

Election Date Uncertain

Proposed Middle School Would Cost $470,000, or One-Mill Tax for 15 Years

Discussion continued Monday night by Tawas Area Board of Education on submitting a middle school proposal to district electors. Board members are as yet undecided if the proposal would be submitted at the annual election June 14, or at a later date in the summer.

More detailed plans showing a tri-level addition to the Tawas City Elementary Unit, which would be converted into a middle school, were presented by Erwin Hacker of the school district's architectural consulting firm of Bay City.

Hacker said that the two different levels in the addition—each being one-half story above and below the building's present elevation—would utilize the sloping site of the present elementary unit.

Cost of the 16,000-foot addition would be approximately $400,000, based on present construction prices. Total cost of the proposition would be about $470,000, which would include $46,000 in supplies and equipment and $24,000 for architectural fee.

According to a bonding schedule prepared by the school board's attorney, financing this proposition would require one mill of taxes for 15 years, based on an interest rate of six percent.

Hacker said that construction costs are currently at a depressed level, around $25 per square foot. Bidding on school work is extremely competitive and the architect did not expect to see the situation change in the months ahead. He did say, however, that the situation might change in a matter of days and the price could go as low as $21 or as high as $30, depending on construction activity around the state.

During discussion, board members said that the major need for converting the elementary unit into a middle school for grades five through eight was to improve the curriculum in these grades as well as at the high school. At present, junior high school grades are located at the high school building and there is a maximum use of all facilities with little chance of improving the curriculum.

Another reason for this plan, which has been discussed in the past and mentioned again Monday night, is the need for separating junior high school students from the high school.

Hacker pointed out that junior high school children had undergone a change in the past three years—"They are growing up faster and doing things on their own," said the architect. He said the same problem faced all other school districts which combine junior and senior high schools.

Remarkable Recovery

F&M Bank Recapitalized; Surplus of Stock Buyers to Offset Shortage

Recapitalization of Farmers and Merchants State Bank in the area of $800,000—the same sound financial position it was in before a customer's check kiting scheme collapsed over a month ago—was adopted unanimously at a special meeting Monday of stockholders.

This remarkable recovery—although not unanticipated—was accomplished through the sale of common stock which had been approved by stockholders on January 19, along with the sale of preferred stock and capital notes.

Richard Parkinson, vice president and cashier, who has been on the "firing line" for more than a month since the shortage was first discovered, said Tuesday afternoon that 95 percent of the bank's outstanding stock was represented Monday at the stockholder's meeting.

"The fact that our proposal was carried unanimously carries a lot of weight with us," commented Parkinson.

The bank's vice president and cashier is to appear Wednesday before the Michigan Financial Institutions Bureau for certification of the recapitalization. Since the beginning, the bureau has expressed that there was no reason to feel that depositors were in danger and that they were adequately protected.

Although remaining silent concerning identification of the customer involved since the check kiting shortage was first uncovered, Parkinson said Tuesday that Gene C. Ballinger, Oscoda businessman, was the "unnamed customer." Ballinger was indicted March 26 in Bay City Federal Court on 26 counts of fraud and using the United States mails to carry out the fraud over a period of four years.

While the actual amount cited in the indictment was over $750,000, Parkinson said Tuesday that the actual loss sustained by the bank amounted to a little more than $600,000.

Ballinger stood mute at his arraignment in federal court two weeks ago. No trial date has been set and he is free on $25,000 bond.

Parkinson said that, to date, the bank had recovered slightly more than $13,000 through operation of the customer's businesses, the Amateur Treasure Hunters Association, Incorporated, at Oscoda, and the AuSable Regional Credit Bureau.

"At this point, an arrangement has been worked out where the bank has not assumed liability or ownership of the businesses and is working in an advisory capacity. We will continue to operate the businesses to reduce the shortage," said Parkinson.

He also indicated there was a possibility of a sale of the businesses and, if this should take place, he expected a full recovery of the bank's shortage over a shorter period.

