

Citizen Referendum Expected

Council Moves on New Complex

The first step toward construction of a new city hall-library complex was taken Monday night by the Tawas City Council...

The 10 sheets of petitions were submitted to the council by Lyle Healey. Both Mayor Herbert Cholger and Coun. Robert N. Rollin reported they had helped to circulate the petitions.

Rollin said he found that some of the people whom he contacted in circulating the petition were in favor of hearing more about the proposal...

Coun. Jerry Cotter expressed the opinion that had the committee recommended a location the mayor had desired, no petitions would have been circulated.

Cotter, who was chairman of the study committee appointed by the mayor, said that the meetings were held with both the planning commission and fire department members concerning location of the complex site then the city

Strong indications were Monday night that petitions would be submitted asking for the referendum, although the general consensus of councilmen was that a special election could possibly be held through council action to speed up the process.

Petitions were presented Monday night signed by 141 persons asking the council to make no contractual commitments until the electors of the City of Tawas City have had the opportunity to vote by right of referendum.

Mayor Cholger questioned the timing of the proposal due to the consolidation movement and questioned the proposed expenditure of $65,000 to purchase property from Audrey Adamek west of the city hall for expansion purposes without a vote of the people.

Coun. Charles Landon questioned why the mayor had appointed a committee last year to make an

Two Iosco Crashes Claim Three Lives

Three women were killed in two crashes on Iosco County highways Sunday afternoon and early Monday morning. Two of the victims were from Mt. Clemens.

A two-car crash at 5:00 p. m. Sunday at the M-65-M-55 intersection in Reno Township claimed the lives of Daone B. Kaufman, 45, West Bloomfield, and Laura M. Rockwood, 41, Mt. Clemens. Three other persons were injured in that crash.

Killed shortly before 1:00 a. m. Monday was Marjorie Ann Johnson, 51, Mt. Clemens. She was riding alone in a car which crashed on River Road, Oscoda Township. Michigan State Police from East Tawas said that the Kaufman vehicle was east bound on M-55 and failed to stop for the M-65 intersection. Her vehicle struck a pickup truck-camper towing a boat operated by Ralph F. Rockwood, 41, Mt. Clemens.

Mrs. Rockwood and the driver of the other vehicle were dead at the scene. Rockwood and his two children, Terrance M., 15, and Nancy A., 12, were injured and taken to Tawas Hospital.

Rockwood told investigating officers that all he could remember about the crash was that his wife yelled for him to "look out." The next thing he could remember was that he was lying on the ground outside his vehicle.

At one time, this intersection was one of the most deadly in the county. Since installation of flashing warning and stop signals on M-55 at both entrances into the M-65 intersection, the accident rate has been lowered.

The second fatal crash occurred west of Old Orchard Park. Investigating sheriff's department officers said the Johnson vehicle was east-bound on River Road, left the highway and traveled on the shoulder of the roadway for 329 feet before spinning out of control on loose gravel.

The car veered across the road and hit several trees. Officers speculated that the driver may have been attempting to avoid a deer standing in the road. There were no witnesses to the crash.

Dr. James Jacques, medical examiner, ordered an autopsy on the victim's body.

Rode Out Bay Storm Aboard Cabin Cruiser

Four young women, who were spending Friday night on a 24-foot cabin cruiser near Tawas Beach Club, rode out a rough storm on Tawas Bay and finally waded to shore when the cruiser grounded in shallow water.

None the worse for their experience were Kathy Walker (owner), Stockbridge; Beverly Keiser, Holly; Kandi Brown, Lake Orion; Rolla Vess, Clarkston.

The severe windstorm commenced around 2:30 a. m. Saturday and the anchor line parted at about 7 o'clock.

The four excursionists lost two anchors, but the cruiser sustained only minor damage.

New Appliance Store Opens

A new store, Reynolds and McCormack Appliance, has opened in the former Fireplace Center at the corner of Lake Street and Mathews Street, Tawas City. The firm is owned by Neal Reynolds and Thomas McCormack, who presently operate a store at St. Helen. The new store sells and services appliances, television sets and stereo equipment and is open six days a week.

Hale Senior Citizen Center Gets Grant

After exactly one year of a community-wide effort—overcoming a disappointing delay—the Hale area was funded last week for completion of its senior citizens center.

Under the Older Americans Act, the 14-county Region 7B agency granted a $65,000 grant, plus a 15 percent contingency fund due to inflation, for completion of the senior citizens center north of the township fire hall. Twenty-five percent matching money is to be provided by the local community.

This building had been purchased a year ago from the county road commission and senior citizens, joined by a newly formed corporation, commenced efforts to gain funds to remodel the former county garage into a senior citizens facility.

The township purchased the building at a cost of $6,000 and the Iosco County Board of Commissioners allocated $15,000 from federal revenue sharing money to help finance the venture. Senior citizens added another $10,000 to the project and contributed many hours of volunteer labor.

Ray Kesler, Plainfield Township supervisor, said Tuesday that the latest grant would finance completion of the kitchen, carpeting, paneling and two rest-rooms, all with barrier free design.

"This should be one of the finest senior citizen facilities in the northern part of the state when it is completed," said Kesler.

In addition to the above, the project was awarded a federal energy grant which is being used to finance installation of aluminum siding and insulation.

This center serves approximately 200 older citizens from Western Iosco County and adjoining areas.

Bublitz Unhappy With Conference

"If anything comes to pass, I will not only be very surprised but delighted to say the least," stated City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz Monday night in his report concerning a two-day conference on Northern Michigan growth held last Thursday and Friday.

"I probably expected more from this type of conference than what was possible under the circumstances, due to the number of persons and communities in attendance," said the city manager.

The meeting, held at Ferris State College, was billed as Michigan's "first major effort to look at all the problems of rapid growth communities." The Tawas was one of 10 areas of rapid growth to be highlighted and officials of the two communities cooperated to prepare a presentation for an allotted 15-minute segment.

"As it turned out, Traverse City's spokesman required 35 minutes to give a presentation and all other communities were asked by the chairmen to shorten programs," said Bublitz.

The conference was conducted by the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission with cooperation of the State of Michigan.

Bublitz told members of the city council that it appeared that most communities of Northern Michigan face about the same type of problems, be it annexation, finances, transportation, schools, housing or recreational facilities.

Tawas' program was presented by Roger Jackson of the chamber of commerce. The sales "pitch" from this area dealt primarily with transportation needs along US-23 and how this need is tied in with the ever growing Tawas area from the standpoint of population, industrial and commercial growth.

