Question Charcoal Filtration

East Tawas Objects to EPA Legislation

Formal protest to proposed legislation which would require charcoal filtration of public water systems, as advocated by the Environmental Protection Agency, is to be made by the East Tawas Council.

At Monday night's regular meeting, Harold French, water plant operator, told councilmen that he attended a seminar concerning the EPA's proposal to require granular charcoal filters and regeneration of those filters.

French expressed the opinion that the EPA had not carried out sufficient laboratory investigation to determine the necessity for such filtration.

He said the requirement would increase the water plant's operational cost by $64,500 a year for regeneration of the charcoal filters. He felt the proposal was not justified and there would be a tremendous waste of time, energy and public money to carry out the program.

In other business, the council approved a park plan submitted by Ronald Leslie, park manager, and City Clerk Clyde Soper. This plan, to be revised annually, is to be submitted to the Department of Natural Resources on May 1 for consideration of Bureau of Outdoor Recreation Funds to expand and improve the park. Approval was given by the council subject to possible objections raised during the next week.

A letter from Keith Wilson of the Michigan Waterways Commission indicated that the state would proceed with construction of a new boat ramp as soon as a deed for city property east of the state police post is received. Russell Small is completing the survey of this city property and a deed is to be submitted as soon as this work is completed.

The city superintendent was authorized to purchase a 1972 street sweeper at a cost of $12,000, subject to his inspection of the equipment.

The unit would replace a 1956 model currently in use.

The park board has proposed the sale of city property to the state for expansion of a small parking lot at the state police post. The matter was turned over to the building and grounds committee (See ET COUNCIL, page 6.)

A WORK BEE was held Sunday at Zion Lutheran Church to remove an old pipe organ in preparation for installing a new $26,000 Rogers organ. The original pipe organ was installed about 80 years ago and was rebuilt seven years ago. Work started Monday on installation of the new instrument which will be a combination electronic and pipe organ. Shown above holding the keyboard and several pipes from the old organ

Sunday are, from left, Suzanne Musolf, who has been church organist for the past 10 years; Robert Richter, chairman of the organ committee and a member of the church board of trustees; Darwin Bain, chairman of the board of trustees. Richter said that the committee had raised $8,000 in memorials and contributions toward its $26,000 goal.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Vehicle for City Financing

Building Authority Gets Council OK

Formation of a building authority to serve as the financing vehicle for future municipal construction was authorized Monday night by the Tawas City Council.

This action was taken following adoption two weeks ago of a committee recommendation to purchase an option for property on the southwest side of the city hall for proposed construction of a city hall, library, fire station complex.

Articles of incorporation for a building authority, as presented by City Atty. Kenneth Myles, are to become effective in 60 days.

Myles told the council Monday night that the building authority was patterned after similar organizations established by the County of Iosco and Oscoda Township. The authority would be composed of three members appointed by the council.

Myles stressed the point that articles of incorporation limits the function of a building authority to following directives of the city council. He emphasized that the council would have final authority concerning any municipal construction decisions, including planning, engineering and actual site.

Mayor Herbert Cholger and Coun. Robert Rollin expressed the belief that the three-man building authority would take over responsibility delegated to the city council and that citizens would not have any input.

The city attorney said that a building authority cannot enter into any contract without prior approval of the council and all of its actions would be according to council specifications. He said the main reason for a building authority was to improve means of selling bonds to finance a project. After a decision is made by the council to proceed, the building authority would have responsibility for selling bonds to repay the cost of the project. Ownership of the project would be retained by the building authority until bonds are retired.

The authority was established on a four to two roll call vote by the council. In favor were Coun. Hugo Keiser, Jerry Cotter, Charles Landon and William Ezo. Opposed were Mayor Cholger and Councilman Rollin.

Mayor Cholger expressed the opinion that there was no urgency for establishing an authority at this time and felt there should be further discussion on the matter. Councilman Rollin said he was voting "no" only for the reason that he believed there should be additional study.

Cotter and other councilmen were of the opinion that the building authority should be established immediately, because of the council's action two weeks ago. Cotter, Keiser, Landon and Ezo felt that the city had been "treading water" too long and that some action should be taken.

The city attorney said that if the city was interested in financing any construction using low-interest FHA bond money this year, an application would have to be completed by July. Because of the 60-day waiting period for final establishment of a building authority, he said approval by the council was necessary Monday night.

Attorneys Give Free Advice on Law Day

Members of the 23rd Judicial Circuit Bar Association in the Tawas area will again offer free consultation service as part of the local observance of Law Day on Monday, May 1.

Atty. John Hamilton of Tawas City, who is co-chairman of the event with Atty. Michael Larkin of Oscoda, said that although complex legal problems and legal documents could not be handled during that brief session, "we can offer some free advice and legal interpretations on contracts for interested citizens."

The 15-minute consultation sessions are to be held in the circuit court room of the county building. Telephone 362-6133 for an appointment prior to April 28.

Attorneys participating in the program are Hamilton, Brent Babcock, Thomas B. Huck, William H. McCready, Kenneth J. Myles, James W. Shotwell, Ronald R. Tyler and Timothy K. Weaver.

THIS OLD WILLOW TREE has long been an attraction for youngsters at the Tawas City Park, but only two main branches remain and both are in an unsafe condition. The park board, with council approval, has directed its removal. —Tawas Herald Photo.

'Climbing Tree,' Favorite of Generations, to be Removed

The massive trunk and two limbs of a black willow tree, once a thing of beauty in the Tawas City Park, will be removed shortly under a directive of the park board. After delaying recommendations of foresters for five years, the park board ordered its removal for safety reasons.

A report Thursday from Thomas Jacques, city forester, indicated that a fissure in the trunk of the tree had widened considerably during the past winter, increasing the danger that the two remaining limbs would break away from the gnarled trunk.

Jacques made a similar recommendation last fall, but the park board withheld any action until an investigation could be made to determine if the heavy limbs could be supported in some manner. It was finally decided that this was not feasible and the tree is to be removed. The delay in ordering removal of the tree was for sentimental reasons. Three generations of youngsters have used the tree for adventurous climbing and to such an extent that the heavy bark has been worn smooth in many places. The tree is slightly less than 60 years of age and its unusual shape—with massive limbs spreading outward from the trunk and almost parallel to the ground before bending upward—was probably caused by an ice storm in the 19-20s.

As the tree aged, repeated storms have resulted in nearly total destruction of its limbs. The trunk has now decayed and one of its two remaining limbs nearly touches the ground.