Parkinson said that a voluntary disclosure by Ballinger on March 8 led to the shortage discovery and that he had been working with the bank since that time to recover the shortage.

Ballinger, it has been charged, has been floating checks between the Hale bank and Peoples State Bank for several years, depositing a check written on one bank in a second bank and then covering the first check with another check on the second bank, never having funds in either to cover the issued checks.

Parkinson said that, except for circumstances beyond anyone's control, Peoples State Bank could have assumed part of the loss.

Elated over the recapitalization program, Parkinson said that the bank's board of directors had authorized a sale of 706 shares of common stock in January.

"We could have sold more than 900 shares of common stock, our preferred stock issue was oversubscribed and our capital account was raised locally in the Hale, Whittemore and Rose City areas. This is an indication of extreme confidence by investors," said Parkinson.

New Uniforms

TA Band to Say 'Thanks' With Concert

Tawas Area Band will model its new uniforms at a concert to be held Saturday, April 17, 7:30 p. m., at the high school auditorium. The band will present both marching and concert uniforms.

The concert will also feature the Clare Symphonic Band in the annual exchange concert between the two schools.

A special "thank you" concert was originally scheduled for the last week of March, but uniforms did not arrive until that week. Since the next scheduled concert was with Clare, it was decided to combine both concerts.

The Clare Symphonic Band, directed by Kenneth Penney, and Tawas band have regularly participated in exchange concerts. The bands will practice Saturday afternoon, then the visiting members will be hosted at local homes before the 7:30 o'clock evening concert.

"The Tawas Area Band would like to say thank you to the many people in our community who helped in securing the new uniforms," states Gene S. Salamony, director. "Everyone is invited to attend to view the new uniforms and hear an exciting concert by the Clare and Tawas Area bands.

Millage Expires; TA Studies New Levy

Depending upon what the general public thinks of Governor Milliken's proposed sweeping shift in school financing, this may be the last year that Tawas Area School voters will be asked to approve a special millage for school operation.

Regardless of the public's future reaction to the governor's proposed 2.3 percent hike in the state income tax and elimination of property taxes as a source of school operating revenue—requiring a constitutional amendment—Tawas Area School's 4½ mills of special operating tax expires this year and must be replaced. The board of education is now making plans to submit the millage proposal at the annual school election on June 14.

School costs, like all expenses since the current levy of 4½ mills was approved two years ago, have risen and no announcement has been made as yet concerning the proposed increase. Board members must reach some decision by April 26 in order to get a proposition on the annual school election ballot.

But, board members reiterated their past stand again Monday night to the effect that there would be no millage election until a 1971-72 contract is signed with Tawas Area Education Association. Last minute negotiations saw the current contract with teachers signed just as school opened last fall and negotiations were started earlier on a new contract this year.

The board of education has adopted a new budget calling for an operational spending increase of $78,258—from $1,228,741 during the current year to $1,306,999 in 1971-72. This budget is to be submitted to the Iosco Allocation Board next week.

As usual, school financing is in limbo as the legislature has not adopted a state aid bill as yet. "Guaranteed" state revenue was adopted using last year's state aid bill. Regardless of legislative action this year, the local share of the budget will be higher as property value based on sales continues to climb.

Back in March, Supt. Reynold Mick estimated that the local share of this budget would require an operational tax of 16.5 mills, as compared to the tax of 13.5 mills during the current year. This year's total tax includes nine mills allocated from the 15 mills split between the county, townships and schools, along with the 4½ mills of special voted tax which expires.

While the budget submitted is the "ideal" and can stand some paring, there could only be a slight change as there are no frills in north country schools.

Because of the fact that the state is in arrears on payment of state aid to schools—about 40 percent is due on the February payment and the same for April—the school will need to borrow from $80,000 to $115,000 to meet expenses.

Forms were prepared Monday night to ask permission from the Municipal Finance Commission to borrow on anticipated 1971-72 taxes.

