

Possible Closing of Base

Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Oscoda, is identified as a possible alternative base for closure by September 30, 1977, according to information released Friday by the air force.

The information is included in an environmental impact statement concerning relocation and closure of two bomb wings at Kincheloe Air Force Base.

The environmental impact statement points out that the closure of any of the bases would have an impact on adjacent communities. Copies of the statement are available for study at the Wurtsmith Information Office and Oscoda Public Library.

An informal public hearing is planned to be held at Oscoda. The exact time and location is to be announced later. Comments received at the public hearing would be used in preparing a final environmental statement.

Jury Finds No Cause in Suit Against Oscoda School Bd.

A six-member Iosco County Circuit Court jury deliberated about three hours Wednesday before bringing in a no cause of action verdict at 8:20 p. m. in a $400,000 damage suit against Oscoda Area Board of Education.

The jury's action in finding for the defendant board of education culminated a five-day trial before Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller which was brought by Taisto C. Filppula, who had been fired as superintendent of the Oscoda Area School on June 30, 1975, one year before the expiration of his contract.

Earlier in the day, Judge Miller, on motion of attorneys for the defendants, signed a directed verdict dismissing the complaint against individual members of the board of education. In Filppula's original complaint, he sought damages against the board of education, jointly and severally.

The plaintiff contended that his contract termination had been malicious, that it had been accompanied by vague, general and untrue charges and that the board of education had commented in a derogatory manner about his professional competence.

Defendants in the suit were William F. Blake Kutsche, William Brandt, Josephine Diloreto, Richard Wheeler, Frank Bissonette Jr., Bruce Myles and Frieda Tamulevich, all members of the board of education.

Two motions for mistrial entered during court proceedings by attorneys for the defendant board of education were denied by Judge Miller.

In his charge to the jury, Judge Miller said that the board of education maintained during its court testimony that its authority to discharge the superintendent was contained in the state school code of 1955 and, therefore, was permitted to breach a contract between the board of education and the superintendent. He said the jury was to decide if a statement read by Mrs. DiLoreto at a meeting to consider the contract termination was sufficient, clear cut and in full compliance with board policy concerning contract termination.

Judge Miller instructed the jury that the plaintiff alleged that the contract had been breached without cause, without due process of law, that the board of education failed to follow its own established policies, that the breach was illegal and violated Filppula's constitutional rights.

Had the jury found in favor of the plaintiff, it was to establish compensatory as well as exemplary damages.

Fire Danger Still Serious in Region

Despite recent rains in some areas, the ban on open burning in public or private forest lands or adjacent grasslands, swamps or such areas in Northern Michigan remains in effect.

Conditions have been so dry for so long throughout the area that rain last week has not been enough to reduce the dangerously high forest fire hazard.

