

When Will Ice Leave? C of C Sponsors Contest

When will the ice clear Tawas Bay? That is a good question—it may be a matter of weeks or days—but Tawas Chamber of Commerce is planning a fun contest concerning the event, which usually signifies the coming of spring.

There will be an entry fee in the contest and a prize is to be awarded to the person guessing the day, the hour, the minute and the second the ice clears the bay, according to Roger Jackson, executive director.

In the case of a tie, the amount of prize money is to be divided evenly.

Complete information concerning the contest may be obtained by telephoning the chamber of commerce office, 362-3832.

School Board Gives Cool Reception to Bus Garage Talk

Tawas Area Board of Education Monday night accepted commendations from the state police and state department of public instruction concerning improvements to its bus transportation system, but indications are that members are still not particularly interested in a bus garage for an expanded bus maintenance program.

Sgt. John Cluff of the Michigan State Police safety and traffic division at Bay City, commended the district for improvement to the bus fleet during the past year. Although noting that the school purchased a number of new buses this year, he said that maintenance of older buses had greatly improved.

Last year, a number of buses were "red lined" by the state due to improper maintenance. During its most recent inspection, the state police found the over-all fleet to be in a good safe operating condition.

'Great Ski Race' Drew Top Field

Despite thawing weather conditions Saturday, the "Great Ski Race" held at Whispering Pines on Monument Road proved to be a success with 227 skiers entered.

Gary Nelkie, East Tawas, who had charge of the program, reports that the entry list gave this cross country ski race the largest attendance of any in Michigan with skiers entered from Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. Last year, the race attracted 51 entrants.

David Delforge of Lansing defended his 1976 crown by repeating as the 1977 champion in the time of 45 minutes, 10 seconds. Second place went to Michael MacManus, Bloomfield Hills; Alden Wright, Kalamazoo, third place.

Local finishers were Nelkie, eighth place; George Sermon, National City, ninth place; Patty McKay, East Tawas, 22nd place; Tess Haislip, East Tawas, 35th place.

Racing results among six divisions and based according to age groups had 13 area skiers finishing in the top three positions. In veteran male winners, Nelkie finished in third place in the 25-34 age group and Robert Rogers, Tawas City, finished first in the 45 years and over group; veteran female winners in the 18-24 group had Patty McKay finishing first, Tess Haislip in second place and Betty Cobb of Tawas City was first place winner in the 25-34 year age group and Barbara Miller of East Tawas finished first in the 35-44 group.

Among novice male winners, Robert Beyer of Tawas City won first place in the 35-44 age group; Joanne Hintz of East Tawas, first place, and Evelyn Tyson, Glennie, second place, both in the 45 and over age group in the female novice division.

Junior winners included Ryan DeWyse, East Tawas, nine and under, second place; John Krekorian, Oscoda, second place, 10-13 age group; Mauri Pappas, Oscoda, second place, 10-13-year age group.

Trophies were presented to winners following racing.

A representative of the department of public education's transportation division commended Edward Poppe, the district's transportation director, and presented a certificate to Mrs. Norma King, bus guard, for her suggestions concerning a change in loading procedures at the Tawas City Elementary Unit which improved safety for children.

During his presentation, the state transportation division's representative presented a series of color slides showing bus garages at other schools in the state and encouraged this district to develop its own bus maintenance program or enter into a combined operation with other area schools.

The state man expressed the opinion that, through conversion of a storage building at the school and hiring one or two mechanics, the district could save money by providing minor maintenance to its own bus fleet.

He said the state offered a program to train mechanics in maintaining buses, which would guarantee passage of state inspections. Bus maintenance through exposed expansion of school facilities has been a controversial topic at school board meetings for some months. Board members have questioned the advisability of expanding its own bus maintenance program vs. the present system of having buses maintained at local garages.

The board of education is also studying the possibility of contracting the entire bus transportation program with some private firm, if one is interested.

The state man indicated that new regulations would require a complete maintenance file for each bus to meet state inspection purposes other than the inspection conducted by the state police.

Information received at Monday night's meeting is to be considered in discussions concerning future direction for the bus transportation system.

Council Action Paves Way for Kroger's Development

A resolution vacating River Street from Lake Street (US-23) to Court Street as the site of a parking lot for the proposed new Kroger Store was adopted by the Tawas City Council following a public hearing Wednesday night.

Requested by Mr. and Mrs. John A. LeClair and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LeClair, owners of property on both sides of River Street, the resolution received unanimous approval with no objections voiced by property owners in that area.

All property owners within 300 feet of the proposed vacation were notified of the public hearing by certified letter.

Last November, the council had vacated one-half of the street right-of-way to accommodate plans for parking at the proposed new store. Last month, the LeClairs appeared before the council and said that joint ownership of the parking lot with a 30-foot street running through it could cause some future legal problems.

