

Iosco Murder Trial Nearing Conclusion

Following a holiday Monday, the first degree murder trial being heard by an Iosco County Circuit Court jury resumed Tuesday morning. C. Michael Gorte, defense attorney, spent Tuesday in the continuation of his defense of Fred Tompkins and Gary H. McLellan, both 35, of Bay City.

The two men are accused in the September 11 shooting death at Oscoda of Danny R. Christian, 27, of Lenton.

The case, which is in its third week, conceivably could go to the jury late Wednesday afternoon. Closing arguments are expected Wednesday from Brian M. Kennedy of Bay City, special prosecutor, and Defense Attorney Gorte, followed by a charge to the jury by Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller.

REMOVAL OF PARKING on M-65 in Hale was completed last week through installation of signs by the Michigan Department of State Highways. The removal had been considered as a safety measure last year and approval was given following a public hearing at Hale. The new signs were erected along each lane of M-65 extending about a block on either side of Esmond Road. Parking is provided both in front and rear of stores in that commercial area.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Proposal Studied by City Planners Dispute Likely Over Zoning Petition

A dispute is shaping up over proposed rezoning of two lots at the intersection of M-55 and Lake Streets (US-23) in Tawas City. Owners of the property, Truman Barber and Wilton Finley, petitioned the council at its last meeting to change zoning from residential to business. The matter was turned over to the city planning commission for its consideration.

At its meeting last Thursday night, Brent Babcock, attorney for the owners, said that his clients were in a hurry to have the property rezoned to B2 and it might be necessary for him to proceed with litigation to force the city to rezone.

Steven Ezo, a member of the commission, displayed petitions signed by residents within the adjacent areas, who are protesting such a change in zoning.

During discussion the planning commission said that if any zoning change takes place in that area, it would probably not be B2 but B1, as this was in keeping with the type of zoning that was gradually taking place.

According to minutes of the commission, it felt that the two blocks involved "contained some very nice homes, which must be given some consideration." It was further felt that the M-55 highway was a natural zoning boundary line.

"The rezoning that has been working in that direction is B1, which would probably rule out a B2 zoning, even if the change was justified at this time," stated the minutes.

(According to the city's zoning ordinance, B1 zoning does not permit automotive uses, particularly gasoline service stations, which are permitted only in B2 zones. Under certain restrictions, the zoning board of appeals may permit special approval for a gasoline service station.)

The commission is to study the matter further with Vilcan, Leman and Associates, the city's planning consultant, before a recommendation is made to the city council on the petition for rezoning. Minutes of the meeting stated that the "commission was well aware that the present property owners with residential homes were of high importance."

In other matters, the commission elected Robert Pawloski as its 1977 chairman. Nelson Thornton was re-elected vice chairman and Hugo Keiser was elected secretary. Other members include David Westcott, James Russo, Clarence King, Harold Moeller and Robert Hemphill. Pawloski was the only member absent from the meeting.

The commission recommended that the city continue its contract with the consultant firm on a fee basis with a quarterly visit.

A discussion was held to acquaint new members with development of the city's master plan.

New members include Westcott and Russo.

Plans for the Provincial House nursing home proposal were reviewed, but some questions arose and plans were tabled for the present. A special meeting may be called to review plans with the owners.

ICE IN TAWAS BAY has shown no signs of breaking up during the past week, despite a day or two of mild weather. Below zero temperatures have been recorded during the week and the ice has shown no signs of weakening. Tawas Chamber of Commerce

TC Council Appoints Former Mayor to Tax Review Board

Appointment of John N. Brugger to the tax board of review was approved by a five to two roll call Monday night by the Tawas City Council.

The former mayor had been endorsed for the position by the Tawas City Businessmen's Association, which took note of a recent radio broadcast by Tawas Concerned Taxpayers opposing his appointment.

A letter from the taxpayer group read at the meeting suggested the appointment of Jerry Snoblen or one of two other candidates endorsed by that group.

A second letter from the businessmen's group recognized Brugger's "past public spirit" and endorsed him as being qualified for the position.

During discussion, Councilman Charles Landon pointed out that the appointment of Brugger had received unanimous support of the council at its last meeting and that the matter had been tabled to see if he would accept the position. Brugger later indicated that he would accept the position if appointed.

Councilman Robert Rollin and Mayor Herbert Cholger said they had second thoughts since that meeting and now believed that it would be best to appoint "new blood" in city matters. In addition, Rollin favored appointment of Snoblen due to the fact that Snoblen had taken a course in property assessing and was a licensed real estate agent.

Councilman Jerry Cotter said that the other candidates might be qualified for the position, but he said he took a dim view of the "negative" way in which the concerned taxpayers' group had proposed candidates through a radio broadcast.

Cotter expressed the opinion that it was an "unwritten law" that members of the tax board of review should have "clout" with the county tax equalization department and that the city must be able to justify its property assessments so as not to receive a factor from the equalization department. He felt that the former mayor had demonstrated this in the past.

Brugger's appointment was approved by "yes" votes from Councilmen William Ezo, William Groff, Cotter, Landon and James Lanskv. Voting "no" were Cholger and Rollin.

According to provisions of the city charter, the tax board of review is to be composed of three members who are qualified electors, have been a resident of the city for at least 12 months and are property owners. Appointees or elective officers may not be in default to the city.

Function of the board of review is to hold annual meetings to correct assessments, to hear complaints of all persons considering themselves aggrieved by assessments or wrongly assessed and the board has power to correct the roll in such manner as it deems just, according to facts existing on tax day.

Brugger is to fill a vacancy caused by the recent resignation of Roy Bergeron, who moved to East Tawas. Other members are John Hosbach and Arthur Ziehl. Following the appointment, the council established the pay of tax board of review members at $20 per day, the same as last year.

Dates for the tax board of review public meetings are Monday and Tuesday, March 14-15, 9:00 a. m. to 12 o'clock noon and 1:00 to 5:00 p. m., Wednesday, March 16, 3:00 to 9:00 p. m.

'Kids' Day' Rescheduled

"Kids' Day," which was to have been held Sunday, February 13, but was postponed due to cold weather, has been rescheduled for Sunday, February 27, 1:00 to 4:00 p. m., at the Lions Club Rink on Newman Street, East Tawas.