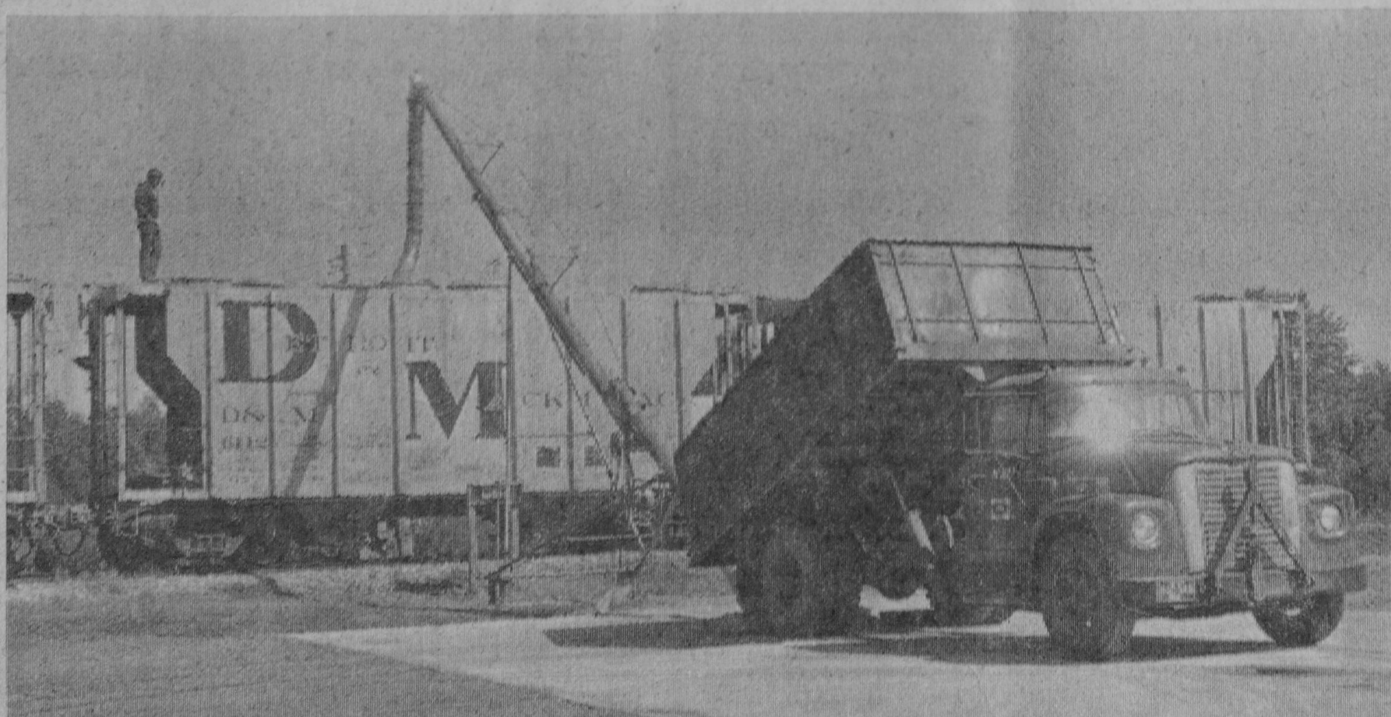

Because of the threat of life and property, the ban is to remain in effect throughout the 33 northern-most counties in the Lower Peninsula and all of the Upper Peninsula.

Republicans Open Iosco Office

Iosco County Republican Headquarters opened this morning (Wednesday) at Oscoda. Sponsored by the Republican Party of Iosco County, the office is located at 101 East Bank across from the Gamble Store.

Office managers are Delphine Weisl of Oscoda and Elizabeth Rosenberg of East Tawas. The office is open weekdays from 10:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m.

Mrs. Rosenberg said that volunteers were needed to staff the office. Interested persons may telephone 739-7421 or 739-3831.

A NEW LOADING INSTALLATION has been constructed at the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company's siding at National City by Mackinac Land and Cattle Company as a center for its grain shipping operations. About 12 carloads of wheat have been shipped from that point during the past two weeks and approximately 10,000 bushels of wheat are to be loaded this week. Main activity at the new installation is to start shortly when corn is to be loaded into special hopper cars. A spokesman for Mackinac Land and Cattle Company, C. A. Pinkerton III, said Tuesday that the firm is in the process of purchasing corn from local farmers to add to the product of the firm's operation in Western Iosco County. Last season, the firm utilized the railroad yard in Tawas City for its shipping operations, but has developed this new site as being more centrally located in the county to minimize hauling of grain by trucks. Pinkerton said the new operation opens an additional market for corn grown by local farmers and it is expected that this new loading installation will be expanded in the future.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Patient Documentation Not Received

Iosco Withholds Mental Health Check

Due to the lack of documentation on a billing, Iosco County has withheld payment of a $7,800 charge for maintaining county patients in state mental institutions. Counties are required to pay 8.2 percent of the cost of patient care.

County Treas. Edward Nelkie reported to the county board of commissioners that previous billings from the state had averaged less than $2,000 per month.

Nelkie said, however, that his main reason for not issuing a voucher to the state was the fact that the billing did not include documentation as to names of patients in institutions.

He said that a list of names had always been provided with previous billings from the Department of Mental Health, which apparently deleted this action as a violation of the patient's privacy.

The county treasurer has insisted that he, alone, is responsible for payment of funds out of the county treasury and must answer questions of state auditors concerning payment of bills. He said he could not do this if patient documentation is deleted from the billing.

He pointed out, too, that while most records in his office are open to the public, such records dealing with the names of county patients in mental institutions are maintained in separate locked files and available only to the county treasurer. He pointed out, too, that he was sworn to a secrecy oath in such matters.

Nelkie emphasized that documentation was necessary in order to determine if the patient is an actual resident of the county. In the past, he has found the names of nonresidents on the list which were later deleted by the state at a savings of about $17,000 to the county. His investigation was conducted in private through the probate court office and other channels.

Nelkie, who is president-elect of the Michigan Association of County Treasurers, said that the matter is of concern to other counties of the state and objections have been registered with the Department of Mental Health. Joseph Fox, a member of Iosco County Board of Commissioners, recently reported the matter to a district meeting of commissioners and received support from that group for Nelkie's action.

The county treasurer said he had questioned the lack of documentation when the billing was received, but was told by the Department of Mental Health that names of patients on monthly billings were now being screened by the district mental health board at Alpena.

