

Iosco Skill Center Plans Scheduled for Discussions

The Iosco Intermediate School District is completing plans for the establishment of a vocational technical skill center. This proposal has been acknowledged and approved by the Michigan State Board of Education. The vocational skill center will be for all high school students in grades 11 and 12. Both college bound students and students who plan to enter the labor market directly after graduation. The objective of a vocational skill center is to develop saleable skills so graduates can compete for jobs in the world of work.

The vocational skill center will also offer programs for adults in the community who want to retrain for job advancement, who want to develop skills for a new job, or develop skills for a part-time job for additional income. The skill center will also offer programs in enrichment for area retirees in skill areas where an interest is expressed. Retirees will also be able to develop new skills to supplement their incomes with part-time jobs.

Craft committees have been selected from all area school districts to serve in an advisory capacity to insure that the needs of all school districts are met. These members will visit established skill centers in the area to identify on-going programs and aid in the development of educational specifications to insure meaningful courses will be offered in the Iosco Intermediate School District proposed vocational skill center.

A slide presentation has been developed to inform and explain the area vocational concept for the Iosco Intermediate School District. Coffee klutches are being scheduled now to relate this information to area citizens. If any one is interested in learning more of what the proposed skill center can do for you, contact Don Currey at the Iosco Intermediate School District, East Tawas, 362-2461, and a meeting will be arranged.

EDWARD SAVAGE

Council Gives Nod to Savage to Fill Vacancy

Edward Savage, who was defeated by only two votes in his bid for re-election last November, was named Monday night by the Tawas City Council to fill the vacancy of Chester Smyczynski, who resigned as an alderman.

A two-way race developed for the alderman's chair following nominations from the floor. Ald. James Lansky nominated Savage and Ald. Robert N. Rollin nominated Mrs. Robert T. Coughlin, who had submitted a letter last week seeking the appointment.

Prior to the vote, Alderman Rollin expressed the opinion that a special election should be held to fill the vacancy. He said that considerable interest had been shown by citizens in filling the vacancy and believed that an election would create more interest in city affairs.

City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz said that an election would cost around $400 and, if three or more candidates filed, a primary election would be required.

Mayor John N. Brugger said that if the council could not agree on an appointee to fill the vacancy, the only recourse would be to hold an election. He reminded councilmen, however, that the city charter designates that the council has the responsibility to fill its own vacancies, that councilmen are elected by the people and should fulfill that obligation.

A roll call vote saw Savage receiving votes from Lansky, Ald. Clark Tanner, Ald. William L. Groff and Brugger. Mrs. Coughlin received votes from Rollin and Ald. William Ezo.

Savage will fill the position until the end of next year. Should a primary election be necessary, it would be held in August 1975, followed by the general election in November 1975.

Smyczynski, who was elected to a two-year term last November, submitted his resignation last month for personal reasons.

Property Owners' Attorney Questions Sewer Tax Rate

An Oscoda attorney, Robert Hummel, who said he represented 51 of 90 property owners in the Elmwood Forest portion of three special sewer assessment districts, Monday night questioned the Tawas City Council concerning the proposed cost of sewer to individual property owners.

Hummel said the majority of his clients did not question the need for sewer, but felt that $19 per front foot cost or $38 for both sides of a street, was excessive. He asked if city authorities had explored all possibilities concerning possible federal aid for the project and was of the opinion that a substantial savings could result if the department of public works constructed the sewer.

The Oscoda attorney also questioned the advisability of making known the engineer's estimated cost for the project when the work had not been advertised for bids and questioned the city as to making the first assessment fall due on July 1 of this year when the project has not yet received approval for issuance of bonds.

Mayor John N. Brugger said that the city's engineering consultant had established what is believed to be a reasonable cost figure for the project based on costs of similar work over the past two or three years.

The mayor said that $19 per front foot assessment was arrived at by the water board and city council following several meetings last fall. Originally, it was determined that the construction cost would vary in each of the three districts because of differences in soil conditions, but city officials reached the conclusion that it would be only fair to taxpayers in the three districts to assess the same charge in each district. As a result, the city portion of the project was increased approximately $30,000.

The city has assumed 10 percent of the cost of the total project, which includes the engineering fee and $20,000 for a river crossing to serve the Spring Street area.

In past years, the council adopted a policy for participation in special assessment districts on a 90-10 percent basis for cost of construction. One of the first projects undertaken was the Bay Drive sewer in the early 1950s. At the present time, the council is also considering construction of storm sewers in several areas of the city under the same program.

Mayor Brugger said that the $19 per foot cost to property owners may seem high, but he pointed out that inflation had caused an increase in sewer construction cost. He said the city had accepted responsibility for any construction cost above the $19 to property owners and, if the bid price was lower than the $19 per foot, property owners in the special assessment district would receive the benefit of the lower rate.

The mayor said there was no question about the necessity of the sewer project because of regulations by the state health department concerning construction of septic tanks. He pointed out, too, that Tawas City, East Tawas and adjoining townships were investigating a possible joint venture in constructing new secondary sewage treatment facilities, as well as expansion of water facilities.

