State Mediator Slates Session on TA Contract

A mediation session has been scheduled between the Tawas Area Board of Education and Tawas Area Education Association for July 28, 2:00 p. m.

Board OK's Coach's Plan for Promotion

Approval of a program to better school and community spirit, as suggested by Ted Guthard, new football coach at Tawas Area School this fall, was given Monday night by the board of education.

With no active athletic booster club in recent years, Guthard explained that he had taken it upon himself this summer to create more interest in athletics through development of a number of different projects.

Included would be a printed program to be sold at games which would include pictures of players, cheerleaders and the band; a printed schedule with pictures to be placed in stores; an athletic banquet at the end of the season to acknowledge efforts of youngsters participating in all sports.

The first program would be a canoe trip on the AuSable River from Foots Dam to Oscoda. This is to be held in August and participants would include football candidates and coaches. This program proved successful in past years.

Guthard said that he and his staff had been conducting weight programs during summer months.

The football coach said he had contacted a number of businessmen for donations to help finance the program and he had received an enthusiastic reception to his idea.

Board approval was necessary due to the policy that all such fund-raising campaigns be studied by board members before initiation.

Robert W. Elliott New TA President

Robert W. Elliott, who was re-elected to a four-year term recently by Tawas Area School voters, was named president of the board of education at its annual reorganizational meeting Monday night.

Elliott succeeds Carl Helmer, who remains on the board as a trustee. The outgoing president said that in view of the lack of time he had been able to devote to the office and other circumstances beyond his control, he did not desire to be a candidate for board president.

Other officers re-elected were teachers who do not participate in the health insurance program. "The board of education is willing to negotiate on all of the points mentioned by the education association," said Basil.

Robert Rombouts is the state mediator assigned to the Tawas Area School District.

When questioned by the board concerning a news release from the board in which TAEA found exception to a number of points, Basil said that he had invited TAEA negotiators to review figures used in preparing the story, but the education association representatives declined to do so.

In the July 1 release by the board, which followed presentation of the TAEA proposal in late June, Basil said the demands for salaries alone would amount to about a 30 percent increase over last year's costs.

"There is no mystery how I obtained cost figures for the release; they can be substantiated," stated the board's negotiator. Basil indicated he used the TAEA proposal to obtain the costs.

He said that the teachers' negotiators were particularly upset by two words used in the release—demands and wages. Basil pointed out, however, that the word, demand, was normally used in collective bargaining and was a proper term. In regard to the other term used, teachers thought the word, salaries, should have been used.

