Wilkuski Retires from Forest Service

About five years ago, a group of young people cutting live trees in the Huron National Forest for firewood told a forester that they thought the area was beautiful. They really did not realize that they were doing wrong.

The forester, who took a dim view of defacing live trees, explained to them that the young trees growing today had been planted nearly 50 years ago by other young people and, if managed properly, there would be a mature forest for their grandchildren where once there was only a sand plain.

The above incident took place near Gordon Creek, site of Camp Silver Creek, which once housed hundreds of young men enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps. Hundreds of thousands of young pine trees were planted by those young men and the trees are now enjoying an amazing growth in what will one day be an important part of the nation's economy and ecology.

The forester mentioned above, who so impressed the youngsters, was Frank Wilkuski, 69, East Tawas, who retires Friday after 28 years of service with the United States Forest Service.

Wilkuski said Tuesday morning that he believes he "reached" the handful of youngsters with whom he conversed concerning their search for firewood. "I explained that there was plenty of dead trees to use for their campfires," said Wilkuski. There were too many ears upon which the message could not reach, however, as extensive pressure by the public has caused closing of that very area in order to heal the damage.

Known by his fellow workers at the East Tawas Federal Building as the "Jack Pine Savage," Wilkuski has first hand knowledge of the planting program using CCC labor. He was fresh out of the University of Michigan when he came to Iosco County in 1933 to work with the forest service in supervising the planting.

A native of Pennsylvania, Wilkuski grew up at Albany, New York, once the lumber capital of the world. When several of his high school chums decided they would attend the University of Michigan to study forestry, Wilkuski decided he would "tag along."

He has been a resident of Michigan ever since his college days and his first assignment after joining the forest service was to become camp superintendent of the Hale CCC Camp. He was later superintendent at Luzerne and Silver Creek.

Wilkuski's life has been the forest and he has an abiding interest in it. He said the greatest assistance toward suppression of forest fires was public education and the introduction of Smokey the Bear—an emblem recognized today by every child and adult in the country. He believes that further public education will insure future protection of the beautiful stands of red pine planted by the willing young hands of so long ago.

Thousands of people visit the Huron National Forest annually and during his travels through the forest, Wilkuski has met numerous men on vacation with their families who once served at Silver Creek.

"I'll miss working in the forest," said Wilkuski, who always has had great interest in the out-of-doors.

Wilkuski was employed by the forest service from 1933 until 1945, then left for 15 years to enter into business for himself at the Huron Rustic Furniture Company in Tawas City. He rejoined the service in 1961.

During his earlier years, he fought forest fires at Welcome Lake, Five Channels Dam, Oscoda and the Ski Bowl, to name a few of the larger conflagrations. The first fire blackened more than 4,000 acres. His foreman died in one of those fires.

"We once had seven lookout towers in the forest and a fire always had about a half-hour start after it was spotted. Now, with aerial observation and a more sophisticated communications system, fire fighters are at the scene within a few minutes. We also have excellent cooperation from volunteer fire departments from the surrounding communities, as well as citizens band radio operators."

Wilkuski said that in the 1930s, one could look for miles on the plains land which now comprises the national forest and not see a large tree. Cattle were still running on some open range at that time, but with planting and modern management the area has been transformed.

"People once made their living picking huckleberries in what is today's forest—through an educational process, the public was convinced that it was better to have a green area rather than a blackened one," he stated.

Now a technical forester involved in timber management, he has served under eight different forest supervisors and nine rangers.

In retirement, he will be helping his wife in their large flower garden at East Tawas, along with getting in some traveling and fishing.

He plans to visit the forest as often as possible—after all, he is a part of it and was there when the CCCs were planting 100,000 trees a day and mostly by hand.

Wilkuski is to be honored at a retirement party Saturday, January 22, at Tawas Golf and Country Club.

School Board Cites Danger at East Tawas Stop Light

Citing possible danger to students at the East Tawas Elementary School, Tawas Area Board of Education Monday night authorized a request to the East Tawas Council seeking prohibition of right-hand turns when a traffic control signal shows "stop" at the Lincoln Street-Newman Street intersection.

Under state legislation enacted last year, motorists are permitted to make a right-hand turn on

"red" after coming to a complete stop and yielding the right-of-way to pedestrians and approaching cars.

It was the opinion of Trustee Clare Herriman that such right-hand turns were dangerous at that location because of elementary aged school children involved.

A letter is to be sent to the city council pointing out the danger. State law permits modification by local authorities through the erection of suitable signs.

Board Adjusts Budget After Contracts Final

Tawas Area School's budget was adjusted downward by $20,547, according to action taken at Monday night's meeting of the board of education.

Plus and minus adjustments were made in a number of categories, including an increase in the cost of elementary education from $410,731 to $419,725. Middle school expense was decreased by $2,600 and high school expense was increased by $7,000.

Supt. Robert A. Halle said the adjustments were necessary following settlement of contracts with unions representing teachers and noninstructional personnel.

Decreases were noted in fiscal services, community education, vocational education, operation and maintenance. Transportation was cut by $6,000 and $1,000 was added to administration expense.

In other business, Gene Gerber, community education director, announced that Friday's graduation class would be the last in the PREP program administered at Wurtsmith Air Force Base by Tawas Area School. Funding has been discontinued for high school completion courses by the Veterans Administration, but partial funding of a minimal program has been provided by the air force and Oscoda Area School is to again resume handling the program.

Gerber said Tawas Area School actually made a slight profit under the former program. Tawas Area School had been asked to provide the service two years ago when Oscoda Area School was without the service of a community education director during an austerity program.

Because of the lack of funding, Gerber said the new program would be a "break even" situation. The final class conducted by this school will graduate 17 airmen.

Spring coaching assignments approved by the board of education included Joseph Disette, varsity baseball, and Larry Valentine, junior varsity baseball. Yet to be named are junior varsity girls softball and assistant boys track.