Brugger said that city officials had expended much time in attempting to obtain federal assistance with sewer and water work and, at the present time, the federal government is not funding public works for construction of sewer mains. He said the area was exploring the possibility of obtaining federal money to aid in construction of water storage facilities.

"You can quibble about whether or not we should have exposed the estimated cost of the project, but this information is available to any contractor from the project engineer," said Brugger. "In addition, every bonding project has a cost projection. There is no way a contractor can be fooled as to the estimated cost of a project, nor do we want that to happen and then have a contractor go bankrupt when working on a project."

The mayor said that Edmands Engineering Company had been the city's consultant for the past four years and that its work indicated that the firm was well staffed, intelligent and aggressive.

City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz said that, under the city's special assessment ordinance, the first assessment on July 1 was required. He said, however, that two resolutions could be changed to move that date to July 1, 1975.

The city manager said that no one was in the position to determine the cost of the project at the present time. He said that the engineering firm had advised against the use of the city work force in the construction because of specialized equipment needed for digging sewers, special safety equipment required by the state to prevent cave-ins, specialized equipment for boring under the river and that experienced manpower was lacking.

Mayor Brugger suggested that the attorney representing the property owners meet with the city's engineering firm to receive first-hand information on the project. A meeting is being arranged by the city manager.

It was stated that as soon as special assessment and general obligation bonds are approved by the Municipal Finance Commission, the next step would be for the city to advertise for the sale of bonds and then advertise for bids on the project.

About 10 property owners in the three districts attended the meeting.

One Way to 'Catch' Smelt

THIS SPRING has witnessed one of the longest smelt fishing seasons on record with large crowds of dippers jamming the Whitney Drain and Tawas River for three week-ends. Another large crowd was on hand Saturday night when these pictures were snapped, but the smelt were not cooperating. Large catches of smelt were taken during the week but only spotty success was reported on the week-end. Fishermen in the lower left photo took time out to roast hot dogs over an open fire, while others were buying smelt from a stand set up in front of the Singing Bridge Grocery, right.—Tawas Herald Photos.

Court of Appeals Upholds Circuit Judge's Ruling on Net Confiscation

Michigan Court of Appeals has affirmed a 1972 decision by Iosco Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller which had condemned and confiscated gill net fishing gear which had been seized in three separate acts of illegal fishing.

The case was brought before the court of appeals by Avis McGhaan Seaman and Duane L. Seaman of Oscoda, whose nets were seized on May 11 and September 29, 1972, followed by confiscation of their fishing boat in October 1972 by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

In its original complaint brought in circuit court, the DNR maintained that chubs and yellow perch were protected species and that the defendants were not licensed to use small mesh gill nets in their fishing operations.

The Seamans argued that they had been licensed to use small mesh nets pursuant to their 1971 license and had protested a change in 1972 licensing which banned the use of small mesh nets in Zone 19 of Lake Huron. They were convicted in Iosco Circuit Court of illegally catching eight boxes of chubs by means of 15,000 feet of small mesh gill nets, using 6,000 feet of small mesh gill nets to fish for yellow perch and were apprehended with three boxes of yellow perch and one-half box of menominee.

The court of appeals found the legislature clearly delineated that restrictions may be placed upon the license of commercial fishermen with respect to areas in which fishing is permitted, along with the methods and gear the licensee is to use. The court's opinion stated that zone management is merely the means by which the considerations are effectuated.

"It is well established that the fish in the waters of this state are the property of the state and the taking of such fish is a privilege granted by the state," said the appeals court. "It is equally clear that the privilege of taking fish from the waters of this state for commercial purposes is lawful only to the extent that one has a license to undertake such an enterprise."

The court said that in all three instances, the use of small mesh gill nets was a use not authorized by the license and the fishing operation undertaken by the Seamans in Lake Huron was clearly unlawful.

The appeals court said that DNR officers properly searched and seized the boat under provisions of the law which specifically authorizes searches without a warrant if based upon probable cause to believe that a statutory violation has taken or is taking place. The court said that the fishing gear and boat were properly subject to seizure, condemnation and confiscation.

Mayor's Exchange Set at East Tawas

Mayor Robert Bolen announced to the East Tawas Council Monday night that he and his wife would be participating in the annual mayor's exchange on May 20 during the annual observance of Michigan Week.

Bolen and his wife will be traveling to Rockwood, located south of Detroit, and officials of that community will be visiting East Tawas.

"This is the first time in several years that the community has participated in mayor's exchange day. Both East Tawas and Tawas City discontinued the exchange several years ago.

In other business, the mayor appointed the following council committees:

Budget and finance — Robert Johnson, George Staudacher and Jacob Montgomery; streets and sidewalks—Ralph Western, James Crowley and Gerald Klenow; cemetery—Montgomery, Western and Johnson;

Health — Klenow, Western and Staudacher; ordinances—Crowley, Western and Klenow; lands and buildings — Staudacher, Johnson and Western; insurance — Crowley, Klenow and Montgomery.

A revised budget for 1974-75 was presented by Paul Ropert, superintendent of public works. A public hearing is to be held at a later date.

The council approved a popcorn concession stand at the city park requested by George VanEvery.

