

Probation Officer Gives Views On Halfway House

Application has been made to the federal government for funds to assist with establishment of a halfway house here to serve Iosco and three adjoining counties in providing residential facilities, supervision, treatment and training for selected probation offenders.

"It is now up to the federal agencies to evaluate our application and to determine eligibility of that application," states Robert Jansen, probation and parole officer for the Michigan Department of Corrections. Jansen, whose office is located in the county building, advises residents of the community that the proposed halfway house is in no way supported by the state. "Because of my work, I am aware of the need for such a facility in this area, but I am acting on this matter as a private citizen," Jansen told the Herald Friday.

During the past three months, Jansen has met with various community organizations, as well as the county board of commissioners, in an effort to explain details of the program. "We wanted people to know the facts ahead of time so they would not panic if there was some misunderstanding about the proposed halfway house," he stated.

Attempting to deal with one rumor circulating in the community, Jansen emphasized that the proposed halfway house would deal only with those persons on probation from local courts, not those returning from prison on parole.

"The people whom we are talking about are on the streets right now and we would not be bringing them in from any other area, only the four counties involved—Iosco, Oscoda, Alcona and Arenac.

"Most of these fellows really have a rotten home situation which negates anything that I can do as a probation officer, or negates any help that the mental health people can provide. These people need a little more supervision, but less than sending them to prison and that help could be provided by a halfway house.

"We are not interested in the guy coming out of prison and no place to go when we are talking about a halfway house. I don't know how I can make it any plainer. What I am saying is that this halfway house would not be for a bunch of hoodlums, but it would be mainly for young fellows from our own communities who need just a little more help so they won't have to go to prison," said Jansen.

The halfway house here would provide residential facilities for offenders ranging in age from 17 to 25 years, occasionally some older.

Local agencies which have assisted in drawing up the proposal are thinking in terms of renting a five to seven-bedroom home for a halfway house. There would be 24-hour supervision by professional persons. Such a facility will provide supervision for adult offenders not requiring traditional secure confinement, but who require closer supervision than can be afforded through probation alone.

Objective of the program would be to reduce institutional commitments and provide effective rehabilitation within the community. Agencies involved in the committee developing the proposal include the division of vocational rehabilitation, the local employment commission, department of social services, Alpena Mental Health Clinic, as well as representatives of Alcoholics Anonymous and the Iosco Sheriff's Department.

Gerald Emerald, who has a master degree in counseling and guidance, is project director and would be the professional person in charge of evaluations and to follow through with a course of rehabilitation. A second resident assistant would aid in supervision.

A person entering the halfway house would undergo a battery of tests to determine if further educational or vocational training is needed. Attempts would be made to find employment for each person in his own community.

Application was made for a $54,150 federal grant to operate the halfway house the first year. The four counties involved would contribute $12,950 in services. Jansen said that this cost would be lower the second year as the original cost would include furnishing and equipping the halfway house. The local contribution would be on an in-kind basis through utilization of services by local agencies.

"We have from five to eight people who could use such a facility right now. If we do not provide a little supervision and counseling now some will violate terms of their probation and may be sent to prison.

"Some people believe that sending a person to prison ends the local problem—it may be the answer for a while, but the problem is often greater for the community when the offender returns to the local area on parole. It is best to give that person a little extra help when he needs it," said Jansen.

Tawas Area School Teachers on Strike

Another educational milestone was reached Tuesday morning in this community. For the first time in history, schools here opened for the fall term and were then closed through a strike by teachers.

Some 2,000 students of the school were sent home shortly after taken into an assembly and dismissed. Buses will not make runs until the issues are settled and an announcement of school opening is to be made over the local radio station.

Latest development Tuesday morning was that Albert Hoffman, chief bargainer for the teachers, requested a meeting Wednesday morning with the board of education's administrator. State mediation officials are to be present at the meeting.

Contract negotiations between Tawas Area Board of Education and Tawas Area Education Association, under way for the past two months, broke down late Monday night following what appeared to have been acceptance of an extension of the 1971-72 contract by teachers.

An agreement was approved and signed by the teacher negotiating team of Larry Larson, an elementary teacher, and Robert Erickson, a high school teacher, along with TAEA's paid negotiator, Al Hoffman, an employee of the Saginaw School System. At a meeting of TAEA following that meeting, the extension of the contract was rejected by the association. A radio broadcast Tuesday morning stated that the association had voted, 60-12, in favor of withholding services—or to go on strike.

Board and union negotiators had not reached agreement after a 12-hour session Thursday. Negotiators held a 4½-hour session on Labor Day.