A one-year leave of absence was granted to Susan Weaver, English teacher in the middle school. Her letter indicated she intends to return to teaching in January 1978.

Robert McDonald, junior high school principal, said that 22 applications for the position had been received and five teachers were interviewed.

Hired to fill the one-year vacancy was Sally Wangberg of Paw Paw, a December graduate of Central Michigan University.

Authorization was given to sell a number of tools which have been declared surplus in the wood and auto shop program.

During discussion on transportation, Edward Poppe, transportation director, said that gasoline mileage on buses had been improved considerably during the past three years through purchase of buses with automatic transmissions. He said, too, that the automatic transmissions had reduced maintenance costs.

Poppe's report indicated that the school's 30 different bus runs averaged 1,401.8 miles daily. There are 20 regular routes, along with six kindergarten runs, two band runs, one for building trades and one for "head start."

Discussion on the policy concerning calling off of school due to inclement weather indicated a decision not to have school is made prior to 6:00 a. m. and notification would be made over local radio stations. Teachers are to report by 10 o'clock on a snow day, but all teachers were notified Monday not to report due to the condition of roads.

At the February 14 meeting of the board of education, safety awards are to be presented to bus drivers.

Poppe reported that all buses were in condition for the annual inspection by Michigan State Police.

Oscoda Man Faces Murder Attempt Count

A 49-year-old Oscoda man, Thomas Harrison, is being held at the Iosco County Jail under $25,000 bond on a two-count charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Arrested Tuesday morning in District Court, examination has been set for January 18.

Two brothers, Lee and Leon Williams, 44, Oscoda, are in Wurtsmith Air Force Base Hospital, Oscoda, where their condition was reported Tuesday morning as being stable.

The two brothers were rushed by ambulance to the hospital at 4:46 p. m. Saturday after an anonymous phone call notified Oscoda Township Police of the incident.

Investigating police said the incident occurred at 7337 P-41, west of Oscoda, the residence of Harrison. The Williams brothers' throats had been slashed.

Police released no information concerning circumstances of the case or the type of weapon used.

The Williams brothers, American Indians, were born April 24, 1932, at Hale and had lived most of their lives in that area.

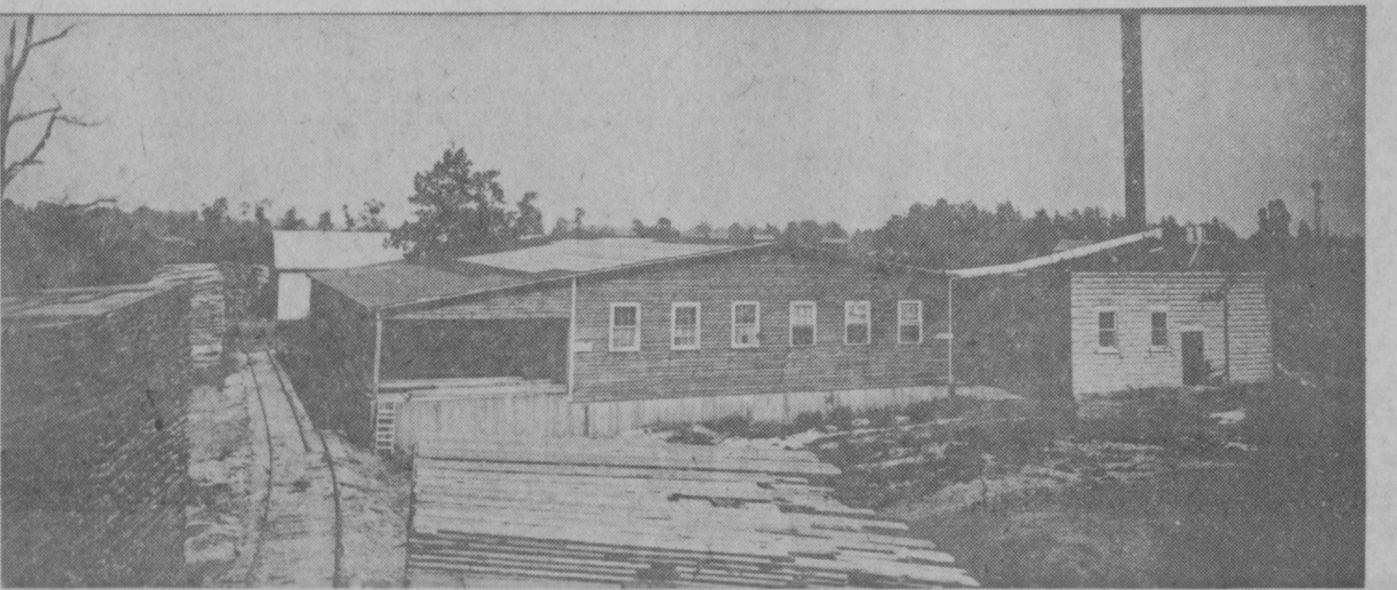

Harrison was recently released from the hospital following a shooting incident on December 8 in which he had been wounded in the stomach by a .22 caliber bullet fired by Donald Sayan of Oscoda. Sayan is being held at the Iosco County Jail on a charge of felonious assault. He is to stand trial on that charge January 27.

In November, Harrison allegedly assaulted Sayan and the latter was hospitalized. After getting out of the hospital, the two men were involved in another incident and Harrison was wounded.

WORK WAS STARTED last week on razing several old buildings formerly occupied by the Joseph Barkman Lumber Company on M-55 across from Tawas Hospital. Following Mr. Barkman's death last year, the property was sold to Charles Schreck of East Tawas. The property was once the site of the manufacturing plant of Barkman Lumber Company. Originally constructed in 1911, the firm manufactured a variety of building materials and specialties, including berry crates, cedar chests and storm doors. The plant was discontinued in November 1930 and the lumber yard was continued. The building housing a steam boiler is shown at right in the lower picture as it appeared in 1911 and as it appeared last week at top left with only the walls standing. An office building constructed in 1912 along M-55 is to remain for the present time.