Because of the liability involved, the LeClairs said they would be willing to accept entire responsibility for the property.

The LeClairs assured the council and those present that the 30-foot street would remain open as a public street. The city retains easements for water and sewer mains and Michigan Consolidated Gas Company retains its easement for a gas main.

"We want to keep River Street open to public use and we would have the responsibility to keep it open," stated LeClair. The property owner would have responsibility for plowing snow in the winter and to maintain the street.

"We are acquiring the street in order to proceed with plans for constructing the new store," said LeClair. "This is the only land available for such a large development, which we feel the city needs in its commercial district if it is going to survive."

LeClair estimated that property taxes in the slightly more than one-block area required for the new store building and parking lot would be in excess of $10,000 annually. He said that the Kroger Company would be paying taxes of nearly an equal amount for its personal property in the building.

There were some comments from an adjacent property owner concerning removal of several maple trees along River Street, but it was felt generally that the need for tree removal should not hinder the development.

Complete closing of the street was recommended by the Tawas City Planning Commission.

Site plan for the block long area between River and Wheeler Streets, directly across US-23 from the present Kroger Store, calls for a 185-car parking lot. A 142 by 176-foot building would be located on the westerly side of the property. The parking lot would have four entrances, one off US-23, one off Wheeler Street, one off Court Street and one off River Street. Court Street would provide an alternate route to First Street or M-55, avoiding traffic on US-23.

35 Students Lack Road Instruction

Resignation of three driver education instructors was revealed Monday night during discussion at the regular meeting of Tawas Area Board of Education.

As a consequence, 35 students who completed classroom instruction in driver education last summer are unable to complete requirements for state licensing at this time.

The matter was brought up during the "comments from the audience" portion of the board of education's agenda. One concerned parent questioned if driver education had "gone down the chute" for the term.

Supt. Robert A. Halle said that although a contract had been ratified with teachers, driver education teachers were not satisfied with the "split" concerning pay for extra duty activities. As a result, Dick Look, James Wasylk and Michael Viele resigned from driver education positions.

During original negotiations with the teacher union, approximately $1,000 was added to schedule B for extra duty pay, which includes coaching positions, department heads and driver education. This amount was split among all positions on schedule B and, due to additional positions and larger increases to bring the rate of pay of some positions in line with others, the pay to driver education instructors was not increased.

The superintendent said that efforts were now being made to resolve the problem in order for those 35 remaining students to complete road training. Driver training instructors require special certification by the state.

In the meantime, the board of education approved a recommendation of the superintendent naming Look as assistant boys track coach. It was emphasized by members of the board of education that there should be no conflict in time between extra duty and regular teaching positions.

Wounded Burglar Sought by County

A twice wounded burglar is still at large and is being sought by Iosco County authorities after being surprised Thursday night in the act of breaking into a Londo Lake residence, Plainfield Township.

Iosco County Sheriff's Department reports that the burglar was wounded twice in the right side of the body by slugs fired from a .357 magnum handgun. All hospitals and physicians in the area have been alerted concerning the shooting.

Gerald A. Lewis of Londo Lake arrived home about 10:55 o'clock Thursday night, February 10, and noticed that the cellar door and garage door of his residence were open. He went into the house, loaded his handgun and returned outside and began checking a shed.

He encountered a man coming out of his basement with his arms loaded with stolen articles, one of which was a shotgun. Lewis fired and the man fell back into the basement. He then went into the house and called the sheriff's department. When he returned outdoors, the burglar had disappeared.

Officers dispatched to the scene tracked the burglar and a companion for 75 yards through a wooded area, then called for a tracking dog from the Michigan State Police Post, West Branch. The dog followed the trail to a road about 200 yards distant from the Lewis residence where a car had been parked.

Police found a brown jacket owned by the burglar and a shotgun owned by Lewis on the basement steps. Along the trail between the house and car, police found a shotgun, tool box, electric fan and electric fry pan. Officers said the burglar made several trips between Lewis' residence and their car before being surprised.

Officers believe the burglar was seriously wounded as a large quantity of blood was found along the trail between the house and car.

One gun stolen from the residence is still missing.

First Degree Murder Trial in Second Week; May Go Three

First degree murder trial against two Bay City men entered its second week Monday in Iosco County Circuit Court. The trial is expected to continue into next week.

The trial opened last Wednesday afternoon after nearly three days of questioning potential jurors. More than 100 were questioned before 14 were impaneled. Two of the jurors are to be dismissed once the case goes to the jury for deliberations.

During his opening statement Wednesday afternoon, Special Pros. Brian M. Kennedy of Bay City told the jury that he would prove a case of first degree murder against the two defendants, despite the lack of eye witnesses or a murder weapon.