Due to past errors and the $5,600 increase in the last month's billing, Nelkie was of the opinion that a mental health board at Alpena would be unable to accurately determine the actual county in which a patient had resided before entering a mental institution. He does not believe that the number of patients has increased to such an extent as shown on the new billing and refuses to make the payment until he has the opportunity to screen the list of names personally. Accuracy of the list is important, he said, for mental health costs to the county would jump to more than $90,000 annually as compared to $22,000 last year. The county treasurer was given the complete support of the county board of commissioners in the matter.

THE NEW Whittemore plant of Valeron Corporation is pictured above. Work started on the structure last fall and was completed a few weeks ago. The plant has not reached full production as yet due to a delay in receiving machinery.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Valeron's Second Iosco County Plant Now in Operation Near Whittemore

Valcraft Division of Valeron Corporation moved into its new Whittemore plant last week and has initially employed 15 persons in its operation. William Chase is manager.

Delivery is awaited on two additional pieces of equipment and 50 to 60 persons are expected to be employed there once the plant reaches full operation.

This is the second plant in Iosco County for Valeron Corporation, which produces precision gears and cutting tools in a world-wide operation with 52 different installations. One plant is located in the Tawas Area Industrial Park in Baldwin Township.

Construction of the new 14,300-square foot manufacturing building, located one-half mile east of Whittemore, is the result of a community-wide effort on the part of residents of that community. Ground was broken last November for the $218,000 concrete block building.

Idea for promoting the Western

Iosco County area as a location for industry was conceived five years ago and a Whittemore Industrial Development Corporation was organized a year ago.

A committee was first formed to interest the firm in locating at Whittemore and, after nearly a year of negotiations, efforts of the original committee resulted in forming of the Whittemore IDC.

The building is owned by the Whittemore IDC, which has leased it to Valeron with an option to purchase. The IDC purchased 3 1/2 acres of land for location of the new building and has an option to purchase additional acreage for establishment of an industrial park.

More than 50 individuals from Whittemore, Hale, the Tawasess, Prescott, Turner and West Branch made personal investments of about $70,000 in the IDC and a mortgage was handled by the and Merchants State Bank of Whittemore branch of Farmers Hale.

Quiet Labor Day Week-End in Iosco

A relatively "quiet" Labor Day week-end was reported Tuesday by the Iosco County Sheriff's Department. Five persons were injured in motorbike accidents and four persons received minor injuries in an automobile crash.

James L. Miller, 20, Saginaw, was treated Friday at Tawas Hospital after his motorbike turned over on private property.

Three persons were injured Sunday in an accident on Saginaw Road at the Sand Lake Road intersection. Officers said that Virginia L. Simmonds, 18, Davison, ran in front of a motorbike operated by Gerald A. McCullough, 27, Swartz Creek. A passenger, Rickie E. VanAuken, 28, Goodrich, along with the driver and Miss Simmonds, were treated at Tawas Hospital.

Roy F. Zmudzynski, 28, Warren, was treated Monday at Tawas Hospital after he lost control of his motorbike on private property.

Four persons were injured Sunday in a crash on River Road, Oscoda Township. Treated at Tawas Hospital were James D. Cooley, 20, Paris, Illinois, driver; Iona Keezer, Hale; Sandra Raines, Oscoda; Brian L. Heath, 18, Wurtsmith Air Force Base. Cooley was traveling east on River Road and lost control of his vehicle.

Carl Brien Resigns at TA; Goes to Petoskey

Carl Brien, assistant band director at Tawas Area School for the past two years, resigned his position effective Friday to become the new head band director at Petoskey High School. He had served here under Gene Salamony, director.

Brien had charge of the marching band as well as the cadet and junior bands. The position is not to be filled by the board of education.

Dist. Health: No Significant Increase in VD

The District Health Department reported Tuesday that there have been nine cases of venereal diseases confirmed in Iosco County to date during 1976, but the report emphasized that none of the cases have incriminated a local business place.

The report was in answer to a statement made at the last meeting of the Tawas City Council in which it was reported that 25 cases of venereal disease had been traced to a local business place.

All cases of venereal disease are investigated by the health department, according to the spokesman, who believed that those reported here were based on rumor.

The District Health Department spokesman said, however, that venereal disease was a serious problem throughout the state and the nation and there were many misconceptions concerning the communicability of such diseases. It was stated that the health department would continue its normal investigations when any future cases are reported.

Auxiliary Mail Route Formed

Establishment of an auxiliary mail route to reduce two other routes has been announced by Leonard Hosbach, postmaster of Tawas City.

Auxiliary route three, comprising a distance of 26.45 miles, has been formed by reducing mileage on route one and route two. Named temporary carrier on the new route is Eldene McArdle, who had been a substitute carrier on route one.

Hosbach said this appointment, along with appointment of carriers on route one and route two, are to be made next month following the annual mail count September 13-25. It is also necessary to follow the national agreement with the carrier union before the postmaster makes the appointments.