School buses made their regular runs and brought children to the three public schools, although TAEA had advised parents over the radio that there was a strike of teachers. Students were allowed to enter school buildings and, when teachers did not make an appearance at 9 o'clock, children were loaded on buses and returned home.

In a press release Tuesday morning, the board of education stated that at Monday night's meeting it had agreed to use the Michigan Mediation Board and fact finder to reach agreement on four different items in contest: 1. Class size; 2. elementary planning time; 3. binding arbitration; 4. schedule B for the 1973 school year.

(Schedule B states: Teachers with an 8:00 a. m. class shall report at 8:00 a. m. and remain until 3:30 p. m. Teachers with a 9:00 a. m. class shall report at 8:30 a. m. and remain until 4:00 p. m. Teachers involved in shared time programs may be exceptions to the above starting time. All teachers shall work a continuous 7½-hour day. The normal work day for secondary teachers shall be five teaching periods and an equivalent amount of one teaching period as preparation, 30 minutes of uninterrupted duty-free lunch and the remainder of the time devoted to school related activities.)

The board of education's offer for mediation was rejected by the teacher association, stated the press release.

A press release from TAEA, meeting in the East Parish Hall of Tawas United Methodist Church, said the following points were at issue:

1. Class size: "We feel that overcrowded classrooms hamper your child's education."
2. Work day: "We feel that all teachers should be treated alike."
3. Binding arbitration: "We feel that binding arbitration will make both parties live up to the master agreement. Would you like to participate in a contest where your opponent is the referee?"
4. 1973-74 Extra Duties: "We feel that this issue should be resolved now. Why should an issue like this go unsettled?"
5. Insurance: "This is not an issue if the four above issues are met."

In a brief meeting of the board of education Tuesday morning, Supt. Edward J. Barry said the board of education had four options it could follow concerning the strike:

1. To obtain a court injunction against TAEA as a strike by teachers is contrary to state law under the Hutchinson Act.

2. Let the striking association ask the board of education for a meeting to "pound out differences."

3. Allow the strike to proceed, but to serve notice by registered letters that if teachers did not report to work by a certain date their employment would be terminated and to restaff the school.

4. Open the school immediately, operate with aides and restaff immediately.

Barry said the fourth option would not be in the best interests of the school system or the children. He stressed that no action should be taken by the board of education for at least 24 hours. He said that he was concerned about the security of buildings. "We just cannot afford to allow any kid who does not like school or a particular teacher to damage buildings or equipment," stated Barry.

No official action was announced by the board of education concerning the strike, other than to return children home by buses after teachers did not report for work at 9:00 a. m. The school's negotiator, Thomas Basil, was standing by at 9:00 a. m. over the telephone and the school's attorney has been contacted.

A group of youngsters carrying signs favoring the position of the teachers picketed Tuesday morning in front of the school office at East Tawas.

Iosco Sheriff's Department was contacted and agreed to protect school buildings against any possible vandalism.

State Approves City Tax Notes For New Bridges

Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley, chairman of the Municipal Finance Commission, announced Thursday that the commission approved $33,000 tax anticipation notes for bridge construction in Tawas City.

The notes are to be dated November 1, 1972, and are to be due November 1, 1973, and will carry a maximum interest rate of six percent per annum.

In June, the city council accepted bids from Graham Brimhall Company for construction of wooden bridges over the Tawas River at Mathews and First Streets. In addition, a breakwall would be constructed along Ninth Avenue. The city is presently negotiating with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources for participation in the latter project, as well as participation in providing walkways for bridges which would be used by fishermen.

Other members of the Municipal Finance Commission are Allison Green, state treasurer, and John W. Porter, superintendent of public instruction.

Detroit Hurt Friday in Crash

A 21-year-old Detroit man, Robert J. Morris, sustained serious head injuries in a crash Friday morning on Monument Road at Gordon Creek. Investigating state police said that Morris was hurt when his car struck a bridge abutment and rolled over. Morris was pinned inside the car, while two passengers, E. Gary Girard, 17, and Charles Tilson, 17, both of Detroit, received minor injuries and were released after treatment at Tawas Hospital.

Opinion of the Publishers

It came to pass Tuesday morning — school opened for the fall term, but there were no teachers in the buildings! The entire school system now faces a critical situation for, after a last-minute bargaining session Monday night, a new contract is not settled. The issues are still there and it seems doubtful if there will be any "bending."

