

New Fire Chief for Tawas City

A new fire chief was to have been selected last night (Tuesday) from the ranks of the Tawas City Fire Department. City Mgr. Reginald Bulbitz was to have met with the department to receive a recommendation before making his appointment under terms of the city charter adopted earlier this year.

The new chief is to replace James Lansky, who had served in that capacity since April 1963. Lansky was appointed to the city council in September 1971, succeeding the late Howard Hatton.

Terms of the city charter adopted November 2, 1971, which became effective January 3, prohibit elective officers from holding any office or employment, compensation for which is paid out of city money, other than the office to which they were elected.

Because of Lansky's outstanding work as fire chief, having been a member of the department since 1950, the city has delayed action on appointing a successor. He was named fire chief nine years ago to succeed the late Fred Musolf, who had resigned because of ill health. Prior to the appointment, Lansky had served nine years as assistant fire chief.

Three members of the volunteer department appeared before Monday night's council meeting and asked city officials to allow Lansky to continue as fire chief. Included were Robert Werth, Daniel Ulrich and Jack Lardie.

Lardie, former councilman, said he knew of no man more dedicated to the city nor more qualified than Lansky to hold the position. He said that Lansky had been appointed to fill a vacancy on the council and he had understood last August, when he served on the council and nominated Lansky for the alderman's vacancy, that there would be no conflict with the new charter. Lardie said he doubted if he would have been in favor of adoption of the charter had he known there was to be such conflict.

"He works 10 hours a day, six days a week at his service station right across the street and is always on call when the fire alarm rings—it will be hard to replace him," said Lardie. He said the volunteer firemen respected and followed Lansky's decisions.

A ruling from the city attorney had indicated that the charter provision was being violated. It has been stated that legal council action could be jeopardized through this conflict.

Mayor John Brugger reported he had met with the fire department but that the question could not be resolved. He said there was "some agitation" over the situation and that it was difficult for the city to make a move. He believed, however, that the charter provides that councilmen are to sit as the legislative body of the city and are not to be associated with other departments. "We are being criticized for not taking some action," stated the mayor.

Ald. Robert Rollin, who said that Lansky had performed outstanding service to his community, believed the charter should be followed. "The council has followed all other terms of the new charter, beginning with appointment of a city manager the first night," said Rollin. It was his opinion that the city manager should name a successor.

Ald. Frank Ahonen expressed the opinion that members of the fire department should be consulted in naming a new chief and he was supported by the entire council and mayor.

"The fire department is a good group of men—I am going to miss them," said Lansky. "I am sure they can pick a man to become the new chief."

Tawas City Council Moves Toward Finalizing Budget

A hearing on its 1972-73 budget is to be held May 15 by the Tawas City Council. The council is to meet Thursday night as a committee to develop the final budget before presentation to the public.

A tentative budget discussed Monday night has total estimated expenditures of $244,500, with receipts of $248,850.

At its last meeting, the council authorized an additional levy of three mills for two years to assist in financing construction of bridges. Since then, it has been learned that Act 51 gas and weight tax money cannot be utilized for bridge construction. As a result, 1 1/2 mills is to be transferred from general street financing to bridge construction. Total millage as adopted two weeks ago remains at 16.50, which includes 1.25 mills for bond and interest.

In other business, a letter from Keith Wilson, director of the Michigan Waterways Commission, indicated that the commission was reluctant to participate in dredging operations at river mouths. The city had inquired as to the possibility of assistance in dredging the mouth of the Tawas River.

An appropriation of $200 was approved to assist Tawas Chamber of Commerce in financing cost of fireworks for July 4 and during the Michigan Tourist Festival.

ET Swimming Pool Under Discussion

Possible development of a public swimming pool was discussed at Monday night's meeting of the East Tawas City Council. A meeting is to be held Thursday night between the council and park commission to make further investigation into the proposal as well as to study possible sites.

Recommending the study was John C. Elliott, chairman of the housing commission, who said there was a good possibility that federal and state financing could be obtained. Tentative cost of the proposal is $400,000, which could be financed with 50 percent participation from the federal government, 40 percent from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and 10 percent from local funds.

Being considered would be construction of an Olympic-size pool and building. The facility would cover a ground area of about 250 by 300 feet. Sites being discussed include the city park and the 40-acre city site north of Bridge Street.

Elliott, who has been studying the matter since first appearing before the council last year, suggested that Tawas Area School might be interested in providing swimming in its curriculum and as a competitive sport. If so, the school could assist with maintenance of the facility.

In other business, hearing on the 1972-73 city operational budget was set for Monday, May 15.

A framed picture of George P. Smith, who founded the City of East Tawas in 1862, was presented to the council by Miss Edna Otis. The picture is to be displayed in the lobby of the city hall.

Permission was granted for a 4-H

Three Building Applications OK'd

Building applications approved during the past two weeks by the Tawas City Department of Public Works are as follows:

Mrs. O. J. Westcott, 312 Seventh Avenue, new roof, $352; Joseph D. Clark Jr., 175 Lake Street, 20 by 24 addition to restaurant, $2,000; Clark Tanner, 411 North Street, repair two porches, $250.

Club horse show to be held June 25 at the old fairgrounds.

The superintendent of public works was authorized to sell two surplus trucks which have been retired from service.

