'Weird' Deer Season—Kill High, but Few Hunters Here

near Prescott. Their father, Stanley Blury Jr., is still looking for his first shot at a buck. He hunted in Wilber Township.—Tawas Herald Photo.

"This has been a weird season—hunting success has been excellent, but hunting pressure has been extremely low."

The above appraisal of the first week of the 1976 deer hunting season was given Monday morning by Walter Mikula of Tawas City, law enforcement officer for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

According to Mikula, hunter success has been better than average throughout the county, with the exception of the Huron National Forest. It appears that there are not enough hunters on federal land to get the deer herd moving around.

Weather conditions apparently have been too favorable. "Most of the deer in the national forest have stayed put—there have been too few hunters to get them moving," said Mikula.

An estimated 710,000 deer licenses were expected to be sold this year in Michigan and the figure will probably be that high. Because of the Monday opener, however, large numbers of deer hunters just did not materialize in the north country during the first week.

"Perhaps hunting pressure will increase over Thanksgiving and the long week-end," said Mikula.

The local conservation officer said he had written citations to hunters possessing quite a large number of untaged deer and 12 illegally killed deer were turned over to hot lunch programs of area schools.

In Alcona County, many instances of illegally shining deer have been reported and two bear were killed illegally. In one case, a hunter shot a 200-pound black bear and then hid it under a pile of brush. The act was witnessed by another hunter, who informed the Alcona conservation officer. The hunter paid a fine and costs of $208. The second case was a bear cub which had been killed in a tree and left by a hunter.

With fewer hunters, Michigan State Police at East Tawas report that only one person had been reported lost since the season began on November 15. A 73-year-old Plymouth hunter, James Byrd, was lost in Mikado Township and spent the night in the woods. State police from East Tawas searched part of the night, along with 14 volunteers. Byrd was found in good condition the next morning.

MAYOR Herbert Cholger, right, pauses during his signing of a sheaf of applications for a $199,000 public works grant to finance construction of storm sewers. Harry Bacon, left, of Ed-mands Engineering Company, Bay City, said that chances appear slim for approval, but there is always a possibility.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Tawas City Makes Application for Storm Sewer Financing

Application for a $199,000 federal public works grant was submitted Friday to the Economic Development Administration by the City of Tawas City. Assisting with preparation of the lengthy application was Edmands Engineering Company, Bay City.

"There is no way of knowing if this application will be funded as there are a number of factors involved in a point system used to make awards," said Harry Bacon of Edmands. While the largest share of the $158,000,000 allocated to Michigan will go to metropolitan areas, some grants will be made in the outstate area.

The proposed project consists of constructing concrete storm sewers on North Street, Third and Fourth Avenue area; Oak, Beech, Maple and German Streets; Court and North Street area.

Construction of storm sewers to serve the above areas had been under consideration for a number of years and extensive soil investigation was prepared for the city in 1972 to assist in future street and storm sewer reconstruction programs. Since that time, the city has constructed storm sewers and ditches, along with hard surfacing streets in the city.

The North Street project includes 3,150 feet of 12-inch through 42-inch storm sewer to replace existing undersized eight-inch main; the Oak Street sewer consists of 2,200 feet of 12-inch through 27-inch storm sewer and 1,400 feet of open ditch construction; the Court and North Street projects consists of 2,000 feet of 12-inch through 18-inch main including an 18-inch bore under the railroad tracks.

The public works program being considered, which would fund

100 percent of the project if approved, is designed to create jobs in the construction field. According to the Michigan Employment Security Commission, Tawas City had 82 unemployed workers from June through August, representing 8.8 percent of the total work force.

A number of different projects were considered by the city council before settling on the storm sewer project. The engineering firm was authorized to develop plans for the project, which would be available for use at a later date should public works funds not be received.

According to application rules, the federal government would notify the city within 60 days if its projects are approved for funding. It is estimated that 11,000 applications from Michigan will be filed under the program.

Federal Check Received by City

Tawas City officials were pleasantly surprised Friday with receipt of a $9,302 check under a federal anti recession fiscal assistance program.

"Mayor Herbert Cholger signed this application only two weeks ago," said City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz. "This program has received very little publicity and the check came as a surprise."

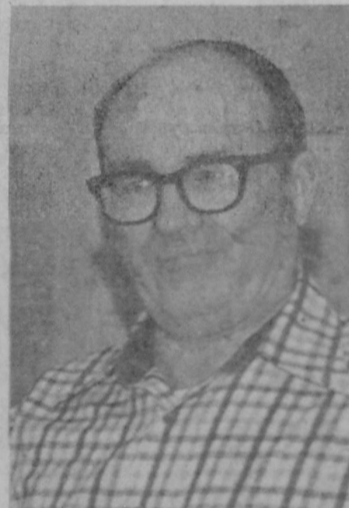

This program, funded as Title II under the federal public works program, is designed to continue employment during winter months. Last year, one or more city workers were unemployed during the winter.

Bublitz said that every unit receiving federal revenue sharing funds received an application for the money.

Hale Driver Hurt in Crash

Martin Short, 17, Hale, was treated Wednesday, November 17, at Tolfree Hospital, West Branch, following an accident on Esmond Road east of Hale. Investigating sheriff's department officers said Short was westbound and his car went into a ditch and rolled over.

Bublitz said that every unit receiving federal revenue sharing funds received an application for the money.

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, the Herald is published on Tuesday of this week.

Jack Bronson Resigns from Water Board

At its meeting Thursday night, Jack D. Bronson turned in his resignation as a member of the Tawas City Water Board. Bronson was appointed to the water board earlier in the year, but has since moved his residence outside of the city.

In other business, the board approved a $249 claim to Robert N. Rollin for his repair to sanitary sewer leads on Fifth Avenue. The mains, located on city property between his lot line and the sewer main along Fifth Avenue, had been plugged.

The board authorized adoption of a new bookkeeping system for the water and sewer departments. Authorization was given to change meeting nights from the fourth Monday to the first Tuesday.

The board recommended to the city council that its membership be established at five instead of six members. The major reason for the change is that one less member would eliminate the possibility of a tie vote.

The water department is to purchase Christmas turkeys for all full time city employees.

19 Deer Killed on Iosco Highways

Nineteen car-deer accidents were investigated during the past week by the Iosco County Sheriff's Department. None of the drivers were injured.

Seeks Damages Against Station and Employees

Morse K. Moore, executor of the estate of Frank H. Moore, deceased, has filed suit in Iosco County Circuit Court seeking damages against Amoco Oil Company, Donald B. Glynn, Don's Standard Service, Lavern Klein and James L. Feriend, jointly and severally.