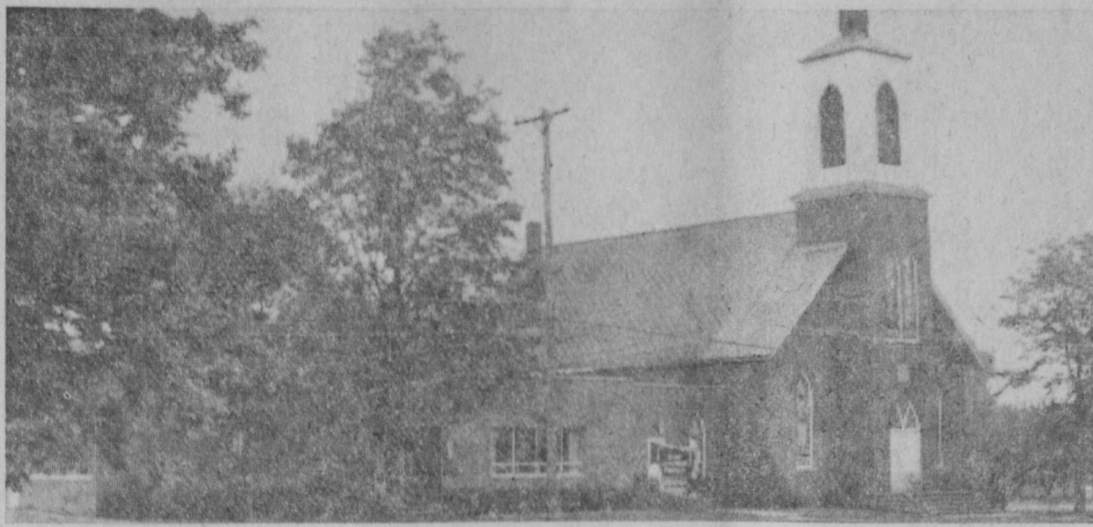

Cabin Burglaries Kept Sheriff's Officers Busy

Iosco Sheriff's Department investigated a new rash of cabin breakings and enterings over the past week-end.

Burglaries were reported at four cabins, including hunting camps owned by Paul Chevris in Grant Township and Robert Glancy in Baldwin Township.

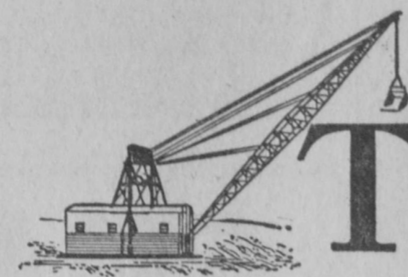

In addition, officers investigated a burglary at the Hale Laundry owned by William Wereley.

Larceny of one rowboat was reported and recovery of a boat stolen recently from Riverside Motel, Tawas City, was made in Saginaw.

Tawas Area Superintendent Gives Views on State Legislature's New School Aid Bill

In a statement released Monday, Supt. Reynold E. Mick of Tawas Area Schools said that this school district would receive no additional state aid this year under the legislature's new financial program for schools.

By the formula adopted by the legislature, Tawas Area School would receive $2,551,333 less than in 1969-70. A "great grandfather" clause insures the same amount of aid per pupil as last year.

There will be more funds available for school in Tawas Area. This will be on the basis of a tax levy of $602,360 as compared to a tax levy of $571,925 in 1969-70, due to an increase of $2,254,442 in the school district's valuation.

Tawas Area residents will be asked to pay added income tax this year due to the legislature removing credit on income tax for local taxes. This was done to balance this year's state budget.

"Yes, the legislature gave quite a twist to tax relief for the Tawas Area residents for 1970-71," said Mick. "The honorable legislature also showed foresight and gave guidelines for 1971-72. It proposed to increase deductible millage from the 14 mills applicable in 1970-71 to 20 mills in 1971-72."

Using the same number of pupils in the state and the same state equalized valuation for this year, Tawas Area's state aid would drop in the following manner: 1969-70, $214.07 per child, nine mills deductible; 1970-71, $212.76 per child, 14 mills deductible; 1971-72, $169.60 per child, 20 mills deductible.

It is estimated that in order to finance this plan in 1971-72, an added two percent income tax be raised, or an equal amount in tax be levied from other sources. "An analysis of the act makes one wonder where the money will be spent," said Mick.

The 1970-71 bill calls for state participation in the basic per pupil grant of about $575,050,000 to meet $330.50 per child. Using the same number of pupils, the same valuation and the proposed basic grant in 1971-72 of $623.50 would be $339,350,000.

The state's outlay for participation would be less in 1971-72 than in 1970-71 in basic aid on a state-wide basis. "One must guess that either local property tax must increase in the state or money will he distributed for special areas," said Mick.

"There seems no way that the legislative proposal can mean less property tax for a whole state. It can only mean shifting of burden and adding to property taxes to carry the load of inflation, plus the burden of added income tax. "The only alternative will be a reduced educational program," concluded the superintendent.

Coast-to-Coast by Horseback is Challenge to New Yorker

J. J. Cramer, 43, Middleport, New York, whose claim to fame is being the first person in history to have ridden completely across the American continent on horseback—and he has done it twice—stopped in Tawas City Friday on his journey around the world.

Walking along side his western mustang, "Doc," with a six-month-old black timber wolf in tow, Cramer headed south along US-23 and was escorted through the Tawas by members of the Iosco Sheriff's Posse. The man, his horse and timber wolf friend were bedded down at the corral and bunkhouse of Clarence King, located on Meadow Road.

