Citizen Questions Board Action on Barry's Contract

Tawas Area Board of Education's recent decision not to renew the contract of Supt. Edward J. Barry at the end of the 1974-75 school term was questioned Monday night by a resident of the school district, who requested to be placed on the agenda at the April 14 meeting.

Mrs. Louis Pfeiffer of Tawas City, who questioned school board policy concerning how a citizen could appear before the board of education, was told that a formal letter of request must be submitted on the Friday preceding the meeting. The letter is to be addressed to the board secretary and the citizen has 10 minutes to make a statement, unless the board votes to allow an extension of time.

Mrs. Charles Schreck, board president, said this policy was adopted a number of years ago in order to insure that board of education members would have adequate time to answer any questions which might be raised at a meeting. Mrs. Pfeiffer said that she would submit a formal letter of request in order to appear at the next meeting.

Mrs. Pfeiffer said that she, along with a number of other persons, believed the "issue was clouded" concerning the recent decision on Barry's contract and said she had not received satisfactory answers to her questions. Although not on the agenda for Monday night's meeting, Mrs. Pfeiffer said that the board of education had given no reason for its action and "I can't believe you don't need a reason to fire someone."

Mrs. Pfeiffer expressed the opinion that board action was not above questioning by citizens and said that "every elected official is responsible to someone—you will have to live with your decision." She said she was prepared to present petitions to the board of education concerning its action.

Mrs. Schreck said that the board of education was not prepared to discuss the matter Monday night other than to issue the following statement:

"The board has conferred with its legal counsel, who has at this date, replied to Mr. MacLean, attorney for Mr. Barry, sustaining the board's legal position for terminating Mr. Barry's employment. The board unanimously remains steadfast in this decision."

Mrs. Schreck expressed the opinion that the board of education was handling the matter with proper procedure "and we will be able to tell you more as we go along—the problem is presently in the hands of the attorneys."

By unanimous action at its last meeting, the board of education voted not to renew Barry's contract. Last week, Barry's attorney stated in a letter that it was his opinion that his client's contract does not terminate until June 30, 1976.

The attorney said that written notice of the contract termination had not been given to Barry prior to April 1, 1974, contrary to his interpretation of the contract, and the contract was automatically extended.

Tenure Status Approved for 24 TA Teachers

On recommendation of school administrators, Tawas Area Board of Education Monday night approved 24 teachers for tenure, placed 10 teachers on their second year of probationary status and one teacher was placed on probation for the third year.

The majority of the new tenure teachers were in the middle school, having been starting teachers when grades six through eight were combined and completed their second year of probationary status. Five of the middle school teachers had tenure previously with other districts.

Completing two years of probation and receiving tenure were Mrs. Roberta Barber, Joseph Disette III, Michael Dobrinski, David Gadomski, Carl Klinger, Mrs. Susan McTaggart, Mrs. Jolee Selvidge, Mrs. Rebecca Tanner, Debi Vanderlaan, Mrs. Suzanne Weaver.

Middle school teachers with prior tenure status are Mrs. Marilyn Barry, Daniel Bergh, Carl Brien, Catherine Butch and Corinne Talbot.

Teachers qualifying for and receiving tenure at the Tawas City Elementary Unit were William Deckett, Philip Wilson and Kenneth Tanner. Teachers qualifying for one more year of probation were Jane Robertson, Patricia Casey and Larry Valentine.

Two teachers at the East Tawas Elementary Unit receiving tenure were Karen Bird and Dennis Chandler.

High school teachers placed on tenure were Daniel Bergh, Michael Viele, Steven Wilson and Marsha Sztanyo. Teachers qualifying for their second year of probation were Cynthia Burt, Susan Klatt, Richard McTaggart, Mrs. Prudence Welsh, Sandra Helms and Marsha Hyatt. Mrs. Janice McArthur was placed on probation for the third year.

A letter from Mrs. Lulu Schaaf, a member of the teaching staff at Tawas City Elementary Unit, indicated she plans to retire at the end of the school term. A letter from Mrs. Doris Wetzel, now on leave of absence from the high school staff, stated she does not plan to return to teaching. She has been home economics teacher for 13 years.

The board of education granted a leave of absence to Mrs. Catherine Shepardson from April 21 to the start of the school term in 1976.

