

Law Escorts Trucks During Contract Dispute

Acting on a restraining order issued Wednesday by Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller, four patrol cars from the Iosco County Sheriff's Department Monday morning escorted trucks to and from the National City plant of National Gypsum Company as a means of avoiding violence during a labor dispute.

This was the third injunction issued by Judge Miller during the past two weeks involving a labor dispute between the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Jefferson Trucking Company, primary carrier for National Gypsum Company products.

The latest order by the circuit court found that "violent acts and threatened acts have occurred and have been directed toward National Gypsum Company by agents or employees of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which are not connected with the primary labor dispute between the Jefferson Trucking Company and its employees."

Judge Miller found that "such acts of violence and threats have occurred at the entrances to the National City plant and upon the public highways, which has interrupted and prevented the transportation of goods produced."

He ruled that "the Teamsters shall cease, desist and refrain from preventing plaintiff from receiving and dispatching trucks and equipment of authorized transportation units unto the premises of National Gypsum Company" and "from interfering with the free ingress and egress at any of its gates, entrances, or upon any public road and intersection leading thereto."

The judge's order also limited picketing to two persons by members of the Teamsters at Jefferson Trucking's entrance. The sheriff's department reported that eight hours were spent Monday escorting tractor-trailer units to and from the plant, although no violence or threats were reported and the patrol was finally reduced to one car Monday afternoon.

During the contract dispute between the Teamsters and Jefferson Trucking Company, National Gypsum Company has hired tractor-trailer units from a truck rental firm and hired drivers to transport materials to and finished products from the National Gypsum Company plant at National City.

Five tractor-trailer units loaded with wallboard were moved out of the plant under police escort and two trailer loads of paper used in the manufacture of wallboard were escorted into the plant. On Wednesday, National Gypsum Company reported that air hoses on the rented truck units had been cut and that threats to drivers were received Saturday.

On Monday morning, Iosco Sheriff's Department officers investigated damage to trailer units parked on National Gypsum Company property. Officers said that tie downs on flat bed trailers had been cut and that copper air lines on trailers had been damaged over the week-end.

Two temporary restraining orders were issued September 30 by Judge Miller enjoining Local 486 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters from picketing the entrance of the trucking firm that day or to interfere with movement of vehicles at the National Gypsum Company plant. A work contract between drivers and Jefferson Trucking Company expired at midnight September 30 and the trucking company had four tractor-trailer units scheduled to leave that day.

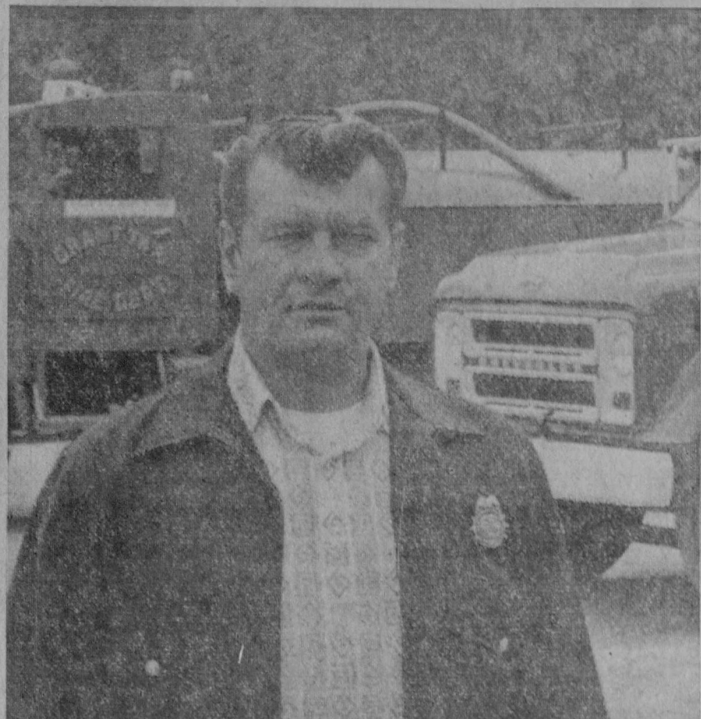

Terms of the work agreement prohibited a picket line from forming prior to expiration of the union contract at midnight. Jefferson's complaint stated that union drivers failed to appear on schedule September 30, apparently for the purpose of keeping trucks on the premises in order that exits could be blocked by pickets that evening.