Tawas Area Students At or Above State Average, According to Report

Students of Tawas Area School are at or above the state average in learning objectives, according to a report Monday night on the 1976-77 Michigan Educational Assessment program.

In reviewing computer print outs concerning the results, John Alexander, high school principal, told the board of education that he was "not particularly satisfied" that 49 percent of the 10th grade had room for improvement in one objective but he felt generally that students were "doing as well or better" than average at the 10th grade level.

This was the first year that students at the 10th grade level from this school participated in the program. The assessment program was initiated eight years ago for fourth and seventh graders.

Last year, about 50 schools participated in the 10th grade program and Tawas Area School volunteered to participate this year. It is expected that the program will become mandatory in the state, similar to fourth and seventh grade testing.

Alexander said that 187 students participated in reading and 190 took part in the mathematics assessment program.

Tawas students scored higher than the state average in finding solutions to linear equations, subtracting two mixed numbers with unlike denominators, arranging fractions, writing ratios describing indicated comparisons, computing product of two two-piece decimal fractions, finding missing values and solutions, finding quotient in division problems, renaming common fraction as decimal fractions, finding difference in time intervals.

Students also scored above state average in multiplying decimal fractions and whole number of 10 or power of 10, location of places on map using pairs of coordinates, solving word problems involving standard units of measure, answering questions comparing data on a bar graph, answering questions comparing data on a line graph, finding the greatest of two fractional numbers with unlike denominators.

Local students scored at the average level on a number of other objectives but, along with other students in the state, scored low on solving word problems involving rectangles, triangles and circles; dividing any two decimal numbers; renaming common fractions as decimal fractions.

Tawas students scored above average in eight reading objectives, were at the state average in one objective and one point below average in one reading objective.

Robert McDonald, junior high school principal, reported that students of the seventh grade scored above average in 36 out of 40 mathematics objective, while students scored from 10 to 12 percent higher than the state average in 20 reading objectives.

All information received from the testing is to be utilized by classroom teachers in order to correct deficiencies found in the examinations.

Snowmobile Rally Slated for Week-End

Thursday, January 6, members of Tawas Area Winter and Summer met at the Bay House in East Tawas for a business meeting and election of officers. The two vacancies, vice president and treasurer, were filled by Steven Sonogo and Helen Bukwa, respectively.

Plans were finalized for the snowmobile rally. A safari will leave the Tawas Golf and Country Club at 9:00 p. m., Friday, January 14, with plans for a hot dog roast enroute. At 9:00 a. m., Saturday, January 15, races and games will be conducted at the country club followed that evening by a dance. A pancake breakfast will be served at the country club Sunday, January 16, 9:00-11:00 a. m.

A new project to keep the mouth of Tawas River open was undertaken. To help finance this project, canisters are to be placed in local business places.

The Whispering Pines on Monument Road will be the site of the Thursday, February 3, meeting, which convenes at 7:30 p. m.

WILLIAM WERELEY

Wereley Named Chairman of Iosco Board of Commissioners

William Wereley of Hale is the new chairman of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners. He has been a member of the commission since it was first organized as a nine-man group in 1968.

There was a two-way contest for the chairmanship. Wereley was nominated for the post by Carlton Merschel and Joseph Fox nominated Donald Griffin of Oscoda for the position. Wereley won by a three to two vote.

Merschel, former chairman of the commission and elected to office last November after a two-year absence, was elected vice chairman. This was a key selection as it is expected that Wereley will be absent from future meetings due to illness.

Fox again nominated Griffin for the position and Jack Allen nominated Merschel, who won by a three to two vote.

Committee appointments were as follows:

Finance—Merschel, Fox, Allen; legislative—Griffin, Fox; building and grounds—Fox, Griffin; health and public safety—Allen, Merschel; District No. 2 Health Department—Allen, Merschel;

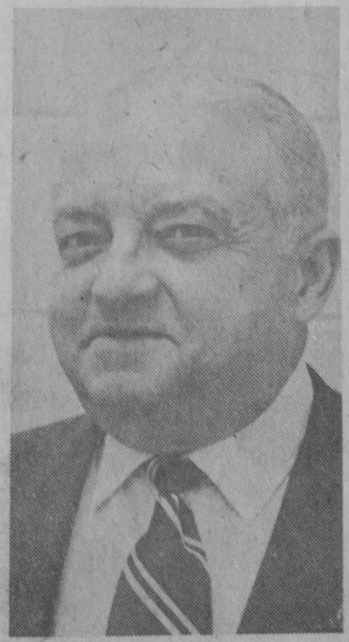

Substance abuse—Allen; East Michigan Tourist Association—Allen; Region 7-B Manpower Board—

Griffin; East Central Michigan Comprehensive Health Council—Fox.

During its business session, the commission allocated $4,000 from anti-recession funds for a brochure to be prepared by county chambers of commerce and the cooperative extension agency.

No action was taken on proposed expansion of the DART transportation system in the county. The board is to meet as a committee of the whole today (Wednesday) to hear comments on the proposal.

A request from Francis J. Block to attend a seminar at the University of Wisconsin January 17-21 was denied by the commission.

Only the Newspaper

Your newspaper tells you WHERE news is happening in terms of a living geography lesson. International news and feature services affiliate with newspapers to give editors arms long enough to encircle the globe as they reach out to grasp the story of our times. It's another reason why newspapers make a big difference in your life.