Frank H. Moore was seriously injured in an accident at Don's Standard Service, Oscoda, owned by Klein. An employee, Glynn, ordered Feriend to back a car from its position in a building at 101 North State Street, Oscoda, and it struck Moore, who later died.

The plaintiff asks three judgments of $200,000 each, plus funeral expenses of $2,004.

Three Hurt in Sunday Crash

Three persons were treated Sunday at Tawas Hospital following a two-car crash on US-23 at Twining Road. Injured were Michael J. Sommer, Roger McDougall and Gregory Bodrey, all 19 years of age from Saginaw. In the second car was Frederick J. Ostrowski, 30, Hale.

Sheriff's Dept. Investigated Numerous Complaints

Seven breakings and enterings, 17 vandalism complaints and five larcenies were investigated last week by Iosco County Sheriff's Department.

Five cabin burglaries at Londo Lake were investigated by officers. Owners of the cabins were Frank Hawthorne, Edwin J. Lascasper, Mac Winiarski and Floyd E. Schremke. Other cabins entered were owned by Richard Miller and Dwight Gannon, both of Sand Lake.

Eight vandalism complaints were reported at Whispering Pines on Monument Road. The owners asked two patrons to leave the building, who are believed to have been responsible for tire slashings later in the business place's parking lot.

Other vandalism complaints were reported by Stanley Baranski, Hale, rifle slug through door; Hale Area Elementary School, smashed window; John Smith, Sand Lake, seawall damaged; Hale Area School, mirrors broken off buses; Colleen Frank, Old State Road, windows damaged by BB shot; Antone Brandt, Wilber Township, garage door damaged; Barbier Old Company, Tawas City, two gasoline pumps damaged; Ronald Ponke, Sand Lake, 12 mailboxes knocked over; John Schirmer, East Tawas, mail box damaged.

Larcenies were reported by Dale Senter, Tawas City, stolen bicycle; Robert Tunis, Sand Lake, theft of rifle from automobile; Hale Area Senior Citizens Center, theft of $25; Al Forshee, Hale, citizens band radio stolen from automobile; John Riske, Hale, records stolen from dwelling.

Seeks to Stop Road Opening

A Warren resident, Irene Szymanski, has filed suit in Iosco County Circuit Court seeking to stop the Iosco County Road Commission from reopening Zephyr Road in Grant Township.

The plaintiff claims that when she and her late husband purchased the property in July 1971, they had inquired as to the status of the trail and were advised by the road commission engineer that it could be fenced off for the exclusive use of themselves.

The plaintiff believes that the road commission intends to remove fencing across the trail and proceed to establish a 66-foot wide road through the property. While Zephyr Road appears on the county plat book, it is claimed that the road has never been dedicated to the public as it does not appear as part of a recorded plat in the register of deed's office.

It is claimed that the road commission never acquired jurisdiction through maintenance and that the trail had been abandoned by the public if there had been public use rights established in the distant past.

The plaintiff asked for an injunction restraining the road commission from constructing a road until a final determination is made.

In the public interest

Identifying the Boys in the Backroom

by John W. Gardner

Behind the scenes, secretly, in the dark, a great variety of powerful interests are bringing heavy pressure on our elected and appointed officials. The citizen has a right to know who they are, what they are doing and how much money they are spending.

There's nothing illegal or wrong about their lobbying pressure as such. You or I or any group of us have a Constitutionally-protected right to try to influence our public officials. That's lobbying. But when powerful groups insist on lobbying in secret, you begin to wonder what they're up to. If they haven't anything to hide let them come out in the sunlight!

For thirty years we have had a federal lobbying disclosure law that is a sham and a hoax. The Congress of the United States should be ashamed to have such fraudulent legislation on the books. It is more loophole than law. It's so weak that it doesn't accomplish anything except to deceive the American people.

The Senate Government Operations Committee recently estimated that under the present law only one-tenth of one percent of the total amount being spent on lobbying is reported! Most of the powerful lobbies just laugh at it.

We must demand not only that lobbyists operate openly, but that they do not use money in ways that corrupt the political process. One member of Congress recently said "How many of us aren't guilty in some way of accepting favors from special interest groups?" His candid answer, "Damn few."

In the session of Congress just completed, the Senate passed a new lobby disclosure bill 82-9. The House of Representatives passed a similarly good bill 307-34. But the legislation got caught in the logjam at the end of the Congressional session and was not enacted before adjournment.

One might ask why so well-supported a bill got lost in the rush to adjourn. The answer is that the bill was stalled by intensive pressure from the powerful behind-the-scenes operators in Washington. In the back room, high-priced lobbyists worked overtime to prevent final action. It became a crusade for some of the most powerful lobbyists in the country.

The cold-blooded and relentless opposition of these groups is evident when you reflect on the fact that the new lobbying legislation was introduced in January, 1975—almost two years ago. The ancient Romans said "Amphora sub veste numquam portatur honeste," which means "No one carries a jug under his coat for an honest reason." Why did powerful pressure groups oppose the legislation so furiously?

One wonders. The legislation does not attempt to diminish lobbying nor to prevent it. It just says that lobbying should be done out in the open where the citizen can know what's going on.

We'll never get rid of all the rascals. Politics will never be 100% pure. But we can make it immensely harder for the rascals to get away with it.

One fundamental step American citizens can take is to insist that Congress pass a lobby disclosure law.

Commission Tables Action on Expanded DART Bus System

Action on approving an expanded DART bus transportation system proposed by the Trio Council on Aging and the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation was tabled Wednesday by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

It is expected that final approval will be given as soon as a contract is received spelling out the county's role in financing the expanded system.

In a presentation last month to the commission, Mrs. Lee Hicks, Trio Council director, said that a preliminary design system for six full-time buses had been developed by the department of state highways and transportation.

First year costs for this new system would amount to $227,700, which includes $96,000 in capital outlay to be paid by the state, $2,000 in capital outlay paid by the county and start up operations of $6,500.

Fares for the first year have been estimated at $23,700. The state would commit $203,000 to the operation and the county's commitment would be $1,000.

The second year of operation has a total estimated cost of $342,200, with revenue estimated at $30,000. State assistance would amount to $47,000 and the local funding balance would be $64,700.

The county board of commissioners received assurances from the state that the county's obligation would depend if the service is successful and is financially feasible. If necessary, the commission would have the option of holding an election 90 days prior to expiration of the contract to determine if the people would be willing to support the second year of operation with tax millage.

Signing of the contract, plus naming of an urban transportation coordinator, was tabled until official word is received concerning the commission's stipulation relative to the second year of operation.

