

Governor Milliken Plans Iosco Visit

Gov. William G. Milliken has included the Tawas on his itinerary for a speaking tour throughout Northern Michigan on Thursday, May 12.

It is expected that Milliken will make his political intentions known during the next few days if he is to seek re-election to the governorship, or if he will become a candidate to fill the vacancy of United States Sen. Robert Griffin, who announced his plans to retire.

John Hosbach and Reginald Bublitz, members of the local committee for the governor's visit, said that the program details would be finalized this week.

The governor's visit here is expected to be brief. He will leave Alpena and land at the Iosco County Airport around 2:30 p. m. After meeting there with local officials, he will tour the Tawas Area Industrial Park and will then inspect construction on new Tawas Harbor facilities.

It is expected that he will take part in a ribbon cutting ceremony at the East Tawas water filtration plant to mark the start of construction on the East Tawas, Tawas City and Baldwin Township water expansion project.

The program will possibly include remarks by the governor at the East Tawas Community Building or at the city park.

GOVERNOR MILLIKEN

East Tawas Has Same Tax Rate

Action Monday night by the East Tawas Council adopting a new city tax rate found it unnecessary to raise the millage rate over that of last year. The annual general fund budget was approved at $303,880.

According to formal action of the council, the rate of 1977-78 city operation is to remain at 14 1/2 mills, which includes 2.67 mills for debt retirement and 11.83 mills for city operation.

Mayor Robert Bolen said that previous collections, mainly on hookup charges for the Tawas Lake sanitary sewer project, made it unnecessary to raise the tax rate. He noted that there was only a two percent increase in valuation this year.

The council went on record encouraging Tawas Lake property owners to pay the standard hookup charges of $900 during the next 90 days. In the future, the hookup charge for new homes is to be advanced to $1,200.

This important new sanitary sewer project in the Tawas Lake area is being funded partially through hookup charges and property owners have the option to pay the cost over a period of 10 years.

In other business, it was announced that a meeting would be held Thursday, 3:00 p. m., with Keith Wilson of the Michigan Waterways Commission to discuss basic facilities for the state-local boat launching ramp project, along with onshore facilities for the new harbor now under construction.

Discussion was held concerning reconstruction of Newman Street north to Tawas Lake. Work is to start this week on covering ditches and it is expected that the roadway surface will be reconstructed later in the fall.

'Littlest Braves' Plan Carnival

Tawas Area "Littlest Braves" are planning a second annual carnival Friday at the East Tawas Elementary Unit. The carnival is open to the public from 5:30 p. m. until 9:00 p. m.

Included will be concessions, games, a spook house and fortune telling. The big feature of the evening will be a "dunk tank," giving everyone the opportunity to dunk some well-known teachers and administrators.

A fun evening for young and old is in store for all with proceeds going for the extra needs of the school children.

Formal Program for Harbor Project

Formal "ground breaking" for the Tawas Harbor project is to be held Friday morning, 11:30 o'clock, at the East Tawas Community Building. The program is to be conducted by the United States Army Corps of Engineers.

Mayor Robert Bolen of East Tawas said Monday that invitations had been extended to congressional, state and local leaders to attend the program. A luncheon is to be held later at Lixey's Restaurant.

Actual work on the 1.8-million-dollar breakwater being constructed with federal funds started a week ago by Roen Salvage Company. When that portion of the project is completed, Michigan Waterways Commission will construct additional moorings for small boats at a cost of 1.5-million dollars.

This project, which has been promoted in the local area since 1967, is expected to provide one of the finest harbor facilities on Lake Huron and the Great Lakes.

In addition to the above, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and City of East Tawas are involved in a joint undertaking to construct boat ramps and parking facilities east of the harbor project.

Hospital Week Observance Set

Services provided the year around are to be spotlighted at Tawas Hospital during National Hospital Week, May 8-14.

"This year's theme, 'We Put the Care in Health Care,' salutes hospital people for preserving the old-fashioned quality of caring while providing the most modern medical treatment," according to Donald W. Snyder, administrator.

During hospital week, Tawas Hospital will honor its volunteers and staff at three different functions.

The auxiliary and American Red Cross workers will be honored Tuesday, May 10, at a volunteer tea at the cafeteria, 3:00 p. m.

An employees' tea and awards ceremony is to be held Wednesday, May 11, 2:00 p. m., at the cafeteria. Receiving awards for 20 years of service will be Elna Coates, Patricia Fisher and Celia Runyan. A 15-year award is to go to Davena Fernet. Thirty-eight employees are to receive pins for five and 10 years of service.

Two employees will receive employee of the year awards after being selected for the honor by co-workers.

A candy striper's tea and awards program is to be held Wednesday, May 11, 4:30 p. m., in the inservice classroom.

National Hospital Week is an annual observance sponsored by the American Hospital Association and its 7,000 members to give people an opportunity to learn more about the hospital in their community.

City Now Negotiating Property Purchase

Authorization to negotiate the purchase of a 40-acre site in Tawas Township adjacent to the Ninth Avenue industrial park was given Monday night by the Tawas City Council. Sale price of the property was said to be $40,000.

In addition to this action, the council authorized the city manager to negotiate an option on another 73 acres of land owned by the Hughes family for city use.

This action followed an announcement a week ago by the East Tawas Council that it was dropping out of a regional concept for secondary sewage treatment and authorized the mayor to file an application for federal funds to assist with financing a sewer addition.

East Tawas, Tawas City, Baldwin Township and Tawas Township had filed a step one application for federal funds to conduct a survey to determine the feasibility of constructing joint secondary sewage treatment facilities to serve the entire area.

Preliminary indications are that the cost of constructing a lagoon sewage treatment system in the plains area west of the Tawas along Monument Road would be prohibitive due to the expense of energy necessary to pump sewage to that distant point for zero discharge.

City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz told members of the Tawas City Council Monday night that he did not believe that East Tawas' action last week conclusively aimed at proceeding independently of the other units. He said that East Tawas' resolution "requests that the existing step one grant be amended to include cost of sewer system evaluation service and, further, that the City of East Tawas wishes to proceed independently with this SSES grant and authorized the mayor to file an application."