On Saturday morning, the trio left the Tawas on their way back to New York. Along the way, they will stop at Toronto, Ontario, Canada, for television appearances and he expects to appear on several major network television shows once he reaches New York City.

When interviewed by the Herald Friday afternoon at the city limit of East Tawas, Cramer explained his reason for this unusual mode of travel in three words.

"It's the challenge," he declared, in being the first person to accomplish a significant feat. In fact, during his travels across the United States, he has maintained a daily journal and will use this information to write his proposed book, "First Man, First Horse—New York to Alaska."

Cramer was returning to New York from Alaska when he stopped here Friday. The round trip will have required a little more than a year, since he has been in the saddle since May 6, 1969.

The wandering trio left Alaska on March 15, bound home on the return trip. He was in the Yukon during mid-winter and camped out in his sleeping bag in 50 degrees below zero weather.

"We had to quit for seven days when the temperature dropped to more than 50 degrees below zero—we were taken in at a mining camp, then resumed the journey when the temperature went up to 40 degrees below zero," said Cramer.

Cramer said he had no criteria for the trip, although his route is prearranged. He lived off the land and accepts donations from persons interested in hearing his story. Before reaching East Tawas Friday, he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Slykhouse, who spotted the traveler headed along the highway.

Cramer was giving "Doc" a rest while walking from Oscoda to East Tawas. "It also gives me a chance to stretch my legs—you know, even in an automobile you have to stop and stretch your legs once in a while," said Cramer.

He said he travels up to 65 miles a day in this fashion.

Cramer was the first person in history to cross the Mackinac Bridge on horseback, a feat for which he had to receive special permission from the bridge authority.

Formerly an interior designing counselor in New York; Miami, Florida, and Los Angeles, California, Cramer said he spent about four years thinking about his cross-continent trips before actually starting the undertaking. He attended Niagara University and Fenn College at Cleveland, Ohio.

Once he reaches home in New York, he will start a new adventure—with "Doc" and the timber wolf, naturally—he will be heading for South America on his around the world tour.

SUMMER SCHOOL is in the news—see page 3, sec. 2.

Duquette at Philmont Scout Ranch

Robert Duquette of Troop No. 74; Tawas City, is among 19 scouts and two adult leaders from the Paul Bunyan Council, who are at the Philmont Scout Ranch and explorer base, the national camping area of the Boy Scouts of America at Cimarron, New Mexico.

The scouts are now in training at the "University of the Great Outdoors" for their 12-day high adventure expedition under the guidance of Philmont's ranger staff. The group's ranger is instructing them in wilderness cookery, backpacking, hiking techniques, compass and map use. After three days with the ranger, the expedition will continue following mountain trails on the 214-square mile ranch with their own adult leaders, Fenton Bathke of Coleman and James Kline, Standish.

While on the trail, the scouts participate in programs offered in 21 mountain camps by members of Philmont's 400-man staff. These programs include burro packing, horseback riding, gold panning and mining, archaeological study and digging, along with advanced mountaineering.

This summer, during the ranch's 32nd camping season, more than 17,000 explorers and older boy scouts will take part in these and other activities.

After the opening campfire, at which the "New Mexico Story" was narrated, scouts left camping headquarters and moved to the mountain starting camp in the rugged Sangre de Cristo range of the Rocky Mountains.

adopted which raises the daily cost to high school students next fall. Effective next fall, high school students will pay a weekly fee of $2 for hot lunches, as compared to $1.75 last term. Hot lunches purchased on a daily basis will be 45 cents for students and 57 cents for faculty members. Cost to elementary students was not increased.

Leonard Sarki, committee chairman, said that if cost of the hot lunch program continues to raise, the fee for elementary students would have to be increased. The committee recommended that a student be appointed each day to insure that silverware is not lost in garbage cans.

It was also noted that free lunches to needy children had increased considerably last year.