The defendants are Fred Tompkins and Gary H. McLellan, both 35, who are accused in the shooting death of Danny R. Christian, 27, Lennon, on September 11. Christian's body was found in a wooded area near Oscoda on September 16.

A motion for a change of venue in the case submitted by C. Michael Gorte, defense attorney, was denied by Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller. Gorte waived his opening statements to the jury on Wednesday.

Witnesses for the prosecution were heard starting Thursday. There was no session of the court on Friday due to a legal holiday.

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room
(Read Psalm 46)
"The eternal God is your Refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." (Deuteronomy 33:27 TLB)

When I was a child, my family would sometimes vacation at the beach. My two favorite pastimes were building sand castles and frolicking in the ocean. After constructing palaces of wet sand, I would view them with satisfaction until the waves washed over them and my labor was lost with the tide. Then, my mother would encourage me to build again higher up on the beach.

Since I could not swim, I was cautioned to wade close to the shore; but often my father would take me into deeper waters where there were giant waves. It was exhilarating but frightening; and I would shout above the roar, "Daddy, Daddy Hitchcock, don't let your Betty drown." Then, he would clasp me to him and I would know that I was safe.

My parents are no longer with me; but in later years when dreams crumble or troubles threaten to engulf me, I call to my heavenly Father for help. I know that I can never be lost from my God, for underneath are His everlasting arms.

PRAYER

Heavenly Father, when we worry, You care for us; when we despair, You comfort us; when we are in trouble, You rescue us. You are our refuge and our God. Amen.

Oscoda Tutors Plan Seminar at Yacht Club

Volunteer reading tutors of the Oscoda Area Schools reading improvement program will all be together for the first time at a seminar luncheon on Friday, February 18, at the Oscoda Yacht Club.

Steven Hennigar has scheduled this informational seminar for all volunteer reading tutors as part of this year's reading program. They will also do a program evaluation at this meeting.

It will be the first time all volunteers have had the opportunity to gather in one place at the same time. Because of space and scheduling, they were trained at different times and locations, and then were scheduled directly into tutoring situations in buildings throughout the district.

During the seminar, tutors will have the opportunity to interact and share experiences in this unique program, as well as being an integral part in the evaluation of the tutoring program as a whole. Among other subjects on the program, Hennigar indicated that announcements concerning a student contest will be made and final plans for the annual Title I Conference in Midland will be formulated.

WERNER AHONEN, East Tawas, who observes his 92nd birthday Friday, never got around to patent his invention 20 years ago, but he may do it some day. He developed this back roller to stimulate circulation through manipulation of the spine. The wooden contraption is manually operated and a wooden roller travels the length of the back through use of a pulley arrangement. Ahonen came to the United States from Finland when he was 19 years old and he has been a resident of East Tawas since 1908. He worked for many years with the Superior Fish Company and later as a carpenter, a trade followed by his grandfather in Finland. His wife passed away in April 1976. He makes his home with his daughter, Elsie Solomon, and is to be honored at a family dinner on Friday.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Explains Progress on Tawas Proposal

Board of directors of Tawas Chamber of Commerce recently heard local attorney, Brent Babcock, explain progress made thus far on a petition to the state boundary commission seeking to reorganize Tawas City and East Tawas into a single home rule city.

Babcock has been conducting much of the work involved in this proposal and it was the feeling of the board of directors that he should be assisted by a committee from each community in collecting necessary facts for presentation at a later time.

Following public hearings, a vote of the people would be required to change the boundary lines for incorporation of a single city.

Braves Upset Pinconning to End Spartans' Hope of Catching Falcons

JERRY GRACK (15) of the Tawas Area Braves was blocked on this shot in Friday night's game by Roger LaFave of Pinconning. The Braves upset the Spartans, 73-69.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Tawas Braves gained some revenge Friday night by turning back visiting Pinconning, 73-69. The Braves had lost to the Spartans earlier in the season, 75-63.

Going into the game, the Spartans were still nursing hopes for a shot at the NEM title, but the loss to Tawas and a win by Ogemaw Heights settled the score as the latter school won over Gladwin and is undefeated in conference play.

Tawas evened its record in NEM play at four wins and four losses while Pinconning now has a record of five wins and three losses.

Jeff Tousley of the Braves shot holes in the Pinconning defense with a 30-point effort for the night. The Braves led almost the entire game after being down in the first quarter.