In other business, a letter from Mrs. Leonard Hintz of the Tawas Area Tennis Association asked the board of education to consider creation of varsity and junior varsity tennis teams for interscholastic, nonleague play commencing in the spring of 1976. Mrs. Hintz is to appear before the board of education at the next meeting on April 14.

It was reported that Pinconning, Standish-Sterling Central and Gladwin plan to leave the Northern B Conference. One year of advance notice is required and this is expected in April.

Supt. Edward J. Barry reported that recent state legislation requires this school to provide part of the cost of educating two students from this district attending the Mt. Pleasant Home and Training Shelter. Barry said the school had not received a billing as yet, but believed it would be in the neighborhood of $1,900 annually per student.

Under a new state mandate, the school is to appoint a director of career education by April 15 and the board of education is to name nine persons from business and the school staff as members of a county Career Education Planning District Council.

TAWAS WORKSHOP of Northeast Michigan Rehabilitation and Opportunity Center turned out its first truckload of pallets last Friday at its new location in Tawas City. NEMROC Opens Shop for Iosco Handicapped

Starting production last week in leased quarters at the Tawas City industrial park on Ninth Avenue was the Tawas workshop of Northeast Michigan Rehabilitation and Opportunity Center, which has its main office at Alpena.

The local shop, similar to three others operated by NEMROC, is designed to furnish employment and training to handicapped persons of Iosco County.

"I have been with NEMROC for only six months, but it is an exciting thing to see these handicapped persons start on the job with little or nothing going for them and watch them progress to the point where their job is just about the most important thing in their lives," states Stanley Brockenbrough, shop supervisor.

At work assembling wooden pallets were four handicapped persons, the first to be hired under the new program in this county. Brockenbrough said that the work force here is expected to swell to 20 or 30 persons.

The NEMROC program is a private, non-profit organization which is supported by the Michigan Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, the Michigan Department of Social Services, Michigan Department of Mental Health and the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

Each of the four workshops employ handicapped persons in the production of manufactured items, or to provide such services as repackaging of materials manufactured elsewhere. While some funding is received from state and federal governments, the major share of financing of the program comes from the actual sale of items manufactured by the handicapped persons.

The Tawas workshop has a contract for assembling pallets for Dow Chemical Company, the Chevrolet Division of General Motors, AC Sparkplug and a Detroit pallet broker. Materials used for construction of the pallets are manufactured by handicapped persons at Alpena and are assembled into the finished product at this location.

It is expected that the local operation will branch into production of other items in order to employ persons with a variety of handicaps.

Located in a modern building constructed less than five years ago for a pattern manufacturing firm, Brockenbrough said that NEMROC was proud of its new facility here and there is plenty of room for growth.

"We do not try to hide out in a community, we want to be a part of it and interested persons are welcome to stop in and see what we are doing," said the shop supervisor.

The department of vocational rehabilitation and department of social services refer handicapped persons to NEMROC for employment. The program is being broadened and expanded in order to provide employment even to those persons with limited capabilities.

Brockenbrough said the program was not designed to provide permanent employment for a handicapped person as the basic idea is to provide a work environment for such people in order to train them for regular jobs.

While vocational rehabilitation is open to persons 16 years of age and older, regular employment with NEMROC usually does not start until a person reaches 18 years of age. "Many schools provide training programs and we usually do not get a person until he reaches the age of 18," states Edward Jensen, placement counsel.

The Tawas workshop has a nine-passenger station wagon to provide transportation to and from work for its employees.

"We are now looking into lines of work experience which can be offered at this location," said Jensen.

Probate Court Questions Two Juveniles Concerning Holdup

Two 16-year-old juveniles, who were captured within minutes Friday night after an armed robbery at Strauer's Market on M-55, were turned over to Iosco Probate Court.

The two juveniles appeared Monday before Probate Judge William McCready. Both have been released to their parents under personal recognizance while awaiting continuation of the probate court hearing on Thursday.

George Philpot, who was on duty at the store at the time, told investigating Iosco Sheriff's Department officers that a subject wearing a ski mask and red hunting coat entered the store at 7:25 p. m.

Philpot said the subject was holding a .22 caliber pistol under his coat and ordered him to "get the money out of the till and put it in a bag." Philpot took $375 out of the cash register and placed it in a brown paper sack.