Five years ago, a Consumers Power Company forester recommended that the tree be removed but, because of its attraction for youngsters and the shade provided during the summer months, several large limbs were removed by the department of public works to lessen the load on its weakened trunk. With each succeeding year, additional limbs were removed following storm damage.

The park board's resolution stated that it regretted such action was necessary but, in the best interest of the safety of youngsters and others, the old tree is to be removed.

The tree is to be replaced by two other willow trees, but park officials said they realized the shoreline would never be the same. "It would take another ice storm at just the proper time to deform a new tree into the shape of the old one," said City Mgr. Reginald Bulbitz.

Proposed Budget Would Cut Tax Levy by One-Quarter Mill

A one-quarter-mill reduction in the city's operational tax levy is proposed under a preliminary budget presented Monday night to the Tawas City Council. The budget is to be reviewed at the next meeting and possibly a special session before final adoption at a public hearing on May 15.

The preliminary budget as presented by City Mgr. Reginald Bulbitz calls for a tax levy of 15.10 mills, as compared to 15.35 mills during the current year.

Total taxes raised by 15.10 mills would be $198,962.43. The breakdown includes 9.28 mills for general fund, as compared to 9.35 mills in 1977; .67 of a mill for fire improvement, as compared to .85; 1.00 mill for equipment fund, as compared to .85; 3.00 mills for the street fund, the same as last year; 1.15 mills for debt fund, as compared to 1.30.

The budget anticipates a general fund balance of $1,000 at the end of the current year on June 30. Total receipts under the new budget would amount to $278,690, as compared to $248,398 during the current year. Because of new construction and re-appraisal of property, property taxes are expected to increase from a budgeted $101,860 in 1977-78 to $122,200 in 1978-79. The actual or projected revenue from property taxes during the current year is $115,600.

A $5,000 increase is anticipated in state sales tax returns, a $4,000 increase in state business tax rebate, plus slight increases in other funds.

According to the preliminary budget, estimated receipts show $22,000 in uncommitted funds which could be used toward a number of projects, including possible bridge construction, future use at the river mouth, city hall or other projects.

Streets under consideration for blacktopping include North Street, from First Avenue to Fifth Avenue; Court Street, from Wheeler Street to North Street; Wheeler Street, from US-23 to Court Street; Eighth Avenue, from Second Street about 400 feet to the south end of the Tawas City Elementary Unit; Birch Street, from US-23 to Court Street; First Street, from First Avenue to Ninth Avenue.

Should federal anti recessionary money be extended this fall, the city manager said this could mean at least another $6,000 to $7,000 for city operation.

"If there should occur a larger cash balance than is anticipated in the street budget by July 1, this would then create more funds for street work or such projects as blacktop, storm sewers or bridges," said Bulbitz.

Through establishment of its new tax revolving fund, Iosco County is to return approximately $25,000 to the city sometime in May. This delinquent tax money would be allocated to the various city funds which receive millage and it could, by the middle of June, cause a surplus in the general fund which could provide additional money for projects desired by the council.

Also included in the new budget, both general fund and street budgets, are funds for a city foreman or director of public works, plus funds for a secretary in the city manager's office. In addition, there are funds created in water and sewer budgets for these positions. The city operated the entire year with a reduction of two men in its work force. These men are to be replaced during the coming week and that cost will be reflected in a number of places in the budget to bring the city crews to full staff.

"Inflation is still playing tricks with us and the continued cost of operation and maintenance has been considered as near as can be at this time," said Bulbitz.

The city manager said that a new dump truck, equipped with underbody scraper and front end snow plow, was a top priority. An air compressor is needed at the garage, plus one more pickup truck for various types of jobs. He felt that purchase of a snowblower would improve the efficiency of the winter operations, but believed that a $15,000 price tag for this equipment was too high.

The city manager felt it would be better to look for a used snow-

Served 32 Years

Rep. Prescott Retiring from Public Office

Thirty-two years in public service without ever losing an election is the enviable record State Rep. George A. Prescott, Tawas City, will complete at the end of this year. With that record in hand, Representative Prescott announced last week the end of a political career that started in 1946 when he was elected township supervisor.

Prescott, assistant minority whip in the house of representatives and serving in his 12th year in the legislature, said he will not seek reelection to the 105th District seat.

"I am retiring reluctantly," Prescott said. "I really do like this position. I am proud to have had the opportunity to serve the people of my district. I hope they feel that I have represented them fairly and honestly."

"While I'm sure that I'll miss public service, it seems to be the right time to return to Tawas City and the rest of 'God's country' and do a little fishing, hunting and work in my flower gardens. My health is good and at 65 it is time to take leisure time I can call my own," Prescott said.

"The difficult part of this decision," Prescott reflected, "is knowing I will no longer be working daily with my colleagues whom I respect and admire. Friendships like those are not soon forgotten."

Prescott served as township supervisor and Iosco County clerk for 20 years prior to being elected to the Michigan House of Representatives in 1966. He is the third member of his family to represent Northeastern Michigan in the state legislature.

During the current legislative session, Prescott is serving as vice chairman of the liquor control committee and is a member of the consumers, elections, and towns and counties committees.

Prescott is a graduate of Michigan State University. He and his wife of 40 years, Margaret, have five sons, George Jr., Berton, Frank, Davey and Craig, and one daughter, Sarah.

Tornado Exercise Planned April 27

A mock tornado exercise will test the emergency operations center at the county building on Thursday, April 27, according to Harold Schmidtko, emergency services coordinator. The simulated exercise will be conducted only in the Tawas and will involve "victims" at Starboard Industries plant, hospital and sheriff's department personnel along with county department heads.

TODAYS Meditation from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide The Upper Room

(Read Matthew 7:15-20) "You will recognize them by their fruits." (Matthew 7:20 NEB) When my college accepted me to study engineering technology, the education secretary of my denomination refused to help me financially, saying, "The church will have no use for this kind of course." He also suggested that to be helped by the church, I should have to work at least seven years for the organization, never mind my 10 years of regular church membership!

When I arrived in London, England, I phoned a member of my denomination for his help in adjusting to the new country. He was too busy; my place was far from where he lived; etc. It took a godly man in the United States to phone his friend who lives 14 miles out of London to seek me out. After a time, members of his denomination came over to my place and helped me financially and spiritually. I knew love for what it really is!

Seek Funds for Microfilm Reader

Mrs. Lyle Adams of 508 Twelfth Avenue, Tawas City, long interested in genealogy, is conducting a campaign to raise funds to purchase a microfilm reader for Iosco-Arenac Regional Library.