A second order issued by Judge Miller on September 30 enjoined the Teamsters to cease, desist and refrain from preventing National Gypsum Company from receiving trucks and equipment of authorized transportation units at the National City plant and from interfering with free egress and ingress at any of its gates and entrances.

Tawas Area School to Get $43,000 in Membership Aid

Good news for Tawas Area School District—a property valuation slightly lower than previously anticipated, coupled with a net loss in students which is slightly lower than expected, means that the school district will be receiving some state membership aid this year. Dr. Robert Halle, superintendent, told members of the board of education Monday night that newly revised valuation and enrollment figures means that the school will receive approximately $20 per student in state aid. The superintendent said that total enrollment in kindergarten through 12th grade is 1,959 students, as compared to an anticipated figure of 1,912 students. Additional adult basic education and part time parochial students have helped to recover some of the loss, but total enrollment still has a net loss of 124 students over last year. Last year, the school received state membership aid of $152,000 and this year will receive $43,000, based on the new figures. While the lower net loss is a blessing financially, it does mean that overcrowding of facilities is slightly higher than anticipated since return to the regular school day session. "This additional money will help us to achieve a balanced budget, but it is still going to be difficult," said the superintendent. He said a number of expenditures had not been anticipated concerning operation under the full day session and regular maintenance of facilities. "We hope that the additional money is an omen of things to come and I feel that the community is thankful to be back on a regular school day," said Halle. The board of education is to have its final 1976-77 budget ready for public inspection by Friday, October 22, and copies will be available at the administration office at East Tawas. A public hearing on the budget is to be held October 25. In other business conducted Monday night, the board approved purchase of six 1976 school buses. Delivery is expected in about 45 days. The buses had been ordered by another school district and the order was later canceled due to lack of funds. As a result, this school district will be receiving buses at a fleet rate resulting in a lower cost. The board of education authorized advertising for bids to finance the bus purchase. Bids are to be taken, also, for the purchase of three additional buses in 1977. The superintendent said that buses to be replaced are presently seven years old and the school is losing approximately $17,000 to $20,000 annually because state reimbursement is not received for buses of that age. He said that the school had not purchased an adequate number of replacement buses over the years and, with increased use during the former split sessions, buses had worn out rapidly. A report on transportation was given by Edward Poppe, director of transportation.

Open House Events May be Boycotted by Tawas Teachers

Elementary units of Tawas Area School will hold traditional open house for parents on Wednesday, October 20, 7:00 to 9:00 p. m., but teachers may not be there. According to a statement by Kenneth Tanner, president of Tawas Area Federation of Teachers, members of that organization at their last meeting voted not to participate in open houses at Tawas City and East Tawas elementary units if the regular school day is extended. Tanner, who asked permission to appear on Monday night's agenda to address the board concerning proposal C in the upcoming general election, expanded his topic by stating that teachers do not have a contract, but have reported to work. On September 21, negotiations between the union and the board of education went to a state mediator. Tanner said that the teacher's union had voted to not participate in open house observance and had so informed the superintendent. The federation president asked reconsideration by the board concerning the superintendent's decision to hold the open house and suggested an alternative. He said he was not being dictatorial to the board of education, but was only stating the position of teachers. Tanner felt that release time could be granted during the regular school days, dismissing both teachers and pupils from school, in order to attend open house events in the evening, as had been done in the past. He said, too, that the open house could be canceled or postponed until settlement of a contract, or the contract could be settled prior to October 20. The federation president expressed the view that open houses were vital and excellent for the district, but stated that teachers felt they cannot attend without a contract. "We want a fair and equitable contract," said Tanner. "It is becoming increasingly difficult to attend school with no hope of a contract settlement."

er topic. "For me to take him on publicly would further damage the rapport between the staff, the public and the board of education," said the superintendent. The superintendent said any comment which he might make concerning some facts in the matter would "further enlarge the gulf between the public and the teachers." Halle declared he intended to hold open houses in the elementary units on October 20 and "expects teachers, as part of their total teaching responsibility, to be there; if not, we will be there to discuss school problems to the best degree we can when, in essence, it is the responsibility of teachers to discuss problems with parents and the public." The board of education took no action which would reverse the superintendent's decision on the open house.