Basketball Tournament Pairings

Four teams from the Northeastern Michigan Conference and one school from the Northern B Conference will compete next week in the district basketball tournament to be held at Standish.

On Tuesday, March 1, Oscoda will meet the Standish-Sterling Panthers; on Wednesday, March 2, Tawas Area Braves go against the Pinconning Spartans.

Ogemaw Heights, winner of the NEM Conference, drew a bye and is to meet the winner of the Oscoda-Standish game on Thursday, March 3. The championship game is to be held Saturday, March 5.

All games start at 7:30 p. m. Tickets are to be on sale at schools next Monday and Tuesday.

McKay Outlines Tentative Plans for Two Property Developments in Tawas City

Tentative plans for development of commercial property owned by L. G. McKay, president of Bankiana Corporation, were presented last Thursday night to the Tawas City Planning Commission.

McKay requested that the planning commission review the plans and to give him comments or suggestions at a later date.

Two projects are included in McKay's plans, one for his lake-front property between the Kroger Store and city park and one for Lad's Padd, the former Iosco Hotel.

McKay, who has been considering this development for a number of years, said he had hired the firm of Johnson and Johnson of Ann Arbor, land use planners, to assist with the planning.

He contemplates removal of the former McKay Sales building, hopefully this spring, because taxes far exceed income; removal of the former Barkman building, as soon as tenants can be relocated; removal of a residence at the rear of the Texaco Station, when the new project commences; removal of the Texaco Station and rebuild it at the opposite corner near the Kroger Store, when the new project starts.

McKay said that his new project would be water oriented and would include housing in the form of a motel, apartments, condominium, or a combination; a swimming area next to the city park, along with a small dock with boat rentals; a large boat docking area, to be located at the site of the former Trudell Fishery dock; possible construction of a swimming pool; lounge and dining area; a parking lot and possibly a convention center.

In addition, McKay said that he plans to raise the present location of Lad's Padd and remove a 24 by 20-foot garage on the property. A new building of approximately 48 by 68 feet would be constructed at the rear of the property, with a 36 by 48-foot lounge with windows and deck overlooking Tawas River. The building would include a 24-foot by 48-foot SDD store.

He said the first step in this latter project would be to remove approximately 24 feet at the rear of the present building and tear down the remainder once the new building is completed. An 80 by 90-foot parking lot paved with black-top would be constructed.

McKay told members of the planning commission that from one to three years would be required to accomplish the projects.

The site along the shore of Tawas Bay between Kroger's and the city park is one of the finest lake front parcels on the Great Lakes, according to McKay, and he believes its development would provide a major attraction in Northeastern Michigan.

Water Contract Meets Approval

City councils of Tawas City and East Tawas, along with Baldwin Township Board, adopted a new contract required under an FHA loan, for East Tawas to sell filtered water to Tawas City and Baldwin Township.

Only a few changes were made in the 1957 contract under which Tawas City has purchased its water supply from East Tawas.

One change establishes an eight-member board with four from East Tawas and two each from Tawas City and Baldwin Township. Members serve three-year terms and meet twice a year.

Fixed costs of $16,750 annually were established through 1988 and the pumping charge was increased from 21 cents to 25 cents per 1,000 gallons of water.

Under terms of the 41-year contract, Tawas City's well and pumping station would be removed once the new system is in operation. The three units would share the cost of any new capital outlay for construction of an intake or other expansion.

The new contract prohibits Tawas City from providing water service to any customer outside the city limit unless prior approval is given by the joint water board. The provision would not pertain to those customers outside the city limit presently being served.

It is expected that construction bids on the expanded system are to be opened March 17, but a contract would not be awarded until a later date. It is hoped that construction will start in May.

Plan Wood Heating Seminar March 12

Of the seven fires handled by the East Tawas Volunteer Fire Department during January and February, five have been related to burning wood for heating purposes. As a result, the fire department, in cooperation with the Cooperative Extension Service, is sponsoring a wood heating seminar and open house Saturday, March 12, at the East Tawas Community Building, 9:00 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

"Due to soaring fuel prices and an abundance of wood-for-the-taking here in Northeastern Lower Michigan, many people are turning to wood for supplemental heating or, in some cases, as the main heating source," states William Look Jr., East Tawas fire chief.

"Having had the luxury of natural gas, many people forget the 'dos and don'ts' of wood heating," he reports. "We believe this wood heating seminar is important due to the recent increase in wood stove related fires."

Formal presentations are to be held from 10:00 a. m. to 1:00 p. m., including a discussion on safety during installation by a building inspector; demonstration of smoke alarms, fire extinguishers, safe operation of wood burning devices and a discussion on quality and types of wood to be used for heat, all provided by the fire department; a discussion on obtaining permits for wood from forests by the district forest ranger; problems and dangers of wood burning devices by the state fire marshal.

Various manufacturers will display Franklin-type stoves, fireplaces, wood burning furnaces and heaters, along with various types of chimneys.

There is no admission charge. Free coffee and donuts are to be served.

Program coordinators are Kenneth Kernstock, extension agricultural agent, and Donald Holmes, representing the fire department.

(Read Romans 12:9-19)
"Love one another with brotherly affection; outdo one another in showing honor." (Romans 12:10 RSV)

An excellent writer in our all-news radio station consistently does a first-rate job at turning in stories. On her way out one day, I thanked her for her good work.

The director of the bureau walked out at the same time and said in all seriousness, "Why are you thanking her? She is paid for doing that." I responded that I thanked her because of the spirit in which she did her work, which was far beyond the demand of the job. Without comment, he left the office.

A few days later, I was leaving the bureau and the director was there. On my way out the door after a rather hectic day, I said, "See you tomorrow." He responded with a twinkle of depth in his voice, "Thank you."

The utterance of those two words I counted a victory, and it was spread to others, helping to create a more positive, pleasant and meaningful place to work.

PRAYER
Dear God, our Father, center us less in ourselves and more in others. Instill in us empathy and understanding of our fellows. May we this day begin to live anew in Your service. We pray in the name of Your Son, Jesus. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
A smile and a friendly greeting are priceless.—Turner White (Colorado Springs, Colorado)

Be Cautious Using Electric Welders to Thaw Pipes

Consumers Power Company warns that a potentially hazardous situation exists to property and life when electric welders are used to thaw frozen water lines. Uncontrolled current can follow the gas service line and discharge back to ground, possibly causing an arc burn hole in the gas system and a gas leak.