During one month last year, 1,453 lunches were given away free of charge. A report on how this program is administered is to be presented at the next meeting.

In order to finance construction of the new track, the board is to borrow $21,000 from the five percent state equalized valuation provision under state law. The money would be repaid under an eight-year bond proposal. The board has set aside $12,000 from the general fund to finance the remainder of the $32,485 project. Money used for this construction is to be repaid to the general fund from gate receipts at athletic events.

A special meeting is to be held Monday, July 20, to consider alleviation of building scarcity expected next fall.

Conservation District Here to Serve You

During the past decade, the word conservation has had more meaning to more people than any other word in the American language. A complete definition would fill a book. The objective of the Soil Conservation Service since its beginning in 1935 is the best definition. "To use each parcel of land according to its capability and treat it according to its needs."

The recently updated Michigan Conservation Needs Inventory, published by the United States Department of Agriculture, reflects future needs for soil and water conservation treatment in Isosco County. In round numbers, the total acreage in Isosco County is 350,000 with the breakdown as follows: 143,000 federal, 28,000 urban, 800 stream and small ponds, 35,000 cropland, 22,000 pasture, 154,000 forest and 9,000 other.

For the past 19 years, the Isosco Soil Conservation District has provided information to help land owners make land use decisions on 220,000 of the 350,000 acres in the county.

"Almost 70 percent of the pastureland and 20 percent of the cropland in this county are in need of conservation treatment," says Harry Krueger, chairman of the Isosco Soil Conservation District Board. "People don't realize that the application of conservation land use treatment now is by far the soundest economic investment they can make. Which would you rather have, a piece of bare ground with only the infertile subsoil left and a mud choked stream, or an area covered with green vegetation and crystal clear water?"

One half of the 154,000 acres of privately-owned forest lands need treatment to realize their maximum potential. Forests, unlike cropland, can be managed for multiple use, including recreation, forestry and wildlife.

If you are one of the 72,000 land owners in Isosco County and your land is not being treated according to its capability, get in touch with the Soil Conservation District office in the Federal Building, East Tawas, on Monday. Charles Lightfoot, district conservationist, will be happy to discuss conservation on your land with you.

Highway Dept. Adopts New Pollution Act

Steps to reduce and prevent soil erosion and resulting water pollution are now being taken on federally-financed highway construction projects, the state highway commission reports.

The conservation measures include immediate mulching, seeding or sodding of exposed earth areas and limiting the area of exposed raw earth on construction projects. Other measures include use of dikes, dams and sediment basins to control, conserve and purify drain water from construction projects.

A contract specification covering control measures during construction will be required by the United States Bureau of Public Roads on all highway projects where the possibility of erosion or pollution exists.

The cost will be included either by separate unit bid in the contract or by prorating the cost over other bid items.

During the past decade, the word conservation has had more meaning to more people than any other word in the American language. A complete definition would fill a book. The objective of the Soil Conservation Service since its beginning in 1935 is the best definition. "To use each parcel of land according to its capability and treat it according to its needs."

The recently updated Michigan Conservation Needs Inventory, published by the United States Department of Agriculture, reflects future needs for soil and water conservation treatment in Isosco County. In round numbers, the total acreage in Isosco County is 350,000 with the breakdown as follows: 143,000 federal, 28,000 urban, 800 stream and small ponds, 35,000 cropland, 22,000 pasture, 154,000 forest and 9,000 other.

For the past 19 years, the Isosco Soil Conservation District has provided information to help land owners make land use decisions on 220,000 of the 350,000 acres in the county.

"Almost 70 percent of the pastureland and 20 percent of the cropland in this county are in need of conservation treatment," says Harry Krueger, chairman of the Isosco Soil Conservation District Board. "People don't realize that the application of conservation land use treatment now is by far the soundest economic investment they can make. Which would you rather have, a piece of bare ground with only the infertile subsoil left and a mud choked stream, or an area covered with green vegetation and crystal clear water?"