What are the issues? Not salaries, for bargainers have stated that this usually critical point has been settled. The remaining issues are overcrowded classrooms, equal work and preparation time for all teachers and binding arbitration.

In its literature passed out around the Tawas area over the week-end, Tawas Area Education Association, which represents teachers in the contract negotiations, said that "kids are the issue." This newspaper believes that kids are the issue, but they did not become the issue until they could not start school Tuesday morning, and for most of them, this was not to their liking.

It is our opinion that there is only one real negotiable item listed in TAEA'S grievances and that concerns equal work and preparation time for all teachers. Reasonable people can sit down and thrash that point out and the teachers would be the beneficiaries.

The real crux to the entire strike is overcrowded classrooms and binding arbitration. Teachers have good reason to be concerned about overcrowded classrooms, for they are the first people who must face up to the problem. But is this a negotiable point in a contract?

Answering our own question, we believe that an overcrowded classroom is not a negotiable point in a master contract—it is a community problem and one that must be faced by the entire school district. Tawas Area School has just too many students for breathing room and something must be done immediately.

What is being done? As a temporary measure and on recommendation of Edward J. Barry, the school's new superintendent, three new portable classrooms have been purchased. Delivery has not been made as yet on these portables, but the board of education has recognized the problem and is making an effort to provide a temporary solution.

But even if those portable classrooms are delivered shortly, the problem is becoming even more acute. More new children have moved into the area and more space is needed. Recently, the new superintendent recommended to the board of education that it scrap its plan for building a library addition. Besides being contrary to the wishes of the people, having been defeated at the polls, the superintendent felt that the addition was only a patchwork solution. We have to agree with him and we have to agree with his recommendation that the board of education, administration, architects, teachers and the community take a comprehensive look at the needs of this school district and develop a plan to meet those needs. The machinery for this is already under way and the public will be hearing more about this in the future.

But we sincerely believe the board of education is correct when it says that the problem of overcrowded classrooms is the primary concern of the board of education. As elected officials, the board of education is responsible to the people of this school district to develop some solution and then "sell" the community on that program. Teachers would play an important role in planning that school building programs by pointing out its benefits to the public.

Our views may have been oversimplified, but so much for overcrowded classrooms. Now for binding arbitration. On this point, too, we disagree with the stand of the teachers. Regardless of the fact that some industries and even some school districts have binding arbitration, the real issue on this point is whether or not the public is to retain control of its school system. As we said earlier, boards of education are elected by the public and responsible to the public. If board members do not perform to the liking of the public, they can be removed at the polls and, if the situation warrants board members can be removed through court action.

We cannot stress that point enough. Grievance procedures between private business and labor are much different than grievance procedures with schools, whether anyone wants to admit it or not. Despite the fact that boards of education negotiate a contract with the teacher union, it should not be considered a "side" in any grievance conflict. The board of education has a responsibility to fulfill to the public and the taxpayer. Through its hiring procedures, a superintendent is the chief administrator and he, in turn, hires principals to form an administrative or management team. When a grievance arises between teachers and administrators, certain procedures are carried out to handle them. As a last resort, the grievance can even be carried to the board of education. While courts guarantee that a grievance does not have to stop at the board of education table, that board is responsible to the public and it must act in the public interest.

It is our opinion that this school system has an excellent faculty. That does not mean to say that it is perfect, for perfection in man is an elusive ideal. It appears to us that the board is backed into a corner, the teachers' association is backed into a corner, the kids are backed into a corner and the public-taxpayers are backed into a corner over this strike.

We are happy to learn that negotiations are to be continued Wednesday. We believe that issues should be reconsidered, and, yes, speaking as parents, let's put the kids first. Only chaos for the entire school system can result by continuance of this strike. Personally, we do not like the only alternatives left open to the board of education.

Sea Lamprey
Control Here

A 12-man crew from the United States Fish and Wildlife Service's Ludington station is in Isocoo County this week to treat the AuGres River and Tawas River systems with lampricide as a means to control the sea lamprey. Headquarters during their stay here is the Shady Oaks Campground of Mr. and Mrs. John Proctor.

Leo Sullivan of the fish and wildlife service reports that application of a selective toxicant (tri-fluoromethyl-nitrophenol) is being made to streams to destroy larval sea lampreys.

This lampricide has been thoroughly tested for harmful effects on humans and animals and has been cleared for use as a lamprey toxicant by the pesticide review board of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is nontoxic to humans and animals in the low concentrations used in streams, between one and 20 parts per million, depending on the hardness of stream water.