"One of the problems encountered by genealogists is that many records needed to research are stored on microfilm. Most people cannot afford to purchase a microfilm reader and no agency or institution in the area presently offers a microfilm reader as a public service," states Mark J. Ames, regional library director.

Ames said that as a public library, "we would gladly offer a microfilm reader to our library users, but we cannot justify the $500 to $600 cost of purchasing a reader out of our own budget."

Because of the need for a microfilm reader, expressed by Mrs. Adams and others, she has agreed to act as the library's agent in soliciting funds in the area so that the regional library can purchase a microfilm reader.

Ames said that Mrs. Adams was a citizen interested in improving library services and any donation would be applied totally and only to the purchase of a microfilm reader.

Letters to the Editor

TO the Editor:

During the past few years, it seems that all I have done is criticize the school system from top to bottom, and then at a meeting of Kiwanis on April 11 at Lixey's, we had a special program conducted by Daniel Bergh, director of music of the Tawas Area Papoose Choir.

Mr. Bergh had taken the time and effort to transport the choir from the schools to Lixey's for a presentation of difficult, enthusiastic songs. I was absolutely thrilled at the patience of Mr. Bergh and the enthusiasm of his choir.

With leadership of the type demonstrated by Mr. Bergh, it is no wonder that these children from grades one through four are enthusiastic and happy because they are accomplishing something through proper motivation and basic teaching techniques.

My hat is off to Mr. Bergh and others like him.

Very truly yours,
Davison & Son Builders, Inc.
Edward S. Davison Jr.
President

To The Editor:

This is in regards to the school bus incident involving Betty Steinhurst, which I read in last week's paper.

I have known Betty for most of my life and I can honestly say I have never known her to be of a violent nature or to deliberately lie about anything.

I feel there has been a very grave mistake made and should be checked out very thoroughly before relieving her of her job.

Braves Split Four Games at Flint

Tawas Braves played two baseball double headers with Flint Kearsley over the week-end to open the spring season. The Flint team took the first game of the first double header on Friday, 4-2. Flint was also leading in the second game, 3-0, when the game was called because of cold weather.

Keith LaHaye was losing pitcher in the first game and Jim Dubovsky was pitching in the second game when it was called.

Bill King starred in the hitting department for Tawas with a home run and a triple. Jerry Gracik had two singles in the first game on Friday.

The warmer weather and more outside practice proved to be a good advantage for Flint as Kearsley's batters were a little sharper at the plate in the first two games.

Tawas bats finally warmed up Sunday and the Braves beat Flint twice with scores of 3-1 and 9-5.

Dave Revord and Grant Mousseau turned in the wins in the doubleheader Sunday. LaHaye and Dubovsky helped in relief.

Lindsey Bielby drove in two runs to give Tawas a two-run lead in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader. Gracik again let his bat speak with a grand slam homer in the second game.

Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported in its April 12 edition that two appraisers hired by the Isoco County Equalization Department had been arrested on a trespassing complaint lodged by a Tawas Township property owner.

Undersheriff Basil Odell told the Herald following publication of the news story that no arrest had been made and that an officer of the sheriff's department had only investigated the report.

The two men had driven a four-wheel drive vehicle onto a private field for the purpose of measuring the foundation of a house that had been removed from the property. The vehicle became stuck in the soft ground and was removed by a tractor owned by a nearby resident, leaving ruts in the field.

Ruts left in the field were later repaired by the appraisers.

The Herald regrets embarrassment to any parties involved concerning its incorrect report that an arrest had been made.

Tax Exemption Approved by TC

A resolution approving Tawas Industries, Incorporated, for an industrial tax exemption for new construction and equipment was approved Monday night by the Tawas City Council.

This exemption, similar to those granted to other industries by the council last month, is permitted under state law. Final approval is subject to approval of the state tax commission.

The exemption is for a 50 by 150-foot addition to the firm's plant at 905 East Cedar Street, which also includes equipment for the production of oil filters.

Because of the fact that the application had not been filed within one year of its commencement on June 24, 1976, the exemption will be for an 11-year period instead of 12 years.

The law is designed to encourage rehabilitation and new construction by local industry, benefiting the local community by creation of new employment and retention of present employment.

The application said that Tawas Industries, Incorporated, would provide six new jobs at the end of one year and 12 new jobs at the end of two years.

In other business, Prin. Herman Rollin of the Tawas City Elementary Unit was assured that the council would give consideration to his request to blacktop Eighth Avenue which extends 400 feet south from Second Street east of the school building.

Rollin said he had received excellent cooperation from the city in grading the street, but felt that blacktop would greatly improve the situation in the spring. He said that a hard surfaced street would improve safety for children.

City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz said that the school had cooperated with the city in permitting use of the gymnasium as a polling place. He said that water construction had been completed on the street and felt that blacktopping should be considered in the 1978-79 budget.

The city would provide a 22-foot-wide strip of blacktop, costing approximately $1,600 to $1,800, plus the cost of preliminary preparation. An informal poll of the council indicated the project would be approved.

Rollin said he would report the action to Tawas Area Board of Education in order that consideration could be given to blacktopping or other improvement to the school's parking area.

A report from the water board indicated that the new water tank at the industrial park would be disinfected and painted in the near future, hopefully before the end of May. The contractor is still looking for one leak in the new water line, but other portions have been tested and disinfected and await use in the expanded system.

On recommendation of the park board, the council accepted the low bid of Carl Steinhurst for construction of two new concrete block dugouts at the baseball field. His bid of $1,021.35 was low among three proposals received.

The park board also approved a request from George VanEvery to again operate his cotton candy and soft drink concession stand at the city park during the coming summer. The city receives 10 percent of gross receipts.

St. James Electric is donating lights for two poles at the tennis court on First Avenue and the park board accepted a contribution of $150 from Tawas Tennis Association for consideration of installing two additional poles and lights at the tennis court. The additional cost is included in the park board's budget, which is to be considered by the council.

A proposal for a 1978 forestry program was presented by Thomas Jacques, the city's forestry consultant. The total budget of $88,260.40 has been approved under the CETA program. The city's share would amount to $7,100. No action was taken by the council and Jacques is to prepare a contract for renewal of his service as forestry consultant. The proposed program and contract are to be discussed at a future meeting.

An offer to sell the Graystone building at 813-815 Lake Street to the city was taken under advisement by the council. The property was offered for a cash purchase price of $58,500.

ET Council

Police Chief Donald Docking was authorized to advertise for bids on the purchase of a new police car.