One half of the 154,000 acres of privately-owned forest lands need treatment to realize their maximum potential. Forests, unlike cropland, can be managed for multiple use, including recreation, forestry and wildlife.

If you are one of the 72,000 land owners in Isosco County and your land is not being treated according to its capability, get in touch with the Soil Conservation District office in the Federal Building, East Tawas, on Monday. Charles Lightfoot, district conservationist, will be happy to discuss conservation on your land with you.

All 18-Year-Olds Required to Register With Selective Service on Birthday

Every male is required by law to register at a Selective Service System board on his 18th birthday or within five days of that date. The residence given at the time of registration determines the local board which will have jurisdiction over the registrant even if he moves to another city, town or state.

A registrant should keep his local board informed of his current address or where mail will reach him until he receives his 5-A classification, which in most cases is following the 35th birthday.

Registrars are appointed throughout Iosco County. Young men may register with John Dickey, postmaster, Whittemore; Mrs. Jean Barnes, Oscoda Area High School secretary, Oscoda; Richard Matthews, postmaster, Hale; Howard Durant, postmaster, East Tawas; Mrs. June Scott, registrar, East Tawas Federal Building or with Mrs. Betty L. Shedenhelm, executive secretary of Michigan Local Board No. 36, East Tawas. The local board office is closed all day Monday and Friday afternoon. Registrants returning from service during the month of June registered in Iosco County are Gerald W. Shugart, Gary D. Upson, Carl A. Nash, Robert A. Race, Ralph A. Dye and Perry E. Fletcher.

Called for preinduction physical examinations were Louis Henry Kendall, Jerry Wilfred Youngs, Richard Lee Zalewski, Kenneth Roy Hasty, Michael Gervis Crenshaw, Gerald Bruce Lockhart, Robert Vernon LaVack Jr., Terry Bruce Winchell, Terrance Edward Tate, Harold William Drengberg, John St. Aubin Coyle, Franklin Thomas Curley, Darl Harvey Durant, James Richard Greenlee, Roy Huey Reno, Robert Mark Willis and Michael James Kezele.

Enlisted and inducted are Clayton N. Grinkey, Brian C. Wilkinson, David Eugene Smith, Thomas B. Huck, Carl P. Ruhl and Van Steven Rea.

Effort is being made by local boards to recruit members for appointment as advisors to registrants. Regulations provide that advisors should be at least 30 years of age, but there are no other restrictions other than the usual requirement of United States citizenship. The basic requirement will be to obtain interested individuals who are willing to serve as a source of selective service information to the community.

Selective Service System headquarters will distribute to those nominated and appointed, instructional materials and pamphlets for their use in performing their advisory functions.

Persons interested in performing this public service should submit their name, address, age, occupation, along with any additional information or comments to Michigan Local Board No. 36, Federal Building, East Tawas, for consideration and recommendation by the local board. Information must be received by the local board no later than August 15.

Tawas Summer School in Fifth Week

Art class in Tawas Area School's summer program.

Tawas Area Summer School, funded under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, is now in its fifth week. This program will run until Friday, July 24.

Participating in this program are 90 children in grades kindergarten through six. Eight teachers, two teacher aides and one counselor have charge of instruction.

The children are receiving concentrated instruction in basic reading and mathematics skills, enrichment in art, library, physical fitness and health.

Teacher aides are working individually with children on phonics and number skills.

In addition, Miss Patti Burk, speech therapist for Isoco Intermediate School District, is working with 40 children who are having difficulty with speech sounds. One teacher aide is assisting her.

A special project this year, "Operation Pinetree Classroom," is being operated in conjunction with the regular program. This project, under direction of Roger Spencer, is a natural science class in which the students—17 sixth and seventh graders—are making a teaching trail, or outdoor classroom at Corsair Park in the Huron National Forest. In addition, the class is working on insect and other natural science collections. This project is being run with assistance and cooperation of the United States Forest Service.