The crew moved into the area Saturday as a great deal of information is necessary for effective stream treatment and much of this information must be gathered within a few days, or even within a few hours of the actual application of larvicide.

This explains the considerable activity of men and vehicles along the AuGres and Tawas Rivers during the three days before treatment. Each individual or team is assigned tasks, including measuring and timing stream volume, investigating access to all parts of the stream and conducting bioassays to determine the proper concentrations of chemical that will destroy lampreys without killing fish.

One of the most important tasks is timing the flow of the stream from one point to another. A bright green fluorescent dye is used for this purpose, which was noticed Sunday on the Tawas River, and many fishermen have been shocked to see the stream suddenly turn bright green. The dye is harmless and often stimulates fish to feed.

When all necessary information is collected, treatment can begin. Lampricide is metered carefully into the stream and its tributaries in amounts calculated to produce desired concentrations in the main stream below the point of application. At each application point, the larvicide is introduced continuously for 12 to 18 hours to create a block of chemically treated water of sufficient concentration to kill all lampreys contacted.

The treated water is analyzed periodically as it proceeds down stream and the proper concentration is maintained by adding more lampricide. Once started, the treatment becomes a round-the-clock operation.

Different species of fish have varying degrees of tolerance to lampricide. Some fishes (suckers, pike, walleye, bullhead and many minnows) have tolerance levels slightly above those of lampreys. Occasionally, these fishes are killed if they are present in the stream being treated.

Brook trout, brown trout and suckers are more susceptible to the lampricide during their spawning seasons. Fishing generally is poor during treatment, but fish begin normal activity within two or three days after the chemical passes.

Lampreys are in the Great Lakes all year and a treated stream can be reinfested by a spawning run of adults the following spring. Retreatment at two to eight-year intervals prevents the escape of young adults to the lake and maintains the number of parasitic adults in the lakes at a low level.

Both the AuGres River and Tawas River were treated five years ago, while the East Branch of the AuGres River was treated four years ago.

Most Great Lakes fish programs are predicated on sea lamprey control. Strict control of this parasite is necessary if an attractive sport fishery is to be maintained in the Great Lakes.

Community Education Proves Value to District

Since its inception here in 1968-1969 under a grant from the Mott Foundation, Tawas Area Schools' community school program has served nearly 8,000 persons.

Before 1968, school buildings were in use from 8:30 a. m. until 4:00 p. m., five days a week for nine months. The only people who were in the building after these hours were those attending the athletic events scheduled in the evening.

Since implementation of the community school program, utilization of the school's facilities has been extended an additional six hours a day, seven days a week and 52 weeks of the year. Slightly more than 50 percent of the population of the community has been involved in this program.

Philosophy of the community school program is that learning does not begin at the age of six nor end at the age of 18. Learning is a continuous process, according to Gene Gerber, community education director.

"Learning starts at birth and ends at death; a cradle to the grave philosophy. The school's facilities are being paid for by the people of this community and, therefore, these people should have the opportunity to use these facilities," he states.

What has the Tawas community school program done? It has developed an adult high school completion program. People who did not complete their high school education because of work or other reasons can now take classes in the evening and still work during the daytime. Secondly, the community school has developed an adult enrichment and recreation program. Classes have been organized for people to improve their skills in certain areas. Classes provide for leisure time activities and offer the opportunity to learn skills to secure better jobs.

Classes offered by the program have included sewing, guitar, snowmobile care and repair, furniture refinishing, real estate licensing, small engine repair, blueprint reading, ceramics, typing, upholstery, welding, shorthand, beginning organ, lapidary, dog obedience, cake decoration, wills and trusts, bookkeeping, oil painting, contract bridge and decoupage.

Recreational activities have included basketball, volleyball, gymnastics, softball for women, basketball and softball for men. Archery, roller skating and tennis have been provided for both men and women.

In addition to adult programs, the community school has developed a youth enrichment and recreational program. Programs have been organized for youth during noon hour, after school, week-ends and summer.

Some of the programs offered include basketball, teen club, track, pee wee baseball, golf, roller skating, flag football, archery, ping pong, badminton, gymnastics and sailing. Enrichment classes for youth have included snowmobile safety, pre-school story hour, ceramics and crafts, drawing and painting, creative dramatics, guitar, telescope making, tot lot, typing, cooking, sewing, sociology, knitting, baby sitting, baton twirling, mathematics for fun, organ lessons, square dancing, boat safety.