In other business, Joseph Fox, Fourth District commissioner, was appointed to the advisory committee to study proposed juvenile facilities for a three-county area.

The commission recommended to Region Seven Commission on Aging that Vincent Wade of Sand Lake be reappointed to its board of directors.

Elizabeth Rosenberg of Baldwin Township was reappointed to the governing board of the northern region's Substance Abuse Agency.

She had served the past year on this agency which accepts sub-state abuse money from the state and allocates funds to the 12 counties involved.

The commission approved an allocation of $3,000 as the county's share of developing information to be presented during the recent hearing on closing of Wurtsmith Air Force Base. It was reported that an allocation had also been received from the Upper Great Lakes Commission.

The commission denied a request from the director of the county building and safety inspection department to attend a BOCA meeting at Ft. Lauderdale, Florida.

Seven allocations were made to local units of government through a program of sharing federal revenue funds. Plainfield Township is to receive partial payment of $480 for park development, AuSable Township is to receive $7,163 for development of an industrial park, Baldwin Township is to receive $5,719 for property acquisition, $2,061 for roads and bridges, Grant Township is to receive $1,620 for recreational development. Allocations to eight of the 14 units have been completed.

Social Security Is 32% Of Income of Elderly

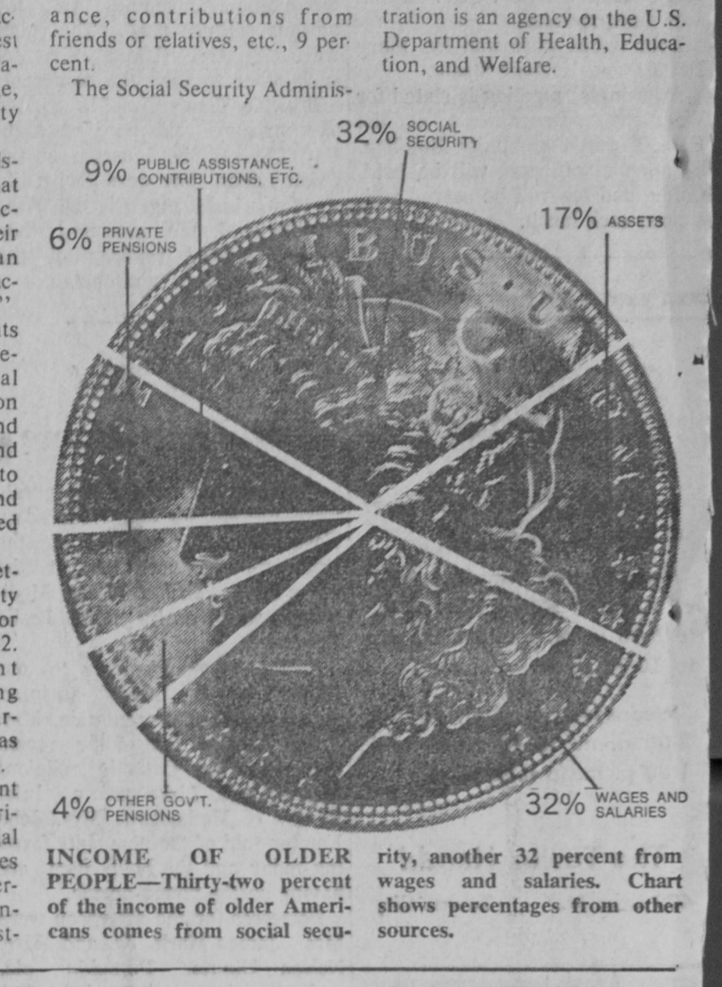

Social security payments account for one of the two largest shares of the income of the Nation's 23 million older people, according to social security officials here.

"A Social Security Administration study indicates that social security payments account for 32 percent of their total income," a spokesman said. "Wages and salaries account for another 32 percent."

The social security payments are a partial replacement of pre-retirement earnings. Social security pays about $3.7 billion a month to retired workers and their wives or husbands—and about $737 million a month to older widows, widowers, and dependent parents of deceased workers.

Eligible workers can start getting their full social security retirement benefits at 65, or reduced benefits as early as 62. Widows and dependent widowers can start getting reduced social security survivors payments at 60, or as early as 50 if they're disabled.

Assets account for 17 percent of the income of older Americans, according to the social security study. Other sources include private pensions, 6 percent; other government pensions, 4 percent; public assist-

SORRY NO PASSES

SCENE FOR BIG SCREEN

Washington—(HK)—Moviegoers in the nation's capital currently are being treated to the Jumbo Jet of films. Shown on a 75-foot by 50-foot screen—a college basketball court is only 94 feet by 50 feet—it is without a doubt the biggest motion picture ever to land in Washington. The 1920 barnstorming sequence (shown above) that takes viewers through a series of daredevil stunts, was filmed in California.

The half-hour film is called "To Fly," and it was underwritten by the Continental Oil Company as a public service especially for the giant screen

IMAX Theatre inside the Smithsonian Institute's National Air and Space Museum. Once the house lights are dimmed, viewers are taken on a "flight" beginning with a balloon ascension and terminating in a venture to space. Spectators find out what it feels like to fly upside-down in a barnstorming biplane, pilot one of the Blue Angels' jets and free-float in outer space.

The museum's director, former astronaut Michael Collins, estimates that some three and one-half million visitors will see "To Fly" during its 12-month run. (HK)

Statue of limitations.

One thing Americans didn't need back in 1776 was a statue of King George III. What they did need was ammunition. So on the evening of July 9, 1776, a crowd gathered and toppled the four-thousand-pound statue.

Then, adding insult to injury, they melted it down to manufacture exactly 42,088 bullets.

That was one way Americans took care of their country's needs. Today, over 9 1/2 million Americans take care of their country's needs, and their own, by buying U.S. Savings Bonds.

Whether bought through the Payroll Savings Plan, or regularly where you save, Bonds add up fast to take care of all your needs. Education, retirement, travel, whatever.

So buy U.S. Savings Bonds. There's no limit to what you can save.

Now U.S. Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 3 years (4% the first year). Lost stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Robert K. Foster Ends Long Tenure on County Board of Commissioners

Robert K. Foster, of Oscoda, who has been a member of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners since 1969, was honored Wednesday afternoon on his last day as the head of county government.

Foster was presented a plaque by his fellow commissioners in recognition of his many years of leadership in county government. He was elected supervisor of Oscoda Township in the recent general election and leaves his county position for his new duties. An Oscoda businessman and former chief of the Oscoda-AuSable Police Department, Foster was a member of the first nine-man county board of commissioners in 1969 when it took over operational reins of Iosco from the old 19-member board of supervisors.

