

WORK HAS COMMENCED on construction of a water line along US-23 from Ninth Avenue to Woodward Avenue and from US-23 on Michigan Avenue to Margo Street. This project is to provide a water loop system which will improve water distribution below the river bridge. Contractor for excavation work is Davison and Son Builders and the water main is being installed by the department of public works. City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz said at Monday night's council meeting that he could not predict the amount of time which will be required to complete this project due to the subsoil structure in that area. After this project is completed, a sewer main is to be constructed on the opposite side of US-23 from the river bridge south to Acapulco Cabins, followed by construction of a sanitary sewer on Tenth Avenue.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Seek Group Home Under Foster Care

The Iosco County Department of Social Services is actively seeking parents for a group home for teenagers. A group home is a unique kind of foster care program, technically known as "community residential care," in that it intensively involves the services of both the group home parents and the group home worker as a "treatment team" working closely with a group of four to six teen-agers who are state wards.

These youngsters, besides living together in the same house along with the group home parents and their family, work as a group to try to help solve each other's problems. Youth placed in group care are expected to attend school on a full-time basis or, if appropriate, to hold steady employment.

In addition, it is expected that youngsters will meet normal behavior expectations in the home and community as part of their treatment program. Group home parents are made aware of the background of each youth, of the goals each individual will be working toward and of the goals of the group as a whole. The parents, in turn, are expected to help each youngster and help guide the group in a meaningful way.

"While many different ideas and principles are used in the group work processes, we do not expect or desire prospective group home parents to be social workers or psychologists. Rather, we are looking for a couple who have a genuine liking and concern for teen-agers and would be interested in sharing their home and trying to help these young men and women in a small group setting," states Barbara Kanaga, group home worker at the Iosco County Department of Social Services.

Experience in raising or working with teen-agers, or previous foster care experience would be helpful to applicants for this position, although not absolutely necessary. Also important is that group home parents need to have adequate physical space in their home to comfortably house four to six additional children.

Could your home be the group home that Northern Michigan youth need? If so, help is needed now and details may be obtained from the department of social services located at 1199 West Harris Avenue, Tawas City. The telephone number is 362-4421.

East Tawas to Apply for Fed. Funds

East Tawas is considering a number of applications to be submitted for federal public works funds, according to a report at Monday night's council meeting by City Supt. Paul Ropert.

Ropert told councilmen that since preliminary meetings concerning regulations dealing with public works applications, he had learned that certain water and sewer projects were eligible for funding.

As a result, he is currently preparing applications for construction of a water line on Smith Street, along with a number of other projects. One project considered originally by the council was for construction of a new city garage. A new headquarters for the department of public works must be provided soon due to use of the present structure east of the state police post for parking at the new state boat launching ramp.

A letter was read from Walter Poyet of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources indicating that the conservation commission had approved the new boat ramp at the above location for funding during the 1977-78 fiscal year. The DNR is to request $225,000 from the state legislature for this project and approval is contingent upon a local contribution of $25,000.

A letter from Keith Wilson, director of the Michigan Waterways Commission, indicated that bids on the federal-state Tawas Harbor project were to be opened Tuesday, October 5, at the Detroit office of the Corps of Engineers. There is a possibility that work on this project could be started this fall and continue during the winter months.

Arrest Two Men; Third Man Sought for Murder

Two Bay City men are being held without bond in the Iosco County Jail on first degree murder charges and a third man is being sought in the shooting death of a Lennon auto worker.

Arrested Friday on the murder charge were Frederick G. Tomkins, 35, and Gary H. McLellan, 35. Being sought is John W. Lonchar Jr., 28, of Ewen.

The three men are charged with murdering Danny R. Christian, 27, who was found dead late Thursday afternoon in a wooded area near Oscoda Area High School. Christian had been missing since Sunday, September 12, when he failed to return from a store. He was in the area on a fishing trip.

Christian is married and the father of a four-year-old daughter.

Tomkins and McLellan were arrested Thursday at Bay City following issuance of warrants by Stephen Naegele, Iosco County prosecuting attorney. The warrants and arrests came only hours after finding the body.

Handling the investigation has been Raymond Knuth, Oscoda-Ausable Township police chief.

Names of those involved were not released until late Friday as Lonchar was still loose and reportedly heading for Canada.

Iosco Skill Center Election Thursday

A special election is to be held Thursday in the four school districts comprising Iosco Intermediate School District in which voters are being asked to approve a vocational technical education proposition.

The proposal being submitted by the intermediate school district seeks adoption of an annual tax levy of 1.6 mills, or $1.60 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, for operation of the proposed skill center.

All school electors registered with city or township clerks of the unit in which they reside are eligible to vote in the election. Polls are located in the four school districts of the county and voting in Tawas Area School District is to be handled at the high school building on M-55.

A vote on the proposed $2,132,000 skill center, to be financed by federal and local funds, had been stalled since last January. Hale Area School, Whittemore-Prescott Area School and Oscoda Area School had indicated earlier that each unit supported the proposal and Tawas Area School gave its endorsement only last week.

Until its last meeting, Tawas Area Board of Education's position was that its first obligation was to eliminate the need for a split session in that district, plus adoption of operational millage. The district returned to a regular session this fall and voters approved operational millage.

In January, representatives of the four K-12 school districts of the county reviewed proposed sites for the skill center and adopted one of 40 acres on Wilber Road, northeast of Monument Road.

Cost of the proposed building would be $1,400,000, site and development would be $200,000 and equipment and furnishings would amount to $532,000.

Federal reimbursement for the proposal would total $1,262,800, resulting in an actual construction and equipment cost of $869,200 to the local school districts, which would be provided under the millage proposal.