The council's street committee met with the city superintendent to select sites for planting trees. Twenty trees are to be planted along city streets this year, including 10 Norway maples and two red maples. Authorization was given to Audie Johnson Post No. 211, American Legion, to purchase flags and flowers for Memorial Day.

Two Boys Had 'Nothing to Do,' Sniffed Glue

Two boys, aged 15 and 16 years, were treated at Tawas Hospital Sunday for extensive hallucinatory actions as the result of sniffing glue. The boys told investigating state police officers that they "had nothing else to do" and tried glue sniffing at least five previous times. The boys were turned over to parents after receiving a warning that any further complaint would result in police asking for a warrant to hold the boys for psychiatric evaluation.

First Division State Rating Goes to Band

Tawas Area High School Band traveled to Flint Saturday, April 29, to participate in the State Band and Orchestra Festival. The band received a first division rating from the four judges. This gives the band a nine-year record of seven first and two second division ratings at the state level.

The adjudicators and some of their comments were Nicholas Camici, assistant principal, Ferndale High School. "This band sounded quite good and it got better as you went along. In general, this was a very dramatic performance of exciting pieces of music." William Rivard, professor of music, Central Michigan University. "An outstanding musical organization. All in all, a very satisfying performance."

Michael Stone, lecturer in flute, University of Michigan. "Excellent solos, good rhythmic concepts, swell sound! Keep up the strong efforts." James Niblock, chairman, music department, Michigan State University. "This is excellent reading both from the point of view of musical quality and of technical accuracy. The poise, attention and discipline of the entire group were all excellent and it is a well-trained ensemble."

The cadet band traveled to Gaylord Saturday, April 22, where it received an over-all second division rating.

The junior and cadet bands will present a spring concert Friday, May 12, with the senior band concert scheduled for Saturday, May 20. May 20 will be the band's annual tag day.

Iosco - Ogemaw Property Owners Cool to Proposal

Taxpayers of Iosco and Ogemaw Counties attending Thursday night's informational meeting on the proposed AuGres River drainage district continued to show dissatisfaction concerning possible benefits derived from the project by property owners in those two counties.

Attended by more than 100 persons, property owners of the three counties involved had an opportunity to state personal views following a presentation by soil conservationists and an engineer hired to conduct a feasibility study. The meeting was held at Whittemore-Prescott Area High School.

Support for the project, which has been under study since 1969, was given by farmers in the AuGres area, whose approximately 17,500 acres are flooded each year. On the other hand, Iosco and Ogemaw property owners were doubtful if there would be any benefits to upriver property from the 2 1/2-million-dollar project.

As an example of testimony during the meeting, Herbert Heinrich, an AuGres area farmer, said that the plan as proposed sounded very reasonable to him and that for every local dollar expended, the region could expect $4.4 in return.

While agreeing that the proposal was far more feasible than any prior plan and that something had to be done to help property owners in the lower valley, James P. Mielock of Reno Township said there would "not be one iota of benefit" to people of Iosco County. Mielock felt, also, that engineering on the project was not accurate, as he found that 1,000 acres in Reno Township included in the proposal were actually drained by the East Branch of the AuGres and ought not to be included.

An engineering survey conducted under sponsorship of a tri-county steering committee has recommended construction of a channel west of the AuGres which would divert approximately 80 percent of the water from the AuGres River to Saginaw Bay during flood stage. In addition, a dam and holding area has been recommended on Johnson Creek above the present Big Dipper dam south of Whittemore, along with construction of a wildlife sanctuary off Twining Road in Arenac County to be used as a second water holding area.

An analysis of the project's total estimated cost of $2,787,353 indicates that $1,851,195 would be borne by the federal government and $936,158 by taxpayers in the three counties. It has been recommended that 75 percent of the cost be paid by Arenac County landowners, 15 percent by Iosco County and 10 percent by Ogemaw County.

Included in costs would be structures, $624,410 from the federal government and $129,183 from the drainage district; floodway, $824,019 from the federal government and $434,426 from the drainage district; tributary improvement, $367,666 from the federal government and $241,149 from the drainage district; wildlife area, $35,000 from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and $131,400 from the drainage district.

It has been estimated that the channel and structures utilized in the project would have a life expectancy of 50 years. It was stated that cost of maintenance was included in the over-all financial structure as presented.

Harman Williams, AuGres, steering committee chairman, said that by law it was the responsibility of drain commissioners from the three counties to see that land owners in the lower valley received relief from annual flooding. He asked sponsorship of the project by the three counties through establishment of an inter-county drainage district, each county to be represented on the board by the drain commissioner, the chairman and finance chairman of each board of commissioners.

Williams said he would like to see Iosco and Ogemaw cooperate in the project. He said that annual cost to an Iosco County property owner, owning 40 acres in the drainage district, for example, would be $5.60 for 10 years. "AuGres area farmers cannot handle all of our water and your water," said Williams and he said that drain commissioners of the three counties were obligated to stand behind existing laws. Property owners involved would have no vote concerning establishment of the drainage district as this is the responsibility of the drain commissioners.

Iosco and Ogemaw residents attending the meeting were of the opinion that cost estimates for purchase of land rights for construction of a holding area on Johnson Creek were too low, that some of the flooding in the AuGres area was caused because the level of farmland there was below the level of Saginaw Bay, that fall plowing utilized in the flood area was a poor practice in that it contributed to erosion and that proper drains in Arenac County would relieve the flooding problem.