AN AMENDMENT to a 1970 legislative act submitted last week by State Rep. George Prescott would require gypsum mining operations such as this to return overburden to strip mines rather than to pile the overburden along edges of the pit.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Prescott's Amendment Would Add Gypsum to '70 Mine Act

A bill concerning considerable property acreage in Iosco County was introduced last week in the state legislature by State Rep. George Prescott of Tawas City.

House Bill 4748 would amend legislation passed last year requiring the reclamation of lands subjected to the mining of metallic minerals. Prescott's bill strikes out the word "metallic," thereby requiring restoration of lands from which any mineral has been mined.

Prescott said he hopes the bill will correct the problem of lands not being restored after being mined, especially in the case of gypsum mines in the state.

"The wording in the current law has caused some problems for the 102nd District, where the majority of gypsum mining in the state is done. Gypsum is not a "metallic" mineral and was exempt from the law.

"The new language," Prescott said, "will require that all lands used for the mining of any mineral be restored at the conclusion of the mining and will include the numerous gypsum mines in the 102nd District."

Areas from which minerals are removed for highway construction or gravel pits are exempt from the restoration requirement.

Prescott said Monday that the bill would require operators to level overburden in strip mining operations. At present, overburden is piled along the edges of strip mines.

He said that a number of persons concerned with conservation and ecology had contacted him concerning the problem. If enacted, the requirement would be enforced by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Snowfall Here Up 33 Inches

Feel Clobbered During Past Winter? Same for Entire North

While most area residents probably feel they were clobbered by one of the most severe winters in recent history, they can take heart by learning that Iosco County did not fare as badly as other Northern Lower Michigan counties.

In fact, it might cheer up some to learn that while Southern Michigan residents may lament that their tulips are up only three inches, Upper Peninsula residents have to dig through three feet of snow just to find the frozen turf.

To the north, Alpena measured a whopping 162 inches of snow, while Charlevoix on the Lake Michigan side had 196 inches. Both established new snowfall records during the winter.

As of April 1, average accumulated snowfall for some Upper Peninsula counties, compiled from United States Weather Bureau figures, was as high as 256 inches.

According to a report from the Iosco County Road Commission, Iosco's snowfall measured approximately 90 inches as of March 23. Checking in three different areas, a road commission spokesman found that snowfall at East Tawas measured 93 inches, Tawas City had 90 inches and the county "hot spot," Wurtsmith Air Force Base, had 82½ inches.

Nelson Bean of the road commission office said their snowfall records were not maintained by the commission. All of the above check points are on the eastern side of the county and the west side of Iosco may have had a heavier fall of snow.

Not only did the Upper Peninsula and Northern Lower Peninsula receive much more snow than Southern Michigan this year, but the entire northern area was hit harder this year than for the past 15 to 20 years.

A report Monday from Reginald Bublitz, superintendent of public works in Tawas City, said that this city's total was swelled by two inches in a storm on April 3.

Bublitz said the winter was severe for snow removal. Last year, a snowfall of 59 inches was recorded, or 33 inches below the fall of the past winter.

Study Reading Improvement Plan for TA Elementary Slow Learners

Analysis of the Stanford achievement tests administered to elementary students nearly a year ago indicates that reading scores of children here seem to fit a perfect "curve" on national norms—about as many are accelerated as are retarded—but Tawas Area Board of Education Monday night directed administrators to come up with some program which would improve reading ability of below average children.

This could be quite an undertaking as past federally-sponsored programs here have stressed reading improvement. Robert H. Crawford, federal programs director, said that summer reading improvement programs held in recent years have helped such students and that this year's program—last under the present arrangement—would stress reading improvement for children in grades one through three.

Crawford said that Title One Fund

money in the amount of $35,238 had been approved by the federal government for this year's program. Future programs call for the expenditure of such funds through the regular school year.

Curriculum meetings with high school teachers have stressed the fact that too large a percentage of students are just unable to read. Crawford is to conduct a testing program in grades seven through 12 to determine reading abilities.

"There is nothing in the records of each student to measure reading ability," said Crawford. "Not all students are ready to read at the same time and research shows that some are reading at their level of ability."