It is estimated that the skill center would provide vocational instruction for 658 students on a one-half day basis for an annual operational cost of $460,000. Federal vocational educational reimbursement for operation amounts to $100,000, for a total local cost of $360,000 for annual operation.

The intermediate district has proposed a tax levy of 1.6 mills for paying the local cost of construction, site acquisition and equipping the skill center. After the building is completed, the 1.6 mills would be utilized for operation.

A portion of the federal grant is $250,000 from the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, which required support of the four local school districts by October 1.

Sheriff's Dept. Lists Weekly Investigations

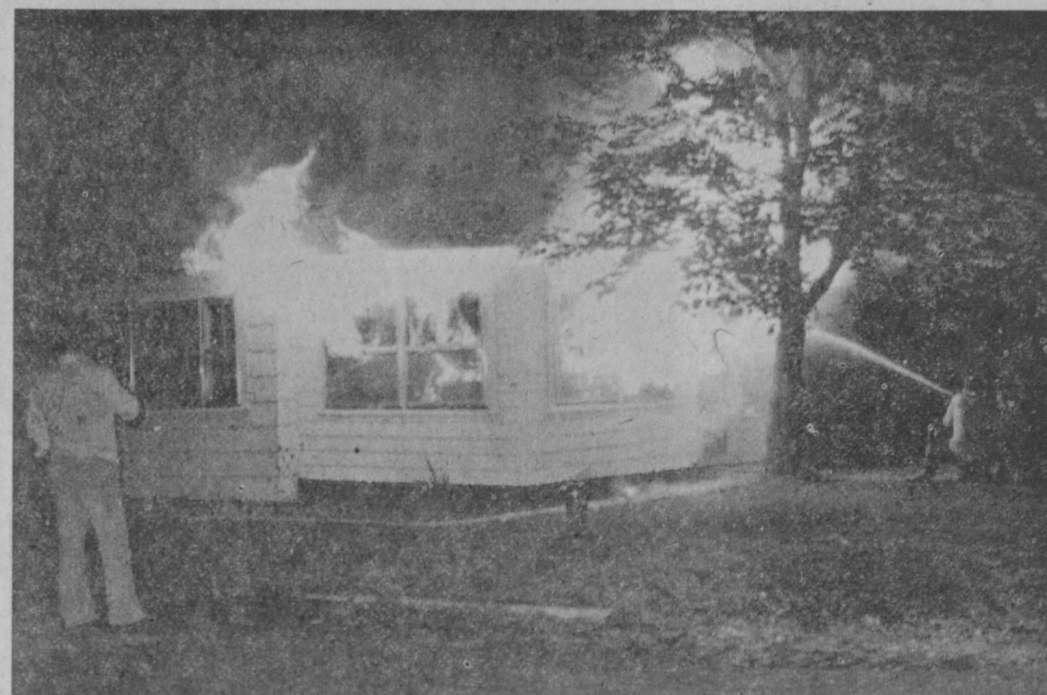

Four breakings and enterings and three larceny complaints were investigated last week by the Iosco County Sheriff's Department.

Breakings and enterings were investigated at residences owned by Carol Caverly, Hale; Bryce E. Miller, Plainfield Township; Chris Elberman, Plainfield Township; R. J. Hall, Plainfield Township.

Iosco County Road Commission reported a larceny of a battery, wire harness, oil filter and other items from a tractor and compressor on Esmond Road, Plainfield Township.

Jerry Brezina, owner of the Village Inn, Tawas City, reported that his Maltez dog had been stolen from the firm's lobby.

Wicker Hills Golf Club reported the larceny of a hose and sprinkler.

FIRE of undetermined origin caused extensive damage late Monday night to a frame home on Seventh Avenue owned by Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Clements. The house was rented to Gary Lee and Michael Anderson, who were not present at the time but reportedly had checked it around 6:00 p. m. The fire was discovered by an unidentified person and the Clements were notified. The Tawas City Fire Department arrived at the scene at about the same time the above picture was snapped and firemen remained there until shortly before 2:00 a. m. About an hour later, the fire department was called to the William Miller residence on Douglas Drive, Alabaster Township, where faulty wiring was blamed as the cause of a blaze which damaged the ceiling and attic.—Tawas Herald Photo.

County Urges Tight Control on Spending

The need for tight control over expenditures during the remaining months of the year in all departments of county operation was dramatized by a report last week by the county board of commissioners.

According to the report prepared by the commission's finance committee, eight departments will exceed budgets prior to December 31, based on the present rate of spending.

According to the report, two departments have already exceeded budgeted amounts. As of August 20, courthouse and grounds had exceeded its $40,788 budget by $2,718 and by September 18 the circuit court budget of $43,118 had been exceeded.

Based on current spending, the jail budget of $33,892 will be exceeded on November 10, the county board of commission's budget of $47,000 will be exceeded by November 21, the sheriff's department budget of $314,606 will be spent by November 27. Two departments, probate court and county clerk, are expected to exceed budgets by December 27.

All other departments would appear to have sufficient funds to continue into 1977 for varying periods of time.

The report asks the question: "What would be the effect on county government if departments were required to close their doors and send everyone home when their budgets ran out?"

Effective this year, departmental deficits at year end will result in an immediate reduction to the succeeding year's allocation. Departments carrying a deficit into a succeeding year will be given until the end of the first quarter to work out of the deficit.

"Hopefully, balance can be achieved by curtailing expenditures for supplies, travel, utilities, etc.," states the report. "Obviously, with personnel being a major part of expenses, the use of layoffs must be considered as a means to bring expenses into line if other means fail."

The report stated that a surplus at year end by departments would be most welcome and a positive indication to taxpayers that "we do not take our responsibilities lightly."