Perchville USA Festival Ready

Perchville USA takes over the Tawas during the first week-end in February. It is the 27th year for this premier winter sports festival in Northeastern Michigan. It all begins on Friday night, February 4, with the annual stag and doe fish fry. The women will gather at the Tawas Golf and Country Club while the men will gather at the East Tawas Community Building. Both events get under way with cocktails at 6:00 p. m. and dinner featuring mountains of fresh Lake Huron perch filets. Highlight of the stag evening will be the crowning of Perchville's 1977 perch king, Mark Wesley, sports director of WNEP-TV, Bay City. Total public participation in the Perchville program begins Saturday morning, February 5, 10:00 a. m., with an impressive flag raising ceremony. From then on until closing time Sunday, February 6, there is something going on every minute. The program includes hockey, a demolition derby on the ice, the polar bear swim both days, helicopter rides Saturday and Sunday. Motor bike racing on Sunday has been added to the excitement. Out in the bight of Tawas Bay, the fishing derby will go on all week-end until winners are honored at the closing ceremony on Sunday.

In loving memory of my husband, Millard A. (Ted) Freel, who passed away one year ago, January 16, 1976.

Often in the early morning As I sit all alone, Seems I hear your gentle voice saying Don't grieve, I've just gone home.
The tears I shed are many, Memories of you I shall always hold dear,
God alone only knows how I miss you
At the end of the first sad year. Sadly missed by wife, Georgina. 2-1p

BAD NEWS FOR YOUR BUDGET

Michigan residents who use natural gas for home heating will find their gas bills for the month of December considerably higher than their gas bills for the same month last year. One reason is the increased cost that the utilities have had to pay for gas. The other reason is the weather.

The Federal Power Commission recently approved price increases for natural gas that is moved between states. The purpose of the increase was to bring the price of gas in line with the cost of producing it, and thereby provide an incentive for producers to find more natural gas. And, it is desperately needed. The price of natural gas where it is taken from the ground has been controlled by the Federal Power Commission. What the FPC did was to allow the producers to charge 93 cents a thousand cubic feet for gas from wells begun during 1973 and 1974 and $1.42 a thousand cubic feet for gas from wells drilled after that time. The controlled price for such gas was formerly 52 cents. The new prices were charged to the utilities and, in turn, charged to their customers.

For one Michigan utility, the average residential customer who has natural gas for home heating will use nearly 28 thousand cubic feet of gas in an average January. The effect of the FPC-approved price increase and other recent gas price increases will be to raise the cost of gas to householders by about 55 cents per thousand cubic feet over last January's cost and nearly 20 cents over December 1976. During a normal year the average gas-heated residence in Michigan uses approximately 200 thousand cubic feet of gas each year. So you can see the effect these increases will have on budgets.

January's heating bill would likely be higher anyway. January is usually the coldest month of the year in the Lower Peninsula with a total of about 1,240 degree-days, which translates to an average temperature of 24 degrees. February is usually about one degree warmer, while December's average temperature over the last 25 years has been 30 degrees.

Degree-days are an important factor for utilities in determining bills. In a month like January, bad weather — snow and ice — may increase the number of meters that can't be read by your meter reader.

When a meter can't be read, the utilities rely on degree-days, a customer's past history and computers to come up with an estimated bill. The customer is then sent a statement based on calculations made by the computer. Of course, any error in the calculations will be automatically corrected later when an actual meter reading is made. However, most utilities don't like their computers to make mistakes so they are continually testing the system. One way of testing the system is to make a regular check when actual readings are taken. The computer figures out what the reading should be based on past history and degree-days for the period. Then the computer readout is compared with the human readout. Sometimes the computer reveals an erroneous human reading, which will then get corrected before the customer is billed.

One way to avoid those big utility bills in the winter is to sign up for an equal monthly payment plan. Most utilities offer such a plan whereby the customer's consumption is anticipated for the year. That estimated amount is divided by 12 and the customers billed in equal amounts monthly. Adjustments are made at the end of the 12-month period for the differences between the actual and anticipated consumption for the period. Most of these plans, however, require customers to start during late spring or during the summer. Check with your own utility.

Of course, none of these methods will bring on a milder winter or stem the increases in energy costs, but they will enable the customer to better budget the cost of convenience and comfort.

Arrest Trio in Alabaster Burglaries

Three men were arrested January 3 on a charge of breaking and entering cabins in Alabaster Township.

Arrested were Berry N. Harris, 20; his brother, Benny F. Harris, 19; Millard M. Corbin, 22, all of the Tawas area.

An Iosco County Sheriff's Department deputy, Charles Bublitz, had been on patrol in Alabaster Township and observed a suspicious vehicle on Oates Road. When he stopped the car driven by Benny Harris, he noticed footprints in the snow covering the floorboard of the passenger side of the vehicle.

The driver was released, but Bublitz continued his patrol and noticed footprints leading from the road to a cabin. He called the sheriff's department office in Tawas City and other officers were dispatched to assist him.

Officers followed a trail of tracks to several cabins and Berry Harris and Corbin were arrested.

One of the cottages entered is owned by Arthur S. Harrison, 2545 Benson Drive, Alabaster Township.

Chamber Elects New Officers

Richard Stevens, manager of the Tawas branch of the Oscoda State Savings Bank, was elected president of Tawas Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting held Thursday noon at Tawas Golf and Country Club.

Stevens succeeds Duane Walters, 1976 president, who is to remain on the board of directors for another three years.

Other officers elected included William Chace, vice president; James LaHaye, secretary-treasurer.

New directors elected by the membership and introduced at the meeting were George Rieth, Chace and Charles A. Pinkerton III.

The new president congratulated Walters for his efforts during 1976 and said he was looking forward to an even more active program in 1977. Stevens said he planned to hold meetings with regular members in attendance in order to acquaint everyone with activities of the board of directors and to enlist additional volunteer help.

"Only a few people are performing the functions of the chamber of commerce at present and it is important that we receive additional assistance," said Stevens.

