Jacques Heads Tawas Board

At its annual reorganizational meeting Monday night, Tawas Area Board of Education named Dr. James E. Jacques as its new president. He succeeds Carl B. Babcock, who remains on the board as trustee.

Other officers named were Clare Herriman, vice president; Willard L. (Bill) Dillon, secretary; David Kennedy, treasurer.

Welcomed to their first meeting following election to office were Trustees Randall DeWyse and Robert N. Curry.

As one of its first orders of business, the board of education adopted Tuesday, August 31, as a tentative starting date for opening of school during the 1976-77 session. Date for opening school is a negotiable item and contracts have not been settled as yet with Tawas Area Federation of Teachers and noncertified personnel.

The tentative opening date was adopted on a four to three roll call. In favor of accepting the recommendation of Dr. Robert Halle, superintendent of schools, were DeWyse, Herriman, Jacques and Curry. Opposed to the date were Kennedy, Dillon and Babcock.

The superintendent said that the August 31 starting date was being considered by most schools in the area due to the fact that Labor Day falls on September 6 this year. He said an opening after Labor Day would extend the school year into

June, which would not be desired due to hot weather experienced at that time of the year.

Dillon said he was opposed to the earlier starting date because many families had made vacation plans for late August and that some students are employed until after Labor Day.

In other business, authorization was given to sign a note at Peoples State Bank for $32,000 which had been obtained to meet a school payroll. The board of education has authorized borrowing on anticipated taxes to finance school operation until receipt of taxes starting in December.

Approval was given to signing contracts with five administrators, subject to and including a statement contained in a new contract with the superintendent which allows a salary reduction should there be a need to reduce the school's 1976-77 budget. Contracts were approved for Jerry Youngs, assistant principal in the high school; John Alexander, high school principal; Herman Rollin, elementary principal; Gene Gerber, community education director; Robert McDonald, middle school principal.

An executive session was held at the end of the regular meeting to consider contract negotiations and to discuss an administrator's contract which was not included among those approved.

OK Rezoning for Nursing Home

Unanimous approval was given Monday night to rezone property at the corner of Fifth Avenue and North Street as the site for a one-half-million-dollar nursing home to be constructed by Provincial House, Incorporated.

A public hearing had been held June 24 to hear objections from property owners concerning the proposed rezoning from RA residential to RC multiple family dwelling.

A petition had been submitted by four property owners in the neighborhood protesting the zoning change, although City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz stated at the public hearing that only one of the above property owners had land abutting the proposed site and actually qualified to be recognized under the city's zoning ordinance.

Other property owners in the general area felt that the proposed nursing home would not detract from land values, would increase the city's tax base and would offer additional employment.

Councilman Robert Rollin was of the opinion that further consideration should be given to petitions signed by those opposing the project. However, a resolution to change the zoning was adopted by a unanimous roll call.

In other business, the council adopted a resolution authorizing obtaining interim financing for construction of a water loop system to serve the southwestern area of the city. The council also directed the city attorney to give an opinion concerning financing sewer construction on the lake side of US-23 below the Tawas River bridge prior to final adoption of special assessment proceedings.

The city manager reported that an FHA loan would not be available until later this fall for construction of the water loop system from the Gordon Clute property to Margo Street. Most of the pipe and fittings are on hand for this project and the council authorized obtaining a $12,000 loan to finance the project.

Although this project is not expected to entirely relieve the water shortage below the Tawas River bridge, which will be remedied once additional water storage is provided under a regional plan included in the FHA financing, plus federal grants, the new loop system will offer some relief.

The council adopted its second resolution concerning establishment of a special assessment district from Coho City Marina south (See COUNCIL, page 4.)

City Planners to Study Property Request

Tawas City Planning Commission is to consider a proposal Thursday night concerning use of city property—possibly space at the west end of the baseball field along North Street—as a site for a new building to house Jesse C. Hodder Post No. 189, American Legion.

This action came as a result of information received Monday night by the city council that the present American Legion Hall on River Street was being considered as the site for a new commercial development by Dr. John D. LeClair.

Individual members of the city council expressed interest in assisting with development of the community and generally supported the idea to make city property available as a new site. It was believed that the planning commission should make a recommendation.