Contacted Monday night, Mayor Robert Bolen of East Tawas said that the council's action definitely meant that East Tawas planned to proceed on its own toward making an application for federal funding to aid in secondary sewage treatment facilities.

He said that under the zero discharge program proposed by the recent study, East Tawas' primary sewage treatment plant constructed only a few years ago would become only a pumping station and the council did not feel that it could justify abandoning those facilities when a secondary sewage treatment lagoon system could be constructed adjacent to existing facilities at less cost to the taxpayers. He said this new action had not ruled out participation in a regional concept, but he felt it was more economically feasible for East Tawas to proceed on its own.

The city manager of Tawas City said Tuesday morning that he could see no reason why "either one of our primary plants would be abandoned" under the regional secondary sewage treatment concept and he was to ask for a clarification Tuesday night from Ralph Knop, representative of Edmonds Engineering Company, who was to attend a meeting with the Tawas City Water Board to discuss the situation.

At Monday night's council meeting, Bublitz said that the 40 acres owned by the Hughes family had been taken under option by the Tawas Area Industrial Development Corporation as a means of providing additional property for Tawas City's industrial park. The additional property was necessary in order to file for a grant from the federal Economic Development Administration for the Tawas City, East Tawas and Baldwin Township water expansion project, which has been approved and is in its final phase before actual start of construction.

Bublitz said that purchase of the 40 acres had been recommended last Thursday by the Tawas City Businessmen's Association and that a special committee from that group also advised taking an option on additional property.

Depending on the outcome of the regional concept for secondary sewage treatment, the property could be utilized for a lagoon system which would provide secondary sewage treatment from Tawas City's primary treatment plant, or

Nominating Petitions Available

Nominating petitions to fill three vacancies on the city council, along with the office of mayor, are now available at the city hall in Tawas City, according to Rachel Sue McCready, city clerk.

Candidates have until June 14 to obtain the signatures of 10 registered electors and return petitions to the city clerk. According to the city charter, a candidate must have resided in the city for one year, be a registered elector and cannot be in default to the city. If an appointive officer of the city, the candidate must resign before taking office.

Four-year terms of William L. Groff, William Ezo and James Lansky are to expire at the end of the year. The two-year term of Mayor Herbert Cholger is to expire at the same time.

Councilmen Groff and Lansky said Monday night that they had not decided yet if they would run for re-election. Councilman Ezo said he was definitely not going to file for re-election.

Cholger said he planned to file nominating petitions for his second two-year term of mayor.

If not more than two candidates file for any one office, a primary election would not be necessary on August 2. The general election is to be held in November and successful candidates would take office on January 1.

A special tribute "to the sanctity of life and the dignity of motherhood" is printed on page 4, section 2, of this newspaper under sponsorship of Iosco County Citizens for life, a non-denominational organization.

Kenneth DeLage is president and Mrs. James H. Frank is secretary of this organization, which meets the fourth Wednesday of each month at Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish Hall.

Table Contract on City Planner

Action on renewing a contract with Vilcan, Leman and Associates, Incorporated, Southfield, for planning services was tabled Monday night by the Tawas City Council. Members of the council are to attend a meeting of the city planning commission May 19 to discuss the proposal.

Renewal of the contract had been recommended by the city planning commission and the city manager, but councilmen felt that a meeting should be held on the matter.

Annual cost of the consultant service would be $1,200, as compared to $1,896 in past years. On recommendation of the planning commission, the consultant was to provide quarterly service rather than six visitations a year. Special meetings would be at an additional cost.

In its letter recommending renewal of the contract, the planning commission felt strongly that the Southfield firm had provided "knowledgeable and effective planning" for the city's future.

The firm was hired originally in the mid-1960s when an urban renewal program was being considered along Lake Street. A master plan was developed for the city at that time, although no action was taken here on an urban renewal grant. Since then, the firm had acted on a consultant basis to assist the planning commission in developing a number of ordinances and provided professional advice on zoning matters.

In other business, the city manager presented corrected plans for construction of a storm sewer along North Street. Under the plan received from the city's engineering consultant, the main has been reduced from 42 inches to 30 inches from the river to Third Avenue. The main tapers there to 24 inches and tapers further to 18 inches.

Authorization for the larger main had been tabled two weeks ago by the council when it was felt that the 30-inch main would serve the area. The city manager said that the engineer had based his recommendation on the frequency of major storms and the larger of solids would be provided by secondary treatment process. The $170,000 charge for utilizing television equipment in sewer mains to determine points of infiltration was deemed to be excessive. The survey was required for federal participation in the project and Tawas City's share had been approved two weeks ago by the city council.

Tawas City's present primary treatment plant and waste water would be pumped to the lagoon system for secondary treatment and then returned to the Tawas River. He said that such a system probably would be more economically feasible for this community than the proposed zero discharge system on Monument Road.

Should the property be used for a lagoon system, Bublitz said that the chance for any odor was remote due to the modern aeration process. He said that elimination

Cost of the sewer system evaluation service estimated at $170,000 had much to do with the change in thinking in regard to the regional

The federal application filed by the four units sought a grant to finance 80 to 85 percent of the total project, which included the survey of mains.

TAWAS AREA SCHOOL conducted its annual kindergarten roundup last Thursday with 100 children being registered for the coming term. Prin. Herman Rollin expects that number to be increased by 30 pupils in September, approximately the same total as during the current year. Parents took their children through a records check and testing in speech, hearing and eyesight.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Hospital Committee Chairmen

Bruce Myles, Mrs. Charles Rosenberg, Thomas Huck and John Lippert have been named committee chairmen for the newly-organized development council at Tawas Hospital. The appointments were announced by Mrs. Lawrence DeBeau, council chairman.

This group of committee chairmen and Mrs. DeBeau will serve as the executive committee of the council.

The community relations committee, responsible for developing the public relations, community service and special events activities of the council, will have Myles as its chairman. He is an insurance and real estate agent from Oscoda.

Mrs. Rosenberg, owner of the American House at East Tawas, has been named chairman of the annual support committee. This committee will work toward developing financial support on an annual basis to fulfill basic equipment and capital needs of the hospital. This activity will include encouraging memorial and honorary gifts, a year-end appeal and consideration of establishing a $100-a-year club.