Leo Bergeron, Ogemaw County drain commissioner, pointed out that holding areas which would have a recreational value had been eliminated from the current proposal. He believed there would be heavy silting and that it would be a continual process to clean out drains in Arenac County.

Leonard Gulvas, Arenac County drain commissioner, said that the proposed channel would take care of flooding problems in the AuGres area. In addition, he said it would allow that county to develop roads that were now being flooded annually.

At the request of Iosco County, additional information is to be obtained and presented at a future meeting concerning cost of development of a dam on Porterfield Creek to create a lake for recreational purposes.

There have been numerous proposals concerning methods to relieve flooding in the AuGres area, one plan being suggested 35 years ago. Once an impenetrable swamp, low land near AuGres was cleared for farming 70 or more years ago. Farming practices in recent years have changed from dairy pasturing to cash crops in the rich lowlands. In some areas, land is lower than the river and surface water is pumped from drains into the river.

On the other hand, farming is not so extensive on the upper river and near non-existent in the Ogemaw area, drained by the AuGres. After pine timber was removed before the turn of the century, much of the land was cleared for farming but a good share of the 160,000 acres included in the river valley has reverted to wildland.

Iosco and Ogemaw property owners have maintained that their taxes on the proposed project would develop no benefits to them and would only result in increasing the land value in the AuGres area.

Power Plant Theft Reported

Theft of a 1,800-watt power plant owned by Schaaf Construction Company is under investigation by Iosco Sheriff's Department. The unit, valued at $350, was stolen from the firm's construction site on Aulerich Road near the Iosco County Airport.

Red Caboose to be Returned to D&M

A report read at Monday night's council meeting indicates that the Tawas City Park Board has agreed to terminate an agreement to allow return of the little red caboose in the city park to the Detroit and Mackinac Railway.

The caboose, which was saved from the scrapper's torch nearly 10 years ago, was placed in the park as a tourist attraction through a joint effort of the city and the railroad. Ownership of the car was retained by the railroad.

Since installation of the car, the D&M has been restoring the few remaining pieces of its antique rolling stock. A combination coach-baggage car has been completely restored, another baggage car is being repaired and a steam locomotive is in

Smelt Dippers Brought Many Complaints

State police from East Tawas and Arenac County Sheriff's Department were busy over the week-end answering complaints of property owners in the Singing Bridge area, which was deluged by downstate smelt dippers.

Complaints ranged from trespassing on private property, littering and theft of property to unauthorized fires on private property.

Police said that a cast iron dinner bell valued at $100 was stolen from the back yard of Mrs. William E. Hill, 2090 US-23. George Borchardt, 198 Hammel Beach, reported that his beach was littered with beer cans and that fishermen had started fires on the beach in front of his motel. Patrick Erickson, whose home is near the Singing Bridge, complained of beer cans littering US-23 and that fishermen were trespassing on his property.

Traffic on US-23 was stalled Sunday afternoon when car owners parked on the traveled portion of the road near the bridge, despite "no parking" signs and snow fences erected along the road. Police ordered several vehicles to be towed away and owners were ticketed.

Police Chief Warns:

Observe Signs as Parking Law to be Enforced

All parking regulations along US-23 (Lake Street) in Tawas City are to be enforced, effective May 1, announced Police Chief Elmer L. Quandt.

From First Street to the post office driveway, parking is limited to two hours from 7:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m.; parking is limited to 15 minutes in front of the post office; there is a 30-minute parking zone from the post office to the bowling alley driveway; parking from that driveway to Whittemore Street is limited to one hour.

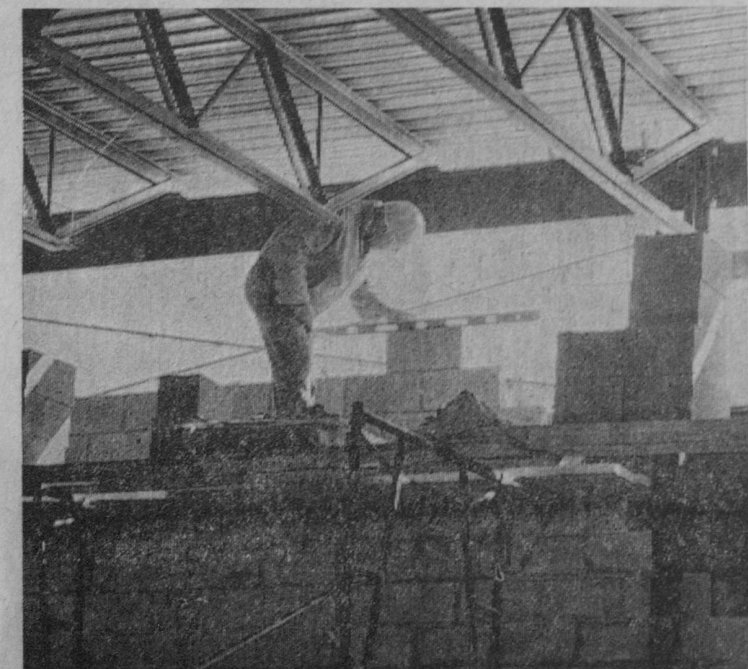

Two-hour parking on both sides of Lake Street is allowed from Whittemore Street to Mathews Street. There is no parking allowed from 3:00 a. m. to 6:00 a. m. and all truck parking is prohibited.