Check Sewers

Tawas City Department of Public Works crews began checking the sanitary sewer collection system last week by using non-toxic smoke bombs. The test is being held for the safety of residents and to detect storm water entering sanitary sewers, thus cutting down on the amount of water entering the city's treatment plant and to prevent sewers from backing up due to overloading.

Administrators Say There Is No Shortage of Texts in School

Administrators of Tawas Area School assured board of education members and the public Monday night that there is no severe shortage of textbooks for students, as has been alleged in letters published by Tawas Area Federation of Teachers. The administrators admitted, however, that there may have been a shortage of textbooks in some cases during the first three weeks of school—but for good reason. The main problem apparently came about through changed methods of teaching certain subjects since a return to the full school day after elimination of split sessions. This discussion over textbooks came up during a new item on Monday night's board of education agenda, "comments from the audience," which allows a specific time for persons attending the meeting to address the board of education. James Russo Jr., who has served as chairman of the citizens advisory committee, questioned the administration concerning the alleged lack of textbooks. Herman Rollin, elementary principal, stated there had been a change in teaching sixth graders since their return from the middle school to the elementary department. He said he had been unaware that textbooks were not available for each youngster, but pointed out that the matter had been corrected. Robert McDonald, junior high school principal, said that every student in the seventh and eighth grades has an English textbook, but courses have been changed somewhat from last year and two different grammar books are being used. He said, too, that the school was in the process of changing books and it always takes time to receive new ones. He pointed out that in the change from split sessions to a six-period day, about one-quarter more books were needed than last year. He stated that although the change to the full day session was made just prior to the opening of school, some new books have been received and others are on order. John Alexander, high school principal, said the question was not a lack of textbooks, but the technique in using them. He pointed out that high school English classes use from eight to 10 different paper back reading books, which had been recommended by the English department and it was not expected that every student would have a copy of each book. He said that textbooks recommended to him for use had been ordered. Kenneth Tanner, president of Tawas Area Federation of Teachers, who apparently did not write the letter, said that it was difficult for teachers to order textbooks in June "when one does not know what is going to happen later in the year." Since the start of school, Tanner said the administration had made an honest attempt to get textbooks to teachers, regardless of when ordered. He admitted that when there is a drastic change so shortly before the start of school, "there will be a conflict in receiving supplies."

Braves Defeated Pinconning, 40-6, for Fourth Straight

Tawas Area Braves scored on the opening kickoff and then rolled to a 40-6 homecoming victory Friday night over the visiting Pinconning Spartans.

The Braves recovered one Pinconning fumble which led to a touchdown and intercepted four Pinconning passes, two of which were converted into quick touchdowns.

Neil Warner electrified the large homecoming crowd by taking the opening kickoff and racing 77 yards for a touchdown.

The Spartans then put together a good drive to reach Tawas' 39, but Tawas' defense stiffened at that point where the Braves took over on a fourth down fumble. The Braves put together a good drive as Warner and Jeff Tousley picked up five first downs and Tousley scored from six yards out. Jerry Gracik booted the conversion and Tawas held a 13-0 lead.

Mark Fisher recovered a fumble with about three minutes gone in the second quarter and Tousley raced 41 yards on the first play from scrimmage to score his second touchdown of the night. The conversion attempt was wide and Tawas held a 19-0 lead.

Tawas struck again before the first half ended when John Rigg intercepted the first of his two steals during the night. Tawas moved the ball to the Spartan 20 in four plays and Fisher threw a touchdown pass to Gracik. Gracik booted the conversion to give Tawas a 26-0 margin. Following halftime ceremonies, Gracik intercepted a pass and had a 34-yard return. Warner picked up 17 yards in two runs and Tousley scored from three yards out. Gracik booted the conversion to give Tawas a 33-0 lead.

Pinconning had the ball for six plays and Rigg intercepted a pass on the Tawas 32. The Braves had the ball for four plays and Bruce Glancy punted to the Pinconning 29. A 15-yard penalty was marched off for a Tawas personal foul and the Spartans put together their best drive of the night. Tim Ballor scored the Pinconning touchdown from 13 yards out to make the score, 33-6.

With five minutes and three seconds remaining in the game, Warner scored his second touchdown of the night. Gracik booted the conversion to make the score, 40-6.

Pinconning, which upset Ogemaw Heights the previous week, did not play as badly as the score indicates. Long passes which were easily intercepted by Tawas defenders hurt the Spartan cause. Pinconning's football fortunes, which have been down for a number of years, should see an upswing as both the junior varsity and freshman squads defeated Tawas teams on Thursday night.