Huck, local attorney, is serving as chairman of the deferred gifts committee. Professional people involved with estate planning will serve on this committee, which will work toward providing publications and programs dealing with estate planning, wills, bequests and deferred giving.

Lippert, president of Peoples State Bank, has been selected chairman of the foundations and corporations committee. This committee will work with the local business community in providing services and seeking financial help. Approaches to state and national foundations is also a responsibility of the committee. As special needs of the hospital are determined, this committee will identify appropriate foundation contacts to accomplish them.

Initial meetings of each of the four committees were scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

TAPS Reorganized as C of C Committee

Tawas Area Promotions, a corporation organized by area business persons a number of years ago to promote area events, has undergone a reorganization and its name is to be changed shortly to the special events committee of the Tawas Chamber of Commerce.

Dennis H. Cholger, newly-elected president of TAPS, appeared before council meetings in both East Tawas and Tawas City Monday night to seek additional funds for Fourth of July fireworks.

Cholger said that, due to a lack of funds this year, TAPS and the chamber of commerce could not participate in financing the fireworks. Each city authorized payment of $425, rather than the regular allocation of $250. Last year, Tawas City allocated $500 for fireworks due to the bicentennial observance.

In a statement this week concerning the reason why TAPS was originally established, Cholger said it was to provide local citizens a chance to promote the two Tawas-areas through Perchville, the tourist festival and other events.

TAPS no longer sponsors a tourist festival in the summer. "But we do sponsor a slow pitch softball tournament and last year held a tug of war. The main event of TAPS has been Perchville. In the past few years, Perchville has traveled over some rough ground," said Cholger.

Perchville, which usually draws thousands of visitors, was down this year. "People say Perchville is dying because people no longer care about promoting this area. I do not believe this is true. I believe the reason it is harder to promote Perchville is because most people think TAPS is a bunch of businessmen trying to fill their own pockets," said Cholger.

He said, however, that with a closer look at TAPS, one would find businessmen, factory workers, professional people, policemen, retirees and housewives on the board of directors.

"These people are on the board to promote the Tawas because they are proud of their community and want other people to become better acquainted with this area. They realize that a lot of our local occupations rely on tourism for their existence."

"With the possible future closing of Wurtsmith, we have to promote our area as a recreational center and get away from relying on the base for economic support," said Cholger.

He said that TAPS was now forming a closer relationship with the chamber of commerce and would also like to form a better relationship with local residents, allowing all to put some input into next year's Perchville.

"It does not matter if you are 18 or 80—your age has nothing to do with it. We want your ideas. To allow everyone a chance to give us those ideas, comments or criticisms of Perchville, there will be a

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

(Read Hebrews 10:32-36)

"Hold on, and you will win your souls!" (Luke 21:9 Phillips)

In our home it was the custom to keep a lamp lit all night long. One spring morning when my mother was putting out the light, she had to use a lot of physical force, blowing several times with patience before she managed to put it out.

Looking into my childish face with her look of experience, she offered these words, "That is the way it is with salvation, my son! You have to persevere."

I have learned this lesson well. From that beautiful morning until the present, almost 45 years have passed. The light of salvation has lighted my short earthly existence and I hope to persevere in the service of the Lord. I am grateful for all that He has done for me.

No matter how great the battle nor how many disappointments, Jesus as our personal Savior can be by our side, giving strength to us as we persevere in the battle of faith.

PRAYER

Eternal Father, thank You for the lesson of faith, such a marvelous one. Help me as I persevere in this desire to be obedient to the end. Give me grace to point others to Your Son, Jesus Christ, as well as to show them His love in my daily life. Amen.

Bruce Weber Learns About Television

Bruce Weber of Tawas City gained firsthand knowledge of the communications industry while producing television commercials in a class last term at Michigan State University.

Prof. Don Schultz of the advertising department and Prof. Colby Lewis of the telecommunication department team teach classes in television-radio advertising and television directing each term. The class gives students a chance to produce the commercials they have created and work under professional conditions.

"We do this because it is fun," Lewis said, "It is a good opportunity for learning to work with others and to collaborate efforts; it teaches students to organize, to communicate clearly and concisely."

In Schultz' class, which is part of a developing area of emphasis in advertising media for advertising majors, students write and develop both radio and television commercials. For the television commercial assignment, students choose from one of four products for which they create a 60-second commercial. They spend about 2½ weeks developing ad strategy and scripts.

Weber, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weber, is a 1973 graduate of Tawas Area High School. A senior majoring in advertising, he is a member of the MSU chapter of American Advertising Presentation.

Mother's Day Will be Busy for Phones Predicts 'Ma Bell'

Michigan Bell Telephone Company is predicting that Michigan residents will make more than 1.2-million long distance calls on Mother's Day.

Because Mother's Day is traditionally one of the busiest holidays of the year for the phone company, second only to Christmas, the company is urging customers to call during the less busy hours.

Charles F. Derr, Michigan Bell assistant vice president of network and operator services, said calls placed in the early morning, all afternoon or early evening have the best chance of going right through on Mother's Day. This means that callers will be better off phoning before 9:00 a. m. or between 1:00 and 8:00 p. m. on Sunday," Derr said.

Across the country the telephone industry rearranges circuits generally used for heavy business day calling to make available a maximum number of transmission paths for Mother's Day calls, Derr said.

Some may want to phone on Saturday to avoid the Mother's Day congestion. "And to save time and money, callers can dial their own calls direct. No matter what the hour—direct dial rates are lower than operator-assisted rates," Derr said.

Customers calling other states can take advantage of direct dialed night and week-end rates which are 60 percent lower than day rates. These rates are in effect from 11:00 p. m. to 8:00 a. m. daily, all day Saturday and on Sunday until 5:00 p. m.

Direct dialed long distance calls within Michigan are discounted 30 percent from 5:00 p. m. to 7:00 a.

m. Monday through Friday, all day Saturday and on Sunday until 5:00 p. m.

size would meet maximum requirements. Cost of materials for the storm drain would be $29,830, as compared to an estimated $53,327 for the larger size. Total estimated cost would be $4,500 with the city crew providing the labor.

