Meeting Thursday Night On

Preliminary School Plan Discussion

Following a meeting Monday afternoon with Davenport Associates, Incorporated, Grand Rapids, architectural consultant for Tawas Area School, the board of education accepted preliminary plans prepared by the firm for the district's proposed new high school building.

A special meeting has been called for Thursday, March 29, 7:30 p. m., to discuss plans with approximately 63 different residents who participated as committee members during a recent survey of the school. The special meeting is to be held in the cafeteria of the high school. Representatives of the faculty, administration and board of education are to be in attendance, along with representatives of the architectural firm.

At its regular meeting Monday night, the board of education adopted preliminary plans in order to file them with the state to determine bonding qualifications by the Municipal Finance Commission.

A space analysis of the school district, showing present facilities, present and projected enrollments, along with a potential maximum need survey of the school district, has been prepared by the architect. This information is to be utilized in discussion at the meeting Thursday night.

Supt. Edward J. Barry recommended to the board of education Monday night that it give consideration to hiring a financial consultant to aid in the district's proposed bonding program. He said that such services are utilized by 90 percent of the governmental units considering an application with the Municipal Finance Commission and the cost of such service is minimal when considered in the over-all picture.

The superintendent said that the school was at a disadvantage on the bond market because the district does not have a bond rating. He believed that a complete analysis of the community's financial potential and tax base should be made in order to obtain a rating. He is of the opinion that through hiring a financial consultant, the district could save tax money through a lower interest rate gained by the bond market rating.

No indication has been given as yet when the electorate might expect to vote on the bonding proposal. Determination to ask voter approval for financing construction of a new high school was reached earlier this year following a comprehensive study by citizens' advisory groups. The board of education reached the conclusion that a new high school was the only answer to the district's problem of overcrowded classrooms.

The present high school, if the program is approved by voters, would be converted into a middle school.

ROBERT WERTH of the Tawas City Volunteer Fire Department displays a placard which is being distributed in the Tawas to remind residents that special glowing decals are available from fire departments of the two communities. The decals are to be placed on bedroom windows of children and elderly people to enable occupants to find and exit in case of fire at night, as well as to aid firemen in the location of bedrooms when an emergency arrives. Participating in the decal program is Tawas Bay Agency, Incorporated, East Tawas.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Council Vacancy-Fluoride Proposal Feature Election

East Tawas voters will name a new Third Ward alderman out of a field of two candidates in next Monday's annual spring city election.

In addition, voters will decide on a special proposition: "Shall the City of East Tawas add fluoride to the city water supply as prescribed by the Michigan Department of Health."

The lone race listed on the ballot finds Jacob C. Montgomery and William C. Wainwright Sr. as candidates to fill the vacancy of Charles Schreck as Third Ward alderman. Schreck decided prior to the deadline for filing for the February primary election to retire at the end of his current term.

Montgomery is operator of a service station at the corner of Bay and Newman Streets while Wainwright is a retired employee of Jefferson Trucking Company.

Other candidates for the council include George S. Staudacher, incumbent First Ward alderman, and James E. Crowley, Second Ward. Crowley, an employee of Consumers Power Company, is a candidate for the seat held presently by Earl McElheron, who retires this year after many years of service to city government.

Members of the council having one year remaining on their two-year terms include Richard Moss, First Ward; Robert Johnson, Second Ward; Ralph Western, Third Ward.

Other candidates listed on the non-partisan ballot include Robert C. Bolen, mayor; Grace C. Pelton, treasurer; Clyde L. Soper, clerk. The vote on fluoridation was included in the spring election through petition of 47 registered voters. A similar proposal was defeated a number of years ago and interest in the outcome of the vote is considerable, judging from letters received by this newspaper from both those who favor adoption of the fluoride program and from those who oppose it.

East Tawas furnishes water from its filtration plant to the City of Tawas.

Clerk Soper said Tuesday that "a number of eyebrows" were raised on the city council recently when it was learned that there are 1,567 registered voters in the community. According to the 1970 census, East Tawas had a total population of 2,732 persons.

While the registration list has swelled with new 18-year-old voters, the total registration is considered to be too high for the total population. At the time of the census, city officials were of the opinion that the final count was not correct.

TA's State Aid Status Still 'Gloomy;' See Improvement

Although the state aid picture still appeared to be "quite gloomy" as far as Tawas Area School is concerned, Supt. Edward J. Barry told members of the board of education Monday night that discussion by the legislature concerning the final pupil formula for state aid had improved since two weeks ago.

A special school operational millage election is being considered for Tawas Area School District on May 11. Fifteen days prior to the election, the board of education must make a determination as to the number of mills to be requested.

At the present time, this school district has an operational levy of 16.5 mills or $16.50 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation. Based on a "grandfather" provision in Senate Bill 110 for those districts levying less than 20 mills, the district would receive $657 per child. This amounts to an increase of 39 cents per student over the current year.

Barry said that the school "could not live" with only renewal of the 16.5 mills as the district needs $52,000 to meet its current salary schedule if all teachers are retained. An additional one mill would net $696.66 per pupil, or an increase of $30.05 per student, for total additional funds of $93,675.24. This would meet the built-in cost of the salary schedule, but would not meet the cost of needed improvements to the instructional program or contingencies.

Two additional mills would result in a $59.39 increase per student or a total of $125,728.63 in increased operational funds. With this levy, the district would receive $793 as the basic allowance in state aid, plus $13 under the "grandfather" clause for a total of $776 per pupil.

The superintendent said that the department of public instruction is now considering two enrollment counts during the year, rather than one fourth Friday count of students. He said that the school must make every effort to motivate students to remain in school so as to be counted and that some policies would have to be changed in order to discourage dropouts.

Barry said that he was now in the process of preparing a budget to be submitted to the county allocation board. He said that he was going to make a determined effort to convince the allocation board that schools should be given an allocation of 10 mills this year, rather than nine mills. He pointed out the fact that the county ended last year with a balance in its treasury and believed that schools were entitled to one additional mill.

The superintendent said that he and other school administrators of the county had had a number of production meetings with the Iosco County Board of Commissioners. He said that commissioners were interested in utilizing federal revenue sharing funds for a recreational program through the intermediate school district and improvements to the regional library which could aid schools. He believed that the county should become involved in vocational education and is in hopes of seeing such a program conducted by the intermediate school district.

In other business Monday night, John Alexander, high school principal, said that county school administrators were meeting to formulate policies for the shared time vocational program which is to be continued next year. He said that considerable headway had been achieved toward the new program.

Enrollment for the shared time vocational training program is now being taken for next fall. Potential nursing students numbering about 13 are to spend Wednesday morning at Tawas Hospital to meet with students enrolled in the current program.

Representatives of the student council and administrators spent one day last week at Carrollton High School, where they met with student council members and attended classes at that school. Reason for the visit was a basic exchange of ideas between the students. Tawas Area School is hosting Carrollton's student council representatives today (Wednesday).

Robert McDonald, assistant principal, is to attend a conference on middle schools April 5-6 at Okemos. Robert H. Crawford, federal program director, said that approximately 80 10th and 11th grade students were interested in the building trades program being proposed.

Crawford said that a summer reading program under Title One had been approved by the federal government for 1973.

Fire Could Mean Wet DPW Feet

Crewmen of the Tawas City Department of Public Works may have wet feet when it comes time to start making sewer and water connections, but it was through their own fault. The city's supply of hay was destroyed Tuesday morning in a fire near the city garage.

Two stacks of hay, approximately four truckloads, were destroyed while members of the city crew were cleaning up grounds around the city garage. Burning paper from an unattended trash fire apparently touched off the blaze.

The hay is used to "sop up" excess water in ditches and around excavations when sewer and water connections are made.

Damage was confined to the hay stacks and one wooden fence, which was singed. The city manager has ordered a new supply of "Smoke the Bear" posters, which are to be displayed at the city garage.

TAWAS AREA BAND'S woodwind quintet received a one rating in the state solo and ensemble festival held Saturday at Gaylord. Members of the quintet included, from left, Debbie Roach, Patti Sheehan, Jackie McKinney, Michele Barc and Barbara Hewitt. In solo participation, Miss Barc received a proficiency two rating with a score of 99, highest awarded in the festival. Miss Hewitt received a proficiency two rating with a score of 94, while Miss Sheehan and Miss McKinney received proficiency one ratings.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Senior high school bands invited to participate in the program to be held on the lawn of the state capitol.

Tawas Area Band Invited to Perform at State Capitol

Recognized throughout the state as one of Michigan's top high school bands, Tawas Area High School Band has been invited to participate in the Music Week program to be held Thursday, May 10, at Lansing.

The local band, under direction of Gene S. Salamony, was one of four senior high school bands invited to participate in the program to be held on the lawn of the state capitol.

There will be three junior high school bands and one high school orchestra taking part in the program. Salamony told members of Tawas Area Board of Education Monday night that 54 different high school groups had asked to be considered for the invitation to participate in this special program, designed to promote music in Michigan's schools.