Leading defenders again for the Braves were Rex Halstead, Mike Davis, Glancy and Rigg. Jerry Milburn left the game with a leg injury.

COUNTY NORMAL'S ROLE IN THE

'Little Red Schoolhouse'

There have been many changes in the operation and philosophies of public schools of Michigan during the past 30 or 40 years, but no change has been so pronounced as the disappearance of the "Little Red Schoolhouse" which once dotted the state's rural landscape. These one and two-room schools, which played such a prominent role in the education of farm youngsters, began to disappear in the 1930s and 1940s with consolidation of several schools into one large district. The last of these rural schools disappeared locally in 1953 with reorganization of Tawas Area School District.

During the heyday of the one-room school—from 1900 to about 1935—Tawas Township, alone, had nine rural school districts and Plainfield Township had seven individual districts, each governed by a three-member board of education. Although exact statistics are not readily available, this would mean that there were more than 40 rural districts during the peak years for the "Little Red Schoolhouse" and, as late as 1937, there were 21 such districts in the county.

Residents of most of the individual districts took great pride in their schools and there was much competition among them to provide suitable facilities. Several local districts were not content to settle with the traditional small frame buildings and erected quite pretentious structures of brick or concrete blocks. In addition to providing a basic education for children, the school also served as the neighborhood social center.

There was also a great deal of civic pride in providing the best teachers available—although it did not mean the teacher would have a degree from an accredited college—and this leads up to the subject of this feature: The Iosco County Normal, a school which trained high school graduates to become teachers in rural schools.

Prior to 1903, anyone interested in entering the teaching field could write a state examination conducted by the county school commissioner and, if successful in completing the brief examination conducted at the courthouse, was qualified to teach in a rural school—defined as a school which did not hire the services of a superintendent.

County normal training classes were established under a law passed by the state legislature in 1903. Under this law, the superintendent of public instruction was given the power to permit establishment of these schools in connection with the high schools of the state and to authorize the auditor general to pay a limited sum toward the support of these classes from the state treasury.

The school district applying was required to furnish suitable rooms and necessary equipment for the maintenance of the classes and to employ a suitable teacher. General supervision of the classes was under the county normal board, composed of the superintendent of public instruction, the county school commissioner and the superintendent of the local school.

Qualifications for admission to the training classes included the provision that all applicants must be at least 17 years of age at the time of entrance; applicants were required to subscribe to the following declaration: "I hereby declare that my object in asking admission to the training class is to prepare myself for teaching and it is my purpose to engage in teaching in the rural schools, or the lower grades of the graded schools of this state, at the completion of such preparation. I pledge myself to remain in the class during the year unless prevented by sickness or excused by the county normal board."

All applicants were required to possess a good moral character and have graduated from a high school having at least a course of 10 grades in its curriculum, hold at least a secondary certificate or pass a secondary examination. A person with two years of successful experience in public school teaching was also qualified to enter the county normal.

Iosco County established its first normal school in October 1904, utilizing the Tawas City Public School as its headquarters, under permission granted by the county board of supervisors. There were 12 members of the first class and Miss Cora M. Wilsey of East Day-ton, a graduate of the University of Michigan, was engaged as training teacher.

Miss Angeline Landon was principal of the county normal in 1909, with an enrollment of 13 prospective teachers. There were two students from Whittemore, three from East Tawas, one from Rose City, one from AuSable and six from Tawas City. Miss Margaret Worden was critic teacher for a number of years and later became county school commissioner.

From 1904 to 1941, more than 400 young people attended these classes at Tawas City and later at East Tawas. Many of the graduates took teaching positions immediately in rural schools and remained in the teaching profession until retirement, having acquired degrees at accredited universities in later years; other young schoolmarm taught a term or two in a rural school, met and married a farm boy in the local district and quit the ranks of teaching to raise families; others never became teachers, but utilized the valuable training received in business employment.

A member of Iosco County Normal's 1915 graduating class, Russell A. Rollin, Tawas City, recalls that he was one of three boys in the 21-member graduating class that year—the first time that boys had enrolled in the county normal. Rollin later attended Ypsilanti State Normal College, was employed in private industry for a number of years, both by United States Gypsum Company and National Gypsum Company, and then returned to teaching—a profession with which he was to be associated for 46 years, retiring as county intermediate school district superintendent.

