the spot. "Accomplishment" is the only word that describes the feeling which comes from luring a bird as intelligent as the crow, and this, again, is where you as a farmer have it all over city dwellers. Listen to crows talk to each other during the day and you will discover that they do not speak a language of subtlety. The voice is loud and raucous; so should be your call. The most profitable of the variety to imitate, in my experience, is what I call the "battle cry", a series of angry and action filled notes, telling each and every crow in the neighborhood that a fellow bird needs help to route one or two time honored foes, the owl or the hawk. Properly done, and this is learned by careful observ-

UPLAND HUNTING.

Remington offers interchangeable barrels that you can switch in a minute without tools or gunsmithing. A big saving in cash. And shooting the same gun helps your marksmanship, because there's no change in stock or trigger pull. (Specific choke recommendations are given below.)

Barrel length is still largely a matter of personal preference. However, for upland game there is a trend toward shorter barrels. When you're in close cover, a 26" or 28" barrel is less likely to get fouled up in the brush. And forget about the old idea that a longer barrel will "shoot a piece further". That's a hangover from black-powder days.

Better shells, better shooting.

There's one thing you can be sure of. No gun will ever shoot better than the shell you lead into it. That's why it really pays to insist on Remington or Peters shells every time.

With the exception of our special scatter load and 410 gauge, all Remington and Peters Upland Game Shells have the patented "Power Piston" one-piece wad. "Power Piston" puts up to 10% more knockdown power into every pattern. Simply because it prevents shot from flattening against the inside of the barrel. More of them fly true. The pattern isn't smaller (despite what some folks think)—it's just more effective. The pellets that might have gone wild stay in the area where you want

Remington and Peters shells all have plastic bodies, too. They won't scuff, swell or split. If you reload, they'll give as many good reloads as any shell you can buy.

Matching gun and shell to the game.

Here are recommendations based on what experienced hunters tell us is the best combination of barrel choke, shot size and amount of powder. Naturally, personal preferences vary a bit.

However, we assure you that game brought down with No. 8 shot won't count less because Remington recommended No. 9's.

PHEASANT. Improved cylinder choke for close-cover shooting. Modified or full for long cornfield shots. When long shots are expected, we recommend 12 gauge Remington Express with No. 5 shot or Peters High Velocity No. 5's. On a normal rise over dogs, and for all-around use, No. 6 shot is a favorite.

GROUSE. Improved cylinder or modified choke for hunting in heavy brush. Full choke for open shooting. 12 gauge guns are the big favorite, but you see quite a few 20 gauge guns.

On smaller birds such as ruffed grouse or Hungarian partridge, use smaller shot—1 1/4 ounces of No. 7 1/2 or No. 8 with 3/4 drams of powder as loaded by Remington is a good all-around load. For big western grouse (sage, sooty and blue) a heavier load with bigger shot such as Peters High Velocity with No. 5 or No. 6 shot is needed.

WOODCOCK. Improved cylinder or "skeet" choked barrels and smaller bores are recommended... 20 or 28 gauge. Small shot—No. 8 or No. 9—in Remington "Shur Shot" or Peters "Victor" shells are excellent. For 12 gauge guns we suggest either Remington or Peters shells loaded with 1 1/4 ounces of

No. 8 shot and 3 drams of powder.

TURKEY. Stick to full-choke barrel in 12 gauge. Choice of shot depends on expected range—bigger for long distances, smaller for close shots. Remington or Peters shells (standard or magnum) with BB, 2, 4, 5 or 6 should bring you a turkey dinner.

QUAIL (BOBWHITE). Improved cylinder and modified chokes preferred. 12 gauge favored, but there's quite a trend toward the sportier 20, 28 and 410 gauge guns. For early-season shooting, when feathers are light, some hunters use No. 9 shot. Later, they switch to No. 7 1/2 or No. 8. A good 12 gauge load is the Remington shell with 3 drams of powder behind 1 1/4 ounces of No. 8 shot.