Seek Bids on City Insurance

Authorization was given by the Tawas City Council Monday night to advertise for bids on furnishing insurance to the city. This action follows recent discussion on competitive bidding procedures and adoption of an ordinance.

Bids are to be opened at the October 18 meeting of the council. One sealed proposal was received at the last meeting from William Brown.

Present insurance policies carried by the city are to be used as specifications for bidding. Del Myles of Myles Insurance Agency, present carrier, indicated Monday night that he would not submit a bid proposal, but would renew present policies if it was so desired. A number of policies were renewed subject to future council action.

Committee Named to Check Convention Center Interest

A five-member committee headed by Mayor Herbert Cholger and City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz was appointed Monday night by the Tawas City Council to determine local interest in applying for federal funds to finance construction of a convention center.

This proposal was first heard a week ago during the council's discussion on possible projects to be submitted for federal funding under a new public works program.

Robert Haight, president of Tawas Area Winter and Summer, proposed the convention center idea following a suggestion by the city manager that consideration be given to a new city hall, library, fire hall complex.

The new committee, which is to include Haight, Councilman Robert Rollin, Councilman William Ezo and Carl Babcock, chairman of the planning commission, is to contact the East Tawas Council and Iosco County Board of Commissioners to determine interest in the project.

Bublitz said that if interest was shown in such a project, steps must be taken immediately to prepare preliminary planning for the center and only about two months are available "to get things together" for the application.

In addition, the city council plans to follow the city manager's advice of last week to make application for federal funds on the city's $400,000 share of the Edmands water plan between this city, East Tawas and Baldwin Township; a bridge replacement program costing $185,000; street construction, costing approximately $200,000; construction of a new storm sewer system, costing around $150,000.

In other business, the council rescinded its motion of last week which would have placed a stop sign on Bay Drive in the middle of the block near the residence of Councilman Rollin. A new resolution was adopted authorizing installation of a stop sign at Elms Avenue and one near the entrance to the parking lot owned by Dr. James E. Thomas. Intent of the action is to slow through traffic on Bay Drive.

A communication from Tawas Area Winter and Summer requested the council to establish a snowmobile route in Tawas City in order to improve winter business of motels. A route suggested was along US-23 to Ninth Avenue, north to Fourth Street and west to the city limit on Meadow Road. It was suggested that the city allow snow to remain along one shoulder of those roads and to limit the amount of salt used in order to improve snowmobile usage. No action was taken on the matter as councilmen believed a study should be made before a specific route is designed for snowmobile traffic. The council directed the city attorney to investigate the matter concerning state laws governing snowmobile traffic on US-23, along with the need for amending the city ordinance controlling snowmobiles.

Tawas Independent Workers Sign New Two-Year Contract With Local Industry

Tawas Independent Workers Association and Tawas Industries, Incorporated, reached final agreement Friday on a new labor contract for the next two years. The increased cost to the company in wages and fringe benefits is approximately 9.3 percent annually.

Elmer Werth, president of Tawas Industries, Incorporated, said that to compensate for this much of an increase, new improvements in methods of manufacturing and purchasing must be achieved.

Tawas Independent Workers Association has represented employees of Tawas Industries, Incorporated, in contract negotiations since October 1952. The firm employs 90 persons in its two local plants manufacturing oil filters.

Werth said the company has many fringe benefits, including life insurance covering payment when an injured employee is off the job, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, vacations with pay, paid holidays and an approved IRS pension plan which is administered by a major insurance company with early vesting rights. The plan is insured by the United States Government for any losses.

Paid holidays under the new contract includes one additional day off this year.

For the past several years, the company has given three bonuses per year that are not included in the labor contract. These have been paid for some years if the company can show a profit in that fiscal year. Werth said the company feels this has been an incentive for workers to be concerned that the company is given a fair day's work for a fair day's pay. "In so doing, the workers will share in the profits that can be made by working closely with company supervisors to achieve the maximum production," said Werth.

In discussions with the employees, Werth said it was felt the biggest detriment to increased wages is the inflation that continues to spiral using the increased wages.

"We do hope this inflationary trend will expire and the government will reduce its expenditures," said Werth. "The largest tax to the employee is the tax withheld that he never sees. With regard to taxes, the problem that exists between labor and management is equally the same."

Werth concluded by stating: "Together we must fight the spiraling cost of government and ask that it be reduced immediately so relief can be obtained and the employee can have taxes reduced so he can purchase the necessities he needs."

Iosco to Furnish Assessor Assistance to Five Units

Approval was given last week by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners for the county's tax equalization department to provide level one assessor assistance for five different local units of government.

The tax equalization department is to assist assessing officers of Plainfield, Reno, Burleigh, Grant and Baldwin Townships, which do not have state certified assessing officers. The supervisor of each township is to be keeper of assessment rolls and sit as secretary of the board of review.

According to the contract, the fee for this service provided by the county is to be $1 per parcel of property in each unit.

The board of commissioners refused a request submitted by chambers of commerce of the county asking for an appropriation of $5,000 for a tourist appropriation. The request was denied pending adjustment of the county budget during the October session.

Nancy Wade was hired as the CETA program coordinator effective October 1 and is to receive wages established for that position at a rate of $9,100 annually.

Iosco-Ogemaw Mental Health District Has State Approval

David Lindemulder, former director of the Northeast Michigan Mental Health Agency, has been named temporary director of the new Iosco-Ogemaw Mental Health District, which has been approved by the state mental health department to take effect October 1.

Lindemulder resigned from a similar post with the Northeast Michigan Mental Health Agency following a controversy about the agency's operations. The temporary position will last until December 30 and will be paid at a rate of $36,000 per year, the same salary he received as director of the Alpena-based agency.