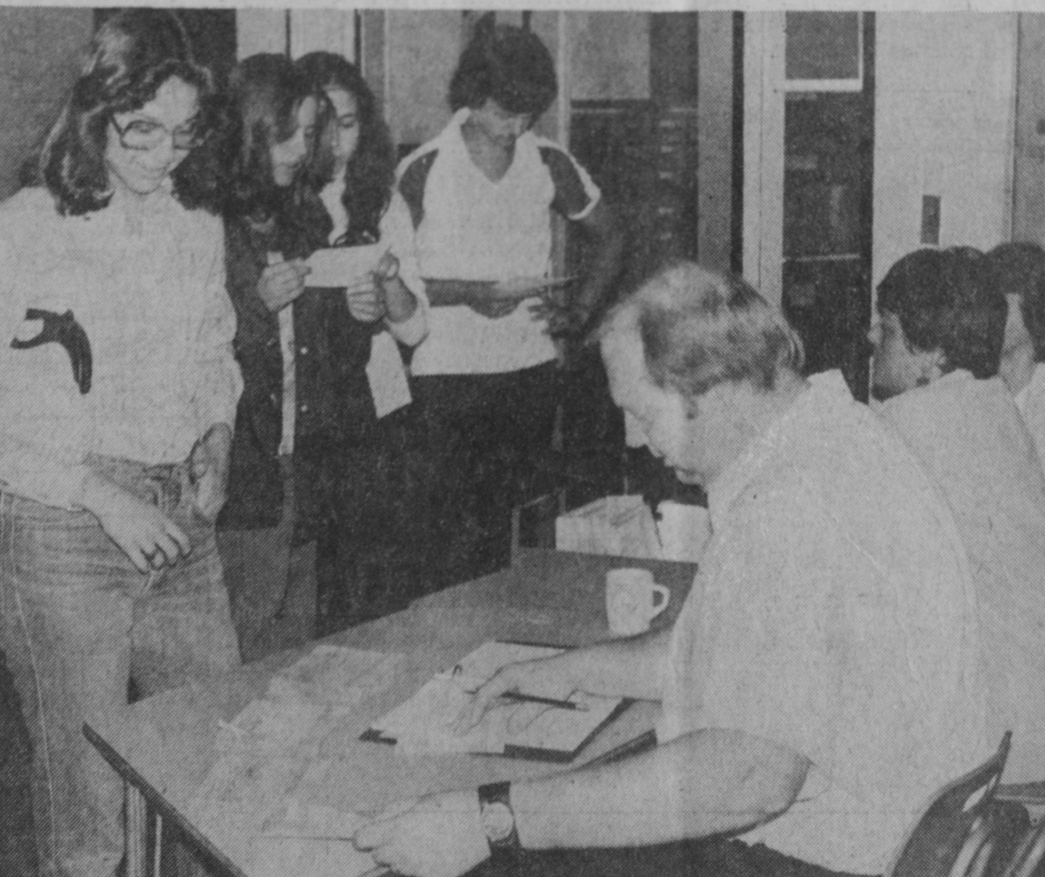

Various items of major importance were pointed out which the communities had accomplished in trying to provide for itself and how it cannot progress further in some fields until better highways are provided for the area. The need for wider and better highways to this area was stressed.

Bublitz felt the presentation was excellent and a copy was presented to the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, along with such vital information as growth indexes, traffic counts, industrial-commercial development and employment figures.

"Our portion of the program ended with the fact that US-23 in the Tawas area carries more traffic per day than I-75 north of West Branch," said Bublitz.

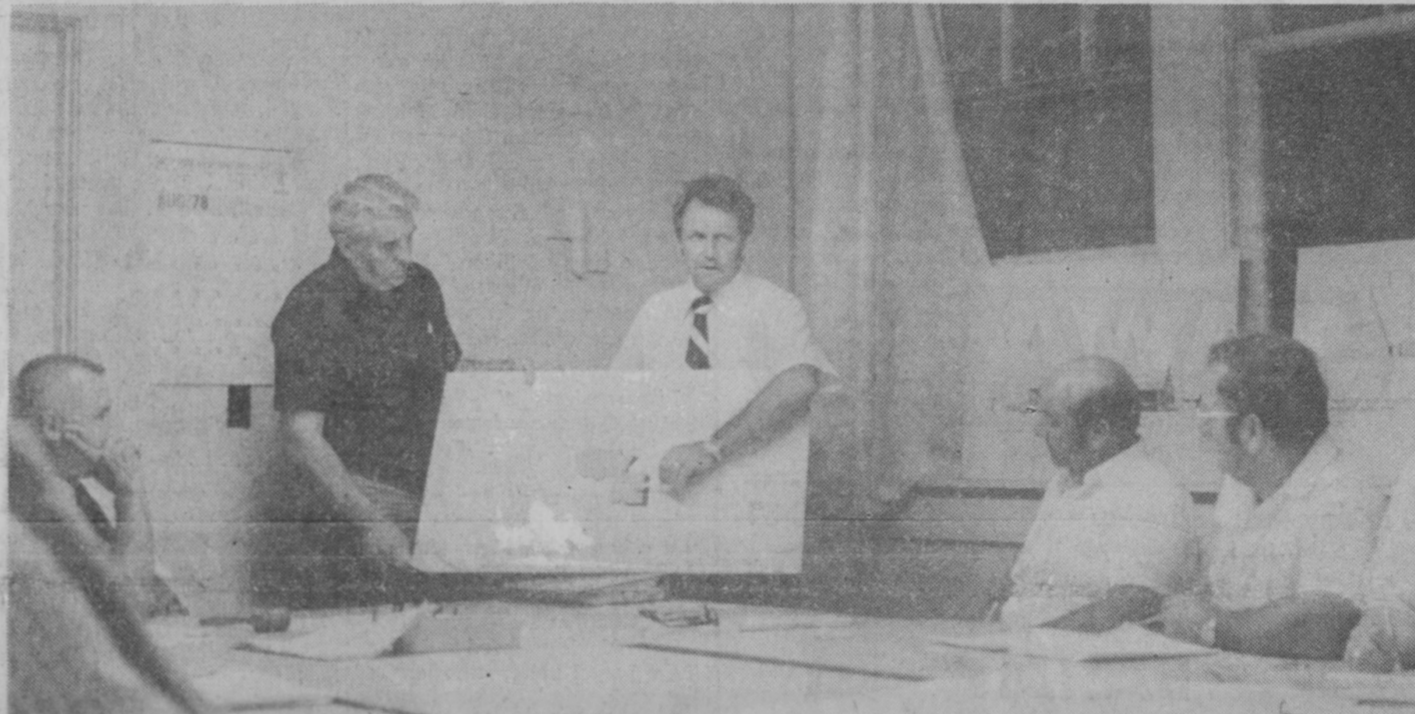

Workshops were held for the various departments of the state government and communities could select ones to be attended. Bublitz said he attended the transportation session with John Woodford, director of the state highways in attendance.

"The meeting was not as productive as I would have liked as there were too many insignificant questions," said Bublitz.

Water Comes From Bay in First Place, but

Filtration Plant Backwash Must Now Go Into Sanitary Sewer, Not Tawas Bay

Action Monday night by the East Tawas Council was directed at meeting just one more set of standards for water quality established by the Environmental Protection Agency.

On the basis that the city can no longer return backwash from its water filtration plant to Tawas

Bay and Lake Huron, City Supt. William Smith was directed to evaluate probable long range costs of alternate disposal systems.

At the present time, the water filtration plant utilizes raw water from the bay to backflush its filtration tanks, but some system must now be devised to return the backwash to a settling basin or send it into the city sanitary sewer system.

Figures presented at Monday night's meeting from Spicer Engineering Company indicated an estimated cost of $50,000 for rerouting this backwash water into the sanitary sewer system.

In a matter related to the filtration plant, city officials met Tuesday morning with representatives of the Army Corps of Engineers to discuss water quality at the water plant's intake.

Richard Baker and Steven Brookmeier requested information relative to a five-year record of daily sewer flow from the city's disposal plant and water flow bacteria counts. The state health department is to be requested to monitor water at the intake pipe.