The city manager said that financing for the project, as shown in the new budget, would include $16,000 from revenue sharing, $10,000 from major street funds and $19,000 from local street funds.

Discussion on the final budget to be presented at a public hearing on Monday, May 16, is to take place next Monday night. Other matters to be considered by the council will include opening of bids for construction on the city park dock and a discussion with Harold Knight on a state program to allow tax relief for industry.

Arthur Krass, resort owner, appeared before the council Monday night and asked the council to support proposed legislation to allow tax exemptions for modernization and improvement of commercial property. He said that such a program would provide the incentive for commercial modernization.

The council went on record encouraging the state legislature to accept the proposed bill. Further discussion is to be held at the next meeting.

A report on the boat launching ramp indicated that $296 has been cleared over the past two weekends on the sale of annual and daily launching and parking fees. The operator sold 37 annual stickers and had 45 daily launching fees. This money is to assist in financing dredging the river mouth.

Consideration is to be given to the purchase of special paint to cover the surface of the tennis court at the athletic field on First Avenue. Cost of the paint would be $1,300 and would be applied under city supervision.

The council adopted Ordinance No. 185 prohibiting obscene performances. Adoption was recommended by Sheriff George Westcott to prohibit the possibility of topless dancers in local establishments. The ordinance is to become effective after publication next week.

Mayor Herbert Cholger proclaimed the week of May 14-21 as Michigan Week.

Plainfield Lays Claim to Iosco County Garage

Plans are being made by Plainfield Township to convert the former county garage building at Hale into a senior citizens center, once the county moves to its new location on M-55 east of Sand Lake Road.

Ray Kesler, township supervisor, said last week that property on which the garage building was constructed about 35 years ago is still owned by Plainfield Township. A lease granting use to the road commission has not been located and the township is laying claim to the building.

Kesler said he had checked with an attorney and learned that townships were prohibited from leasing property except through action at an annual meeting or by referendum. No such action was taken, according to township records.

The road commission had offered to sell the building to the township for $5,000.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

There is a comment I would like to write and have all state senators and representatives, also the news media, to take note:

When they refer to the property tax exemption of the elderly, they infer that all senior citizens get the reduction. I do not like to call anyone a prevaricator but that's an exaggerated statement that I will explain:

I've been a senior citizen and a GM retiree for 11 years. Both my wife and I are eligible for social security and plus my pension it just puts us over the exemption amount for a refund. Unless one has an exorbitant property tax because they own much property, there is no refund for a "big 3" retiree. Yet our "Honest" congressmen and the news media continue to state that all senior citizens are given a tax break and that's a fraudulent statement.

They really must have some exceedingly smart mathematicians in Lansing to figure the exact amount to arrive at in order that the minimum of senior citizens would benefit by the refund.

Big headlines in the paper, "Senior Citizens Get Break in Property Tax!" One gets enthused and thinks at last the elderly are getting a break. But the actual facts are that just those on social security only are benefited by it.

I do not begrudge and am happy those people get a refund and am content that I'm able to pay my taxes with no refund. But I resent the implication that the news media and our congressmen give when they state that all senior citizens are included in the refund plan and are giving the general public the opinion that all the elderly are getting a big break while they are struggling to make ends meet.

East Tawas Girl Tells Experiences as Exchange Student in Netherlands

Julie Plumley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Plumley of East Tawas, writes to The Tawas Herald that she has "Gone through many changes and I have seen and experienced a lot" during her past nine months as an exchange student in the Netherlands.

"Before I came over, I never realized that life in another country could be so different: The people, schools, cities and everything in general took a little getting used to—some, a little more than others," she writes.

"Dutch people really took a lot of getting used to and I still do not think I am used to them completely! A Dutchman is a rather cold and blunt person. They are not apt to exchange a polite greeting on the street very quickly. It takes them awhile to become friendly with someone whom they do not know. They are very frank and would not think twice about walking up to a person they met just a minute before and tell them that their clothes do not look right on them. One thing I have learned over here is never argue with a Dutchman!"

Miss Plumley, who is in her junior year in high school, states that schools in Holland are very different and also difficult. "All they do is work, work, work! To the people here, school is the most important thing of all. I have a total of 10 different subjects and that is the amount almost everyone has. These subjects include: Dutch, French, English, history, geography, biology, KGL (a type of discussion class), typing, gym and music.

THE BICYCLE is an important form of transportation in Holland and utilized by young and old. This picture was included in a series snapped by Julie Plumley of East Tawas, who is an exchange student in the Netherlands.

"Our school starts at 8:15 a. m. and ends at 2:40 p. m. We do not have the same subjects every day and some days one may have only three different classes. If one is free at any time of the day, he can go home. If a teacher is sick, there is no substitute teacher and the students are free.

"There are 13 periods to a day and it is not fun sitting there when you have the first 11 periods free! The schools are rather dull because they have no sports, no clubs, no activities of any kind. There is no time for that because the kids have too much homework.

"The kids here are much more advanced than in the United States. I walked into my French class the first day and was shocked! The kids talk to the teacher in French, read books in French, do reports in French and everything was in French. It was very confusing. Back home, the student and teacher are on a more personal basis, where here, they are complete strangers to each other. When you walk into the classroom, you sit down and get right to work.

"Holland, as everyone knows, is a small country. It still seems strange to me because I can get on a train and go south and be in Belgium in approximately two hours. If I go west I can be in Germany within the same time. If kids have to go someplace and it is of any distance, they usually take the train. If it is not too far they ride their bike or take a bus. They can not just hop in the car and take off. Here, you cannot get your license until you are 18 years of age and it is very difficult and expensive. My friends find it hard to believe that I have my drivers license.

