Iosco Commission Trying to Determine Ownership of AuSable 'White Elephant'

Iosco County Board of Commissioners is presently trying to determine if it owns a "white elephant" at the mouth of the AuSable River. If so, the county may be responsible for financing a costly sewer project.

The "white elephant" is a $60,000 shower building constructed in the early 1970s with state funds and has never been used. Shortly after its construction, a fence was erected around it, the gate has been locked and it has never been open to the public.

The building was part of a large recreational complex constructed at the mouth of the AuSable River which never proved to be practical. Property for the park was originally purchased by the old Iosco County Board of Supervisors and turned over to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

According to records, the DNR furnished $60,000 for the building, intending it to serve a bathing beach which was to be included in the complex. Several years later, the federal government contributed $160,000 toward the over-all project from Bureau of Outdoor Recreation funds.

Although boat ramps and a parking lot are utilized during the fall by salmon fishermen, the park has never lived to much of its originally ballyhooed potential, according to Carlton Merschel, acting chairman of the county board of commissioners.

No one uses the inadequate beach in the park and the building, to have been equipped with hot and cold running water for showers, has remained idle due to the lack of a sewer system.

Actual ownership of the property is still in doubt, according to a report from Merschel. Iosco County pays the insurance on the building but, according to Merschel, ownership of the property has been transferred back and forth one or more times between the county and the state.

When the state and county applied for federal BOR funds, the property may have been transferred back to the county and a lease arrangement made with the state for operation. If so, Iosco County would have complete responsibility for providing the sewer and Merschel said he is now researching records in the county building.

Merschel said he had learned that some local official, in the past, had made a commitment for the county to build a sewer to serve the property, located on the south side of the river. At the present time, however, Oscoda Township's sewer line ends at Division Street and no main extends along US-23 through AuSable Township to reach the property. When the new bridge was constructed over the AuSable River, a sewer main was included in its construction, but no mains lead to the bridge and south of the river.

The county received notification last week from Walter Poyet, launching ramp program coordinator for the DNR, stating that future payments to the county would be withheld until a sewer is installed and made available to the complex.

Merschel immediately sent a letter requesting a clarification from the DNR concerning Poyet's letter. The county board of commissioners is concerned about what DNR funds are involved and what effect this letter would have on other projects now in operation or are pending, with particular reference concerning city and township projects financed by DNR funds.

The commission chairman said Monday that he did not believe AuSable Township was responsible for construction of a sewer line to serve the park complex. He said that the launching ramps were presently served by outdoor privies.

Merschel said, too, that the park was not self sustaining, as was stated would be the case when the project was first considered many years ago. He said that the DNR establishes a booth each fall at the boat launching ramp-parking area and charges a fee for its use by salmon fishermen. He was unable to determine who received these funds and he said that no charges were made at other times of the year.

The commission chairman said the matter would be considered Wednesday (today) during the regular commission meeting, but information concerning actual ownership of the property would not be available until a letter is received from the DNR.

Hiring of Woman Counselor Considered by Tawas School

Consideration is to be given by Tawas Area Board of Education toward hiring a female guidance counselor for the high school and to provide guidance counseling for elementary grades as a result of discussion of a report at Monday night's regular meeting.

Following presentation of the report by Thomas Pinkowski, high school counselor, and Paul Hay, junior high school counselor, Supt. Robert Halle said that a counselor for girls should be hired for next term if funds are available.

Discussion between the two counselors, administrators and board of education members pointed out the fact that many girls just do not confide their problems with men counselors. The district has been without the service of a female counselor for two years.

It was also pointed out by Herman Rollin, elementary principal, that sixth graders have been without counseling service since being returned to the elementary school last fall when the split session was discontinued.

During his report, Pinkowski said that he and Hay work with individuals and small groups. Although he has some training in psychology, Pinkowski said he was not a psychologist and believed he could "do more damage than good" concerning some students with problems. Parents of those students, he said, are referred to the intermediate school district and to the mental health department.

Pinkowski said that he works mainly with seniors to encourage them to further their education in one and two-year technical programs, or those students planning to attend four-year degree schools.

Counselors also appraise the work of students and handle failure referrals to the home. He said that only a few parents actually contact the school when such notices are received. When such parents do contact his office, conferences are arranged between the parents, teachers and counselors.

Other responsibilities of the counselors include placement of students in classes, student registration and handling the school's testing program.

The counselors organize the master schedule of classes and are to start work on next year's schedule shortly after the Easter vacation. He said this work should be completed before the end of the current school year in order that students would have information concerning scheduling next fall.

In addition, the counselors visit parents of any student who is in jeopardy of failing at the end of the year in order to arrange for night classes in the community education program.

Pinkowski said that the counselor acts as the coordinator between students and teachers, as well as a liaison between the school and former students now attending college. As an example, he said that he recently met with 38 former students attending Ferris State College. He said that the meetings were held in order to discuss ways to improve the high school's curriculum and program. Of the 38 students, he found only four performing below a "C" level.

Hay said that return to the regular classroom day and return of sixth graders to the elementary unit allows him more time to work with seventh and eighth graders, as well as assisting Pinkowski with high school students.

The elementary principal said there are many school districts with a counselor at the elementary level. He said, however, if a counselor is hired for the elementary school there would be a space problem as all rooms are currently in use.

Tawas School Board Studies Old Records

Tawas Area Board of Education is currently studying its minute books of meetings held more than 20 years ago in an effort to determine its position, if any, regarding use of water and sewer mains serving the high school along Plank Road.

These mains, constructed in 1956 to serve the then new junior and senior high school, were financed from the city limit to the school property with school district funds.

According to a recent meeting of the Tawas City Water Board, a developer has applied to the city for permission to tap into these mains along Plank Road in Tawas Township. A zoning appeal variance is currently being considered by the township for an apartment complex.

Several township property owners were permitted to tap into the water main for private service in past years, but as of Monday night nothing was found in the board of education minutes permitting such private use. Permission is also necessary from the joint water board of Tawas City and East Tawas, recently expanded to include Baldwin Township, for permission to extend use beyond the city limits.

Before taking action on the private developer's request, the water board of Tawas City forwarded the letter to the board of education for its consideration. It was indicated by city authorities that the board of education may have jurisdiction over lines in the township due to the fact that it paid for the construction more than 20 years ago.