This information is being presented to the federal government to back up the city's claim that water quality at the plant has been adversely affected through installation of the new Michigan Waterways Commission Dock.

Prior to construction, the state health department was concerned that water quality could be impaired, but engineers for the dock believed that the structure might cause an opposite effect on water entering the bay from the Tawas River, where two disposal plants are located.

take had increased significantly this summer, but not to the extent that the filtration plant could not handle it. He said that treatment this summer has required an additional expenditure of materials and energy.

Soper said the principal remedy to the problem would be to extend the water intake 200 feet beyond the end of the new dock where the water temperature is cooler and much easier to treat in the filtration plant.

In other business Monday night, the council authorized General Cable Television to deregulate and raise rates at its discretion, but the council indicated that during the 30 days between the announcement and levy, it would evaluate the rates and offer objections.

Iosco County Sheriff George

Westcott asked the council for an interpretation of its communication to the county board of commissioners regarding local law enforcement costs.

The sheriff was assured of the council's high regard for his department's services, but stated that it was its feeling that the city and townships in the county depending on the sheriff's department for law enforcement purposes should share the cost of this service. It was felt that the two cities and two townships providing police protection should not be forced to subsidize these services in the rest of the county.

The council approved a new two-year contract with Hager Sanitation and levy, it would evaluate the rates and offer objections. Iosco County Sheriff George

County Building Contracts Let

Bids totaling $409,284 were accepted Monday night by the Iosco County Building Authority and contracts were awarded for additions and alterations to the county building in Tawas City.

Architect John Dye of Oscoda was directed to control the project and construction is to start as soon as financial arrangements for the construction are settled.

MAKO Construction of Lincoln received the architectural trades contract at a cost of $255,684; the mechanical contract went to Bay View Plumbing, Rogers City, at a cost of $118,000; Spark Electric, Auburn, received the electrical contract at a cost of $32,600. Davison and Son Builders of Tawas City had entered a bid of $292,000 for the general contract and indicated a total bid of $392,000 to include mechanical and electrical costs.

The building authority indicated that mechanical and electrical costs were not bid by Davison according to specifications. It was stated the figures submitted were not "firm" and included a notation at the bottom of the proposal that the electrical and mechanical costs were for "bookkeeping purposes only."

Health Tips Offered for Back to School

Schools days are at hand again for millions of American youngsters.

The American Medical Association once again reminds parents that there are health and safety considerations that are important in preparing the small fry for another nine months of studies.

The AMA recommends a thorough health examination for 5 and 6-year-olds entering school for the first time. Your physician will know what to do. His examination will cover all aspects of your child's health, and will include hearing (to make certain he can hear the teacher) and vision (to make sure he can see the blackboard). The doctor also will give any booster immunizations that might be required.

Communities require a health exam for beginning students. Many schools also require certain immunizations. Your doctor will know of the requirements of your neighborhood.

Most doctors feel that four or five thorough health examinations during the school years are sufficient for healthy youngsters. These usually are spaced at the start of the first year, about the fourth grade, about the seventh grade, at the ninth or tenth grade, and upon graduation.

A thorough examination is important, often mandatory, if the child is participating in school athletics. The doctor should be told that junior is going out for football, so that he can look for any health problems that might be heightened by rough contact sports.

In the excitement of the first few days of school the small child may forget all of the safety warnings you've been teaching him. Each parent should make certain the child knows how to cross streets and intersections en route to and from school. He should know that crossing guards are there for his protection and obey them. He should know about proper deportment on the school bus. And he should know the rules of bicycle safety.

Many People Confused On Medicare, Medicaid

Even though Medicare and Medicaid have been operating more than 10 years, many people are confused and think the programs are the same, a social security spokesperson said today.

Although both programs pay for health care, they are different, the representative went on. Medicare, entirely a Federal program, helps pay for hospital care, doctors' services and many other health services for almost everyone 65 and over and for certain disabled people under 65. Medicaid, a Federal-State partnership, pays for health care for certain kinds of needy and low-income people. Some people can have both Medicare and Medicaid.

Medicare is the same in all States, while Medicaid varies from State to State since the States design their own program within Federal guidelines. The only State not having a Medicaid program is Arizona.

Medicaid has two parts—hospital insurance and medical insurance. Hospital insurance helps pay for inpatient hospital care and post-hospital care in a skilled nursing facility or at home from a home health agency. Medical insurance helps pay doctor bills and other services not covered by hospital insurance.

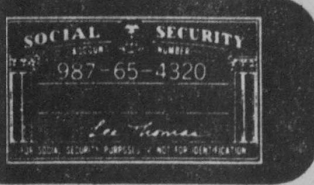

Medicaid pays the full costs of these and other health care services for those eligible. Since Medicare pays only part of health care costs, Medicaid can pay the difference for those eligible for both programs.

Medicare hospital insurance is financed by payroll contributions from employers and employees. Medical insurance is financed with premiums, with those enrolled paying about one-fourth of the cost and the Federal Government paying the remainder.

Medicaid is financed by Federal and State governments. The Federal share ranges from 50 percent for the richest States up to 78 percent for the State with the lowest per-capita income. States pay the remaining costs, often with help from local governments.

Q. My father is severely disabled and thinks he might be eligible for SSI payments. I've heard it takes time for an SSI claim to be processed. Is there any way he can get some financial help while he's waiting for his claim to go through? He has no income of his own.

A. A claimant who is otherwise eligible and is found presumptively disabled (or blind) can get SSI payments for up to 3 months while it is being decided if he or she is disabled (or blind). When your father applies for SSI, the people in the social security office will tell him if he can get these payments.

Q. I'm going to retire later this year. What documents should I take with me when I apply for my social security retirement benefits?

A. You should take your social security card (or a record of your social security number), proof of your age, such as a birth or baptismal certificate made at or shortly after birth; and your W-2 form for the previous year, or, if you're self-employed, a copy of your last Federal income tax return. You also will need your marriage certificate if your spouse is applying for benefits on your record, and your children's birth certificates if you're applying for them.

Q. My wife just learned that she has permanent kidney failure. If she is eligible for Medicare, when would her coverage start?

A. When a person is eligible for Medicare because of permanent kidney failure, the time his or her coverage starts depends on the kind of medical treatment the condition requires. If a person is receiving maintenance dialysis treatments, Medicare protection starts on the first day of the third month after the month the treatments begin. Coverage can start earlier, though, if a person goes into a hospital for a kidney transplant. For more information, contact any social security office.

Q. My doctor is going to send me to a physical therapist for treatment of an injury. Will my Medicare medical insurance pay for this?

A. Medicare medical insurance can help pay for medically necessary services from an independently practicing, Medicare-certified physical therapist in his or her office or in your home if such treatment is prescribed by a doctor. The maximum amount medical insurance can pay for these services is $80 in each calendar year.

Barkman Presides Over Society After Illness

Iosco County Historical Society met last Thursday and welcomed back Pres. Harris Barkman after his recent illness. He conducted the meeting in which several topics of interest and consideration were discussed.

Rosemary Klenow, treasurer, gave a summarized report, explaining its details and answered questions on items listed in the report. She was named chairman of the finance committee. A tentative monthly maintenance supplies budget was established.