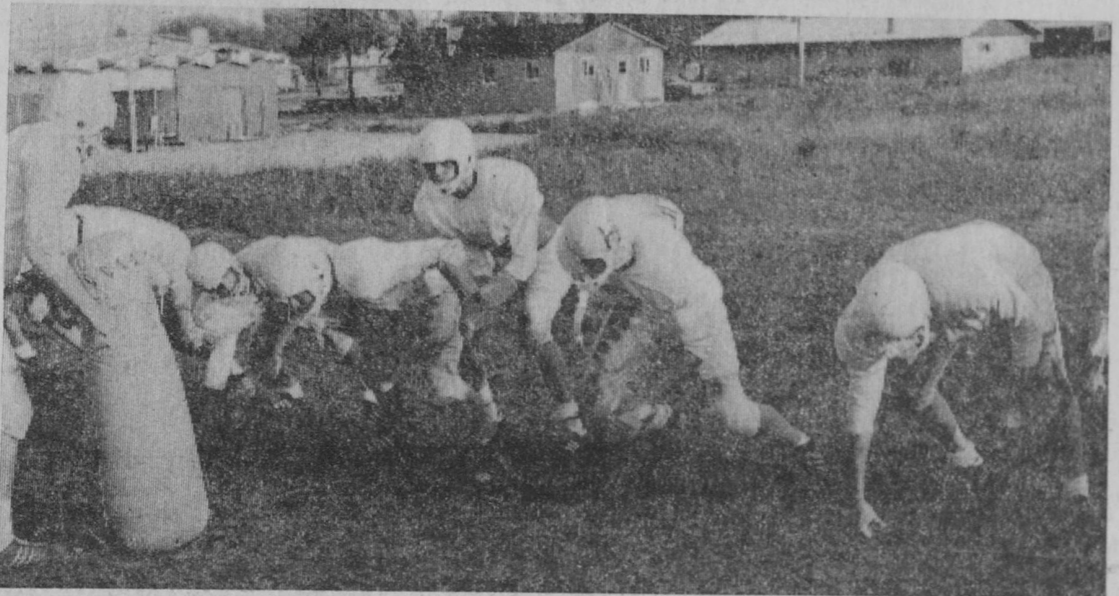

School facilities have been made available to many community groups, including Cooperative Extension, athletic boosters club, weight watching groups, music boosters, girl scouts, community chorus, religious groups, Newcomers Club, lapidary club, boy scouts, 4-H groups, garden clubs, radio club and cub scouts.

Over the past three years, there have been 566 adults working toward high school diplomas, 1,022 adults enrolled in recreational and self improvement classes; 2,779 students enrolled in after school, evening and week-end programs; 3,487 students and adults were involved in recreational and enrichment classes during the summer months.

THE EAGLES have 18 players listed on the varsity this year and, while the team has eight starters from last year's undefeated squad, the team will be short in depth and a key injury could prove damaging. The Eagles are shown working out last Thursday afternoon.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Eagle-Cardinal Clash Looms As Attraction

Despite the fact that high school footballers are still banging away at each other during pre-season practice sessions, Friday, September 15, is being touted as a real test for two Western Iosco County prep squads.

That is the date for the annual battle between the Whittemore-Prescott Area Cardinals and the Hale Area Eagles. This year's contest will be held in the Cardinals' nest.

Dale Purkey's Hale Area Eagles, returning to the gridiron wars after an undefeated 1971 season, will field a squad with seven starters from last year, while the Cards of Coach Arnold Engster, looking to avenge a winless season last fall, have 10 returning letter winners and are hoping for their best season in years.

Through a new state rule inaugurated this season, the Cards will have one game under their wings before the big game with the Eagles. Under a new rule allowing teams north of M-55 to have one early game this season, Whittemore-Prescott has lined up its first game on Friday, September 8. Hale Area officials made telephone calls across the state in an effort to schedule a game on that date, but could find no takers. Opposing coaches are naturally hesitant about opening against an undefeated team.

While such all-conference honorees from 1971 as Don Brandt, Jeff Kocher, Lynn Bernard, Clyde Wagenschultz and Walt Pincumbe will be missing this season, the Eagles have two all-conference returnees, Keyno Shellenbarger and Jeff Blust, as well as six other starters from last fall, Bill Myers, Joe Bell, Chris Keene, Bruce Bernard, Joe Kimmerer and Thomas Emery.

Shellenbarger, Kimmerer and Emery are halfbacks, while Blust and Keene are guards. Bell and Bernard are listed as centers, while Myers is a tackle.