LeClair appeared before the council and stated he had appreciated an earlier letter from the city council which advised that the council would cooperate in any way possible in assisting with commercial development of LeClair's property extending along US-23 from Wheeler Street to the first row of lots east of River Street.

He said that he had negotiated for purchase of the American Legion Hall for the past three years and had recently agreed to replace the present building with a 40 by 80-foot structure, duplicating the floor space of the present building.

He said, however, that he and members of the American Legion had been unable to find a suitable location for the building. At the present time, the building also serves as the senior citizens center and this activity would be transferred to the new building, should it be constructed.

LeClair said he was willing to make a cash settlement with the organization or replace the building, but time is of importance. He said that he was not asking for any special favor from the city, but a one-half-million-dollar construction project is pending and depends on obtaining the site of the present American Legion Hall for parking.

"When I received my tax bill from the city a few weeks ago, I thought there is a definite need for adding to the city's property valuation," said LeClair. He suggested that the city consider a long term lease arrangement for city property made available for building in the eventuality that it (See HALL, page 4.)

Citizens Advisory Committee Formed

Second Millage Vote Slated Aug. 26

Study Finances Thursday Night

Due to a conflict with another election, Tawas Area School's second try on an operational millage proposal has been moved ahead two weeks.

At its regular meeting Monday night, the board of education scheduled the millage vote for Thursday, August 26. During preliminary discussion two weeks ago, September 9 had been tentatively established for the election.

Dr. Robert Halle, superintendent of schools, told board members Monday night that the Iosco County Election Commission had rejected the September 9 date as being too close to a special election September 23, at which Iosco Intermediate School District will seek approval of a vocational training center.

Halle said that County Clerk D. Keith Papas suggested the fourth week of August for holding the election as it would provide an adequate time separation between the two elections.

At the annual school election in June, voters turned down a proposal of 14 mills for school operation, 11 mills renewal and three mills additional.

The board of education has until August 12 to make a determination as to the amount of millage to be placed before voters and a citizens advisory committee is to meet Thursday night to begin a study of school financing to assist the board of education in its decision.

Forty persons have volunteered to serve on the committee, all of whom were officially appointed to the group Monday night. It was emphasized by board of education members and the superintendent that the list has an "open end" and all citizens are urged to participate in the study.

More than 30 persons attended Monday night's regular meeting of the board of education and the superintendent expressed his appreciation for the excellent turnout. The superintendent said he would like to see 50 or more persons taking an active part on the citizens advisory committee, as well as attending board of education meetings.

Warren Man Drowned at Old Orchard Park

The body of an 18-year-old Warren man was recovered Wednesday morning in the AuSable River, about 50 feet west of the boat ramp at Old Orchard Park, Oscoda Township.

Investigating Iosco County Sheriff's Department officers said that Patrick Cerutti apparently fell from the boat ramp the previous night.

He said the board of education often has to make decisions on important questions when there is an apparent isolation from the district. He said that people usually do not attend meetings unless they have a request to make and he believed that input from citizens would be helpful to the board of education.

Thursday's meeting is to be held at the school cafeteria, 7:30 p. m. The school's financial situation is to be explained by the superintendent, along with a list of suggested options concerning cutting the school program.

He said that administrators have been studying the school's budget for 1976-77 in an attempt to reduce costs without hurting the program. He said that elimination of seven staff members already planned would provide a saving, but he emphasized that the school program would suffer from any further staff cutting.

Halle said that complete financial information would be available for study by the citizens advisory committee. He said he hoped the group could develop a financing proposal for the next three to five years, as well as to give some consideration concerning elimination of the current split sessions.

The citizens advisory committee is to name its own officers and will have three to four weeks to make its recommendations. It was suggested that meetings be held at different schools in order for committee members to tour buildings and acquaint themselves with present facilities.

It was stated that the committee may wish to consider problems other than school financing. One example suggested was the school's disciplinary code, which is to be reviewed shortly by the board of education.

Board of education members expressed the hope that the citizens advisory committee would be retained in an ongoing capacity in order to take an active part in school planning and to advise the board of education on community positions.