The Headstart program, involving 16 prekindergarten students, is in progress. This project is in the second and possibly last year at Tawas Area School. This valuable program is aimed at giving disadvantaged children a "head start" so they can successfully participate in the regular school program.

This may not be available next year because of a ruling that it must be operated on a year around basis. At the present time, Tawas Area School has no room available for an operation of this type.

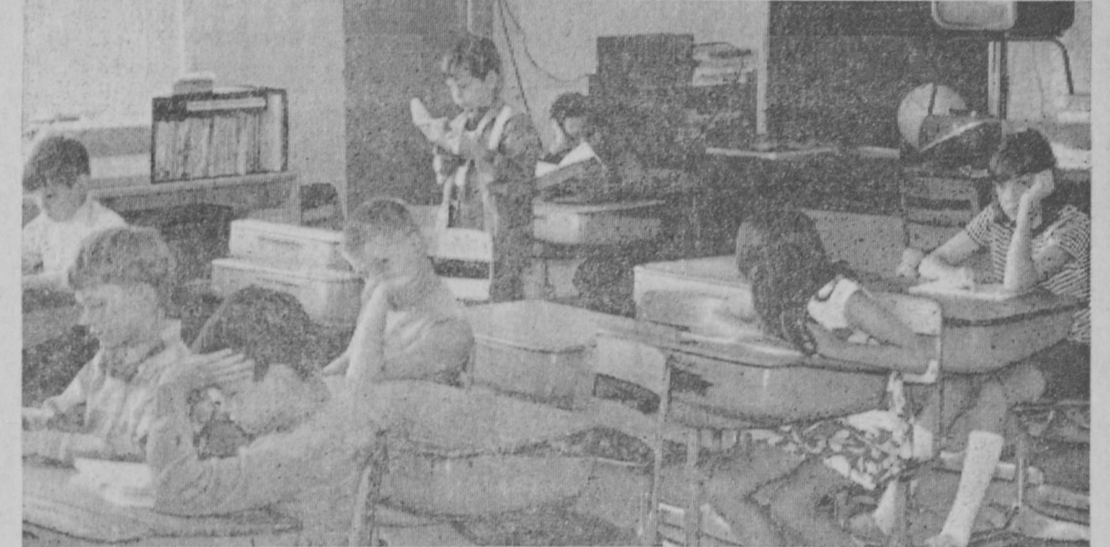

The summer school has had one open house this summer, reports Robert (Harry) Crawford, director of federal activities for Tawas Area School.

"Approximately 30 parents visited with us, discussed the program and the educational needs of Tawas Area Schools. At that time, they requested we have another open house near the end of the term. We are now planning to have an open house the last week—possibly Friday, July 24.

"Year around school? We have it at the Tawas City Elementary Unit. Come and visit us," urges Mr. Crawford.

MISS PATTI BURK, speech therapist for Isoco Intermediate School District, is shown here with Laurie Look, a teacher's aide. About 40 children are involved in the speech program.

A READING improvement class is shown in progress. Other classes offered include mathematics, library, physical fitness and health.

THE PERT LITTLE CARDIGAN is busy, busy, busy pairing off with your spring skirts and pants. If you have a yen to try the midi, this sweater-jacket is a likely companion. Its broad-shouldered, small-waisted silhouette creates the right proportions with longer length skirts.

Can You Take A Ribbing?
Knit two, purl two and what have you got? The answer is ribbing. The cardigan is ribbed for a close, body fit. Bi-color borders are worked in the easy single crochet stitch; around the neck, front opening and sleeve edges. The set-in sleeves are chicly short and simple. Button, button—find the right button for a perfect finish.

Tricoter

The sweater may look like it came from a Left Bank boutique, but the knit and crochet instructions are written in English. It is done with synthetic worsted-weight yarn in misses' sizes 8-14. Free instructions are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet PK 4662.