This same current could also follow the customer's electric service entrance ground back through the service neutral drop to Consumers Power Company grounds, because this could be a lower resistance path than the water pipe. This could cause a house fire or damage to the customer's or Consumers Power Company's grounding system.

In order to prevent the current flowing in the electrical grounding system or the gas system, it is necessary to isolate the water service from the customer's water system and disconnect the ground wire on the water system to the customer's ground system.

To eliminate shock hazard and to prevent damage to the contents of the building, the following steps should be followed in sequence.

1. Open main electric switch or fuses.
2. Disconnect metallic grounds from water pipes.
3. Provide an air gap in the water line inside the building by removing the water meter or separate the piping.
4. Connect welder to water service.

After water pipe is thawed and water meter is reconnected, be sure ground lead is reconnected to the water pipe before the main switch or breaker is closed or fuses are replaced.

Learn Future Development of Iosco Lands

Residents of Iosco County interested in the effect of future land development in their area may attend a regional educational session being held next month. Sponsored by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, the program is intended for private industry, civic and governmental leaders and citizens interested in any aspect of land development.

The nearest location is West Branch, Friday, March 4, commissioners room at the new county building. The session starts with a 9:30 a. m. registration. The program runs from 10:00 a. m. to 3:00 p. m. There is no charge for the conference.

Focus will be on the climate for land development in Michigan, attempting to identify important policy issues surrounding the pace and pattern of development.

Often, development and preservation of certain lands are presented as mutually exclusive goals. The assumption seems to be that we must choose one or the other. This program should help interested participants focus attention on the means and rationale for accommodating both in Michigan.

Details of the conference and how it bears upon the community may be obtained from the Iosco County Cooperative Extension Service office. Contact either Susan Lambrecht, county extension director, or Kenneth Kernstock, extension agricultural agent.

Education Benefits Increased for Vets

Many former servicemen and women may be eligible for a new federal benefit which could bring them an additional $292 to more than $500 per month for nine months.

Because these benefits are subject to an expiration date, the Veterans Administration is making every effort to insure that all eligible veterans are aware of them. This significant increase in entitlement for GI Bill educational benefits was approved by congress late last year. The new provisions can have a total potential value in excess of $4,500 to married veterans with large families.

Basically, the new law provides nine additional months of GI Bill eligibility to most veterans originally entitled to 36 months for VA educational assistance.

The new legislation does not change that portion of the law requiring that a veteran must use his GI Bill benefits within 10 years of his discharge from service. Therefore, veterans who have been out of the military service for 10 years are not eligible for the additional benefits.

The Veterans Administration estimates that 6.1-million veterans are currently eligible for GI Bill benefits, including 3.8-million who have used part of their eligibility and 2.3-million who have not taken advantage of it at all.

It is particularly anxious, however, to reach the half-million men and women who have already used the full 36 months of eligibility that was the maximum entitlement prior to enactment of the new legislation. They may now be entitled to an additional nine months of educational benefits.

All veterans eligible under the criteria outlined above are urged to contact the Veterans Administration for further details of this new entitlement.

Veterans in Michigan should call, visit or write the VA Regional Office, 477 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226. The toll-free telephone number is 800 572-9835.

Camps Maqua and Iroquois Merged in Economy Move

Camp Maqua and Camp Iroquois in Iosco County are to be merged this summer and coeducational camping will be offered. The merger, approved by boards of both the Young Women's Christian Association and the Young Men's Christian Association, is an economy move.

A representative of the YMCA has reported that combination of the two camps at the Maqua site on Loon Lake west of Hale, along with Camp Iroquois on Sand Lake, could save as much as $40,000 in operational costs.

The merger is expected to be an experimental program and Camp Iroquois is not to be sold immediately.

The summer camping season is to start June 26 and will continue through August 13. Four one-week sessions will be coeducational, with both boy and girl campers at Maqua. Two one-week periods are to be for girls only and one period will be set aside for boys only.

Camp Iroquois was established in 1915 and Camp Maqua in 1924. Most of the original buildings are still standing and used.

Name of the merged program will be changed to Camp MaQuois and an expanded program is to be offered. Camp Maqua has a 148-acre site as compared to 40 acres at Camp Iroquois.

Combined boards of the YMCA and YWCA are to meet next November to study results of the merged operations. It will be de-decided then what to do with the Iroquois site, considered to be valuable lakeside property.

It costs about $40,000 to operate each camp during the summer. It is hoped that 350 youngsters will utilize the facilities this summer, which can accommodate about 100 campers in a one-week period.

Declining enrollment has been noted at both camps over the last several years and indications are that this trend will probably continue with the declining birth rate.

Iosco Runway Extension Delay Seen With New Requirement

Extension of a runway at the Iosco County Airport is much further away than previously anticipated by the county board of commissioners.

In a meeting Wednesday with state aeronautics officials, commissioners learned that an environmental impact statement must be completed before consideration would be made for federal assistance by the Federal Aeronautics Administration.

Com. Joseph Fox reported at Thursday's meeting of the commission that about one year of work would be required to complete work on the federal impact statement, the cost of which would range from a low of $10,000 to around $20,000.

Fox said that public hearings would be required for the proposed extension of the north-south runway due to possible use by jet aircraft.

He said that federal money apparently was available for the proposed extension, but he felt the earliest possible date to see construction would be the spring of 1979 "if we are lucky."

The county has proposed to use $69,000 in federal revenue sharing funds as the local portion of a $528,000 expansion program.

Other transportation matters discussed at Thursday's meeting was a report on a meeting last week with state highway department officials concerning purchase of buses for the county's expanded DART bus system.

County commissioners signed a contract with the state for state purchase of new and replacement buses for this new local system, but learned that the state legislature had not appropriated money as yet for this program.

Legislative action has been held up due to lobby action requesting installation of wheel chair lifts on certain buses. The 31-passenger buses to be used by Iosco apparently would not be equipped with such lifts, but the entire program has been stalemated and Iosco County probably will not have its expanded system in operation by the November target date.

One van type bus currently in use by Iosco County has been driven 90,000 miles and was scheduled for replacement in the new bus purchase. Commissioners say that the delay may complicate operation of the current program due to maintenance problems.