STANLEY H. STASIK of East Tawas has purchased the Coho City Marina at the mouth of the Tawas River. He said Friday that the name of the marina would be changed shortly. The property is being cleaned and improvements are to be made in preparation for the fall fishing season for trout and salmon.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Coho City Marina at River Mouth Purchased June 30 by Stanley Stasik

Purchase of the Coho City Marina property at the mouth of the Tawas River was announced last week by the new owner, Stanley H. Stasik of East Tawas. The transaction was effective June 30.

The property includes 300 feet of frontage on US-23 and 300 feet of river frontage, all on the west side of the Tawas River at the US-23 bridge.

Stasik said his immediate plans called for cleaning the property and repairing boat wells in order to be prepared for the large number of fishermen expected to be here this fall for trout and salmon fishing on Lake Huron and Tawas Bay.

A new building is to be constructed for the sale of fishing tackle and bait. Stasik said he had no plans at present to reopen the restaurant.

Temporary repairs are to be made on a large metal building near the lake shore for winter storage purposes and additional winter boat storage facilities are to be constructed.

Stasik said the transaction included a residence and property on the north side of US-23 which extends to the Detroit and Mackinac Railway tracks. Winter storage is to be provided there for boats, trailers and camper units.

The new owner said that work would begin immediately on expansion of parking facilities at the marina.

Stasik said he expected to meet with the Tawas River Mouth Harbor Committee and the city council to cooperate in any planning for river mouth improvements.

US-23 Storm Drain Development Seems Brighter, but City Awaits Word from State

State and city participation in development of a storm sewer program along US-23 south of the Tawas River bridge has taken an encouraging turn, but city officials must await final word from the department of state highways to determine if it is economically feasible to participate in the project.

Several years ago, a move was made by the city to encourage the state to cover ditches on both sides of US-23 and construct a storm sewer as a means of eliminating cattails and improving the appearance of the area.

After considerable study, the highway department developed a $186,000 program and indicated that the city's share of the project would be $78,000. The program includes provisions for widening US-23 in the future.

When the proposed program was placed on the council table, local officials were at a loss concerning the city's $78,000 share and, after studying the proposal, were of the opinion that the state had overestimated the actual runoff of storm water from city streets.

The city's engineering consultant, Edmands Engineering Company of Bay City, studied the state's plans and a meeting was held at Lansing two weeks ago between highway department officials, Ralph Knop of the engineering firm and City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz.

During the course of that meeting, the engineering consultant and city manager stressed that the formula for financing the project had been based on the flow of water, determining responsibilities of both the state and the city.

Spokesmen for the city pointed out that all maps indicated that the natural flow of water was toward US-23, which had not been caused by the city. Both Knop and Bublitz told councilmen Monday night that they came from that meeting with the belief that the highway department had changed its thinking concerning the project and would accept a greater share of the financing.

Based on information received at that meeting, the city's engineering firm now believes that the city's share will be approximately $36,000. Both men stressed that the actual amount could differ as the city's share could be higher once a final report is received from the state.

The city manager stressed that the city will have to accept its share of the project, inasmuch as the drain along US-23 would be carrying storm water from streets and private property. He said that any further residential or commercial development in that area would add to the flow of water.

Should there be extensive blacktopping of motel parking lots, some provision may have to be made for water impoundment during storms. He said this could be accomplished by restricting the water runoff from parking lots.

The city has asked the state to develop a storm sewer plan based

(Read I Corinthians 3:1-11)

"There can be no other foundation beyond that which is already laid; I mean Jesus Christ himself." (I Corinthians 3:11, NEB)

Strolling along a street in ancient Hebron, in southern Israel, we saw a Greek inscription on a tablet on an old wall—"Of Christ the King, I, His blameless priest, Obodianus, of the gentle heart, have embellished with mosaics the house, its floor and entry by the hands of my own disciples."

So read the foundation stone of a house-church truly laid in the infant years of Christianity.

The egotism of Obodianus can perhaps be overlooked because of his missionary zeal. Hebron became the see of a Latin bishop in the year 1168, though the town was captured some years later by Saladin and remained a Moslem center for 800 years.

That stone plaque yet bears witness to the strength and durability of the Cornerstone on which the priest's faith had rested.

Let us never fail to take heart even though our immediate witness for Christ bears little fruit and results seem only of a temporary nature. The smallest thing we do for Jesus' sake is woven into the eternal fabric of the kingdom, whose builder and maker is God.