DOVE. Modified choke is preferred by most dove shooters. At normal ranges you'll do well with the lighter loads and either No. 7 1/2 or No. 8 shot. For longer ranges use Remington "Express" or Peters "High Velocity" loaded with No. 6 or No. 7 1/2 shot.

RABBITS. There are as many choke, gauge and load combinations for rabbits as there are rabbits. For snowshoes and larger jacks we recommend Remington "Express" or Peters "High Velocity" in 12 gauge with No. 5 shot in a full or modified choke barrel. For cottontails at normal ranges, lighter loads like Remington "Shur Shot" or Peters "Victor" are preferred. No. 6 or No. 7 1/2 shot in an improved cylinder or modified-choke barrel does well.

This should cover the essentials. However, if you want more detailed information about guns or shotgun shells, your nearest Remington-Peters dealer can help. We also suggest you send for the new Remington-Peters color-illustrated catalogue. No charge. Just write to Remington Arms Company, Inc., Bridgeport, Conn. 06602—Dept. Q8.

ance of flocks of wheeling and diving crows attacking an enemy, common sights to most farmers, the "battle cry" rarely fails to bring in crows by the number, their natural caution dropped in the desire to join a good fight. Of utmost importance here is the ability to quell the natural instinct to shoot too early at beyond range birds. Be patient; if your blind is good, they will keep coming, often flying within scant yards in the search for the fellow crow with the loud voice and the belligerent attitude.

Another call, sometimes successful in drawing back one or two crows after a round of shooting, is the plaintive "Help, I am hurt" call, done softly in a coaxing, wheedling tone. Often curious stragglers will return, even though heavily shot at, to see what the problem is. Crow callers, of course, each have favorites, and only a patient ear, combined with trial and error, will develop for you those calls most fruitful on your farm.