"Through the years, Tawas Area School Band has been fortunate to be recognized throughout Michigan as an outstanding unit," said Salamony. "The band consistently is a top notch group and members continue to amaze me each year with their ability."

Supt. Edward J. Barry said that several band leaders had contacted him and indicated they were upset over the fact that Tawas' band was not going to participate in the state band and orchestra festival this year. The band again received a first division rating and is eligible to attend, but a decision was made not to participate because the festival falls during the spring vacation.

"I feel that our band should receive more exposure throughout the state and invitations to participate in various functions are being received," said the superintendent. He indicated that additional trips could be expected by the band.

Robert Elliott, board of education president, said that the school and the community were proud of the band's outstanding record over the years.

As a warmup for the Lansing performance, the band is to appear Sunday, May 6, at Kirtland College. An invitation to present a program was extended by college officials. Authorization to attend was given by the board of education.

County Commission Avoids Court Fight

No action was taken by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners Wednesday on a recommendation by the prosecuting attorney that this county become involved in a district court suit brought by the state against an Oscoda man.

To appear April 24 in district court is Richard E. McKnight, who is charged by the DNR with littering and dumping without a permit on the shoreline of Lake Huron. McKnight attempted to control shoreline erosion by dumping rubble on his Lake Huron shoreline property.

According to a report earlier last week, the rubble contained metal strips and steel pieces from the Rolled Products Division plant at Oscoda which was destroyed by fire. Neighbors complained about the dumping of rubble and the DNR cited McKnight.

The state has contended that the county should become involved in the lawsuit, inasmuch as rubble was dumped on a county road which dead-ends on Lake Huron.

Ronald Tyler, prosecuting attorney, recommended that some action be taken, citing the fact that the county could do so if the dumping constituted a public health hazard. A representative of the DNR showed pictures of the shoreline and discussed the matter with commissioners. It was the opinion of J. Berkeley Smith, Oscoda commissioner, that the county should not become involved as it was a matter for the township to handle.

The entire matter was referred to committee and the prosecuting attorney expressed the opinion that some action should be taken by the township.

In other matters, it was reported that the budget request of District Health Department No. 2 for 1974 was $72,909, up $27,909 from the current year. Members of the commission felt that the budget request was realistic and that members of the health department would attend a future meeting with an explanation.

The board authorized Mrs. Peter J. Bassi, an employee of the county tax office, to become acting tax director during the interim period before appointing a new tax equalization director to succeed the late Henry Oates. She is to receive an additional salary of $40 per week for the service.

Commissioners had proposed that County Treas. Edward Nelkie be appointed as the interim tax equalization director, but duties of his office prevented him from handling the position.

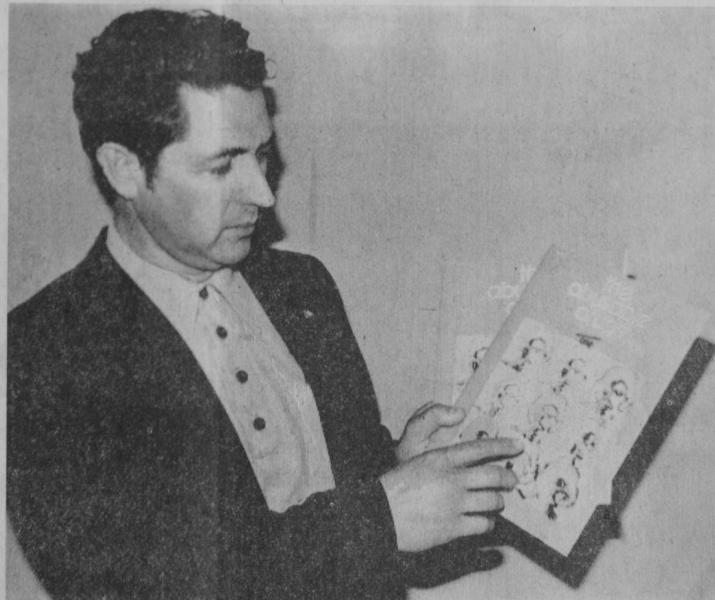

Additional alterations to the county jail were authorized by the board of commissioners, according to the request of Sheriff George Westcott.

Authorization was given to the clerk and register of deeds to purchase one new typewriter for each office at a cost of $594 each. Additional help in the register of deeds office was authorized.

In compliance with the county pay schedule, Mrs. Harold Moeller was placed on deputy status in the cooperative extension office effective January 1. She is to receive an additional $500 per year.

Employees of the clerk and treasurer's offices were authorized to attend a bookkeeping course to be conducted by Michigan State University. The county is to be reimbursed for the expense.

James J. Russo Jr. was appointed to administer construction of the new social services building. The rate of pay is to be $12 per hour.

IOSCO COUNTY SHERIFF George Westcott is shown looking at a drug education booklet, "The Abusable Drugs," which his department is now distributing in cooperation with Tawas Kiwanis Club, which obtained the booklets, and Tawas Area School. The booklets are available at the high school, all elementary schools, the school superintendent's office, Tawas Chamber of Commerce office, Tawas Hospital, the sheriff's department, police departments of East Tawas and Tawas City and the Michigan State Police post at East Tawas. The booklet contains valuable information for parents and for young people concerning drugs.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Three Men Sentenced in Circuit Court

Two men received terms of probation and one man was sentenced to prison Monday when appearing before Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller.

Steven F. Reynolds, Oscoda, was sentenced to a probationary term of three years, the first 60 days to be spent in the county jail. He had entered a guilty plea to unlawfully driving away an automobile. He was assessed $150 in costs.

John Traver, AuSable, received a probationary term of three years, having entered a guilty plea to taking indecent liberties with a minor child. He was assessed costs of $100 and was ordered by the court to obtain psychiatric treatment.

Ronald D. Arnold, Oscoda, was sentenced to 2 1/2 to 10 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan, Jackson. He had entered a guilty plea to a charge of breaking and entering.

Water Board OK's Sewer Extension

Tawas City Water Board Monday authorized the city's engineering consultant to develop plans for extending sewer service on Eleventh Avenue, between Harris Avenue and North Street.

A report from the city manager indicated that a water line break on Bay Drive late Friday afternoon had disrupted service to customers in that area for about one hour. The break was caused by a weak point in the water main, which was repaired by the city crew.

Patrick Wright Takes Linda Schirmer as Bride

Tawas United Methodist Church, East Parish, was the scene of the double ring ceremony Saturday, March 24, uniting in marriage the former Linda Schirmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schirmer of East Tawas, and Patrick Wright, son of Mrs. Evelyn Wright, also of East Tawas.

The Rev. Kenneth Tousley officiated at the 5 o'clock ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the East Tawas Community Building. Vases of white gladioli and white chrysanthemums decorated the altar for the candlelight service. Marti Cadorette, vocalist, was accompanied by Mrs. Alden Phelps.

The bride descended the aisle in a white gown of silk organza, fashioned with a cotton lace bodice, bell sleeves, Empire waistline and cummerbund, full skirt hemmed in matching lace and long train. Her veil of sheer illusion was secured with a Juliet cap and Alencon lace. She carried a crescent bouquet of yellow roses and white daisies.

Mrs. Christopher Miller of Alma was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Judy Skinner of Tawas City, Melissa Schirmer and Vicki Schirmer of East Tawas, sisters of the bride. They wore floor-length dresses of yellow polyester voile appliqued with white daisies. The gowns featured A-line skirts and bell sleeves. Large picture hats tied in yellow tulle completed their attire. Each carried a hurricane lamp surrounded with white and yellow daisies.

Derryck Goodrow of Hale was best man with Edward Wright of Detroit, Steven Mason of Hale and Paul Wright of East Tawas, groomsmen. Approximately 200 guests were present from Detroit, Westland, Garden City, Rochester, Lakeville, Leonard, Dearborn, Oxford and Rosebush.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Schirmer selected a pink knit crepe floor-length gown. Mrs. Wright chose a street-length dress of beige knit crepe. Both wore pink rose corsages.

Following a one-week wedding trip to Stockbridge, the newlyweds will reside at 102 Tawas Lake Road, East Tawas.

The new Mrs. Wright is a graduate of Tawas Area High School and attended Saginaw Business Institute. Her husband is a graduate of Hale Area High School.

Pre-nuptial showers honoring the bride were hosted by Mrs. William McCoy and Mrs. Francis Halstead; Mrs. David Schirmer and Mrs. Jonathan Schirmer; Mrs. Miller.

Signs a Bid with CMU Sorority

Molly MacMurray, a freshman at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, recently signed a bid with Sigma Kappa, a social sorority. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. MacMurray of East Tawas and a graduate of Tawas Area High School.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Doty of Grand Rapids, former East Tawas residents, announce the engagement of their daughter, Bonnie Jo, to Greg L. Ward Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Ward, also of Grand Rapids. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Greenwood of East Tawas are grandparents of the bride-elect.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

Engaged

A September wedding is being planned by Diane Wilson and William Myers. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wilson of Hale. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Myers, also of Hale.