Local commissioners say that it is unfortunate that the program has run into a bottleneck at this point as the $3,000,000 scheduled for bus purchases had the secondary purpose of providing jobs in the state's automotive industry.

A resolution adopted by the commission reminds interested residents that a hearing is to be held Wednesday, February 23 (today), 1:30 p. m., on proposed establishment of a county economic development commission.

Other business conducted Thursday saw a presentation by East Tawas officials asking for county funds to assist with development of the Deloise (Dewey) Durant Park and a proposed county museum.

Members of the county board of commissioners believed that the parks and recreation commission was the proper organization to hear such a request and a date has been set tentatively for March 9 for a discussion.

With concurrence of the probate judge, a planned increase in the supplement pay for 1977 in the amount of $939 was rescinded. This action was based on recent legislation establishing the probate judge's salary whereby the county is required to pay 40 percent of the established salary of $15,000, with the amount of further supplement to be determined by the board of commissioners.

Reduction of the supplement was retroactive to January 1 and the new salary level for 1977 was established at $20,285, with $9,000 from state funds, $6,000 mandatory county requirement and $5,285 voluntary county supplement based on the length of service to the county by the incumbent.

A bid of $101 for a 1977 tax assessment roll submitted by Karcher Real Estate, Oscoda, was accepted. There was only one bid received for the tax roll and other items advertised are to be retained pending further disposition.

Council Allocates $100 to Fish Derby

An allocation of $100 to aid in financing of Tawas Chamber of Commerce's Brown Trout Derby was approved Monday night by the Tawas City Council.

A letter from Roger Jackson, executive director of the chamber of commerce, stated that prize money of up to $1,500 would be awarded to winners of the one-month contest from April 16 to May 16.

Contributions to the contest are being sought from local business establishments.

In other business, the council adopted a statement of assurance in regard to establishment of a trust fund for receipt of federal revenue sharing money. It was reported that $41,338 would be received from January 1 through September 30. A hearing is to be held on how these funds are to be expended at the same time the city's budget will go to a public hearing.

A report on state highway snow and ice control costs was given by the city manager.

Consideration is to be given by the council to purchase a used snowblower to improve street clearing operations. Costs range from $2,500 to $6,000. Purchase of a new tractor would also be required due to the age of present equipment. Consideration is to be given, too, to purchase of a street sweeping machine, which would cost $3,000 or $4,000.

Due to the expense of repairing broken water mains during the past several months, the council authorized transferring $4,400 in federal anti recession funds to the water department to help pay the cost of repairs. A second recommendation of the city manager to transfer $5,000 to the water department from these funds was also approved. He said that the city had contemplated laying off of two department of public works employees during the past winter, but both men were kept on the job. Bublitz said that the water department's financial condition was in dire condition due to the water line breaks.

The council designated the city manager as street administrator for state maintenance purposes.

Two Local Men Named to Commission

Two local members to act with representatives of the state boundary commission in studying a petition to consolidate the Tawas into one home rule city were appointed last week by Iosco Probate Judge William McCready.

Named as local representatives on the boundary commission were George Stalker of Baldwin Township and John N. Brugger of Tawas City.

Under terms of state law governing boundary line changes, the probate judge appoints one representative of a township and one from a city involved in the change.

The Iosco County Board of Commissioners also becomes involved in the proceedings for the proposed boundary changes, according to the probate judge.

Official notification from the state indicating that petitions and a map of the proposed boundary changes has been received by city councils of Tawas City and East Tawas. The information has been turned over to the city planning commission for study.

Since filing of the petitions, it has been reported that expansion of the boundary lines as first proposed is now under consideration. Portions of Baldwin, Tawas and Alabaster Townships are said to be included in the new boundary line changes.

Keith Frank New Challenge Leader

Keith Frank of East Tawas recently completed extensive training in the Michigan 4-H Challenge Program and is now certified as a 4-H Club Challenge leader.

The 4-H Challenge Program is one of only two Michigan 4-H programs to require its leaders to possess state certification, the other being horsemanship for the handicapped.

Challenge is one of the newest programs which has been developed by Michigan State University and its resource staff. The program is designed to extend the participants' reach by purposely providing physically and mentally stressful outdoor experiences.

Involvement will help youth and adults gain confidence in their abilities to cope with stresses that they face in other areas of their lives. Challenge encompasses a variety of areas including natural resources, map and compass reading, survival, food and nutrition, wilderness, canoeing and much more.

Persons between the ages of nine and 18 years interested in taking part in the Iosco County 4-H Challenge Program are invited to attend an organizational meeting March 4 at the Cooperative Extension Service, Tawas City.

More than 140 junior high school students of Tawas Area School are competing in a mathematics elimination test today (Wednesday) to name winners who will represent the school at a contest to be held at Central Michigan University.

The top 10 students in each grade are to receive awards at the local level.

East Tawas City Council OK's Engineer to Start on New Durant Park

Plans for the new Deloise (Dewey) Durant Park at East Tawas are to be prepared by Spicer Engineering Company, according to action at Monday night's meeting of the city council.

This project, to be funded jointly through local and state funds, has been in the discussion stages for several years. The engineering firm is to start its work this week.

Paul Hay, president of Tawas Area Tennis Association, appeared at Monday night's meeting and presented $177 to this project, representing receipts from the organization's concession stand during the Perchville USA Festival.

Hay commended the city for its efforts in improving two tennis courts at the Newman Street Park and plans for two tennis courts at the new park.

Clerk Clyde Soper, who has headed up preliminary planning for the park project, reported on the meeting last Wednesday with the county board of commissioners. The commission is to arrange a meeting with the county parks and recreation commission to discuss possible sponsorship of the new park and the boat launching ramp under a similar program which saw development of the Oscoda Township Park.

It was reported that East Tawas has spent $22,000 annually on park development over the past three years.

Robert Trufant, a resident of Bay Park Tower, appeared at the meeting and requested the city to consider improvements to sidewalks between Bay Park Tower and the downtown area. He said that a number of persons had fallen and were injured on the sidewalks. The council said it was considering establishment of special assessment districts to finance the cost of new sidewalk construction in both business and residential areas.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ellis appeared at the meeting and complained of the condition of neighboring property. Mayor Robert Bolen assured them that the city would do everything possible under city ordinances to correct the situation.