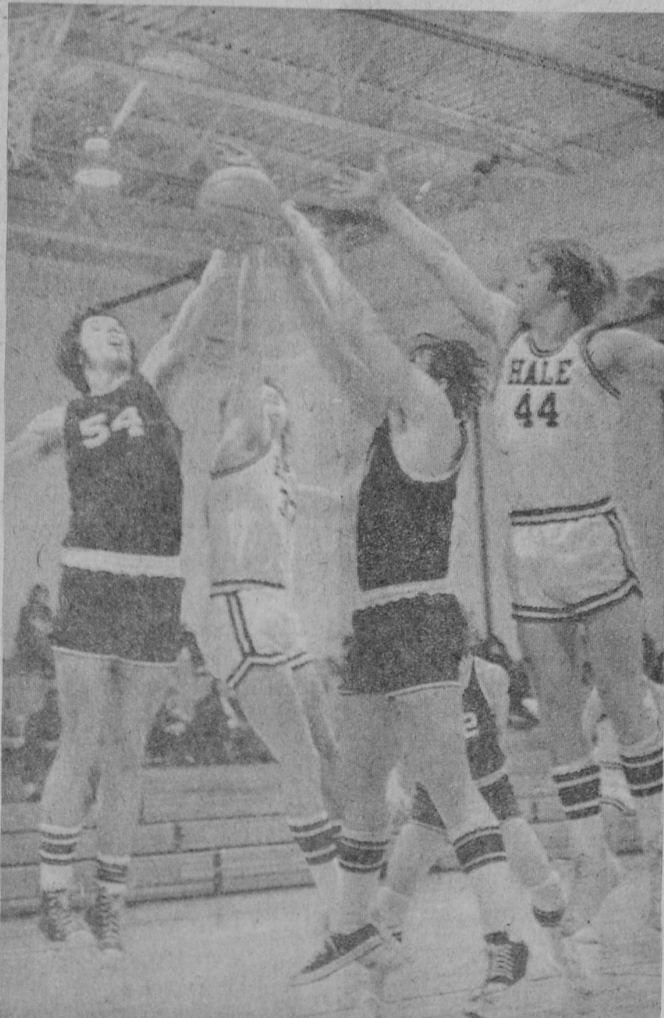

The Spartans jumped off to a 21-18 margin at the end of the first quarter, but Tawas came back with a game deciding, 19-12 edge in the second quarter. The Braves and Spartans were tied, 16-16, in the third quarter and 20-20 in the final.

Following Tousley in scoring were Butch Duvall with 15 points

Pinconning jumped off to a 20-13 margin in the first quarter, but Tawas turned in three straight quarters with 20 points or more.

The Junior Braves had a 26-12 margin in the second quarter, countered with a 20-16 margin in the third quarter and held a slim, 21-20 margin in the final. Tawas had three players scoring in double figures. Tops in scoring was Dennis Libka's 24 points, followed by Jeff Nichols with 21 points and Dave Revord with 11.

Others scoring for Tawas were Scott Tousley, nine points; Jim Dubovsky and Bill King, with six points each; Bill Grack, two points, and Mousseau with a charity toss.

ROBERT SCHAULE of Esmond Road, Hale, has been appointed bailiff for the Iosco County Circuit Court, a position newly created under the CETA program. A resident of the Hale area since 1973, Schaule served 28 years as a police officer at Birmingham and worked as a bailiff for the district court at Birmingham following his retirement. Creation of the new position relieves the Iosco County Sheriff's Department of the responsibility for providing a bailiff. As a circuit court officer, Schaule has charge of opening and closing of court and the transfer of prisoners between the courtroom and the jail. Iosco Roads Face Critical Spring Test

Iosco County residents dreaming about spring weather, following a mild spell last week after a record winter of frigid temperature, can hope that spring does not arrive too suddenly—it can cost tax money.

That comment was made Wednesday by James Delahanty, engineer-manager of the Iosco County Road Commission, who can foresee some serious problems with Iosco County's roads.

Due to severe frost conditions this winter, surfaces of some entire roadways are "lifting" in the county.

"Depth of the frost penetration under most roads is 60 inches and road subgrades are super saturated with frost," said Delahanty. This penetration resulted from traffic pounding and through removal of the snow insulating blanket.

Unless "extra slow" thawing conditions prevail during March, the spring road breakup could be the worst in history. If the thawing weather is accompanied by heavy rainfall, the situation will become even more serious as frost in shoulders of roadways will not allow water to percolate into the soil.

The same situation is facing city streets, as emphasized last week by City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz of Tawas City.

Bumps and dips in roads and streets are becoming more pronounced as the winter progresses. One dangerous point is on the west side of the M-55 bridge spanning the East Branch of the AuGres River.

Delahanty believes that a large shelf or chunk of clay has worked its way up through the roadway to a point where blacktop has bulged about two feet above the normal level. Signs have been erected on either side of the bump to warn motorists.

The road commission's engineer-manager said that the section of M-55 west from the bridge is scheduled for reconstruction this year.

CHANGED A NATION'S LIFE STYLE!

Tawas City Boys in Detroit Organize Social Club

AN EARLY CONTINGENT of young Tawas men employed at Detroit organized a social club there in order to continue acquaintances. This picture was published by The Tawas Herald on April 10, 1914. Construction of new Automobile plants saw a rapid expansion at Detroit.