Evans-Laman Vows Solemnized

The Rev. Carl Stasser officiated at the ceremony Saturday, March 24, uniting in marriage the former Teresa Mary Laman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornell Laman of Spring Lake, and Leigh Howard Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Arthur Evans of East Tawas. The couple exchanged vows at Peoples Church, East Lansing.

Connie Newton was maid of honor with Angela Sizer, bridesmaid, both of East Lansing. Richard Moehring of Toledo, Ohio, acted as best man with Darrell Welch of East Tawas, groomsmen.

Dr. Sheldon Rappaport, noted authority on learning disabilities, is presenting an overview of a learning disabilities program Tuesday, April 10, at the Wabun, Oscoda. A buffet dinner will precede the program at 6:30 p. m. with Doctor Rappaport's presentation commencing at 8 o'clock. He will be assisted by his wife, Shirley. The program is sponsored by the Iosco Intermediate School District.

Individuals must have their reservations in no later than Tuesday, April 3, by calling 362-2461 or 362-59-67. Those who do not wish to attend the dinner but would like to see the presentation are welcome.

Mrs. Aura Lamb Died March 24

Mrs. Aura L. Lamb of Tawas City, 68, died Saturday, March 24, at Tawas Hospital. The former Aura L. Brown was born September 17, 1904, at Pigeon. She married Cecil Lamb January 25, 1924, at Durand, moving from Flint to Tawas City in 1950.

She assisted her husband for 21 years in the operation of Northern Business and Tax Service. She was a member of the Durand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and Red Cross Motor Corps during World War II.

Surviving besides her husband are a daughter, Mrs. Barbara Mandes of Grand Blanc; two grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Stella Leland of Brighton.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Kenneth Tinsler Tuesday, March 27, at the E. D. Jennings and Son Funeral Home, Tawas City. Burial followed in Whitney-Sims Cemetery, Au Gres.

Funeral Today for Herman Wesenick

Funeral services for Herman Wesenick of Whittemore, 92, will be conducted Wednesday (today), March 28, at the Whittemore United Methodist Church with burial in Saints Cemetery. Mr. Wesenick died Saturday, March 24, at the Mary James Nursing Home, Montrose. Funeral arrangements were handled by the Forshee Funeral Home, Hale.

Born August 20, 1879, Mr. Wesenick is survived by his wife, Hazel; two sons; seven grandchildren; 12 great grandchildren, and a sister.

General Public Invited to Attend

Grand Opening Thursday For Gas Company's New Facility

Michigan Consolidated Gas Company will play host to Northeastern Michigan residents on Thursday, March 29, when it holds open house at its new combination area office and service center at 1808 US-23 in Baldwin Township, about a mile north of East Tawas.

The general public is invited to attend a tour of the new headquarters from 10:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m. that day.

To help celebrate the grand opening, the company will give away a gas dryer and a gas grill as door prizes.

James C. Preston, general manager of the utility's Northern and Upper Peninsula Districts, and James J. LaHaye, Tawas area manager, will join other company personnel in welcoming open house visitors.

Mr. Preston said the new offices and service center will enable the company to serve Tawas area customers from one location as well as provide the additional space required for material storage.

"We hope people will consider the new building an indication of our faith in the economic strength and future of this area," Mr. Preston said.

"Tawas area residents and customers have been good to Michigan Consolidated. We want to show our appreciation by providing more efficient and pleasant surroundings in which they can do business with us."

Mr. Preston said the brick contemporary-style building covers 7,175 square feet and includes a large conference room that is available for meetings of civic and community groups.

The new building, for which ground was broken last July, now houses the company's area business offices, market services, service operations and stock functions. The company formerly leased space at 106 West Westover in East Tawas and at 101 First Street, Tawas City.

Although operations from both locations have been brought together under one roof, the company's business telephone number will remain the same.

Architect-engineers for the new building were Barber-McAlpin Associates and the general contractor was the Thompson-Phelan Construction Company, both of Anchorville.

MICHIGAN CONSOLIDATED GAS COMPANY will hold open house at its handsome new area headquarters in Baldwin Township, a mile north of East Tawas on US-23, Thursday, March 29.

The public is invited to enjoy refreshments and inspect the new office and service center, according to James J. LaHaye, area manager for the utility.

General Manager Takes It In Stride

Overseeing Operations of Gas Co. Business No Little Task

Keeping tabs on the natural gas business in 287 communities scattered across the state from Greenville on the south to Sault Ste. Marie on the north and west to Iron River is no little task. But James C. Preston, general manager of Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's Northern and Upper Peninsula Districts, seems to take it all in stride as he oversees 15 area offices in both peninsulas.

Preston left the Detroit office of the utility in 1957 to manage the Cadillac area and moved up to Northern District manager in 1960 with headquarters in Mt. Pleasant. Since then, he has been responsible for extending gas service to 234 cities, villages and townships supplied through 2,500 miles of distribution mains and 1,100 miles of transmission lines. His districts are spending some 6.9-million dollars this year for new mains, general plant improvement and equipment.

Since Preston became district general manager his customer rolls have climbed from 20,300 customers to 94,000 customers and sales have gone from 6.6-billion cubic feet to 53.2 billion.

"The result of this expansion has brought mutual benefits to Northern Michigan as well as Michigan Consolidated," Preston said. "We have provided our customers with an economical fuel that helps attract new industry and creates more jobs. At the same time, we have reduced the cost of living by offering homeowners a premium fuel at a bargain price and by contributing substantially to community taxrolls and payrolls.

"Michigan Consolidated sees a great future for Northern Michigan and we are backing up that faith with millions of dollars. We believe that we are making a very sound investment."

JAMES C. PRESTON

Michigan Consolidated Ensures Future Supply

Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has taken steps to ensure its present and future customers here and throughout its service areas in Michigan that there will be adequate gas supplies for residential, commercial and essential industrial uses, despite the present national shortage of the fuel.

Two years ago the utility initiated a "controlled service policy" that enabled it to reserve its available supplies for the most desirable and essential uses of the public and industry, according to James C. Preston, general manager of the utility's Northern and Upper Peninsula Districts.

The control program established a priority system for taking on new customers, with top priority going to residential, commercial and essential industrial uses and a limited amount of gas for alleviating specific air pollution problems that could not be controlled by other means.

The company also stopped making additional "interruptible" sales in August 1970. Interruptible customers, generally large industries, buy gas at a lower rate, with the provision that service may be curtailed at any time if the supply of gas is needed by full requirement customers, Preston explained. All interruptible customers are required to have standby equipment so they can readily switch to other fuels during a curtailment without shutting down operations.

"Our objective is to market our gas under this controlled service program which provides the greatest good for the greatest number of people and the highest quality use of the fuel. We have an adequate supply of gas for the needs of our present full requirement customers and to take care of normal growth for residential, commercial and those industrial customers which require natural gas for their operations," Preston said.

"Without this control, we would have been forced to commit gas on a first-come, first-serve basis to less essential industrial uses, while future primary needs of our service areas went unfilled.

"Like other gas utilities across the nation, Michigan Consolidated has been faced with soaring demands for natural gas—particularly for control of air pollution. At the same time, there was reduced exploration activity by independent gas producers.

"The latter situation is now being reversed to some degree by federal authorization of higher wellhead prices for gas, providing more incentive for exploration. We expect that careful control of our present supplies, plus some new reserves will enable us to continue to meet the essential needs of our customers, and assure the future growth of our company and the markets we serve," Preston said.

Help us celebrate.

Come on over to our new Michigan Consolidated Gas Company office at 1808 U.S. 23 East in East Tawas, Michigan, and help celebrate our Grand Opening, Thursday, March 29, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. We're serving refreshments and giving away door prizes, too. A Whirlpool Gas Dryer and a Charmglow Gas Grill will be awarded.

We're proud of our new building. It is evidence of our faith in the continued growth of the area it will serve. For your convenience, we have offices to serve our customers' business requirements, complete service facilities and a brand-new conference room for area group meetings.

While you're there, make it a point to see our display of modern Gas appliances for your replacement needs. You'll find that Gas is the best friend a home ever had.

Gas Provides Hot Water in Most Area Households

Did you know that the average man shaves 18,000 square inches of face annually? That his wife washes an acre of dirty dishes in a year? And launders three miles of clothes? And scrubs five miles of floors?

The common denominator for all these goings-on is hot water. Where does it all come from? In approximately 97 of 100 homes in Michigan Consolidated's service area, the source is a gas water heater.

One reason for this almost unanimous acceptance of the gas water heater is its fast response. The flame is what does it. There are no coils to heat. When hot water runs low, thermostatic controls signal the flame to turn up and start heating more—at any hour of the day or night.

But operating cost is probably the strongest incentive for buying a gas water heater. Other types of heaters cost as much as twice the amount it costs to heat the same amount of water with gas.

PROMPT ACTION on consumer service calls is one of the things Michigan Consolidated prides itself on, and to speed things up, most of the utility's vehicles are equipped with two-way radio. Here Jack Lardie, operations foreman, passes on a hurry-up order to Leroy Larsen, dispatcher at the company's new service center.