In his book, "How to Increase Reading Ability," Albert Harris said: "In the typical elementary school, about one-third of the children read at their grade level; about

Invite Civil Service Applicants

In response to a need for physician's assistants, largely in the Veterans Administration, the Civil Service Commission is inviting applications from those who possess the required qualifications. It is anticipated that about 600 persons will be appointed.

Physician's assistants will work under a doctor's direct supervision, performing diagnostic and therapeutic duties such as taking medical histories, applying and removing casts and suturing minor lacerations.

The appointment of physician's assistants is expected to help bridge the medical care gap in two ways: It will give people who have badly needed medical skills the opportunity to work at the height of their abilities and it will free doctors from the more routine tasks involved in medical care, allowing them to concentrate their unique talents where they are most needed. This program is largely experimental at this time.

Candidates most likely to qualify as physician's assistants are expected to be those who have performed independent duty as medical corpsmen and nurses.

Standards are high, requiring both a broad background of medical knowledge and completion of an acceptable course of study of at least 12 months' duration designed specifically for the training of physician's assistants. Qualifications will be evaluated by a panel of medical doctors.

There is no written test.

Jobs are located in hospitals and clinics of the Veterans Administration throughout the country, in medical facilities of the department of health, education and welfare, and in the District of Columbia Government.

Complete information, including all necessary application forms, is contained in announcement No. 428 which can be obtained from any Civil Service Commission area office, most large post offices, college placement offices or from the United States Civil Service Commission, 1900 E Street North West, Washington, D. C. 20415.

EDITOR'S COMMENT

It's Time to Think About Priorities

After reading two comprehensive sewer and water reports and attending two meetings at which these reports were reviewed at length and discussed, it seems as though the Tawas City Council and Water Board should now consider some priorities for implementing these two important, long range programs.

The question now is which program of modernization is the most important to this community and to the people of the State of Michigan? Can both programs be implemented now, or is there a need for placing a higher priority on one program—sewer or water—now and leaving the other for future development? Both are of vital concern to the community, because of increasingly heavy demands on the systems and new governmental regulations.

On January 6, this newspaper reviewed both programs in its columns. A needs study on secondary sewage treatment and phosphate removal was completed in September 1969 by the city's engineer, State and federal pollution control agencies have become increasingly concerned with the rate of deterioration in the water quality of the Great Lakes and tributary streams. This includes our own Tawas River and Tawas Bay.

The city has been notified by the Michigan Water Resources Commission that all existing waste discharges will be required to provide facilities for the removal of phosphorus compounds by June 1, 1977. The commission will also require secondary treatment of plant effluents in the near future to reduce suspended solids and oxygen demand of the waste.

Under the plan developed by Spicer Engineering in 1969, the existing plant designed to serve a population of 4,250 would remain in service. Chemicals for phosphate removal would be added to the effluent and this would be pumped into an aerated lagoon. The lagoon discharge will be returned to the Tawas River, but not before a 32-day detention time.

Two Isoco Projects in Bid Letting

Two Isoco County projects, totaling an estimated $200,000, will be included among 45 projects in 38 counties on which bids will be taken April 21 by the Michigan State Highway Commission.

The bid taking, totaling an estimated $30,000,000, is one of the largest in the history of the state highway department.

The two Isoco projects include construction of a three-span box beam bridge to carry Mill Street over the AuSable River at Oscoda. Estimated cost of the bridge is $180,000 and completion date is set for November 1971.

The second project is bituminous surface treatment sealing on M-65 from the north village limits of Hale south to M-55. Work includes widening of the highway in Hale. Estimated cost is $20,000 and the completion date is set for June of this year.

What would be the cost of such treatment? Preliminary estimates of this project, not including land purchase, place the cost at $200,000. Communities which qualify under the Michigan Water Resources Commission point system for grants for waste treatment may receive 55 percent of the cost for such facilities.