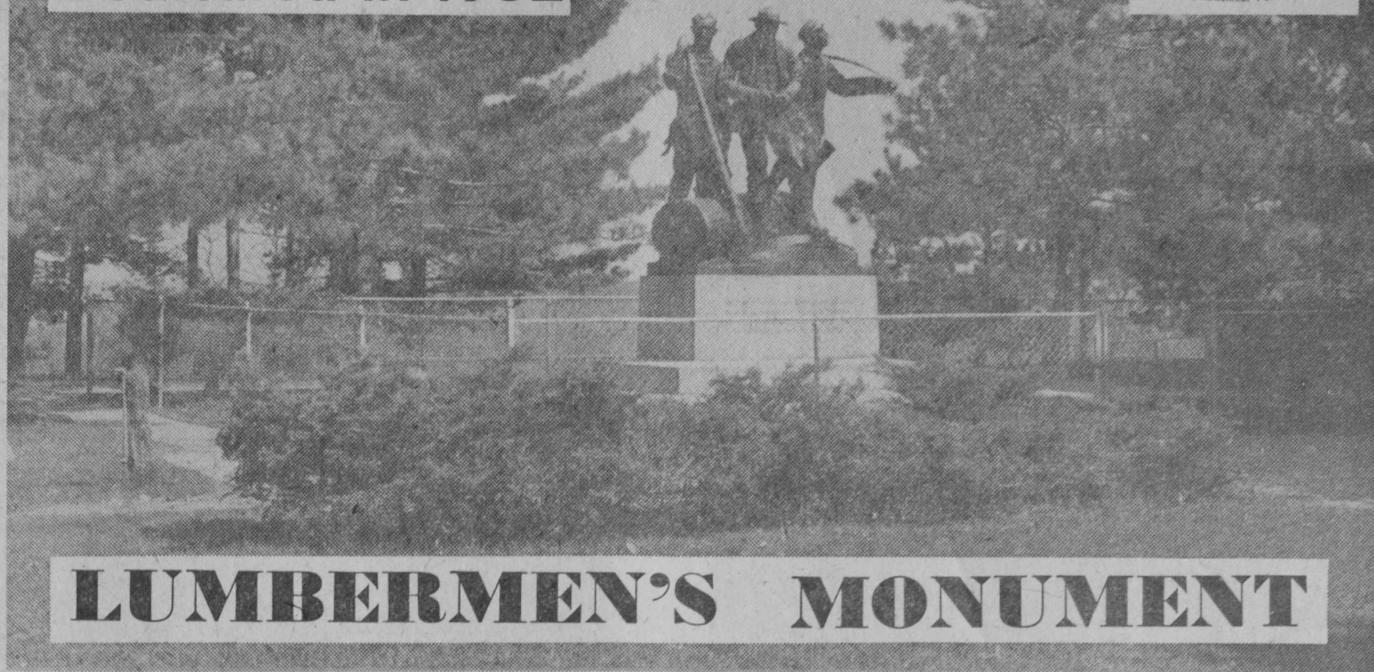

"You do not depend on your parents to take you, either. If you have a bike, use it or take the bus. I take two different buses to school every day and there are no school buses here. My school is in another city, which is not at all unusual. Since Holland is so small, the cities are all together. One can go from one city to another and not even realize it. It takes me an hour to get to school, depending on how busy the buses are on a particular day.

"There are very few houses here and that is one thing I really miss. People live in either an apartment or a flat. I live in a flat and find it very different. Everything is so crowded together.

LUMBERMEN'S MONUMENT

ORIGINAL WORK on beautifying the grounds at Lumbermen's Monument was provided by men of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) starting in the mid-1930s. The small seedlings set out by these youths more than 40 years ago now provide a fitting pine backdrop for the memorial. A rustic stairway leading down the steep bank of the AuSable River has finally disappeared.

One of the region's most important tourist attractions—the Lumbermen's Monument overlooking the AuSable River—observes the 45th anniversary of its dedication on July 16, 1977. This massive bronze and stone memorial, constructed at a cost of more than $50,000 during the depths of the depression era, annually attracts thousands of visitors.

Ironically, grounds surrounding the memorial, along with rather primitive restroom facilities for 200,000 visitors annually, have fallen into disrepair during recent years due to the lack of maintenance funds received by the United States Forest Service.

A spokesman for Tawas Ranger District reports that additional maintenance funds are expected in 1977 and quite an intensive grounds program has been carried out this spring to correct problems caused by lack of funds. It is hoped that congress will appropriate funds at some future time to update facilities and to develop a historical interpretation center, which has been on the planning boards for nearly 10 years.

Construction of a memorial to the nation's pioneer lumbermen was the culmination of an idea born to the late R. G. Schreck of East Tawas in September 1926, when the Thompson Trail was dedicated. Schreck was supervisor of Huron National Forest at that time and saw the fitness of a memorial to "The Stalwarts of the Pines" on this historic old tote trail, now called Monument Road.

At the time, Schreck's conception of the idea was quite modest—perhaps a marker or tablet. He talked with friends about the matter and, while he did not receive much encouragement, he became more enthused with the idea.

Schreck contacted William B. Mershon, prominent Michigan lumberman of Saginaw and Mershon became an enthusiastic as the forest supervisor. Other lumbermen were interviewed and a committee was formed to investigate the possibility of such a project.

The original committee consisted of Mershon, Charles T. Mitchell of Cadillac, John W. Blodgett of Grand Rapids, H. K. Loud of Oscoda, J. S. Stearns of Ludington, Alfred Richardson, H. E. Fletcher, Allen M. Fletcher and Robert Rayburn, all of Alpena.

A meeting was held at East Tawas and, after viewing the site of the proposed project, a large amount of the funds necessary were subscribed by members of the committee. Consummation of Schreck's idea was then assured.

The committee then commissioned Robert Aiken, an internationally famed American sculptor of New York, to create the memorial. Aiken made a thorough research of the subject, traveling to the State of Washington and British Columbia, where he became very familiar with the lumberjack—even to the knowledge of his thoughts and habits. About a year later, the statue was cast and in October 1931, it was placed in position.

The site selected for the memorial was near the McCullom Banks, known in early Isosco history as a great log railway, where millions of feet of white and Norway pine logs were banked during the river months and then rolled into the AuSable River in the early spring to eventually find their way to sawmills at AuSable and Oscoda.

The McCullom Banks had been the scene of an elaborate ceremony in September 1928, when the Kiwanis plantation was dedicated to the Huron National Forest. During that program, rocks were placed on the river bank as the proposed site of a base for a figure depicting an old-time riverman.