Thomas Jacques, director and supervisor for the CETA program employees, gave a report on the program's involvement in the opening and maintenance of the museum, detailing services performed and approximate savings realized by the use of these trainees. He was appointed to the buildings and grounds and planning committee of the society, having declared an interest in seeing the museum maintained adequately and its collections enlarged in the future.

Florence Stock, historian, asks that anyone having newspaper articles or pictures pertaining to the society since 1968 would pass them on to her. Such items may be left at the museum and earmarked for her.

The museum is now asking for county-wide donations of artifacts to be placed on display and it also

Safety Tips For Lawn Vacuums

If you have a lawn vacuum for tidying the green carpet around your house, or if you are contemplating buying one, here are some safety tips from the experts at the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute.

KEEP CHILDREN and pets away when you're vacuuming the lawn.

- 1. Dress for the occasion. Sturdy boots can keep you from falling or slipping.
2. Do you know how to use all the controls and attachments? Make sure to reread the owner's manual before you start the vacuum season.
3. Children and pets should be kept away—playfulness and machinery don't mix.
4. Learn to stop the machine in an emergency—someone's life could depend on it.
5. Never clean the machine or remove obstacles from your path without stopping the engine.
Follow these tips and you'll have the cleanest lawn—and safety record—around.

Iosco Commended, but Still Must Repay CETA

Iosco County Board of Commissioners was commended last week for its administration of federal CETA funds, but it was advised by regional and state CETA officials to repay $4,910 in misappropriated funds.

Return of the funds within 30 days to the regional office, prior to a federal audit, was recommended by Donald Case of the Region 7B office at Harrison, along with Robert Hess and Jan Urban of the State Bureau of Employment Training.

Recommended return of the federal funds resulted from a charge of nepotism leveled at the Iosco Transit Authority operation several months ago. A former employee of the bus system complained to the state that Lea Hicks of Oscoda, then an employee of the Trio Council on Aging, had hired her daughter as a bus driver, which is contrary to CETA regulations.

Mrs. Hicks had administered the bus system on a voluntary basis at no pay for the Iosco Council on Aging. When the nepotism charge was made by the former employee, members of the commission said they had previously investigated the matter with the regional office and were of the opinion that no CETA rule had been violated as the director received no pay for administering the bus operation.

State officials pointed out last week, however, that payment to the director had no bearing on the issue as a CETA employee could not receive special consideration and that anyone in a supervisory capacity hiring a relative actually was considered nepotism.

State and regional officials felt it was an honest mistake on the part of the county. Although stating that Iosco County had "followed the law as we knew it" and checked the matter out first with the regional office, Carlton Merschel, chairman of the county board of commissioners, said that the money would be repaid to CETA.

State and regional officials commended Iosco County for its outstanding "track" record in the CETA program, particularly in training appraisers in the county tax equalization department. The program has been so successful that the county is having difficulty keeping CETA employees to complete the property reappraisal program. A number of CETA workers have gone on to better paying jobs elsewhere, after being trained here.

In other business, the commission gave notice to the Office of Criminal Justice that Iosco intends to consider a resolution to terminate its joint county program with Arenac and Ogemaw on foster family group homes at its September 20 meeting.

The action was recommended by Probate Judge William McCready, who believed the program was not providing adequate services and that Iosco's share of the expense was too high.

The probate judge said this county was eligible to receive a $10,000 grant to establish its own program as an alternative to secured detention for wayward juveniles. He is to develop a proposal for later consideration by the county commission.

The commission authorized transfer of $4,294 from anti-recessional money to the airport fund. John Webb was appointed vice chairman of the commission, succeeding the late Jack Allen.

the complex. He said that selection of the present site was not unanimous, "but it was the consensus last spring that this was the place."

He said that quite a lot of thought had been given to the fact that the proposed complex would anchor the east end of the block between Mathews and Whittemore Streets and would promote commercial development in the rest of the block which would raise property values.

Coun. Donald Hayes expressed the opinion that a referendum could not be held on the matter until a proposal was actually presented and full information was made available to all concerned.

"The matter has been kicked around for a long time, but it is not satisfactory to two members of the council," said Keiser. "The committee and council majority have felt the present site is the proper location for continued growth of the community," said Keiser.

Mayor Cholger said he had called the attorney general's office concerning responsibilities of councilmen, particularly since the charter provides that a councilman cannot vote on any question if he is financially interested in the project. He indicated that construction of the city hall at the present site could enhance the value of holdings by certain officials.

On motion of Keiser, petitions presented by the citizens were unanimously accepted by the council.

Members of the building authority were present to show preliminary plans of that newly formed group and recommendations. Included were Chairman Carl Babcock, Benjamin Brewer and Leonard Hosbach.

Babcock said the building authority had been created April 17, that the mayor had appointed a site plan committee in 1977 and had made its recommendations. By a roll call vote on June 19 of this year, the council identified the present site for the complex.

The committee chairman said the building authority had reviewed findings of the study committee, including construction of a complete new complex along with possible renovation and additions to the present building. The building authority later met with the city manager to discuss project needs.

On July 19, after a meeting with City Atty. Kenneth Myles, the authority learned that Farmers Home Administration had funds to finance the project during the current fiscal year to promote development of the complex.

On August 1, the building authority met with an FmHA representative and learned that fire halls carry a priority for FmHA funding. Scope of the current project indicates that the fire hall would be the predominate area of the complex.

A communication two weeks ago indicated that FmHA had approved a $455,000 loan for construction of the complex over a 40-year period at an interest rate of five percent. Babcock said it was the building authority's opinion that alterations to the present city hall would not meet standards for a fire hall.

He said that estimated cost of the proposed complex with 8,500 to 9,000 square feet of floor space, at $40 per foot, would be approximately $360,000. The total cost would be increased by $65,000 for land acquisition and demolition of the present structure.

He expressed the opinion that, based on population estimates, the facility would provide adequate facilities for the next 40 years.

The city attorney said that a maximum of $500,000 could be borrowed, but it would not mean that the city would have to spend that amount. He pointed out that, due to the allocation from FmHA during the current fiscal year, the bonding transaction would have to be completed by November 29. He also indicated that general obligation funding might be required should action not be taken prior to that time, due to proposed limitation amendments to be considered at the November state general election.

Under the proposal, the building authority would construct the facility and then lease it back to the city until the bonds were repaid. The cost would be approximately $30,000 annually, which would require approximately two mills of taxes.

Cotter was of the opinion that the current city operating budget could be studied for use of general tax money and he pointed out, too, that housing of fire equipment was also a responsibility of the two townships receiving service from the city.

Keiser said that, although he was not completely in accord with the plans as yet, he was satisfied that a complete new complex would better serve the community in the present and in future years. He said that the city's tax base would increase over the years and that it looked like a "healthy proposition," especially since the city was currently renting quarters for the library and fire hall annex.

"If all the voters had the knowledge the building authority has concerning this project, I am sure a majority would approve the proposal," said Brewer. He felt it was imperative to move forward at once.

On motion of Cotter and supported by Keiser, the council majority voted to authorize the building authority to proceed with the project. Voting "yes" were Coun. James Lansky, Hayes, Keiser and Cotter; voting "no" were Mayor Cholger and Rollin. Landon was not present for the vote, having been excused earlier.

Rollin indicated that petitions would be presented asking for a referendum by voters and Keiser said the council may take action to hold an advisory vote, which would speed the process through elimination of the 45-day waiting period to file petitions.