Nothing Moves Unwanted Items Faster Than Herald Classifieds—

WITH SOME 7,650 CUSTOMERS spread out from West Branch to Harrisville, there is plenty of work to keep Michigan Consolidated's commercial office staff busy. From the left are Eugene Fernetto, clerk; Robert Feasel, office and marketing supervisor; Mrs. Janet Tibbetts and Mrs. Margaret Lesinski, clerks.

Gas is Most Popular Household Fuel

Comfort, Convenience and Economy are Main Features

There are three main features that most everybody looks for in buying or remodeling a home—comfort, convenience and economy of operation and maintenance. It just so happens that these are the three main selling points of natural gas heating that have made natural gas by far the most popular household fuel in Michigan.

As evidence of this, Leonard L. Wimeroski, appliance replacement consultant for Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, points out that over 7,200 homes and commercial buildings in the utility's Tawas service area now use natural gas for heating, about 95 percent of all the company's customers.

Wimeroski pointed out that the real switch to natural gas started after World War II, when the price of other fuels rose considerably, making natural gas by far the lowest cost home heating fuel, as well as the most convenient.

Wimeroski explained that modern gas heating equipment "is one of the biggest bargains available to the householder today. Space age technology has enabled equipment makers to build furnaces, boilers and space heaters that were not even on the drawing boards a decade ago," he said.

The development of pint sized boilers that circulate hot water has coincided with the popularity of ranch-type homes.

Concealed pipes carry the hot water to radiation or convection units fitted along the baseboard, eliminating the old style radiators that took up precious living space. The unit spreads heat evenly along outside walls. Furniture placement is easy because there are no problem areas where furniture cannot be used.

Slightly larger, but easily tucked away and attractively finished, are the modern forced warm air gas furnaces. These are more economical to purchase and install and also have certain advantages, such as continuous circulation of filtered air.

Individual gas fired space heating units, for heating a single room, or even a small home, have been with us for a long time, but again modern design has made them much more attractive and compact, Wimeroski said.

"Anyone who has ever added a room or decided they needed supplementary heat, will find the new baseboard heaters the ideal solution. They are vented directly to the outdoors and fit along the baseboard, much like a standard hot water convective unit. They have their own thermostats and are ideal for summer homes, new family rooms, or that hard-to-heat attic room," he said.

Alaska Will Provide Much of State's Natural Gas in 1978

By the end of this decade, it is quite likely that much of the natural gas distributed in Michigan will be traveling over 3,500 miles to get here—all the way from Alaska's North Slope in the Arctic. And there is also the probability that we will one day be using gas made from coal in North Dakota.

Both plans are in the development stage, but declining reserves of natural gas in the lower 48 states make them necessary, according to Wilber H. Mack, chairman of the American Natural Gas Company and its subsidiaries, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company and Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company, the state's largest supplier of natural gas.

In outlining the gas system's plans to meet the growing fuel needs of its customers, Mr. Mack pointed out that Michigan Wisconsin has spent nearly half a billion dollars in the past five years to bring gas to Michigan and to its utility customers in other states.

He said that to meet customer demands for gas in the late 70s and early 80s, "it will be necessary to attach large reserves from new supply areas." He indicated that, just as it was necessary to shift from southwest producing areas to Southern Louisiana then to Western Canada, and to the offshore area, "it is essential that we now seek gas supplies from entirely new sources. We are continuing to investigate all possible sources of new supplies including liquefied and synthetic natural gas and nuclear stimulation."

Mr. Mack added that gas from the Arctic and gasification of coal are two areas on which principal efforts are being focused.

Michigan Wisconsin was one of the founders of the Northwest Project Study Group which, since July 1970, has been engaged in extensive engineering, environmental, legal and economic studies regarding a project to transport gas from Alaska and Northern Canada to the Midwest. Twenty-five large United States and Canadian corporations have now joined together in forming Canadian Arctic Study Limited in the plan to construct a 2,500-mile-long pipeline from Northern Alaska to Emerson, Manitoba, where it would tie in with US pipelines. The 48-inch diameter line would be capable of delivering four-billion cubic feet of gas per day and cost approximately five-billion dollars. Mr. Mack said present plans call for filing applications by late summer with US and Canadian government agencies for approval of the project. Barring any delays, it is estimated that construction could begin in late 1975; gas could be flowing from Canada's Mackenzie Delta in mid-1977, and Alaska in 1978.

Michigan Wisconsin has already contracted to purchase some five-trillion cubic feet of gas being developed by Imperial Oil Limited of Toronto in the Mackenzie Delta.

Mr. Mack said that while research is continuing on the most feasible process of gasifying coal, Michigan

Wisconsin has acquired a 15-year option on two-billion tons of lignite coal in North Dakota. "That amount of coal," he said, "will produce two-billion cubic feet of pipeline quality gas per day for 25 years."

Mr. Mack pointed out that these supplemental supplies of gas will cost considerably more than present domestic reserves and this must be reflected in customers' rates. "But gas will remain competitive with other fuels and, with rising wages, should take no larger share of a customer's income to pay for it in the future than it did in the recent past."

He added that Michigan Wisconsin will continue its aggressive program of acquiring new gas supplies as they are discovered in the offshore fields of the Louisiana Gulf Coast, "or anywhere else we can find it." He pointed out that Michigan Wisconsin is now completing a 140-million-dollar expansion program to deliver gas from Louisiana and has applied to the Federal Power Commission for a further expansion.

Tawas A. Manager Has Long Career in Field of Utilities

Although a relative newcomer to Northeastern Michigan, James J. LaHaye brought 23 years experience in the utility business with him when he was named Tawas area manager of Michigan Consolidated Gas Company last May.

He had not hung up his hat before getting involved in plans for the utility's new area headquarters which he will be proudly showing off to the public March 29.

He came here from the Detroit headquarters of the company where for two years he had been coordinator for the distribution design department. His other experience included distribution design work all over the state as the company has expanded in Northern Michigan, gas supply, marketing, budgeting, operations and computer systems.

"I'm very proud of this new building," LaHaye said, "and I hope everybody will come join us for refreshments and a look around the gas company's new home. It will be a great improvement to have all our operations under one roof," he added.

Gas Co. Doing Something About Air Pollution-Disposal

While the talk continues on the problems of air pollution and trash disposal, the gas industry has been doing something about it for years, points out Robert W. Feasel, office and marketing supervisor for Michigan Consolidated Gas Company.

He calls attention to smokeless, "low" gas incinerators, developed through intensive research, which consume food wastes and trash without smoke, odor, fly-ash or similar objectionable by-products.

The units devour virtually all combustibles originating in the home—garbage, paper, rags, milk cartons, cardboard boxes, string, sweepings, wool, bones, old shoes, magazines and in fact, everything except non-combustible materials, such as metal and glass.

"Thus, household garbage and trash can be disposed of quickly before they have a chance to accumulate," says Feasel. "This is both a health and safety factor. Because the units are smokeless and odorless, it is the modern, easy way to rid the home of objectionable refuse."

Central feature of the gas incinerators is an auxiliary combustion chamber or "after-burner." Since smoke and objectionable gases are the products of incomplete burning, the incinerators direct the smoke over a second gas flame. In the after-burner chamber, combustion is completed, and the smoke and odor is completely destroyed.

Gas Ranges Are 'Long Lived'

All good gas ranges have one thing in common, according to Robert W. Feasel, office and marketing supervisor for Michigan Consolidated Gas Company.

"They just seem to last forever," he says.

"And while that is considered a great advantage, a good many homemakers are spending a lot more time than they need to at pot watching, oven cleaning, using a variety of special automatic appliances, and serving overcooked or dried out food."

"If you think you have a modern range just because it has an oven control clock on it, you have really been missing something," Feasel advises. "Make a trip to your favorite gas appliance dealer or visit our new Tawas office and see what has really happened in recent years to make life for the homemaker a lot easier and the food she serves a lot tastier."

The latest innovation is the self-cleaning oven, which does the homemaker's most hated chore, all by itself.

The new gas self-cleaning oven uses pyrolysis, or extra heat, to burn away all grease and grime, leaving only a fine ash which can be quickly wiped away. As for the homemaker, all she has to do is close the oven door and set a simple control. In less than two hours, at an average cost of about two cents, the oven is clean as new, Feasel says.

Some gas ranges have continuous-cleaning ovens which have a catalytic system. A chemical substance is mixed into the coating of the oven liner panels. Whenever oven temperatures are 350 degrees or higher, cleaning automatically takes place.

Then there is the "keep warm oven" with low temperatures of 140 to 200 degrees which are perfect for keeping foods piping hot without over cooking for two to four hours. The low temperatures can also be used to defrost foods in half the time it would take at room temperature, he points out.

And for those who want tastier and juicier meat, the infra-red broiler is the answer. In this type of broiler, there is a ceramic or wire mesh above the burner which directs infrared rays on the meat, reducing the cooking time in half. As a result, natural juices are seared into the meat, improving the flavor, and there is less spatter of fats, so the broiler stays cleaner. In many of the new ranges, the broiler is in the upper oven or at waist level in the lower oven, so there is no stooping.