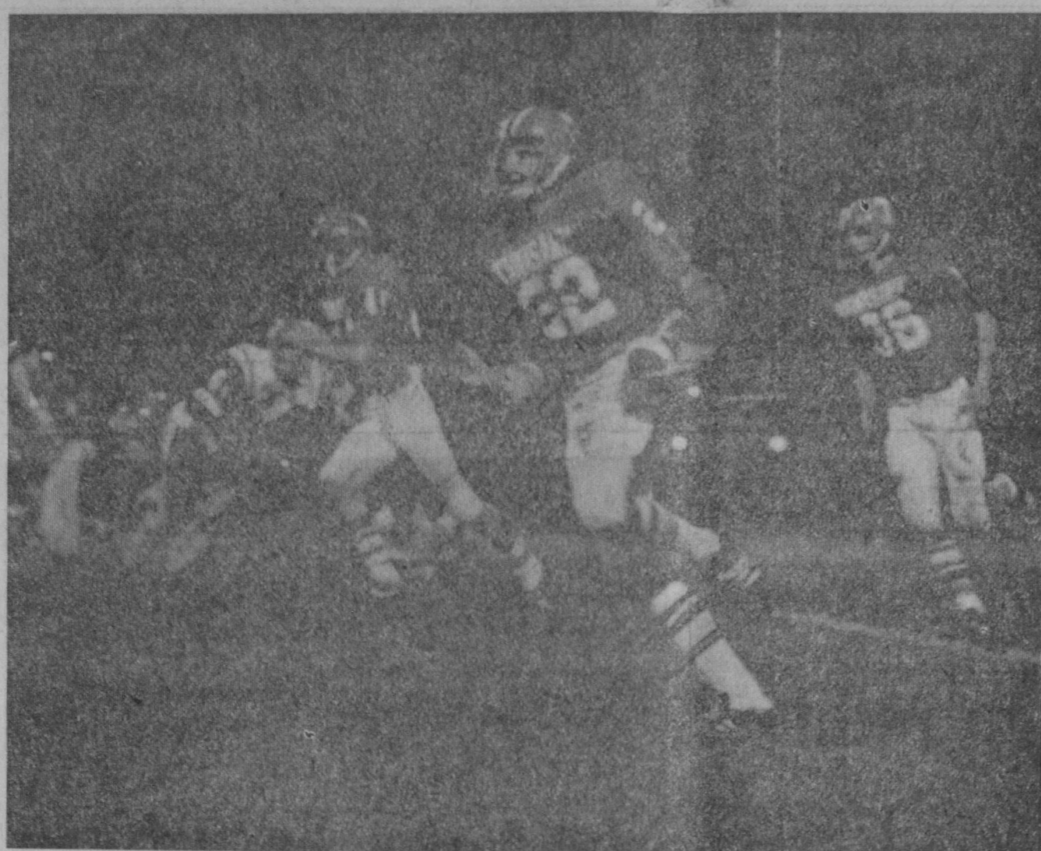

Named director of the new two-county board was Hiram Rose, presently chairman of the Northeast Michigan Mental Health Board.

A new 12-member board has been formed which will operate with a budget of approximately $400,000. Iosco County's share of the cost will be about $24,000, matched by the state on a 90-10 percent basis. Ogemaw's share of about $8,000 will also be matched by the state on the same basis.

County commissioners from both Iosco and Ogemaw have felt that the two counties could operate a mental health organization less expensively and receive better services than under the old district.

Iosco members of the board include Lowell Aspin of Sand Lake, Sue Sweeney of AuSable, Dr. Larry Kelly of Tawas City, Robert Marsh of Baldwin Township, Dennis Chrvia of Hale, James Reynolds of Oscoda, Mary Jane Burdett of Baldwin Township and Robert Foster, Oscoda. Foster is chairman of the county board of commissioners and Mrs. Burdett is a commissioner.

Braves Defeated Boyne City; Open NEM Season Against S-S

Hard running by Halfback Neil Warner provided a pleasant surprise for Tawas area coaches as the Braves won Friday night over visiting Boyne City in a non-conference game, 21-14.

Warner, a senior playing in his first starting role, scored touchdowns on runs of 21 and eight yards, respectively, enabling Mike Lear to return to his key role on defense.

Boyne City took an early 8-0 lead in the first quarter when Ron Shield went into the endzone with three minutes, 39 seconds left on the clock. Boyne City had recovered a Tawas fumble on the 45-yard line and Tawas' defense stopped the visitors in three plays until a successful fourth down pass set up the touchdown. Shields ran the extra two points.

Tawas marched right back to tie the game in seven plays with good runs by Warner, Mark Fisher and Jeff Tousley setting up Warner's final drive into the endzone. Tousley ran the two-point conversion to tie the game.

The Braves capped a 14-play series in the second quarter to go ahead, 14-8, with less than a minute to go in the first half. Warner scored this touchdown from eight yards out and the attempt to run a two-point conversion was stopped by the Boyne City Ramblers.

Tawas' offense could not get rolling in the third quarter and Bruce Glancy booted a long punt to get the Braves out of trouble. Taking over on their own 20, the Ramblers connected on a good pass play to set up the tying touchdown. Shields ran the final four yards to make the score, 14-14, and the attempt to run a two-point conversion was stopped by the Braves defense.

Tousley capped a 64-yard scoring drive with a 19-yard touchdown with 10 minutes, 46 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter. Jerry Gracik booted the conversion to give Tawas a 21-14 lead.

Glancy turned in two more good punts in the fourth quarter to keep Boyne City deep in its own territory.

Tousley rushed for 106 yards in 15 carries to lead the offense while linebacker, Rex Halstead, played a hard nosed game with seven solo tackles and nine assists.

Other defensive standouts were Lear, nine assists and one solo tackle; Mike Davis, eight assists and three solo tackles; Brian Bradley, five assists and three solo tackles.