A letter was read from Tawas Area Tennis Association expressing appreciation to the city for making present courts on Newman Street usable for the coming season.

Hale Voters to Name Two Trustees, Decide on Millage

Hale Area Board of Education this week reminds district voters that Monday, May 13, is the last day on which eligible voters may register for the annual school election on Monday, June 10.

Voters are to name two trustees to fill the vacancies of Ellsworth Bernard and Leland Dahne, whose terms have expired. In addition, an operational millage proposal is to be placed before voters.

Voters wishing to register may do so with the following clerks: Plainfield Township, Mrs. Frances Hansen, 728-2811, or her deputy, Beatrice Bissonette, 728-3191; Logan Township, Warren Caverly, TR 3-3482; Reno Township, Leonard Robinson, 756-2152; Hill Township, Alice Williams, 473-2343; Grant Township, Lucile Blackmore, 469-3591.

Hale Area School has reached the point of no return, insofar as state membership aid is concerned. With an increase in property valuation of $6,116,900, the district now has $40,937 behind each of its 810 students. The maximum gross allowance to receive state aid is $39,000. Last year, the district received $86,365 in state aid membership return.

With the increase in valuation, additional money would be raised using the same tax rate. As a result, voters will be asked to approve 1.8 mills of additional operating taxes, plus 12.5 mills renewal, for two years.

Last month, voters rejected a 2.5-mill proposal requested by the board of education.

Supt. Paul Keene reports that Hale Area School's budget for 1974-1975 is $965,000. He said that the 1.8 mills would balance the budget and that the board of education has determined that it will eliminate one mill assessed under debt retirement because of the increased land value. At the present time, taxpayers are assessed six mills for the school construction program adopted several years ago.

"As the outgoing superintendent, I have worked many weeks on the school budget and have attempted to keep pace with upgrading the curriculum, even though I am not going to be here next year," said Keene. "I feel it is essential for the people to pass this millage if they are going to have a good school system."

Keene submitted his resignation to the board of education last month, effective at the end of the present school term.

TODAY'S Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

Peter opened his mouth and said: "Truly I perceive that God shows no partiality, but in every nation any one who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him." (Acts 10:34-35)

Today, we are inclined to think of prejudice, trouble and unrest as something indicative of the few latest decades. This is not so! Prejudice is at least as old as the Bible itself. The apostle Peter, though having the kind of faith upon which to build the church, had his "hang-ups."

Born in the Hebrew tradition, it was difficult for Peter to accept the Greek, the Macedonian or the Roman as a recipient of the Savior's love and mercy. Yet God sent Peter, the Jew who was forbidden by Hebrew laws to eat certain animals, a vision ordering him to change his views on traditions and in his relations with other people.

And according to Scripture, Peter understood and said, "I now realize that it is true that God treats all men alike. Whoever fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him, no matter what race he belongs to."

Use County-State Equalization Figures

County Commissioners Adopt New Tax Base of $164,812,181 for 1975

Iosco County Commissioners "split the difference" between recommended local and state property valuation increases Wednesday in adopting a new tax base for 1975 of $164,812,181.

Following a lengthy discussion with local assessors, municipal officials, the county tax equalization director and a district representative of the state tax department, the county commission adopted the state's recommended factors increasing residential property valuations in every unit but one, but rejected the state's suggested factors for two other categories—commercial and industrial—and adopted valuation totals for those categories, along with industrial and timber cutover, as recommended by the county tax equalization department.

Of the total valuation, real property has been equalized at $147,940,067, as compared to the $129,295,150 valuation brought in by local assessing officers. The personal property valuation stands at $16,872,114, although the state tax department indicated Wednesday that a study would be made here this year to determine accuracy of personal property values.

The equalization report as adopted now goes to Lansing to determine if action of the county commission will be acceptable to the state tax commission. Last January, the state rejected the county's three-year sales study and its recommended increases in three categories of real estate to adjust assessments to sales.

In adopting portions of the two different equalization recommendations, county commissioners accepted results of the state tax commission's four-month sales study in this county, which indicated that the county's valuation on residential property had not kept pace with actual sales in that category.

On the other hand, commissioners rejected the state's premise that, if local assessing officers had lagged in keeping residential valuations in tune with actual sales, the same was true for other categories of real property.

Although the state tax commission had made a partial study of other categories and had recommended increases for agricultural property in one unit and on commercial property in three units, the county commission took note of the fact that the tax commission had not completed its sales study for commercial and agricultural categories in all units of the county.

Drew Young, District Four supervisor for the state tax commission, admitted this fact and reported Wednesday that his staff was now in the process of conducting a sales study in those categories.

The question now is whether or not the state tax commission will accept the county commission's action, awaiting further information on this second sales study conducted by its own staff, or if it will add a penalty to the county valuation in the partially completed categories based on the district director's recommendations.

In a telephone call Thursday morning to Lansing, William Wereley, county tax equalization director, pointed out that Iosco had accepted the state's recommended increase for the residential category, but he believed that every unit of the county should be treated equally in other classifications.