Another feature of many new gas ranges is a rotisserie in either the broiler or oven. It provides juicy, self-basted meats with no bother.

Perhaps the most versatile of all modern gas features is the thermostatic top burner, or "burner-with-a-brain," Feasel says. This device allows you to pre-set the temperature at which you wish to cook. It has a sensing disc which measures the temperature of the bottom of the pan, and the flame goes on and off to maintain the desired temperature.

The "burner with the brain" thus eliminates pot watching and burning of food. It also takes the place of a number of different automatic appliances such as corn popper, deep fat fryer, fry pan and makes every pan automatic.

It also enables the homemaker to use the top of her range for baking such foods as potatoes, cake and custard when something else is in the oven. Or she can simmer spaghetti sauce all day, cook eggs to perfection every time, melt scorchable foods, deep fat fry and do many other tasks that demand close temperature control.

AREA GAS CUSTOMERS of Michigan Consolidated Gas Company are tied into one of the largest natural gas transmission and distribution systems in the nation.

Here Less Than Nine Years

Michigan Consolidated Serves 7,650 Customers in Region

It was less than nine years ago—August 25, 1964—that Michigan Consolidated Gas Company began natural gas service to Northeastern Michigan and established its area headquarters in East Tawas.

Since that time some 7,650 residents, commercial buildings and industries have become customers of the utility and are enjoying the benefits of this economical and clean burning fuel.

The service area includes 35 cities, villages and townships along a pipeline that extends eastward from West Branch to Tawas, then north along Lake Huron to Oscoda, Lincoln and Harrisville, a distance of some 70 miles. The same pipeline also serves Alpena.

With over 220 miles of gas distribution mains and 100 miles of transmission lines, Michigan Consolidated has invested some 8.6-million dollars in facilities in Ogemaw, Iosco and Alcona Counties since it began operations here. The utility delivered over 2.1-billion cubic feet of gas to its customers in this area last year.

Gas customers in this area are tied into one of the largest natural gas transmission and distribution systems in the nation. As a subsidiary of the American Natural Gas Company, Michigan Consolidated is a sister company of Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company which delivers gas to Michigan from Southwestern United States, the Louisiana Gulf Coast and purchases gas delivered to the Midwest from Canada.

Canadian gas also comes to the area from the Great Lakes Gas Transmission pipeline which crosses Michigan and is jointly owned by American Natural and TransCanada Pipe Line Limited. In addition, Michigan Consolidated has constructed for considerable volumes of gas being discovered in Northern Michigan.

Last year, Michigan Consolidated delivered 465-billion cubic feet of natural gas to its one million customers in 430 communities throughout Michigan, including such metropolitan cities as Detroit, Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Ann Arbor.

Clothesline Gives Way to Gas Dryer

The backyard clothesline is fast going the way of nickel candy bars and five-cent cigars.

The reasons are easy to see, for Grandma's way of drying laundry certainly has its drawbacks; clothes that stay wet on rainy or humid days, and towels and bed linens frozen stiff in the winter.

Each year, fewer and fewer American homemakers launder by hand. Almost 95 percent have washers. Home economists at Michigan Consolidated Gas Company point out, however, that a washer alone gives the housewife only half a laundry. Yet only one in three United States homes have automatic clothes dryers, according to a recent trade journal's survey.

The seven-million homemakers who do own modern gas dryers each save themselves about four tons of lifting and hauling wet wash each year, according to gas company studies. It is a simple matter of loading the dryer, setting the dial and letting the gas dryer do the work.

Lightweight fabrics are ready to iron in 15 minutes, completely dry and ready to put away in 20 minutes. Set for tumbling without heat, a dryer will fluff up and freshen slipcovers, pillows and draperies, or dry children's boots, rain-soaked clothes and soggy snowsuits.

A gas dryer costs about two cents per load in areas served by Michigan Consolidated. Washable clothes last longer because they are not wind-whipped and sun-faded. Fewer clothes are needed because laundry can be done more frequently. Bulky items like blankets, bathroom mats and small rugs which otherwise would have to be sent to commercial laundries, can be handled easily in a dryer for just a few pennies.

As for the clothesline area—convert it into a backyard patio.

LETTER to the EDITOR

Dear Editor:

An open letter to the thieves that broke into our house Sunday, March 11.

First, I want to thank you for not breaking anything. You were very careful when you moved our hutch full of china and antiques. You never broke one piece and for that I thank you. Thank you for wiping your feet before you came in on the rug. What I cannot understand is, if you were brought up to respect material things like china and not tracking in, why steal a television and a relic of a gun? Why not get out and work for what you want?

Since you were so careful of the property that you did not take, I will show my gratitude by telling you to be careful if you shoot the gun. It has a flaw in it and it could blow up in your hand. I think I know who you are and I would hate for you to get hurt—only caught.

Iosco Judge Jailed Supervisors in Old Fight Over Law Books

When the Iosco County Board of Commissioners adopted a resolution Wednesday offering "moral support" to members of Wayne County's board of commissioners, who are threatened with jail terms for defying a circuit court order, they probably did not realize that precedence for such action by governmental officials was tested in this county nearly 60 years ago.

Iosco commissioners commended 20 Wayne County commissioners "who had the fortitude to vote according to their convictions" in refusing to bow to a circuit judge's wishes for what Iosco's resolution termed an unauthorized and illegal pay raise to court employees.

"The commission," stated the resolution last week, "based on constitutional rights, both as citizens and elected county commissioners, has refused to be coerced; county commissioners are servants of the people who elected them and not the court; the ruling judge had tacit approval of the Michigan Supreme Court which violates the basic American constitutional principle of the separation of powers; the continual encroachment upon legislative and executive powers by the judicial branch can spread to other counties and ultimately to both the state legislature and the governor," stated the Iosco resolution.

The Iosco board went on record as favoring the passage of a bill by the legislature "that is needed to bring the separation of powers in this state back to their rightful balance."

The above arguments by today's commissioners were practically the same as stated in February 1916, when three members of the Iosco Board of Supervisors, along with the county prosecuting attorney, were jailed by the 23rd circuit judge.

The state-wide publicity received by the jailing of governmental officials over the fight with the judge was once termed by a former editor-publisher of this newspaper, the late P. N. Toronto, then a young printer and reporter, as one of the "biggest" news stories in this county's history.

"The affair has given Iosco County much unenviable publicity, but in the end it will furnish a precedent in matters of this kind, as a similar case has never been known in the history of American jurisprudence," wrote James Ballard, editor of the Herald in 1916.

Residents of the county were divided into different "camps" concerning the affair—those supporting the judge and those supporting the supervisors. Right in the middle of the affair was Editor Ballard, who was threatened with a libel suit for his reporting and one of the supervisors, "an excitable chap," wanted to thrash the editor.

Yellowed files of the Herald tell only part of the story, for judges played an active political role in those days and were not shielded by today's terminology of being "non-partisan." In that Wilsonian era, Circuit Judge Albert Widdis, a Democrat, was appointed to fill a vacancy in a Republican county. In pursuing the account through the many columns of type devoted to the matter over a period of a month, today's reader must realize that Editor Ballard, too, was a Democrat and supported Widdis for the appointment to the bench. However, it appears that the editor approached the subject with fairness to all parties in the news columns.

The story began during the October 1915 session of the board of supervisors and was carried over to January of 1916. In a paragraph following one which stated that the board of supervisors voted unanimously to submit the local option question (prohibition of the sale of alcoholic beverages) to the voters at the spring election, a Herald news story on January 28, 1916, stated that the supervisors voted to disallow a bill for law books purchased by the judge for the use of the court.

The trouble arose over a bill for books ordered by the judge, amounting to $94.50. The books were ordered by the judge to take the place of a number of law volumes that disappeared from the courtroom after the preceding judge's death.

"The books are absolutely necessary to the proper carrying on of the business of the court, especially the Michigan Court Rules, which was one of the books ordered," stated the news story.

Judge Widdis immediately issued an order directing the board and each member thereof to vote to audit and allow the bill, ordering the clerk to draw an order for the same, under penalty of being deemed in contempt of court.

"The board disregarded the order and further developments are awaited with interest," stated Editor Ballard.

Residents of the county did not have to wait long for "further developments." On Wednesday, January 26, 1916, the judge appeared personally before the board and again presented the bill "and in a gentlemanly and conciliatory manner requested its allowance by the board."

Judge Widdis awaited the board's action until 10 o'clock the next morning. He walked unnoticed into the circuit courtroom, where the supervisors were meeting, took his seat at the bench and with his gavel rapped court into session. He caused a lengthy order to be served on each of the 21-member board, ordering them to allow the bill for books and warned that he would hold members in contempt of court if they did not approve the bill.

According to notes of the circuit court stenographer, Judge Widdis then stated: "I have approached you in a spirit of fairness, and endeavored to get you to allow this bill for these books. Some members of the board are willing to do so; they are willing to do what is reasonable about it, but there is a certain gang here, I am certain, who are the leaders in this notorious business and I propose to deal with these leaders, as justice requires. Some of the business of this board of supervisors is a disgrace and has been notoriously so. It has got to be stopped and will be stopped if I have to send all of you over to the iron house."