A request for financial assistance from the Tawas Chamber of Commerce for its Brown Trout Derby was referred to the finance committee for a recommendation.

A request from the fire department for an allocation of $150 to pay the cost of sending three firemen to an 81-hour course in emergency medical training at Tawas Hospital was approved.

Transfer of a liquor license from Robert C. and Helen Ellis to Bing S. Lum at Lixey's Restaurant was approved.

After an absence of several meetings due to illness, Councilman Jerry Klenow was welcomed back at Monday night's meeting. He was asked to serve on the board of review which is to meet Tuesday and Wednesday, March 14-15, with a final meeting on March 25.

City Seeks 10-Year Dredging Permit

Hoping to dispense with annual approval to dredge the mouth of the Tawas River, the City of Tawas is seeking a 10-year permit from the Army Corps of Engineers, which has control over navigation and dredging.

In the meantime, City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz reported Monday night to the city council that prescribed regulations of the corps of engineers would have to be followed for an annual permit. This requires a 30-day posting notice prior to actual work.

He estimated that approximately 4,800 yards of sand would have to be moved from the river mouth this spring to keep the channel open to small craft.

Bublitz said that methods of dredging must be indicated on the permit and he was considering three different means: Use of a sand sucker, dragline or explosives. He said that use of explosives, as suggested by the council at its last meeting, would require an environmental impact statement and he expressed doubts if deepening the channel in this manner would be permitted. It was suggested by Councilman Jerry Cotter that explosives be omitted from the application in order to prevent any undue delay.

The city manager said that he had met with Martin O'Driscoll, chairman of the river mouth harbor committee, to study the best possible ways of completing the dredging. He said he was to send a letter to the Lubaway family, owner of property on the east side of the river mouth, requesting permission to cross their land with navigation and dredging.

It is hoped that sand dredged from the river may be removed from the site rather than to stockpile it along the shore. In the past, large piles of sand, quickly reentered the channel through wave action.

O'Driscoll reported that he was seeking assistance from downstate newspapers in an effort to enlist support of state or federal assistance with improvements to the river mouth.

Whittemore - Prescott Cardinals turned in a red-hot first quarter and led, 30-17, early in the second quarter, but could not maintain that pace and lost to the visiting Tawas Area Braves, 73-65, in Friday night's Northeastern Michigan Conference action.

Mark Rosemeck's eight-point effort sent the Cards off to an 18-15 margin in the first quarter and Ken Horn turned in eight points in the second quarter for the Cards.

Tawas' Neil Warner kept the Braves in the game during the second quarter with three long bombs for six points and the Braves proved deadly at the foul lines with eight baskets as the Cards' lead was cut to 32-31 at intermission.

The Braves turned the game completely around in the third quarter and Mark Fisher led the way with three field goals and a charity toss as the Braves scored a game-deciding 23-10 margin.

Fisher hit for eight points in the final quarter as the Cards closed the gap with a 23-19 margin, but could not salvage a victory before a large parents' night crowd. Gary Bingle topped the losers with eight points in the fourth quarter.

The Cards held the upper hand in two quarters and outscored Tawas, 28-22, from the field, but Tawas' accuracy from the foul lines proved to be the difference. The Braves completed 27 out of 35 shots from the charity lanes and the Cards meshed nine of 17 foul shots.

Fisher topped Tawas scorers with 20 points and three of his mates hit in double figures. Butch Duvall totaled 13 points, Jerry Gracik had 11 and Jeff Tousley meshed 10. Bingle topped the losers with 17 points, followed by Rosemeck's 16 points and Horn had 15.

Iosco Dems Meet Feb. 23

Iosco County Democratic Party will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, February 23, 8:00 p. m., at the Iosco County Building, Tawas City. Annual reports will be heard on the state convention.

Urge Closing of Foreign Rather Than State Bases

A resolution recommending closure of foreign installations rather than closing two air force installations in Michigan was adopted at the Democratic State Convention.

The Michigan Democratic Party strongly urged President Carter and the secretary of defense to maintain Kincheloe Air Force Base and Wurtsmith Air Force Base.

"If the air force finds it necessary to close any base, then this should be a foreign installation which would reduce the drain on balance of payments, assist the maintenance of domestic economy and give top priority to jobs in America," stated the resolution.

The resolution was proposed by Douglas Brown, Hale, Iosco County's state central delegate, and Mitch Erwin, delegate from Chippewa County.

Student Must Work to Pass

Student Retention Policy Proves Successful at Hale

Twenty parents of students in junior high school at Hale Area School received notification last week that their children were being considered for retention in the same grade next term.

"Only three years ago, such a notice would have been a rather traumatic experience for both the students and some parents, but there has been a tremendous change in attitude since 1974," states Richard Dodge, principal. "Parents have responded positively."

Of those 20 retention notices, only 13 will actually remain in either the seventh or eighth grade. The remainder, especially those who have neglected classroom work during the first semester, will "shape up" after parent-teacher conferences and their work will have improved to such an extent that retention will not be necessary.

At the urging of teachers, this retention program was adopted three years ago by the school system. "Retention has been a rather controversial subject in schools and I was rather skeptical at first; after seeing the results, I am much impressed," states Dodge.

At the first meeting of teachers and the principal three years ago, a criteria was developed to evaluate seventh and eighth grade students experiencing difficulty in school in order to determine whether they should be passed or retained at their present grade level. That criteria includes social and physical maturity level, academic performance in every class, effort related to ability, age, attitude development, progress or regression over the school year and the projected effect of retention on the student.

Each student is considered on an individual basis according to each segment of the criteria by a committee of eight junior high school teachers, the counselor and principal.

The possible results of keeping a student in his present grade which are considered important include: Assurance that each student has gained the skills and subject matter necessary for success in the next grade; guard against repeated failure in the next grade and to help insure success in later high school years; to give each student a chance to better adjust emotionally, physically, socially and academically to a different group of students more at his own level;

To promote the attitude that students will pass on to the next grade only if one performs satisfactorily; to encourage greater effort, a more positive attitude and renewed progress by each student at his present grade.

Dodge said that maturity of the individual student is probably the biggest single factor in passing or failing school work. Some students are just too young to be at their present grade and all youngsters do not mature at the same age level.

Every case is different, however, as some students are unable to perform academically and some of those students go into special education classes in order to deal with causes.