According to Wereley, incomplete sales studies conducted by the state indicated that the county's recommended valuations on agricultural property in Burleigh Township were too low and that commercial valuations in Oscoda, East Tawas and Tawas City were too low.

Wereley pointed out that the state had accepted his office's recommended valuations for industrial and timber cutover categories and believed that it was only fair to the above four units to wait until 1975 before acceptance of state recommendations for the remainder of the county. The Lansing office indicated Thursday that the tax commission may insist that other units of the county be raised in those categories based on information found in the sales study conducted in the four units.

Following a rash of appeals by Iosco property owners in 1973, the state tax commission found evidence in the 18 appeals that property valuations were too low rather than being too high and not consistent with market values. The state factored or penalized two units, AuSable and Grant Townships, earlier in 1973 when appeal hearings involving those townships indicated that valuations for tax purposes had not kept pace with actual sales.

Last December, the county tax equalization office recommended a 1.87 percent average increase to adjust the county's tax base for 1974, based on a three-year sales study, or an increase of $2,610,056 on a starting base of $126,758,008. The new starting base recommended by Wereley for agricultural property was $7,463,074, an increase of $39,641, with the major portion in Burleigh Township. Recommended as the new starting base for the commercial classification was $18,315,369, which included increases of $51,309 in Oscoda Township and $1,095 in Whittemore.

The major adjusted valuation increase from Wereley came in the categories of residential and timber cutover. The tax director recommended that a figure of $88,318,320 be used as the new starting base for residential, an increase of $2,273,651, while he recommended that $7,864,850 be used as the starting base for timber cutover, an increase of $244,789.

The county tax equalization department's recommendation were rejected in January by the state tax commission and a state survey team was sent to the county to conduct its own sales study.

Following the state sales study, a whopping $22,576,480 increase in real property valuation was recommended as the figure Iosco should use in equalizing its assessed valuation. This hike, which included new construction last year, was in residential, agricultural and commercial categories.

The new equalization report adopted Wednesday, utilizing the county tax director's recommendations for all real estate classifications with the exception of residential, has a factor applied to assessed valuation totals in all taxing units with the exception of Grant Township. With the penalty added to that unit last year, the state tax commission indicated that it accepted the county's valuation figures for that unit.

Wereley said Thursday that the new equalization report adopted Wednesday by the county, should it be acceptable to the state, would have the following factors applied to assessed real property valuation totals to bring them to the new equalized valuation figure:

Reno Township, four percent increase; Sherman Township, seven percent increase; Burleigh Township, nine percent increase; Alabaster and AuSable Townships, 10 percent increase; Baldwin, Oscoda and Tawas Townships, 15 percent increase; Wilber Township, East Tawas, Tawas City, 17 percent increase; Plainfield Township, 22 percent increase; Whittemore, 29 percent increase.

WORK ON REMODELING St. James Catholic Church at Whittemore is expected to be completed in early June, according to the Rev. Fr. Terrence Raymond, pastor. Interior of the church has received new pews, carpeting and a new furnace. The building has been lowered two blocks in order to facilitate construction of a covered concrete ramp entryway. Workmen are shown in the above photo beginning work on covering the exterior with aluminum siding. The church is nearly 100 years old and the pastor said last week that the $35,000 project would see "nearly everything new but the bell." An open house is planned in early summer.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Problems in Tax Assessing

Although equalization between local assessing units is not a local question today, some rather serious problems have been turned up in the county's tax equalization process as the result of a discussion held Wednesday before the Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

It was believed in 1966 that the age-old squabble at tax equalization time had been settled for all time with establishment of a county tax equalization office. Prior to that, there was an annual controversy in May at the session of the board of supervisors over methods used by individual assessing officers for property valuations and that assessments by supervisors tended to benefit individual units.

This controversy was not limited to Iosco County as the argument over the inequality of local tax assessing procedures was heard in every quarter of the state. For example, on January 4, 1942, Gov. John S. Barry told the state legislature that "complaints continue to be made of the unequal assessment of taxes, not only in the different counties, but in different townships."

The legislature waited until 1964 to take decisive action when it required that all taxes be assessed at 100 percent of the state equalized valuation by January 1966 and required that counties establish a tax equalization department by 1968.

Assessing officers of each unit were required to prepare a record card for each property description to be used in arriving at the actual value.

Iosco was one of the first small counties in the northern half of the state to hire the services of a professional firm to conduct an appraisal of property for tax purposes and named the late Henry Oates as the first equalization director.

Since 1966, differences of opinion as to variances of tax assessments between local units have been eliminated by establishment of a tax equalization office. The old controversy over differences between counties still raises its ugly head, however, as it was pointed out Wednesday that some counties had not hired the service of an outside appraisal firm to establish land values impartially. (Equalization of property values between counties is an important factor because state aid membership to schools is based on state equalized valuation.)

Two important points brought out at Wednesday's discussion was that the property appraisal cards prepared by Gem Surveys nearly 10 years ago were outdated and practically obsolete, that a complete reappraisal would be an expensive proposition for the county and that the staff of the local tax equalization office probably should be expanded to handle the job.