Rollin has only high praise for training methods provided by the old county normal school, which prepared young people to enter a profession. There have been many changes in schools and teaching requirements, he admits, and as county school commissioner, Iosco was one of the first counties in the state to have all of its teachers meet new certification requirements.

The strong point of the county normal school was the fact that the student reviewed every basic educational course received during high school, states Rollin. The second semester of training was spent in practice teaching in a local classroom situation and under the direction of an experienced critic.

"The county normal had a very basic and intense curriculum," states Rollin. "Practice teaching was a very personal education as an experienced teacher was checking the student all the time."

There was a definite need for the one-room schools scattered throughout the county as there were few improved roads such as are known today, few automobiles and school buses did not make an appearance until the 1930s. Farm children could walk to the conveniently located rural school and receive a basic education. If the youngster desired to continue his education after graduation from the eighth grade, he could move in to town and live with a relative or friend and continue in high school.

The state's compulsory education law required that all children from the time they were seven years of age until the age of 16 "shall be in regular and consecutive attendance in school during the entire school year." Children over 14 years of age, whose services were essential to the support of their parents, could be excused by the commissioner of schools on the recommendation of the board of education of the district.

(The one-room school, which is

"LITTLE RED SCHOOLHOUSE" on a hill is this building which once served residents of the Townline Road from 1924 until reorganization of the district with Tawas Area School, Farm families along this road had great interest in their schools and provided two substantial brick buildings known as the Lower Townline School (above) and the Upper Townline School.—Tawas Herald Photo.

MEMBERS of the Iosco County Normal graduating class of 1916 and members of the faculty are pictured here. A number of these young people went on to become teachers in rural schools; some continued their education in accredited teachers colleges and have now retired from the teaching profession, while others chose business careers or became housewives. Iosco County Normal gained an enviable reputation in state educational circles and its graduates were eagerly sought by school districts throughout Michigan.

Kroger USDA CHOICE BEEF SALE!

Let Kroger Mini Mize Your Food Costs!

KEEPING YOU POSTED
BEEF
THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE

For the past several months, shoppers have been enjoying some real bargains at the beef counter. The supplies have been beautiful and Kroger has passed the savings along to you... our customers.

The beef Kroger sells is Government-inspected for wholesomeness and U.S. Department of Agriculture-graded for quality. (Our Choice Grade beef not only has to pass the USDA's test, but in addition, must meet Kroger's own strict standards.) It's well-marbled for juiciness and flavor, and trimmed to Kroger's exact specifications. Each loin steak is "tail-less" and all but a 1/2" layer of outer fat is trimmed away. And open dating on labels to indicate the final day of sale is your assurance of freshness.

To save and to protect the high quality of Kroger beef

- Look for the primal cut shown on the label. It's your clue to the proper cooking method. Rib and loin cuts are dry-cooked (without liquid, such as broiling or roasting). Less tender cuts such as chuck and round should be cooked using moist heat (however, if marinated or otherwise tenderized, may be broiled or barbecued).
- Freeze meats if keeping longer than a few days. Thaw frozen meat in the refrigerator, not at room temperature. Cook immediately.
- Use portion control to save. Slice meat before bringing it to the table and serve only the amount your family will eat. Refrigerate left over meat right after the meal.

Rep. George A. Prescott

The Michigan State Legislature is perhaps our most important state government body. Basically, it serves its purpose well. It sometimes passes legislation that is contrary to the desires of large numbers of people, but in the main, it has proven that it has the ability to make our great state function under the rules of our constitution.

In our district, the 105th, (which is comprised of Alcona, Arenac, Gladwin, Iosco, Ogemaw, Oscoda, and parts of Bay, Midland, Montmorency and Roscommon), the largest geographical legislative district in Michigan, we will elect a candidate to represent the Republican Party in the November General Election. A number of individuals will vie for this most important post in the upcoming August 3rd Primary Election.

Among all of the candidates, we think Representative George A. Prescott is the best qualified candidate to serve the interests of all of the people in the 105th District.

Representative Prescott has served our area well. He is knowledgeable and experienced in the intricate procedures necessary in achieving those goals best representative of his constituents.