The bandit then ordered Philpot, along with his two nephews, Dale Strauer and Fred Strauer, who were in the store at the time, to go into the walk-in meat cooler. They remained there for five minutes before coming out.

About the same time the trio walked out of the cooler, they were met by George Strauer, who said he had observed a green Chevrolet parked on Sand Lake Road. The car was facing south with its lights out and one person was in the car.

Police were notified and the sheriff's department stationed a patrol car at the intersection of US-23 and Townline Road in Tawas City. A car answering the description of the one seen by Strauer on Sand Lake Road was spotted traveling east on Townline Road. The car was followed to a nearby gasoline service station where the two occupants were arrested.

Investigating officers said that a brown paper sack containing currency was discovered in the car's glove box. A search warrant was authorized by Pros. Attorney, Ronald Tyler.

ASSEMBLING PALLET is the first manufacturing operation to be undertaken at the Tawas workshop. It is hoped that production will be expanded to include other manufactured items for employment of handicapped persons in Iosco County.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Expects County to End Year in Black

County Treas. Edward Nelkie told members of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners Wednesday that he believed the county could operate within its 1975 budget adopted last October, despite an anticipated drop in fees this year from some departments and an increase in the amount of delinquent taxes.

Nelkie said he did not anticipate any substantial drop in the total amount of fees projected for county offices. State income tax payments are actually higher than last year at this time and $15,000 interest to be received on delinquent taxes would make up the difference for a loss in revenue from the register of deeds office.

"If all departments can remain within the established budgets, I do not believe we will be using any red ink next December," said Nelkie.

In other business, Nelkie reported that CFC Data Processing, Midland, was to make an adjustment on its bill for tax roll and statement service for last year. Although printed tax statements were delivered on time, the firm was late in printing tax rolls for the local units.

Nelkie said that 50 to 60 errors on tax rolls have been discovered during settlement with township treasurers and, with settlements to be made with four of the largest units, he expects that more errors will be uncovered.

Nelkie said that some of the errors were the fault of the computing firm and other errors were made by the local treasurers. He said that every effort was being made to correct the errors before tax statement time next December.

On recommendation of its building and grounds committee, insurance coverage on county-owned buildings, presently based on a 19-69 appraisal, is to be immediately increased to reflect values as shown in an appraisal conducted by the tax equalization department.

The county building had been insured for $600,000 and the new appraisal indicated that the replacement cost would be $880,000. The jail had been insured for $235,000 and the current replacement cost would be $349,000. Insurance on the store at Old Orchard Park is to be increased from $23,000 to $39,000.

The commission concurred with a resolution from Calhoun County asking for legislation banning any court or judge from ordering the legislative body of the state, county, city or township to appropriate money for any reason.

Delivery has been made on two new patrol cars for the sheriff's department and the two excess vehicles in that department are to be retained for 30 days for possible redistribution to other county activities.

George Hatmaker of Oscoda and John Peltio of Tawas City were appointed as this county's representatives to the regional manpower planning council.

Duane C. Walters of Tawas City was appointed to the parks and recreation commission to fill the unexpired term of the late Fred Lomas.

The commission allocated $500 to the Iosco Soil Conservation District to publish the annual ISCS report. The money is to be disbursed from the soil erosion account.

Space Problem in School Studied by District Residents

A report on the second planning session for Tawas Area School held last week and attended by 60 persons was given Monday night to Tawas Area Board of Education by Robert H. Crawford, workshop coordinator.

During the session, it was agreed that the major problem confronting Tawas Area School is the lack of space. The tentative goal set was to provide additional space to carry an accredited program by 1976-77.

Crawford said the goal was discussed at length to determine if it was realistic "and it was decided to leave it as is."

Crawford said that group discussion was held to identify resources of the school district and to come up with as many human and nonhuman resources as possible.

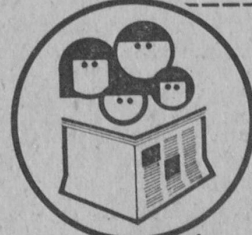

A list of five to 10 alternatives to achieve the goal were discussed, including utilization of five percent of state equalized valuation of the school district for building, construction of a new high school and to ask people for a percentage of tax millage as a down payment for a building goal over a period of years.

"It was felt that the group was not able to pick one alternative or approach, because that is the board of education's function," said Crawford. "Most of the participants felt, however, that we should have an alternative chosen soon, so action planning can begin."