On the other hand, argument was heard from some quarters that property appraisal procedures based on the state tax assessor's manual, particularly for older homes, were useless when the state tax commission relies entirely on sales to establish state equalized valuations.

Iosco's apparent problem is that there has been a difference of opinion in the past between the state tax commission and the local tax equalization department over procedures used in conducting annual sales studies, or there has been a lag in adopting higher valuation when sales studies indicated that increases should be made. According to information from the district director of the state tax commission Wednesday, counties are not required to conduct annual sales studies. But, if counties wish to avoid a factor or penalty prescribed by the state on property valuations, sales ratios must be used locally in determining property valuations.

As the result of the recently conducted sales study by the state, which found a wide variance between property assessments and actual sales and factors have been added to increase the valuation on residential property, William Wereley, county tax equalization director, states that his department has requested complete information from the state tax commission concerning its methods used in determining sales values.

TWO VETERAN EMPLOYEES of Tawas Hospital were honored by fellow employees on their retirement Wednesday. Receiving plaques for their service were Mr. and Mrs. August Musloff, 807 German Street, Tawas City. At right are Sister Rita Louise, Kalamazoo, the hospital's first administrator, and Richard M. Harris, president of the hospital board of directors. Sister Rita Louise made a special point to be here for the luncheon honoring the retirees as Mr. Musloff has been in charge of building maintenance since opening of the hospital in 1953. He actually started on the job prior to the official opening as the hospital opened its doors prematurely in June of 1953 to care for victims of a tornado. Mrs. Musloff served as the insurance clerk in the hospital's business office from 1962 to the present. Punch and cake were served to the honorees, employees and guests, including the Musloffs' daughter, Suzanne.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Taxpayers Await New Iosco Rates

As indicated by previous coverage given proposed valuation increases for this county, the effect of inflated land values on taxpayers will not be known until final local tax rates are adopted.

The county allocation board is required to split the full 15 mills under its control between county operation, schools and townships. Municipalities, on the other hand, adopt their own millage rates and can lower the tax rate to meet the higher valuations.

All schools of the county will be seeking renewal of present operational millage above that obtained from the allocation board and all will be asking for additional taxes because of inflation. Voters of two school districts have already rejected millage propositions placed before them and boards of education will resubmit proposals.

A serious problem exists for two schools, Hale Area and Tawas Area, insofar as state membership aid is concerned. Hale's valuation behind each pupil now exceeds the $39,000 gross allowance permitted under the state aid act and loses $86,000 which it received last year in state aid. Tawas Area School, which has a present state equalized valuation of $28,551 per child, jumps to around $34,000 to $36,000 per child, depending on acceptance or rejection of the new equalized valuation by the state tax commission.

If present special voted millage rates receive voter approval, operational money would not decrease, but it would mean that local taxpayers would be paying a larger share of school operation.

Supt. Edward J. Barry of Tawas Area School told the county board of commissioners Wednesday that the state tax commission decision to raise local valuations could not have come at a poorer time because of national inflation. "If we do not levy special operating millage for schools, we just do not get state aid," said Barry.

Barry said that all budgets, schools, county and townships were predicted on valuation figures available after meetings of the board of review and schools could not come back now to seek additional local funds, above that already estimated to handle inflation, to make up for lower state aid.

He said that all school districts in the northern half of the state were being hurt by valuation increases and wondered where the state membership aid formerly received by those schools would go. He answered his own question by saying that the state aid probably would go to the Detroit area schools, or remain in the state general fund and be eliminated as a "taxbreak" next year. State aid is derived

Extension Home Economist

If you are one of the "wise ones," you will be ahead of the canning and freezing game this year. You will be looking over your canning and freezing equipment right now.

Extension home economists predict a dramatic increase in the number of homemakers who will can and freeze foods this season.

The home gardening boom, rising food prices and the "back to earth" movement have all contributed to the increasing interest in home food preservation.

In Michigan, asparagus, all kinds of berries, cherries, peaches, beans, tomatoes and applesauce are some of the most popular home-preserved foods.

Surveys done in past years indicate that rural homemakers are much more likely to preserve food at home than urban homemakers are. Farm homemakers also tend to preserve greater quantities of food.

Canning is the more common method used to preserve food, probably because of the cost of a home freezer and the limitations freezer capacity puts on the quantities of food that can be preserved.

Fruits are canned more often and in greater quantities than vegetables. Peaches are the fruit most often canned.

There is quite a bit of difference in the flavor and texture of home-canned and commercially-prepared peaches. Many homemakers who can nothing else will can peaches because they prefer the home-canned product.

The most popular home-canned vegetable is the tomato. Green beans, peas, corn, beets and lima beans are other favorites, followed by pickles and relishes.

More farm homemakers than city homemakers can vegetables and the vegetables they can tend to be home-grown.

Berries and cherries are the fruits most often chosen for freezing. Corn and green beans are the most popular frozen vegetables. City homemakers tend to buy their vegetables for freezing while farm homemakers grow their own.

Whatever your favorite method of food preservation, now is the time to get ready.

Child's Fate May Hang On A Kite String

A child's fate may be hanging by a string if it happens to be attached to a kite flying near an overhead electric line.