His Oscoda Township constituents returned him to office in subsequent elections and he became chairman of the five-man county board of commissioners, a position which he held upon retirement.

Succeeding Foster as chairman for the remainder of the year will be Mrs. Howard Burdett, who had served as commission vice chairman. He is to be succeeded on the commission by Jack Allen of Oscoda, who had been elected to office in the general election. Allen is a former member of the commission.

Following presentation of the plaque, Foster voiced his appreciation to his fellow commissioners for their support over the years. "We have had an excellent working relationship," said Foster.

THE SS WESTERN STATES, renamed the SS Overniter, looked like this when it was towed into Tawas Bay in 1955. Its new berth as the nation's first flotel was the Tawas City Park dock. The old

One of the most startling sights for motorists traveling along US-23 20 years ago was to enter Tawas City and be confronted by a 362-foot passenger ship moored at the city park dock. The old ship proved a constant curiosity to visitors, for it seemed impossible for a ship of its size to anchor so close to shore.

The ship was the SS Western States, once the pride of the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Company's fleet of sidewheel paddle boats which plied the Great Lakes. It was built at Wyandotte in 1902.

The saga of the Western States was brief, but colorful in the Tawas. A large crowd gathered to watch as the three-decked ship was inched into its berth at the city park dock in the spring of 1955; a similarly large crowd lined the shore of Tawas Bay when the ship was destroyed by fire in the spring of 1959.

The ship's four-year history here was crowded with controversy, as well as a few happy times. It had been destined for the scrapper's torch after retirement from active Great Lakes passenger service and a new word for the dictionary, "flotel," was coined for it.

A group of Detroit businessmen announced in January 1955 that arrangements had been made with the Tawas City Park Board and city council for docking the ship here as a floating hotel. The ship, renamed the SS Overniter, was to cater to conventions and fill a need long lacking in Northern Michigan.

All concerned with the venture believed the Western States, living under her new name, had great prospects of becoming one of the greatest tourist attractions in Michigan and the Great Lakes region. It never lived up to those expectations.

Work began in January 1955 to repair a section of the ship which had been rammed by a lake freighter while it was tied up to the docks of the Detroit River in 1954. Charles Bieber, owner-manager, announced on April 14, 1955, that the ship would have 54 first class rooms open to the public upon arrival, following a general remodeling and cleaning.

Arriving in Tawas Bay in the late evening of June 19, 1955, traffic was at a standstill as hundreds of motorists and a good share of the population of the Tawas and Oscoda jammed US-23 to watch as the ship was inched into position.

Towed from Detroit by the tug, John N. Roen III, the ship had an uneventful trip through the Detroit River, Lake St. Clair, St. Clair River, Lake Huron and Tawas Bay. The ship's engines were not operating, but one boiler was fired and a generator was in use for the steering gear.

The ship was piloted to Tawas City by two veteran Great Lakes City captains, Clarence Doyle of Detroit and Louis Mantell of Belleville. The two men were the last skippers employed by the D&C line, which discontinued service in 1950. Mantell had been with the line 40 years while Captain Doyle started as a bellhop for the line in 1916.

Space for the new flotel was leased from the city and the owners paid for improvements to the pier and for a new parking lot along the bay.

The ship had three lobbies and guests entered a large main lobby from the dock. The main lobby had been completely modernized in 1951 with acoustical ceiling tile, floor tile and furniture, but the other two lobbies were as originally constructed with mahogany paneling, heavy mahogany furniture, writing desks and wide stairways—an antique collector's paradise today. Metal ceiling were gilded and painted with scenery.

ONLY A BURNED OUT HULL remained of the SS Western States when it left Tawas Bay in 1959. Several years of controversy surrounded the old ship and it proved to be a losing proposition and

Upon the ship's arrival, the Herald reported that it had been the center of much discussion. A Dayton, Ohio, man reported that he had been aboard the ship many times for pleasure cruises and was "glad to see the old Western States serve a useful purpose again. It is an old friend."

Open house was held on the ship on Wednesday, June 29, and the parking lot was filled with cars bearing Ohio and Lower Michigan license plates; workmen were still busy with last minute painting, decorating and cleaning to ready the ship for business. The owner reported that two conventions had to be turned down because of the time involved in getting the ship ready for business, but negotiations were being made for three conventions in the fall.

The owners then ran into trouble with the state health department and other state agencies over a number of violations and a top official of the conservation department "informally" ordered the city to stop work on the municipal pier, saying that such construction was illegal. The city went ahead with the work on the strength that it had a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers.

A delay in readying the ship for business resulted in financial difficulty for the owners and the Western States reverted back to the D&C. On July 19, 1956, it was reported that the ship had been sold to a Detroit corporation, which had purchased three other D&C liners. The new owners, Robert Rosen and Abraham Siegel, Detroit scrap dealers, sent Sherman Rosen to Tawas City to take over management of the ship.

The Rosens immediately hired a crew of 30 or more people to renovate, repaint and clean the ship, as well as to paint the exterior. Several hundred gallons of paint were used before the job was completed. Materials from two other ships purchased from the D&C were utilized in the complete renovation of the old SS Western States.

Shore connections were completed with the municipal water supply of Tawas City, along with extension of a sewer main along the dock to serve the ship.

Considerable time was required to get the ship into shape and Rosen estimated that more than $100,000 had been spent in renovating it from bow to stern and from top to bottom. Formal opening of the floating resort, which boasted 100 state rooms and parlors ready for occupancy and another 75 by spring, was not held until November 9—another season had slipped by without the return of a nickel of revenue.

The formal opening of the ship was marred when downstate newspapers reported that evening that the Michigan Department of Conservation claimed owners of the ship violated the state's submerged land act and it unlawfully occupied part of the lake bottom. Those aboard the ship wondered about the statement, for a definite rocking motion could be felt by the diners.

Rosen expressed surprise over the announcement by Gerald E. Eddy, conservation department director. Rosen said that a check had been made with all state agencies before going ahead with the renovation. "In our opinion, the conservation department's charges are not true—the Western States is not permanently fastened to the lake bottom or dock," Rosen declared.

Meanwhile, the Tawas City Businessmen's Association gave its 100 percent endorsement to the owners and began holding its weekly Thursday noon luncheons aboard the vessel. George Rose of

East Tawas was hired as the chef and music for dancing was provided four nights a week by a Detroit band.

Legal action was immediately started by the state to force the owners to remove the ship from its berth. Nicholas V. Olds, assistant attorney general, was quoted as saying, "If we don't win this case, you can make up your mind that we will have a string of boats converted into hotels along the Great Lakes shore." The Rosens denied this would be the case as other ships purchased from the D&C were being scrapped.