Without a doubt, the automobile was the most revolutionary development of the twentieth century—it completely changed an entire nation's style of living during a period which saw a dramatic increase in manufacturing.

Although the automobile did not provide roads, it was directly responsible for development of a modern highway network; a gigantic industry developed in Michigan providing several hundred thousand new jobs; it provided the reason for establishing gasoline stations and repair shops at each crossroad community; it gave greater mobility to a large section of society.

Enabling farmers to carry their produce to consumers in better condition, the automobile and truck had a profound effect on rural America. Nearly an entire generation of young people from rural areas and small towns left for Detroit starting in January 1904, when Henry Ford announced that five dollars would be the minimum pay for an eight-hour shift at his new Highland Park plant. Ford later boosted the minimum pay to $10 a day, which created a national sensation.

Many of those young people were "lost" to rural areas for good. One old-timer recalls that when the small town of Flint suddenly was transformed into an automobile manufacturing center, one could stand along its main street on a Saturday night and greet many of his friends from Iosco County, who were in the ranks of the automobile worker.

Some of those who left the old home towns made their marks in the big city's fledgling automobile industry—Walter Marr of East Tawas, who rose to a high position in Buick; Fred Wade, who had a "responsible position" with Ford Motor Company at Detroit as early as 1906, and R. J. Goldie, who became an executive with Timken Axle and any Iosco County man who wanted a job with that firm had one on Goldie's say so.

The automobile was considered only a toy for the very rich when it was first introduced in Iosco County in 1905. The newly incorporated Ford Motor Company produced 1,708 cars in its first year of operation in 1903. The first two men to have the distinction of owning automobiles in the Tawas were Dr. Charles V. Crane, later a brain specialist at Grand Rapids, and Dr. G. S. Darling, a long time physician and businessman in Tawas City.

Many a graying old-timer living in the Tawas today remembers that their first ride in an automobile was in Darling's 1905 Ford. Other local residents laughed at the wheezing "one-lungers" of the early horseless carriage days, which chugged along sawdust covered Lake Street between Tawas City and East Tawas, but there was no levity in the changes which the automobile wrought in a very few years.

One of those who recalled the early days of the automobile in the Tawas was the late Luther Johnson, a former Tawas City jeweler, who put his recollections down on paper in a feature article printed in The Tawas Herald in 1946.

Johnson knew automobiles, or nery and otherwise, whose origins extended back to the year 1903. It was actually on July 5, 1906, that he bought his first car. But that was a 1903 model, a Cadillac, bearing engine No. 386, stamping it as one of the genuine pioneers in the long and honorable line of productions turned out by that firm of motor car entrepreneurs.

The Cadillac which provided his first adventures in motoring was the third car owned in Iosco County, following those purchased by the two physicians. When the one-cylinder contraption was wheeled off the boat at Prescott's dock, being shipped here from Detroit, it was the object of considerable curiosity and not a little concern. "Horses and drivers did not take kindly to the fearsome racket set up by these new fangled contraptions," wrote Johnson in 1946. He took the bus out for its initial spin the next day and, you guessed it, he walked home!

Gasoline was not available in Tawas City and had to be transported here by boat. Later, it was brought by railroad from Bay City, but only after state fire regulations were amended to permit transportation of the volatile fluid by rail. "The cars of the day, priced extremely high, came without accessories whatever. If one wanted lights, a windshield, top or such incidentals, that would be extra," said Johnson.

There were compensating features, however. That 1903 model which he drove until 1909 averaged 42 miles to the gallon of gasoline. License plates were nonexistent. For the first set, he merely bought ordinary house numbers and tacked them onto the car.

Wilford Grise, the town blacksmith, attached the hard rubber tires for him in much the same manner that he used in placing wagon wheels.

The 1909 gas buggy which he next purchased, also a Cadillac, was a real car. It might well have served as the original inspiration for the old expression, "Pardon My Dust," as it was capable of hitting a top speed of 70 miles an hour—the only problem was that there was not a road or street in the county on which that high speed could be attained.

One of Johnson's early automotive memories was a race at the Iosco County fair in 1906, competing with the two doctors. Johnson won the race in his 1903 Cadillac. The following year, he again won first place with Doctor Darling in second place and Doctor Wakeman in third place, according to a report in the Herald.

Before 1920, long trips were only for those who were willing to suffer some inconveniences and who had great physical endurance. Outside cities, gasoline stations and repair shops were not numerous and the roads were mostly dirt. In dry weather, the wheels raised clouds of dust and in the spring or after heavy rains, cars were likely to sink axle deep in the mud.