The group was introduced to actual action planning where one alternative and the steps necessary to achieve a goal would be selected.

The next session is to be held Monday, April 7, with the time and place to be announced later this week. The public is invited to attend the session.

Is Social Security Under Attack?

by Bernard E. Nash

During the past year, many questions have been raised about the fiscal stability of our nation's Social Security system, and many critical comments have been made by economists, political columnists and other public figures as well as by official government bodies investigating the situation.

While these comments and questions have caused widespread discussion about Social Security's future, I would not go so far as to conclude that they constitute an outright attack on the system itself.

However, such hesitancy is not shared by the five former secretaries of Health, Education and Welfare and the three former Social Security commissioners who recently issued a joint statement charging that "attacks on the system designed to create doubts of its soundness and durability are a disservice to the nation."

Signing the ten-page statement, entitled "Social Security: A Sound and Durable Institution of Great Value," were former HEW secretaries Wilbur J. Cohen, Robert Finch, Arthur Flemming (currently the Commissioner on Aging), John W. Gardner and Elliot L. Richardson, and former Social Security commissioners Robert M. Ball, William L. Mitchell and Charles I. Schottland.

"To the worker who is compelled to contribute from his earnings every payday, who is counting on these benefits for his security in retirement and for the protection of his family in the meantime," the signers declare, "planting seeds of unwarranted doubt is a cruelty."

Much of the current concern about the Social Security system stems from the increasing size of Social Security benefits being paid to a growing population of retirees and other recipients, a lowered birth rate which will eventually reduce the number of active workers paying into the system, and the resulting potential deficit in the system's coffers.

While admitting that the basis for this concern is real, the defenders' statement insists that "the size of the problem over the next 25 years is easily manageable and certainly does not constitute a financial crisis."

Beyond that period, they anticipate that "a higher proportion of goods and services in the next century will need to go to older retired persons as compared with active workers"—which is just about what everyone else has been saying. However, they find hope in their assumption that future "active workers will not have to support any more non-workers than they do today as a result of these changed fertility rates, but... will be supporting more older people and fewer younger people." The idea here is that, as Social Security taxes increase, other taxes should come down.

At approximately the same time as the former secretaries and commissioners were issuing their statement, the Senate Finance Committee (which has jurisdiction over Social Security) was warning that the system's trust fund reserves could be "seriously eroded in the years immediately ahead, and... exhausted by the late 1980s."

To this, the defenders had responded in advance that "as long as his benefits are adequately assured by the government's ability to obtain future income, today's young worker need have no concern because his contributions are used to pay today's beneficiaries (instead of being deposited in a trust fund), or because his future benefits will be paid from future contributions."

The defense statement was initiated by former HEW secretary Wilbur Cohen—now teaching at the University of Michigan—after his rebuttal to a series of newspaper and magazine articles critical of Social Security failed to attract sufficient attention. His effort was then joined by the other former secretaries and commissioners.

One cannot argue with Mr. Cohen and his colleagues for defending the venerable system which they served and which, in turn, has served older Americans so well for so many years, and I hope we will be hearing more from them—both collectively and individually—when Congress opens major hearings on Social Security later this year.

However, I fear they might be doing themselves and their worthy cause a bit of a disservice when they construe concerned criticism of an institution in which we all have a vested interest to be an outright attack on the institution itself. With a situation such as this, it is vital to the nation's health that the subject be debated out in the open—and even they agree that "public discussion of the system is both necessary and helpful."

In a way, Social Security is like an old friend who's sick but not desperately ill. If we admit there's a problem and run for the doctor, our friend should have a good chance for recovery. But, ignore the illness and insist that all is well when it isn't, and our friend's condition is sure to worsen.

If Social Security is indeed under attack, it is by events and circumstances rather than by people, and it is these factors from which it needs to be defended—not from critics who seek to make us aware of the danger. The debate about Social Security's future must continue in public for this is an issue that is too important to too many people to be smothered into silence in the name of serenity.

TODAY'S Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

(Read Isaiah 11:1-9; Matthew 21:14-16)

A little child shall lead them.

(Isaiah 11:6) I have always heard the statement, "Out of the mouths of babes," and lately the truth behind this statement was made even more real to me.