Roger Jackson, executive director of the chamber of commerce, announced that the organization's new brochure would be completed in about three weeks and that the county board of commissioners had allocated $4,000 for a new county promotional booklet.

Jackson said that State Rep. George A. Prescott had made arrangements for Tuesday's visit to Lansing by chamber of commerce and Tawas Area Promotions representatives. The governor is to sign a proclamation designating the Tawas as Perchville USA during the annual Perchville program.

Marlin Eaton explained changes in the organization's by-laws, which expands membership of the board of directors. This was accomplished, he said, by increasing the terms of the new members to four years and to extend terms of members who were to have retired this year.

Memorable Events on PRESS DAY

The woof and warp weaving the fabric of this newspaper's history includes the subscriber who dropped a paper bag, containing live rattlesnakes on the editor's desk, a request to photograph a corona "encircling" a religious fanatic's head, a missing piece of type that improved an advertiser's slogan, an intentional explosion of hot Linotype metal and the tramp printer who protected his boss with a mallet, but later lost his job—these are a few of the many unusual incidents which are a part of The Tawas Herald, which this week observes its 93rd anniversary of service to Iosco County.

Add a few more tales—a school superintendent's turn at the press to help the printer's devil, a train wreck which delayed a press run, an uninvited visitor who sketched the underside of the newspaper press while it was running—and one has the grist for a story which strangely sounds like Ripley's "Believe It or Not," but all are true happenings.

When the first issue of the Herald rolled off the press on January 10, 1884, the first man in line to buy a copy was Michael Murphy, who later became editor-publisher for 2½ years.

At that time a prominent figure in local business and political circles, Murphy had worked unceasingly to have a newspaper established at the county seat.

(The Iosco County Gazette had been established at Tawas City in 1868 by the Whittemores, but was sold and moved to East Tawas in 1881. The Gazette ceased publication in 1943.)

First editor-publisher of the Herald was W. N. Miller, who brought his press and "shirftful" of type to Iosco County on the first through railroad train between the Tawas and Alger. He rode the entire distance on a flatcar behind the wood-burning steam locomotive to insure that his type was not pried on the new narrow gauge roadbed—he reported a smooth trip in his first edition.

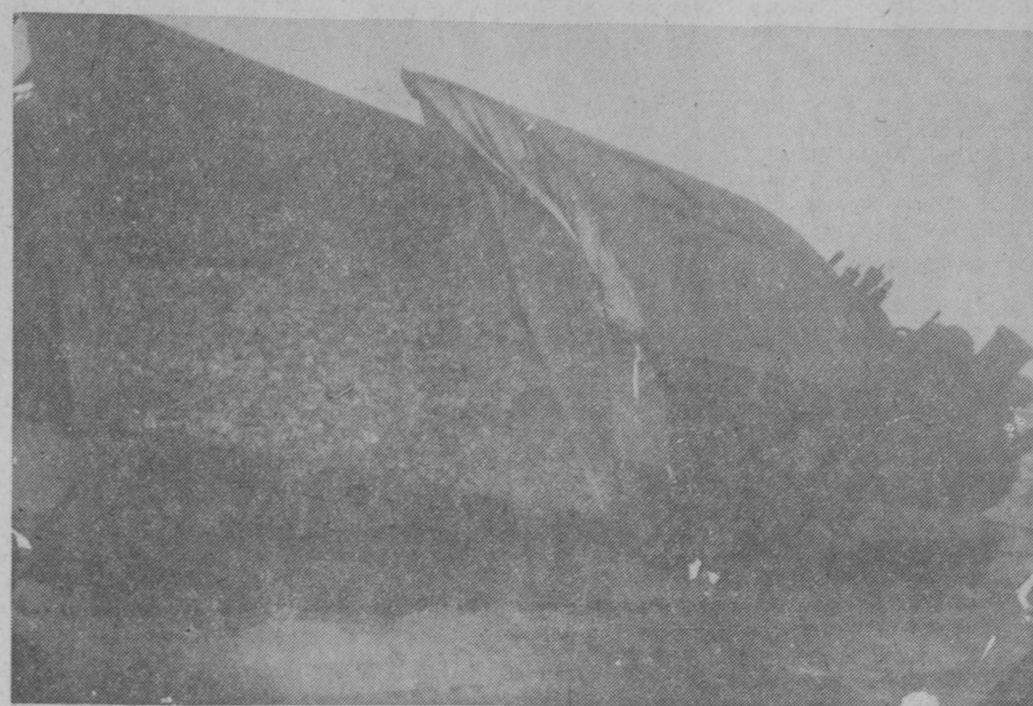

Miller continued as publisher of the paper until 1890, when he sold it to Murphy and left for other fields. Originally located in the Whittemore store building on the bay shore near the present-day Coyle's Restaurant, when Murphy moved the plant to the approximate location of today's Keiser's Drug Store, he brought along the first bound volume of newspaper files for 1884. For some reason, he left five bound volumes remaining in the old building and, as a result, the Herald's files are complete except for a five-year gap from 1885 through the end of 1889.

A lumberman, saloon keeper and real estate agent with no previous experience in the newspaper business, Murphy found a readymade "organ" to espouse his political views of the Democratic Party—which led to a brief, but colorful newspaper career in this Republican dominated county. (Murphy's career was covered in an earlier bicentennial featurette printed in this newspaper.)

It was not until March 17, 1893, that Murphy found an experienced newspaperman for a buyer—Len J. Patterson. The new editor-publisher was also a staunch Democrat, but he promptly erased the political label for a new independent status. In the process, he expanded the newspaper's size and news coverage, as well as becoming embroiled in county political fights. He was a supporter of local option to force closing of all saloons, also the subject of an earlier Herald bicentennial featurette.