Our question now is why wait until 1977 to implement the plans which have been prepared since 1969... the need is now. Because the people of this community live along and play in Tawas River and Tawas Bay, we should not wait for governmental decree to stop this flow of phosphates from our sewage disposal plant. Lake Huron and Tawas Bay is presently at its high water point. We can all recall what happened a few years ago during low water times—the stench from algae enriched by phosphates and decaying along Tawas Bay was terrific. Now, the Tawas City disposal plant is not the lone cause of these phosphates. East Tawas recently constructed a similar plant on the Tawas River and must soon implement its planned phosphate removal program. Hundreds of upriver septic tank fields, too, are adding phosphates to the river, as well as drainage from a few farms.

But the real point is—why wait for governmental decree? Now is the time to act.

The second program now being considered is water storage and additions to the city's water distribution system, costing about $180,000. Many valid questions have been asked about the planning and some were answered at the last council meeting. One question which was not asked a week ago is what is wrong with using the city's deep well to augment water supplies in the summer months? We have been doing just this for years.

Tawas City's water shortage is only temporary during mid-summer when filtered water from the East Tawas plant cannot be pumped through a six-inch main at the high rate required. A 275-gallon per minute pump is utilized at the connection point between the two cities and this, apparently, is the limit.

Some people have read all kinds of meaning into the contract which both cities signed in 1958 when Tawas City first began purchasing filtered water from its sister city. Let's face it, this was a good deal for both communities—Tawas City needed water and East Tawas needed a good customer to help pay its revenue bond issue. Existing mains were utilized as East-Tawas revenue bond program had already become a fact and the plant was ready to operate. At the time, neither city could afford an expensive 12-inch force main to serve the west end of town.

East Tawas is in no position today to build a 12-inch main, after bonding for its sewer disposal system. Tawas City is planning a 12-inch hookup in the future and is considering a 500,000-gallon ground storage system. What is the need for this additional ground storage when we already have it? It is right underneath us and capable of producing 200 gallons of water a minute and the only cost would be for electrical power to operate the First Avenue pumping station... during the few weeks in the summer when additional water is needed.

But, for the moment, our point is this. We believe the Tawas City Council and Water Board should direct its energies to implementing the needed modernization of its sewage treatment plant to provide secondary treatment and phosphate removal. Pollution control should be of utmost importance to every community in Michigan—large and small—and Tawas City should do its part right now and not wait for the state or federal government to step in. This community can be proud of its past efforts to provide adequate sewage treatment and it has been in only recent years that the State Public Health Department finally realized the need for phosphate removal.

We can drink a mixture of pure well water and filtered lake water for a few days in the summer months until such time when larger mains can be constructed to connect the two cities.

ET Garden Club Heard Report on Year's Program

The year's program and commitments were read and discussed at the Monday, April 12, meeting of the East Tawas Garden Club.

A donation was made toward the ecological campaign to save remaining prairie chickens in Michigan from extinction. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is planning to purchase a four-square mile plot of land for a sanctuary.

The club voted to sponsor a flower show this summer. A definite date has not been set.

A report was given by Sandra Roach of the Tawas Area Keyettes on the club's trip to Hampton, Virginia, and Washington, D. C.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. James DeRosia and Mrs. Andrew Manchak.

The club will observe its silver anniversary in May.

Paul Beyer Won Varsity Cage Letter

Paul Beyer, six-foot, two-inch, junior center at Judson College, Elgin, Illinois, was awarded a varsity letter for his participation on the 1970-71 basketball team. Beyer, who ranked sixth on the team, averaged 5.28 rebounds per game for a total of 132 and 6.40 points per game for a season total of 164 points.

Steve Kimery, Judson head coach, said he considers Beyer a good jumper, a good offensive player and a hard competitor.

Beyer is a 1968 graduate of Tawas Area High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Beyer Jr. of Tawas City.

Reading

one-third read one or more years above their grade level; about one-third are retarded in reading one or more years.

Crawford's analysis of elementary testing of last May indicates that of the 735 pupils tested, 325 are reading at their grade level, 155 students are reading one grade above their level, 35 students are reading two grades above their level and seven are reading three grades above their level.