A small child was overheard talking to her father during Communion service: "Daddy, when all those people get finished, can we go back for some more of that teeny-tiny bread and grape juice? I didn't get enough."

The thought, "I didn't get enough," began to take on meaning to me. Just how many adults have participated in the Communion service and yet gone away without feeling the wonderful experience of knowing they have supped with the Savior? Or how many times have we come for fellowship with other believers and yet missed out, not getting enough!

Christ's words tell us, "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled."

How about you and me? Are we getting enough of the love, joy and peace of Christ? If our answer is no, let us pray for God to give us a hunger and thirst for His Word, believing with the simplicity of a child that God honors it.

PRAYER

Father, we ask for a new hunger for a deeper fellowship with Your Son. Help us to walk in His light and continually feel His love, joy and peace. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY Christ can be as near as our next thought.—Ann B. Carr, North Carolina.

Federal Revenue Sharing May be in Trouble, Reports Bublitz

Federal revenue sharing, which has been called the biggest help to cities ever received, may be in trouble. This was the latest word from City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz of Tawas City, who attended the recent legislative conference of the Michigan Municipal League.

Now under discussion in congress, Bublitz said that changes need to be made because a simple extension of the current program just is not going to happen.

The major reason for concern is that there is not a federal surplus of funds for this purpose.

"Many points of criticism are being brought to the attention of congressmen concerning abuse of fund uses," said Bublitz. "It is said that it has become a political football, that schools do not receive benefit, that many cities and states are investing the money only for the interest rate, that the population factor in the formula is not fair to rapidly growing cities, that poor tax base is not fair and that ratios of industrial tax dollars as against all residential tax dollars is not just."

Bublitz cited one instance where Dearborn's taxes are derived from industry and the formula in computing tax effort and tax burden on the community has been lessened. Civil rights groups want better distribution to minority groups and populated minority areas. In many cases, the local tax effort is being withdrawn because of revenue sharing. Michigan is seventh in the nation in the amount of dollars going to the federal government, but ranks 34th in the amount of federal money returned.

"The total consensus of opinion of those in the know is that revenue sharing will be extended, but to what effect, they are not sure," said Bublitz.

The present formula before congress is based on census, tax effort and per capita income, which reflects the tax burden factor.

Revenue sharing has been a boon to local communities. The major share of the federal revenue sharing money received by Tawas City and East Tawas, for instance, has gone into street construction.

FRIDAY was the first day of spring and Michigan weather has been typical for late March, alternating between sunshine, sleet and snow. Icy roads closed schools on Monday, but major storms which have hit other areas have avoided Northern Michigan, which has enjoyed a relatively mild winter with a minimum amount of snow. It is expected that one or two major snowstorms will visit the region before warmer weather arrives.—Tawas Herald Photos.

State Moving On Billboard Removal Plan

Nearly 15,000 billboards down; another 7,000 to go.

That is the status of Michigan's roadside billboard removal program at the end of 1974, reports the Michigan State Highway Commission.

A total of 4,250 billboards were removed from along state highways in 1974. Most were taken down by owners after being declared illegal under a 1972 state law that controls billboards along some 7,000 miles of interstate and primary highways.

In 1972, nearly 30,000 billboards dotted the 7,000 miles of affected highways. Today, approximately 15,000 of them remain, with nearly an equal number having been removed over a two-year period by owners or by maintenance forces of the Department of State Highways and Transportation.

A newly-completed inventory shows that 1,176 new billboards have gone up on legal locations since April 1, 1972, effective date of the sign control law.

Of the signs remaining, approximately 7,000 will be purchased by the state for removal. All these are in locations that were legal prior to 1972 but which became nonconforming under the new control law.

The Federal Highway Beautification Act of 1965 authorized appropriation of three federal dollars for every state dollar for a nationwide billboard removal program. Since enactment of its 1972 control law, about four-million dollars has been spent in Michigan on sign removal.

Removal costs per sign average $3,000 which includes payment for the sign at its depreciated value, payment to the landowner for loss of lease fees and engineering and legal costs.

Michigan, which leads all states in its billboard purchase program, has acquired nearly 1,300 signs in this manner. The Department of State Highways and Transportation expects to buy another 800 to 1,200 signs in the first six months of 1975. After that, the rate of purchase of the remaining 6,000 nonconforming signs will depend upon the availability of federal funds.