PRAYER

Lord, we do believe that in Your strength and by Your grace our every labor for You and the kingdom will succeed. Amen.

County Aids Restoration of Old Indian Mission

Isco County Board of Commissioners approved an expenditure of $700 to aid in restoration of the Indian Mission Church on King's Corner Road at the Isco-Alcona County line.

The money was appropriated from budgeted funds remaining from the Isco County Bicentennial Commission. When that group concluded its work two months ago, a steering committee recommended that the county take this action.

The county board of commissioners commended the steering committee for its efforts in raising additional money to aid in this project.

In other business conducted Wednesday, the commission appropriated $2,085 as matching funds for senior citizens activities from July 1 through September 30.

Authorization was given to advertise for bids for constructing an addition to the animal shelter.

would revert to the city at some future time.

City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz said the west end of the baseball field next to Emanuel Lutheran School was under consideration due to the fact that water and sewer are available at the site. He believed there was adequate room there without interfering with the baseball field.

Councilman Jerry Cotter expressed the opinion that the city has an obligation to assist with commercial development. Councilmen Charles Landon and William Groff pointed out that the present American Legion Hall and the baseball field are not now on the tax roll and development of the present site of the American Legion Hall would add to the city's property valuation. Landon felt that the planning commission should "ramrod the project and we should let them know we will give them our support."

Councilman James Lansky said that there had been discussion in the past concerning development of a community center in the area of the baseball field and believed this project could be a start toward this end.

DETROIT Bank and Trust will operate a trust business in the main office of Peoples State Bank of East Tawas under Michigan's trust structure law enacted last year. Prior to signing an agreement, B. James Theodoroff, executive vice president and officer in charge of trusts at Detroit Bank and Trust, left, and John D. Lippert, president of Peoples State Bank, review the agreement.

Office at Peoples State Bank

Banks Announce New Area Trust Department

Permission has been granted by the Financial Institutions Bureau of Michigan for Detroit Bank and Trust to operate a trust business in the main office of Peoples State Bank of East Tawas.

According to a joint announcement made Wednesday by John D. Lippert, president of Peoples State Bank, and B. James Theodoroff, executive vice president and officer in charge of trusts at Detroit Bank and Trust, the new arrangement makes available an expanded range of trust services to customers throughout the Tawas-Oscoda area.

Under the agreement, Detroit Bank and Trust will establish and manage a new trust department to be located within the main office of Peoples State Bank, bringing that bank's present and prospective trust customers all the advantages of the specialized knowledge and long-term experience of one of Michigan's oldest and largest trust departments.

The present Peoples State Bank trust activities will be transferred to the new department.

This service was made possible last year when the state legislature enacted a new trust structure law. Under that law, Detroit Bank and Trust opened a similar trust department in the main office of the Gaylord State Bank. According to Theodoroff, the success of the Gaylord activity prompted the Detroit firm to select another sound bank in a promising market growth area in which to provide trust services.

"Peoples State Bank provided an excellent opportunity and invited us to join with its sound present management to offer trust services to this growth community," Theodoroff noted.

The Detroit Bank and Trust trust department in Peoples State Bank will be supervised by William M. Fury, who is also the resident trust officer in charge of the Gaylord activity. John E. Hoshbach, the present trust officer for Peoples State Bank, will remain in his present post and work with Fury in establishing the newly-expanded trust activity.

In making the announcement,

Lippert said he was delighted with the arrangement. "Speaking for both myself and our board of directors, we consider it a tribute to our bank's management and our community to have Detroit Bank and Trust, Michigan's oldest and largest state bank, join with us in providing expanded trust services to our customers."

WILLIAM M. FURY

Public hearings are required on this project and the city attorney is to make a determination if work could be accomplished sooner than under the prescribed regulations for establishment of special assessment sewer districts.

If permitted, the city would obtain a loan on the project and construct the line while the special assessment district is being established.

Mental Health Services Under Investigation by Committee

Operation of the Northeast Community Mental Health Services Board, of which Iosco County presently is a member, is being investigated by a special eight-member committee formed last Thursday night at Alpena.

James Nelson of Atlanta was named chairman of the investigating committee.