Quandt said that all parking restrictions are posted.

Few Showed for Anti-War Demonstration

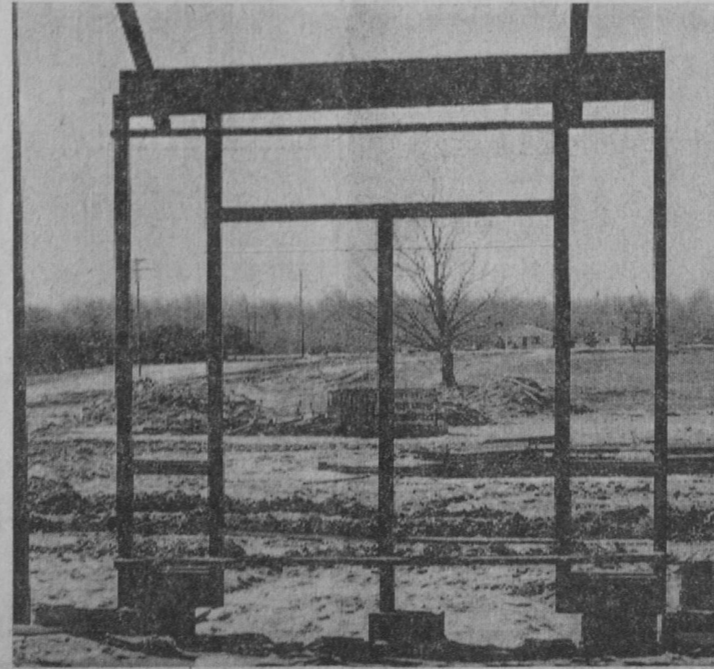

An anti-war demonstration called Saturday at Wurtsmith Air Force Base by Central Michigan University's "Coalition to End the War" proved to be a fizzle. Manpower from area police agencies patrolling the area nearly equaled one-half the 70 persons demonstrating. A crowd of several hundred had been anticipated.

The peaceful demonstrators met at the VanEtan Lake parking lot and marched to the base's main gate, where speeches were delivered.

Construction Moves On New School

PROGRESS on construction of the new Hale Area Junior and Senior High School is shown in these pictures. The new school, to be completed by next fall, is to cost 1.6 million dollars. Ground was broken for the 17-classroom building early last September. The school's 35-acre site is situated on what was formerly rolling farmland east of Hale and north of Esmond Road. The site adjoins the Iosco County Fairgrounds. — Tawas Herald Photos.

Ferguson - Bublitz Vows Said at Zion Lutheran

Arrangements of white gladioli and pink chrysanthemums formed a floral background in Zion Lutheran Church, Tawas City, for the marriage Saturday, April 29, of Kathleen Bublitz and Gary Ferguson.

The Rev. Robert Beyer performed the 6 o'clock, double ring service. Mrs. Thomas Cadorette was vocalist, accompanied by Suzanne Musolf.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Bublitz of Tawas City. Mr. and Mrs. William Ferguson of Indianapolis, Indiana, are parents of the bridegroom.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose an A-line gown of organza over taffeta, charmed with pearl beaded, imported French lace motifs and long, sheer, bouffant sleeves with bishop cuffs. Her Empire bodice of tucked organza featured a choked neckline, edged in pearls and lace. A fullness at the back of the gown included a built-in chapel-length train. A pearl and sequin studded, floral plateau headpiece secured her bouffant veil of bridal mist illusion. She carried a cascade of pink and white roses.

Mrs. James Wilk of Omer, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Dennis Griffin of Bay City and Debra Bublitz, sister of the bride. Mrs. Wilk was attired in a floor-length aqua chiffon gown with easy gathered skirt and modified Empire waistline, banded and bibbed in white Venice lace. Her long sheer sleeves were cuffed in lace trim. The bridesmaids wore identically-styled pink and apricot dresses. Yellow roses made up their bouquets.

For her role as flower girl, Julie Heenan was attired in a maize full-length chiffon gown. She carried a basket of white daisies and yellow roses.

Mr. Griffin served as best man with Mr. Wilk and Charles Bublitz, brother of the bride, groomsmen. Ring bearer was William Bublitz, brother of the bride.

Year Around School Talks Generated Much Enthusiasm

Complete understanding of the total educational program by a majority of the community apparently is the necessary ingredient to answer the question, "would a year around school provide a practical solution to overcrowded classrooms?"

This was the impression felt by most persons attending public meetings last week called by Tawas Area Board of Education. While community response to attend these meetings fell short of anticipations of board of education members, a definite and enthusiastic interest in this proposal was demonstrated by those attending.

Information concerning year around school utilization was presented by two representatives of Champlain Valley Union High School, Hinesburg, Vermont, where this system was inaugurated last fall after several years of preparation.

At the invitation of Tawas Area and Whittemore - Prescott Area Boards of Education, Paul D. Rice, assistant principal at Hinesburg, spoke Wednesday and Thursday evenings at general public meetings at the East Tawas Elementary Unit, while Lucien Lambert of Hinesburg attended a meeting Wednesday night at Whittemore. In addition, the two men met with teaching staffs and student bodies of both schools, along with making presentations to businessmen's associations of Tawas City and East Tawas.