"Some of the men here have good intentions, but they have wishbones instead of backbones, and other men, I am satisfied, have absolutely no consciences—they are the gang. I am the best little gang handler that you ever met."

Bristling over this tongue lashing from the judge, some of the supervisors, not understanding their position, arose and expressed themselves rather freely while court was still in session, thereby placing themselves in contempt.

The board adjourned to the basement and voted, 15-4, to disallow the bill. After adjournment for dinner, some of the supervisors continued to fume and passed "disrespectful" remarks regarding the court. The board then passed a resolution instructing the prosecuting attorney to uphold the dignity of the board and defend its action.

That afternoon, Judge Widdis ordered the arrest of Supervisors Thomas J. Robinson, Howard M. Be'knap and John Searle and set February 3 as the day for the defendants to answer for contempt of court in the remarks made by them while court was in session.

The three supervisors were fined $250 each and sentenced to 20 days in jail. When Pros. Atty. A. W. Black attempted to represent the men in court, he was held in contempt for "appearing as attorney for men accused as criminals when his office required that he appear for the court in such cases."

Telegraph lines between Tawas City and Detroit were red hot as the local "stringer" for The Detroit Free Press filed column after column of information on the sensational case.

"The party who wrote that story was either grossly misinformed or else intentionally injected into it a great deal more sensationalism than the facts warranted," commented Editor Ballard.

Local residents had a great deal of fun in seeing the supervisors jailed, especially Sheriff Collie Johnson, for the supervisors previously had slashed the jail budget and ordered the cost of each meal served to prisoners to be reduced by several cents. As a result, fare served at the jail proved to be rather simple for the three supervisors.

"Events have been transpiring so fast in the matter between the judge of the circuit court and the board of supervisors the past week that it would almost puzzle the traditional Philadelphia lawyer to keep track of them," said Ballard.

The three supervisors did not stay in jail for long. Application was made to Judge Sharpe of West Branch for a writ of habeas corpus for the three supervisors, which was granted. The Ogemaw County sheriff arrived with the writs Friday evening and took the prisoners to West Branch, where they were admitted to bail in the sum of $500 each. The prosecuting attorney's stay in jail, too, was short as a writ was issued three days later by Judge Sharpe and he was admitted to bail.

When the three supervisors appeared before Judge Sharpe at West Branch they were admonished by the judge for their actions, who told them they were radically wrong in not allowing the bill for books over which the case for contempt arose. He stated that the books purchased by Judge Widdis were absolutely necessary for properly carrying on the work of the court.

After the talk by Judge Sharpe, the three supervisors "showed their sense of fairness and manliness" by acknowledging that they had been in the wrong by not allowing the bill. They stated that they had been wrongly advised as to their duty in allowing the bill and signified their willingness to vote for it if given another opportunity.

"It has been the general consensus of opinion in this county that the supervisors were not guilty of any intentional wrongdoing in the matter," stated Editor Ballard, "but

98 Iosco Students Enrolled at CMU

Iosco County has a total of 98 students enrolled at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, this semester, according to figures distributed this week by the CMU Registrar's Office.

The total for the county ranks it 34th among Michigan counties in number of students at CMU.

All of Michigan's 83 counties are represented by CMU's winter semester enrollment, ranging from 1,367 from populous Wayne County to one graduate student from Keweenaw County at the northern tip of the Upper Peninsula.

While 13,149 of CMU's 14,317 students this winter are from Michigan, 33 other states are represented on campus by 213 students. In addition, there are 58 foreign students at CMU.

NBC Coaches Announce All-Conference Selections

Carrollton, undefeated in conference competition, and Essexville-Garber dominated first team selections for the 1972-1973 NBC all-conference team.

Picked from Carrollton were Dale Brown, six-foot, one-inch playmaker, and Ron Emeott, who was named last fall to the all-conference football squad and caps an outstanding high school career.

Named from Essexville were Fred Burks, a sensational jumper and shooter standing at an even six feet, and Rick Finkel, tallest man on the all-conference squad at six feet, five inches.

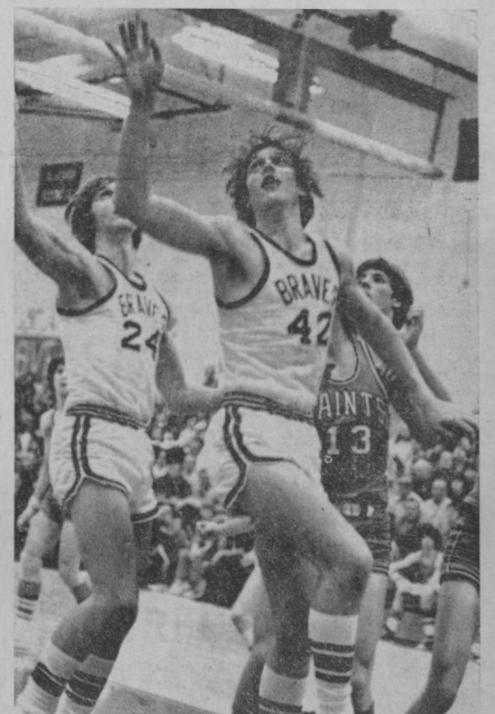

Filling out the first five, all seniors, was Dave Ward, the outstanding sharpshooter from Gladwin.

Larry Nichols, Tawas Area Braves' scoring leader, was named to the second team. Ogemaw Heights' Roger Fritz and Pat Thompson were both named to the second team, along with Hal Kostreza of Carrollton and Bill Baker of Oscoda.

Tawas players receiving honorable mention were Terry Nichols and Steve Janego.

Others receiving honorable mention were Charlie Schmetzler and Bill Bell of Standish-Sterling Central; Al Watson and Rod McIntosh of Gladwin; Bill Jennings, Ogemaw Heights; Rick Darling, Carrollton; Greg Coburn, Essexville-Garber; Scott Pickvett, Pinconning.

Commissioners Ask Planning for Iosco School Recreation

Continuing its discussion from last month on ways to aid schools with county revenue sharing funds, Iosco Board of Commissioners Wednesday asked school to develop a joint summer recreational program to be administered through the intermediate school district.

A county summer recreational program and possible purchase of additional books for Iosco-Arenac Regional Library were two areas discussed last month by commissioners in a move to help county school districts.

It has been proposed that a portion of federal revenue sharing funds be allocated to enrich such programs, which is permissible under federal guidelines for the revenue sharing money.

Supt. Paul Keene of Hale Area School submitted a summer recreational program for that school district to be financed by revenue sharing money, but the board of commissioners took no action on his recommendation and proposed that all superintendents in the county be contacted to develop a comprehensive program to be coordinated by Iosco Intermediate School District.

In other business conducted last Wednesday, the board of commissioners indicated it was going to act on Tawas City's parking lot proposal at the next meeting. City officials appeared before the commission last year and asked the county to participate in the city parking lot, inasmuch as it is used extensively by county building patrons.

Meetings of the commission are to be held Wednesday, April 4, and Tuesday, April 10. The April 10 meeting is set by state law.

Estate Disposal Classes Slated at W-P School

A series of estate planning meetings are scheduled for Wednesdays, April 4, 11 and 18, 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., at the Whittemore-Prescott Area High School library, as announced by Marvin Davenport, county extension director. Meetings will explain how to go about planning the disposal of property upon death and what tools are available for planning the disposal of an estate.

Dr. Michael Kelsey and Dr. Ralph Hepp of Michigan State University, East Lansing, will speak at the sessions and are to be joined by an attorney at one meeting.

TODAY'S Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

(Read II Timothy 1:1-7)

I am reminded of your sincere faith. (II Timothy 1:5, RSV)

She had undergone many months of intense suffering and life for her on this earth was drawing to a close. Yet she was alert and concerned for the welfare of her family and friends. Somehow, she had received a report of a difficult problem I was facing and mentioned it. I passed it off as lightly as possible.

Then, with great physical exertion due to her weakened condition, she extended her hand to mine and said, "My dear friend, keep the faith." A few hours later she was gone.

The days pass one by one and the problems still remain. When I am vexed or impatient, I remember that weakened voice and think to myself that if she could make that great effort to give encouragement, I must keep the faith. It reminds me of Paul's speaking to Timothy, calling to mind Timothy's sincere faith. Because of such trust, I try a bit harder. I am aware that my faith has come to me from other persons and I must preserve it for others to come.

PRAYER

Father, keep us aware of Thy presence in the midst of life and death and in all the experiences in between. For the sake of Christ, our Redeemer, who taught us to pray, "Our Father, who art in heaven . . . Amen."

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Court

that they acted on the advice given them that the bill was not a legal charge against the county. Judge Sharpe's talk placed the matter in a different light to them and they are now ready to follow his advice.

Judge Sharpe released the supervisors and prosecuting attorney on technical points of law which could be finally decided only by carrying the case to the state supreme court. However, there was a serious question as to Judge Sharpe's jurisdiction in the case, he being judge of a court of coordinate jurisdiction with the one which passed the sentences. Many lawyers throughout the state were of the opinion that he had exceeded his authority.