George comes from a family steeped in nearly one hundred years of history and tradition in the growth and development of Northeastern Michigan. The Prescott family settled in the Ogemaw County area in 1878. The town of Prescott was named after the family who owned a large cattle ranch. Incumbent Candidate Prescott's grandfather, George A. Prescott, served as a state senator from 1895 to 1896, and as Secretary of State in the early 20th century. The incumbent's father, the late George A. Prescott, served on the Michigan State Fair Board for twenty-seven years, including two years as the manager.

Representative George A. Prescott has been most aggressive and influential in the growth of Northeastern Michigan over the past ten years. The momentum of his actions in the legislature should not be interrupted at this time. George must have this new term in order to promote and achieve those programs for which he so diligently worked.

George is high on the seniority list of some of the most important committees in the state legislature. We do not believe this is the time to replace him with someone who has little or no knowledge of the problems and the real needs of the 105th representative district.

In his hometown, George is a highly respected family man with the very genuine regard of the thousands of people who know him personally. Perhaps one of his most important attributes to consider is his record of being on the job. For many years he operated his farm and, in 1946, was elected to the County Board of Supervisors, a position he held for four years. For the next 16 years he served well as Iosco County Clerk. During his last term as Iosco County Clerk, he successfully ran for state representative from his district. He is now completing his fifth consecutive term in the legislature. This record could only have been earned through his dedication to serve his fellow man to the very best of his ability.

It is our conviction that Representative George A. Prescott's achievements on the private level for so many years, as well as on the county level, and now on the state level, uniquely qualify him for re-election to the Michigan State House of Representatives from the 105th legislative district.—Steven Ezo

Gunshot Damage to Power Company Insulators Totaled Over $100,000

More than $100,000 was spent by Consumers Power Company last year because gunshots damaged or destroyed more than 1,500 insulators on transmission and sub-transmission lines, according to John E. Wessels, the utility's district manager.

damage, even more will have to be spent, because the cost of replacing insulators has risen," Wessels said.

The Jackson-based utility in 1975 had to replace 1,520 insulators damaged or destroyed by gunfire. This was only 16 less than the record number damaged in 1974.

Gunshots also damaged six transmission lines, two poles and seven transformers.

Besides the repair costs that are ultimately shared by all electric customers, more than 100,000 customers experienced a cost that cannot be calculated. "Lost production, interrupted recreation, just plain normal living inconvenienced by the sudden interruption of power—how can that be assessed?" asked Wessels.

Ninety-seven outages caused by gunfire last year resulted in 100,263 customers being without service for 8,053,859 "customer minutes," according to Consumers

Power records. That figures out to 5,593 customer days lost during 1975 because insulators were used for target practice.

To combat the incidence of guns being aimed at insulators, Consumers Power is attempting to alert the public to the problem in its 27,000-square-mile electric service area. Included in the company's effort are displays in customer contact offices, employee lunchrooms, a published notice in the Hunters Guide distributed by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and alerting news outlets.

Rewards are offered for information leading to the arrest and arraignment of, or reparations from, people who destroy company property.

A special effort will be addressed to the "indirect victims" of gunshot damages—homeowners whose electricity is cut off when insulators are shot away. They are urged to call local police or a Consumers Power office if they see someone firing at insulators.

"Gunfire damage to insulators can cause poles to burn when electric lines are short-circuited. Also, an energized line that falls to the ground could cause serious injury to someone or could start a brush fire," Wessels said.

Consumers Power patrols its transmission lines regularly searching for damage before power failures result, but when careless or malicious shooters damage so many insulators, power failures are inevitable.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,
I hope you will be able to publish my letter as a tribute to Tawas Hospital.

My family and I were camping at Harrisville State Park the week before Labor Day when I work up with a severe chest pain and the classic symptoms of a heart attack.

We started for Detroit, but at Tawas I knew I could not make it. I went to the emergency room at Tawas Hospital, where an excellent nurse named Lois and other personnel gave me efficient treatment plus tender loving care.

I was moved into the coronary care unit in a matter of minutes and Doctor Brinkman took my case. He was kind, understanding and made me feel he was really interested in my case.

In a few days, I was moved to the floor. The nursing care from everyone was unbelievable; it was so good. It is hard to remember all the names, but my gratitude is extended to all.

I feel my opinion is valid as I am a currently employed registered nurse. I hope all Tawas residents appreciate their hospital—if not come to the big city. A small hospital has a far more personal touch and your nurses are exceptionally well trained.