The decision regarding the site was later influenced through the fact that the site overlooks the AuSable River, is the center of a federal forest of 300,000 acres which would assure its perpetuity.

Details of erecting the monument, landscaping the grounds and the arrangements of the dedication ceremonies were left to the supervision of Schreck, who had the cooperation of people in every section of the county.

In the presence of a crowd of about 5,000 people gathered at the end of the Thompson Trail, Mershon unveiled the Lumbermen's Monument on that extremely hot Saturday afternoon 45 years ago and presented it to the United States Forest Service. The major speech of acceptance was made by R. Y. Stuart, chief of the United States Forest Service.

Gov. Wilber M. Brucker in his address said: "This memorial emphasizes the debt the nation owes to the pioneer lumbermen. The three figures memorialize the spirit of America's advancement in three ways—exploration, development and transportation. Exploration, of necessity, precedes all things; then there has been the cruiser's accuracy and, finally, the movement made necessary by transportation."

In his talk filled with reminiscences of the days when pine was king and when the woods rang to the lusty voice and sharp axe of the lumberman, Mershon said he was glad to see what Norways were doing on what "I was led to believe was worthless soil."

Short addresses were given by the governor of the Michigan District of Kiwanis Clubs, along with vocal selections and poems by local residents. Music was furnished by the Mio Military Band and Detroit Citizens Band. Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke of Harrisville was local program chairman.

Earlier in the day, hundreds of old-timers gathered at Camp Eight, site of a historical lumbering operation along the river, where they greeted old friends and recounted stories of the old days. After being fed in true lumberjack style by the people of Oscoda, an "exemplification of the arts of the lumberjack was given by some of the surviving woodsmen clad in their stagged trousers, caulked boots, bearing peavies and axes," stated The Tawas Herald. Indians in full regalia took part in the program and the Rev. Simon Green-sky, Chippewa minister, gave an address.

The program was completed with an exhibition of fireworks at the Tawas City Park and a lumbermen's ball at East Tawas, Governor and Mrs. Brucker in attendance. There were 6,629 letters cancelled at East Tawas on July 16 having the special Lumbermen's Monument cachet on the face of the envelopes.

Erection of the memorial drew national newspaper attention. "Aiken shows his riverman as a young Scandinavian Thor with a peavey for his thunderbolt; the landlooker is earnestly considering the possibilities of the timber and the lumberjack has no thought but how the next monarch of the forest should be made to fall," stated an account in a Boston, Massachusetts, newspaper.

"The memorial is an impressive sight," stated The Tawas Herald in its coverage of the dedication. "Three nine-foot figures of bronze—the landlooker consulting his compass, the riverman with his hand gripping the working end of a peavey, the woodsman with his axe and crosscut saw, all heroic figures silhouetted against the sky—are reminders vividly bringing to the onlooker the era of the

Tawas Thinclads Battled to Tie

Tawas Area Braves battled Ogemaw Heights to a 79-79 tie Wednesday afternoon in a North-eastern Michigan Conference meet. It was a super effort by the entire Tawas team, but especially by Lee Starling, a junior, who won the discus, placed second in the 40 and tied the meet with a second in the high jump.

Tawas registered 10 first place finishes, had six seconds, but fell to three third place and four fourth place finishes. The high jump was the last event of the day and Starling's jump of five feet, 10 inches, earned a second place finish in that event and tied the meet. Jeff Tousley, Tawas Area speedster, accounted for 20 points during the meet. He won the long jump at 19 feet, six inches; took first place in high jump, five feet, 10 inches; won first place in one-quarter mile, 52.6 seconds and won first place in low hurdles, 42.5 seconds.

Starling tossed the discus 124 feet, 2 3/4 inches, for first place. Other first place finishes were recorded by Jim Bouchard, pole vault, 10 feet; Neil Warner, 100-yard dash, 10.3 seconds; Mike Barry, mile run, four minutes, 32 seconds; Andy Mayer, 220-yard run, 23.6 seconds; 880-yard relay team of Warner, Hugh Luedtke, Scott Tousley and Mayer, one minute, 35.1 seconds.

The Braves play host to Pinconning this afternoon (Wednesday), 4 o'clock. The Spartans defeated Ogemaw Heights and this meet could decide the winner of the Northeastern Michigan Conference. Because of two track meets last week, Tawas did not participate in the annual Chip Relays at Central Michigan University.

TRAIL STOMPING GOURMETS

Coffee, sugar, beans, a slab of salt-cured pork, beef jerky, a few onions and potatoes—that was all you needed a few years ago to have a complete backpacker's menu.

But today it is not that simple. Now that backpackers may choose from countless numbers of freeze-dried and dehydrated food, planning a menu is a tough decision.

Breakfast can consist of anything from scrambled eggs, hash browns, bacon, rolls and butter to Mexican omelets, biscuits and hot chocolate.

Lunch is usually eaten on the trail and does not present much of a problem. But supper is a different matter. Will you have beef stroganoff, soup, green beans and garden salad, or chicken tetrazzini and all the fixings?

With the advent of freeze dried and dehydrated food, the camper no longer has to suffer through bland and boring meals on the trail.

Through the process of freeze-drying about 98 percent of the moisture is removed from the foods. This makes them very light. And they keep without refrigeration. Add the water back to them from a creek or spring along the trail, and you have got the same kind of meal you eat at home.

Most freeze-dried foods are pre-cooked. You only need to add boiling water, wait a few minutes, then dig in. If you cannot find freeze-dried foods at your grocery, try a camp supply store.

Dehydrated foods are less expensive than freeze-dried ones. Freeze-dried, however, have better texture, slightly better taste and offer a greater variety of complete meals.

Some of the dehydrated foods found in supermarkets are soups, milk, coffee, cocoa and bouillon, puddings and gelatin desserts, hashbrowns, cereals, pancakes, complete rice, spaghetti and noodle dinners. And do not forget imitation bacon chips and other synthetic meats that taste like the real product but require no refrigeration.

By buying dehydrated foods and packaging them at home in small plastic bags, you can spend an entire week on the trail for about $10.