Early cars had neither windshield nor tops. Drivers and passengers alike wore long linen dusters and goggles. A man frequently wore a leather cap and a woman tied a scarf over her hat to keep it from blowing away. Even after windshields and tops were provided, the flapping side curtains let in dust and rain. There were so few route markers that the automobilist was likely to lose his way. It was only after good roads were built that long-distance driving became a pleasure.

gauntlets worn by an early day automobile driver is one of the prized possessions of Joseph Rigg of M-55, who restores old cars as a hobby. One of the old linen dusters used by an early Isoco automobilist has survived to this day. It was discovered by L. G. McKay Jr., Tawas businessman, who found it in the effects of his late father.

This opens an entirely different aspect of the automobile business for McKay, who was an early day motorist at East Tawas, was a pioneer automobile dealer in the community. He became a Chevrolet dealer on January 16, 1916, and the family name is still connected with the local dealership, making it one of the oldest in the country bearing the familiar Chevrolet emblem.

Another former East Tawas resident, Edd T. Pierson of California, recalled in a letter to this newspaper prior to his death last year that the first "gasoline station" in the community was located at the Prescott Hardware on Lake Street. Its lone pump was located in the alley between the present day Alpena Candy Company and the newspaper office. Gasoline sold for 12 cents a gallon.

The infant automobile industry was the talk of the land in 1911. An article appearing in the Herald in 1911 stated that the automobile does not seem to be the economic waste some had supposed. As an example, the Herald reported a statistician had figured out that the price of horses. "If it were not for the automobile, a horse would be worth $1,000," editorialized the Herald. In addition, automobiles in the United States were doing the work of 5,000,000 horses, saving 37,375 acres of land to produce food for humans, rather than for horses.

"In other words, the automobile is not only saving us about $2,000,000 on horse-feed, but it is keeping down the cost of food for the drivers by making it possible to turn the hay and oat fields into wheat and potato fields," stated the Herald.

The automobile continued to be considered somewhat of a novelty until the advent of the good roads movement. It was not until June 1913 that a through road was completed from Bay City to Cheboygan and that touched off a spurt in local car sales.

One of the first automobile advertisements appearing in The Tawas Herald was prepared for C. J. Bousfield of Bay City. In 1912, Bousfield advertised that he was the exclusive dealer in Northern Michigan for Packard, Palmer-Singer, Chalmers and Buick.

The pioneer automobile dealer in Tawas City was Henry Kane, Ford dealer, who later constructed the first building for the exclusive use of an automobile dealership. That building still stands on Lake Street and is the present location of Huron Auto Parts owned by James Sheehan.

Other early dealers included W. B. Murray, East Tawas jeweler, who sold his Studebaker automobile and became the local Reo agent. The Prescott Hardware became the agent for the Buick Motor car and many other people quickly followed in the field.

Michigan was to become the automobile capital of the world and every small city in the state attempted to interest the establishment of an automobile factory. One of the few factories established in Northeastern Michigan was founded in March 1907, when a firm was established at Alpena with a paid up capital of $200,000.

Such names as Oldsmobile, Ford, Cadillac, Dodge, Buick, Chevrolet and Chrysler, all manufactured in this state, were to become names to be reckoned with in the automobile business. More than one hundred other firms were established in the state; the names of some are now forgotten, failing after a brief existence, but some survive in later reorganizations. Included are such names as Hudson, Packard, Essex, Saxon, Wlanders, Abbott, Brush, Roamer, Jackson, Earl, Lion, Wills-St. Claire, to name a few.

In order for the automobile to develop, laws in Michigan and in other states had to be amended in order to make automobile riding a pleasure rather than a burden. In Michigan, a law required that an attendant walk some distance ahead of early automobiles when approaching horse drawn vehicles. The engine had to be stopped until the horse was led past. At night, according to the law, the attendant had to carry a red lantern.

With the increasing number of automobiles on highways, the state set the maximum speed of 25 miles an hour in 1905. The automobile amazingly influenced the American way of life, even before World War I, when there were only five-million cars in use.

for granted as a way of life that will never change. On the immediate horizon, however, is a problem which may again change the mode of transportation in the entire country. The convenience of the automobile put an end to the state's far flung electrical inter-urban railroad system in the 1920s; with a national shortage of gasoline to power automobiles, federal and state authorities are now studying a return to a mass transportation system which the automobile destroyed.

It is doubtful if the automobile will return to the "novelty" status of its infancy, but some drastic changes are forecast in this country's general mode of transportation.

Some future historian may chronicle the complete circle of the automobile, starting with that first auto race at the Isoco County Fair in 1906 to the day when high priced gasoline is rationed and available only for emergency vehicles. It is something to ponder for a country without jobs created by the automobile industry is almost unimaginable today.