Over at Whittemore-Prescott Area, the Cards will have seasoned veterans handling the ball as a total of seven backs and ends are returning from last fall. Included are Ben Altopp, Steve Chapman, Dean Connors and Howie Barringer in the backfield. Dave Tunney, Gary Smith and Paul Rosemeck all lettered at end slots.

Three other players with a full season of blocking and tackling behind them are Bill Wilkin, Mike Survant and Bob Clayton.

Newcomers to the varsity squad this year are Jim Morley, Mike Gillings, Mike Dorsey, Brian Zimmerman, Don Turner and John Phelps.

The Eagles are long on talent, but short in depth with only 18 players listed on this year's varsity roster. A key injury could be costly, but the team should have a good carry-over attitude after an undefeated season. The Cardinals, with plenty of backfield experience, should be tough and will be looking to run the ball 70 percent of the time and pass enough to keep the opponent's defense spread out.

Tension will soon be mounting as fans of both schools can hardly wait for the big meeting this fall between these two experienced teams.

76 New Students Enrolled Last Week at Hale Area School

Hale Area School opened its doors for the 1972-73 term last Wednesday on an enthusiastic note, following voter approval of a 12½-mill operational tax proposal the previous day.

As expected, there was an enrollment increase of 76 students on opening day to give the school an enrollment of 770 students in grades kindergarten through 12. There were 50 new students in elementary grades and 26 new students in high school.

The district's new junior and senior high school is not expected to be completed until later this year and already overcrowded classrooms in the present building are filled beyond capacity. Some relief was given to elementary grades through conversion of the old high school shop building into classrooms.

There was no school Friday, but teachers were on hand for an inservice training program. The school has nine new teachers this year, including four in elementary and five in high school.

School officials are of the opinion that enrollment may crowd the 800 figure when classes resumed Tuesday (yesterday). Many new families have moved into the area, with heads of households commuting to jobs in the Saginaw Valley area.

Construction of freeways and improvement to existing road links has had a tremendous impact on this school district as well as other school districts in the area. Families have moved out of high density urban areas into rural and small communities and the state's modern highway system has provided the needed link between northern area communities and employment centers.

Many school districts have been unable to keep pace with this influx of new families and resulting shortage of classrooms and other facilities. An even greater impact is expected in future years as road systems are continually expanded and improved.

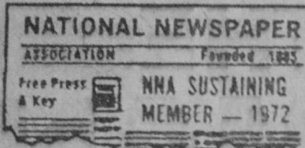

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

Reduced Price School Meal Policy

Both Whittemore - Prescott Area School and Tawas Area School have announced a free and reduced price meal policy for school children unable to pay the full price.

Local school officials have adopted family size and income scales to assist them in determining eligibility. Information concerning prices is available at school offices.

Families falling within established scales, or those suffering from unusual circumstances or hardships, are urged to apply for free or reduced price meals for their children. They may do so by filling in application forms sent home in a letter to parents.

Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year. The form itself is simple to complete and requests information needed to determine economic need based on the income and number of persons in the family, number of children attending school and any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's ability to pay for school meals.

The information provided on the application remains confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. In order to safeguard their identity, children receiving free or reduced price meals will be treated in the same manner as full paying students.

Further assurance is given that children eligible for a free or reduced price meal shall not be required to work for their meals, use a separate dining room, go through a separate serving line, enter a dining room or serving line through a separate entrance, eat meals at a different time or eat a different meal than those sold to children paying the full price of such a meal.

Under provisions of the policy, building principals review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the local official, he may make a request either orally or in writing for a hearing to appeal the decision to the school superintendent.

TODAYS Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

(Read Ephesians 4:25-32)
Let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream. (Amos 5:24)

MEDITATION PRAYER
Dear God and Father of mankind, we implore You to set aright our troubled world. We have the capability to produce and consume, but not the will to distribute goods and services to meet the basic needs of every person.

We seek Your guidance to counsel with those who wield power but have neither love nor concern for their fellowmen. We ask You to shore up with courage those who seek to do that which is right in Your sight, who seek to use their knowledge and their productive capacity to bring solace and happiness to mankind.

Teach us how to exist in love and peace and helpfulness—as life rightly ought to be lived. Teach us, Lord, to want to do collectively what is best so that all men may enjoy that peace, inner grace and harmony now the fortune of so few.

Bestow upon this weary and confused world that divine power of Your love which is yet so far from being reflected in the real world of men and women.

In the spirit of Christ we pray, Amen.