It's a scarf—it's a cap—it's both. It's the handiest, dandiest way to keep warm, this winter and next. This scarf-cap makes a marvelous knitting project for teenagers because it is quick and easy. You do it in the stockinette stitch on large needles, alternating stripes of variegated worsted yarn with a solid color. The 60" long piece is folded in half lengthwise and seamed to form a tube. Tuck in one end of the scarf to fit your head and, presto, a cap. Free instructions are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet PK 4606.

TRY SOME MAD HATTERY to celebrate the vernal equinox. "Alice" and her friends would absolutely adore such a chapeau. You might even be invited to one of their 'unbirthday parties.'

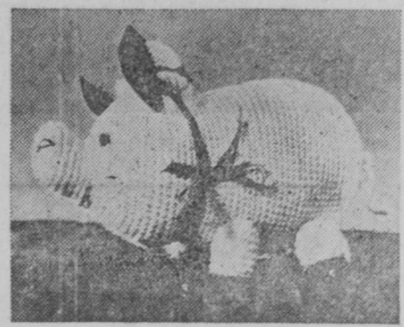

Embroidered For Spring
A beret is a beret and it is always a good looking style. When it is gussied up with gray embroidery, it is a great one. This hat is made in six sections of light-weight wool fabric. The design is repeated on each section, using such luscious shades of floss as beauty rose, tropic orange and mid pink. This embroidered beret will be the crowning glory of your newest spring outfit.

Home Millinery

The instructions include a full sized pattern for one section, with the embroidery design, plus stitch diagrams and a color key. Mad Hattery is fun once you get the hang of it. For your free copy of this leaflet, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet PE 5167.

THIS LITTLE PIGGY is obviously the one who went to market. You can tell because he is wearing a bright red ribbon around his neck and a yellow hat perched rakishly on his head. He is quite a loveable fellow and is sure to fit in with the other stuffed toys on your playroom farm.

A Skein of Yarn

The waggish fellow is roundly done in the single crochet stitch and stuffed to perfect plumpness with lots of batting. In spite of his generous girth, it only takes one skein of yarn to make him. He is in the pink, using 4-ply worsted, with a dash of yellow for the hat. You will need some black felt for his feet and ears. His face is embroidered.

A Tossable Toy

Amiable piggy loves to play with kids. They can hug him, use him as a pillow or toss him around like a football and he will love every minute of it. Free instructions are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet PC 1794.

Oscoda School Budget Study Continues

Superintendent of the Oscoda Area Schools today announced that the budget study sessions of the board of education were continuing in an attempt to determine the educational program for the 1970-71 school year. These meetings have been held regularly since the defeat of the millage election on June 8. At this time, he also announced that no decisions have been made by the board inasmuch as they have been waiting to determine what action the Michigan Legislature would take regarding state aid and also the action of congress regarding Public Law 874.

The action of the Michigan State Legislature on July 2 was discussed at a study session held Monday evening, July 6. It was revealed that the Oscoda schools will receive $55 more per pupil or $330,000 more in state aid than previously estimated.

The superintendent also announced that the original proposed operating budget for the 1970-71 school year estimated a deficit of approximately $650,000. With this additional state aid, he said, the proposed budget would have an anticipated deficit of $320,000. The estimated deficit for the past school year is expected to be about $80,000 depending on the final audit.

He said the board will continue its study sessions and hopes that it will take action very soon so that a millage proposal can be presented to the school electors on August 11. The superintendent stated that the board has been faced with many unknown factors, one of which was state aid and now that it has been passed, it is hoped that action will be taken soon by congress on Public Law 874.

Feature-Fish

After half a dozen phone calls from fishermen's wives... gals with more fish on their hands than they were able to use and questions about how to freeze the extras... I decided to turn to an expert.

Here, from Mrs. Ingrid Bartelli, MSU consumer information specialist located in the Upper Peninsula, heart of Michigan's fishing grounds, is "the word" on how to freeze fresh-water fish and how not to do the job, too.

Fish are perishable. They will self-destruct in a day if not properly cared for. So the first rule is to keep the fish in prime condition; then freeze as rapidly as possible.