The city budget was revised to include the expense of the city forestry program and for the city to pay a share of the taxes on the former McKay property. The dwelling is owned by the county and is being used for a museum and the city is negotiating purchase of lake frontage using Bureau of Outdoor Recreation funds.

First reading was held on a new weed ordinance. Portions of the Tawas City weed ordinance were used in developing a new ordinance for East Tawas. A second reading is to be held at the next meeting.

It was reported that City Atty. Michael Freil is compiling data and investigating the legal situation relative to closing of a drain on property owned by Elouise Dimmick.

Because of the fact that road weight restrictions are still in force, no date has been set as yet for the annual spring cleanup. The date is to be announced later.

May 1 Set for TC Cleanup Day

Annual cleanup day in Tawas City has been set for Tuesday, May 2. This date was established Monday night by the city council. The council and department of public works urges cooperation in this program by home owners and other property owners.

Britt Farm First Stop on MSU's April 22 Beef Management Tour

Beef producers wishing to improve their operations may find some answers by participating in a Northeastern Michigan beef tour Saturday, April 22.

University Cooperative Extension Service, the tour will probe the management techniques of cow-calf operations at Curran and Turner.

ducers we will visit have consistently weighed more, graded and sold higher than most other calves consigned to cooperative feeder cattle sales in Northern Michigan," says Dr. Harlan Ritchie, MSU extension beef specialist. "Though these operations are small, they rank among the best managed in the state."

The first stop is 10:00 a. m. at the Warren and Howard Britt farm, Turner, located on the Iosco-Arenac line. Visitors should go two miles north of Twining to Maple Ridge Road, travel east two miles to Britt Road, then north two miles.

Started in 1938, the operation currently consists of 940 acres, 300 used for rotational crops. The Britt's will calve 140 cows this year, 100 in spring and 40 in early fall. At the West Branch feeder sale last fall, their spring-born steer calves averaged 572 pounds and spring heifer calves averaged 552 pounds. Until recently, they used mainly Hereford bulls but now use three larger exotic bulls along with the Herefords. They are debating whether or not to retain any of the exotic-sired heifer calves as replacements.

Three farms will be visited in the Curran area, starting at 1:00 p. m. These include the Jack Small, Lee LaForge and Kenneth Trader operations, all in Oscoda County. The Small farm, located about one mile south and one-half mile east of Curran on Small Road, is the first stop. The other farms are nearby.

A unique aspect of the three is the close relationship these producers have with each other, to the point they share farm machinery and often assist each other at calving time.

Other common factors include: Selling or feeding out the entire calf crop. Replacement heifers are purchased, not raised. They buy Hereford-Holstein crossed or Angus-Holstein crossed heifers from dairymen.

Their calf crops average 500 pounds, grade choice and prime and top the West Branch sale each fall. Repeat buyers come back every year to bid on their calves.

They place heavy emphasis on raising high yielding, high quality alfalfa hay as the basic feed for their cow herds. They maintain good stands with a regular top-dressing program.

"We will be taking a close look at the total enterprise and every aspect of the individual operations," says Ritchie. "We feel that our participants should be able to easily duplicate the management techniques each of these producers use."

A noon lunch will be at the Colonial Inn Restaurant at Hale.

Persons wishing details should telephone Kenneth Kernstock, Iosco County agent, 362-3449.

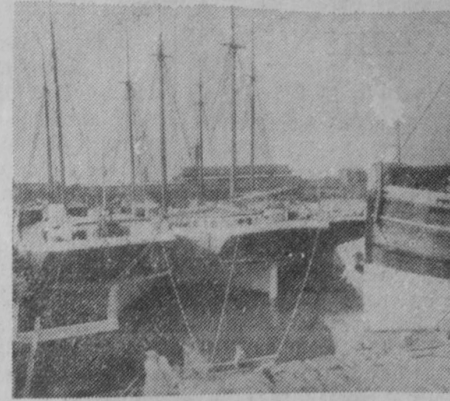

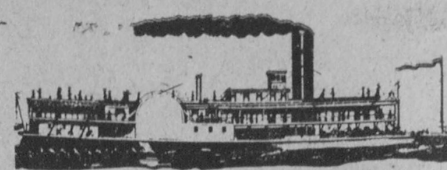

THE COW-CALF operation of Howard (left) and Warren Britt near Twining is one of four farms to be visited during the Michigan State University Northeastern Michigan Beef Tour April 22. Their 140-head operation is considered one of the more innovative and efficient in the region. The farm will be visited at 10:00 a. m.

HOSTS Lee LaForge, Jack Small and Kenneth Trader discuss what they will be showing participants at Michigan State University's Northeastern Michigan Beef Tour April 22. The three operate cow-calf operations near Curran and will detail their management practices to visitors expected from throughout the state. The afternoon segment of the tour begins with the Small farm at 1 o'clock.

THE 30-YEAR REIGN OF LAKE HURON SHORE

STEAMBOATS

PASSENGER STEAMBOATS had to vie with cargo vessels of all types for dockage when ships ruled the transportation picture in this region's early history. The picture above was snapped at the commercial dock at East Tawas and shows lumber hookers awaiting dock wallopers to begin loading activities. A salt block and mills are in the background.

In 1880, the colorful era of the fast wooden steamships carrying mail, passengers and light freight along the Lake Huron shore between Saginaw and Alpena had reached its zenith, but owners of the Lake Shore Steamboat Company decided they would make one more attempt to accommodate the region "so the people need not feel the want of a railroad."