Most of the families comprising the new mail route came off route one, which has been reduced to 57.2 miles with William Shover as temporary carrier. Route two, with Johanne Grabow as carrier, comprises 51.9 miles.

The new route primarily serves the area of North Park Acres, Monument Road, Bay Drive and Elms Gardens.

Iosco to Consider Reports on Landfill

Iosco County Board of Commissioners is to give consideration today (Wednesday) to reports submitted by townships and municipalities concerning use of the county's sanitary landfill off Monument Road.

A request for increased financing has been received from the contractor which provides this service. The county board of commissioners asked each governmental unit of the county to make a detailed report on actual use of the facility.

Joseph Fox, chairman of the commission's building and grounds committee, said that the report would have a bearing on additional money to be paid to the contractor.

Alda-Lee Marriage Vows Exchanged at East Tawas

Grace Lutheran Church, East Tawas, was the scene of the double ring ceremony Saturday, September 4, uniting in marriage the former Karen Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lee, East Tawas, and Donald Alda, son of Mrs. Robert Alda, East Tawas, and the late Mr. Alda.

The Rev. William A. Graf and the Rev. Robert E. Beyer performed the 4:30 o'clock ceremony, which was followed by a reception for approximately 400 guests from Grand Rapids, Lansing, Pigeon, Houghton Lake, Missouri, Minnesota, New York and Illinois at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall, AuGres. Mrs. Douglas Reid rendered a vocal selection accompanied by Mrs. Charles Nash, organist.

The bride descended the aisle in a gown with modified Empire styling featuring a high rounded neckline and bishop sleeves accented with sculptured Venice lace. The floor-length skirt was enhanced with sculptured lace and tiny seed pearls, complemented by a chapel train and fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, babies breath and rosebuds.

Mrs. Jack Gracik was matron of honor with Mrs. Randy Siefert of Belleville, Illinois, and Mrs. Charles Brookins of Grand Rapids, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. Julie Brookins was flower girl. All wore pink and blue gingham floor-length gowns and wide brimmed hats. They carried matching dyed daisies and babies breath.

Hamburgers the family will go for!

Whether in the backyard or at your favorite picnic site, grilled hamburgers are a popular item on the menu. And for the creative cook, looking for something different, we offer these two ideas — Sweet 'N Sour Burgers and Stuffed Grilled Hamburgers.

The burgers are a taste-tempting blend of flavors and textures. A zesty sauce is brushed over the Sweet 'N Sour Burgers and served with slices of pineapple and Mandarin orange segments. Whereas, Stuffed Grilled Hamburgers have a barbecue sauce mixed into the meat to blend with the cheese, relish and onion stuffing. Both burgers contain oats which lock the savory meat juices up inside where they belong.

STUFFED GRILLED HAMBURGERS

| 2 lb. ground beef | 1/2 cup shredded mild Cheddar cheese |
| 3/4 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked | 1/4 cup sweet pickle relish, drained |

PP&K Contest Set September 17

Tawas youngsters will be loosening up their throwing arms soon for the 1976 punt, pass and kick competition.

Co-sponsored this year at the local level by Tawas Area Board of Education in conjunction with Inglis Ford Sales of Tawas City, the PP&K competition is celebrating its 16th anniversary. It is sponsored by Ford dealers of America in cooperation with the National Football League.

Since it was started in 1961, the program has attracted 12 million youngsters and participation this year is expected to top the 1,200,000 mark.

The local contest will be held Friday, September 17. Youths may register at the school office.

Participants in the program compete only against others their own age. Particulars may be secured from an advertisement appearing on this page.

There is no entrance fee and no body contact during competition. No special equipment is needed and participation does not impair a youngster's amateur standing.

Scoring is based on accuracy and range with one point added for every foot of punting, passing and kicking distance. A point is subtracted for every foot off a center line.

Twelve national finalists will compete for the national championships in their age group during halftime of an NFL Divisional playoff game in December.

Winners will have their names permanently inscribed in the Professional Football Hall of Fame, Canton, Ohio. Trophies are to be presented by Pete Rozelle, football commissioner.

150 Points Are Listed on Brochure

Some 150 points of interest along I-75, "Michigan's Bicentennial Highway," are highlighted in a special booklet available to the public at state highway department tourist centers or from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

The booklet is patterned after Auto Club's Triptiks and its 36 pages describe the historic, natural, geological, agricultural, structural and industrial highlights that can be seen as one travels I-75 in Michigan.

Entitled "I-75, The Michigan Bicentennial Highway," it has a large Interstate Highway shield emblazoned on its cover and displays the official emblem of the American Revolution Bicentennial.