Since backpackers carry limited utensils, most everything is a one-pot meal. Here is a good one for beginners.

Creamed Chipped Beef: Buy a small can of dried beef, an envelope of instant milk and one of white sauce. (You can find all these at the supermarket.) Mix the powdered milk, add the white sauce then stir until blended. Add the beef in shreds. Let the mixture simmer a few minutes, then pour over an English muffin.

English muffins, wrapped in plastic, will last about a week on the trail. If they start getting hard, steam them over boiling water.

It should be obvious by now the only problem backpackers have with food is making the choice.

The United States Forest Service says you should carry 1 1/2 to two pounds of food per person per day. When using freeze-dried foods, read the serving weight for the correct amount.

The average packer burns up 3,500 calories per day on a regular hike and up to 5,000 for a steep climb in cold weather. Add up calories by using a diet book or by checking on the package if it is freeze-dried food. If you are planning an extended trip, carry some vitamin to assure good health.

If your pack is not overweight, you can carry frozen foods. Steaks, hamburgers and other easy-to-cook meats can be taken out of the freezer just before you leave home. Simply wrap them in foil and drop in a freezer bag.

If you are going to be camping by nightfall, the meat will be thawed and ready to use. Be sure to cook meat on the first day—do not keep it overnight. Now, wouldn't you like to become a trail stomping gourmet?

Kroger's Began Unit Pricing

Shoppers at 112 Kroger food stores in the State of Michigan received an assist in their weekly shopping trip when the supermarket firm's Michigan marketing area began unit pricing April 25.

David A. Burt, vice president of the Michigan marketing area which operates Kroger supermarkets throughout Michigan, said that Kroger had added unit pricing to its consumer information services to assist customers in making the wisest possible shopping decision.

"Kroger believes that consumers should receive the information they need to make an informed shopping decision," Burt said, noting that during the past few years Kroger has introduced open dating, nutrient labeling, ingredient labeling, a ground beef information program, and simplified names and primal cut labeling for meat cuts to help shoppers. "Unit pricing represents one more way in which we at Kroger are trying to help consumers get the most for their food dollar."

Unit pricing assists shopping decisions by telling the customer at a glance which size or which brand of a comparable product is lowest in price. In addition to the familiar price on the can itself, unit pricing labels on shelves show not only the name, total price and size of the item, but also show the price per unit, such as per ounce, per quart or 50-count.

"Comparative price information is important to today's shopper," Burt said. "We encourage consumers to compare prices of various products within our stores and also between Kroger and competing supermarkets."

One example cited by Burt of how unit pricing can help consumers make price judgments is cream style corn. This product is available in a typical supermarket in four different sizes and four brands, which means there are 16 possible shopping choices. It also allows easy comparison of odd sizes (for example, 24 ounces for 69 cents versus 29 ounces for 80 cents).

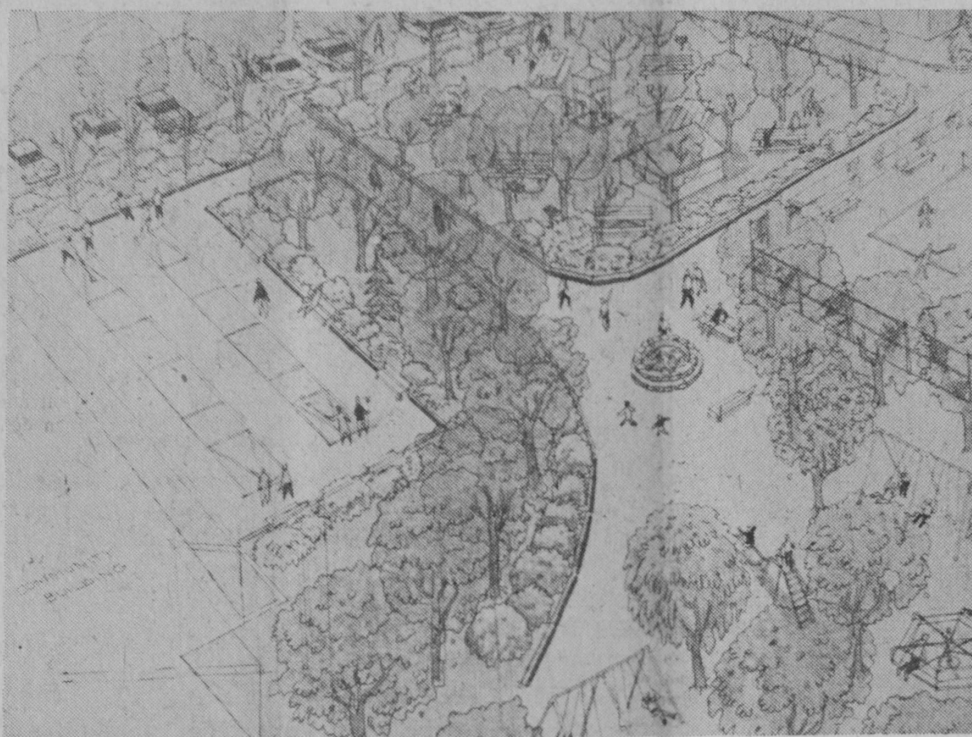

Unit pricing does not compare quality, individual flavor preferences or different packs, such as cream style corn versus vacuum packed corn. Another Kroger information service, nutrient labeling, does provide assistance in comparing the total food value of one style over another.

Approximately 8,000 items will carry the unit pricing information when the program is completed in local Kroger stores. Unit pricing covers primarily canned and packaged grocery and dairy products, since most meat and fresh fruits and vegetables already are unit priced by pound or piece.

THIS WOMAN is dressed in the original costume for Dutch women. She stands in the doorway of a small shop.

There is not much open land and there are no hills—everything is flat.

"I have done quite a bit of traveling since I have been here. When I first came, my family took me on a three-week camping vacation. I saw a lot of beautiful country. All together, I was in five different countries: Belgium, Switzerland, France, Germany and Italy. We did not go into any of the big cities, but stayed on the outskirts. All of it was wonderful.

"In October, my school went to England for a week. I had a good time, but that was more of a work week and I had an even better time when I went back in February with the exchange program. I really like England and would not mind going back again. I will be making a 10-day tour of Holland this summer and will also see parts of Belgium and Germany.