Trustee Carl Babcock of the board of education said Monday night that water service is often curtailed at the school due to the excessive amount of demand on the main along Plank Road. He noted, however, that bids were to be opened this week on the expansion of water service in the Tawas City, East Tawas and Baldwin Township area. That project includes expanded water storage facilities in Tawas City which may help to alleviate the water shortage at the junior and senior high school.

In the meantime, Babcock said he would continue his research of school records in an effort to establish any legal claim the school might have on the water and sewer mains.

It was also suggested that several former board of education members, including Waldo Curry and Walter Niles, be contacted to learn of the events which transpired 20 years ago concerning the construction. It was also suggested that former members of the Tawas City Water Board be contacted to see if they could cast any light on the subject, inasmuch as one or more joint meetings were held between the two groups.

A surcharge over and above normal water and sewer rates is charged for customers outside the city limit of Tawas City. Besides furnishing both water and sewer service to the school and the Iosco Medical Care Facility, water service is provided to several private dwellings.

The area in question is also being considered for possible inclusion within the new boundaries being proposed for reorganization of Tawas City and East Tawas into one home rule city.

A TAWAS CITY MOTORIST smashed into a railroad crossing signal early Tuesday morning at the Mathews Street crossing. Steven Call, 21, reported the accident about six hours later to the Iosco County Sheriff's Department. Call told officers that he reached down to adjust the tape deck on his vehicle and lost control of the steering wheel. He said he was knocked unconscious by the impact and, when he revived, went home. The metal pole holding a set of flashing lights was knocked off at the base. The lights were destroyed, but employees of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway started work Tuesday morning to repair damage to the pole and base.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Four Teachers Approved for Probation, but Pink Slipped

Four first-year teachers were recommended for a second year of probation and six teachers received tenure as a result of action Monday night by Tawas Area Board of Education.

Acting on recommendation of administrators, Allen Ackerman, Barbara Smith, Gail Forbrig, Donald Spencer, Sandra Wilson and Gary Packard were placed on tenure. Successfully completing their first year of employment and placed on probation for a second year were Susan Brzakowski, Karen Strughold, Debra Pauler and Lynn Koost.

At the same time, probationary teachers received lay-off notices due to the uncertainty of revenue, expenditures and enrollment for next term. This policy of terminating employment of probationary teachers at the end of the term is identical to last year's policy. If funds are available, the probationary teachers would be rehired at the start of the next term.

Supt. Robert Halle said that the board of education would soon begin discussion on the millage proposal to be presented to voters at the annual election in June.

In other business, the board of education directed the administration to contact local certified public accountants to determine if any firm or individual is interested in serving as the school's auditor. If not, the firm of Yeo and Yeo of Saginaw would be retained for another year.

On recommendation of the administration, vocational department and vocational committee, two lots in North Park Acres Subdivision, Tawas City, are to be purchased for the building trades project. The two lots, served by water and sewer, are to be purchased at a cost of $6,500.

Coaching assignments recommended by the administration were approved by the board of education. Sallie Wangberg is to coach junior varsity girls basketball and Robert Erickson is to coach junior varsity boys basketball.

Civil Suit Over 1975 Collision

Civil suit has been commenced in Iosco County Circuit Court by a Tawas City man, who was injured July 21, 1975, in a motorcycle-car accident at the intersection of US-23-M-55 in Tawas City.

Dale Wheatley, plaintiff, has named Julia Lowry, Charles R. Lowry Jr., Michigan Mutual Insurance Company and Richard A.

Austin, secretary of state, as defendants in the cause.

Mrs. Lowry was owner of the car and Charles R. Lowry Jr. was driver of the car which was involved in the accident. Wheatley sustained serious injuries in the crash.

The complaint states that the insurance company has denied

Wheatley's claim for damages, alleging that the Lowrys were not insured at the time of the accident.

The plaintiff asks a judgment from Michigan Mutual Insurance Company or, in the alternative, from the secretary of state's office for allowing an uninsured motor vehicle.

TODAY'S Meditation

The World's Most Widely Used
Devotional Guide
The Upper Room

(Read Romans 1:1-16)

"I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." (Romans 1:16)

On a trip through a jungle in the Philippines, a friend and I took two guides from a local tribal group.

The second night as we bowed our heads for prayer before eating around the campfire, one of the guides leaned over and asked me, "Bakit?" (Why?)

I was dead tired from hiking over the mountains and my mind was almost numb. But as best I could I explained to him—poorly, stumbling over the dialect—the joy of knowing Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord, of learning to follow Him as my guide. There was a grunt and he turned away. Never has God had such a halting witness as I was that night.

Twenty-two years later, I happened to meet a fine lawyer. When he heard my name, he asked if I had made a hiking trip through the mountains of Nueva Vizcaya in the early 1950s. I said, "Yes." Then, he told me the incredible news that the man who asked me about Jesus on the trail had become a Christian soon afterward. He began to teach his own people and later became a preacher. A missionary among his own people! Only the power of God could bring about this change!

PRAYER
Father, help us to discover anew the joy of sharing the good news of Jesus Christ. Amen.

Modern brides owe a romantic debt to diamond-wise Austrian duke of yore

Five hundred years ago, an Austrian archduke proposed to a French duchess—and made life more romantic for millions of women everywhere, reports the Jewelry Industry Council.

When Maximilian of Austria popped the question to Mary of Burgundy back in 1477, he dazzled her with history's first diamond engagement ring. Today, thanks to Max's bright idea, an estimated four out of five American brides-to-be receive this sparkling symbol of eternal love.

Many of these girls have no idea how lucky they really are. If they had lived in ancient times, they might have had to settle for engagement rings of iron, stone, bone, or even grass!

A real catch

When the caveman captured his "intended," he bound her wrists and ankles with ropes of braided rushes or grasses. Later on, a woven grass ring for the lady's finger was considered sufficiently binding.

Still later, Stone Age swains gave out rings of amber, ivory or bone. Some lucky gals had a real "rock" to show off—a ring made of flint!

According to the Jewelry Industry Council, the bride-to-be in ancient Rome wore an iron ring. Often it was ornamented with a miniature key to show that she would soon be mistress of her own household.