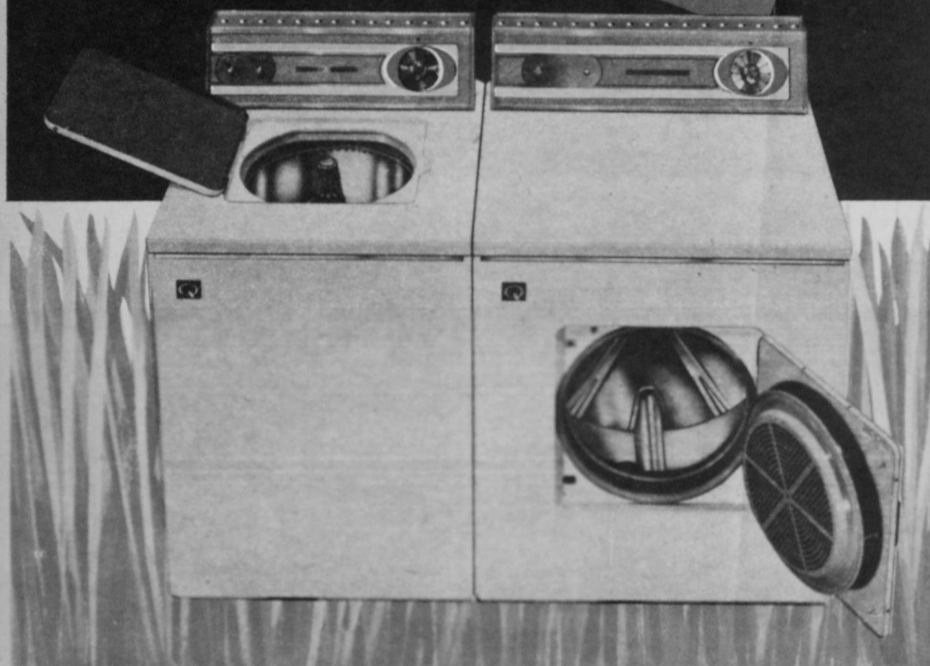

Two faults most common to those new at the sport are: lack of sufficient ammunition, and failure to compensate for trickiness of the crow's flight. The first, lack of shells, is easily understood when the hunter is accustomed to pheasant or rabbit shoots where rarely is needed more than a box of shells for the day. In crow hunting, there is no limit to the amount of shooting, kills of two or three hundred being common on a good day. A generous supply of shells also helps to combat the aerial acrobatics of the bird. It is not unusual, as this writer can attest, to fire three shots at a single crow and leave him untouched, particularly when he displays the devious subtleties of diving below shot or soaring downwind to escape, in contrast to the rising tactics of the average game bird.

Crow hunting is a twelve month sport. Even in a state as northerly as Michigan, my home territory, some birds stay year around, this adding unending availability to the long list of attributes which make crow hunting the fine sport it is, providing for you, the farmer, a highly exciting and wit teasing form of recreation on the best of all places, your own farm.

COUNTRY STORE:
AN AMERICAN INSTITUTION
DILL PICKLES AND A CRACKER BARREL

by Grover Brinkman

It was perhaps a decade ago, when the supermarket-in-every-town transition was sweeping the country like a new broom, that a hue and cry went up: the country store was doomed to rather an inglorious death.

But the suppositions didn't come into full focus. The little stores didn't die out completely, even though they breathed the strong fumes of big-market competition.

The whistle-stop grocery, the crossroads store, the small-town corner merchant, all are still with us. Not in the same number, of course, but still in quantity sufficient to be recognized in the nation's economic picture.

This is not a criticism of the supermarket. There is nothing wrong with it—not a thing. But in the scheme of things they're still youngsters. They haven't a century or more of living back of them like the one-man stores, building a strong patina of Americana, a bulwark hard to tear down.

Inside these ivory towers one may purchase everything from a can of kidney beans to a deep-frozen grouse hen. The service is fast, clean, attractive. The lights are brighter, the stores immaculately clean. The choice of items is tremendous, all things the shoppers like.

The country store didn't have all of these things. It didn't have its own bakery, for instance, or barbeque nook, its gourmet food section—or its trading stamps, contests and prizes.

But it did have—and still does, for that matter—something else that refuses to die. Let's call it a deeply-rooted American value.

With all of the tremendous competition facing it, the small crossroads store is still with us, threatens to be for some time.

There must be a reason for this stubborn tenaciousness in the face of great odds. Analyzed objectively, it would seem to boil down to one pertinent fact: need. Not only as a little man picking up crumbs but something deeper.

The supermarket doesn't look (or smell) like the old-time store—which should be in the big store's favor. There is no pickle barrel, no unwrapped bread, or potatoes in an open bin.

The cashier at the big market is young, attractive, perfumed, very efficient in punching keys on a register. But when the tape comes out of the robot, she has been trained to demand payment in full, without argument, or the vittles go back on the shelves.

Our friend Jim, who runs the country store, isn't quite so efficient. If the tab is $19.66 and the customer has a lone ten-spot, Jim puts the rest on the cuff until next pay day. That's bad business but good public relations.

Jim knew every person who walked in his front door, as well. He had free candy for the kids, plus a dozen other virtues.

He and his progeny were—and are—American institutions, as old-fashioned as goosegrease for a cold. Somehow he is a fellow we don't wish to forget, at least without a struggle.

His type is personified in a road sign seen on a Midwest highway recently, reading, simply, "This Community Needs a Grocery Store."

If you live in a city perhaps you are unaware that the country stores are still in existence. But they are. No fancy shelving, no electric doors, nothing even approaching the mod look of the supermarket. There are no week-end sales, very few specials. But prices are consistent, day after day, even at 7 a.m. in the morning, or 9:30 at night, with only a moderate markup. If Grandma Jenkins, who lives down the road half a mile, can't make it to the store because of her rheumatism, Jim will deliver.