"Students who are told they are going to be retained at the same grade level are stunned at first because of the social problems involved, but we have found that 90 percent quickly adjust to a second peer group," said Dodge.

Most importantly, however, is the success of the program. Dodge said that seven of the 10 students retained in seventh grade the first year were successful the second time around; five of the 10 eighth graders retained were successful the following year.

Last year, four seventh graders were retained with 100 percent success—none are failing a single course—while five of the six eighth graders retained after last year are equally successful.

"We have found a tremendous change in attitude among those students who have been retained and they are accepting more responsibility," said the principal.

Dodge feels that the additional work required of him in monitoring each seventh and eighth grader's progress is well worth the time. He personally reviews all report cards and, in addition to meetings with the school counselor, meets with each student failing two or more of the four basic subjects.

IOSCO'S UNSOLVED MURDER MYSTERY

An unsolved Iosco County murder remains a mystery to this day and, with the passage of a century, the story can be repeated without fear of violating the "constitutional rights" of the participants—there is no one living today who has first hand knowledge of the crime and relatives have been scattered by the passage of years.

It was June 30, 1885, when a group of volunteer life guards standing on the wave-pounded beach at Forest, Ontario, stared into Lake Huron. The storm had taken a heavy toll of lumbering and fishing fleets, but a dory built only for use in quiet waters had lived through the blow in some unaccountable fashion and was now being hurled toward the shore with its lone occupant.

The figure crouched between the seats apparently was as little concerned with danger as with rescue. The dory spun crazily and was flung high up on the sand, as the volunteer rescuers dragged it beyond the reach of the waves. It was then the men noticed that their efforts had served only to recover a corpse.

The cadaver was that of a middle aged man of medium stature. Several gaping wounds showed through the hair and heavy beard plastered to his head. A rope had been passed around his middle, binding him to the stern of the tiny craft.

At first glance, it seemed that he had lashed himself to the dory, fearing that he would be swept overboard and, afterward, his consciousness lost, had been pounded to death as the boat rolled and plunged. However, it was discovered upon moving the body that the ankles had been bound together and the arms tied behind the back.

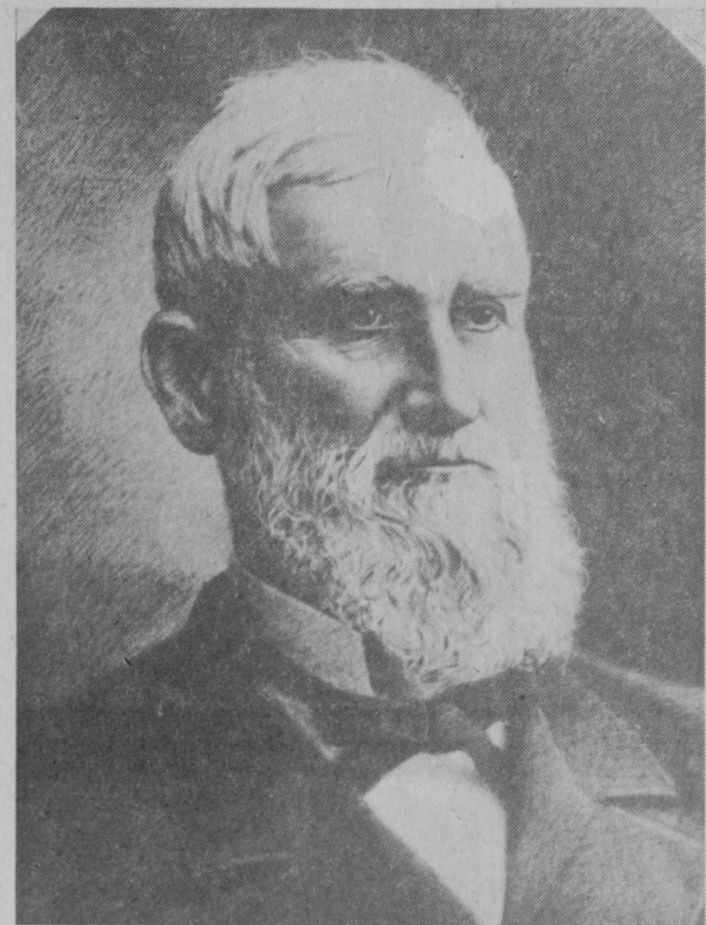

Soon the provincial police of Ontario were on the scene. Their examination of the dead man left no doubt that he had been murdered, although no one could satisfactorily explain why he had been set adrift when so many other and better means of disposing of a body must have occurred to the murderer.

The Canadian authorities were about to order the burial of the corpse when a Michigan lumberman wandered into the funeral parlor where the body reposed. He carefully scrutinized the features of the murdered man and then identified the body as that of Henry B. Farrington, once the proprietor of a jewelry shop at AuSable and later a convict at Jackson Prison.

Others who had known Farrington appeared and corroborated the identification. The Ontario police, claiming that the body had drifted out of the waters under the jurisdiction of the United States, placed the burden of investigating the murder on Michigan authorities.

The news that the former jeweler had been slain was received with satisfaction by many residents of AuSable, for the crime of which he had been convicted branded him as one of the most vicious murderers in Iosco County's lumbering days.

Farrington had been released from prison in December 1884, fol-

GOV. JOSIAH W. BEGOLE was a hated man in Michigan in 1884. Defeated for re-election, he took his revenge out on voters by pardoning many hardened criminals from state prisons, including a convicted murderer from Iosco County. People from this county particularly disliked Begole for his role in sending the state militia to Oscoda and AuSable in 1884 to break a strike of saw-mill workers.—Burton Historical Collection.

lowing an unconditional pardon of many convicts by Gov. Josiah W. Begole.

A report in The Tawas Herald recalled the crime for which Farrington had been committed to prison. On October 3, 1877, the jeweler had been arraigned before Circuit Judge J. B. Tuttle for "two heinous crimes." First, for the murder of William Stewart, a butcher and drover at AuSable, on the night of October 25, 1875; second, for an assault with intent to kill or murder Richard J. Nye, a turnkey in the Iosco County Jail.

"The accused kept a small jewelry store at AuSable at the corner of the iron bridge. His reputation has always been bad. Twenty-five years ago, he was a bully and a gambler traveling up and down the St. Clair River," stated the Herald.