In Maximilian's time, the most popular ring was a gold hoop or band engraved with the couple's names. That wasn't good enough for

THE ROMANTIC DIAMOND RING was "invented" by Archduke Maximilian of Austria in 1477—an epoch-making idea that changed wedding traditions.

Max, who wanted to impress Mary's wealthy and powerful family. His diamond ring succeeded brilliantly—and a new courtship custom was born. The diamond engagement ring became a necessity for rich and royal ladies throughout Europe.

Well-to-do settlers brought the romantic custom to America. In colonial times, engaged girls often wore "hoop rings"—gold circlets edged with tiny diamonds. The more pretentious princess ring, with its row of diamonds across the top, thrilled the Victorian girl whose fiancé could afford it.

But the diamond engagement ring remained out of reach for most women—until the discovery of South Africa's fabulous diamond mines made the gems more plentiful and affordable.

Wooden spoon

Although the ring, diamond or otherwise, is the favorite engagement token, many others have been used through the ages. At one time, a Welsh girl was considered engaged if she accepted a wooden spoon from her boyfriend.

In parts of Spain, a suitor proposed marriage by putting his money where his mouth was; he gave his beloved thirteen coins!

Engagement gifts from family and friends have also varied widely through the years. During the Middle Ages, the future bride's friends customarily gave her a white hen. A gift like that would certainly lay an egg at a modern shower!

Other good old-fashioned engagement gifts included slightly used pots and pans from the giver's own kitchen. Centuries ago, an engaged girl's neighbors would donate utensils from their own households to help her set up housekeeping.

Biscuit barrels

The most popular presents in the early 1900's according to the Jewelry Industry Council, were jam and jelly dishes, cake baskets, cruet sets—and would you believe biscuit barrels?

Pity the poor girl who got duplicates and triplicates of these items. After all, you can always roast that spare white hen—but what do you do with sixteen biscuit barrels?

Modern girls can avoid such dilemmas with the handy Bridal Registry. The bride-to-be simply lists her choice of china, crystal and silver patterns with a local jeweler. Friends can check to see which items have already been purchased—so they needn't fear giving the bride her umpteenth gravy spoon.

Five hundred years ago, only a princess could hope for silver spoons, crystal goblets and a diamond ring. Today, millions of girls get this royal treatment from family, friends and fiancé.

And it all began with one man's bright idea. Thanks a million, Maximilian!

Almond Party Dessert

Chocolate cups with a fluffy caramel-almond filling make fanciful dessert fare. They're easy to make, but elegant in appearance and taste.

- Caramel Almond Sponge au Chocolat
- 1 package (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces or 6 squares (1 oz. each) semi-sweet cooking chocolate
 - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 1 tablespoon water
 - 1 cup sugar
 - 1 envelope plain gelatin
 - 1/2 cup cold water
 - 1/4 cup scalded milk
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - 1 cup whipping cream
 - 1/4 cup roasted diced almonds

Heat chocolate, butter and 1 tablespoon water over hot water until chocolate is partly melted. Remove from heat and stir to blend; cool slightly. With back of teaspoon or pastry brush, coat inside surface of 8 or 9 paper baking cups with thin layer of chocolate mixture. (Allow about 1 tablespoon chocolate mixture for each cup. If mixture becomes too thick to spread easily, thin over hot water.) Place coated cups in muffin tins; chill until hard. Melt 3/4 cup sugar in heavy skillet, stirring until sugar is dark and caramelized. Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup water.

Add caramelized sugar slowly to scalded milk, stirring briskly to prevent curdling. Stir until all sugar is dissolved. Add gelatin and stir to dissolve. Stir in remaining sugar, salt and vanilla. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Whip cream; fold into gelatin mixture along with all but 2 tablespoons almonds. If necessary, chill again until mixture mounds on spoon. Heap lightly into chocolate cups; sprinkle with remaining almonds. Chill until firm. To serve, peel off paper cups; place chocolate cups on serving plate or individual plates. Makes 8 or 9 servings.

questions and answers

Q. I'm getting ready to file my tax returns and was wondering how much tax I have to pay on my social security benefits for 1976.

A. You pay no Federal or State tax on social security benefits.

Q. I'll be 62 soon and can't decide whether I should apply for social security benefits on my own work record or as a wife on my husband's record. What should I do?

A. The amount of your monthly social security benefit will be permanently reduced if you start getting checks before 65. However, the amount of reduction will be slightly smaller if you receive benefits based on your own work. If your husband had considerably higher average earnings than you had, you may get your own benefit and a small amount on his record.

Q. Does the bonus value of food stamps count as income for SSI purposes?

A. No.

Q. My daughter is 19 and severely retarded. Since both my husband and I work full-time and have steady incomes, can she qualify for SSI?

A. Regardless of family income, your daughter may be eligible for SSI. Children are considered independent starting at age 18 (or 21 if in school). A disabled child under 18 (or 21 if in school) can get SSI checks only if the parents have little or no income and limited resources. Call or write any social security office for more information.

Board Pays Extra Year of Retirement for Superintendent

In lieu of paying a salary increase to Supt. Robert Halle, Tawas Area Board of Education Monday night authorized "buying" one year of his service time which adds one year to his retirement.

Under recent legislation, the law permits a board of education to pay up to five percent of an annual salary toward retirement for any employee with military service. Halle served with the United States Marines during the Korean conflict.

The superintendent's base salary of $29,500 is to remain unchanged.

In proposing a vote on this plan, Trustee David Kennedy said that the board of education had discussed the move during recent meetings. He said the superintendent had not received a salary increase last year.

Trustee Willard Dillon expressed the opinion that consideration should be given to a comparison of salaries paid to superintendents in surrounding school districts, but it was pointed out that salary information had been presented at the last meeting.

The proposal carried by a four to two roll call vote of the board of education. In favor of the proposition were Dr. James Jacques, Clare Herriman, Kennedy and Carl Babcock. Voting "no" were Dillon and Robert Curry. Randall DeWyse was absent.

'Inside Space Savers'

"You can do anything but stretch the walls!" — is a familiar comment often made by decorators and building contractors. But at one time or another, haven't you wished you could do just that — especially when rooms look cluttered, organization seems impossible, and shrinking space has you climbing the walls.