The Braves open the Northeastern Michigan Conference schedule this Friday night by playing host to Standish-Sterling Central. The Panthers lost Friday night to Sanford Meridian, 33-7, the same team which defeated Tawas in its season opener.

Tawas' freshman football squad traveled to Alpena Thursday night and lost to Besser freshmen, 28-0. Leading ground gainer for the losers was Hugh Hofacer, who had 30 yards. Chuck Allen had 13 tackles to lead the defense.

Hale Eagles Won 2nd Straight Game

Hale Area Eagles defeated Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart, 26-7, Friday night for their second straight win of the season.

Terry Allen provided the offensive fireworks for the Eagles. He passed 57 and 20 yards to Tom Bush for two touchdowns, ran a punt back 38 yards for another score, carried the ball twice for 18 yards and made four tackles and six assists from his defensive cornerback position.

Hale's other touchdown came on a 47-yard pass from Quarterback Brian Denstedt to Rod Humphrey. Bill Bernard kicked two conversions.

Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart's only touchdown came on a 30-yard pass from Mike McCormick to Andy Theisen in the first period.

Cardinals Dropped Game to Hillman

Whittemore - Prescott Cardinals lost a 14-6 decision Friday night to Hillman.

Hillman struck first in the opening quarter when Curt Bleech ran six yards for a touchdown. Kurt Sheldon passed to Gary Cordes for the two-point conversion.

3-6 at halftime on a five-yard run by Albert May, but Cordes scored again on a one-yard run for Hillman after an 80-yard drive in the third period.

Cordes picked up 130 yards in 23 carries for the winning T'gers. Hillman recovered four Cardinal fumbles.

Many Topics to be Discussed by Owners of Campgrounds

Topics from taxation to running the camp store will be discussed at a fall business and education meeting of area campground owners according to Susan Lambrecht, Iosco County extension director. The meeting will be held at the Chief Shoppenagon's Motor Hotel, Grayling, Wednesday, September 29, beginning at 9:30 a. m. Everyone interested in learning about the campground industry is invited to attend. "There is no better time than at the close of the busiest portion of the camping season to evaluate the year's progress and to begin planning for next year," states Mrs. Lambrecht.

The program is jointly sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Michigan Association of Private Campground Owners.

A reception was held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall, Augres, for approximately 325 guests.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:
My family went to our first Tawas Area High School football game this past Friday evening (September 17) at the home field, and we enjoyed the contest between the Braves and the Boyne City players. But, it was the band's half-time performance that really impressed us! The entry on to the field, precision of the maneuvers, musical quality, stance and carriage of the members, and the exit were all very well executed and extremely enjoyable to watch. Miss Julie Jacques, the field director, and the banner gals all performed very nicely also.

Coming from a city whose school system includes 13 elementary schools, three junior high schools and one senior high school, the student potential for the varsity marching band is greater, but the Tawas school system, small as it is, must put forth a greater effort as this band outclassed the other by a very large degree.

The people of the Tawas area have every right to be proud of such a band, and we would like to commend the director, Gene Salamony, on the results of his time and effort. What a terrific job you have done!

We will continue to patronize the games (as we are avid sports fans), and we look forward to watching many more outstanding performances.

Mrs. Thomas (Penny) LeClair

Saginaw Bay Study Reveals:

Pollution Caused Depletion of Once Abundant Walleye Stock

A sports angler made front page news during the past summer when he caught a walleye in Tawas Bay weighing a little more than nine pounds. The size of this fish was not of primary importance, although the length and weight were exceptional; what made the story newsworthy was the fact that a walleye—regardless of size—was actually caught in these waters!

The excitement created among local anglers over that lone landing seems amazing for Saginaw Bay once supported the largest walleye commercial fishery on the Great Lakes and the annual yield occasionally reached more than two-million pounds.

What happened to the walleye or the yellow pickerel of Saginaw Bay? The sad story of the loss of this great commercial and sport fish is contained in a new research paper prepared by J. C. Schneider, Institute of Fisheries Research, Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

A first draft copy of the report prior to official publication was made available to The Tawas Herald two weeks ago for presentation to readers of this newspaper.

Water pollution was the primary cause of the destruction of this species and exploitation by commercial fishermen played only a secondary role, according to Schneider. Saginaw Bay still could be supporting a valuable yellow pickerel population had it not been for the large amount of industrial wastes poured into the Saginaw River or the untreated human waste dumped into the bay by shoreline communities.

Although Schneider's research paper does not consider the improved water quality of recent years, much has been done to "clean up" the water of Saginaw Bay and the yellow pickerels might someday return to the bay.

Saginaw Bay supported one of the largest walleye populations and fisheries on the Great Lakes until a decline occurred in the late 1940s. Most of the catch was made during the spawning migration into the shallow, inner part of the bay near the mouth of the Saginaw River, but some smaller walleyes were taken during a fall migration.

Schneider states that all evidence indicates that the inner part of the bay and its tributaries served as the major spawning and nursery grounds; the outer part of the bay and the adjacent waters of Lake Huron were the summer home of the adult and sub-adult walleyes and this population contributed to fisheries as far away as Thunder Bay.

Fisheries were established in the Saginaw Bay area in the 1830s and the magnitude of the Saginaw River run in the last century is illustrated by reports that numerous fishermen were taking as many as 1,000 barrels in 1858 and that walleyes were caught at the rate of several tons per haul in 1871.

This fishery had dwindled by the turn of the century and reports by conservation officers and the Bay City Hatchery indicated that only a small run remained by the late 1920s.

According to detailed entries on commercial fishing in the Michigan ledgers, 1891-1908, seine fisheries also existed in or near the Pine and Rifle Rivers, Arenac County. Large quantities of walleyes were also taken at the mouth of the Kawkawlin River, a name given by the Indians which means "place of the pickerel," at least as far back as 1843.