The City of Tawas City and the Western States Hotel Corporation were named co-defendants in a complaint filed in Ingham County Circuit Court by the State of Michigan. In part, the complaint stated that the Western States was not being used for, nor intended for navigation, but as a year around resort hotel; that the ship was a stationary and permanent object and structure in Lake Huron, which constituted an illegal trespass in violation of state laws by occupation of waters and lake bottom of the submerged lands in Lake Huron. The complaint also stated that the Western States was a nuisance, hindered navigation of small craft and was an eyesore.

John A. Watkins, attorney for both the owners and the city, succeeded in his defense efforts and the Ingham County Circuit Court refused to issue an injunction sought by the state to halt use of the ship as a floating resort.

The city then made application to the state for leasing of the submerged lake bottom to allow operation of the marine resort. All of the legal maneuvering came at a time when the conservation department was involved in another submerged lands controversy, in which National Gypsum Company gained use of lake bottom south of Tawas City for construction of its (See WESTERN STATES, page 6.)

Robert K. Foster Ends Long Tenure on County Board of Commissioners

Robert K. Foster, of Oscoda, who has been a member of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners since 1969, was honored Wednesday afternoon on his last day as the head of county government.

Foster was presented a plaque by his fellow commissioners in recognition of his many years of leadership in county government. He was elected supervisor of Oscoda Township in the recent general election and leaves his county position for his new duties. An Oscoda businessman and former chief of the Oscoda-AuSable Police Department, Foster was a member of the first nine-man county board of commissioners in 1969 when it took over operational reins of Iosco from the old 19-member board of supervisors.

His Oscoda Township constituents returned him to office in subsequent elections and he became chairman of the five-man county board of commissioners, a position which he held upon retirement.

Succeeding Foster as chairman for the remainder of the year will be Mrs. Howard Burdett, who had served as commission vice chairman. He is to be succeeded on the commission by Jack Allen of Oscoda, who had been elected to office in the general election. Allen is a former member of the commission.

Following presentation of the plaque, Foster voiced his appreciation to his fellow commissioners for their support over the years. "We have had an excellent working relationship," said Foster.

Iosco Girl Member Ferris S. Choir

The 120-voice Ferris State College Concert Choir opened its season in late October with a musical review entitled "Two on The Aisle" in Starr Auditorium. The choir performs on campus as well as at various functions throughout the state.

Members of this year's choir include Miss Denise Avram of Whittemore.

THE SS WESTERN STATES, renamed the SS Overniter, looked like this when it was towed into Tawas Bay in 1955. Its new berth as the nation's first flotel was the Tawas City Park dock. The old

One of the most startling sights for motorists traveling along US-23 20 years ago was to enter Tawas City and be confronted by a 362-foot passenger ship moored at the city park dock. The old ship proved a constant curiosity to visitors, for it seemed impossible for a ship of its size to anchor so close to shore.

The ship was the SS Western States, once the pride of the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Company's fleet of sidewheel paddle boats which plied the Great Lakes. It was built at Wyandotte in 1902.

The saga of the Western States was brief, but colorful in the Tawas. A large crowd gathered to watch as the three-decked ship was inched into its berth at the city park dock in the spring of 1955; a similarly large crowd lined the shore of Tawas Bay when the ship was destroyed by fire in the spring of 1959.

The ship's four-year history here was crowded with controversy, as well as a few happy times. It had been destined for the scrapper's torch after retirement from active Great Lakes passenger service and a new word for the dictionary, "flotel," was coined for it.

A group of Detroit businessmen announced in January 1955 that arrangements had been made with the Tawas City Park Board and city council for docking the ship here as a floating hotel. The ship, renamed the SS Overniter, was to cater to conventions and fill a need long lacking in Northern Michigan.

All concerned with the venture believed the Western States, living under her new name, had great prospects of becoming one of the greatest tourist attractions in Michigan and the Great Lakes region. It never lived up to those expectations.

Work began in January 1955 to repair a section of the ship which had been rammed by a lake freighter while it was tied up to the docks of the Detroit River in 1954. Charles Bieber, owner-manager, announced on April 14, 1955, that the ship would have 54 first class rooms open to the public upon arrival, following a general remodeling and cleaning.

Arriving in Tawas Bay in the late evening of June 19, 1955, traffic was at a standstill as hundreds of motorists and a good share of the population of the Tawas and Oscoda jammed US-23 to watch as the ship was inched into position.

Towed from Detroit by the tug, John N. Roen III, the ship had an uneventful trip through the Detroit River, Lake St. Clair, St. Clair River, Lake Huron and Tawas Bay. The ship's engines were not operating, but one boiler was fired and a generator was in use for the steering gear.

The ship was piloted to Tawas City by two veteran Great Lakes City captains, Clarence Doyle of Detroit and Louis Mantell of Belleville. The two men were the last skippers employed by the D&C line, which discontinued service in 1950. Mantell had been with the line 40 years while Captain Doyle started as a bellhop for the line in 1916.

Space for the new flotel was leased from the city and the owners paid for improvements to the pier and for a new parking lot along the bay.

The ship had three lobbies and guests entered a large main lobby from the dock. The main lobby had been completely modernized in 1951 with acoustical ceiling tile, floor tile and furniture, but the other two lobbies were as originally constructed with mahogany paneling, heavy mahogany furniture, writing desks and wide stairways—an antique collector's paradise today. Metal ceiling were gilded and painted with scenery.

Upon the ship's arrival, the Herald reported that it had been the center of much discussion. A Dayton, Ohio, man reported that he had been aboard the ship many times for pleasure cruises and was "glad to see the old Western States serve a useful purpose again. It is an old friend."

Open house was held on the ship on Wednesday, June 29, and the parking lot was filled with cars bearing Ohio and Lower Michigan license plates; workmen were still busy with last minute painting, decorating and cleaning to ready the ship for business. The owner reported that two conventions had to be turned down because of the time involved in getting the ship ready for business, but negotiations were being made for three conventions in the fall.

The owners then ran into trouble with the state health department and other state agencies over a number of violations and a top official of the conservation department "informally" ordered the city to stop work on the municipal pier, saying that such construction was illegal. The city went ahead with the work on the strength that it had a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers.

A delay in readying the ship for business resulted in financial difficulty for the owners and the Western States reverted back to the D&C. On July 19, 1956, it was reported that the ship had been sold to a Detroit corporation, which had purchased three other D&C liners. The new owners, Robert Rosen and Abraham Siegel, Detroit scrap dealers, sent Sherman Rosen to Tawas City to take over management of the ship.