"He had a little shop at St. Clair, but never did much legitimate business there or here. He has ever been known as one of the worst and most blasphemous talkers on the shore. A moderately profane man would shudder to hear him cuss. To sum up, Farrington is and ever has been a fiend—a more perfect 'Bill Sykes' than the one Dickens portrayed."

"The Herald went on to comment: 'The pardoning of Farrington does not take very well with the people of this county. Governor Begole is getting even with the State of Michigan for defeating him, by turning all the hard characters out of the state prison.'

Farrington had been convicted of the ax murder of a prosperous butcher, whose body was found sprawled in front of the American House on AuSable's Water Street. The victim's head had been split by one blow with one of the favorite weapons of the period.

It was soon established that the victim had been robbed of $1,000, which he had collected the previous day from a lumber camp which purchased its meat supplies from him. It was later determined that the "eternal triangle" was the real motive for the killing.

Deputy Sheriff Sylvester Vaughan investigated the murder and immediately determined that the man had not been killed on the board walk. His intensive investigation led him to Farrington's shop, where he noticed that the kitchen floor in the living quarters had been scrubbed almost white. Stepping out of a rear door which overlooked the AuSable River, Vaughan found that the kitchen rested on poles.

launched into a terrible denunciation of the court, jury, sheriff, prosecutor and even his own lawyers. Everyone associated with the case had been guilty of conspiring against a man who was guiltless, he stated.

According to a report in the AuSable Saturday Night, the prisoner, "his face indicating no emotion, nothing save possibly a slightly increased palor, made an incoherent, disjointed harangue of half an hour's length, the most bitter, the most revengeful tirade in which he assailed judge, jury, witnesses and men of AuSable in language which only he could use."

The presiding officer peremptorily stopped him and said: "Prisoner at the bar, you are the most guilty man I have ever seen; if an angel from heaven were to tell me you are innocent of the crime of which you stand convicted, I would tell him to go back and bring the rest of the angelic host to confirm it," stated the AuSable Saturday Night's account of the trial.

The silence was actually oppressive as Judge Tuttle passed sentence upon the murderer of William Stewart, consigning him to "solitary confinement at hard labor for life." Not a muscle moved in the man's face as he heard his doom pronounced and he passed from the room. The universal opinion is that he received his just deserts, declared the newspaper.

His rabid outburst reacted against him, for while some citizens of AuSable and Tawas City had believed in his innocence before that trial, his conduct now convinced them that he always had been a completely vicious character.

"I'll be back," Farrington vowed as he left the courtroom door. "I'll prove that I am innocent and take vengeance for the injustice that has been done in my case."

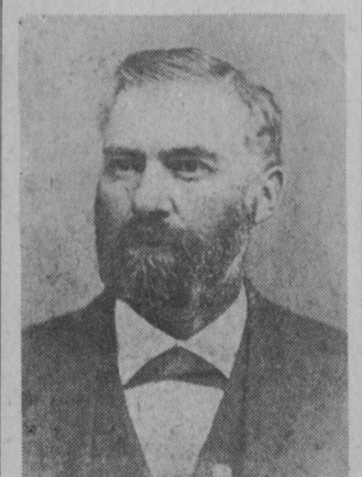

Following his sentence, Farrington made desperate attempts to escape from the jail, which was then located under the old Iosco County Courthouse. Heavy spikes had been driven through the ceiling of his jail cell, but one successful escape attempt saw Farrington removing several pieces of the building's limestone foundation and tunneling his way to freedom.

One notation in the diary of Sheriff L. B. Smith was as follows: "On my return from Loon Lake, found great excitement over Farrington's attempt to escape from jail last night. He tried to kill Deputy Dick Nye, but Dick was too much for him. Put shackles on Farrington's feet and put him in a dark cell to sleep. I bought of Whitmore for the county one 56-pound ball. Had Grise the blacksmith attach it to the shackles and put on Farrington."

Two months later, Farrington finally escaped. The diary does not mention how Farrington disposed (See MYSTERY, page 2.)

THE COUNTY JAIL was located in the basement of the old Iosco County Courthouse in Tawas City, constructed in 1869. Henry B. Farrington tunneled out of jail in one escape attempt and fashioned a key from a spoon in his final escape. He was later murdered and the circumstances surrounding his death remain a mystery to this day.—Tawas Herald Photo.

L. B. SMITH'S diaries as Iosco County sheriff from 1874 to 1879 tell the story of escapes from the county jail by a convicted murderer.

week period, the principal and counselor meet with the entire junior high school staff to review every case on an individual basis. Parents also meet with the principal following the first failure notification and, if necessary, after the final review with teachers in April.

"In junior high school, students do not work toward a credit, as they do in high school. Previous to the start of this program, there were just too many youngsters who were being passed into the next grade when they were not ready for the next level of work. Failure may be a negative motivation, but it is getting results," said Dodge.

of the ball and chain, but Sheriff Smith immediately telegraphed all law officers of Michigan to arrest the fugitive and offered a $100 reward for his capture. Three days later, Sheriff Smith left with several fishermen for Whitestone Point, where Farrington was arrested in bed. "I was accompanied by William Graham and Justice of the Peace John W. King. Paid $100 reward. Returned home at 7:00 a. m.—Farrington some used up," states the dairy.

Farrington made another desperate attempt to escape while he was being taken by train to Jackson Prison. He was recaptured after a few hours of freedom and nothing again was heard of the man until the pardon was announced by Governor Begole.

Then in May 1884, he appeared in Tawas City. Whether the ex-convict had returned in the hope of proving his innocence or for the purpose of exacting vengeance, no one knew. From a saloon keeper came information that Farrington was attempting to establish the whereabouts of Jailer Nye, who frustrated his attempts to escape.

Farrington was arrested soon afterward and he was arraigned and jailed on a charge of conspiring to kill his old enemy. Confined with him was a lumberjack, Dick Burke, whom he had known at Au-Sable; in fact, one of the timber workers who had been questioned in connection with Stewart's murder in 1875.

Farrington became strangely docile during his second period in jail and it was later believed that the former jeweler had invited a jail sentence for the purpose of gaining his cellmate's confidence. On the morning of June 2, 1885, a deputy sheriff found the adjoining cells occupied by the two men to be empty. A skilled artisan, it was thought that Farrington had fabricated a key from a spoon and had taken Burke with him in his flight.