More than 8,000 billboards will continue to be legal. To remain in place, each must have a valid permit issued by the state and renewed each year.

8: MEAT COOKERY METHODS

Are You Confused?

Confused about how to cook the grass-fed, baby and economy beef appearing on the market?

"Baby and grass-fed beef must be cooked carefully to retain flavor, tenderness and juiciness," reminds Anita Dean, Michigan State University extension foods specialist.

Examine the meat carefully to see how much fat covering it has. If it's fairly well covered with fat, you may consider cooking it with dry heat.

Cooking Baby Beef

Veal, heavy veal or baby beef are all high in connective tissue and water and low in fully-developed muscle tissue. During cooking, it is important to enhance and maintain meat juices. Braising and other coatings, marinating, and brushing with fat or using strips of bacon over the top help keep meat juicy.

"Tender steaks and roasts cooked in dry heat should be done to the rare or medium stage only. Well-done meat will be dry and lack flavor. If you prefer well-done meat, use moist heat, such as braising or pot roasting, even for tender steaks and roasts.

To roast, place meat on a rack in an open, shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer. Don't add liquid and do not cover pan. Roast in a slow oven, 200-325 degrees F, until thermometer registers rare (140°) or medium (160°). Allow 25 to 30 minutes per pound.

To oven broil a tender steak, first brush lightly with melted margarine. Place on rack about 4 inches from pre-heated broiling unit. Broil thin steaks about 4 minutes. Turn, brush again with melted fat and broil 3 or 4 minutes more.

"Pan broiling or cooking in a heavy skillet atop the stove gives added brownness and taste to tender steaks," Mrs. Dean adds.

Grease the skillet lightly and heat to medium temperature. Brown on both sides, turning occasionally until it reaches desired stage of doneness.

Pour off any fat which accumulates. Medium-done small steaks should be ready in about 7 or 8 minutes. Again, avoid cooking to well done.

"Always serve baby beef and grass-fed beef promptly to avoid excessive drying," warns Mrs. Dean.

To cook the chuck and round, use slow braising. Brown meat on both sides in a small amount of fat. Season, add 1/2 to 3/4 cup liquid, cover and cook until done.

Tomato juice, sour cream and other sauces enhance the flavor when added as liquid in braising. Braised steaks take 45 minutes to 1 hour; pot roasts, 2 to 2 1/2 hours and stews, 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 hours.

"Never add tenderizer to baby beef," cautions Mrs. Dean.

Grass Fed Beef

Grass-fed beef are usually 12 to 20 months old. Because they are not fed grain, there is less fat around the outside of the carcass and less marbling.

Cooking methods for grass-fed beef and baby beef are similar. Rib roasts from grass-fed beef may be cooked by roasting. However, again you must be careful not to overcook.

Slow braising is recommended for chuck and round. Brown, season, cover and cook with 1/2 to 3/4 cup liquid for 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 hours, depending on size.

Broil only the most tender cuts of grass-fed beef. Again, broil only to the medium or rare stage.

Goulash & Stroganoff

Grass-fed and baby beef have mild flavor and little fat.

"How about using this beef for Chinese dishes, goulash, stews with vegetables and mushrooms or stroganoff?" suggests Mrs. Dean. "This will add flavor and make meats more tender."

Cooking Conventional Beef

If you continue to use the conventional type grain-fed beef, follow the conventional cooking methods. Cook tender cuts of meat with dry heat (roasting, broiling, panbroiling and panfrying). Generally tender cuts include the rib, rib eye, tip and loin.

Less tender cuts of meat are made tender by cooking with moist heat, which surrounds the meat with steam or hot liquid. This slow, moist cooking softens the connective tissue.

Moist meat cookery methods include braising, stewing, pot roasting, pressure cooking or cooking in water. Less tender cuts include the chuck, round and rump. These are the muscles which get the most exercise.

Top grades (prime and choice) of chuck, round and rump may be cooked with dry heat methods, roasted, broiled or pan fried.

List Name Change With Social Security

Question: I was recently divorced and have decided to start using my maiden name again. Should I notify social security of this change?

Answer: You should, especially if you are employed. Whenever you change the name you use in your employment, whether because of divorce, marriage or other reasons, you should have it changed on your social security record. You can get a copy of the form, "Request for Change in Social Security Records," at any social security office.