The Rosens immediately hired a crew of 30 or more people to renovate, repaint and clean the ship, as well as to paint the exterior. Several hundred gallons of paint were used before the job was completed. Materials from two other ships purchased from the D&C were utilized in the complete renovation of the old SS Western States.

Shore connections were completed with the municipal water supply of Tawas City, along with extension of a sewer main along the dock to serve the ship.

Considerable time was required to get the ship into shape and Rosen estimated that more than $100,000 had been spent in renovating it from bow to stern and from top to bottom. Formal opening of the floating resort, which boasted 100 state rooms and parlors ready for occupancy and another 75 by spring, was not held until November 9—another season had slipped by without the return of a nickel of revenue.

The formal opening of the ship was marred when downstate newspapers reported that evening that the Michigan Department of Conservation claimed owners of the ship violated the state's submerged land act and it unlawfully occupied part of the lake bottom. Those aboard the ship wondered about the statement, for a definite rocking motion could be felt by the diners.

Rosen expressed surprise over the announcement by Gerald E. Eddy, conservation department director. Rosen said that a check had been made with all state agencies before going ahead with the renovation. "In our opinion, the conservation department's charges are not true—the Western States is not permanently fastened to the lake bottom or dock," Rosen declared.

Meanwhile, the Tawas City Businessmen's Association gave its 100 percent endorsement to the owners and began holding its weekly Thursday noon luncheons aboard the vessel. George Rose of East Tawas was hired as the chef and music for dancing was provided four nights a week by a Detroit band.

Legal action was immediately started by the state to force the owners to remove the ship from its berth. Nicholas V. Olds, assistant attorney general, was quoted as saying, "If we don't win this case, you can make up your mind that we will have a string of boats converted into hotels along the Great Lakes shore." The Rosens denied this would be the case as other ships purchased from the D&C were being scrapped.

The City of Tawas City and the Western States Hotel Corporation were named co-defendants in a complaint filed in Ingham County Circuit Court by the State of Michigan. In part, the complaint stated that the Western States was not being used for, nor intended for navigation, but as a year around resort hotel; that the ship was a stationary and permanent object and structure in Lake Huron, which constituted an illegal trespass in violation of state laws by occupation of waters and lake bottom of the submerged lands in Lake Huron. The complaint also stated that the Western States was a nuisance, hindered navigation of small craft and was an eyesore.

John A. Watkins, attorney for both the owners and the city, succeeded in his defense efforts and the Ingham County Circuit Court refused to issue an injunction sought by the state to halt use of the ship as a floating resort.

The city then made application to the state for leasing of the submerged lake bottom to allow operation of the marine resort. All of the legal maneuvering came at a time when the conservation department was involved in another submerged lands controversy, in which National Gypsum Company gained use of lake bottom south of Tawas City for construction of its (See WESTERN STATES, page 6.)

Freel Serves Aboard Nuclear Attack Submarine

Navy CQM Norbert J. Freel, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Freel of Tawas City, is a crewman aboard the navy's newest nuclear attack submarine.

The USS Los Angeles was commissioned November 13, at Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, Newport News, Virginia.

Principal speaker for the commissioning was motion picture and television actor and Naval Reserve Capt. Jackie Cooper. Also attending the ceremony were Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley and Los Angeles County Sup. Kenneth Hahn. The ship's sponsor is the Hon. Anne L. Armstrong, United States ambassador to Great Britain.

Freel is one of more than 102 officers and enlisted men assigned to USS Los Angeles. His submarine will have the most advanced anti-submarine warfare capabilities. Its weapon systems and sensors will make this class a "deadly" force against enemy submarines as well as surface ships.

The Los Angeles is the first submarine in its class and third naval ship to bear the name of the City of Los Angeles.

The nuclear attack submarine is 360 feet long and will be homeported in Norfolk.

A 1962 graduate of Tawas Area High School, he joined the navy in January 1963.

Save up to $75 in your attic this winter.

Insulate!

Nobody likes higher Gas bills, including us at Michigan Consolidated. But because the cost of Gas we buy from our suppliers has gone up, your Gas bills will be higher this winter than they were last year.

So it makes sense to stretch each dollar's worth of Gas just as far as possible, and to keep your Gas bills as low as you can. One way to do this is by insulating your home.

Once again, Michigan Consolidated is offering a low-cost Home Ceiling Insulation Program designed to conserve Natural Gas and save you money.

Since the program's introduction nearly three years ago, more than 115,000 of our customers have installed ceiling insulation, and have cut their home heating costs by as much as 17% each year. Based on expected Gas prices for this winter, this means a customer who has not yet insulated may be able to reduce his annual heating cost by as much as $75, starting immediately.

If you do the job yourself, you should be able to buy insulation for a home with 650 sq. ft. of attic space for about $125.00. That means you'll probably save enough Gas to pay for the material in less than two years. Our free Do-It-Yourself Insulation Handbook tells you how. Pick one up at any of our customer business offices or any participating retail outlet. Or call or write, and we'll mail you a copy.

If you'd rather not do the job yourself, one of our participating insulation subcontractors can. The cost? About $250.00 for homes with less than 1000 sq. ft. of ceiling area. You can pay cash. You can pay 20% down and pay the balance without interest over your next three Gas bills. Or you can make extended payments at an interest rate of 1% per month on the unpaid balance (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%).

So why not save money in your attic this winter with our low-cost Home Ceiling Insulation Program? We'd like to help you cut your heating costs, and we'll both be working to save our country's valuable Natural Gas supplies.

We do care about your tomorrow.

HOME ENERGY CONSULTANT

AN ENERGY CHRISTMAS GIFT

Ranges, refrigerator-freezers, washing machines and other major appliances do not fit in the Christmas stocking very well but Santa does get quite a few calls for those items. And Santa always delivers. This year he can deliver appliances with many energy-saving features. Those features offer an excellent opportunity to practice energy conservation and reduce energy costs.

Suppose it's a new range that Santa's going to bring down the chimney with him. If it's a gas range, consider one with electric spark ignition system. The total amount of gas used for the range can be reduced by 30 percent through elimination of the pilot light. Also, select one with burners that have temperature controls. They not only save energy, but also you don't have to worry about burning what you cook.

Another new energy-saving feature to look for is a range equipped with a forced-convection oven. With this type of oven, cooking time is cut by 25 percent, lower cooking temperatures are used, and no oven preheating is necessary.

Microwave ovens offer energy savings of up to 75 percent when compared with conventional oven cooking. They're quicker, they thaw frozen foods in minutes, and cooking can be done on serving dishes or even paper plates.