The city attorney is to investigate whether FmHA money can be used to finance the project under general obligation bonds. Usually, a general obligation bond issue is over a 20-year period rather than 40 years for federal financing.

Editor's Opinion—

Needed: Open Minds

This corner is of the opinion that this community is at an important crossroad in its history—both present and future—and careful reasoning must be exercised by all of its citizens and elected officials concerning the proposed city hall, fire hall and library complex.

The proposal has been in the discussion stage for a year or more and a preliminary presentation was made Monday night to the Tawas City Council, followed by action to proceed with the program.

In the best interest of all concerned, the matter should be decided by a referendum of the people—but not before there has been an intelligent discussion by all concerned, to insure that all facts are made available and that the "pros" and "cons" have been seriously considered.

It is easy to reach a conclusion or decision based on facts that have not withstood careful research; too, decisions or conclusions may also be based on rancor or half-truths. Now is not the time for such actions in this community.

Elected officials do have the right and obligation to present constructive ideas for the betterment of a community; so, too, do officials or citizens with an opposing view have the right to make their thoughts known. Only after an intelligent and informative discussion takes place between those officials can the people reach the correct decision.

In other words, this corner is suggesting that all involved have an open mind concerning this and other proposals brought before local government. It will be in the best interest of all concerned.

Conference

tions asked which took too much time; consequently, vital areas of need were never really discussed," said Bublitz.

"There were about three persons in the room who dominated the session and it was very disappointing. I found out that the same thing held true for those of our area who attended other sessions."

The city manager said the significance he had held previously for the following day's meeting of the Upper Great Lakes Commission, attended by governors of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, was just not there.

"Any answers received came from staff members and not from the top people. State department heads were very evasive and non-committal. They were pressing everyone to support the highway transportation package."

"They claimed that, because of inflation and the lack of gas tax returns due to better gas mileage, the state highway department is not keeping up with inflation and that funds for construction are being channeled to maintenance instead," said the city manager.

Reports and inserts presented by the various areas are supposed to be reviewed by the state and used as information for providing services to various areas in need throughout the state.

Besides Bublitz and Jackson, others attending the session were Clyde Soper, city clerk of East Tawas, and Carlton Merschel of the county board of commissioners.

Suit Started in Federal Court Over F-41

A suit has been filed in the United States District Court for Eastern Michigan by an Oscoda couple asking that the county road commission be enjoined from further construction or expansion of F-41 out of Oscoda until the county complies with state and federal laws.

The suit claims that the proposed new highway would be built within nine feet of the plaintiff's property and that their land is worth in excess of $30,000.

John and Carol Landry of 4430 East F-41 ask the federal court to require the county to pay them an amount which it determines the county is liable.

Letter Requests TC Sidewalk Inspection

A letter from Mrs. William McCready read at Monday night's meeting of the Tawas City Council asked the city to investigate repairs to the sidewalk along Whittemore Street and to investigate instances where trucks were crossing the bridge in violation of the three-ton load limit.

Although she was not present at the meeting, her letter was read by Coun. Charles Landon. Mrs. McCready, the city clerk, expressed the opinion that access across the river to US-23 should be maintained by the Whittemore Street bridge.

She said the bridge had deteriorated, which led to council action on the load limit, and suggested that the city cause an investigation into the lack of load limit signs. One sign was recently installed after being damaged in an automobile accident, but has again disappeared.

Mrs. McCready's letter complained that she had reported several trucks violating the load limit on the bridge and had received no response from the sheriff's department. She said she stopped one truck on the bridge approach and the driver turned around after being warned of the violation.

The letter also asked the city council to consider utilizing its ordinance to enforce maintenance of public sidewalks by property owners along Whittemore Street.

During discussion, the city manager reported that reconstruction of a sidewalk leading to the Mathews Street bridge had been financed through city funds. The council directed the city manager to inspect the sidewalk on Whittemore Street leading from US-23 and to make recommendations on reconstruction.

In other business, the council decided that it would hold its next meeting on Labor Day, the regularly scheduled meeting for the first Monday in September.

Authorization was given by the council to advertise for bids on $48,000 in tax anticipation notes to finance purchase of the Graystone property owned by Ellen Bilow for expansion of city owned recreational facilities at the mouth of the Tawas River. The Municipal Finance Commission authorized the city to issue tax anticipation notes for this project.

The council approved an expenditure of $831.25 for purchase of a portion of Lot 5, Block 7, Hazen's Addition, to realign Cedar Street.

Appointment of Levi Ulman to fill a vacancy on the cemetery board was approved.

Tawas Hospital Expansion Started With Ground Breaking Ceremony

A touch of nostalgia was added to Wednesday's ground breaking ceremony for the two-million-dollar expansion program at Tawas Hospital. Even the threat of rain did not mar the program as persons involved with the original establishment and later administration of the hospital were brought together at one time.

More than 100 persons were on hand to witness the silver anniversary program of the hospital and to watch four of them break ground for the expansion program.

Wearing hard hats and each taking a turn at the nickle plated shovel were Sister Rita Louise Sullivan, first administrator; Judith Bessey, representing employees; Robert Elliott, president of the board of trustees; Lois Lamont, principal speaker and special assistant to Gov. William Milliken.

In her remarks, Sister Rita Louise recalled for the gathering how doors of the hospital were first opened on June 8, 1953, to care for victims of a tornado.

The former hospital administrator, who served here from 1953 to 1958, recalled that the hospital had not officially opened and that supplies were being unpacked. She received a telephone call the night of June 8 from state police requesting that the hospital be opened to care for eight victims of the tornado.

The Tawas was without electricity due to the storm and Dr. O. W. Mitton was treating patients in the lobby of his office through the use of automobile headlights shining through the front window.

"The hospital's generating plant had been tested the previous day so we had lights and power and we thought we could offer something better than that. We told the police to bring the patients to the hospital. We never made one call for assistance, but it was not long before we had a full staff of doctors, nurses and aides provided from the community," she stated.

Guests introduced during the program included Dr. John D. LeClair, first president of the hospital board; L. G. McKay, long time trustee; Richard Harris, past president; Sister Olivia, second administrator; John Hosbach, president of Tawas Hospital Association; George Myles and E. D. Jacques, members of the original hospital association; Sarah Everett, former president of the hospital auxiliary and still active in that group; Mary Lynch, first medical records secretary.

Elliott outlined the history of the hospital dating back to the original formation of the hospital association in 1946. The association filed for a $375,000 Hill-Burton grant in 1949 and it raised the balance of the money for the original $650,000 project. In 1970, facilities were expanded during a second construction project.

Principal speaker for the program was Mrs. Lamont, who previously served as deputy director of public health before becoming an aide to the governor. She said that expansion of the hospital was symbolic of a small community's concern for its residents—which could not be matched by larger cities—and called the hospital the prime center for community health care.

The expansion program will see a new medical surgical wing built to replace the older east wing of the hospital. Included in the cost will be land acquisitions, equipment, renovation and financing. The addition of a new surgery wing will increase the estimated cost by $350,000.

The hospital's development council, under the leadership of O'Connor, has been active in support of this project and the group has set a goal of raising $395,000 to help with the expansion.

Following the ceremony, refreshments were served at Tawas Masonic Temple.

GUEST SPEAKER for the ceremony was Lois Lamont, former deputy director of the Michigan Department of Public Health. —Tawas Herald Photo.