The ice fishery on Saginaw Bay was once very important. In January 1875, 300 or 400 shanties were located off the mouth of the Saginaw River and in 1905 it was reported that 500 to 2,000 fishermen and unemployed workers lived several months on the ice to catch walleyes.

Commercial fishing statistics show that the catch from Saginaw Bay fluctuated, but without a long term trend, up until the mid-1920s. From a low point then, the catch increased to an all time high of 2,049,420 pounds in 1942, declined abruptly, stabilized at a low level in 1949-64, then collapsed. Commercial walleye fishing was prohibited after 1969.

Schneider states that the abrupt explosion of the sauger population in the 1920s and 1930s was the first indicator of changes in the bay. Exploitation played a secondary role in the decrease of walleyes, as the size structure of the population during the 1940s does not

Lakes Fisheries Station by the Herald concerning the fish brought a research report dealing with walleyes in the Great Lakes which is soon to be published.—Tawas Herald Photo.

"Barney Long has started out with his steam threshing equipment to do our farmers justice, as in former years. He commenced on September 24 for himself and threshed 40 bushels of spring wheat from one acre and 132 bushels of oats from three acres. How's that for the Hemlock Road and Isosco County?"

The above news item in the September 26, 1893, issue of The Tawas Herald should serve as a reminder to many old-time farmers living today of the important part steam once played during the fall harvest season.

The nineteenth century saw a revolution in farm implements and one of the most notable advances was introduction of the steam traction engine. Development of these smoke-belching behemoths saw their rapid adaptation for agricultural purposes throughout the country. The use of steam on small farms of Northeastern Michigan was limited primarily to providing power during threshing operations; in the prairie states, such tractors were used to break up the sod during initial stages of farming.

Several Isosco County farmers, including the aforementioned Barney Long and the Lathams of the Hemlock Road, acquired threshing machines and steam engines to do the work of harvesting for themselves and their neighbors. A number of the steam engines utilized for local agricultural purposes were holdovers from the late stages of the lumbering era, when steam provided power for portable sawmills.

A typical case might be J. T. Guilford, who settled at Hunt's Post Office—now South Branch—an early day thresherman who provided his services to Plainfield Township and Eastern Ogemaw County farmers.

J. T. GUILFORD, an early day thresherman in Western Isosco County, is shown on the front of his steam traction engine. Guilford first used his engine on a portable sawmill and, after the end of local timbering operations, switched to the threshing business.

According to his granddaughter, Mrs. Fay Proper of Tawas City, Guilford and his wife came by steamboat to Tawas in 1882 from Saginaw County, then headed inland to the Isosco-Ogemaw County line.

Guilford brought with him by boat a portable sawmill powered by a steam engine, but had to wait about a year before a railroad was completed in order to move his equipment to his new site.

For a number of years, Guilford floated his logs across a small lake still bearing his name in Ogemaw County in order to reach his mill site, now owned by the Detroit Hunt and Fish Club. Guilford operated his mill there for a number of years and, when the pine timber finally gave out, he purchased a threshing machine.

Using the steam traction engine which formerly supplied the power for his sawmill, Guilford traveled around the Western Isosco County area during the fall harvest season and provided his threshing services to area farmers.

For nearly one-half a century these noisy, fire-belching monsters ruled the harvest fields, their massive driving wheels biting deeply into the earth. Steam traction engines were manufactured from 1865 until 1930, but the years of their greatest popularity were between 1890 and 1925. In 1910, there were as many different sizes, makes and models of steamers as there are of cars and trucks today.

In their day, the steamers cost about a dime a pound. Many a farmer lost everything he had trying to pay for one of these giants. Those who made money with them were men who could handle big crews, run and repair their own machines efficiently.

One quality that made these adaptable machines so popular was that, like horses, they could be run off the country: Wood or straw for fuel, water for the boilers and, in an emergency, melted beef tallow for cylinder oil and grease.

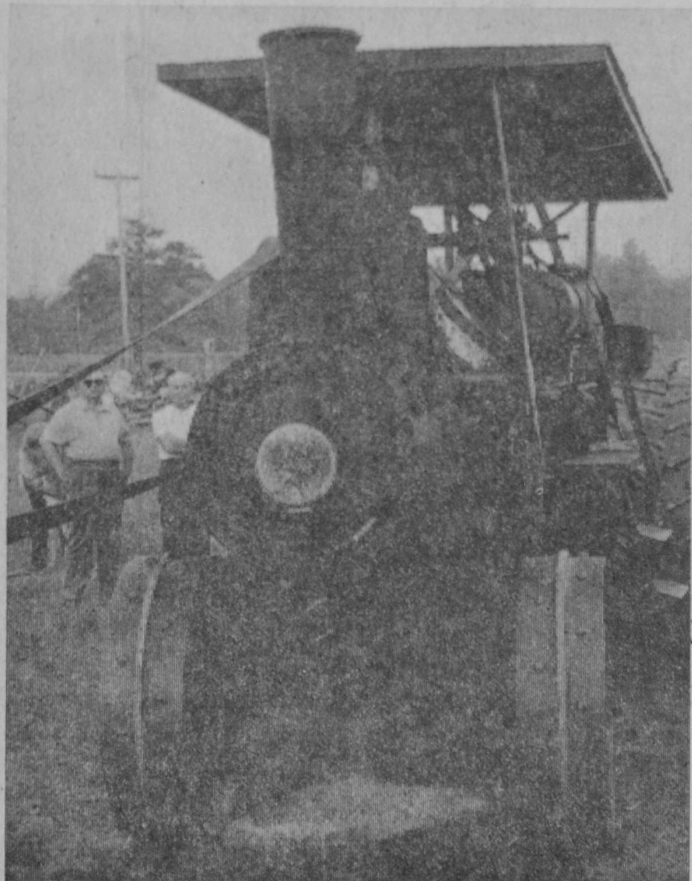

All steam tractors had one thing in common: Their engines turned very slowly in comparison to modern tractors—at a rate of from 200 to 300 revolutions per minute. As a result, engines suffered very little wear and many steamers have given over 50 years of continuous service.