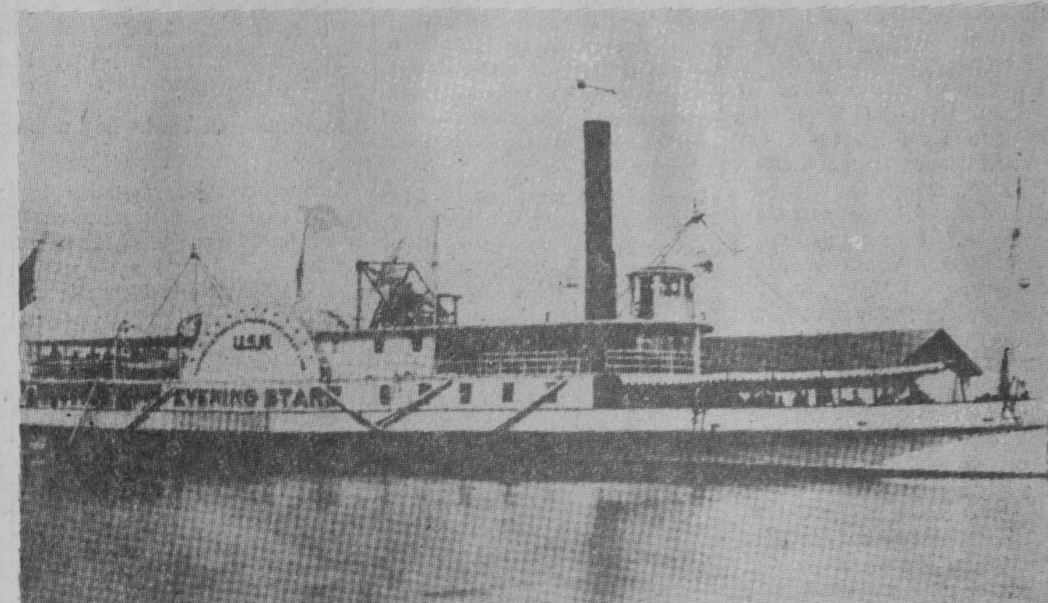

That was a tall order for the Lake Shore Line headed by Capt. Darius Cole of Bay City, one of the pioneer steamboatmen of the Great Lakes. Businessmen from the Tawas to Alpena had been agitating unsuccessfully since 1873 for a shore line railroad and the needs of shore people were real: Steamboats could fill transportation requirements satisfactorily for four or five months during the year, but the region was isolated from the rest of the world for the remaining eight months.

Communication with the Saginaws, Bay City and Detroit was available daily by stage coach when navigation was closed and hourly by telegraph, but as Editor C. R. Jackson of the Iosco County Gazette was to write, "A mail every second and third day is not entirely satisfactory to our people, nor to the rest of the shore."

This same opinion had been expressed in another way on March 27, 1873, when Editor Charles S. Hilburn of the Gazette declared in print: "We haven't a word to say about the prospects for the opening of navigation. We are disgusted and shall let navigation open whenever it gets ready to do so!" Nearly two months later, on May 15, 1873, Hilburn wrote: "Yesterday morning, for the first time since November, no ice was visible on Lake Huron from this place. For almost seven months, the ice has been here and it is refreshing to the eye to see in its place a broad expanse of blue water, dotted here and there with various craft. Good bye, old winter!"

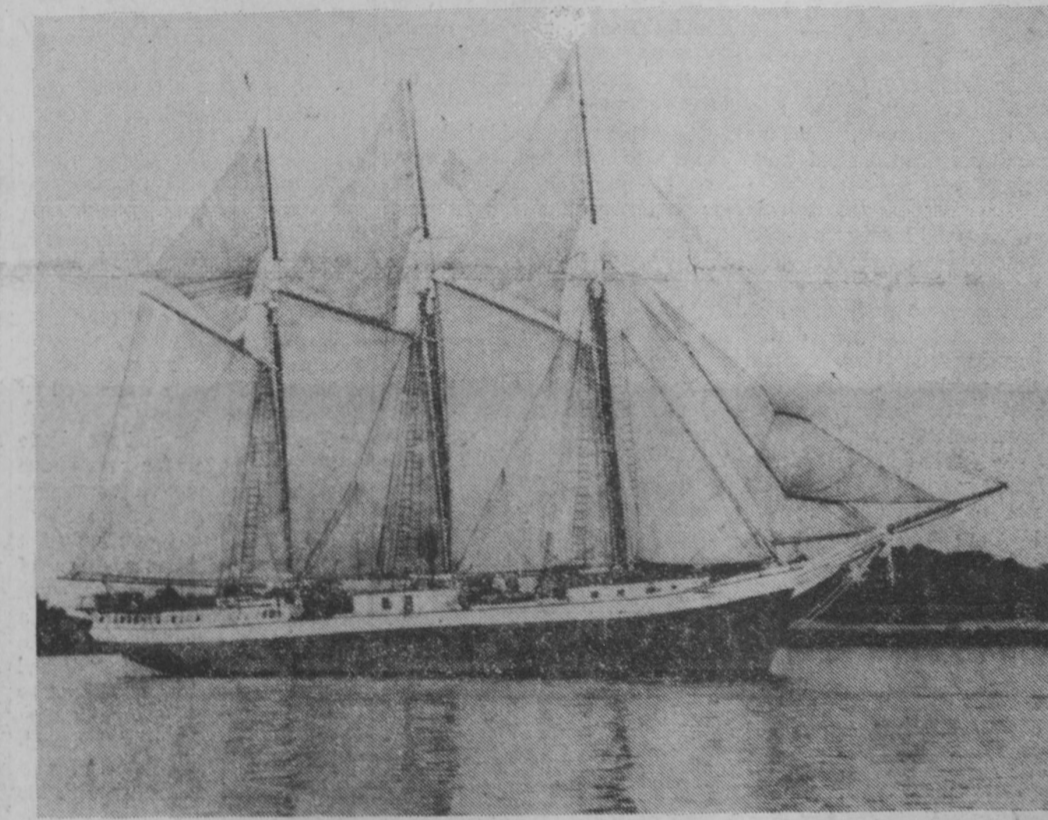

It is difficult for anyone writing a century later to imagine conditions of transportation here in the 1870s. Tiny communities along the Lake Huron shore, which had struggled to exist for 20 years or more, suddenly were enjoying a business boom of huge proportions as the lumbering industry hit its full stride. New sawmills were being constructed from the Tawas to Alpena, along with dwellings and business buildings in the shore line communities.

The only efficient method by which heavy equipment, supplies and people could be brought into this region was by lake transportation. During the navigation season, Tawas Bay was a beehive of activity as numerous docks were lined with tall-masted schooners or propeller driven steam barges and scores of dock wallopers were kept busy loading lumber freshly cut from sawmills; close by were steamships, large and small, unloading large quantities of goods and equipment to keep the mills and towns operating.

THE SIDE-WHEEL EVENING STAR was one of several fast passenger ships operated by the Lake Huron Steamboat Company of Bay City which made regular stops at Tawas Bay ports prior to opening of railroad service to this region. The Evening Star was built at the Saginaw shipyard of Stephen R. Kirby in 1866. It was 168 feet long. The three-masted schooner pictured below was one of numerous sailing ships which carried freight on the Lake Huron waterway. (Top picture from Ship Building on the Saginaw by Catherine C. Baker.)

Adding to the hustle and bustle along the quays and the deeper water of the bay were steam tugs towing rafts of logs from the mighty AuSable and the AuGres Rivers, bound for the hungry jaws of sawmills dotting the bay shore, whose steel blades were to convert the white pine logs into lumber; or, still larger rafts of logs were assembled for towing to other sawmill towns.