Discouragement over the appearance and livability of rooms seems to increase during these months of the year when more time is spent indoors. That's why the Scott Paper Company Home Service Center suggests now is the ideal time to make home management improvements that will pay off all year long.

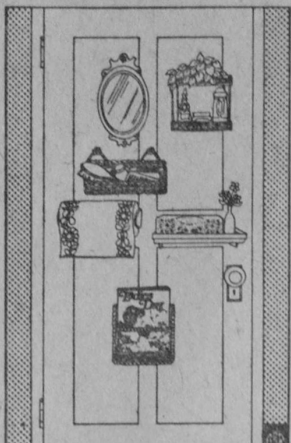

Check newspapers, magazines or do-it-yourself decorating manuals for how-to help on design and construction of built-in shelves or free-standing units. These multi-purpose showcases for collections of books, china or decorative objects make the most of wall space and won't eat up valuable floor space.

Use every inch of closet space. Line the insides with hanging shoe and garment bags, hooks and shelves. Use the dead space at the top of the closet, too — mount shelves to hold out-of-season gear such as bathing suits, beach towels and ice skates.

When purchasing new furniture or revamping old, analyze pieces for multi-functional features. For example, convert a large wardrobe or armoire to a work or recreation activity center. A little brainstorming may lead to endless storage possibilities for furniture you already have.

Doors can do more for a room than let you in and out. Transform the 6-8 square feet of usable door space into a storage stretcher.

Outfit a bathroom door with racks, hooks, a mirror, mini-shelves — to hold Scotties facial tissues and household cleaning items — and baskets and containers for personal sundries. Don't forget to add a paper towel holder — a roll of decorative Viva towels is a bathroom bonus for quick clean-up of mirrors, tile and basins.

This space-saving trick works well in a child's room, too, where a door equipped with shelves can become a permanent home for crayons, paper and toys — items that children use frequently and often misplace. Having a roll of paper towels makes sense here, as well — having them conveniently within reach may encourage your child's cleanliness and you'll have them close at hand for dusting and clean-up.

It has been said that necessity is the mother of invention. So take a look around your home and scout out those unused bits of space. With a fresh approach and a little time and effort, you can turn them into space savers and storage pluses that make your home more attractive and easier to live in.

Check Records on Revenue Sharing

Possible misuse of federal revenue sharing funds by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners was turned up through the recent audit by the state treasurer's office.

Lack of records concerning a wage determination prior to expenditure of funds for five different projects over the past several years was pointed out by the state auditor.

The treasury department has given 15 days to the board of commissioners to comply with a provision of regulations in federal revenue sharing funds. The county must determine if projects funded with federal money met the minimum wage rate prescribed by the department of labor.

Considerable research must now be done by the commission to determine if contractors met minimum wage requirements during the construction.

The projects include: Social Services Building, $80,865; refurbishing the county building, $35,675; service building at Old Orchard Park, $95,556; new roofs on county building and jail, $70,067; animal shelter, $22,220.

Carlton Merschel, acting chairman of the county commission, said the minimum wage rate provision may also apply to money which the county allocated to other units of local government in which construction was involved. If so, local units would have to be contacted to determine if minimum wage requirements were met.

Kesler Challenges State on Law to Permit River Front Trespass

Ray Kesler, retired school superintendent and now the elected supervisor of Plainfield Township, received considerable state-wide attention a few years ago when he insisted, and later proved in court, that a child need not be among a minority racial group to be treated as underprivileged.

Having successfully challenged one law passed by the state legislature which he deemed odious, Kesler is now mapping out strategy to challenge another law which has no bearing on schools or school children.

In 1976, Senate Bill No. 145 was adopted without opposition by both houses of the legislature and signed into law on December 8 by Gov. William Milliken. Kesler is particularly displeased over the third provision of that act.

Senate Bill No. 145 is described as an act to regulate certain trespass upon any lands; to prohibit the possession of a loaded firearm or discharge of a firearm within the limits of the right-of-way of any public highways adjoining certain lands; to prohibit the posting or enclosing of lands except by the owner or lessee of lands or by his authorizing agent; to provide for penalties, etc.

Although Kesler states he is not taking issue with the first two sections of the act, he objects to the third section, which states:

"On fenced or posted lands or farm lands, a fisherman wading or floating a navigable, public stream of a length greater than 15 miles may, without written or verbal consent, enter upon the upland within the clearly defined banks of the stream or walk a route as closely proximate to the clearly defined banks as possible when necessary to avoid a natural or artificial hazard or obstruction, such as a dam, deep hole, a fence, or some other exercise of ownership by the riparian owner."

This section, insists Kesler, is unconstitutional in that the legislature, without just compensation or due process of law in a court of record, has deprived actual ownership of property to rightful riparian owners of record by giving trespass privilege to a select group.