A full scale investigation is to be made into charges against the board's director, along with board policies, staff resignations and the entire range of its activities.

Representing Iosco County on the committee will be Mrs. Mary Jane Burdett, a member of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners. Only last month, this county voted to join with Ogemaw County and form its own mental health agency.

Concern over the mental health agency, especially at Alpena, has been simmering for a number of months. The probe is to deal with specific charges involving David M. Lindemulder, director, whose doctorate accreditation is being questioned.

Criticism of Lindemulder's directorship was sounded by several of the 25 staff people, who allegedly left the agency since he took over the directorship 2½ years ago.

A charge has been made that Lindemulder, a native of Traverse City, holds a "home study" doctorate degree from an unaccredited and now defunct junior college, the Institute of Learning of Merrill, Wisconsin.

The director, who is paid $32,500 a year, said he does not feel threatened by the investigation and has denied that 25 persons had left the agency since he took over. He said that only three staffers left, one of them being fired, during the past 12 months.

A resolution to rescind recent action by the mental health board which had increased Lindemulder's salary from $28,500 to $32,500 was tabled Thursday night by board action.

Counties serviced by the Northeast Community Mental Health Services, besides Iosco and Ogemaw, include Oscoda, Alcona, Montmorency, Alpena and Presque Isle. The operation has an annual budget of nearly $1,000,000.

Rezoning Hearing Thursday

A public hearing is to be held Thursday, 7:30 p. m., concerning proposed rezoning of property on the south side of North Street from residential A to RC to allow construction of an apartment house project for the elderly.

Located directly across North Street from the site of a proposed new nursing home, for which rezoning was approved Monday night by the council, the zoning change was requested by Kenneth Myles, Jerry Cotter and DeShano Homes.

Also to be considered by the council is the proposed vacation of Fourth Avenue between First Street and North Street asked by the developers. The 85-foot-wide street would have angle parking on either side and the center would be left open for traffic.

Proposed closing of German Street from River Street to the Tawas River is also to be considered by the council. Adjacent property owners, Kenneth Gentz and Alta Boos, have requested the closing. The city is to reserve a storm drain easement.

SING-A-LONG

The officers and members of the American Legion, Audie Johnson Post and Unit No. 211 wish to express their thanks to all those who participated in the July 3rd and 4th Sing-A-Long. While the cannons sounded and the bells rang, voices rang out to the old time favorites played by Organist Joseph Churchill.

The American Legion Department of Michigan commander, Donald Huntly, and American Legion Auxiliary Department of Michigan Auxiliary president, Catherine Bogart, dropped into the post and shared in the bicentennial celebration.

A special cash award was given Rodney Powell, while the bicentennial rug went to Norm Klenow.

We hope you will brush up on your favorite songs and join us for our next Sing-A-Long, which we hope to announce shortly. So "Smile" — "Till we meet again." 28-1b

CUTTING CLEANING COSTS

Are you over cleaning your house and your clothes? Look at your grocery bill and see how much money is spent on items other than food. You might discover you are spending a lot for cleaning and laundry products you do not really need.

If you have the time and a few basic supplies on hand (detergent, ammonia, vinegar, baking soda, washing soda, etc.) you may save some money by making your own cleaning products.

Try one of the following solutions for cleaning windows and mirrors: Add four tablespoons ammonia to one quart of warm water (for heavy, greasy soil), add two tablespoons vinegar to one quart of warm water (for hard water spots) or use one tablespoon washing soda to one quart of warm water.

If the porcelain enamel on your sinks, bathtubs and toilets are in good condition, clean with powdered detergent on a damp sponge. If porcelain is worn, you may have to use scouring powder or try one tablespoon trisodium phosphate dissolved in a gallon of warm water.

For sluggish drain pipes, flush with one-fourth pound washing soda dissolved in three quarts boiling water.

Keep furniture clean with dustless cloths which gather dust instead of scattering it. To make your own treated cloth, put a few drops of cleaning wax in a jar, coating the sides. Place a soft cloth inside the jar, cap tightly and leave overnight.

For cleaning ovens, place a small glass dish filled with ammonia in a cool oven and leave several hours to loosen grease film. Later, wipe clean. Scrub remaining burned-on spots with steel wool pad.