J. G. Huck, Consumers Power Company's area operations manager, cautions youngsters that unsafe practices while flying a kite could result in an unfortunate accident.

"Each year at this time, accidents occur when youngsters forget safety rules," Huck said. "Children are injured when they climb trees to free kites that have become entangled in the limbs."

"We are also concerned about youngsters who fly their kites in the rain or use metallic string."

Huck cautioned that wet string or any metallic wire that crosses a power line can become a conductor of electricity and carry the current down to the child holding onto the kite. This can result in a high voltage shock that can seriously burn or even kill a youngster.

To promote kite flying safety, the company's general safety department annually sponsors a poster contest in elementary schools to encourage children to observe the basic safety rules.

Huck listed these basic rules which will help kite flyers have fun and avoid trouble:

- (1) Use dry string, not wire or anything metallic.
- (2) Use wood and paper in your kite construction, not wire or metal.
- (3) Fly your kite on days when there is no rain.
- (4) Avoid busy streets and highways while flying your kite.
- (5) Fly your kite far away from television and radio aeriels.
- (6) Keep away from overhead electric lines.
- (7) If an electric line falls, stay away from it.
- (8) Call your power company if your kite gets snagged in a line. Do not pull the string or climb the pole.

David L. Daniels entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of probation violation. Trial by court has been set for May 9 and bond was set at $2,500.

Landfill Contract Studied by Iosco

A proposed contract with W. C. Roach to provide sanitary landfill service to the county is being studied by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

At Wednesday's meeting of the commission, Roach asked that the county take some action on his proposal as his contracts with several local units of government would soon expire.

Roach wished to know if the county was actually interested in entering into an agreement with his Multi-County Sanitary Landfill, located northwest of the Tawas-esc off Monument Road, in order to provide the service to all units of the county.

Such a proposal had been under discussion by the county commission for several months. Robert Foster, commission chairman, said the proposed contract would be studied for possible action by the second meeting in May.

According to terms of the proposed three-year contract, the firm would provide sanitary landfill service at a cost of $70,000 per year, plus $400 per month for rental of land. In addition, the county would purchase a machine designated by the contractor for exclusive use at the landfill at a cost not to exceed $40,000. Cost of the machine would be deducted from payments due the contractor.

In past discussions, it has been proposed that the county's contract be financed from federal revenue sharing money. At the present time, Multi-County Sanitary Landfill furnishes service to East Tawas, Tawas City and Grant Township. Should the county decide to contract for the service, the contracts with the above three units would be canceled.

In other business, the commission authorized the department of social services to advertise for bids to blacktop the parking lot at the department's office building located near the Iosco Medical Care Facility.

from various state taxes other than property.

Poor timing by the state in conducting the sales study here and recommending valuation increases after meetings of the board of review were echoed by others in Wednesday's discussion. It was pointed out, too, that there presently is a bill in the state legislative hopper to prevent the tax commission from increasing property valuations after the May equalization meeting of the county commission.

Mayor John N. Bruggier of Tawas City and Mayor Robert Bolen of East Tawas pointed out that commercial property valuation in the gasoline station and other automotive related businesses was currently in a depressed condition. Both indicated that property in that category was selling at one-half to two-thirds less than what it sold for two years ago due to the gasoline shortage.

A district representative of the tax commission said that there was no question that sale prices had shown a drop in automotive related businesses, but the tax commission's policy was to base its sales study on a three-year basis and any valuation adjustment would have to wait until next December.

The two mayors said, too, that the greatest valuation difference found by the state in its sales study was in older homes. Although admitting that valuations on some newer homes had not kept pace with current market values, Bruggier said that the market for older homes—50 to 100 years old—only three years ago was in a depressed state in Tawas City. He said that a number of those homes were purchased, remodeled and then sold when prices on all real estate suddenly skyrocketed here. Both Bruggier and Bolen did not believe that improvements to those older homes and subsequent higher sales prices should be used as the yardstick upon which to base valuations for other older homes which had not been improved. Bolen believed that some recently constructed homes in the community were being assessed at or near the market value, but he believed that without a complete reappraisal, the state's recommended valuation increases would be discriminatory.

'Get to Know Us Before You Need Us'

Hospital Open House Event Slated May 16

"Get to know us before you need us."

This is what Tawas Hospital is asking the community to do during National Hospital Week.

During the week of May 12-18, Tawas Hospital is joining others throughout the country in observance of the annual event, sponsored by the American Hospital Association. The week is designed to stimulate public interest in and support of hospitals in accomplishments and goals.

"Every day is a challenge for those of us who work in hospitals," states M. Jerry Norwood, administrator. "Demands for our services, both in and outside our walls, continue to increase."

Norwood said that persons now go into a hospital expecting not just to be tended to, but to be healed and to have their lives saved—and with lots of tender loving care.

"And, beyond caring for our physical ills, hospitals are concerned more and more about the social, psychological and economic problems created by our illnesses. We have come to take for granted that hospitals serve not only those in bed, but also those whose health care needs can be met in outpatient care and with other ambulatory services.

"We expect hospitals to help us stay well, or to help us detect problems before they become serious enough to warrant hospitalization, through community health education programs and screening clinics.