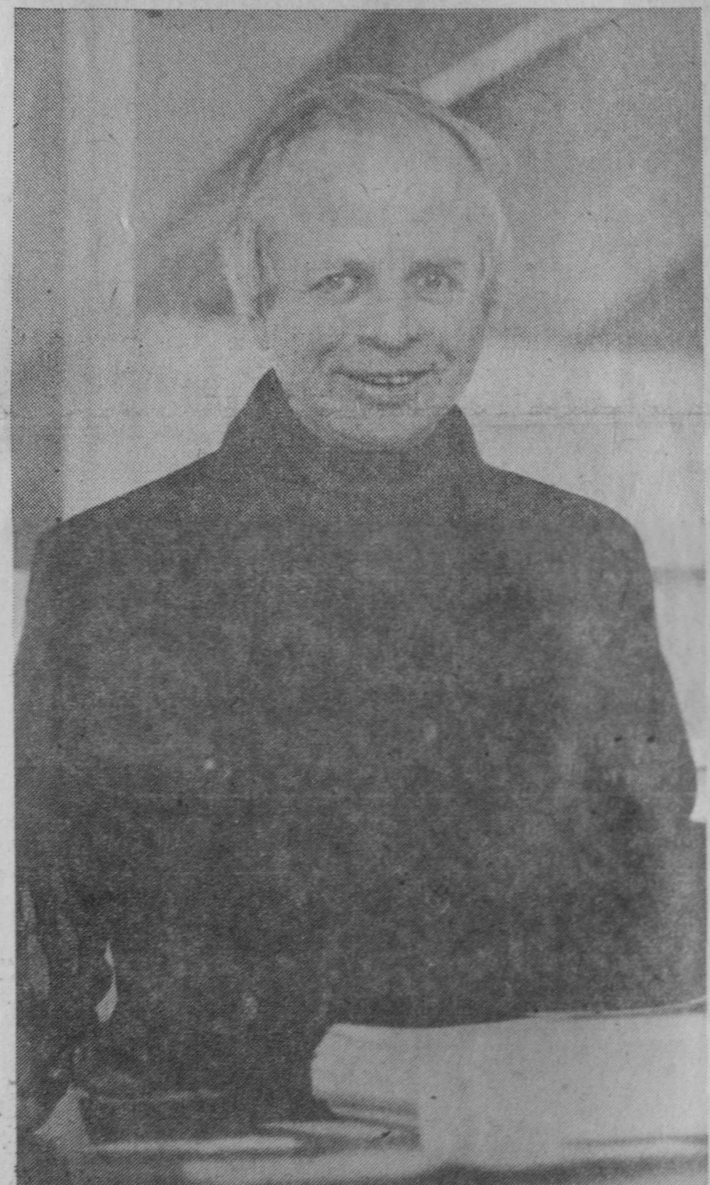

"It is not so much the harm from an occasional fisherman crossing private property, but the damage to one's right of private ownership," said Kesler. "If I want to allow a fisherman to cross my property along the Little Manistee River, that is my prerogative and not that of the state legislature.

As vice president of the Michigan Congress of Rivers Association, a nonprofit organization formed to protect the rights of property owners, Kesler is currently enlisting the support of other members in an all out fight with the legislature concerning the third section of the act.

Kesler said that the organization's attorney had prepared a legal brief for filing in circuit court and intentions have been made known to the legislature and Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Constitutionality of the act is questioned by the legal brief.

Because of it, the state has delayed enforcement of the entire new act, but a DNR spokesman stated recently that its provisions would "open" 18,000 miles of new river frontage to fishermen.

Nonsmokers Get Special Areas in New State Law

Effective April 1, all food service establishments with a seating capacity of 50 or more persons are required by state law to post a sign at the entrance of the dining area indicating the availability of a nonsmoking area.

Upon request of a patron, the establishment must seat the patron in a nonsmoking area which is to be clearly marked by a sign.

In clarifying Public Act 53 of 1976, District Health No. 2 reports that a food service establishment means "any fixed or mobile restaurant, coffee shop, cafeteria, short order cafe, luncheonette, grill, tearoom, sandwich shop, soda fountain, tavern, bar, cocktail lounge, night club, drive-in, industrial feeding establishment, private organization serving the public, catering kitchen, delicatessen, commissary or similar place in which food or drink is prepared for direct consumption through service on the premises or elsewhere, and any other eating or drinking establishment or operation where food is served or provided for the public."

A nonsmoking area is designated as one or more tables or rooms where smoking is not permitted.

A dining area is defined where meals are consumed at a table or counter and seating is determined by the building code occupancy allowances.

Guidelines of the health department include:

1. A printed sign bearing the words, "Nonsmoking Area Available," must be clearly posted at dining area entrances. Additional wording is permitted if the sign is clearly legible. Sign letter must be a minimum of one inch high and one inch wide. The sign board must be conspicuous and readable.
2. Nonsmoking areas must be clearly marked by a sign or other suitable device such as table tents or table signs. The sign or device must bear the wording, "Nonsmoking Area," or "No Smoking in this Area." The sign devices must be clearly visible and readable. Ash trays should be removed from these tables.

In order to provide sufficient space for nonsmokers attending banquet type functions, the person contracting or arranging the meal must inform the food service operator, in advance, of the number of requests for seating in the nonsmoking area.

DEPRESSION YEARS LEAN FOR

AUTO SALES

If the 1920s were "roaring" for Iosco's automobile dealers, that period between 1929 and the mid-1930s was almost total disaster. Following the stock market crash on October 29, 1929, automobile sales slumped to their lowest point in history—the average family man had a hard time feeding his family, let alone finding cash to buy a new family fliiver.

People who had cash hoarded it and unemployment increased. Old line automobile manufacturing firms with long histories behind them disappeared in the stock market paper crash.

"Mr. Hoover says the clouds will soon roll by," were the first lines in a popular song of the day, "so let's have another cup of coffee and let's have another piece of pie."

Prosperity was not just around the corner, as some believed, and many of the unemployed were unable to buy a cup of coffee, to say nothing of a piece of pie.

Here in Iosco County, local businessmen conceived a unique idea for getting wheels of the automobile plants turning again. A notice was published in The Tawas Herald urging all residents to clean out their barns and garages of old cars no longer being used.

The cars were brought to Tawas City and stacked along the shore of Tawas Bay. Gasoline was poured over the ancient vehicles and the assemblage of Model Ts and cars of lesser known makes were touched off into one of the largest bonfires in area history, the idea being to focus attention on the need for new car sales and to provide employment.

Antique automobile collectors would moan today when that promotion is recalled—about the only thing accomplished was to warm watching spectators for a few hours. Economic activities of the state were not visibly aided by burning the old cars and it required several years of work to remove the burned-out hulks from the shoreline.

(Those few antique cars which escaped the bonfire were later turned into scrap when the Japanese began to purchase large quantities of old cars for scrap steel prior to World War II. As a result, few cars from the 1920 era remained in this area for later automobile buyers.)

Thousands of Detroit's automobile workers were still out of work and without money to buy the necessities of life. Here in Iosco County, residents were doing their best to laugh off the doldrums of the depression with "hard time parties" in 1930 at the Lakeside Tavern in Tawas City.

All economic activities of the state were adversely affected by the depression and factories were closed or were operating at partial capacity for several years.

During the same week of the state bank holiday starting in March 1933, James H. Leslie's Ford Sales in Tawas City introduced its new 1933 Ford, featuring a V-8 engine. This engine had been introduced by Ford in its 1932 model, which retained practically the same body style as the Model A introduced in the fall of 1927. Because of the loss of sales to Chevrolet, an entirely newly-designed car was introduced in 1933.

Following the election of Franklin Roosevelt to the national presidency, better conditions began to prevail in 1934. Chevrolet Division of General Motors announced in June 1934 that 520,000 cars had been sold during the first six months of the year—a real turning point toward recovery.