One of the serious drawbacks to movement of threshing equipment—a steam engine towing a heavy water wagon and the huge grainer—were the numerous bridges dotting the countryside. The monster steam engines had the habit of crunching through the decks of weak wooden bridges, which proved dangerous for the operator and most discomforting for township officials, who faced repair bills until laws were enacted compelling the errant owners of such equipment to pay for damages.

Feeding the "threshing crew" had a special significance to those times. A sort of county fair atmosphere prevailed, for it was an opportunity for the women to prove their reputation as cooks: Nothing fancy, just good, well-cooked food and lots of it for hard working men.

Threshing time was exciting for farm children. The housewife baked and prepared all food possible a day or so in advance. "It was never certain just when the steam thresherman would blow the whistle to let you know your stop

THIS RUMLEY-ADVANCE steam traction engine is one of the few remaining in Northern Michigan. It is owned by George and Neil Erickson of Burleigh Township.

CROUCHING between wagons loaded with grain shocks, the separator gulped down sheaves with a great roaring and shaking and sent out clouds of dust and chaff. Ample power was furnished by a steam engine which operated the equipment with ease, turning at the comparatively slow rate of 200 to 300 revolutions per minute.

West Branch Pledge Center Aided Telethon

The West Branch phone pledge center helped the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon go over the 21-million-dollar mark. Money raised goes toward research for muscular dystrophy and patient service. Locally, $15,192 was called in pledges which goes to national foundation. This compared to $11,750 pledged last year.
 Cecil Hyde, president of the West Branch Area Chapter, said, "It's just beautiful," after watching the final tally go on the board. "The people were very generous and the volunteers worked very hard to make the telethon the success it was," Hyde said.

 In addition to the amount pledged, $2,963.85 was collected at the "fish bowl" located outside the Masonic Temple in West Branch. People came from all over the area to add to the collection.
 The local Muscular Dystrophy Association chapter includes Gladwin, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Alcona, Iosco and Arenac Counties. There are four patients that the chapter takes care of at this time.

LOOKING BACKWARD—

Tawas City Has Parking Problem

September 27, 1961—That Tawas City is faced with an acute parking problem was strongly emphasized by state highway department representatives at a meeting held at Tawas Area High School. A traffic engineer told about 125 businessmen and civic leaders that anticipated removal of parking through Tawas City would be the advent of opening new highways which connect with US-23.

Firemen from Bay City conducted an underwriters test for Tawas City's new fire truck Saturday afternoon. The new 500-gallon-per-minute pumper cost $17,000.

Initial plans for observing East Tawas' centennial in 1962 are to be made at a meeting tonight at the community building. Mayor C. V. Miller said that it is to be a general meeting to determine who is interested in assisting with the program and to establish the time length of the observance.

The Salvation Army has announced it will conduct a drive for funds to help finance operation of its Red Shield-USO Club at the Oscoda Air Base. Since its opening, over 5,000 cups of coffee and 460 dozen cookies have been served to servicemen. The Tawas City Garden Club is sponsor of the local fund raising campaign.

The new junction of M-55 and US-23 in Tawas City is being threatened with washout caused by the constant pounding of waves on the shoreline of Tawas Bay. The erosion problem along Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay was again emphasized during Wednesday's heavy gale and property owners are fighting a losing battle in an effort to prevent waves from undermining buildings along the shore.

Sgt. William Galliker, a member of the paratroops stationed at Ft. Bragg, North Carolina, is home on leave for a few days with his parents.

35 Years Ago—

September 26, 1941—Farmers interested in buying government-owned corn can obtain information from the Iosco County Triple-A office. The Department of Agriculture has announced that the Commodity Credit Corporation has offered government No. 2 yellow corn stored in terminal and sub-terminal elevators for sale into consumption channels at market prices between 74 and 78 cents per bushel.

The WPA library project for this county announces that a book truck will be furnished to service areas without libraries, including the rural schools. Miss Lenore Hass of the WPA has been assigned to promote development of the county library.

Iosco County schools will be closed Thursday and Friday, October 9-10, for regional conferences of the Michigan Education Association. Students are asked to use these two days for their duck hunting.

The Madison Pickle Company has closed its station at Hale and reports a good season. Some farmers have made more than $250 from one acre.

Mrs. Fred Blust and Edward Lemke will prepare and serve meals in the hot lunch program at Tawas City School. Each student expecting to participate should bring a cup, spoon and soup plate to leave at the kitchen during the year. About 100 children will be served daily.

County Extension Director

How do you know when you or a member of your family is sick enough that a doctor should be called? Arlinda Perlow, extension community health associate, Michigan State University, shares these guidelines for calling a doctor when adults are sick. In a future column, I will share the guidelines that apply to sick children. You may want to clip this column and tape it inside your medicine cabinet for future reference.

Do not call a doctor outside of office hours for an adult with:

1. Minor ills, such as colds.
2. Mild rash with no other symptoms.
3. Low fever - under 102 degrees Fahrenheit unaccompanied by other symptoms.
4. One bout of diarrhea or vomiting unaccompanied by severe abdominal pain.