Both speakers emphasized that the major problem confronted by the Hinesburg school in adoption of the year around school plan was the change from the traditional school year based on the farm-oriented culture—with school from September through May, to a new life style, where some students would be attending school during the traditional three-month vacation.

To make such a radical change, although it may seem simple on the surface, would require a lot of understanding, good will and leadership from the community, emphasized both speakers.

There are many similarities between Hinesburg and Tawas Area School District. Both are four-season tourist areas, both have agricultural interests and small industries. But the major similarity is that both communities constructed high schools about 15 years ago to house 650 students and enrollments in each school has now grown to more than 1,000.

To meet the need for additional classrooms, administrators and board of education members began considering the possibility of extending the school year. While it is a known fact that many European countries operate schools 230 to 240 days a year, Hinesburg discovered in its study that year around schools were once common in large cities of the United States—Detroit, for example, which in the 1890s was faced with educating large numbers of new immigrant children.

As the result of three years of study, in cooperation with a few scattered school districts across the nation studying the same possible solution, a "45-15" plan was developed whereby school enrollment was reduced by 25 percent at one given time, while increasing available building space by one-third.

The program works like this: The school year would be divided into 11 nine-week segments the first year with students enrolled into these segments according to families, if desired. Enrollment at the start of the school year would be limited to three-quarters of the total student enrollment.

At the end of the first three weeks of school, another nine-week segment would be enrolled, followed by another segment at the end of six weeks. At the end of nine weeks, segments enrolled at the start of the term would have a three-week vacation and a third nine-week segment would be enrolled.

Instead of closing school for nearly three months, as is the case in the traditional school system, under this plan school would be closed for only three weeks during the summer starting around July 4. Closing school for all traditional holidays would still be observed.

Each child would attend school for 180 days, as required under state law, although families would now have the option to select the time of year for their annual vacation. This would be beneficial to families living in a resort-oriented community such as Tawas area. Instead of taking time off during busy summer months, the family vacation could be planned for fall, winter or spring seasons, whichever coincides with the three-week vacation at the end of each nine-week segment. At present, some local families take vacations in winter or at Easter and to do so requires taking children out of school for a week or more. Families could actually enjoy two vacations a year, if desired, because of the three-week closing in July.

No problems would be encountered in busing during the year; in fact, there would be fewer students to be transported at one given time.

One of the advantages of the nine-week segment plan is that the school could develop more educational offerings for students. There would be problems encountered in scheduling, principally during the initial stages, but such a plan could develop better utilization of existing classrooms.

In addition, many subjects not now offered which are oriented to summer months (various phases of biology and science, as well as physical education) could be offered under this system.

Another advantage would be that a student having problems in a certain subject could repeat a nine-week segment, rather than to fail a course and be required to repeat the entire semester. On the other hand, students who advance at a rapid rate would have the opportunity to enroll in more classes and it would be possible for a student to complete five quarters of study during one year rather than four quarters under the traditional school year.

Considerable "lead time" would be necessary in order to incorporate such a plan into this school system, possibly three years or more. Much time would be needed to revamp a curriculum and scheduling would be handled through a computer. Additional time would be needed to re-train teachers under the new concept.

At least four school systems in Michigan are to inaugurate pilot studies on the year around school program next fall. Major legislation would be required if such plans are utilized, inasmuch as state aid is presently based on the fourth Friday count of students.

Considerable discussion on the proposed year around school concept can be anticipated at future meetings of Tawas Area Board of Education.

Tower Line Construction Starts Soon

Tower line construction scheduled by Consumers Power Company to start this month in a section of Oscoda County near Mio has been deferred until after August 1 due to the proximity of an active eagle nest in the area.

Chief Forester Jack N. Stenberg said the 345,000-volt transmission line is part of a network which connects Northern Michigan with generating plants in the southern and western part of the state.

Working in close cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources and United States Forest Service biologists, Consumers Power determined that the line construction could disturb the birds during nesting and the early fledging period and should be postponed.

The nest, near the AuSable River, is one of 20 active and inactive nests located on Consumers Power Company forest lands.

Elected President of New Group

State Police Det. Lt. Ernest W. Nash of East Lansing headquarters was elected first president of the International Association of Voice Identification in an organizational meeting last weekend in the audiology department of Michigan State University, East Lansing. Nash is a former resident of the Tawas area and attended high school in Tawas City.

FINALLY. AN 80CC BIKE WITH SOME GUTS.

The new familyweight ST80 From Chaparral.

The ST80 isn't a mini-bike. And it's not a big bike. It's the first bike designed and built for the family. So, we call it the familyweight.

The ST80 is the first bike that's tough enough for Dad. And easy enough for Mom and the kids.

It handles like a lightweight. But it's big enough to fly up a 13,000 foot mountain with a 200-pounder aboard. We know. Because we did it.

The familyweight ST80, T80 and T172. A whole new idea in bikes. From Chaparral.

(Read I Thessalonians 5:15-28)

Pray continually (I Thessalonians 5:17, NEB)

The death of a young mother left behind a family of growing children. Endeavoring to bring some help and comfort to them, I called at the home week after week. One day as I was leaving, the youngest son said, "Minister, do not forget to make a prayer."