PRESIDING over Wednesday's ground breaking ceremony for the expansion to Tawas Hospital was Robert Elliott, center, chairman of the board of trustees. A SKETCH showing a patient with a moderate case of smallpox is in the upper left corner and a statuary depicting Edward Jenner, whose practice of vaccination spread around the world, is at right. Many years were required for public acceptance of inoculation with an animal disease, but smallpox has been virtually eliminated through this nineteenth century development.

Smallpox, one of the oldest and most loathsome diseases known to man, is now believed by the World Health Organization to have been virtually eradicated. Only time will tell as vaccination of children against this scourge is not generally practiced today.

Sixty-one years ago, a smallpox epidemic was still feared in Iosco County. In the spring of 1917, a number of cases were reported at Turner and a Bay City physician reported to the state health department that victims were not being quarantined according to state law.

A number of arrests were made and The Tawas Herald commented as follows on June 1, 1917: "There has been much neglect and violation of the law regarding smallpox in the county recently and someone should be made an example of to act as an incentive to responsible citizens to do their duty."

The above editorial comment is almost unbelievable today for vaccination against smallpox, plus quarantine of victims, had been a standard practice for many years. During this county's history, entire communities have been placed under quarantine for several weeks—no one was permitted to enter or leave the community until smallpox ran its course.

The English physician, Edward Jenner, who was a hero of the early nineteenth century for his ideas, promised to vanquish the scourge of smallpox. Despite recent findings that Jenner's scientific work was actually based on wrong reasoning, he was right in his practice of vaccination.

Throughout history, this disease inspired terror throughout the world for practically everyone could virtually expect to have it—the main question was whether one would or would not survive the disease. It was known for several centuries that one did not get the pox twice and it was obviously smart to try to have the mildest case possible.

In its worst form, smallpox was fatal; in a milder form, 30 to 50 percent of the patients survived and most were scarred for life; in its mildest form, the patient was up and about in a few days, had no scars and developed an immunity to the disease.

Jenner was the first doctor to perform vaccination against smallpox and was the first to publish his ideas. He had observed that British dairy maids who had con-

VACCINATION for smallpox was compulsory in many parts of the United States in the 1870s, when this wood engraving was published. Shortly before World War I, public health officials traced a mild form of cowpox seemed to be immune from smallpox. He inoculated a small boy with pus from a cow infected with cowpox and the vaccination proved successful.

From England, the vaccine was sent world-wide and, by 1803, vaccination was successfully practiced in the United States, as well as Russia, Germany, Italy, France, South America, India and Africa.

Jenner's theory on vaccination had its problems and setbacks, however, because of the risk factor. Like other medical innovations, vaccination met opposition from physicians and even from the pulpit. For years, smallpox killed many people every year in the United States and scarred others for life. There was and is no specific cure for smallpox. The only sure way to combat it is vaccination combined with quarantine of the infected person.

Strange to report, smallpox epidemics were being reported in Iosco County as late as the first quarter of this century. Despite the success of vaccinations, many people were still wary about being inoculated with an animal disease; others defied the quarantine law and moved freely through the state, spreading the dread disease in their wake.

Newspaper files of Iosco County are filled with reports concerning outbreaks of smallpox epidemics. On November 18, 1910, The Tawas Herald published the following notice:

"To the people of Tawas City—We, the board of health of Tawas City, recommend and earnestly urge that every person residing within the city be vaccinated at once. There are numerous cases of smallpox, of very malignant nature, in adjacent cities and it is deemed unsafe for public health to go longer without a general vaccination."

A week later, the city council adopted a resolution urging all citizens "who have not been vaccinated in the past four years to have the same done at once." In addition, the city council ordered the school board to see that all school children be vaccinated promptly "and that any child refusing to be so treated shall not be allowed to attend school."

That same week, The Iosco County Gazette reported that Bay City had no cases, "but a general vaccination has been instituted and upwards of 14,000 persons have thus far received the vaccine."

Precautionary measures against the disease entering the smaller cities and towns were taken by authorities in many places. The East Tawas Council adopted a resolution requiring all public places to be thoroughly fumigated and advised all citizens to be vaccinated.

In addition, the East Tawas Council directed that an officer

"be installed at the railroad depot to meet all trains and to interview all persons coming into our city and to have them show a certificate of vaccination and a clean bill of health before stopping off here; and it is recommended that all citizens use precaution and stay within the limits of this city."

One of the worst outbreaks of smallpox in area history occurred at Rose City in February 1909. The Herald reported that "smallpox has been raging at Rose City for several weeks and health officers have made no effort to prevent its spread. Many cases have occurred and more are developing daily. Officials of this county and the railroad have taken the matter up with the state board of health and it is expected that an efficient quarantine will be established from this end of the line at once."

During the earlier lumbering days, entire camps in the Iosco pines were stricken with the dread disease and many lumberjacks, attempting to avoid contracting the disease, would head for other camps or nearby towns. Naturally, this helped to spread the disease when it was not detected by a health official or observant citizen.

Among the early day physicians who administered smallpox vaccinations to Tawas residents or cared for victims were Dr. DeWitt C. Howell of East Tawas, chief surgeon of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway, and Dr. G. S. Darling, whose general practice was located in Tawas City.

A native of Hillsdale, Howell graduated from the medical department of the University of Michigan in 1881, coming to East Tawas a short time later. Darling Council directed that an officer

DR. DEWITT C. HOWELL of East Tawas, chief surgeon of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway, was a general practitioner. He wore this fancy fur coat when making house calls during cold weather, driving about the area with horse and buggy.

Letter Makes Good Points, but Legality Could be Questioned

A letter from the city clerk of East Tawas concerning financing of law enforcement agencies in the county makes the point that two cities and two townships, which maintain or contract for police service, are actually paying more than a fair share of the county sheriff's department operational budget.

Some excellent points are made in the letter and this corner will offer no further comment as the matter is expected to be discussed further. It should be pointed out, however, that one point in favor of the other township units is that once a community incorporates as a city, it accepts certain responsibilities for providing service to its own citizens—one of which is police protection.

The same could be said for the township which outgrows the service provided by the county and establishes its own police force. The frequency or the amount of time the sheriff's department spends in an individual township is probably the determining factor—is that unit of government receiving more than its fair share of protection, or should it, too, establish its own police force.

If discussion is continued to any extent on this subject, it should provide some interesting arguments on both sides of the question. One argument which surely will be presented is the fact that the county operational tax levy must be uniform in all units of the county—regardless of the fact that an individual unit duplicates or expands a service presently provided by the county. A rebate might be declared illegal.

(Read Isaiah 55:6-11)

"My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways My ways, says the Lord." (Isaiah 55:8 RSV)

The spring rains poured down covering the ground of the low-lying orchard with two feet of water. The grower fretted and fumed. The trees had just blossomed. The water would keep away the bees. The blossoms would not get pollinated. The trees would bear no fruit. So he thought.

Then, a severe frost came. The apple crop would have been totally wiped out—except for the water that covered the ground. The water warmed the air which in turn protected the trees.

The blossoms remained intact. The cold spell ended. The water soaked into the ground to give refreshment to the trees in the month of drought that lay ahead. The bees came in abundance, pollinating the blossoms. The trees became loaded with apples, one of the best crops in many years.