Automobile manufacturers continued to lower prices to stimulate sales. According to columns of the Herald, Roach Motor Sales was offering the Terraplane Challenger Six manufactured by Hudson Motor Car Company for $565, one of the few "off brands" remaining following failures and reorganization of manufacturers into the Big Three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

McKay Chevrolet Sales at East

THE 1930s DAWNED with the Ford Motor Company still manufacturing its Model A, which had been introduced in the fall of 1927. This famous model was to continue for another two years, with slight modification in 1932 through introduction of a V-8 engine. An entirely new automobile body style was wisely introduced by Ford in 1933. This picture was snapped at the "four corners" at Hale about 1930 and shows two 1929 Model A Fords parked in front of Koehler's Service Station. The depression years saw a drop in automobile sales and extreme unemployment in the automobile industry and it was not until 1939 when times again became prosperous.

Tawas offered its new 1934 models for $490, a return to the price which made one of its earlier models so famous. In June 1934, the Chevrolet sport roadster featuring the new "knee action" dropped to $465. Ford reduced its price to $560 for a six-cylinder tudor sedan and Klenow Motor Sales of East Tawas was offering Oldsmobiles for $650.

All of these prices did not match that offered by A. P. Krueger's Northern Oil Company of Tawas City in 1933. A new Continental Beacon was advertised by the local DeSoto-Plymouth dealer for $380.

Orville Leslie Motor Sales became the new Tawas City Ford dealer in November 1933, with branches at Whittemore and Hale. That was the year that Ford discontinued use of wood in construction of its bodies and introduced all-steel welded bodies.

Despite business adversities of the depression years, a turn for the better was noted by Henry Ford in a May 9, 1937, advertisement appearing in The Tawas Herald.

"A great thing has occurred amongst us," said Ford. "We have made a complete turn around and at last America faces toward the future. For three years, 1929 to 1932, we Americans looked backward. All of our old financial and political machinery was geared to pull us out of the depression by the same door we entered. We thought it simply a case of going back the way we came. It failed. We realize the way out is forward—through it."

"The best thing I can do for the country is to create industry by building good motor cars. If I knew anything better to do, I would do it. Industry must be my contribution. Motor cars face ahead to the future, like everything else. They are so much a part of the nation's daily life that, if they lag behind, they hold the country back."

People living in small town America did not face the adversities of those thousands of persons depending upon employment of the automobile industry and public employment programs on sewer and water projects in this area helped to eliminate "hard times" by getting men back to work.

In 1936, Ford Motor Company introduced its $25 monthly plan to make it a little easier for one to purchase a new car. McKay Sales Company utilized its new Chevrolet caravan promotion to boost new car sales. Orville Leslie took a large contingent of Tawas residents to Detroit to attend a special preview of new Ford V-8 cars for 1935. Among those accompanying him were A. G. Leitz, Waldo (See CARS of the '30s, page 2.)

James H. Leslie opened his new Pontiac and Buick dealership in the GHQ in Tawas City in 1935 and, until April of that year, Roach Motor Sales had utilized the old city hall on Mathews Street for its sales agency. The firm moved when the building was purchased by the Detroit and Mackinac Railway and was razed to improve safety at the Mathews Street crossing.

Except for a sharp national recession in 1937, business began to return to normalcy. Orville Leslie moved into his new building on Lake Street in February 1937. Built at a cost of more than $30,000, the Ford agency's new 60 by 120-foot quarters were considered to be the finest in Northeastern Michigan. The building featured a facade of 22 plate glass windows in the form of a 30-foot tower.

The real return to national prosperity began in 1938 and a new dealer that year was Thomas White's Oldsmobile Sales at East Tawas. James H. Leslie became the Dodge-Plymouth dealer that year and William Look at East Tawas became the Buick dealer.

Automobile plants at Detroit and Flint were humming again and local dealers discontinued the practice of showing free movies to attract customers. Arthur Bigelow was advertising gasoline in the Continental

RED SEAL AUTOMOBILES

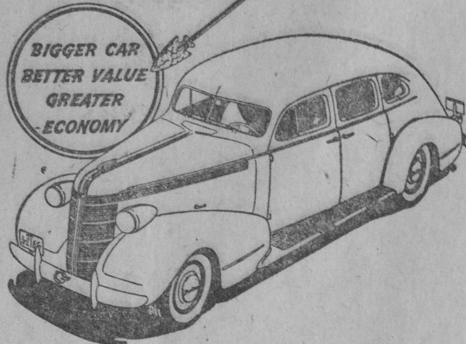

Herald at five gallons for 85 cents at his station opposite Schreck Lumber Company at East Tawas, giving indication that the nation was again on the move.

Thousands of dollars poured into the county's economy through an increase in the tourist and resort business and this upturn continued up to and during World War II. The automobile and good roads were responsible for this upsurge and the hard times of the depression days were a thing of the past.

Expansion of Hale Area Sewer System Studied by Township

Expansion of a sewage disposal and distribution system serving the Hale area is presently being considered by the Plainfield Township Board.

Preliminary engineering plans have been developed for the townships by Edmands Engineering Company of Bay City, which have been approved by the state. The township has applied for federal funding to assist with construction of the project.

Plainfield Township currently operates a two-lagoon system for sewage disposal and distribution lines run along Esmond Road and M-65 to serve the unincorporated village of Hale.

Ray Kesler, Plainfield Township supervisor, said last Wednesday that to be eligible for federal assistance in the project, two-thirds of the property developed with homes or commercial buildings must have been there prior to 1972. According to federal guidelines, funding is not available to develop new subdivisions.

Total cost of the project to serve 83 customers and 114 individual taxing units would be $578,000. Plainfield Township has applied for a grant of $354,600 and the remainder would be paid by property owners in three special assessment districts, plus hookup charges.

Besides construction of sanitary sewers, the program would include two pumping stations and a third lagoon to be added to the disposal system. The present system was constructed in the 1960s.

The area under consideration would be south along M-65 from the end of the present sewer to the Colonial Inn, north on M-65 from the end of the present sewer near the township hall to Ora Lake Road and west on Esmond Road from the end of the present sewer at the theatre to Hale Creek at Lakeview Subdivision.