Patterson's regime lasted for 20 years, from 1893 to 1913, when he was appointed postmaster. He sold the business on June 1, 1913, to James E. Ballard, who was publisher for 13 years.

Ballard's "claim to fame" rested on his now historic battles—first with the county board of supervisors and prosecuting attorney over their treatment of Circuit Judge Albert Widdis—a Democrat—who later jailed three supervisors and the prosecuting attorney in a row over law books, also a subject of an earlier bicentennial featurette.

One supervisor threatened Ballard with bodily harm concerning the Herald's coverage of the law book battle. The supervisor made the mistake of threatening the editor in the Herald office for Tim Conneley, veteran hand compositor employed by the Herald, was in a position to lay the antagonist low with a printer's mallet.

Ballard later had a falling out with the circuit judge and another employee had to come to the editor's assistance. Itinerant tramp printers hired by newspapers of those days were notorious drunks and when a veteran hand type setter failed to make his appearance on press day, Ballard purchased a new Linotype machine—the first in Northeastern Michigan and one of the mechanical marvels of the twentieth century.

By this time, Ballard was in trouble with Judge Widdis and his Linotype operator—Emil Bucholtz—came to his rescue. The circuit judge, who had written and demanded publication of a story that week in which he condemned the Christian religion, was particularly incensed over editorial criticism by this newspaper.

When the judge confronted the editor, Ballard made his exit out the back door and the judge continued his harangue while following him through the back shop. The Linotype operator, who was remodeling lead, heard the argument and was prepared for the judge. Mixing of hot lead was accomplished in those days by attaching a potato to a stick and thrusting into the molten metal—shutting the furnace door before the dangerous explosion of metal caused by moisture. Bucholtz saw the judge coming toward him and he left the remelt furnace door open after inserting the potato. The judge escaped serious injury, but was splattered with hot metal, something which is not recommended in this day and age of liability suits.

Ballard was publisher until September 1, 1923, when the Herald was leased by and three years later sold to Percy N. Thornton, who was associated with the newspaper until his death in December 1970.

Thornton, who had been associated with the Herald since 1911, had many interesting stories about the newspaper business. He recalled one night when he detected an unusual movement under the press. Quickly shutting off the gasoline engine which then provided the power to operate the machine, he was surprised to find a man lying on his back and making a sketch of the underside of the press. The man, who had been waiting for a train to take him to the state mental hospital at Traverse City, had entered unnoticed into the press room and had slipped between large moving gears to reach his desired position.

It was this press which also provided the veteran editor-publisher with one of his favorite stories. Cold weather causes printer's ink to become extremely tacky and one winter night a printing roller "picked" a single piece of type out of an advertisement. Hiram Pierce, local tavern keeper, always included a slogan in his advertising. In that particular edition, the slogan was to have read: "Hiram—The Man Who Taught Mother How to Cook." Naturally, the missing piece of type turned out to be the "k" in cook. Pierce was so happy over the resulting new slogan: "Hiram—The Man Who Taught Mother How to Cook" (See HERALD, page 6.)

People Can Get Social Security Checks with 6 1/2 Years' Work

Most men and women who reach 62 in 1977 can collect monthly social security checks if they've worked as little as 6 1/2 years in jobs covered by social security, according to social security officials here.

People earn retirement benefits by credit for work covered by social security done in or after 1937, the year social security started. The work credit is measured in calendar quarters—January-March, April-June, July-September, or October-December.

"Most employees get credit for a quarter of work if they're paid $50 or more in that quarter for work covered by social security," a spokesman said. "Most self-employed people get social security credit for 4 quarters in any year their annual self-employment net income is $400 or more."

Most jobs and self-employment are covered by social security.

"To be eligible for social security retirement benefits," the spokesman said, "you need, at a minimum, quarters of work equal to the number of years between 1950 and the year you reach 62. So, if you reach 62 in 1977, you need 26 quarters—or 6 1/2 years—of work credit."

Eligible workers can start collecting their full social security retirement benefits at 65 or reduced benefits at 62. Dependents can also get payments based on the worker's earnings record.

"Quarters of work credit help determine eligibility for social security retirement benefits," the spokesman said, "but they don't affect the amount of your monthly check. Your monthly payment—or your family's payment—is based on your average earnings covered by social security over a set period of time."

"You can find out how much work and earnings are credited to your social security record free of charge," he said. "Call any social security office and ask the people there to send you a Request for Statement of Earnings post card."

Social security now pays over $4.1 billion a month in retirement benefits to over 20 million people—16.7 million retired workers and their families. The average monthly payment to a retired worker with no dependents is $217.

The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Iosco Cancer Unit Held Bd. Meeting

Iosco County Unit, Michigan Division of American Cancer Society, held a board meeting at the home of Mrs. William Lyon, president, on Tuesday, January 4. Among those attending were Mrs. Joseph Hennigar, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Frank Byrd, awards chairman; Mrs. Herbert Hertzler, service chairman; Mrs. Jack Herrick, co-chairman; Dr. Carl Weber, professional chairman; Henry Purdy, crusade chairman of 1976; Bud Fisher, public education chairman; Mrs. Fredrick Rhode, publicity; and Mrs. Everett Wolfin, memorials chairman, who submitted her report. Any inquiries on cancer memorials may be made by phoning 362-4258 or by writing to Post Office Box 503, East Tawas.

Mrs. Hartzler told of the current cancer services in the county. Doctor Weber has charge of the loan closet.

Cancer Action urges safeguards. Attention is called to the following protective and preventive steps against cancer: Do not smoke cigarettes, avoid over-exposure to the sun, do monthly breast self-examination, a dentist or physician can easily spot mouth cancer, a PAP test once a year can detect most cervical cancer, adults over 40 years of age should have regular "procto" examinations and the most important over-all step is a regular physical checkup.