An article in Auto Club's August Motor News magazine entitled "How to Enjoy Michigan's I-75 More This Bicentennial Year," states that, "Because of its length, 400 miles in Michigan, and the fact that I-75 links the state's two oldest cities, Detroit and Sault Ste. Marie, the Michigan Legislature passed a resolution designating the freeway as 'Michigan's Bicentennial Freedom Way' as part of the state's bicentennial observance."

Following that special designation, the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation began placing the now familiar red, white and blue bicentennial symbols on the lower portion of the green and white mileposts along I-75 closest to points of interest, Motor News reports.

The points designated on those milepost markers are described in the brochures, which were designed and published cooperatively by Auto Club, the Michigan Departments of State Highways and Transportation and Natural Resources and Winkelman's, a Detroit-based women's apparel chain.

"No one traveling I-75 on vacation or a business trip should be without one of these interesting little booklets," says Auto Club general manager, James G. Moffat. "They not only help miles go by faster, they also add to one's knowledge of Michigan."

Public Works Funds Slashed for Michigan

The 240-million dollars scheduled for Michigan and local governments under the Federal Public Works Act has been changed to $157,000,000 by the federal Economic Development Administration (EDA), area government leaders learned August 31 at a meeting of East Central Michigan Planning and Development Region.

David W. Gay, ECPMDR executive director, made the announcement before more than 100 determined area leaders representing all levels of local government in the 14-county region. Spirits undampened by the announcement, the leaders heard Gay review EDA rules and regulations necessary to obtain a grant.

Among those from this area attending the meeting was City Mgr. Reginald Bulbitz of Tawas City.

During the special two-hour meeting, marked by spirited questions and answers, many projects were brought to light. Some communities are considering development of industrial parks, criminal detention facilities, a city parking ramp, a special seawall harbor project, additions to government buildings, new government buildings, a library and many other projects.

According to EDA ranking procedures, the number of unemployed workers in a project area will constitute 30 percent of the projects basic rank, 25 percent will be determined by severity and duration of unemployment and 30 percent by the number of people involved in the project.

Additional considerations for project ranking include 10 percent for projects that exhibit potential for long term benefits, five percent for projects sponsored by local governments and five percent for plans that promote or advance long range community or regional long range plans and programs.

Tawas Harbor Project May Start This Fall

Possible commencement of the Tawas Bay Harbor project this fall was revealed last week by Keith Wilson, chief of the Michigan Waterways Commission.

The Corps of Engineers announced August 27 in advance notice to bidders that the federal government will be requesting formal bids for the project on or about September 3, with a pre-empted bid opening of October 4.

The established bid opening date is to be announced when plans and specifications are available, according to the waterways commission chief.

Audubon Society to Meet Sept. 9 at Hale School

Iosco Audubon Society will meet Thursday, September 9, 7:30 p. m., at Hale Area High School. William Stark, Tawas Point State Park manager, will present a program on the calypso orchid, this year's featured endangered species by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

On Saturday, September 11, the group will conduct a bird hike starting at 10:00 a. m. in the picnic area parking lot at Tawas Point State Park. The public is welcome to attend both events.

END OF AN ERA?

After the 1947-48 seasons, it was all downhill for Saginaw Bay-Lake Huron deep trap net commercial fishermen. The white fish never disappeared completely—there were a few tantalizing "good" seasons for the dwindling ranks of Tawas and Oscoda fishermen, who kept hoping for another big year which "was sure to come."

Biologists say that there were a number of factors contributing to the depletion of white fish and lake trout stocks, but they point the finger at the commercial fishermen, themselves, as the primary cause for ruination of their own industry. This is a tough pill to swallow, for no man wishes to be responsible for depletion of a natural resource—fishermen included.

It is not that the warning signs were not there—too much pressure on the important white fish spawning grounds of Saginaw Bay was evident before 1900, but either were not comprehended or ignored by fishermen, the public, early conservation officials and the state legislature—which always seemed to submit to heavy pressure from a fishing lobby—who must now share the responsibility equally.

Randy Eshenroder, fish biologist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, told the Herald only last week that water quality of Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron has no direct bearing on the depletion of white fish stocks—with one exception and that came long before 1900. To state it simply, he said that the hereditary characteristics of all life are controlled by dominant genes through years of reproduction and that there are actual differences in the same class of fish, just as there are differences in man.

As an example, he said that certain white fish had spawned in rivers through hereditary development. This was the first "class" of white fish which disappeared in the 1880s and before, when its habitat was destroyed by pollution of rivers through uncontrolled dumpings of sawdust and sawlog slabs into streams.

River spawning white fish were not dominant in the Saginaw Bay fishery, fortunately, but it was one of the first of a number of different hereditary classes which was lost to the total stock of this particular species. In addition, habits of the fish also change with the environment.

He emphasized, however, that overproduction probably had the greatest bearing on the depletion of the white fish and that impact was not really felt by the fishing industry until the development and subsequent introduction of deep trap or submarine nets into the Lake Huron fishery.