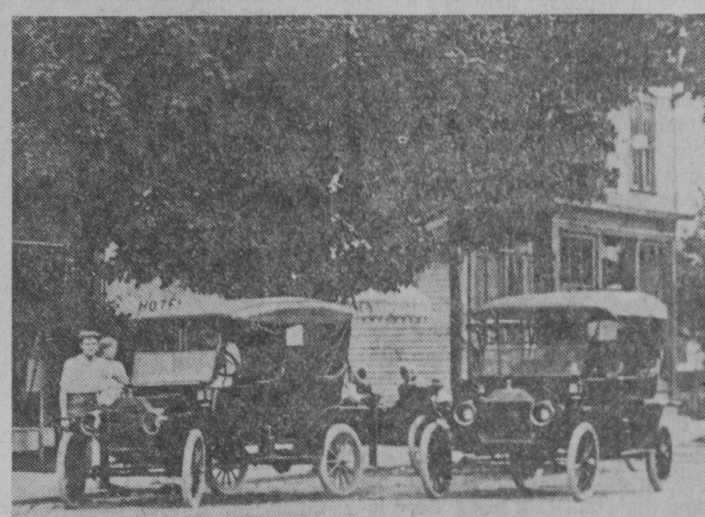

"ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE" was the advertising slogan of the Packard Motor Car Company of Detroit. The woman who owned this sleek 1916 model, Minna L. Hamer, had a Collie dog for a driving companion.

GROCERY STORES were among the first to use delivery trucks as an added service for customers. This Republic truck bears a 1917 license plate and is parked in front of a store at Alcona Dam.

Autos Changed Economy

HENRY KANE, owner of the Isoco Hotel, was the pioneer Ford agent in Tawas City. Ford's mass production lowered the price of automobiles and put the country on wheels.

THE HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS were numbered when roads were improved to accommodate automobiles. This Tawas dandy posed with his rig on Lake Street.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

Perchville USA or Beer Tent for Minors USA is the question to TAPS!

I believe we need activities like Perchville to promote the Tawas area and draw tourists to our area for the benefit of our Tawasites, but when these visitors come into our area and see a beer tent half full of our towns' children under age 18, I think it's time to take a long look at TAPS and/or Perchville USA.

Sunday afternoon, the beer tent was packed, but half of the crowd was minors. I do not know if TAPS made money on Perchville or lost money, but if it takes serving minors in the beer tent to put Perchville in the profit margin, I think we had better take a look at our priorities for Tawas area. Do we really need this kind of activity to promote our area and if so do we need this kind of publicity?

MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR MONEY

Why Make a Budget?

Are you the master of your income? Or does your money seem to have a mind of its own, disappearing for parts unknown before you really get used to having it?

The answer to these questions suggests one of the primary reasons for budgeting. A budget provides a plan for the future use of resources—time, energy and equipment as well as money. It helps you see where your money goes and why, and how it could be better spent.

But a budget need not be as dull and restrictive as it often sounds. Some of the "fringe benefits" include:

Budget for "quality of life." A money budget is not merely a plan for buying food, clothes or home furnishings. It is a way to get the kinds of food and clothes, and other things that make you and your family healthiest and happiest. It helps you to treat your money as a rifle, not a shotgun; aiming at fewer, more important targets.

Budget for "freedom." Once a budget is established, you do not need to reorganize the basic structure every month. Other than periodic up-dating as goals and resources change, it takes a minimum of effort to continue a budget. So, considering the advantages, there are very few long-term restrictions in budget-keeping.

Budget for "security." Sticking to a budget means the money that used to mysteriously "disappear" can be channeled into savings—for college, other big expenses or emergencies.

Budget for "psychic income." Psychic income may be defined as the feeling of importance and belonging that each member gets when he contributes in some way to the family. Financial planning, when everyone is encouraged to cooperate, gives each person a stake in the success of the budget and in the welfare of the family.

Budget for "family harmony." Some studies indicate that young couples may fight more over money than any other issue. But when income is allocated in some systematic and agreed-upon way, there is less basis for dispute. A budget can provide a ground plan for talking out disagreements and for examining individual and perhaps conflicting values.

Budget for "satisfaction." A successful budget implies the positive achievement of having found personalized, unique and profitable ways to allocate your resources; of seeing your money spent for what you really want.

Summer Resident Candidate for State Teen-Ager Pageant

CINDY LYNN JONES

"My newspaper is not cooperative in printing anything about our pageant. If it is at all possible, would you please print my news release with the picture in your newspaper?"

In response to the above letter of request, The Tawas Herald is printing this news story about Cindy Lynn Jones, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Jones of Flint. The Jones family owns a summer home on Long Lake near Hale.

4-H Program Has Exciting New Iosco Theatre Arts Club

Carol Savino, 4-H Youth program assistant, announces an exciting new county 4-H Youth program, 4-H Theatre Arts Club. Beginning with the 4-H Clown Club and expanding to other areas of the performing arts, youth will receive invaluable experience in the theatre arts.