The importance of shipping to Tawas Bay, the best natural harbor on the chain of lakes from Buffalo, New York, to Chicago, Illinois, is reflected by this notation of ships loaded with lumber during the month of April 1882, taken from the log book of Hugh McDonald, collector at the East Tawas Customs House:

Schooner H. F. Church, Cleveland, Ohio, 350,000; Schooner O. J. Hale, Cleveland, 350,000; Schooner Mars, Tonawanda, New York, 500,000; Schooner Alpena, Cleveland, 500,000; Propeller Burlington, Cleveland, 225,000; Schooner A. K. Keating, Toledo, Ohio, 400,000; Schooner St. Lawrence, Detroit, 300,000; Schooner Emma Moyes, Tonawanda, 600,000; Barge Nellie, Mt. Clemens, 180,000; Barge Pringle, Detroit, 169,000; Barge Nelson, Tonawanda, 600,000; Barge Plymouth Rock, Detroit, 240,000; Steamer Barge City of Mt. Clemens, 110,000; Scow Sunnyside, Detroit, 1,500 cedar posts; Barge Marine City, Tonawanda, 400,000; Steamer Barge S. H. Johnson, New Buffalo, 240,000; Barge S. Gardner, Toledo, 350,000; Schooner Emma Mayes, Tonawanda, 600,000; Schooner Stampede, Cheboygan, 552 barrels plaster; Steam Barge Ohio, 6,000 barrels salt.

Vying for dockage space at least three days a week were smaller and neater wooden steamships owned by the Saginaw River and Lake Shore Steamboat Company. Down its gangways trod the well dressed businessmen returning from buying trips, silk-hatted politicians seeking support in the next election, the circuit judge making his infrequent trips to settle litigation in the shore towns, young men looking for jobs in the pineries and mills, newly-landed immigrants seeking suitable farmland, expert rivermen from the Saginaws who would hoist their peavys on their shoulders and walk to the annual log drive on the AuGres—in fact, nearly everyone who did not enter the region by shank's mare during the summer months came by way

LAKE HURON PORTS were jammed with ships during the days when steamers brought all the necessities of life to the region north of Bay City. One passenger steamship company launched a beautiful new wooden vessel, the Saginaw Valley, in 1881 "so the people need not feel the want of a railroad." This featurette considers the 30-year history of that line as Huron Shore residents wanted and finally gained a railroad.

"How can you tell if the person at your door is really a Michigan Bell Employee?"

As you may have noticed, our employees do not wear uniforms. They dress in the way they think is most appropriate to get their jobs done. While this permits them to look like the individuals they are, it really doesn't help you identify them as Bell employees. But, there is a way. Every Michigan Bell employee is required to carry a Michigan Bell identification card giving his or her name, photograph, and signature. For your protection, be sure to see this card before you admit them into your home. They'll be happy to show it to you.

Steamships

of the Shore Line of steamboats. Standing on the hurricane deck of the Steamboat Huron, overseeing the unloading of passengers and freight at Whittemore's dock in 1873, was Capt. Darius Cole, who had made the business of steamboating a profession since 1834. The captain made his first appearance on the Saginaw River in 1850 with the Steamer Wolcott, establishing a line between Saginaw City and Bay City, making one trip per day. Previous to that event, the only communication between the Saginaws and Bay City was by means of canoe.

Other steamships had preceded Captain Cole and his Wolcott, including the Columbia, a side-wheel steamer, which came to the region in 1849; another side-wheel boat, the Charter, was put on the same line with the Columbia in 1850; the Steamer Champion took the place of both ships in 1857.

In 1852, the Huron was considered a crack ship. She ran on the route from the Saginaw River to Detroit until 1854, when it was sold and went to Lake Michigan, the Sam Ward coming on the Detroit and Saginaw route. In 1855, the Sam Ward was taken off and Captain Cole bought the old Columbia and established a line between Detroit, Saginaw and Alpena, making one trip per week with stops at intermediate points along the shore, including Tawas Bay. The Columbia was on this route until 1857.

Other ships owned and operated by Cole over the years included the Forest Queen and the Northerner, the latter being sunk in a collision off Port Huron in 1857. Cole entirely rebuilt the Huron in 1866 and it became the pioneer boat of the Saginaw and Alpena line, proving capable of doing all the business of the shore at that time.

The Huron was the only ship forming the Saginaw to Alpena line for two years and the Metropolis was added in 1868. In 1869, the Metropolis gave way to the City of Sandusky and the propeller Lake Breeze. The Saginaw River and Lake Shore Navigation Company was dissolved in 1872, Captain Cole taking full ownership of the Saginaw and Alpena route, with the Steamers John Sherman and Lake Breeze.

The John Sherman was then in Lake Michigan, having been a government boat, and the Lake Breeze was found to be too small for the route, the trade of which had increased so rapidly during the preceding four years. Captain Cole then purchased the George L. Dunlap, a first class boat, with ample accommodations, well officered and equipped. In addition, Cole refitted the Sherman into the fastest boat of its size on the lakes.

In 1873, the Iosco County Gazette reported that the John Sherman was ready to take its place on the Lake Shore Line under command of Capt. John Stewart. "The Sherman is 10 feet longer than the City of Sandusky and has five feet more beam. She has a Harrison and Fletcher engine and, with such a vessel, Captain Stewart will achieve wonders at fast sailing between Bay City and Alpena, touching at intermediate points.

"It is reported that the Lake Breeze, which was to have been the consort of the Sherman, has been sold and that the Dunlap, another fast sailing side-wheel steamer, has been purchased to complete the line with Capt. William Brown, commanding. Daily trips are to be made by these vessels. The owners of this line are Capt. Darius Cole, Eugene McFall and Ira F. Holt."

On June 5, 1873, the Gazette reported that the Steamer George E. Dunlap "made her first appearance here on Saturday evening and is now running regularly. She is larger than the City of Sandusky, the cabins are capacious and elegantly fitted up and she is, altogether, the finest boat that has ever run along the shore route. This is as it should be. The increasing traffic and travel up this shore demand facilities superior to those given us heretofore."

Despite a Gazette item on June 26, 1873, which stated that the Steamer Dunlap "ran away from the Propeller Wenona a few days ago and didn't have to strain very hard to do it," the following editorial opinion probably set the tone for feelings of businessmen along the shore: "When a new line of steamers gets started on the Lake Shore Route, none of the boats will be called the Mono Poly. That's a name the people have become weary of."