On the other end of the scale, 170 pupils, or 23 percent of the total, are reading one grade below their level, 34 students are reading two grades below their level and three are reading three grades below their level.

Testing indicated that reading grade levels dropped sharply beginning in the third grade and this is the reason for the decision to concentrate this summer's reading improvement program on the first three grades.

Possibilities for future improvement include hiring of aides to assist in classrooms freeing teachers to concentrate on individual work with students, as well as development of language laboratories to utilize the many innovations in reading improvement through use of tape recorders and visual aids.

The need for re-educating teachers to utilize these new methods was stressed through use of inservice training.

The board directed that efforts be made to incorporate a reading improvement program in all levels of the school.

Social Security Questions are Answered

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: I get social security because of my disability. Is there a limit on how long I can get checks?

Answer: Your benefits will continue as long as you are disabled or until you are 65. At 65, your disability benefits will be changed to retirement benefits. The amount of your payments will not change, however.

Question: I have been getting social security since my father had a stroke and had to quit work. I am 17 now. I heard there is some way I can keep getting checks even after I am 18. Is this true?

Answer: Yes. If you are not married, you can get social security until you are 22, if you are a full-time student. Or, if you are so disabled that you cannot work, your checks will continue for as long as your disability lasts.

Question: How can I be sure all my wages are being reported correctly to my social security record?

Answer: Your social security office has a card you can use to get a record of the earnings that have been reported to your social security record. If some of your earnings have not been reported, ask your social security office for help.

For further information, contact the nearest social security office. In Bay City, it is located at 1009 North Madison Avenue, telephone 893-9579.

'Earth Week' Campaign to Feature State-Wide Cleanup

Perhaps the most extensive "citizen participation" aspect of this year's "Earth Week '71," April 18-24, will be the state-wide cleanup campaign scheduled for April 24.

The event is being organized by State Rep. David M. Serotkin in cooperation with the Michigan Student Environmental Confederation.

Working with student groups and other organizations concerned about the environment, the cleanup day program involves individual community projects throughout the state. Serotkin and the environmental confederation provide coordination, suggestions and information—the local groups choose and carry out their own projects according to community needs.

"Present indications are that this year's cleanup program will be every bit as successful as the one organized last year," Serotkin said.

The Mt. Clemens legislator reported that over 150 communities are already pledged to participate, with more commitments coming in each day.

"By April 24, we anticipate that we will have as many or more participating communities as the nearly 200 which joined in the effort last year," he said. "In addition, I expect that others will participate on an informal basis without directly contacting us in advance, as happened last year."

"The potential for this effort is limited only by the number of communities and people in Michigan," Serotkin said. "I would urge interested persons and groups who have not already organized a project, to do so."

Serotkin said information and assistance can be obtained by writing him at the State Capitol, Lansing 48901, or Mary Beth Webb of Michigan Student Environmental Confederation, P. O. Box 1009, East Lansing 48823. Contact can also be made by phone at Serotkin's Capitol office, (517) 373-1747, or the confederation headquarters, (517) 484-7421.

TODAYS Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

Read John 19:30-37

When Jesus had received the vinegar, he said, "It is finished," and he bowed his head and gave up his spirit. (John 19:30 RSV)

The ringing voice of the young minister caught my attention when, as a boy of 11, I sat in church with my family. Now, more than 60 years later, I still recall his saying the words, "It is finished," and his ideas as to their meaning.

These words of our Lord are a cry of triumph. The Son of living God had completed His mission.

It was the young minister's application of Jesus' words that really gave me something to think about. He said that, as we go about the daily business of living, we ought to take time to say "It is finished," after completing some arduous undertaking.

In saying these things, the minister handed me a lifeline that was to drag me back often to the plan of the eternal for my life.

After a particular period of tension or grief, I would say, "It is finished. That door is closed. Now I will go on to something else." Or after some accomplishment, the words would come to me, "It is finished. That is over. Now what is the next step?"