The three special assessment districts presently have varying amounts of assessments and, if the project goes through to a conclusion, the township may equalize assessments at a standard rate.

At the present time, the average hookup fee for the north project would be $1,565 plus an average tax of $452 per unit; the south area has an average connection cost of $1,597 and $1,500 tax for each unit; the west area has an average hookup fee of $890 and average tax of $1,325 per unit.

The above figures may vary in the future due to eligibility requirements and construction costs.

Kesler said that public hearings would be required for the project and he believed that a decision should be made on the entire project, rather than do the work on a piecemeal basis.

The township supervisor said that the sewer construction program, along with the addition of a lagoon to the disposal system, was essential to present and future development of the Hale area.

TEAMWORK CONFINES ACCIDENTAL OIL SPILL

Accidental oil spills are not confined to the oceans nor to the Great Lakes. An accidental oil spill which occurred sometime during the past winter and was unnoticed until last week sent 1,000 or more gallons of fuel oil down Elm Creek in Iosco County.

But, unlike the massive spills of recent ocean-going oil tankers, Iosco's oil spill was quickly confined through the combined teamwork of the causing agency, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Thomas Hicks of the DNR's water quality division told the Herald Thursday that he had received a telephone call Monday from an interested citizen, who had noted oil on a pond near National Gypsum Company's installation south of National City.

"I immediately called National Gypsum Company to have them determine if they had an accidental discharge of oil. Richard Harris, plant manager, personally checked out the matter and could find no evidence of an oil discharge.

"I returned a call to the interested Iosco County resident, but he was at work and unavailable," said Hicks.

"On Tuesday morning, Harris again called me at Lansing to notify the DNR that oil had been found in Elm Creek and that Ross Powers of the Federal Environmental Protection Agency, along with Conservation Officer Welter Mikula of Tawas City were conducting an investigation.

"I immediately left Lansing and was at National City by 12:30 p. m.," said Hicks.

Fuel oil found in Elm Creek north of Alabaster Road was first thought to have come from an oil skimming pond on company property near the National City plant. However, there is no outflow from this pond.

Harris told the investigators that the company's natural gas supply to the National City plant was cut off in January during the national energy emergency. In order to operate, heating equipment at the plant was converted from natural gas to fuel oil and two, 20,000-gallon underground tanks were filled with fuel oil.

Hicks said that investigators were unable to determine if the oil was accidentally discharged from the underground tanks or if there had been an oil spill during filling of the tanks. In any event, oil flowed onto the ice of Elm Creek.

The region was hit by a heavy rain storm last week and water flowed down Elm Creek. Investigators found a two-inch layer of oil on the surface of the creek and barriers were immediately constructed to confine it.

By 5:30 p. m. Wednesday, approximately 1,000 gallons of oil had been sucked off the surface of the stream through use of pumps and the stream was completely cleaned for about one mile to Turtle Road.

"National Gypsum Company demonstrated 100 percent cooperation in removal of the oil—it was a commendable job," said Hicks. He also commended the observant resident who called attention of the oil spill to authorities.

"It does not happen very often that an oil spill can be contained so successfully," said Hicks. "We found no damage to the creek habitat as of Wednesday."

Veterans Lose GI Bill Money When Courses Are Dropped

Veterans going to school under the GI Bill could wind up in debt to the federal government if they drop courses or receive non-punitive grades under certain conditions.

A recent congressional amendment to the GI Bill requires the agency retroactively to cancel assistance payment for a course dropped without a grade. This applies in cases when a course is completed but the grade assigned is ignored by the school for graduation requirements.

The new regulation is a major change in the GI Bill benefit payments policy and does not apply when the situation was caused by circumstances beyond the student's control.

The new law provides that Veterans Administration may not pay educational benefits for any part of a course which is not used in computing graduation requirements.

Many students will find themselves overpaid under the GI Bill for courses from which they withdraw and for courses in which the assigned grade is not used in computing the requirements for graduation. Payments for such a course must be stopped as of the first day of the school term.

If a student withdraws from a course on April 1 under the conditions outlined, VA payments will be terminated retroactively to the beginning of the term. In the past, GI Bill payments would have been continued up to the date of withdrawal. The new law prohibits this.

Students enrolled under the GI Bill are urged not to drop a course or request a non-punitive grade until they have contacted their school's veterans affairs office. Students should fully understand what effect the withdrawal from a course or grade may have on their monthly VA checks.

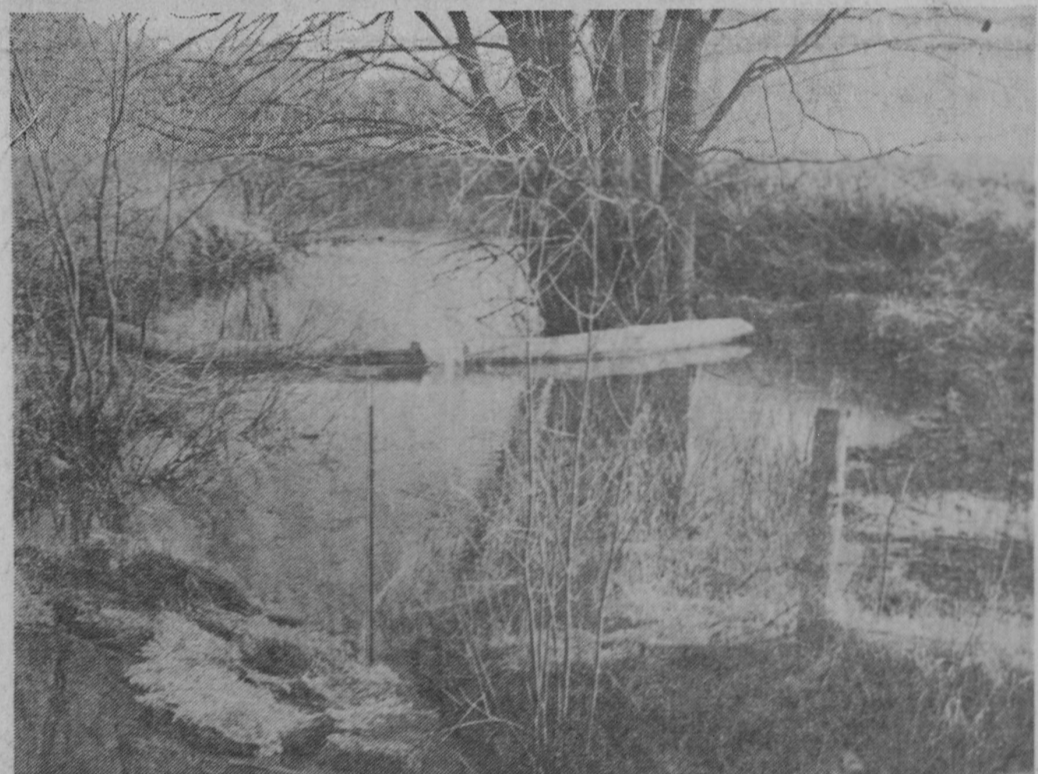

The agency recommends both students and school officials provide a brief statement concerning circumstances of the withdrawal or grade assignment when reporting it to the VA.