To clean surfaces of appliances (ranges, refrigerators, etc.) use detergent and water or ammonia and water or baking soda, then rinse. Do not use scouring powder for appliance surfaces. It will mar the finish. Decide if you are over cleaning. If the floor gets dirty, it may just need a damp mopping with cool water. A coat of wax will preserve the floor's surface, but do not remove the wax every time you clean.

Clean floor with soap and water occasionally (rather than scrubbing with harsh cleaners which remove wax).

How much time and money are you spending doing laundry? A Michigan State University study of four-person urban families showed some washed twice as many laundry loads a week as other families the same size.

Getting SSI Payments? Report Marriage to Social Security

People getting monthly supplemental security income payments should report promptly to social security if they get married or divorced, if they separate and intend to remain apart, or if they've been separated for 6 months or more.

The amount of the supplemental security income payments people get can change if they marry, and the amount due a wife or husband can change depending on whether they're living together or apart, according to social security officials here.

"A temporary separation of less than 6 months generally won't affect supplemental security income payments," a spokesman said. "But people should report to social security if they begin living together again after a separation."

Payment amounts also may be affected by annulment or by the death of a wife or husband. "Prompt reports of changes help social security get the right supplemental security income payments to the right people on time," the spokesman said. "But failure to report changes may result in an overpayment that will have to be paid back."

Changes can be reported by calling or writing any social security office. A written report should include the name of the person affected, the correct social security claim number under which payments are made, the change being reported, the date the change occurred, and the signature and address of the person making the report.

People getting supplemental security income should also report changes in income, living arrangements, and other circumstances that might affect their payments, according to the spokesman.

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over or blind or disabled. The program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Q. I own a small shop, and I was told that when my net earnings are low, as a self-employed person I could use a different method of reporting that would give me social security credits. How does this work?

A. The optional method of reporting may be used only if you had net self-employment earnings of $400 or more for at least 2 out of the 3 previous years, and it can be used only five times. Instead of reporting your net earnings for the year, you can report two-thirds of your gross earnings, if two-thirds is $400 or more, but not more than $1,600. This is assuming, of course, that these amounts are not less than your net earnings.

Q. My neighbor tells me that when she received notice that her supplemental security income payments would be suspended, she appealed the decision. She said she continued to get checks while she was waiting for her case to be reviewed. Is this possible?

A. Yes. If the request for a review of a decision to suspend, reduce or end supplemental security income payments is made within 10 days after receiving notice of the proposed action, payments will continue until the Social Security Administration makes a decision on the appeal.

maintenance of 108 miles of firelines, maintenance of 20 miles of minor roads. In addition, the fledgling CCCs constructed two lookout towers, three tourist camps, three tourist camp buildings, water systems and picnic tables.

During the same three-month period, men of the CCC camps amassed 375 man days in forest fire suppression and 426 days of tree nursery work at the forest service's Beal Nursery, East Tawas. This initial work record was outstanding, but was to be surpassed as men gained experience in the forest.

"The members of the different companies have all become greatly interested in the various phases of forestry work and it is a revelation to see how most of the boys have developed the technique of their particular jobs, as well as to see how they have developed physically in the comparative short time they have been in camp," stated G. K. Fenger, supervisor of the Huron National Forest.

"Almost without exception, they are tanned to a superlative degree and have added from 10 to 20 pounds in weight. If rehabilitation of the young men of the country as a whole, in addition to the accomplishment of vitally necessary work in the forest lands of the nation, were the two primary objectives of the CCC camps, then surely the project has already demonstrated that it is a success," stated Fenger.

In addition to work in the forest, the CCC boys at Silver Creek took an active part in the Fourth of July celebration in the Tawas. A CCC baseball team competed against the local team and three of the boys portrayed characters of the Lumbermen's Monument on a parade float sponsored by Consumers Power Company. Lt. G. J. Adams was recreational director at Silver Creek that first year and arranged activities in volleyball, boxing, wrestling and even staged a vaudeville show.

While CCC enrollees worked on restoring battlefield shrines in other parts of the nation, the 9,000 or more men assigned to Michigan's Lower Peninsula furnished most of the labor for forest fire suppression and there were 75 fires recorded during 1934 in the Huron. In April 1935, CCCs from Silver Creek assisted the Michigan Department of Conservation by staging a deer count in the Tawas Ranger District, as well as installing fish gates at Foote Dam and making plantings of black locust, ground juniper and upland willow at Lumbermen's Monument to combat erosion.