From the earliest days of commercial fishing until 1929, fishermen based at Tawas had used pound or "pond" nets to catch white fish. Use of such nets required great labor on the part of the fishermen, as stakes driven into the lake bottom were needed to support the nets. Although stakes could be spliced into lengths reaching up to 60 feet, the expense of such an operation was great and there was always the hazard that a sudden storm would ruin months of work. One of the worst storms in history hit Lake Huron in 1915 which practically wiped out all of the available fishing gear.

In addition, the movement of fishermen was controlled somewhat by the provision in state law that utilization of offshore fishing grounds was controlled by riparian ownership of land on the shore. The best fishing grounds were "owned" by individual companies of families until a supreme court ruling struck this law off the books in the mid-1920s.

Introduction of the deep trap net, however, which eliminated the need for driving long stakes, revolutionized the entire Great Lakes fishing industry. The use of this fishing gear also led to overproduction and depletion of spawning stocks. This fact is evident from records at the DNR's Great Lakes Fishery Station at Alpena. In 1929 and prior years, production of white fish never exceeded one-half-million pounds. With introduction of the submarine net, the annual take in 1931 and 1932 rose dramatically to 2½-million pounds for each of those two years, establishing the all-time record catch for white fish.

Coupling this overproduction with the significant influence of increased water pollution in the 1930s, plus damage to fish stocks caused by an increase in the number of sea lamprey in the 1940s, the fishing industry was on a roller coaster ride which was all downhill until that surprise catch of white fish in 1947-48; the top of the hill was reached that year and the roller coaster took a plunge.

Until the 1950s, herring, too, had been an important product of Lake Huron, but this species showed signs of depletion as early as the 1920s. The real reason for the disappearance of herring has not been determined, but it is not believed that overproduction was the cause. This business, too, had its risks for a storm in October 1937 played havoc with herring nets and the commercial fishing business in the area between Point Lookout and White Fish Point sustained a loss of $75,000 in fishing gear through that storm alone.

Unprofitable seasons after 1949 saw commercial fishermen going out of business at a rapid rate. Faced with empty nets and a costly operation, most fishermen stored their huge traps to await better days. Some tried their luck elsewhere—others bided their time here with seasonal runs of smelt and perch, operating on a part time basis.

In 1960, two Tawas fishermen, James and Richard Frank, had the misfortune of losing all of their nets by a fire which destroyed their storage building at East Tawas. Because of the high cost of twine, the nets could not be replaced and that season eventually proved to be one which provided fair results for white fish.

Edward "Bud" Trudell, whose family had been fishing on Saginaw Bay for more than 100 years and had resumed operations again at Bay City after quitting the business 12 years earlier, came to the rescue. The Frank brothers, Clarence Greenwood and Trudell operated out of the Tawas River mouth that season and there was a take of about three tons for the season. Although the price for their catch was high, all of the men had to retain their regular jobs in order to make a living.

Other area fishermen, including Jack Mathews of Oscoda and Norman Brown at the Iosco-Arenac County line, continued in the business until the gradual reduction of white fish stocks made fishing unprofitable. Brown then turned his attention to operation of a party fishing boat business.

The 1960s saw a flurry of activity on Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron as remaining fishermen turned their attention to the yellow perch. A new development in this type of fishing—replacement of the old cotton twine nets by nylon nets—saw a dramatic increase in production as operators from throughout the Great Lakes swarmed into Saginaw Bay for several profitable seasons.

However, there were conflicting views as to the density of the perch population in Saginaw Bay and a hearing was held at East Tawas in November 1965 concerning new regulations proposed by the state which would lower the size limits on gill-net caught perch. The proposal drew strong opposition from local tourist industry representatives, sports anglers and trap netters, who contended that "gypsy" gill netters from Lake Erie were ruining perch seasons on perch in Lake Erie saw large operators from those waters moving into Saginaw Bay, which resulted in considerable hard feelings locally.

Despite local objections, the state removed size limits and closed seasons for the taking of yellow perch in gill nets with a 2 1/2-inch mesh. One of the most significant statements made at the hearing was one by Dr. Howard Tanner, then chief of the Michigan Department of Conservation's fish division, and now its director.

He said that the state found it difficult to support a sports fishery program on the Great Lakes when there was basically no support for a conservation department sports fishing program for those waters.

The need for support of state programs by sports fishermen, principally by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, was soon remedied by the legislature with adoption of sports fishing license requirements, but by April 1970, fish biologists from the DNR warned that the Lake Huron-Saginaw Bay yellow perch population was facing extinction due to over-exploitation by commercial fishermen.

Public support throughout Michigan saw new regulations which protected the yellow perch population, followed by a comprehensive zone management program which had been needed for years and was now a reality.