VA will then determine the effect of the circumstances on the withdrawal or more punitive grade and notify the student of the action taken to adjust his or her educational benefits.

FOLLOWING investigation of the oil spill, barriers were placed across Elm Creek to divert the oil to the edge of the stream where a special vacuum was used to remove the heaviest concentration. The remainder was sopped up through the use of straw.—Tawas Herald Photo.

how to save on long distance by pre-planning

Holly Thieman, Long Distance Operator, suggests you plan your long distance calls in advance... jot down what you want to say... tell your party your call is long distance... and use your watch to keep track of time. Advanced planning cuts time and costs.

You'll also save by dialing direct and calling out-of-state during off-hours... after five in the evening or on weekends when discounts are highest. Check your directory for specific information.

FAMILY LIVING EDUCATION

DIETARY FIBER MAY CAUSE SOME NUTRITIONAL DEFICIENCIES

There has been a lot of discussion and controversy lately over whether or not increasing intake of dietary fiber improves health.

Gilbert Leveille, chairman of Michigan State University's food science and human nutrition department, says that fiber in the diet appears to be important in treating and possibly preventing certain intestinal diseases, but huge increases of dietary fiber could present some nutritional hazards. "Phytic acid contained in dietary fiber has the ability to bind certain trace elements, such as zinc, calcium, copper, magnesium and iron. In experimental animals, fiber has produced a deficiency of these minerals," contends Doctor Leveille.

So far in the United States, this has not been a problem because Americans do not consume large amounts of fiber. However, some Egyptians who eat large amounts of unleavened bread do have a zinc deficiency. A lack of zinc can cause dwarfism and retard sexual development.

"We are concerned that if American people begin to increase their intake of wheat bran greatly they might develop deficiencies of certain trace elements," says Doctor Leveille.

"In a recent study, elderly people who were fed 20 grams of wheat bran per day had reduced blood levels of calcium and iron," notes Doctor Leveille. "While one cannot really draw any major conclusion from this study, it does point to the need for further research and to possible hazards from large intake of fibrous materials such as wheat bran."

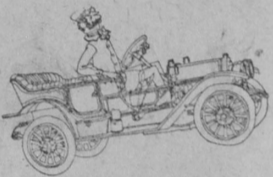

Doctor Leveille points out that although whole grain cereals, breads and wheat bran contain phytic acid, we can also increase our consumption of dietary fiber by eating more fruits and vegetables and not have to worry. These do not contain phytic acid.

"If you are concerned about having a deficiency of trace elements, consult a dietitian," recommends Doctor Leveille. "He or she can help you select foods that contain high amounts of these minerals. For example, seafood, oysters, meat and nuts are good sources of zinc. Iron fortified flour, legumes and meats are good sources of iron."

Oscoda Owls Won Regional Tourney; Now Play at Gaylord

Oscoda Owls, the first Iosco County team to win a regional basketball tournament since the Whittemore - Prescott Cardinals turned the trick in 1961, are scheduled to play in the semifinal tournament game Thursday, 7:30 p. m., at Gaylord.

The Owls won two games last week in the regional tournament at Mt. Pleasant, capping their championship drive Friday night with an 83-65 win over Mt. Pleasant High School.

Oscoda, now with 18 wins and seven losses for the season, had no trouble defeating Mt. Pleasant as the Goins brothers, Kevin and Keith, again set the scoring pace. Kevin popped 26 points while Keith scored 21 points to lead the Owls to victory. The Owls hit on 34 shots out of 71 from the floor. John Crooks meshed 14 points and Bill Hobart had 10.

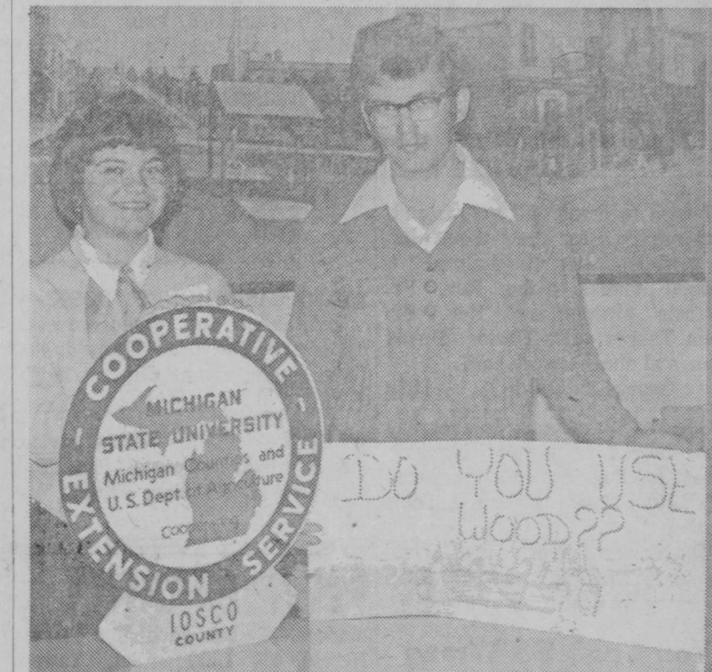

The Owls held a 23-10 margin at the end of the first quarter, maintained a 37-30 margin at intermission, then pulled ahead, 73-46, with less than six minutes left in the game. The Oilers staged a comeback to pull within 16 points, but it was too late.