So often in life we see catastrophe ahead. God has other ideas.

PRAYER

Almighty God, we thank You that Your ways are so much better than ours. Help us to trust Your perfect will.

US Engineers Get Plans for New ET Dock

15 Years Ago—
August 28, 1963—Michigan State Waterways Commission will present plans today to the United States Army Corps of Engineers proposing construction of new harbor facilities on its present dock at East Tawas. The proposal calls for extending the present dock 500 feet into Tawas Bay with solid construction. Two arms, similar in shape to one on the present dock, only longer, would extend eastward from the main structure.

As a means of providing time for participation in physical education, all sixth and seventh grade classes will be segregated according to sex at the Tawas City Elementary Unit.

Hiring of 14 bus drivers was approved Monday night by Tawas Area Board of Education.

A special election is being called September 23 in Plainfield Township which seeks approval of a $45,000 fire department bonding proposition to construct a new fire hall and purchase a new pumper.

Letter Questions Police Financing

A letter concerning the "unbalanced system of financing law enforcement agencies" in the county is to be discussed with other local units of government, according to Carlton Merschel, chairman of the county board of commissioners.

A letter submitted to the county commission last week by Clyde L. Soper, city clerk of East Tawas, was intended to clarify that city's position on the matter.

"Our approach in a nutshell is to suggest that, leaving the state police out of it, each political entity throughout the county should pay for the protection they receive from local agencies," wrote Soper.

His letter pointed out that, at the present time, two townships and two cities are paying for their own protection — the Oscoda-AuSable Police Department, the East Tawas Police Department and the Tawas City arrangement with the sheriff's department.

"The point is that these two townships and cities are also contributing the same millage levy in support of the sheriff road patrol costs as the other city and nine townships in the county, which receive this protection without any further outlay of organization or cost whatever," said Soper.

"Considering that the total current county millage levy is 4.5 mills ($927,000) with the sheriff's department claiming over half of it ($474,000), it makes sense to suggest that, on the basis that the road patrol constitutes three-quarters of the sheriff's department expense, these same two townships and cities not only furnish their own protection, but are each raising 1.7 mills to provide police protection for the rest of the county.

"Applied specifically to the City of East Tawas, the city levy is over $79,000 for its local police department while, at 1.7 mills, it is also contributing over $27,000 to police protection for the rest of the county. Obviously, there are many places where we could use $27,000 to improve our city services and programs."

Soper said that although it may be argued that the sheriff patrol also visits the City of East Tawas, "It should also be pointed out that the East Tawas Police Department also responds to calls in neighboring areas whenever the sheriff or state police are not available."

The city's position expressed by Soper stated that "the political entities in the county depending on the sheriff patrol for a law enforcement program should pay the cost of the program and those providing their own protection should not be forced to subsidize this service."

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for (free meals and milk, or reduced-price meals). In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

To discourage the possibility of misrepresentation, the application forms contain a statement above the space of signature certifying that all information furnished in the application is true and correct. An additional statement is added to warn that the application is being made in connection with the receipt of Federal funds, that school officials may, for cause, verify the information in the application, and that deliberate misrepresentation of information may subject the applicant to prosecution under applicable State and criminal statutes.

In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, it should contact the school.

Children of unemployed parents may qualify for free or reduced price meals and/or free milk if total family income include welfare payments, unemployment compensation and subsidy benefits fall within the prescribed family income guidelines. In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, creed, color or national origin.

Under the provisions of the policy Pete Holley, Elementary Principal or Bob McDonald, Secondary Principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he or she may make a request either orally or in writing to: Mr. Wayne Case, Superintendent, Hale Area Schools at 728-7661 for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure. Each school and the office of the Superintendent has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by an interested party.

Commission Fills Own Vacancy

John G. McArdle, 43, was appointed Wednesday by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners to fill the unexpired term of the late First District commissioner, Jack Allen.
Four applicants had been considered for the appointment including Helen Hubal, Kendrick Williams and James Stech.
Both Stech and McArdle received write-in votes during the recent primary election and Oscoda Township voters will again have the opportunity to select their own commissioner at the November general election.
McArdle has been in the furniture business for 15 years at Oscoda and this is his first experience in public office.
A native of Tawas Township, he attended a rural elementary school along M-55 and graduated from East Tawas High School.
Carlton Merschel, commission chairman, said that commission committees would be rearranged at a future date. For the present, McArdle is to serve on those committees formerly served by Allen.

REGULAR MEETING—TAWAS CITY COUNCIL

July 24, 1978
Meeting called to order at 7:30 PM at City Hall by Mayor Cholger.
Present: Landon, Rollin, Cholger, Lansky, Hayes, Keiser, Cotter. Others: Mgr. Bublit.

Minutes of regular meeting July 10 and special meeting July 17 approved.
Cemetery Board July 11 minutes accepted. Park Board July 10 and 13 minutes accepted.

Planning Commission July 20 minutes accepted, and Council set August 7 for Public Hearing on rezoning of the block between North and Birch Streets, between US-23 and Court Street, to B-1.

Planning Commission vacancies, two terms expiring April 1, 1980, were filled by Mayor's appointment of Duane C. Walters and Vernon C. Blust, confirmed by Council unanimously.

Appointment of John A. Martin to Blust's term on Cemetery Board, term expiring April 1, 1981, approved unanimously.

At Bill Kidder's request, the quarterly joint meeting between Council and Planning Commission was set for July 26, 6:30 PM.

Mayor reported on his study of Building Authority and read information furnished by MML.

Following discussion of the status of Cedar Street as it crosses Lot 5, Block 7, P. Hazen's Addition, Manager was directed by unanimous desire of Council to contact those owners whose houses on Cedar Street encroach on City street as platted. It is feasible that they would pay for City purchase of the portion of Lot 5 on which City has acquired adverse possession for street, in exchange for obtaining clear title to property on which their houses are located.

With emphasis on servicing, motion by Landon seconded by Hayes that City purchase two GMC dump trucks as specified for total price of $30,614; roll call vote, unanimous yes. Motion by Lansky seconded by Hayes that City purchase GMC 4WD 3/4 T. pickup for Fire Department, as specified, for $6662; roll call vote: six ayes, Cholger no, carried.

Motion by Rollin seconded by Cotter for rustproofing by Tuff-Kote Dinol, $148.75 for each dump truck, $126.65 for pickup, approved unanimously, Hayes abstaining from discussion and vote.

Manager recommended financing the estimated cost of above purchases as follows: from equipment fund, $23,175; from street fund, $18,800; from Fire Department, $2000; unanimously approved.

Police report for June accepted. Bills for the following funds were presented:

General	$2446.45
Major Street	182.42
Local Street	265.00
Motion by Cotter seconded by

PUBLIC NOTICE

Keiser that bills totaling $2893.87 be paid; roll call vote, unanimous yes.

TRAVEL in Iosco County during the early days was difficult due to unimproved roads. Local physicians visited patients using horse power and made stops at country stores like the one pictured here.

Smallpox

was an earlier graduate of the University of Michigan, served as surgeon during the Civil War and came to Tawas City in 1875. Both physicians practiced here until after 1900.

Many communities, including the Tawas, maintained "pest houses" where persons stricken with communicable diseases were placed in quarantine. Tawas City's facility, a converted dwelling, was located east of the present-day intersection of US-23 and M-55. Family members would care for smallpox victims placed in the facility, but the long period of quarantine must have been a horror because of the extremely primitive surroundings, particularly in cold weather.