It had been our custom to pray with the family each time, but on this occasion the young lad sensed that perhaps no prayer would be made.

Do we sense our need of prayer—and pray each day again and again? Prayer links us to God, enables us to go beyond our own human wisdom and strength, cleanses the soul, quickens the intellect, corrects spiritual vision, fortifies the conscience, strengthens the will.

Long ago, Paul wrote the Christians in the City of Thessalonica to "pray constantly." We twentieth century disciples can do no better than to "pray without ceasing."

PRAYER

Gracious heavenly Father, we rejoice in Thy mercies. We thank Thee for Thy daily faithfulness in innumerable ways. Through our abiding much in prayer, enable us to more fully give ourselves to Thy purposes each day. In Jesus' name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Prayer is the Christian's lifeline. David B. Achterkirch, Minnesota.

Concert Jazz Band Entertained Senior Citizens

One hundred forty-nine Tawas Area Senior Citizens enjoyed traditional ice cream and cake in honor of members with birthdays in March and April at the Wednesday, April 26, meeting in the East Tawas Community Building.

Highlight of the afternoon was a performance by the Tawas Area High School concert jazz band, under the direction of Timothy Kasten.

The afternoon was climaxed with card playing and presentation of door prizes.

Next meeting will be held Wednesday, May 10, 12 o'clock noon, at the community building.

Last Resting Place of the Griffin?

Mystery of Lake Solitude

BY MISS EDNA OTIS

Periodically, someone writes a story about the ghost ships that have sailed the Great Lakes. Always, the list is headed by LaSalle's Griffin, the first boat to sail the inland seas and lost on its maiden voyage in 1679. Periodically, too, a learned professor, in a profound essay, tells the world why the Griffin must have floundered in Lake Michigan, or else he brings out evidence that the boat was lost among the islands of Northern Lake Huron.

Neither set of writers has offered conclusive evidence of their theories.

This writer desires to present a new theory on the loss of the boat and to relate to you the Legend of Lake Solitude.

We begin with the building of the Griffin. The fascinating story of the indomitable LaSalle; the foresight shown in the building of the ship; the meticulous care shown in its outfitting.

The boat was constructed of green oak and was caulked with lead, to make it seaworthy, when the oak had seasoned.

With all in readiness, the perfect plans were put in motion on August 7, 1679. The Te Deum was sung, a cannon was fired and the boat was launched near Niagara, New York. Any history will recite the exciting event.

In our mind's eye we have followed the western course from Niagara, across Lake Erie, to a point that would later be Detroit; we have sailed up the Detroit River until we reached the placid waters of Lake St. Clair; we have marveled at the ingenuity of the mariners when they reached the St. Clair River, where the rapids hampered their speed. Who but men dedicated to the task at hand, and motivated by a fearless leader, would have jumped overboard, and with lines attached to their boat, literally pulled it along until more favorable navigation was reached.

The waters of Saginaw Bay cross the waters of Lake Huron in the lower area of the lake, this fact making for a serious situation in navigation. It is so serious that from time immemorial the place has been designated as "the sailors' graveyard." When the Griffin reached this point, a storm arose. It was so fraught with danger that all on board the craft were terrified. Father Hennepin, who kept the log of the ship, reports that all on board the ship fell to their knees in prayer. There was one exception—the pilot. He was an ungodly man, according to the report, who stuck to his wheel and who cursed LaSalle for bringing him into a fresh water sea to perish when he had gained a name and fame for himself as a salt water sailor.

It is a moot question as to whether the prayers of the faithful or the skillful piloting of the skipper prevailed, but the little boat outrode the storm in the lee of a couple of small islands—the Charities, as we know them today.

When the trip was resumed, it was without incident and in due time the voyagers had reached the Straits of Mackinac.

St. Ignace lay before them—an Indian village where the Jesuit Fathers had established a mission. So happy to have reached civilization (?) at last, the crew anchored the craft and fired a cannon for joy. This demonstration and noise frightened the natives, who were later much impressed when LaSalle, robed in a beautiful red silk gown that was embroidered with gold threads, marched to the chapel with some of his followers and listened to a Mass and gave thanks for the success of their journey thus far.

Two days later, they weighed anchor and left for Green Bay, Wisconsin, which they reached in safety.

LaSalle's plans called for loading his ship with furs and its return to Niagara. The sale of the furs was to meet the expenses of the trip and to pay his debts. To the ungodly pilot was entrusted the ship and its cargo of wealth. Five seamen would accompany the pilot.

As for LaSalle and others of his followers, they planned to travel down the Wisconsin side of Lake Michigan to Chicago. The Griffin was to return to Green Bay the following spring, where LaSalle would rejoin them.

The Griffin left Green Bay on schedule, but a few days after its departure, an equinoctial storm arose from the west and the little boat was at its mercy.

The rest of the story is soon told. The Griffin was never heard from again. Learned students agree on the fate of the boat, but they do not agree on the place where the boat floundered—in Northern Lake Michigan or Northern Lake Huron. It is reported that Indians claimed to have seen the boat passing through the Straits of Mackinac, which gives credence to the belief that it was wrecked in Lake Huron.

As for LaSalle, history records that (via the grapevine) he learned of the loss of the Griffin; it also records his death soon afterwards, at the hands of an assassin.