The sensational case apparently ended there and the circuit court got its law books. Judge Widdis continued to serve on the circuit court bench of Iosco County until 1927, when illness and subsequent death ended his long legal career. Judge Herman Dehnke was appointed by Gov. Fred W. Green to fill his vacancy.

Judge Widdis apparently was a brilliant but eccentric man. Wounds created over the controversy with the board of supervisors never healed and the judge's writing concerning communism following a trip to Russia were read with a dim view by Iosco residents. Upon Judge Widdis' death, Judge Dehnke wrote a letter to the Herald citing some of the outstanding judicial decisions handed down by his predecessor, apparently in the hope that Widdis would be remembered for those decisions rather than for the controversies on and off the bench which surrounded him.

But, until 15 years ago, Judge Widdis apparently was a forgotten man in Iosco as far as county officials were concerned. In 1956, the Iosco Centennial Committee decided to copy and reframe old pictures of judges hanging in the circuit courtroom. Judge Widdis' portrait had never graced the circuit courtroom and centennial committee members were at a loss to find a picture of him.

The committee turned to old newspaper files and the judge's picture was found in a political announcement in one of the yellowed newspapers. This picture, copied and skillfully retouched by the late Harvey Watson, now hangs over the jury box in the courtroom—Judge Widdis had finally taken his rightful place in Iosco's history.

Fluoridation Benefits Heard

Benefits of fluoridating water were discussed and leaflets explaining the fluoridation process were distributed at the Monday, March 19, meeting of Tawas Hospital Auxiliary held in the hospital conference room. Roma Lustig, vice president, called the meeting to order.

Motion was made to accept an offer from the Tawas Chamber of Commerce to serve food at a sportsmen's show in September. It was suggested that a dinner-dance be held during hospital week in May. Annual ice cream social sponsored by the auxiliary was discussed in detail and committees set up. It is to be held July 1 at the East Tawas Community Building.

De'phine Weis stated that more volunteers are needed to work on the floor at the hospital.

A suggestion was also made that meeting dates be changed from the fourth Monday of each month to the third Monday of the month. Every other meeting is to be a luncheon meeting. A standing rules committee is to take care of setting new meeting dates.

MARY M. BYRD
City Clerk

Minutes of special council meeting held in Tawas City on March 8, 1973. The meeting was called to order by Mayor John Bruggar at 5:30 p. m.

Present: Bruggar, Rollin, Lansky, Savage, Groff, Tanner and Smyczynski; others: City Mgr. Bublitz.

The meeting was called at the First Street bridge to review the placing of the new bridge and to discuss the possible purchase of property adjacent to the bridge.

The meeting was reconvened at the city hall to further discuss the bridge matters. It was concluded that the entire lot in question not be purchased but that the owner be offered a price for a small triangular-shaped piece next to the river. It was decided that the bridge could be placed within the street right-of-way but that additional property could make the job more complete.

No further business at this time, the meeting was adjourned at 7:50 p. m.

Would Aid Iosco Road Program

Funding for Michigan's county roads will increase more than 40-million dollars under terms of Gov. William G. Milliken's transportation program.

Nearly 186-million dollars will go for county roads in 1973-1974, the first full fiscal year the transportation program will operate, compared with nearly 143-million dollars in 1971-1972.

"The need is particularly severe for county roads in our urban counties, where increased population and growing mobility have combined to create ever greater daily pressures," Milliken said.

"The fact is that day to day, Michigan drivers depend most on those roads maintained by counties for getting from home to work and to market," he said.

A recent highway needs study showed that more than 13-billion dollars might be needed between 1970 and 1990 for county road outlays.

"The present transportation program in Michigan attempts to respond to that huge need, but still, of course, is much short of the level of expenditure," the governor said.

During the past year, state highway maintenance funds to the Iosco County Road Commission were cut by $12,500. As a result, the county had to reduce its maintenance program next summer by that amount.

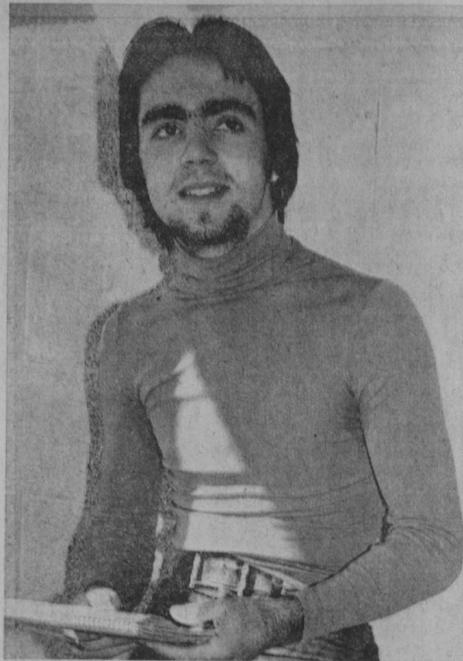

Added to Iosco's problem is that state snow removal funds to this county have not increased at the same rate paid to adjoining counties, even though Iosco has been forced to add about $12,000 of its own funds for snow removal this past year.

MARCUS ROCHA, 17, of Brazil is attending Tawas Area High School this term.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Brazilian Student Finds 'Spoken Word' Beneficial

Marcus Rocha, 17, of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, interrupting his studies Friday at Tawas Area High School, said that conversing in English is far more interesting and more beneficial to him than studying the language out of a textbook back in his home country.

"Attending school in the United States, watching television and movies has really helped me to understand and converse in the English language," he said. "I had trouble communicating with people when I first arrived here, but the spoken word has changed all that."

Marcus is here for six months as a participant in the Youth for Understanding Program, a worldwide plan in which various countries exchange students.

A first year college student in preparation for a medical career, Marcus said that he was but one of 1,300 Brazilian students coming to the United States this year and a large percentage of those students come to Michigan.

Like all students from Brazil, Marcus has been impressed with the variable weather of Michigan, particularly the cold winter which is in contrast to the tropical weather of Brazil. He cannot practice his favorite sport of surfing in Michigan. This state is surrounded by fresh water lakes, but lacks surfing conditions found in his homeland.

"I will be here until the end of July and I am looking forward to the water skiing season," he stated.

Marcus, who lives with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fessel at East Tawas, hopes to attend college here for one year before returning home.

His father is a translator for the American Naval Mission at Rio de Janeiro. His 13-year-old brother, who has the intriguing name of Davy Lincoln, plans to participate in the student exchange program when he becomes of age and hopes to come to this community.

Test Draft Registration by Mail Soon

Alpena Selective Service area office will test a draft registration by mail project during April in counties where there is no draft board, it has been announced by Leonard J. Stickey, area supervisor, and Alan Walker, board chairman.

During April, men of draft age will be able to pick up an application form in their local community and mail it to the draft board. The draft board will send a registration form and instructions to the applicant. The completed registration card would then be returned by mail to the draft board for normal processing.

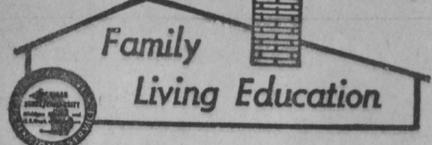

Selective Service Act still requires young men to register at age 18 or within 30 days before and after that date. The law also requires selective service to maintain an active standby organization with a complete registration and classification structure capable of immediate operation in event of a national emergency.

During April, applications for registration by mail may be picked up at most high schools, colleges and other community offices. In this area, draft registration application forms may be obtained at the following locations: Oscoda Area High School, Hale Area High School, Whittemore-Prescott High School, Tawas Area High School and the Iosco County clerk's office.

Lunch Menus at TA School

Lunch menus to be served April 2-6 at Tawas Area High School are as follows:

- Monday—Sloppy joe, applesauce, buttered corn, white cake, milk.
- Tuesday—Hot dogs with sauerkraut, string beans, diced peaches, bread, butter, milk.
- Wednesday—Fried chicken, mashed potatoes with gravy, buttered peas, fruit cocktail, bread, butter, milk.
- Thursday—Chili with crackers, diced peas, cookie, bread, butter, milk.
- Friday—Fish patty with tartar sauce, buttered potatoes, fruit cup, string beans, bread, butter, milk.

What are variety meats? The most popular are liver, tongue, heart, kidney and sweetbreads. Less popular are brains and tripe. Do not be turned off by the list, try some of them because you can save food dollars while adding food value to the family meals.

Variety meats are quite different in texture and flavor from muscle meats which homemakers buy most regularly. Most are rich in iron, protein, vitamin A and B vitamins. Pork liver is especially rich in iron.

Good quality variety meats are plump, shiny, relatively firm, with a uniform surface color. Signs of drying or color change indicates quality loss.

For fresh flavor, use these meats the same day you buy them or freeze them at once for future use. They do require special care in storing and in the simple preparation for serving. Best results come with pre-cooking of sweetbreads, brains and tripe before refrigeration or freezing. All except liver will freeze well in their whole form.