"I am having a wonderful time here and I really like living in Holland. It took a little getting used to it, but this is part of the experience and I will never forget it. I would really enjoy hearing from anyone who has any comments. You may write to me at: Brantingsstraat 13, Ryswijk (ZH), Netherlands."

whining sawmill, the sharp ring of the axe in the bitter cold air, the cry of 'timber-r-r,' the days of sweating and swearing, of pushing to fall the majestic expanse of pine that 80 years ago stretched across this two peninsula state."

Chiseled in the granite base of the monument is the inscription: "Erected to Perpetuate the Memory of the Pioneer Lumbermen of Michigan Through Whose Labors was Made Possible the Development of the Prairie States." On the remaining sides of the base are chiseled the 91 names of those who gave to make the memorial possible.

On the day preceding the dedication, conservationists, lumbermen, outdoorsmen and those interested in the things of the woods convened in the shadow of the monument to talk of the past, to speak of the present and to tell of the future of God's great handiwork—the tree.

"Gone, perhaps forever, are the hard-fisted men of the Michigan woods; gone, maybe forever, are the spring drives, the whine of the sawmill, the lusty fights, the songs that thundered through the woods. Gone, perhaps in actuality, but the memory of it shall live forever in these three figures standing heroically against the sky," stated the Herald.

"Some day, the unseeing eyes of these mute figures will look out upon an expanse of forest strenuously rivaling the scene that lay there 70 years and more ago," The Herald predicted in 1932.

That prediction is coming true—the millions of pine seedlings planted in Huron National Forest decades ago are maturing and one day will again provide a forest of stately monarchs.

It would be fitting for the federal government to provide the necessary funds for development of a historical interpretation center and other necessary facilities to handle the countless thousands of future visitors to the memorial and the forest.

Those federal funds would match the money provided through public subscription in Michigan for the memorial, along with local funds provided for the base.

LOOKING BACKWARD—

Hale Health Council Marks Anniversary

15 Years Ago—

May 9, 1962—Nearly 200 persons attended a program marking the 10th anniversary of the Hale Health Council. Held at Plainfield Township Hall, charter members of the group were honored during the evening.

Lyall Smith, sports editor of the Detroit Free Press, will be guest speaker for the annual spring banquet of Tawas Chamber of Commerce.

The Alpena-Detroit Flying Service will make scheduled stops at the new Iosco County Airport starting June 1.

Pvt. Darwood I. Leopard of Tawas City has begun his basic training at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina.

Two local employees of National Gypsum Company have been promoted at the National City plant. John Katterman, a former sales supervisor, will supervise testing of incoming raw materials and outgoing finished products. Earl Shover, former mill foreman, is the new sales supervisor.

Iosco County Road Commission honored two veteran employees at Tawas Golf and Country Club. Retiring employees were Mrs. Kathryn Moss of East Tawas and George Atkinson of Hale.

Today's teen at Tawas Area High School is Jerry Youngs, 16-year-old junior.

25 Years Ago—

May 9, 1952—Preliminary arrangements have been made for Tawas Hospital's cornerstone laying ceremony. One wing of the structure is nearly ready for the roof and a large amount of concrete floor has been constructed.

Twenty persons attended the annual banquet of Tawas City Fire Department held at Vic and Zel's Restaurant. Chief Fred Musolf announced that an eight-week fire fighting school would be held here starting in July.

A trumpet duet by Jack Burt and Jerry McKenzie, accompanied by David Moehring at the piano, was included in the annual music appreciation program featuring young local talent at the East Tawas Community Building. The program was sponsored by the Young Women's League.

Joyce Dodder, valedictorian of the graduating class at Whittemore High School, has been given the annual award of the Reader's Digest Association.

George E. Freer of Tawas City High School was elected president of the AuSable District of the Michigan Education Association.

35 Years Ago—

May 8, 1942—Tawas City High School Band and a large number of citizens were at the Selective Service station when Iosco County boys left for military service.

Teachers of Alabaster High School have been hired for another year with a substantial increase in salary. Chemistry will be an added subject next year.

Setting of price ceilings on practically every conceivable commodity in the country, which had been expected by the business world, was received with little shock when signed into law. The average weekly wage in industrial plants now stands at $35 a week, a revolutionary increase, and authorities believe that wages will automatically hold still.

The county has taken $12,650 from its building fund and invested it in War Bonds.

THIS OLD ENGRAVING pictures the Lumbermen's Monument in the studio of Robert Aitken, internationally famed sculptor of New York City, before being moved to Iosco County at the end of the old Thompson Trail in the fall of 1931. The monument overlooks thousands of acres of plains land which were reclaimed for future generations through establishment of pine plantations. The seedlings planted on what was once considered to be worthless soil are now maturing into beautiful stands of timber.

Marine Safety Funds to Iosco

Iosco County will soon be receiving a $10,133.32 reimbursement from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources for its marine safety program conducted last year. The announcement was made by Sen. Rep. Leader Robert

Davis of Gaylord. Davis explained that Section 23 of Act 303, Public Acts of 1967, authorizes the DNR to reimburse several counties of the state in an amount equal to two-thirds of the authorized and approved expenditures of their marine safety programs, less any necessary proration.

The warrants are being mailed to county treasurers this week.

Ruppe's Aide Plans Visit

Cong. Philip Ruppe's Lower Peninsula district representative will hold office hours in Iosco County next week.

Jerry Newhouse, who serves the Lower Peninsula from Alpena, will hold office hours from 10:00 to 11:00 a. m. at Plainfield Township Hall, Hale, on Wednesday, May 11.

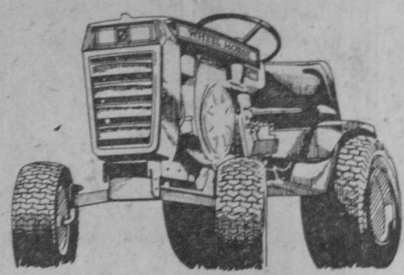

Any area citizen needing to discuss a federal matter is invited to visit with Newhouse. No prior appointment is necessary.