Competition was soon provided by other steamers, including the W. R. Clinton, operated by the Hurd Line of Detroit. In 1878, the Cleveland and Saginaw Transportation Company advertised a schedule which saw two of its steamships, the Bertschy, under command of Capt. G. W. McGregor, and the Benton, under command of Capt. William Thorne, making regular once-a-week stops in Tawas Bay on the route between this port and Cleveland.

Other boats were added by the Shore Line, including the Morning Star, Music and the Dove, the latter establishing the record time of 10 hours, 58 minutes, on its run from Bay City to Alpena in 1878. Despite improved passenger service, residents and businessmen of the shore towns were never happy with the inconvenient schedules of steamship companies and longed for a railroad connection with the outside world. Meetings were held at Alpena, AuSable and the Tawas throughout the 1870s to encourage construction of a railroad to connect with Bay City, but all attempts were unsuccessful.

THE TWO-MASTED lumber hooker, Boscobel, built at a Saginaw River shipyard, was one of many ships which transported finished lumber from mills on Tawas Bay to markets at Detroit and Toledo, Ohio. The Boscobel, shown in the foreground, is flanked here by a three-masted schooner and other similar sailing ships.

As an alternative, agitation for better boats was soon commenced by editors all along the shore starting in 1880.

"From Saginaw to Alpena is undoubtedly one of the best paying routes on the lakes for a couple of strictly first class boats. The trade during the past summer has been enormous and every boat has been loaded to its full capacity. Several Detroit boats touch at different points on the line and many steam barges and other craft bring supplies to us, but the principal part of the trade is, and at least should be, carried by the Shore Line of mail boats," stated the Gazette.

The campaign to improve water transportation between Bay City and Alpena was taken up by The Bay City Tribune. On November 25, 1880, that newspaper editorialized: "The route between Alpena and Bay City demands good substantial boats—steamers that will stand ordinary storms and it is high time that the most thorough investigation is made of the condition of the craft that ply between this city and points on the Huron shore. The past season has brought many lessons and the safety of hundreds of lives and thousands of dollars worth of property cannot longer be jeopardized through the willful negligence of the proper officials, or what is worse, a careless inspection or an endorsement which is not strictly warranted by the facts."

"The Metropolis and the Dove have been in use some time and whether there be any just cause for it or not, it is well known that both shippers and passengers have felt but little confidence in either of them. It is now apparent that some steps must be taken to provide a line of boats that will meet the requirements of the shore trade and one in which the people will not be in constant fear of a calamity, similar to that which overtook the ill-fated Alpena. The necessity for a shore railroad comes up with the most striking force at this time and the freight blockage (caused by the winter) which is now experienced is one of the strongest arguments in its favor."

A close call for the Dunlap brought immediate action by Captain Cole and his associates owning the Shore Line. In November 1880, the Dunlap left Bay City with 16 passengers and loaded to full capacity with freight. When about 18 miles out in the bay, the steamer sprang a leak on its starboard side, the planking having been cut away by ice, making a hole three to four feet in length.

"All hands turned in working at the pumps, but the water kept gaining on them so that the only thing left to do was to throw overboard a large amount of heavy freight. This lightened the boat so that she stopped leaking. She got back to Bay City with the rest of her load and frightened lot of passengers," reported the Gazette. About $5,000 worth of freight was tossed overboard.

Speaking of the accident, the Saginaw Courier said the boat never should have attempted, in the first place, "to cut her way through the ice and, in the second place, none of the shore steamers are in a condition to stand such weather as prevailed for some weeks past."

The Saginaw newspaper said that the trade between the Saginaw River and shore points "ought to require two iron propellers capable of standing any weather that is likely to arise and plough their way through at any time. The citizens of East Saginaw are largely interested in the shore trade and inducement should be held out to some capitalists to construct two such boats as would come to Saginaw and meet the requirements of the increasing traffic."

On December 20, 1880, the Iosco County Gazette reported that "Captain Cole has been East and purchased a strictly first class propeller, which will be put upon the Shore Route upon the opening of navigation." In the meantime, a railroad meeting was held January 5, 1881, at Oscoda to "discuss the present commercial necessities of the shore and devising ways and means for securing a railroad."

In April 1881, the Gazette reported that the iron-hulled steamer, Arundel, purchased by Cole and Holt in the East, had made its first stop in Tawas Bay. "The new boat is no doubt the staunchest and most convenient ever on this line, as well as being the swiftest," commented the local newspaper.

The Bay City Press had the following to say about the ship prior to its maiden voyage: "The Arundel is now being guided in her cabin and having the finishing touches put on. She will look elegant and as clean as a country snow drift when completed. Her staterooms are dainty affairs, furnished with wicker hair mattresses on top of them, fancy creton curtains and everything to make an inviting little bed chamber." A fanciful carving of Lady Arundel graced the bow.

In addition, a new propeller, Saginaw Valley, was built and launched in April 1881 at Wheeler's Shipyard on the Saginaw River. According to Bay City Tribune's reporter, about 1,000 spectators gathered at the shipyard and at various points on the river to "see the trim and tidy craft glide off the ways into the water."

The Saginaw Valley was owned by a stock company known as the Saginaw Transportation Company and was intended for the Cleveland and Bay City trade, along with a route along the Lake Huron shore.

This wooden steamer was 226 feet long and had a carrying capacity computed at 1,112 tons. "She is timbered as heavily as boats double her tonnage, is diagonally iron stripped with iron shaps; her planking, ceiling, keelsons, frames and deck frames are unusually heavy. Her cabins will compare favorably with the best passenger craft on the lakes, finished in black walnut and ash. Everything will be arranged in the best possible manner, making her the most elegant and comfortable passenger craft that ever entered the Saginaw River."

In its editorial comment, the Gazette said "the recent improvement to the Lake Shore Steamboat Company is due to a desire to accommodate the people to the fullest extent of their power, so that they need not so much feel the want of a railroad. This the steambotmen can do during the season of navigation, but for five or six months in the year, their efforts are of little avail."

On April 7, 1881, the editor commented that "the many along the shore who are going out on the first boat had better change their minds and board the first train on the Detroit, Bay City and Alpena Railroad—that is if you wish to get there sooner."

Despite the editor's enthusiasm over the latest railroad promotion, adequate capital could not be raised to construct a railroad and it was not until the spring of 1882 that the picture changed. That year, George P. Smith of Detroit assumed control of the Tawas and Bay County Railroad, a narrow gauge line originally constructed in 1878 to serve lumbering interests between the Tawas and the Au-Gres River east of Whittemore.