The conclusion of this story and the legend of Lake Solitude, in Isoco County, are a mixture of conjecture and historical facts of this Northeastern Michigan county bordering on Lake Huron.

If the Indians saw the boat being driven through the Straits of Mackinac, remember at the helm was a man who had proven his success as a pilot. He must have learned much about handling his boat in the crossing of Lake Huron on the upward voyage less than six weeks previously. His boat was built to sail in shallow water. He knew that his course lay southward. What more plausible then, that he successfully maneuvered the boat close to the shoreline, even as he swung it around and pointed it south.

What more reasonable to suppose that he hugged the shoreline of what we now know as Cheboygan County, Alpena County, Alcona County and finally Isoco County. Here, he hugged the shore too closely and the craft floundered.

Someone will question this reasoning asking, "What about Tawas Point?" There was no Tawas Point three hundred years ago.

Local history can prove this statement. When the United States government was building lighthouses along the Huron shore in the 1850s, one was placed on Tawas Point. It was built fully a mile inland from the present one. So much land formed on the point in 25 years that it was necessary to build another beacon—the present one, at the end of the point. At the turn of the century, the government built the fog signal station, also at the end of the point and this structure is about a mile away from the lighthouse. Visit the point today and note the distance between the fog signal station and the end of the point.

Early residents of the area remember a lagoon on Tawas Point that stretched almost from Tawas Bay to Lake Huron. It was so wide and so deep that the young men who owned sailboats, moored their craft there. Eighty-five years ago it had filled up and dried up until it was little more than a swale.

Lake Solitude is shown on early maps as Light House Lake, because of its proximity to the lighthouse. Later it was called Cranberry Lake because of the extensive cranberry bogs that bordered it. Then, it became known as Mud Lake, a name descriptive of it. At the turn of the century, when the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company developed a summer resort in the area—Tawas Beach—another change of name was made—Solitude, more euphonious than the other names and fully as descriptive.

Isoco County lies wholly in the tract of land ceded by the Chippewa Indians to the United States Government in September 1819, by the Treaty of Saginaw. Isoco had but one white settler up to this time—a proof of its isolation. It was not until the late 1840s and the mid-1850s that any settlements were made in the county. It cannot be said that news of an old boat buried in sand and silt at the inland lake, spread like wild fire, but it can be said that the story was well known and a matter of conjecture.

We answer the criticism of those who ask why the lumbermen did not investigate the mystery, with the statement that they were looking for dollar marks on pine trees, instead of solving marine mysteries. Succeeding generations have similar reasons.

In the 1880s, one Baptist divine—the Rev. B. H. Thomas of the Tawas area, was intrigued by the story. He believed that the mysterious wreck in Isoco County solved the mystery of the loss of LaSalle's Griffin. So strong was the belief that he wrote a story to that effect and sent it to an editor. That individual returned the manuscript, laughing the contributor to scorn. The story was not submitted elsewhere. Some 40 years later, this writer learned of the incident. Diligent search by Mr. Thomas failed to uncover the manuscript and it was concluded that it had been destroyed. We failed to do further questioning.

Ten years elapsed. A newspaper item from an issue of the old AuSable Times, published in the late 1880s, claimed our attention. It was to the effect that according to the Rev. John Tadgasong, Indian Baptist minister of a little church on the Alcona-Isoco County line, Chippewa Indians living at the settlement north of Oscoda, could trace their ancestors as living in the region of the AuSable and the Pine Rivers, for 400 years or more.

This, then, explains why the wreck was undiscovered and unknown to any one who might be interested in it, except Indians.

A new chapter was added to the puzzling story about 50 years ago. A farm woman from Genesee County, a widow, whose husband had left her a comfortable inheritance, spent her money hereabouts in a vain attempt to find a lead mine. There was a tradition, she said, that the Indians at Swartz Creek used to come north and get lead. They would never tell where they found it, but it was presumed that it came from the AuSable River region. The woman's hopes ended in disappointment.

Also, about 50 years ago, when glancing through a magazine, we found an item concerning an old boat buried in an inland lake, near Tawas City. Research rewarded us with this fact, that the writer was a Chautauqua speaker, who had appeared on this circuit one year. He reported that the lake bore an Indian name, meaning "the place of the white man with a long knife." The writer's source of information came from a reliable source—a man closely acquainted with the Baptist divine, who believed he had found the Griffin. We deduce that the original source of information was the Baptist Indian minister, since all three men would have known each other. Now, Lake Solitude is some 15 miles from AuSable. And the Griffin was caulked with lead.

The Griffin carried five cannons—two of them brass. There were two anchors—one so large that it took four men to lift it. Surely, the Indians would not have carted this metal away.

Modern technology has conquered many things. We await the arrival of some intrepid, fearless adventurer to prove to us that the Legend of Lake Solitude is more than a myth—and that the lake has been the resting place of LaSalle's Griffin for three centuries of time.

Instructional Sailing Classes Offered by TB Yacht Club

Robert Marsh, Tawas Bay Yacht Club commodore, announced that the club will offer an instructional junior sailing program at the yacht club this summer. The course will be open to non-club members. While the course is primarily for the 10 to 19-year-old age group, adults are welcome to participate.

Marsh said that the course will teach the basics of seamanship and develop skipping and crewing skills on such sailboats as Sailfish, Lightnings and larger cruising boats. There will also be ample opportunity to learn to race sailboats and take part in actual races throughout the summer.