Liver is a fine textured meat with a distinctive flavor. It contains more vitamin A in a serving than any other food. One pound will serve four persons. This meat will freeze well. Buy it pre-sliced, one-half inch thick and separate the slices with double freezer wrap, then seal in meal-size packages.

Tongue is a coarse-textured meat but flavorful. It is sold fresh, pickled, corned and smoked. One pound serves three. Cooking clues: Cover and simmer in seasoned liquid with onion and celery until tender (three to four hours). Remove skin. (To remove skin easily, douse tongue in icy water.) Cut away roots. Return to liquid. Cool in refrigerator. Save broth for soups and sauces. Re-heat slices in spicy sauce or serve cold with mustard sauce in sandwiches.

Kidney is considered a gourmet delicacy. Beef and veal kidney are smooth surfaced. To prepare, remove outer membrane and split through the center and remove fat. Wash meat well and cut large kidneys in pieces. Soak in salt water one hour. Marinate an hour in seasoned liquid or French dressing. Cook until tender, changing cooking water several times. Cooking clues:

Use chunks in stews or meat pie; grind for loaves and patties; broil lamb, calf or pork kidneys in bacon.

Heart is the least tender of the variety meats, but it can be used in many ways. Cooking clues: Stuff with bread dressing. Sew shut. Roll stuffed heart in seasoned flour. Brown on all sides in fat. Simmer tightly covered in seasoned liquid, on top of stove or in 300 degree Fahrenheit oven until tender. Length of time depends on size: Beef, three to four hours; all others, 1½ to two hours. Cool in cooking broth in refrigerator. Serve sliced thin, hot or cold. For gravy, thicken broth or grind for chili, loaves or patties.

Many homemakers have never cooked tripe and some young homemakers ask "What is tripe?" It is the thoroughly cleaned thick, white inner lining of a beef animal's stomach. We can buy it fresh, pickled or canned. Cooking clues: Simmer fresh tripe one to four hours until tender. Then heat in seasoned tomato or cream sauce, spread with dressing and bake, spread with table fat and broil or dip in batter and fry.

For additional information, write or call your county extension office. Request the bulletin on "Variety Meats" for which there is no charge.

Refresher School On Breathalyzer

Three one-day schools were held March 20-22 for some 153 trained police breathalyzer operators from 15 Northeastern Michigan counties to enable them to retain their status as qualified operators.

Included in the enrollment were seven Michigan State Police officers from East Tawas. The recertification sessions were held at the Bay-Arenac Skill Center, Bay City.

The breathalyzer, used in conjunction with Michigan's 1967 implied consent law relating to driving after drinking, is a scientific instrument used to measure the percentage of alcohol in a person's blood through an analysis of the subject's breath. Breathalyzer operators, members of state, county and municipal police departments, first qualify as operators by attending a 40-hour plus initial training course at Michigan State University's Highway Traffic Safety Center. Officers must then be recertified on an annual basis by the Michigan Department of Health.

In these sessions, particular emphasis is placed on Michigan's year-old .10 percent law, which has lowered the requirements for conviction of driving under the influence to a blood alcohol level of .10 percent. The law also provides for conviction of driving while impaired when the blood alcohol level exceeds .07 percent.

Cooperating in the program are the Michigan Department of Public Health, Michigan Department of State Police and Highway Traffic Safety Center, Continuing Education Service, Michigan State University. Officers attending from East Tawas included Sgts. James Reed, James Hayden, William Scales, Jack Sandusky, along with Trps. Gary Shepley, Charles Petrach and Thomas Murphy.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

This is an appeal to the people of East Tawas to remember some 10 years ago when the truth about fluoridation was expounded and exemplified in the Herald.

It is most regrettable that the subject has been brought up again. After studying the pros and cons of fluoridation, one is quickly convinced that we must abjure the claims of our local dentists and doctors. Fluoridation is detrimental to health. All literature corroborates this statement.

It is inconceivable that when the truth is known anyone should have the temerity and audacity to try to bamboozle and brainwash the wonderful people of East Tawas.

You may wonder why I go to all this trouble to remonstrate and fulminate against those who dare to equivocate about the claims of fluoridation. Well, I love the people of the Tawas and so many of them are my precious friends, I cannot let them down.

In the past month, some $60,000 worth of pizzas were buried because there was only a possibility that a few might contain botulism. Everyone was concerned and I agree with them. If a few cans of tuna or mushrooms are found which contain botulism, the government steps in and pulls all of it out of circulation.

If Consumers Power or Detroit Edison try to build an atomic power plant, no one wants it near them lest the air become contaminated and I do not blame them. When it was discovered that fish in Lake St. Clair were contaminated by mercury, folks were warned not to eat the fish. Now, at a time when everyone is conscious of land pollution, air pollution and water pollution, why should anyone extenuate or mitigate the seriousness of adding a deadly poison 100 times more potent than cyanide to our drinking water? How can one remain unconcerned?

Taxpayers think: Is it not better to provide free fluoride tablets for those who want it, but allow freedom of choice? Brilliant and dedicated scientists the world over are warning—stop fluoridation! It would take a book to tell all the detrimental effects of fluoride. Every day, I see the commercials on television asking for money to help the thousands of retarded children. It is an established fact that where they use fluoride water, mongolism is more prevalent. What a pity. Can anyone be so guileless and naive as to think fluoridation is harmless?

Every doctor knows that toxins and poisons are the cause of illness. Fluoride is toxic to the human body. Vitamin C is the warrior which fights so gallantly to destroy toxins and poisons in our bodies. Doctors claim when we take a lot of vitamin C it is excreted by the kidneys. What they fail to tell the average person is that the vitamin C combines with poisons and both are excreted. Now, with all the poisons from food preservatives, insecticides, food wrappings, potent drugs, etc., how can our kidneys, liver and other organs contend with more poison? When the body is depleted of vitamin C, the glands are robbed of their capacity to produce hormones. Even the uninformed should realize that fluoridation is motivated, promoted and financed by big business. What a slick way they have thought up to dispose of their poisonous waste product, something so deadly it must be buried if they cannot dump it in our drinking water.

Who benefits from fluoridating water by selling the drug and by selling the injection equipment or by selling replacements for valves, tanks, pipes that are literally eaten away by this deadly chemical? Who can determine how many years it may take for an individual to develop some disease related to inborn metabolic errors and enzyme function failure? Fluoride is a powerful enzyme inhibitor.

A few weeks ago, an article appeared in The Detroit Free Press, written by a doctor who has discovered the fact that cancer cells grow rapidly when this one enzyme is missing. It is easy to put two and two together and believe fluoridation can cause cancer. In fact, this doctor is trying to synthesize this enzyme to produce a shot to stop cancer.

Why has Sweden outlawed fluoridated water? Do they know something others are unaware of? Why has Russia and most other nations banned fluoridation? The Russian doctors and scientists apparently have the courage of their convictions and tell their people the truth.

My friends, there is only one way to have good health and good teeth and that is to eat an adequate diet. Eat natural foods and eat as many as possible uncooked.

The United States is the richest country in the world, produces the most food and yet it is a colossal tragedy that most of our people suffer from malnutrition. Our food is milled and processed to death, then soaked with chemicals and preservatives until a decent and respectable worm would not even touch it. Much of it can lay on a shelf for months and not seem spoiled. I call it "junk food."

I ask you to watch the average shopper. The first items he puts in his cart are some pop, potato chips, corn curls, etc. No wonder we suffer from ill health and soon need "store teeth." The logical answer is as I stated already. Turn to natural food and eat as much of it as possible raw. I find that the average person knows less about diet and good nutrition than any other subject. What a tragedy!

Therefore, as the saying goes, "Let's wake up and smell the coffee." We are what we eat and drink and it better not be poison.

I have not written this letter with acrimonious intentions. It is only meant to enlighten the uninformed. I believe in the maxim: "If there is any good I can do my fellow man, let me do it now, for I shall pass this way but once." God bless you.

Yours truly,
Chester Denstedt.

Tooth Decay Fighters Urge 'Yes' Vote at ET

Tooth Decay Fighters of Tawas encourage all registered voters of East Tawas to vote for fluoridation of the public water supply Monday, April 2.

The prescribed amount of fluoride, one part fluoride to 1,000,000 parts water, is safe and beneficial for everyone. The cost of adding fluoride to the water is minimal, approximately 10 cents per user per quarter or about 40 cents a year. The plant equipment is not expensive and its operation is simple and completely controlled. Fluoride in the water has no taste, smell or color.

Drinking fluoridated water reduces two-thirds tooth decay in children, which helps the household budget by lowering dental bills. Present dental manpower can take care of only one-half the existing needs. Even if one has no children or no natural teeth, he will still be affected by rising dental costs in form of higher taxes to finance health programs.

Fluoridation is heartily endorsed by our medical doctors and local dentists. There are three methods of protection: Use of fluoridated toothpaste; use of fluoridated toothpaste and topical fluoride applications; use of fluoridated toothpaste, fluoride applications and fluoridated water.

The issue is simple, the facts are available, the decision is yours.