Under that plan, nearly all of Lake Huron was designated as a rehabilitation zone. Sport fishing only was permitted in certain areas and wasteful gill net fishing was finally banned later in Lower Saginaw Bay. That the ban has been beneficial has been evidenced by the gradual restoration of the yellow perch stock.

Biologist at the Great Lakes Fishery Station at Alpena reported to the Herald last week that white fish operators north of Rogers City have experienced their best season in 15 years and that stocks of white fish have improved in the area between Harrisville and Oscoda.

Lixey Fish Company, the lone operator today at Tawas under a special research permit, reports that the 1976 season on white fish was poor compared to previous years.

Biologists believe that the Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay fishery will show signs of improvement with continued strict supervision of the take of white fish and other species. Although they are far from optimistic about the return of the commercial industry to its former production level, the biologists believe that it can return on a smaller scale.

Saginaw Bay was once termed a perpetual fishery—its waters are not so polluted that it can not again provide commercial fishing, but wise management of reproductive stocks is needed and should be insisted upon by the public at large.

Richter Lixey of East Tawas, who with his brother, Donald, are the last deep trap net operators here, points out a problem with which he is concerned. He said that the Tawas had based part of their reputation in the tourist industry on fish served in restaurants. "It is a terrible thing when people come into the area, go into a restaurant to get some fish and end up with ocean cod."

Lixey believes that Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay have great potential for a commercial fishing industry as well as for the sports fisherman. "Think what some country like Japan would do with this great body of fresh water—if they had it. The Japanese, I am sure, would do everything in their power to encourage the reproduction of fish in that water."

It was his personal opinion that, since adoption of the Great Lakes sports fishing license and the subsequent planting of salmon, the department of natural resources had turned 180 degrees in its attitude toward the commercial fishery. He believes that commercial fishing is important, inasmuch as everyone cannot afford to purchase high priced gear and boats to catch salmon in the fall and that the majority of people are not sports fishermen and still wish to purchase fish in markets or eat fish in restaurants.

He believed that the expansion of the sports fishery through planting could also be utilized in the commercial fishery, but it was his personal opinion that the coho planting program for this area should be eliminated in favor of increased planting of lake trout, brown trout and steelheads—all in their natural habitat.

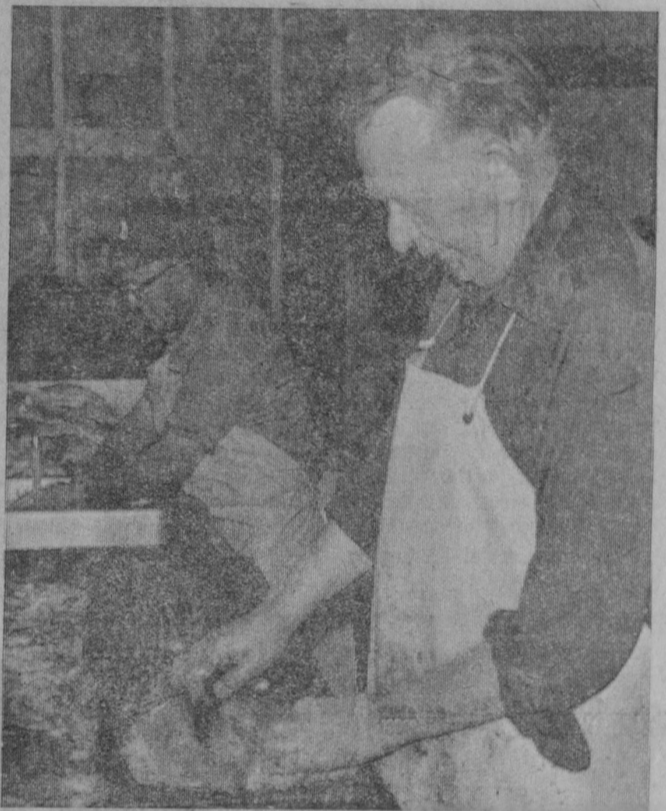

Lixey said it has been a constant struggle to remain in the fishing business and that he has about $90,000 invested in equipment. Except for four years of working in a factory at Flint, returning in 1930, he has spent his entire adult life as a commercial fisherman.

"We had been years and we had good years, but I think we are past the time of pointing a finger at one another concerning the responsibility for destruction of a once important industry. The state has management tools today which can wisely handle the commercial fishing industry. But this industry should not be forgotten entirely and all the emphasis placed in stocking the sports fishery—people who are not sports fishermen like to eat fish, too," said Lixey.

What the future will bring the commercial fishing industry for this area is anyone's guess, but any improvement would be for the better—the industry here has nearly reached its zero point at the present time.