In time of sorrow little things mean a lot. In our services we strive for perfection of every detail.

The program will run weekdays from June 19 through August 11, with two, three-hour classes each week for participants. Classes will be scheduled mornings and afternoons. There will be some evening classes for working teenagers and adults.

Course instructor will be Garry Demarest, an excellent sailor, racer and twice Michigan District Lightning champion. Demarest, 30, is director of counseling at Hope College, Holland. Marsh noted that Demarest is a patient, thorough teacher and is particularly good at explaining and demonstrating sailing fundamentals.

People interested in participating or getting more details should contact Mr. Marsh at 362-5412.

Married Student Ineligible for SS

Question: I am a 19-year-old college student, getting monthly social security checks. I will be married next month and just learned that my benefits will stop because of my marriage. Why can married students not continue to get monthly checks?

Answer: Students who marry are no longer considered dependent on their parents. That is why their benefits stop.

Question: I am nearly 62 and am thinking about retiring. How can I find out how much I would get from social security if I decide to retire at 62?

Answer: Call or visit any social security office. They can give you an estimate of how much your monthly checks would be at 62 and how much you would get if you wait until you are 65.

Question: I was told that I would get social security credit of $160 per month for each month of my active military service from 1941 to 1944. However, I sent in a post card for a record of my social security earnings and found my military time was not listed. Why was it left out?

Answer: Military service is not actually credited to your record until the time when you apply for social security benefits. When you apply, you will be asked for your discharge papers or other proof of military service. The people at the social security office will see that you get your military credits then.

Question: This summer, I will be working at my first job as a counsellor's aide in a girls' camp. I will be paid $180 for the season, plus my room and board. Since I am only getting $180, will I need a social security number?

Answer: Yes. No matter how little you are paid, your employer must have your social security number to properly report your earnings. And this job will be a start toward the work credits you need for insurance protection under social security.

If you have a question about social security, contact your district office at 1009 North Madison Avenue, Bay City, Michigan 49706; telephone, 893-9579. For your convenience, a social security representative will be at the Isoco County Building, Tawas City, every Thursday of each month from 9:45 a. m. to 3:00 p. m.

Draft Registration Changes Revealed by Selective Service

New draft registration procedures were announced today by Arthur A. Holmes, state selective service director.

Under the new provisions, young men must register with the draft board or a draft registrar within the period 30 days before to 30 days after their 18th birthday. They must have some official identification when they register, such as birth certificate, social security account number card, driver's license, school or college activity card or credit card.

The new registration procedures are designed to make registration more registrant-oriented and draft board operations more streamlined. Registration will consist of filling out a registration card. A new registration questionnaire must also be filled out, although the registrant can take the questionnaire with him or it may be mailed to him. He must return it within 10 days.

The new registration questionnaire requires the names and addresses of three persons outside the registrant's immediate family who will always know his address. The names, relationships and addresses of all the registrant's family over age 16 must also be listed. In addition, the form includes questions inquiring whether the registrant believes he qualifies for a hardship deferment, for status as a conscientious objector, for a surviving son exemption or for other selective service deferments.

Finally, every registrant must list a place of permanent residence, as well as a current mailing address. The draft board serving his permanent residence will be the registrant's permanent draft board, regardless of where he registers. Volunteer draft registrars are available at most high schools and public offices in addition to registration service offered at local draft boards.

After he has completed the registration card and questionnaire, the registrant will be issued or mailed his registration certificate and his notice of classification stating that he has been placed administratively into a new holding classification, Class 1-H.

Practically all new registrants will remain in Class 1-H until after their lottery drawing which will be held early in the calendar year in which they reach age 19. Those who receive low lottery numbers will then be considered for classification out of Class 1-H. Young men become draft eligible, provided they do not receive a deferment or exemption, during the calendar year in which they reach age 20.

When school re-opens in the fall, local school systems will be provided with a list of subjects, general and specialized, for which there will be qualified tutors available. A call to the SEA office at CMU will be all that is necessary to have the student or parent receive the help of a tutor. If a parent or guardian of a student, or perhaps the student himself, feels that a tutor is required, the SEA office can be contacted and services will be rendered.

Tutoring programs are not unique to CMU, but the start of a private tutoring program beyond the confines of the school system is somewhat out of the ordinary. According to Bowsly, "In order to alleviate over-saturation of college students in the school system, we intend to project our educational professionalism right into the home."

New Tutoring Program by SEA

It was recently announced that the Student Education Association (SEA) of Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, will sponsor a free, private, in the home tutoring program starting this September with the re-opening of school. The program, initiated and administered by David Bowsly, vice president of SEA, will be open to all qualified education students at CMU and will affect the entire Mt. Pleasant School District.

Bowsly, a Whittemore junior, feels that a personalized tutoring program will encourage competency and professionalism in education students at CMU and will have an extremely positive effect on local school children.

When school re-opens in the fall, local school systems will be provided with a list of subjects, general and specialized, for which there will be qualified tutors available. Jaywalkers are a double danger, not only do they risk their own safety, but they also cause traffic jams and vehicle collisions. Taking the time to cross only at corners may mean saving your life and the lives of others. Deborah White, Cass Technical High School, Detroit, Michigan, drew this prize winning poster in the AAA School Traffic Safety Poster Contest.