TODAY'S Meditation from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

(Read Acts 4:5-14)

"They marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus." (Acts 4:13)

Everyone who loves Jesus and attempts to live the Christian life has the privilege of helping others get to know Jesus, too.

H. L. Gee, an interesting writer, has told about staying on a farm during World War II, where the farmer and his wife lived happy Christian lives. A young girl came to the farm to work. She had no use for the church or what it stood for in traditional Christianity. But by the way this couple lived, she was compelled to see that there must be something in religion which produced such loving people. When Gee was leaving the farm, she told him that she had come to see what Christianity was all about.

It is wonderful to think that perhaps there is someone in our office or road who may find the joy of Christian living because of what we are.

PRAYER

Lord God, help us to be aware of the opportunities each day presents. Help us in our living to commend Christ as Lord and Savior. In His name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Final Installment Due on IRS Taxes

Michigan citizens who do not have enough taxes withheld are required to pay their final installment of 1976 estimated Federal Income Tax no later than Monday, January 17. Also due the same day are amended estimates from citizens whose 1976 income changed substantially during the last quarter.

Many taxpayers first met the requirements for filing a tax declaration during the last three months of 1976, according to the Internal Revenue Service. Taxpayers are generally required to file an estimate if they owe the IRS more than $100 not covered by withholding. The estimates in this case are due Monday, January 17.

There is one exception to this rule, the IRS said, and that is when taxpayers file their returns and pay all taxes due by Monday, January 31. In that case, the final 1976 installment is not required, the amended declaration is not required nor is an original January 17 declaration required.

IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax," available free from the Detroit IRS office, provides additional information.

CONSUMER COMMENT

Save Money on Generic Drugs

By LINDA JOY
Executive Director
Michigan Consumers Council

If you happen to get a cold or flu this winter, do not add to your misery by carelessly selecting prescription and non-prescription drugs.

You can save money on prescription drugs thanks to Michigan's new generic drug law. Generic drugs are chemically equivalent drugs which are made by more than one manufacturer and sold at differing prices. Ask the pharmacist for the lowest cost drug which meets your prescription requirements.

However, your doctor may feel you require a specific drug brand. In this case, he or she will specify the prescription be "dispensed as written" by using the initials D. A. W. on the prescription form.

Pharmacists are also required to post a chart in the pharmacy listing the prices of the 100 most frequently prescribed drugs. Consequently, you will be able to save money by comparing pharmacies' prices.

However, there is more to buying drugs than just the price consideration. Consumers should also be aware of the drug's risks and benefits.

Mixing drugs without a doctor's approval can produce unexpected and often dangerous side-effects. Drugs can interact in many ways. One may make another drug act faster or slower; more or less powerfully.

To prevent a drug reaction, be sure the doctor knows if you are taking any drug—prescription or non-prescription—before he or she prescribes another medicine. Remember, too, alcohol is a drug which can magnify or lessen another drug's effect on the body.

Finally, do not take drugs prescribed for someone else. They could either dangerously react to your body or be totally useless for the ailment.

The Federal Drug Administration (FDA) hopes to soon require informational inserts in prescription drugs' packages similar to those in packages for non-prescription drugs. The inserts, written specifically for the patient, would explain proper use and possible side-effects of the drug.

Non-prescription drugs generally pose fewer problems because of the labeling which includes information about ingredients, uses and warnings.

However, many cough and cold remedy claims have come under recent criticism. An FDA advisory panel said labeling for these products "tends to be overly complicated, vague, unsupported by scientific evidence, and is in some cases misleading."

Although such words as "cold medicine," "cold formula" or "for the relief of colds" suggests the products cure colds, the panel said they really only relieve symptoms.

After evaluating 90 active ingredients used in about 50,000 cold and cough related products, the panel found not one of these products will prevent, cure or shorten the common cold.

According to the panel, grandma's remedy of lots of sleep, plenty of liquids and chicken soup is just as good as any medicine for curing colds.

FHA Will Guarantee Rural Housing Loans by Local Banks

The Farmers Home Administration has begun a program through which it will guarantee rural housing loans made by commercial banks, savings and loan associations, and other private lenders, Calvin C. Lutz, FmHA state director for Michigan, announces.

FmHA, the rural credit agency of the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), will guarantee up to 90 percent of the principal and interest of these loans. Guaranteed housing loans will be available for moderate income borrowers who cannot get housing mortgage credit without a guarantee. Applicants who cannot qualify for guaranteed loans may apply for loans made by FmHA. At present, the USDA agency will offer loan guarantees only under its single family housing loan program. FmHA will continue to make single family housing loans with its own funds. It will also continue to make but not guarantee loans for rural rental housing, farm labor housing, housing site development and other purposes. Single family housing loans are made in open country, towns of up to 10,000 population, and certain designated towns of between 10,000 and 20,000 population. They finance modest but adequate housing and related facilities, Lutz explains. Loans may be used to buy, build, improve, repair or rehabilitate houses and related facilities, and to provide adequate water and waste disposal systems. Guaranteed loans will be made only to applicants with moderate income, defined by FmHA as adjusted gross income of less than $15,600 per year for residents of Michigan, and not eligible for FmHA subsidized rural housing loans. Low income applicants may be eligible for subsidized rural housing loans made by FmHA. Loans to be guaranteed are limited to 97 percent of the market value of homes and sites for the first $25,000 and 95 percent of the loan in excess of $25,000. The borrower must have equity from his own resources, in the form of cash or land for the down payment, notes Lutz. The top limit for a guaranteed rural housing loan to a resident of Michigan is $33,000. The maximum repayment period is 33 years. Lutz also reports that FmHA regulations provide lenders who obtain guarantees for rural housing loans options for selling, assigning or selling participations in the guaranteed parts of these loans. FmHA regulations require that the lender making a guaranteed rural housing loan be a local lender, located in or doing business in the area where the house is located. To apply for an FmHA-guaranteed rural housing loan, contact a local lender.

that he did not want it changed in subsequent ads.