With gratitude,
Helen L. Pozolo

Annual Meeting Slated at Petoskey

Northern Michigan Council of Cooperative Nurseries will hold its fourth annual two-day conference dealing with parents and their preschool children at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey October 18-19. This year's conference theme will be "Raising Today's Children for Tomorrow's World."

This conference is one of the most comprehensive early-childhood development conferences in Michigan and offers much to individuals interested in their preschool child and his development. Ben Hamilton, Title I consultant for the State of Michigan, will keynote the conference Monday evening with an address entitled "The Role of Education in Raising Children for Tomorrow's World." The conference involves a series of 36 workshops led by speakers with expertise in various areas of interest in living and working with children. The conference, while sponsored by the Northern Michigan Council of Cooperative Nurseries, is open to anyone interested in early childhood education.

Persons wishing additional information may contact Joyce Palmer, Alpena, phone 517 354-5751.

GARY DILLON, 13, a student at Whittemore-Prescott Area School, was the first archer to report killing a buck with bow and arrow during the 1976 season. A seventh grader, Gary downed this eight-pointer on October 2. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dillon of Towerline Road.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Normal

revered today by many older people, was not without its detractors. An editorial in the 1907 issue of The Tawas Herald stated: "There has been a great deal of sentiment and gush expended on the 'Little Red Schoolhouse,' but it has not lived up to its reputation. True, it has served a purpose in a fashion, but, as it stands today, it is a poor excuse for an educational means in keeping up with the enlightenment of the times.

"It does not teach anything beyond the elementary three Rs and does that indifferently. The farm boy and girl get nothing more than a start, and generally a bad start at that, and at an age when they should be well advanced in the common branches of education."

The editorial commented that the country school teacher, as a rule, was the poorest paid public servant known—receiving from $30 to $40 per month. "Country teachers are recruited from the ranks of boys and girls who have managed to get through the village high school passably and become possessed of a certificate. They are employed because they are willing to work cheap. If they have the least amount of ambition, they merely use the country school as a means to earn enough money to take them through college or enter other fields of endeavor and leave at the first opportunity."

The editor believed that the "Little Red Schoolhouse" was a misnomer, "because it is generally of no color at all, except that imparted to the unpainted wooden structure by time and weather. The interior is devoid of every convenience for the use of teachers and pupils—no maps, globes, books of reference—nothing but a scaly blackboard, a rusty stove and a few wooden benches; it presents a dismal and forbidding aspect to the young child's impressionable mind."

The editor believed this combination of poorly equipped teacher and poor building "proves a killing handicap to the farm boy and girl at a time when they should have the best advantages that could be afforded them." The above words written by an editor 69 years ago should be a shocker to many oldsters of today, who have only the highest regard for the one-room school and possess many fond remembrances of the old days in those schools.

Improvements, happily, were made in rural schools over the years. In Plainfield Township, for instance, school districts were reorganized into a township school unit under a superintendent, which required teachers to have a more extensive educational background in the teaching profession. Other districts upgraded requirements for teachers and others of the smaller school districts consolidated with larger public school districts.

By 1941, interest in attending the county normal had dropped considerably: Young people interested in entering the professional teaching ranks were attending accredited universities; the major change however, was withdrawal of men from teaching positions through the military draft for World War II.

The days of the county normal were numbered, but an editorial in the May 30, 1941, issue of The Tawas Herald made a point which was worthy of consideration: "The training given in the county normal is of such a nature that, regardless of what one does after graduation, the general cultural knowledge gained is bound to be of value."

The point made by the editor was that the general training course provided by the county normal served as an excellent intermediate step between a high school course, particularly that of a small high school, and a state college or state university.

Young men were rapidly being taken into military service after graduation from high schools in the early 1940s and it was not until years later that community colleges came into being and, by state law, county normals which could have been expanded into a "fifth" year of high school instruction had been eliminated by state law.

The county normal and, moreover, the Little Red Schoolhouse, have passed into oblivion—they are not forgotten, however, as many residents of today remember the Vine, Greenwood, Cottage, Keystone, to name only a few of the schools; there are many retired teachers today and a few still in the teaching ranks, whose first experience in the profession was gained through classroom situations provided by the old county normal and their first teaching experience was in the little one-room school.

The following words by Miss Anna Sullivan, a graduate of the 1907 Iosco County Normal, are still worth consideration. Her subject as class president was "The Value of an Ideal" and she urged her classmates to be what they would have their pupils become, "for the teacher is the pupil's ideal."