A library was established at Silver Creek and residents of the Tawas contributed books of either fiction or non fiction, along with reference books pertaining to various subjects under study. Army officers conducted a regular program of education through formal

BEAL NURSERY at East Tawas operated by the United States Forest Service was expanded in 1935 in order to provide additional seedlings required for tree planting in Huron National Forest. About 100,000 seedlings were planted daily during the annual planting season and CCC personnel provided labor for this work as well as weeding at the nursery. The men also provided labor at the state's fish hatchery at Silver Creek, improved roads, built firelines and winter sports-camping facilities at Silver Valley and provided the major labor for suppressing forest fires—all highly worthwhile projects.

classes, personal conferences, educational films and lectures.

On April 28, 1935, Silver Creek Camp No. 665 held an open house. The camp commander that year was Lt. Frederick K. Spiecker, with Lt. Charles A. Bowser and Lt. Raymond Mundt as members of his staff. From a very crude beginning, camp conditions had been greatly improved in a matter of two years.

Fighting forest fires was not without peril and, in May 1937, a United States Forest Department foreman died and a CCC member was burned seriously in a fast breaking crown fire which swept through 1,200 acres of Huron National Forest. The foreman who died in that blaze was Andrew D. Lindgren, 43, of Hancock, who had charge of 400 CCC fire fighters.

By 1937, the economic picture was changing for the better in the country and thousands of young men left the camps to accept work in private industry. The training and experience gained during an enrollment period was generally credited with qualifying the men to take their places in private employment.

Broadened provisions concerning enrollment in the CCC were established by congress in 1937, extending the CCC for another three-year period. New rules provided the opportunity to secure constructive education, including academic subjects and vocational training, and to participate in the vast conservation accomplishments of the CCC, which merited widespread acclaim. The age for enrollment was lowered to 17 years, with a top of 23 years; candidates were to be single, out of work and in need of work. The CCC became primarily a training school and work agency and special training to prepare enrollees for work in private industry was emphasized.

It was during this period that major work was accomplished at the Silver Valley winter sports park under Supt. Ralph E. Crowell and John E. Franson, forest ranger. Lt. Donald E. Yanka was company commander and E. R. Cook, camp superintendent, in 1938.

Although other camps were abandoned that year due to improved private employment conditions, a new 20 by 120-foot educational building was dedicated at Silver Valley in July 1938. The building utilized materials salvaged from Camp Glennie. During the dedication, eighth grade certificates were presented to 20 CCC boys who had completed courses at the camp.

Two toboggan runs were constructed at Silver Valley for use starting in January 1939 and in April of that year, Wilkusi had charge of work projects and demonstrations for the sixth annual open house event. Circuit Judge ACCOMMODATIONS at Silver Creek during the CCC's first summer in 1933 were rather primitive. This tent served as a mess hall and men slept in tents until wood buildings were completed. Only a few scattered concrete foundations remain today showing the camp's location.

A Safe 'Place' For Power Tool Projects

If dad and the family do not have a designated work area for fix-up projects — it's a good time of year to organize one. It's a practical idea for dad — one that provides more "control" over projects and reduces the chances of accidents while using powered saws, drills, routers and other tools. If you do have a workshop, now is also a good time to check out how well organized and safe it really is.

Following are suggestions and practices, the Power Tool Institute points out, that will build safety into your work center and the projects you undertake. Violating them very really increases your potential for accident — possibly serious. All are based on experience data and accident statistics.

Plan Your Space Carefully. Think through the kind of projects you are or will be performing. Also, carefully consider the tools you will be working with — particularly if they are larger stationary tools. This will aid you in your new or adjusted floor plan — often providing more free, open work area. Remember, clutter and crowded areas breed carelessness and foolish, unsafe moves.

If you must store other things in your workshop between projects, have a definite plan on repositioning them before you start working. Don't attempt jobs when your space is inadequate.

Proper Light & Ventilation. The entire work area should be fully lighted to eliminate shadows and dark spots. Using power tools when you can't clearly see what you are doing can create a hazardous situation. One additional overhead light, for example, could prevent a serious accident and costly medical bills.