Question: My husband is younger than I am, so I started getting a monthly social security benefit on my own work record when I was 62. When he reached 65, I started getting a wife's benefit which I thought would be half of his monthly benefit. It is less than that. How come?

THE TAWAS HERALD

Wednesday, March 26, 1975-3

Answer: Your monthly payment is reduced because you started getting social security benefits before 65 and will get benefits over a longer period of time.

Question: When my husband started getting supplemental security income payments last year, I got payments as his wife. We have been separated a little over six months now. Should I report this to social security?

Answer: Yes. When a husband and wife who get supplemental security income payments have been separated for at least six months, they should report the separation to social security. Any change in your marital status, living arrangements or income can affect the amount of your payments. You can report a change by calling any social security office.

If you have questions regarding social security, contact the Bay City social security office at 1009 North Madison or phone 892-3554.

Not all car insurance policies are alike. You'll find out when you have a claim.

You can help yourself avoid costly mistakes in the amount of auto coverage you carry if you talk over your needs with your independent insurance agent. Because—as many people discover too late—all policies do not cover all risks. And the attitudes of different companies toward claim payments vary quite widely.

As an independent agent, we represent several insurance companies. This means we can pick and choose among insurance companies to find the one that provides the best coverage for a free.

Get State Permit Before Doing Work On Docks, Seawalls, Groins on Lakes - Streams

Waterfront property owners who plan to construct permanent docks, seawalls, groins or similar work effecting the bottomland or shoreline of Michigan lakes and streams are reminded that a permit is required from the Department of Natural Resources. Dredging, channelling, placement of culverts and bridges also require approval prior to construction. Placement of any fill material, including beach sand, into the water also comes under jurisdiction of the Inland Lakes and Streams Act, administered by the DNR. To engage in such construction without a permit is unlawful and subject to penalties.

This law, effective since 1973, requires a review of all applications by the DNR and other agencies concerned with waterfront construction and development. Applicants should apply early to avoid a delay in construction scheduling. A period of four to six weeks is required to process applications in accordance with the law. If a proposal becomes controversial or requires modification, a longer processing time may be necessary.

Applications from the northern portion of the Lower Peninsula exceeded 600 during 1974. Peak periods and unnecessary delays can be avoided by applying early. Applications received prior to May 1 will receive prompt attention, resulting in a minimum of processing delay and a timely response to the applicant.

Application forms are available from any Department of Natural Resources Field Station. Individuals who have questions or require additional information may contact Craig B. Smith, regional submerged lands supervisor, Department of Natural Resources, Roscommon, Michigan 48653, phone (517) 275-5151.

Hearing May 9 on VanDette Charge

The Michigan Employment Relations Commission has set a hearing for Friday, May 9, 10:00 a. m., to hear a charge brought by Teamsters State, County and Municipal Workers, Local 214, against the Iosco County Board of Commissioners and Sheriff George Westcott.

The union claims that Joseph VanDette, former member of the Iosco Sheriff's Department, was discharged from employment for participating in the organization of employees. In addition, the union charges that other employees of the department have been threatened with dismissal for active part in organizing. VanDette was discharged from the department on February 24, five days after three prisoners made their escape from the county jail. Two of the prisoners have been recaptured, but one is still at large. VanDette had been a member of the department for eight years.

Dear Taxpayer:

The 22% factor the State put on all property taxes in this Township in 1974 has been removed from your State Equalized Value which will appear on your 1974 tax statement. The factor recommended by the State Tax Commission of 1.12 to Residential—1.46 to Timber Cut-Over—1.35 to Agriculture—1.40 to Commercial, was then added to the 1974 real value of land only, not buildings to arrive at the 1975 figure.

Providing the State Tax Commission of Michigan DOES NOT indiscriminately put an additional factor on all properties in this Township your 1975 taxes will be your 1974 real value plus the above factor.

We would like to enlist your help as a taxpayer in Plainfield Township to assist us in trying to reduce the taxes in this Township. We recommend you write letters to your Congressmen and Senators and tell them your feelings on the terrific increase in land and building values levied by the State Tax Commission.

Sincerely
Plainfield Township
Board of Review

EXAMPLE: Residential-Land only
1974 Assessed valuation, $1200.
1974 State Equalized Valuation (+22%) $1465
1975 Assessed Valuation (x1.12) $1200x1.12 equals $1344