FAMILY LIVING EDUCATION

JOB OF PARENTS GETTING TOUGHER

In spite of the trend in this country toward smaller families, being a parent is not getting easier. In fact, it may very well be getting more difficult.

Because families are smaller, parents tend to have a larger emotional investment in each child. What each child will mean to the parents, the affection the child will give and his or her achievements loom larger in a family of five or six.

The economic squeeze on the family today means that more mothers of preschool children and infants are in the labor force. Working outside the home puts extra pressures on the mother, especially if she feels her place is at home while her children are young.

The working mother of young children also has to cope with society's disapproval of a mother who allows someone else a large share in raising her children. She gets very little support in her dual role.

The actual job of raising children is not made any easier by their exposure, largely through television, to a wide range of conflicting values. The new openness about issues like sexuality, violence and abortion, and the model of illegal activities provided by some prominent public figures make the old hard and fast, black and white rules suddenly seem fluid and flexible.

Yet somehow, the parent must teach his child to be trusting without being glib and to help the child develop a value system that will withstand the pressures of peer groups and the media but remain flexible enough to permit tolerance for others' values and different lifestyles.

The first step is for the parents to clarify their own values. Then, they must try to establish a balance between rigidity, which gives a child no chance to practice making up his own mind, and utter permissiveness, which gives outside pressures full rein to make up the child's mind for him. They can attempt to convey their own values and model them, but they must remain flexible enough to realize that what is right for them now might not be right for their child 10 or 15 years from now. This is part of respecting his dignity as a person and it is a very important part of successful parenting.

The Iosco County Cooperative Extension Service has scheduled a series called "Parents Count" to help parents cope with some of these challenges. It is scheduled for Wednesday evenings, September 22 and 29, October 6 and 13, from 7:00 to 9:00 p. m. Location will be the Tawas United Methodist Church. The series will include sessions on child development, setting limits, communication and ways to respond to children. There will also be an opportunity for each participant to share his or her special concerns about parenting.

Advance reservations for the series are requested. To reserve a place or for more information, phone 362-3449.

Report Change to SS Office

People who get supplemental security income payments must report any changes in living arrangements to the Social Security Administration within 30 days, according to John Carr, district manager at Bay City.

"The amount of a person's SSI payment can be affected if he changes his address, moves into someone else's home or if someone moves in or out of his residence," said Carr. People have 30 days to report such changes.

"Failure or delay in reporting changes could result in a penalty, to be deducted from future payments," said Carr.

People receiving SSI payments can report changes in living arrangements or any other changes to any social security office.

The SSI program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Bay City Social Security Office is at 1009 North Madison. The phone number is 892-3554.

Hale Area News

(Too late for last week.)
About 25 members of the Hale School, Class of 1961, held their annual reunion last Saturday evening at Wicker Hills Country Club. Mrs. Margaret Streeter has been a patient at University Hospital, Ann Arbor, for tests and medical attention. She expects to be home the end of this week. Members of the Streeter family visited her daily. The Wiley Streeter family of Midland spent the week-end here. Ivan Ingersoll accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dorsey to the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Louise Kidney, in Olmstead, Ohio. Burial was in Akron, Ohio. Mrs. Kidney spent several summers with the Ingersolls in Hale. Mr. and Mrs. George Brown and children are staying with her mother, Mrs. Gladys Hodge, until they acquire their own residence. They moved to Florida after operating the Dairy Queen and gas station for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Shellenbarger and children were Sunday dinner guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hewitt. Kim Allen spent five days at University Hospital, Ann Arbor, and returned home. The Gordon Dodder family of Pinconning has moved into the former Case home on Putnam Road. The Randy Dorsey family left Tuesday for their home in Jacksonville, Florida, after vacationing with his mother, Mrs. Marcella Dorsey, and other relatives. He continues his studies at Luther Rice Seminary and is associate pastor at the Springfield Baptist Church, Jacksonville. Reno News

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Zeagler of Alto were Monday dinner guests at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Waters. Mrs. Kenneth Moore and children from Davison enjoyed the week at the home of her mother, Mrs. Clara Waters. Floyd Killey from the Barnum Nursing Home spent Tuesday night at the home of his son, Clarence, at Skidway Lake. Monday, the Gerald Samson family from Sault Ste. Marie visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Samson. They were returning from a three-week trip to England. Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Samson visited her mother, Kathryn Pesik, at New Lathrop. They also called on their granddaughter, Joan Daly, at Montrose. Vicki Johnson and daughter, Julie, returned to Boulder, Colorado, after visiting their parents and grandparents here. After a 30-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schmalz, SP4 Rocky Pickett left on Tuesday for Germany. He will serve with the 24th transportation company. His brother, Gregory Pickett, recently returned from Germany where he completed a tour of duty.