The following day, a fisherman reported that his rowboat had been stolen from its mooring place on Tawas Bay. All trace of the fugitives was then lost until Farrington's battered body rode a boat into the harbor at Forest, Ontario. The sheriff's department attempted to find Burke, but the lumberjack had vanished from Michigan, never to be seen again.

The slaying of the convicted murderer remains unsolved—the tale of his passing on the storm-tossed

Over 1/3 Getting Social Security 72 or Over

Over one-third of all people getting monthly social security benefits are 72 years old or over, according to social security officials here.

"Social security pays over $6.2 billion a month in benefits to over 32 million people. Over 11.3 million of those people are 72 or over," a spokesman said.

He said over 7.8 million men and women 72 or over get retirement checks based on their own work under social security. More than 2.2 million get payments as widows and widowers, over 1 million as wives or dependent husbands, about 19,000 as dependent parents, and about 203,000 are people 72 or over who are covered under a special provision of the law because they had little opportunity to earn social security credit during their working years.

People 72 or over who are working can earn any amount and still get their full social security check every month, the spokesman noted.

People under 72 get reduced benefits if they earn over $3,000 in 1977. "But no matter how much they earn for the year, they can get their full social security benefit for any month in which they neither earn over $250 nor do substantial work in their own business," he said.

Over 16.7 million retired workers 62 or over get an average social security payment of $217.

Q. I get SSI checks and work part time, but now plan to work full time. How will this affect my payments?

A. Any change of income may affect the amount of the supplemental security income (SSI) payment. You should report the change to your social security office so that an adjustment can be made.

Q. I'm a college student. I've been getting social security benefits several years on my late father's record. But I'll reach age 22 in March. Will my checks stop then?

A. You can get social security benefits to the end of the semester or the quarter in which you reach 22 if you're a full-time student in school and remain unmarried.

Q. I was turned down for SSI a year ago because a Federal rent subsidy I received was considered part of my income. I heard there was a recent change in the rules on this. True?

A. Since last October, most Federal rent subsidies don't count as income under the supplemental security income program (SSI). This includes situations where a local housing authority pays the subsidy directly to a private landlord. People who were ineligible for SSI, or whose SSI payments were stopped or reduced because of the old rule should contact a social security office right away to find out if their eligibility or payment amounts are affected.

MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR MONEY

Be the Boss: Tell your Money Where to Go

The one most important of building a budget is decision-making. Every person, couple or family who plans a budget can decide how detailed the budget will be, the time span it will cover, and, specifically, how they will spend their money.

Families who have trouble budgeting—who feel that a spending plan is just too much trouble and who cannot stick to one anyway—may need to start with a partial budget. Later, when record-keeping is less of a chore and when budgeting a few categories is habitual, they can develop a more comprehensive plan.

Most budgets cover a period of one year, but you should decide what time span best fits your needs.

If you have never had a budget before, perhaps you should only deal with a few months at a time, so you can readjust as you see how realistic or unrealistic you have been. Perhaps you should budget from July to June instead of January to December, if that fits your yearly income better.

Once you have made these preliminary choices and are ready to build the budget itself, answer these questions to develop a personalized spending plan:

1) How much of your income is already promised to others? List the name of each person or company to whom you have promised to pay some money and the amount of the payment for next month. These may be rent or house payments, fuel, electricity, telephone, installment payments, etc. These are "fixed expenses" and are basic to most households.

Installment spending was "flexible" originally. It was your choice to buy an item on credit. Compare these total fixed expenses to the total income you expect next month.

pect next month. Your total income can be calculated by pay period, monthly, bi-weekly or weekly. The differences between these two figures is the amount of money you will have left for day-to-day spending.

2) How many promised payments will you take from each paycheck? If you are paid once a week, try to decide which fixed payments you will make each week. Some payments may be so big that you will have to save a little money from two, three or four weeks' funds. Also plan meeting payments which come only once or twice a year, insurance, taxes, car license, etc. Then, compare each weekly total to your expected income for that week. Subtract fixed expenses from income to find out how much spending money you will have each week.

3) How will you spend your part of each week's income? This is the area of your budget which allows most freedom. Categories can be shifted to your satisfaction.

First, list what you consider to be necessary goods and services, such as clothes, food, savings, household supplies, etc., and the amount you expect to spend for each one every week.

According to the importance you attach to each category, you can then allocate the remaining money for extras, entertainment, gifts, contributions, vacations, etc. A word of warning: Things seldom work out exactly as you first plan. But if you keep at it, planning gets easier.

How will you know if your budget is working? Keep records. Jot down what you spend and check it against what you planned. But do not try to keep track of every cent... just enough to give a fairly accurate picture of where your income is going.

When you see which categories are running over or under what you had planned, you can alter the budget to make it more realistic or make a more concentrated effort to keep spending in a certain category in line with what you planned.

Record-keeping means you can check your progress and keep yourself from overspending on all categories. That means you will not be left at the end of a pay period with no money.

Your budget cannot stay exactly the same, year after year. Your income, your changing values will affect it. And your record-keeping will indicate where changes might need to come. With practice, budget adjustments will come more easily, the specialist predicts.

Wanted: Young Homemakers

By SUSAN B. LAMBRECHT
County Extension Director

If you are a young homemaker who is interested in learning, there may be a very special scholarship waiting for you. The scholarship pays your way to attend College Week, a program of lifelong learning, June 20-23 at Michigan State University.

College Week offers an opportunity to challenge your thinking, meet new people, get new ideas and develop your potential. You can choose to attend three classes from the 50 offered. Topics range from fats and your health and African heritage to political process and assertiveness training, plus lots in between. Assembly sessions with topnotch speakers, films, exhibits, tours and a chance to meet your legislator round out the week. It is a great way to renew yourself. And now about those scholarships. Anyone is welcome to apply. Priority is given to homemakers who are young, who have preschool or young children, who show leadership ability and who could not attend without this financial help. The scholarships are provided by the Michigan Division of Woman's National Farm and Garden Clubs.

Further information on College Week or on the available scholarships may be secured from Susan Lambrecht, county extension director, at 362-3449. College Week and all Cooperative Extension Service programs are open to all without regard to race, color or national origin.