The first meeting of the 4-H Clown Class was held on February 7 and there is still time to get in on the fun. All youth between ages of nine-18 may enroll now in the program. As a new member of the 4-H Youth Theatre of Arts Club, there is something for all over 18 as leaders and under nine years old as spectators. A complete theatre shortcourse has been developed to teach the beginner all about theatre arts.

Remember, one does not have to know how to act! If you play a musical instrument, sing, dance and like working backstage or simply want to learn what it is all about, you may join now. Everyone in Iosco is welcome. Regular meeting locations will be rotated. This year's activities will include: producing a clown show, visiting and observing a professional theatre, working within workshops, and finally performing in a play!

Organizational meeting will be held Wednesday, February 23, at Tawas Area High School, Room 10, 7:00 p. m. For additional information contact Miss Savino, 362-3449.

I-A Library Looking for New Quarters

15 Years Ago—

February 14, 1962—Because of overcrowded conditions at Iosco-Arenac Regional Library headquarters in the Case Building, Tawas City, Miss Leonora Hass, librarian, hopes to interest investment of private capital in an adequate building.

Two members of Tawas Area High School Band, Richard White and Marleen Myles, will participate in the Greater Michigan All Star Bands concert at Carson City.

Harold T. Ross, formerly of Tawas City, has been named manager of the ball bearing, screw and spline operation at Saginaw Steering Gear.

Several Iosco County farmers are planning construction of swine houses as the feeder pig business has shown a steady increase in this area.

A committee composed of representatives from boards of education of Tawas City, East Tawas and 11 other school districts has recommended the Thomas Hill farm of 36 acres near the English mill as the site of the proposed new reorganized school. Action by the group was a recommendation only and has no legal status as the board of education of the reorganized district is the legal body to select a site.

The Department of Labor has found that more than 3,000 children are employed illegally on farms. The anti-child labor law provides that it is illegal for farmers, whose crops or products go either directly or indirectly into interstate or foreign commerce, to employ children under 16 during school hours. The law does not apply to the farmers' own children.

Transportation Discussion Topics for Iosco Co. Commissioners on Thursday

Discussion topics for Thursday's meeting of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners will center mainly around transportation facilities—county airport and the expanded DART bus system.

The meeting has been delayed a day due to the three-day mid-winter conference of the Michigan Association of Counties held Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at Lansing.

Commissioners Carlton Merschel, Joseph Fox and Donald Griffin were to have met Tuesday with members of the state aeronautics commission and are to meet today (Wednesday) with representatives of the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation.

During last Wednesday's informal session, commissioners decided to table action on a proposal by Bay Aviation, a subsidiary of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway, concerning proposed construction of a new airplane hangar by that firm at the county airport.

Commissioners questioned the 35-year lease proposed for the hangar and felt that a possible solution might be for the county to construct the hangar and lease it to Bay Aviation.

It was also felt that a change in rules governing federal revenue sharing money received by the county might also permit expansion of the county airport as proposed last year.

A $528,000 expansion program had been proposed for the airport which would have strengthened and extended the east-west runway. The program called for a $396,000 federal allocation to be matched by $62,500 from the state aeronautics board and $69,000 from the county.

This development was included in a request for tax millage submitted last fall to Iosco voters, which was defeated. The federal government later notified the county that all funds for airports had been allocated and no future money would be available until 1979.

In order for the county to be considered for the 1979 entitlement, application must be made by March 31 of this year. The commissioners were to have sought additional information about making this application following Tuesday's conference.

It has been reported that the new federal revenue sharing act, which returns income tax money to the local area, permits local units of government to use those funds for matching money under other federal programs.

Wednesday's meeting with representatives of the highway department is to make plans for expansion of the DART bus system, which was authorized February 2 by the county commission. At that time, the county requested the state to purchase six new buses to be used in the system.

During Sunday's opening day of the conference, Commissioner Fox was moderator for a panel discussion to consider "Unemployment Compensation, Can Michigan Employers Pay the Price?"

Other convention topics, arranged by A. Barry McGuire, executive director of the Michigan Association of Counties and a former Tawas resident, included a discussion on "Counties and Economic Development."

Application for permission to incorporate an economic development corporation for the county has been presented to the commission under a 1974 state act. A public hearing is to be held concerning the matter at 1:30 p. m., Wednesday, February 23

Consider New Alternatives for AuGres R.

A meeting of the AuGres Watershed Advisory Committee was held yesterday (Tuesday) at the Keystone Lounge south of Whittemore to consider alternatives that the Soil Conservation Service has proposed to control flooding on the AuGres River. The meeting was called by Kenneth R. Neepser, district conservationist.