TRAFFIC at one point on the Detroit and Mackinac Railway has been slowed to a snail's pace—three miles per hour—as the result of damage to one of its under track culverts. A drainage ditch south of Whittemore and east of Twining was deepened recently by the Arenac County Drain Commission. Railway officials say their culvert was undercut by water, causing the tracks to drop as the concrete culvert cracked. The wash-out was spotted in time by railroad personnel to prevent an accident and the maintenance crew constructed a temporary bridge over the washout area.—Tawas Herald Photos.

LOOKING BACKWARD—

Iosco Airport Location Is Controversial

15 Years Ago—

September 5, 1957—A controversy of long standing over the location of the Iosco County Airport cropped up again when the board of supervisors took action to move the airport to a new site on Monument Road. A report from the aeronautics committee cannot be enlarged because of the lack of available land and insufficient room for landing and takeoff of twin engine planes.

With a 13-win, one-loss record, Hale was crowned champion of the Huron Shore Baseball League last Sunday for the second year in succession.

The new grade-A milk law now in effect in Michigan has resulted in several problems for dairymen, principally in providing an approved water supply, equipment sanitation and cooling facilities.

Disability

Question: I am 70 years old and I collect social security retirement benefits. In June, I had a heart attack. Can I also apply for social security disability benefits?

Answer: No. Disability benefits are not paid in addition to other monthly social security benefits.

Question: My two small children and I have collected monthly social security benefits since my husband died four years ago. Will our payments stop if I remarry?