If it's a refrigerator-freezer that tops the Christmas list, make sure that Santa pulls the right one out of his sleigh. Tell him it has to be the right size. The bigger the unit, the more energy it uses. Eight cubic feet is about adequate for a family of two. Add a cubic foot for each additional member of the family and a couple more cubic feet if you do a lot of entertaining. Generally, the more automatic the defrost system, the more energy used. Consequently, a no-frost refrigerator will use more energy than one that is defrosted manually. The various models can be compared on energy consumption by asking your appliance dealer for a copy of the Directory of Certified Refrigerators and Freezers published by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers (AHAM). Another energy-saving feature to look for is a power-saver switch that turns off the heater contained in the refrigerator to prevent it from sweating during humid weather.

If you and your spouse are going to give each other a dishwasher for Christmas, you'd be wise to select a model with a switch to turn off the heating element during the dry cycle. The biggest energy consumer when using a dishwasher is not the washer itself but the water heater. Check the total amount of hot water a dishwasher uses and compare it with other models. A dishwasher with a "short cycle" or "light wash" selection can save energy. These cycles use less hot water.

If it's laundry equipment that Rudolph and his friends are going to haul your way, manufacturers have incorporated features in washers and dryers making them more efficient and less energy-consuming. Hot water is again the biggest energy user when washing. So look for those features that help reduce hot water requirements: a washer with a suds-return feature lets you reuse hot water; a water-level selector lets you match the amount of water with the size and type of load; cold water rinses can be used for all loads, and the number of gallons of water, particularly hot water, used by each washer should be compared.

Overdrying of clothes not only wastes energy but also gives a harsh feel and shrinks some items. Consequently, look for a dryer with electronic sensors that sense moisture in clothes and automatically end the drying cycle when clothes are ready. Or you may choose a less expensive system that uses a thermostat to measure temperature rather than moisture and turns the dryer off at a preset temperature. If you select a gas dryer, you will save energy by picking one with an electric spark ignition system.

Don't let the energy situation change your plans to purchase a small electric appliance as a gift. These appliances account for only a small amount of your total home energy requirements. In some cases, they can even save energy. For example, cooking a one-dish meal in an electric frypan takes less energy than heating up the oven.

And, as you prepare for the holidays, remember that our energy resources are a precious gift for everyone. So use energy wisely.

Thanksgiving

"More than a word, more than a day in time, more even than a frame of mind."
 Giving thanks is something most of us do all the time in one way or another.
 But how nice for one day to focus attention on all our bounties, just because we're here now, and loved by God.

Rose Builders Low Bidder on New TC Unit

November 29, 1961—Rose Builders of Tawas City received the general construction contract of $125,000 to build a 10-classroom addition to the Tawas City Elementary Unit. This is part of a pay-as-you-go construction program approved by voters, who authorized a three-mill tax levy for a period of five years.

As a convenience to Tawas City taxpayers, tax bills may be paid at the city hall. In the past, those persons who did not wish to pay their taxes by mail made payments at the home of the city treasurer.

Delivery has been received on a new whirlpool bath by Tawas Area High School. It was purchased through the efforts of the Tawas Downtown Quarterbacks Club, an impromptu group which was Tawas Medical Group has opposed construction of a proposed Iosco County Medical Care Facility, for which voters will decide a bond issue on December 11. Doctors have stated that the type of patient this facility is designed for does not exist in large numbers in this area. The group recommends that privately-owned nursing homes be constructed and that facilities of Tawas Hospital be expanded.

The bridge was built in 1910.

Eight Tawas churches are co-

Heat thoroughly. Turn into a two-quart casserole. Cover with biscuit topping. Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) about 20 minutes or until lightly browned.

Biscuit Topping: Add milk to biscuit mix and stir with fork until dough follows fork around the bowl. Turn out on lightly floured surface and knead six times. Roll out into a six by nine-inch rectangle (or size of casserole used) one-half inch thick. Use turkey biscuit cutter to make decoration in center to allow steam to escape.

PLANNED-OVER TURKEY

The days after Thanksgiving have to be prime time for planned left-overs in most American households. Most families, who roast the big bird on Thanksgiving Day, plan to munch on its remains at least through the week-end.

In my family, one aunt even fixes turkey just for the leftovers when she eats the big meal at someone else's home.

Maybe the reason is that turkey is a versatile meat. There are lots of delicious ways to prepare it. One warning through, do not jeopardize leftover turkey with sloppy food handling. As soon as Thursday's feast is finished, remove all stuffing from the turkey and refrigerate both the meat and the stuffing.

Here are several ideas for what to do with the leftover-turkey:

TURKEY CURRY (yield six servings)
2 cups diced, cooked turkey
½ stick (¼ cup) butter
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground ginger
1 tablespoon curry powder
2 cups milk
¼ cup chopped celery
1 cup chopped unpared apple
Cooked rice

THE SS WESTERN STATES provided the Tawas with one of the most spectacular fires in area history when it burned on March 21, 1959. Said to have been caused by a torch used in scrapping operations, the ship was turned into an inferno and was demolished in a matter of minutes. new lake loading facility through a law adopted by both houses of the legislature and signed by Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

The state's litigation with National Gypsum overshadowed its problem with the Western States and the City of Tawas City, although the controversy with the ship was the initial litigation setting off years of court battles over submerged lake bottom land and finally supreme court action.

The idea of a marine resort did not pan out and by September 1957, operational losses piled up and the Western States Hotel Corporation went into receivership. Helping to destroy any chance of successful operation of the Western States as a convention center—if there had been such a possibility—was the adverse publicity over the hassle with the state.

Scrapping operations started in 1958 and the owners sold large quantities of furniture, silver dining services and a multitude of other items from the ship to antique collectors. The binnacle from the ship's bridge was preserved by Tawas Bay Yacht Club and the cigar and newsstand was taken intact for display at Dossin's Great Lakes Museum at Detroit.

In January 1959, the City of Tawas City announced that the Bay City Scrap Company, owners of the Western States, had signed over negotiable securities amounting to nearly $10,000 to be held in escrow until the work of scrapping the vessel was completed. Posted in lieu of a $10,000 bond, the securities guaranteed that the city pier, lake bottom and shore would be left clean of debris when operations were completed.

The Bay City firm, headed by Abraham Mono, purchased the ship from Marine Salvage Company of Detroit for something over $30,000. The scrap company used acetylene torches and a dragline to tear the old ship to pieces. Men standing on the ice of Tawas Bay cut off the giant paddle wheels and removed tons of scrap metal from the interior. Boilers, engines and other metal work were blasted apart by explosive charges.