This emphasis on quick freezing immediately rules out the often used method of filling a half-gallon milk carton with fish, covering with water and putting in the freezer. There are several things wrong with this method.

First, home freezers often are not capable of freezing into the center of a half gallon container for a couple of days. In the meantime, there can be spoilage in the fish in the center of the pack. There is also danger that the warm food to be frozen will partially thaw the food already in the freezer.

The second fallacy in the "half gallon" method is the danger done to the fish in the center of the pack during the freezing process. A full container placed in the freezer will freeze around the outside first. When any liquid freezes, it expands. That expansion causes severe pressures on the interior of the pack as the pack becomes completely frozen. Since fish are tender to begin with, the pressures that develop can turn the fish in the center of the pack to mush.

It is a good idea to freeze fish in water or to build an ice glaze to help retain the delicate fish flavor. There is a better approach to freezing fish in water than the half gallon method.

Whatever the variety or form of fish to be frozen, estimate the amounts needed for a meal. Arrange these in a pan of suitable size, such as an ice cube tray, loaf pan or cake pan. If possible, keep the fish in a single layer. Place the pan in the freezer without water overnight or until fish are completely frozen. Then cover the frozen fish with water and return to the freezer until the total forms a solid block. Because the fish are frozen first, the expansion of the water when it freezes to ice will cause no damage to the tender fish flesh.

When a solid block is frozen, remove from the pan and wrap in moisture vapor-proof freezer wrap. Be sure to label and date the package. Oily or fat fish should be used within six months before the fat becomes rancid.

Another method of freezing smaller fish or larger ones reduced to portion-size pieces is to spread them out on a cookie sheet and freeze them separately. Then pack the individual pieces in a large, heavy film bag with a tight closure. As you need them, remove as many of the individual pieces as you need, reclose the bag with the remainder, squeezing out all excess air and return to freezer. Folks often ask if the fish can

In spite of inclement weather, 110 Tawas area senior citizens gathered in the East Tawas Community Building Wednesday, July 8, and enjoyed an afternoon of cards and the usual songfest. Ten members with birthdays in July were honored and served ice cream, cake and beverages. Drawing of door prizes climaxed the program.

Announce Oscoda School Starting Days

The superintendent of Oscoda Area Schools today announced the starting dates for the 1970-71 school year. All students, he said, would report on Tuesday, September 8.

He also announced that the principals' offices would reopen on the following dates: Senior high school, Monday, August 3; junior high school, Monday, August 10; all elementary schools, Monday, August 17.

New teachers will report on Thursday, September 3, and the entire faculty on Friday, September 4. New students who have not registered should contact the respective offices beginning on the dates mentioned.

The superintendent added that the transportation system of the school district is being studied by school officials in cooperation with representatives of the COOR Intermediate School District to computerize bus schedules. Hopefully, he said, schedules can be shortened, some eliminated and a lesser number of buses would be needed. Some children are required to ride for long periods of time each day and it is hoped that these long routes can be shortened.

Random Election System Adopted by Selective Service

The Military Selective Service year drawing will be conducted for the purpose of assigning registrants to those in Class IA or IA-O, who are subject to call with the age group initially assigned to him. For example, if he is a registrant whose deferment expires in 1972, he would be selected in that year in accordance with his initially assigned number. If his number had been reached by his local board in 1972 prior to the expiration of his deferment, he could expect to be selected shortly after being placed in a class available for service. If his number had not been reached by his local board prior to the expiration of his deferment, he would be selected when his number is reached. A registrant whose number is not reached during the calendar year in which he is available will be placed in a lower order of call, except as noted below. Any registrant classified in Class IA or Class IA-O who is subject to random selection, whose random sequence number has been reached and who would have been called for report for induction except for delays due to a pending appeal, shall be subject to random selection or otherwise, shall be ordered to report for induction next year if such delay is concluded, be ordered to report for induction next year if his number had been reached by his local board in 1972 prior to the expiration of his deferment. In cases of extended liability, registrants who have attained his 25th birthday.