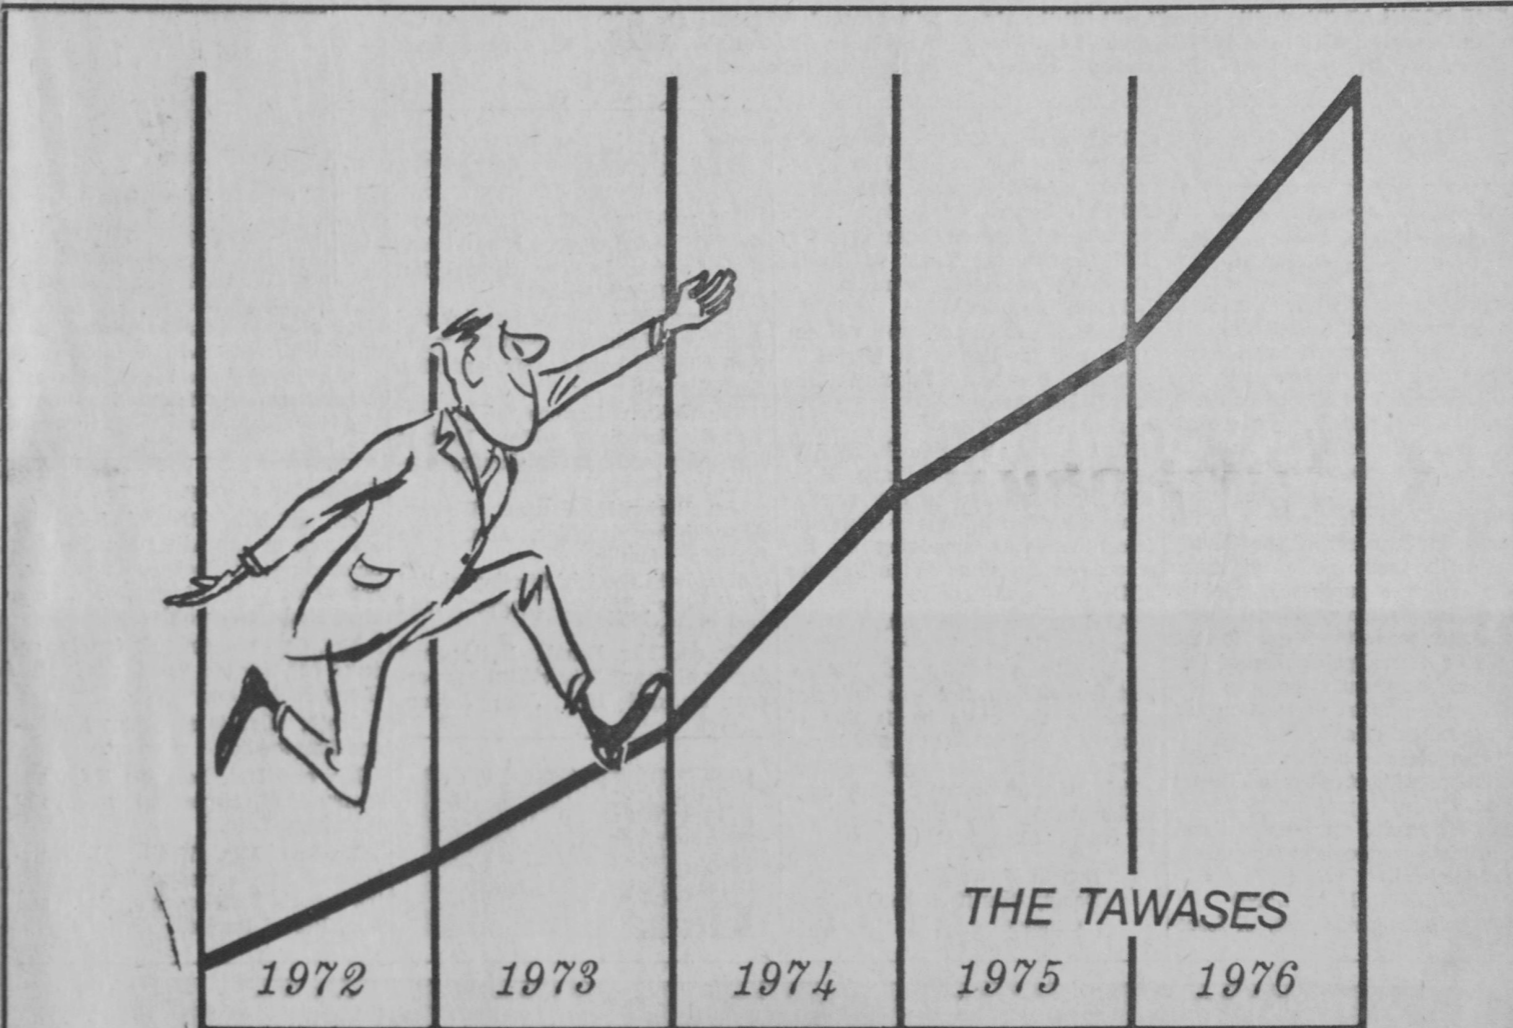

Answer: Your own monthly social security payments will stop if you remarry, but the children will continue to receive the benefits until they are 18 years old or until they are 22 if they are full-time students in an accredited school and they remain unmarried.
Question: Last summer, I operated an ice cream stand and earned almost $250. Do I have to pay social security contributions on these earnings?
Answer: No. Your net self-employment income must be at least $400 before it is covered under social security. If your net earnings from self-employment were over $400, you would be required to pay the social security contributions by April 15 of the next year. You pay the contributions to the Internal Revenue Service when you file your income tax returns for the year.
If you have a question about social security, contact your district office at 1009 North Madison Avenue, Bay City, Michigan 48706; telephone, 693-9579. For your convenience, a social security representative will be at the Iosco County Building, Tawas City, every Thursday of each week from 9:45 a. m. to 3:00 p. m.

The Tawas Provide ALL of the Essentials

The Tawas are communities of which to be justly proud because, despite their size, Tawas City and East Tawas are accomplishing things. And, they are providing all the essentials associated with modern metropolitan communities.
The Tawas can also be proud that they have successfully maintained the wholesome environment of a community which has not allowed progress to dictate unhealthy changes and attitudes. Thus, the Tawas have grown to be prosperous, progressive communities which still possess an environment in which their people can enjoy life, have gainful employment and raise their children to become useful members of our communities.

THE CLYDESDALES are coming to the 1972 Saginaw Fair—all eight tons of them. The perfectly matched, precision-gaited eight-horse hitch of Budweiser Champion Clydesdales will appear in full regalia each day during the fair, September 9-16.

GREEN THUMBERS get a strange gleam in their eyes and an overwhelming urge to grow something each time they stop to admire vegetables like these beauties at the fair. Bountiful exhibits of plump tomatoes, crisp string beans and giant squash, plus a full array of Michigan's choicest fruits, vegetables and other produce will provide ample proof of the state's agricultural prowess.

THE POPULAR "Nashville sound" will fill the air with Gospel music at the 1972 Saginaw Fair. The internationally acclaimed Blackwood Singers will present programs at 6:00 p. m. Tuesday, September 12, and Wednesday, September 13, for grandstand audiences.

THE MITCHELL MARIONETTES, a free attraction at the fair, will provide fun-filled variety show entertainment to delight both young and old.

YOUTHFUL ARTISTS and craftsmen will find ample incentive to display their handiwork at the Saginaw Fair, competing for prize money and recognition. Oil paintings, water colors, ceramics, wood-working projects, plus scores of other examples of art and handicraft by talented young people, will be on display in the 4-H and youth buildings throughout the eight days.