"We look to our hospitals to help care for us when we are well enough to go home, through home care services, to meet all our medical emergencies, day and night, and to serve as a center for preparedness in times of widespread disasters. We ask our hospitals to assume leadership in development of neighborhood health centers and to seek better methods of distribution of health care services to more people," said Norwood.

A SINCERE PLEA

"Get to know us before you need us" is more than just some catch words; this is a sincere plea to all area residents to get to know their hospital. With knowledge comes understanding and the support, interest and involvement of the community on which the hospital depends if it is to continue to fulfill its increasing expectations with maximum efficiency and economy.

"You may ask, why should you know more about your hospital than the fact that its there if you or members of your family need its service—very simply, because health care is everyone's concern," states Norwood.

All persons are concerned about keeping well or being cared for when they are not well. All are potential "customers" of a hospital; therefore, one should know what services are provided and the quality of those services. While hospitals are trying to meet increasing demands for services, they are also being asked to contain or reduce costs for those services.

FOOD COSTS RISING

"Declaring that we all want high quality health care at reasonable cost is a simple statement to make, but how we fulfill and assure this is not so simple," states Norwood. "While the general public is becoming increasingly concerned about inevitably rising costs of modern hospital care, we wrestle with difficult financial problems created by these same rising costs on medical supplies, food, equipment and construction.

"Housewives are greatly concerned over the rising costs of food, but just stop to think what it means to the hospital on rising food costs when it must plan and prepare 4,618 nutritionally-balanced patient meals a month and still maintain a variety of foods."

In addition, 1,734 meals are prepared and served each month in the cafeteria for employees and visitors. Almost without exception, every necessary food item and medical supplies have increased at an alarming rate.

"So, during National Hospital Week and the weeks to come, we are asking the people of the community to become better informed about the services we provide, the quality of those services, about our efforts to provide them as efficiently and economically as possible without losing our TLC (tender loving care)," states the hospital administrator.

OBSERVANCE PROGRAM

A full week in observance of National Hospital Week is planned at the hospital, beginning with the auxiliary dinner dance on Saturday, May 11, at the AuSable Inn, Oscoda.

There will be films for employees and the hospital volunteers (Pink Ladies) will have a tea at 12 o'clock noon, Tuesday, May 14, when awards will be given to outstanding members.

On Wednesday, May 15, a tea will be held honoring employees and awards will be given for outstanding personnel and for years of service. An award is also to be given to the employee of the year.

There will be an open house Thursday, May 16, 1:00 to 8:00 p. m., with films and a tour of the facilities. Cookies and coffee will be served.

During National Hospital Week, Tawas Hospital will present the annual preventive medicine film festival, which is free of charge to the community. Films including "Life and Breath," "Treatment of Drug Overdoses," "My Friend Joe," "Pulse of Life" and many more will be shown at the hospital on May 16, 1:00-8:00 p. m., and at St. John's Episcopal Church, Oscoda, from 10:00 a. m. until 6:00 p. m. on May 17.

Tickets are available from any Tawas band member or at the Tawas Area Chamber of Commerce office.

Notice to Telephone Customers of Proposed Rate Increases

For Michigan Bell Customers:

Michigan Bell Telephone Company has filed with the Michigan Public Service Commission an application to increase its rates and charges. Along with that application the Company also filed its direct evidence upon which the application was based. The application states, among other things, that the revenue produced by existing rates is unreasonably and unjustly low, and that to meet rising costs, to prevent future shortages of communications facilities and to maintain top-quality service, the Company requests rate increases and changes in service offerings which would produce an earnings level of 9.58 percent on its intrastate investment and additional revenue from its intrastate operations in the amount of $111.4 million, based on 1973 operating results.

Notice of Hearings

The Michigan Public Service Commission will hold public hearings on the application of Michigan Bell Telephone Company for a rate increase. The hearings are to determine whether, and to what extent, the existing rates, charges, and service offerings should be altered because they provide either an inadequate or excessive level of earnings to the Company.

The changes proposed by the Company are subject to approval by the Commission after public hearings. The Commission may approve different service offerings or rates which may be higher or lower than those proposed. The dates and places fixed for the hearings are as follows:

1. A pre-hearing conference will be held on June 4, 1974 at 9:30 a.m. in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, 525 West Ottawa, Lansing, Michigan 48913. The purpose of this hearing will be limited to identifying interests and their interests, to establish a schedule of further hearings beyond those established by the notice, to agree upon procedures, to discuss the issues involved in the Company's application, and similar matters.
2. The first hearing will be held on June 13, 1974, commencing at 9:30 a.m. at the Bonifas Civic Center, 225 North Twenty First Street, Escanaba, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7 p.m. the same date. A further hearing will be held on June 17, 1974, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the first floor banquet room, Veterans Memorial Building, 151 West Jefferson, Detroit, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7 p.m. the same date. Another hearing will be held on June 19, 1974, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the Law Building, 525 West Ottawa Street, Lansing, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7 p.m. the same date.

Persons desiring to testify or make a statement of position may do so at the above hearings or at subsequent hearings in Lansing without formal intervention.