5. Things that can wait, such as a minor backache that you have had all week.

Do call a doctor for an adult, no matter what the hour for:

1. Serious accident or injury including animal bite, a fall causing much bleeding, fracture (actual or suspected), severe burns, accidental poisoning (actual or suspected).
2. Sudden severe pain anywhere either continuing or intermittent.
3. Increase or decrease in pulse rate, rapid breathing, shortness of breath.
4. Loss of consciousness, no matter how short a time.
5. Sudden worsening of any symptom (for example, suddenly much higher fever, headache that does not respond to medication).
6. Unexplained discharge of blood from any body opening.
7. Any sign of internal bleeding even if there may be no outward sign of injury if the person has been in an accident, had a bad fall, has a peptic ulcer; faintness, dizziness, weak or rapid pulse, shallow or irregular breathing, clammy skin (cold sweat).
8. Sudden problem with sight or hearing, mental confusion, con-

Threshing

was next," recalled Mrs. Grace Adams of Hale in the 1968 history of Plainfield Township.

The neighbor women came and helped as the crew usually consisted of 12 to 14 men. The dinner was all prepared on the farm—home-made bread, butter, creamed cabbage, sliced tomatoes, squash, potatoes, chicken and pies of every kind.

The men hauled the grain from the field with wagons and one day usually threshed the largest farm. The men washed in a tub by the farmer's well and there was a dipper at the pump from which all used to drink. Youngsters saw that the woodbox was full at all times and that the water pail was never empty.

Any kind of machinery had a fascination for small children, but especially the steam engine and threshing machine, which usually stood exposed to the weather 10 months of the year. But when threshing time came, it usually worked after only a few minor repairs and adjustments.

Crouching between the high grain stacks, the machine gulped down the sheaves with a great roaring and shaking, sending out clouds of dust and chaff; it filled the big sacks with oats and wheat and piled the clean, yellow straw higher and higher.

For a number of farm families in Iosco, such machines provided a major source of income; for many youngsters, it provided endless hours of entertainment and pleasure.

Now nearly all of the steam engines and threshing machines have disappeared, having been replaced by the internal combustion engine and modern grain combining methods. A few survive in collections, lovingly restored to working order by enthusiasts, to recall an era when steam changed farming methods.

One of the few machines to survive locally is an ancient Rumley Advance owned by George and Neil Erickson of Burleigh Township. Neil Erickson is a collector of antique farm equipment and, until this fall, had staged an annual threshermen's reunion at the Erickson farm southwest of Whittemore.

Erickson demonstrated his steam engine and equipment at Alpena this summer but his annual threshing bee fell victim to modern society—the risk of injury to spectators was too great and liability insurance is too expensive for a free demonstration.

Several other demonstrations of steam tractions are held in various parts of the state each year, one of the most notable being at Greenfield Village, Dearborn.

This threshermen's festival is held each October and, when it was originated three years ago, Lyle Hughes, a former Tawas City resident and now an executive handling details for such demonstrations at Greenfield Village, scoured the state in order to find a supply of oats in the shock.

Hughes recalled reading in The Tawas Herald about similar demonstrations held at the Erickson farm, but a hurried telephone call to this newspaper failed to locate any shocked oats in Iosco County—and era had ended, for combines now do the work of the old time threshing machines. As a result, Hughes now makes his arrangements with farmers for a supply of oats in the shock long before the annual festival.

suggest that over fishing was taking place although commercial fishing did put added stress on the population after the crash began.

The DNR biologist discounts a 1959 report that sea lamprey predation was the primary cause for the decline of both the walleye and the lake trout. "On the contrary, larger walleyes predominated during the late 1940s when the sea lamprey was at its peak and the lake trout, had already been exterminated," states Schneider.

For a number of years, the Bay City Hatchery successfully incubated walleye eggs in inshore water, but the hatchery was permanently closed in 1945 because insufficient numbers of eggs were obtained. In 1932, 60 boats docked in the Saginaw River were supplying eggs to the hatchery but, by 1938, this number had dropped to 32 and during the 1940s that fishery disappeared.

Significantly, the last walleye ground to decline was the one furthest away from the influence of the Saginaw River. Fishermen claimed that pollution via the Saginaw River and other tributaries was responsible for the decline of the Saginaw Bay walleye fishery. This view is supported by Schneider.

"The importance of water quality in the Saginaw River to the spawning areas in the inner bay can be appreciated by the fact that the river discharges a volume of water equal to the volume of the inner bay (that area southwest of a line from Sand Point to Point Lookout) every 2.4 years," writes Schneider.

A silting problem, initiated by early logging methods, was aggravated by intensive agricultural practices—including ditching and tilling—and by the sluggish river current. Nutrients contributed by the rich soils, fertilizers and domestic sewage, increased substantially as the Saginaw Valley developed. Population in the four major cities in the watershed expanded from 85,000 in 1900 to 322,000 in 1950. Bay City and Saginaw did not install primary sewage treatment plants until the early 1950s.

The Saginaw basin has also been subjected to severe pollution from chemical, petroleum, heavy manufacturing, sugar refining and canning industries.

Biennial reports by the Michigan Stream Control Commission trace the history of the problem: Pollution increased in severity after World War I and, by the mid-1920s, the report stated that fishery interests of Saginaw Bay had suffered losses definitely traceable to pollution of the Saginaw River and its tributaries. In addition, World War II disrupted the pollution control program.

Phenolic wastes had an obvious impact on the fishery and the result was a tainting of walleye and other fish in the bay during winter and early spring. Unfortunately, there is no information available on the concentration of phenols in bay water or bay sediments, but it seems that phenols are released when the sediments are rolled by storms.

A change in environment caused by man has been blamed for the loss of this once important part of the commercial fishing industry. What the future holds for Saginaw Bay is still questionable, for a greater effort must be made to improve water quality and that, too, is man's responsibility.