Families unable to pay the cost of doctor bills and expenses involved during smallpox quarantine were reimbursed from county welfare funds. In a number of instances, controversies arose at meetings of the county board of supervisors concerning payment of bills for families which actually could have paid for them at their own expense. The practice of paying smallpox bills was discontinued here prior to World War I.

One of the most celebrated law cases in Michigan concerning a smallpox victim involved Iosco County. In the summer of 1901, W. M. Gregory, a single man, was engaged as the superintendent of schools at East Tawas. He taught there during the school year and, during summer vacation, was employed on the state geological survey.

In 1901, the crew of surveyors was near Standish and Gregory was stricken with smallpox. He was placed in quarantine, a guard was placed over him, a physician attended him and other expenses were incurred during his illness, making the entire bill somewhere near $325.

Gregory claimed he paid a portion of it, but eventually Arenac County put in a claim against Iosco and litigation followed. It was in the circuit court, then in supreme court, back again to the circuit court and again to the supreme court.

In the end, the state supreme court decided in 1910 that Iosco had to pay the claim, with interest, which had swelled to nearly $1,000.

"With the attorney fees paid, the amount is swelled to $1,500 and we are not sure but $2,000 is nearer to the amount this unfortunate, and we might add unjust, case has cost Iosco County," commented the local editor.

Iosco maintained that Gregory "was abundantly able to pay all of his own expenses. And if not, he should not have been accredited a permanent resident of Iosco. But the courts have so decreed and Iosco was forced to put up the elegant sum in settlement."

For years, parents were required to show proof that their children had been vaccinated against smallpox before they were permitted to enter school.

Today, the scourge of smallpox apparently has been eradicated and most physicians do not include smallpox vaccinations in the childhood series of inoculations.

The medical profession has made many contributions to the health of the world. One of the important discoveries in history came nearly 200 years ago when Jenner developed his smallpox vaccine in 1796. He has been immortalized in statuary, but it was years before his theory was fully accepted throughout the world—even here in Iosco County.

However, there is still this requirement—one cannot enter the United States without a smallpox vaccination certificate. Public health officials are still wary of the disease which has accounted for millions of deaths.

Funeral services for Edward L. McPherson of Glennie, who passed away at his home Tuesday, August 15, were held Friday, August 18, at Jacques and Kobs East Chapel, East Tawas. The Rev. William Wright officiated and burial was in Montrose Township Cemetery.

Born January 6, 1916, at Pigeon, he married the former Violet E. Luark March 18, 1936, at Montrose. He was a member of Lott Baptist Church.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL CLOTHING
Forecasters predict that clothing will cost approximately 20 percent more this fall than last. Hand-me-downs and home sewing are two ways to cut some costs in preparing children for the return to school. The second or third child may enjoy hand-me-downs more if they are changed before being passed along.

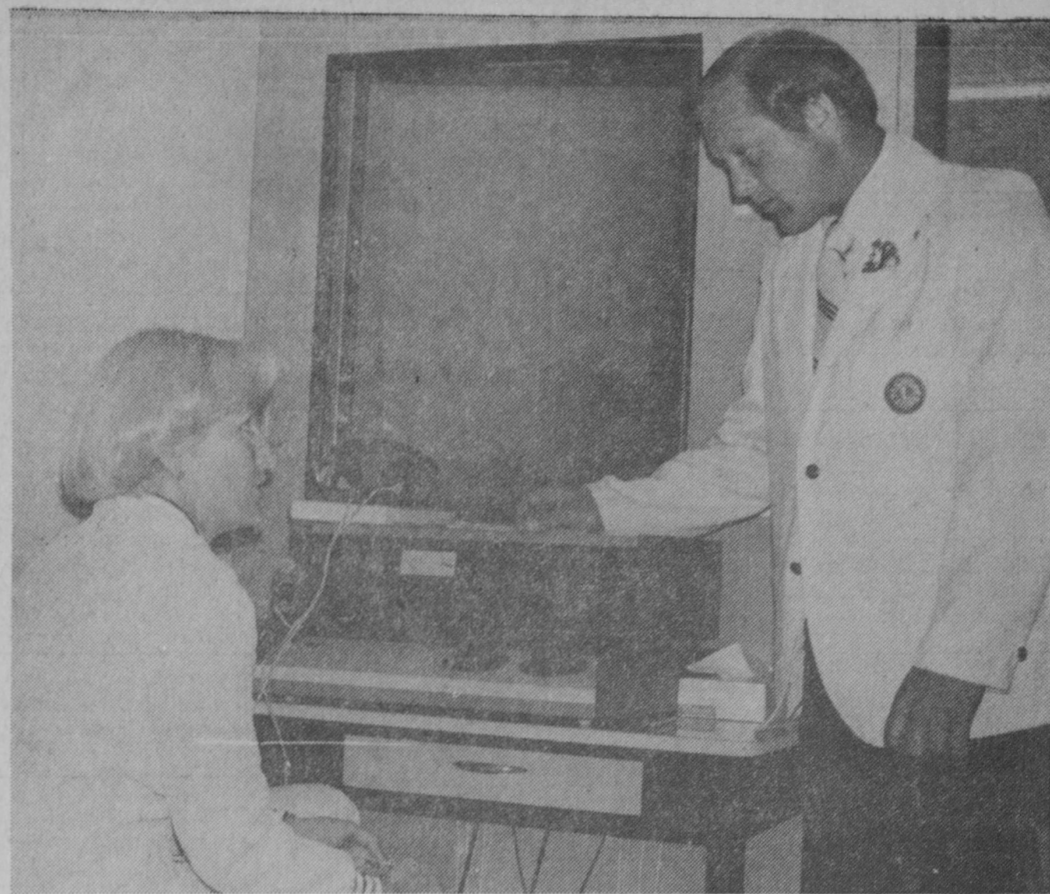

Personalize Hand-Me-Downs
Children will be more likely to feel better wearing their brother's or sister's clothing if it is personalized. Embroidering a child's name on a T-shirt or dress, adding appliques of favorite animals, ribbons and rickrack will help make the clothes an expression of his/her individuality. To avoid washing problems, be sure the fabric or trims added require the same care as the original garment. Remember to preshrink all new fabrics and trims before applying them to clothing.

A dress can be refashioned into a tunic, smock top or jumper by simply removing sleeves and collar. Popular jean skirts can be created by taking out leg seams and adding center front and back panels in contrasting colors.

For additional ideas on how to spruce up hand-me-downs, consider a child's likes and dislikes. The more attention given to what clothes a child likes, the more one will be able to adapt hand-me-downs to his/her needs.

Sewing a Back-to-School Wardrobe
Creating a back-to-school wardrobe at home can be a creative outlet for parents and a special experience for children. Sewing is something parents and children can do together, from taking measurements to try-ons after sewing begins.

TAWAS HOSPITAL'S hearing clinic has benefited greatly from contributions made by Lions Clubs of the area. Nancy Huck, audiologist, is shown demonstrating for Neil Mochy of Tawas Area Lions Club the new Grason Stadler audiometer which was purchased through the Lions Club project. The local club contributed $1,000 to the $4,025 total cost and the balance came from other clubs.—Tawas Herald Photo.