On Saturday, March 21, 1959, the Western States suffered her coupe de grace when the huge ship burst into flames about 5:45 p. m. and the fire raged out of control in a few minutes. The scrap dealer said that two large masts on the ship had been cut off earlier in the afternoon and he believed that a spark from a burning torch may have started the blaze.

A strong off-shore wind of gale force swept through openings in the stern, left during scrapping operations, and the Western States was turned into a "chimney" as the flames quickly burst through her bow.

Flames from the burning vessel shot hundreds of feet into the air and a heavy cloud of smoke hung over Tawas Bay. Thousands of spectators were attracted to the lakeside to watch the end of the old luxury liner.

After the spectacular blaze, the last of the six-ship fleet of the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Company was dead. The Western States joined Great Lakes history with her sister ships: The Greater Buffalo, the City of Cleveland III, City of Detroit III, the Greater Detroit and Eastern States.

After much tugging and prying by a dragline and two fish tugs, the burned out hull was loosened from its four-year berth at the park dock on May 4, 1959. Breaking away suddenly, the hull glided out into deep water, nearly taking the dragline along with it.

The saga of the Western States was over, but its hull was converted into a floating platform for a large dragline used in marine construction. It returned once to Tawas Bay when repairs were being made to the lake crib of United States Gypsum Company's installation at Alabaster, but most people did not even recognize the last remnant of this once proud ship.

Investigating Committee Has Report on NEM Mental Health

Although this county no longer is a member of Northeast Michigan Community Mental Health Services and has joined with Ogemaw County in formation of a two-county community mental health unit, a report from an evaluation committee designated by NEM was adopted Wednesday by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

The committee made no overall conclusion relative to its findings, but a reading of committee conclusions relative to four separate study areas would indicate that allegations not entirely based on facts were substantially blown out of proportion by the news media.

This investigative committee was named last July following several weeks of controversy, which received considerable attention in area news media, relative to credentials of the NEM director, board policies, staff resignations and a lease arrangement.

Following that controversy and prior to completion of the committee report, David Lindemulder, former director of NEM, resigned from that position and accepted a tentative position as director of the new Iosco-Ogemaw Community Mental Health Unit.

The committee devoted considerable investigation into the charge that Lindemulder's doctorate was from an unaccredited institution. The report indicated that NEM's personnel committee assumed that the state had verified academic credentials, which it apparently failed to do.

The report pointed out, however, that the personnel committee of NEM considered Lindemulder as fully qualified for the position of director, for he held a master degree from Western Michigan University, an accredited institution, and at no time during his employment, until July 1, was he above the state scale for a master degree.

"Although a salary above the maximum matchable level had been approved by the board, Lindemulder requested, when the issue was raised, that an escrow fund be established for the non-matchable portion of his salary. Lindemulder has returned the escrow fund to the board. His salary as director of community mental health would have become matchable under the new model salary schedule effective October 1," stated the report.

The report recommended that all credentials be confirmed in the future by writing to the institution granting credentials and that the department of mental health submit a list of accredited institutions which have recognized programs and degrees that are acceptable for matching funds. It was also stated that the state agency be informed before final hiring of an intended individual so that verification can be made of all credentials.

"The committee believes that the professional use of a doctorate or any other degree from a non-accredited institution may invite questions regarding the integrity and credibility of the degree holder as well as the agency he or she serves," stated the report.

(The director came under fire in the press last summer after it was learned that his doctorate came from a Wisconsin school that was no longer in operation. Charges were leveled that it was a "mail order degree," which he denied.)

The committee recommended that an easily up-dated policy book should be adopted by the mental health board, due to the many conflicts which arose over the fact that there were no clear board policy statements on many of the issues that needed policy clarification.

The report pointed out that in the growth of this agency from the former Northeast Child Guidance Clinic, a state agency with state employees and state policies, "there were times when conflicts between the policies of the board, the state and the contract agencies were never clearly resolved."

Operations of the mental health board under Public Act 54 became more and more complex and, in the absence of board policies, the administrator frequently assumed the responsibility of establishing policies on a piecemeal basis as the need for them arose. "The staff, therefore, questioned the administrator's authority to make some of the rules and regulations which were forthcoming," stated the report.

During the period of investigation from July 1, 1971, through July 29, 1976, there were 53 staff members who left the employ of the board or contract agencies.

"In general, the allegations and counter-allegations in regard to resignations appear to be more feeling than substance," stated the report. "The public and news media seemed to feel that the resignations were indicative of disharmony among the board, administration and staff, especially the professional staff, but we can only partially substantiate this."

Leasing of the former Catholic central convent building at Alpena from Ralph Fletcher as $5 per square foot of floor space for 10 years was found by local and state authorities to be realistic and competitive.

Philanthropic contributions made to the board by the owner were found to be not an illegal or even an uncommon act. "The money did not benefit any person, but was used as local match to support mental health services in the seven-county area. The need for securing local donations is created by the difficulty of obtaining local tax dollars in low income counties," stated the report.

A response from the Michigan Department of Mental Health stated that it "does not request reimbursement for the audit exception relative to the rental agreement; however, the department will not allow either board to utilize such rebates for local matching money beginning with fiscal year 1976-77. If the arrangement continues, the resulting donation must be considered a deduction from total cost to arrive at net cost."

The 19-page report is to be submitted to the Northeastern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board on December 2.

Regional Library Lists New Books Available

The following books are available from the branches and the bookmobile of the Iosco-Arenac Regional Library:

In the tradition of the Foxfire books, Eliot Wigginton has edited a new collection of narrative interviews called, "I Wish I Could Give My Son A Wild Raccoon." Here are the stories of a trapper, an Eskimo teacher, a banjo maker, a fireman and many others whose lives reflect the diversity of the American experience.

Alice Dwyer-Joyce has written a novel entitled "The Diamond Cage." Barbara has come to London determined to make a name for herself in the theatre. She succeeds only to crash into ruins. As Barbara rebuilds her life, the story moves between the glitter of theatreland and an ancient Scottish castle.

"The Mercenaries" by Giles Tippet is a novel as exciting as a classic war-adventure story in a setting as real as today's newspapers. As a gathering of South African mercenaries prepares for a secret mission against Rhodesia's terrorist enemies, American pilot, Cody Ravel, finds himself more involved than he would like to be. This is a chilling story with strong human interest.

Take a shower and save.

A tub bath uses about twice as much hot water as a shower.

A normal tub bath uses about twice as much hot water as a three to four-minute shower. So, save energy and money, switch to short showers instead of tub baths. Another needless waste of energy and money is letting the hot water run while shaving or when hand-washing dishes. Avoid this waste by using sink stoppers and dishpans. And in the laundry, save by using cold water at every opportunity. Remember, the energy you save is everyone's, the money you save is your own.