PRAYER

Our Father, help us as we try to live according to the teachings of the Master. As we journey through life, teach us the wisdom of learning now and then to say, "It is finished." Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY Today, I will say, "It is finished," to express accomplishment, victory. Esther Webb (California)

The universal nature of the healing and saving power of Christ will be brought out Sunday in Christian Science church services in a lesson-sermon entitled "Doctrine of Atonement."

"It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour, divine Love supplies all good," a citation to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states.

These words of the Apostle Peter are included in the Bible readings: "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: But in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with Him."

Cooking While Camping

Whether you are just starting to think about outdoor living and cooking, or starting to pull 10 years' accumulation of equipment out of the winter mothballs, welcome to the world of camping! Those of us who are lucky enough to live in this area enjoy many opportunities for cooking and eating out of doors.

"Though all of us like eating outside on picnics, cookouts and patio suppers, sometimes the meal preparation outdoors seems to be more trouble than it is worth. Maybe it would help to think of camp cookery, or any outdoor cookery, as 'the art of preparing food in the most direct manner using a minimum of time, trouble and equipment.'"

Adapt both foods and their preparation to your particular conditions. Be sure to choose food items carefully for a rich return of nutrients since storage space is probably very limited.

It may be very tempting to dip into a clear, cold stream near your campsite for drinking water. Be cautious though. Use only water that has been government tested and reported pure. That cold stream could be used to cool foods, though, if they are in water-tight, leak-proof containers.

If your camping is planned for the summer months, why not plan to take advantage of the fresh fruits and vegetables available at roadside markets. This makes snack food that is both delicious and nutritious. Even in camp, though, washing before eating should be the rule. You may also wish to purchase your meat fresh along the way. Broilers are often on special prices during summer months and they are easy to prepare outside. Avoid pork because it needs range oven temperatures to be sure of thorough cooking.

Try to avoid leftovers when camping. In many cases, it is not safe to use camp-meal leftovers. Fresh fish, ground meat, cottage cheese, chicken, egg dishes and frozen foods must be used up promptly. Other items, such as freeze-dried coffee or onion flakes, begin to lose flavor after opening. You can have greater variety if you carry mayonnaise, ketchup, jellies, dried milk and similar foods in individual size serving envelopes. Do not let their packages become litter.

Each time you camp you will develop more cooking tips. Here are some to make those first times easier. Flavored drink mix covers an unfamiliar water taste. Two coats of clear lacquer sprayed on regular egg cartons makes them less crushable. Masking tape seals open box spouts to prevent spills. The oven rack from your old kitchen range becomes a great broiling rack over the campfire.

Just a couple of warnings. Do not try to use your regular kitchen utensils for camping. Soot can ruin them for home use. Be sure to protect your food from any insect spray the family uses around your campsite.

County extension offices are located in Standish, East Tawas and West Branch. Stop by for more information on family living.

Prescott's Bill Would Hike State Sales Tax

State Rep. George A. Prescott, Tawas City, has introduced a joint resolution calling for amendment of the state constitution to allow for an increase in the state sales tax to six cents on the dollar.

"I do this as an acceptable alternative to an increase in the state income tax because I will not vote for any increase in the income tax unless it is accompanied by a substantial reduction in the property tax," Prescott said.

The bill also specifies that the sales tax "shall not be imposed on retailers for sales of grocery-type food or any medicines for human consumption."

Grocery-type food is defined as that to be eaten off the premises. Food purchased in restaurants and similar eating places would still be taxable. The bill will also exempt not only prescription drugs, but all medicines.

"By exempting food and medicine from the sales tax, I feel that this tax will prove even more beneficial to those on fixed incomes than the income tax," Prescott said.

Representative Prescott said estimates indicate that about 100-million dollars in new revenue would be placed in the state's coffers as a result of this increase.

"Of the states now levying sales taxes, only Pennsylvania has a combination six percent rate with food and prescription drugs exempted," he said. But he pointed out that 20 states exempt prescription drugs and five exempt all medicines while 17 exempt groceries.

If approved, the proposed amendment would be submitted to the voters of the state at the next general election.