When you intend to grind, sand or do other surface finishing jobs, the workshop should be well ventilated — particularly if varnish removers, solvents and the like are to be used. Have dust masks and safety goggles available and use them when necessary. Make certain oily rags, gasoline, and the

CAN YOU SPOT THE SIXTEEN SAFETY HAZARDS? Carefully look over this workshop. Circle those areas in violation of the power tool safety rules. Now, check your workshop for similar hazards. (Answers are upside down.)

- SAFETY HAZARDS 1.) Child in workshop. 2.) Chuck key in drill press. 3.) Clutter on floor. 4.) Extension cord across floor. 5.) Tapered saw guard is up. 6.) Sawing under bench. 7.) Circular saw plugged in and ungrounded. 8.) No eye shield on grinder. 9.) No safety goggles on man. 10.) No eye shield on sander. 11.) Working when tired. 12.) Hazard light over bench. 13.) like are kept out of the area. Spontaneous combustion and sparks igniting fumes and sanding dust are very real hazards.

Electrical Outlets & Dampness. Provide your workshop with an ample number of outlets. This not only makes plugging in power tools convenient, it stops dangerous overreaching when operating tools, and eliminates excessive extension cords that can cause tripping. Circuits and outlets must have current carrying capacity adequate for tools you are using.

Be sure your workshop is equipped with a properly grounded three-wire outlet system. If in doubt, consult a licensed electrician.

Water and electricity are a dangerous combination. Locate your workshop and electrical outlets in a dry area — where dampness, occasion-

Herman Dehnke was guest speaker.

Silver Creek's days were numbered, however, as the nation's first peacetime draft became effective as a national defense measure in 1940. As an example of what was to happen, the Herald reported that Clarence H. Fowler of Tawas City, who had served as company clerk for the army division at Silver Creek, had enlisted in the United States Army Air Corps; Alphonse J. Milure, who had been technical service clerk of the forestry division since 1934, also enlisted in the air corps.

The last open house was held at Silver Creek on May 10-11, 1941, and the camp closed later that year. Buildings were sold and removed from the forest and a number of the CCC enrollees entered the ranks of the forest service.

Today, the old Silver Creek camp is all but obliterated and the rustic log warming shelter built by the CCCs at Silver Valley is no more. Immense public usage of the two areas in the early 1970s caused closing of those sites due to damaged forest growth, resulting in serious erosion. Silver Valley was closed to vehicular traffic in an effort to rehabilitate the area. With reconstruction of Monument Road last year, former entrance roads are no longer recognizable.

The young men of the CCCs and the work they accomplished in Huron National Forest 40 or more years ago are not forgotten. The thousands of red pine seedlings which they planted from 1933 to 1941 provide a living memorial to one of the most successful national conservation programs ever conceived.

It is understandable that a veteran forester like Wilkusi has such pride in the national forest — many willing hands toiled during those brief enlistments to help to make the Huron what it is today.

POLICE CALL—Men enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps were under direct supervision of regular army officers from Sixth Army Headquarters and it was the first taste of military regimentation and discipline for most of them. This experience was beneficial in a number of ways, particularly for those entering military service during World War II.

Funeral Mass Held July 9 for Frank Blust

A Knights of Columbus and Christian wake service preceded the funeral Mass for Frank C. Blust held Friday, July 9, from St. Joseph's Catholic Church, East Tawas. Mr. Blust died Tuesday, July 6, at Mercy Hospital in Bay City. He was born in Isosco County on February 2, 1888.

Surviving him are his wife, Virginia; three step sons, Donald and Leland Phillips of East Tawas and James Phillips of Tawas City; one step daughter, Mrs. Catherine Lectka; 14 step grandchildren; 12 step great grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Barbara Klass of Sebewaing and Mrs. Sophia Hoffman of Melvindale. Funeral arrangements were made through the Jacques and Kobs Funeral Homes, West Chapel, Tawas City.

FORMATION of the Civilian Conservation Corps in 1933 had the bi-partisan support of congress, according to Cong. Roy O. Woodruff of Bay City, a Republican, who felt that employing young people in conservation work would be more beneficial to the country than spending federal money on public building projects.