Smith made several extensions to the railroad and then interested Gen. R. A. Alger in combining his lumbering railroad in Alcona County to form a new road to be called the Detroit, Bay City and Alpena Railroad. Its southern terminus was at Alger on the Michigan Central Railroad and, although some inconvenience was caused when both passengers and freight had to be transferred due to the differences in width between the rails, a real railroad avenue was finally opened to serve the region.

The days of the passenger service provided by steamships along the Lake Huron shore were now numbered and finally ended in the fall of 1883 when the new railroad went into operation.

Mail service upon the steamboats between Alpena and Bay City was discontinued in consequence of the establishment of a railroad post office service upon the DBC&A from AuSable to Alger junction, reported The Tawas Herald on May 8, 1884. "Capt. D. Cole of the Alpena and Bay City Steamboat Line says he has no instruction from the department to discontinue the carrying of mail. The shore boats take mail from Bay City to all points north of AuSable and, returning, gather it from all places where the mail is to be sent out."

The beautiful new Saginaw Valley was transferred to the Chicago, Alpena and Bay City route and freight rates were dropped to $1.50 per ton between the Saginaw River and Tawas City. At one time, the rate had been as high as $11 a ton. Steamboats continued to be the major carrier of heavy freight between the Tawas and the down-state area until the 1890s and the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Company provided steamboat excursions to this region for years to come; the Arundel, which had been touted in 1881 as one of the most elegant ships on the lakes, was converted by Captain Cole into an excursion boat.

The long sought dream for regular daily passenger service was finally provided by the railroad and not by steamboats and, for many years, Tawas was a railroad center, not a shipping center. With its docks fallen into decay after 1900, it was not until 1929 that lake carriers returned to this bay. That year, a new tramline was completed at Alabaster to load ships with gypsum rock.

Along AuSable-Manistee Rivers

Consumers to Sell Leased Land

William L. Reid, manager of land and right-of-way for Consumers Power Company, announced the company's plan for selling AuSable and Manistee riverlands leased by private individuals.

Reid said well over 7,000 acres are under lease to some 400 private leaseholders who will be affected by today's announcement. The majority of the lessees will be offered four choices: Outright purchase, a 30-year lease, the right to continue their existing lease or terminating the lease and vacating the property. Lease sites not purchased by the lessees will be offered for sale to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources or the United States Forest Service.

A letter explaining the options in detail has been sent to the appropriate lessees, Reid stated. He estimates it could take up to three years to complete the disposition of all the leaseholds. No other lands are being considered for sale to private individuals and the company no longer issues new leases.

Consumers Power Company has offered to sell a major portion of its lands along the two rivers to the DNR and the USFS. Last June, the utility offered to sell the DNR approximately 4,700 acres as the first step of the agency's proposed purchase of some 17,000 acres. The sale will be consummated as soon as necessary state funds are available.

Negotiations for acreage offered to the USFS are being handled by The Nature Conservancy, a non-profit organization which often handles land acquisitions for them. No agreement has been reached between this organization and Consumers Power, although active negotiations are under way.

MSU Lumber Grading Short Course Set

On May 1-4, a short course on fundamentals of softwood lumber grading and measuring will be offered at the Chaparral Ranch near Grayling and is sponsored by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

Designed to be helpful to sawmill owners, operators and sawyers, the short course will also be useful to local building inspectors and those who need to use softwood lumber for grade applications. It should be noted that one would not become a "certified" lumber grader merely by taking this course.

Contact Dr. Henry Huber, forestry department, 210 Natural Resources Building, Michigan State University, East Lansing, 48824, for further details and to register for the course.

Discussion Continues on Old County Garage Disposal

Discussion continued Wednesday between the Isosco County Board of Commissioners and county road commission concerning disposition of the old county garage at East Tawas.

Ronald Tyler, the board of commissioners' legal adviser, stated he had made an extensive search of records and found that property on which the building is located was actually owned by the County of Isosco.

The site was originally owned by the Isosco Agricultural Society, which utilized a large block of land fronting on Tawas Bay for its fairgrounds starting in 1875. A portion of the property was later secured by the Detroit and Mackinac Railway, the fairgrounds being moved to the north.

When no longer used as a fairgrounds in the 1930s, the county deeded a portion of it to the federal government for use by the United States Forest Service. A county garage was constructed on the property during that time and the road commission purchased an adjoining piece of property for its use.

During recent months, the county board of commissioners has given consideration to issuance of a quit claim deed to the road commission, relinquishing any claim the county may have to the property. Since removal of the road commission's operation to its new facility on M-55, the City of East Tawas has expressed interest in the building as a site for its city garage, along with possible use as a bus garage by Tawas Area School and to house the fleet of buses projected for a proposed transportation system operated by the county.

At Wednesday's meeting, James Delahanty, engineer-manager for the road commission, expressed the opinion that the road commission would be derelict in its duty if it did not "get what it could for the garage." He said the building had been appraised at $140,000 to $145,000 two years ago.

Delahanty said the road commission would like to dispose of the property in order to put any money obtained from its sale into the county's road system.

Negotiations on obtaining the property for public use are to continue. It was reported last week by Carlton Merschel, chairman of the county board of commissioners, that the road commission had received an offer from a private source to purchase the property.

In addition to this discussion, the road commission submitted its annual report for 1977. Total receipts and expenditures for the year amounted to $1,513,430. The county has a network of 882.98 miles, including 227.81 miles of primary roads and 655.17 miles of local roads.

Primary road construction during 1977 included $9,432.46 in AuSable Township, $3,859.72 in Baldwin Township, $82,989.75 in Burleigh Township, $307,424.23 in Grant Township, $5,493.18 in Oscoda Township, $77,781.31 in Plainfield Township and $79,392.58 in Sherman Township.

Local road construction included $109 in AuSable Township, $84,911 in Baldwin Township, $9,814 in Burleigh Township, $2,241 in Grant Township, $257 in Oscoda Township, $40,479 in Sherman Township, $49,152 in Tawas Township, $16,451 in Wilber Township and $731 in Reno Township.

The road commission purchased $195,018 worth of new equipment during the year, plus an expenditure of $348,991 at the new county garage. This included $123,999 in site work, $18,992 for office equipment, $1,283 in engineering equipment and $9,696 for shop equipment.

In other business conducted by the county board of commissioners, authorization was given to the sheriff's department to house prisoners of Arenac County at a cost of $20 per day. Due to a recent ruling of the department of corrections, Arenac County can no longer house prisoners at its jail for extended periods and is seeking assistance from adjoining counties until other arrangements can be made.

The commission gave its approval to holding a disaster exercise in this county on April 27.