In 1960, the Herald's present publishers, Nelson and Neil Thornton, who had been associated with their father in the business since their youth, purchased the business.

Incidents involving the present publishers include a school superintendent, A. E. Giddings, who volunteered to operate the newspaper press in order for the printer's devil to participate in a regional basketball game at Alma. Giddings said he had operated a press in his earlier days and the edition came out on time, despite the fact that the Herald publisher closed his eyes when the superintendent attempted to feed paper at the wrong end of the press.

On another occasion, the press run was delayed for about an hour when a Detroit and Mackinac freight train plowed up about 100 yards of track in a spectacular train wreck which shook the foundation of the Herald office. A story was quickly inserted on the front page and the press run was resumed with an early morning scoop. Photographic coverage the next day was the first in this newspaper's history.

Harold Cholger of Wilber Township provided another memorable incident in the Herald office. He had captured several live rattlesnakes while picking blackberries. Cholger brought the snakes to the newspaper office, believing their capture would make a good feature story, and deposited the paper bag on the editor's desk. By this time, the rattlers were furious and their buzzing was detected before the bag was opened. The paper bag was gingerly carried to the nearby bank parking lot for photographic purposes.

Another story involves the time when the Herald's camera was incapable of fulfilling a request. A man entered the office and wanted a picture of the corona encircling his head. Try as they might, no one in the office could detect even a glimmer of light around the man's head and it was suggested that the customer step outdoors for a minute while the camera was being loaded with infrared film—the publisher quickly closed the door behind the customer.

While ownership of the business has changed over the years, the name remains the same today as it was on the day of its founding, which is not common in the newspaper business. Little else about the newspaper today or the area it serves would be recognizable to its founder or to most of the other earlier publishers.

So, too, there have been many mechanical changes in production of The Tawas Herald during its 93-year history. Methods of printing a newspaper have been revolutionized since the days of the old-time hand compositor with copy cameras, cold type and polymer printing plates, while much more attention is given to local news reporting and news pictures. The Thorntons now enter their 54th year of ownership of the Herald.

THE TALE OF EPAMINONDOS

This week's column is first in a series of four which are about the ways adults, especially parents, influence young children. Many parents and other adults are concerned about how to act in their everyday roles with their children. These columns in January will have tips for good adult-child communication.

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to be three feet tall? Imagine what it must be like to view the world from this perspective—everything would be rather large and nothing would be built to fit you. This is the kind of world a child lives in—not only is everything too big, but often adult expectations just do not fit a child's ability to meet them.

Children's limited experiences place restrictions on the way they view the world.

A child's thinking often takes an unexpected path. This wonderful flexibility of thought can at times be a bit exasperating to parents or teachers. Here is a folk tale about a little boy named Epaminondos that will help illustrate this point.

Epaminondos was a little boy of five who lives in a village far away. One day his mother needed some butter. She decided to send Epaminondos to the store for it. Epaminondos was very glad to do something for his mother because he loved her very much and he knew she loved him. His mother's parting words were, "Mind how you bring the butter back."

Epaminondos skipped happily to the store, singing a tune as he went. After he bought the butter, he remembered his mother's words. He wanted to be very careful. He had never carried butter home before. He thought and thought and finally decided to put it on his head under his hat. The sun was very warm. By the time he got home, the butter had melted and was running down his face.

His mother exclaimed disapprovingly, "Epaminondos, you haven't the sense you were born with! You should have carefully cooled the butter in the running brook, put it in a sack and run home with it." Epaminondos felt very sad. He had disappointed his mother.

The next day, his mother sent him to the store for a little puppy. Epaminondos was very happy. He knew just what to do. Very carefully and thoroughly he cooled the puppy in the brook, and when it was cold and stiff, put it in a bag. His mother was horrified. In a much sharper way, she said, "You don't have the sense you were born with. You should have tied a string around his neck and led him home." He loved his mother very much and she loved him, but this terrible thing was happening. Now he knew exactly what to do.

The next day, his mother decided to give him another chance. This time, she sent him for a loaf of bread. Epaminondos gleefully tied a string around the loaf of bread and dragged it home through the dust.

His mother just looked sternly at him and said nothing.

The next day, she said she would go to the store herself. She had just baked a cherry pie. Before she left, she said, "Mind how you step around the cherry pie." Epaminondos was very, very careful. He placed his foot right in the middle of that pie!

As adults, we must try to imagine how a young child is interpreting what we say. We need to be explicit when giving a child instructions so he will know exactly what we mean by our requests. When things go wrong, it is often a case of an adult expecting too much from a child or giving directions in a manner that confuses the child. Be explicit and children will have an easier time reading you right!

Save Up To $100.00 on an Amana Refrigerator

Amana HAS ANOTHER BRIGHT IDEA THAT CAN SAVE YOU MONEY ON YOUR ELECTRIC BILL.

Amana's Energy Saving (ES) Refrigerators have much more urethane foam insulation than has ever been used in home refrigerators before. Designed to keep the heat out, the cold in, and the electric bills down. Uses the same amount of electricity as a 75 watt light bulb per day.

Amana's ES-16 uses only 1.8 kilowatt hours per day. Other similar size refrigerators use up to 4.5 kilowatt hours per day... two and one-half times the energy.

It will save you money & it's fully featured

- Easy Manual Defrosting as required in freezer section. Refrigerator section is completely Free-O-Frost.
- Three half-width cantilevered shelves plus one full-width adjustable shelf
- Amana Contact Freezing
- Amana Convertible Doors change from right to left hand opening at any time.
- Amana Meat Pans and Crispers
- Amana Magna-Seal door gaskets keeps cold in, heat out