Hearings will continue on June 24 at 9:30 a.m. in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, 525 West Ottawa, Lansing, Michigan 48913 for the purpose of cross-examination of the company's witnesses. Such hearings will continue from day to day thereafter or on such adjourned dates as the Hearings Examiner may set.

Persons intending to petition for leave to intervene in this case shall file an original and 11 copies of a petition to intervene with the Commission at least five days prior to the date of the first hearing on June 4, 1974 in accordance with Commission Rules of Practice and Procedure.

Subparagraph (2) of Rule 11 of the Rules of Practice and Procedure Before the Commission (R 460.21) provides as follows: "(2) A petition to intervene shall set out clearly and concisely the facts supporting the petitioner's right of interest, the grounds of the proposed intervention, and the position of the petitioner in the proceeding, so as fully and completely to advise the parties and the Commission of the specific issues of fact or law to be raised or controverted." (Emphasis added)

The Commission will require strict compliance with the above-quoted rule.

Persons filing such a petition to intervene may request from the Company a copy of its direct case. Persons filing petitions to intervene subsequent thereto will be required to take the case and schedule as they find it at the time of their intervention.

Michigan Bell Telephone Company filed copies of its direct testimony and exhibits showing the proposed new rates, with the Michigan Public Service Commission on April 25, 1974. Interested persons may examine that material during business hours in the offices of the Commission, Fifth floor, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913 or at any business office of Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

First Job? Get Social Security Card

Question: I will be looking for my first job this summer. I have never gotten a social security card and someone told me I will need one. Should I get one now or should I wait until I am hired for a job?

Answer: You should apply for your social security number at least several weeks before you will need it, so it is a good idea to apply now. Applications for social security numbers from people who do not remember having had one are screened against the central file in Baltimore, Maryland, to make sure one person does not get more than one number. Screening takes time.

To get more information about applying for a number, call, write or visit any social security office.

Question: I was getting social security checks until September 1973 when I became 18 and went to work. I have worked since and have enough money saved to go to school in September 1974. Someone at the school told me I might be able to get social security checks again. Is this true?

Answer: When you return to school you can get benefits if you are a full time student and remain unmarried. You should contact any social security office to file an application.

Question: My husband is totally disabled and he and I have been getting monthly social security checks for several years. Now I have been offered a job. If I take it, will my earnings cut down the amounts of our social security checks?

Answer: Your earnings will affect only your own monthly checks. If your earnings for the year go over $2,400, your checks will be reduced by $1 for every $2 you earn over $2,400. But no matter how much you earn for the year, you will get your full social security benefit for any month in which your earnings do not exceed $200.

Question: I go to a chiropractor once every two weeks for treatments. I heard that medicare now covers these treatments, but when I sent in my bills for payment, the medicare office returned them unpaid and said the services were not covered. Is this true?

Answer: The only chiropractor service covered by medicare is treatment of a partial dislocation (subluxation) of the spine after the condition is confirmed by X-ray.

If you have any questions about social security, contact the social security office at 1009 North Madison, Bay City, Michigan, or call 893-9579.

Achievement Day Drew Large Crowd

Iosco County 4-H Spring Achievement Day, held at Hale Area High School, was a delightful day with the culminating auction like the frosting on a cake. Over 200 parents and youth participated.

Master of ceremonies was Robert Race of WIOS Radio. Holly, Wendy and Rhoda Wight, all 4-H members, led the audience in both the American and the 4-H flag pledges. Rodney Graham, president of the Iosco County 4-H Leaders Council, welcomed the crowd.

Style revue was a special feature for the evening. Forty young men and women modeled their fine creations from spring skirts to knit sweaters and even a fully-lined coat.

Winners in the three categories were as follows:

Young miss (age nine-11)—Iva Utter of Grant Township, Todd Nagel of Grant Township, Kristin Ketzler of Sage Lake, Yvonne Dobson of Whittemore; junior miss (age 12-14)—Lynn Everitt and Connie Robinson of Whittemore, Trina Ketzler of Sage Lake, Valerie Nagel of Grant Township; senior miss (age 15 and over)—Gretchen Howell of East Tawas, Lorene Daniels and Leona Peters of Whittemore.

Along with the fashion revue were fine talent presentations, including a vocal group, square dancing, instrumentals and acrobatics.

Winners were Julie Featheringill of National City with an acrobatic dance and Lorene Daniels of Whittemore with a piano solo.

To climax the evening, a special auction was conducted to raise money for the county 4-H program. Raymond Kesler served as auctioneer.

Not all car insurance policies are alike. You'll find out when you have a claim.

You can help yourself avoid costly mistakes in the amount of auto coverage you carry if you talk over your needs with your independent insurance agent. Because—as many people discover too late—all policies do not cover all risks. And the attitudes of different companies toward claim payments vary quite widely.

As an independent agent, we represent several insurance companies. This means we can pick and choose among insurance companies to find the one that provides the best coverage for you.

We have a free booklet, "How To Avoid Costly Mistakes In Auto Insurance," that is yours for the asking. Just call or write for your copy. There's no obligation.
