Annual Art Show Was Great Success

The 18th annual two-day Tawas Bay Waterfront Art Show was an unqualified success, with perfect weather conditions, outstanding attendance and a wide variety of exhibits.

"Everything fit into place and we thought the show was terrific," commented Joan Blust, president of Tawas Bay Arts Council, after a long two days. "We were particularly impressed with the wide variety and quality of work entered by artists and craftsmen."

Exhibitors were more than happy with sales during this event, an important factor in the upgrading of this show held annually at the Tawas City Park and Iosco County Building.

Public and private parking lots in the block between Whittemore Street and First Street were jammed throughout the two days and traffic along US-23 moved along slowly as visitors crossed the highway between the two exhibit areas. Traffic control was under supervision of the sheriff's department.

The printed program listed exhibitors which grew to 209 at the start of the show, but according to Paula Peterson, director, the total was slightly less than that as about 15 exhibitors were unable to attend.

One last minute addition was a "Punch and Judy" show for the entertainment of children, entered under the direction of Martin Robinson of Arbor Lake near Hillman.

Larry J. Blowitz, associate professor of art at Aquinas College, was judge for the show.

Joseph Cyberski of Ann Arbor, who won first place in jewelry, received the best of show award. It was his second year of attendance at this show and he attends around 25 such events across the country during the year, from Oregon to New Orleans, Louisiana, and the Midwest.

Other winners were as follows: Oils: William Adair, Midland, first place. No second place was awarded but Virginia Franz, St. Clair Shores, received honorable mention; drawings: Adair also won first place in this category, with James Caulfield of East Lansing winning second place and Sarah Olsen receiving honorable mention; watercolors: No first place was awarded in this category, but Frances Greifenstein, Manitou Beach, won second place and Marty Baker of Lansing received honorable mention; photography: Mark Sterling of Lansing received first place. Luciano Duse of Petoskey received second place and honorable mention went to Donald Dipboye of Warren; acrylic: First place went to Elsie Ennes, Au Gres.

Creative crafts: Robert Pitz and Frank Dahmer were each awarded first place while second place awards went to Richard Wilson of Ypsilanti and James Stutz of Mackinaw City, with honorable mentions to Arlene Bozyk of Westland and Robert Lewis of Onaway; jewelry: Besides the first place to Cyberski, second place went to Bernard Crawford of Ann Arbor; weaving: No first place was awarded in this category, but second place went to Betty Paine of Birmingham and honorable mention to Jill Frey of Flint; pottery: Samuel Machulis of Alpena won first place, David Nelson of St. Joseph received second place and Robert McDaniel of Clare received honorable mention; sculpture: No first place was awarded in this category, but second place went to Rita Hickey of Minnetonka, Minnesota.

Petition Drive Stopped, but Expect Tawas Merger to be Decided by People

If and when the Michigan Boundary Commission issues its written order concerning approval of consolidation procedures for Tawas, petitions will be filed asking that the matter be brought before the people for an immediate referendum, rather than to continue the process of electing a charter commission.

This was the word Friday of City Clerk Clyde Soper of East Tawas, who said that petitions had begun to be circulated Thursday at East Tawas, but were stopped when word was received that no action could be taken on a referendum until official word was received from the state.

Soper said he had called Lansing earlier in the week and had been told by a representative of the boundary commission that the final order on the proposed consolidation was due shortly and that referendum petitions could be circulated. On recommendation of Mayor Robert Bolen, Soper made a second call to Lansing on Friday and was told that any petitions circulated prior to receipt of the written order would be improper; furthermore, the Lansing official said that it was not expected the written order would be forthcoming until October due to a backlog of work.

Soper said that it had been hoped a referendum on the proposed consolidation could be placed before voters at the November election, but time is too short because of the delay.

The state boundary commission approved proposed consolidation of the Tawas during its adjudicative session held in February. This action followed filing of petitions requesting the consolidation in 1977 and two public hearings.

In order to force a vote on the matter, persons so desiring have 45 days in which to submit petitions, following receipt of the written order, asking for an immediate vote to overrule the commission. Signatures of five percent of the residents of the two communities would be required.

Such a course is taken, each community would vote independently on the question. If a majority in either community voted "no," the consolidation movement would end at that point. If the vote was in the affirmative, the process of establishing a charter commission would commence.

If no petition is filed asking for a referendum, a charter commission would be elected. According to population, East Tawas would have five members and Tawas City would have four members.

Once elected, the charter commission would have two years to draft a home rule charter and submit it to the people for adoption. The charter would provide for election of officers for a single home rule city.

If disapproved by the people, the charter could be revised and a second vote taken. If disapproved the second time, the entire consolidation process would come to an end.

The Tawas City Businessmen's Association adopted a resolution at its meeting last Thursday urging the state boundary commission to take action on its final order. The association was highly critical of the commission's delay in the matter.

When present houses on the west side of Cedar Street were constructed about 40 years ago, owners apparently were not sure of property lines and encroached on the street right-of-way. Since then, Cedar Street has gradually moved to the east and an intersection cuts across private property.

With only Coun. Hugo Keiser voting "no" on the resolution, the council approved the purchase.

Council Wants Time to Develop Package City Hall Advisory Vote Delayed

A move to hold an advisory vote to determine if the people want a new city hall was rejected Monday night by a majority of the Tawas City Council, who felt that further study was needed in order to present a complete package for voter consideration.

Both Coun. Robert N. Rollin and Mayor Herbert Cholger, who have expressed opposition to construction of a new city hall, fire hall and library complex, believed that an advisory vote should be held as soon as possible in order to avoid loss of further time and planning expense on a project which might not be desired.

A resolution made by Rollin and seconded by Cholger failed on a four to two-roll call. Voting in opposition to a ballot at this time were Coun. James Lansky, Donald Hayes, Hugo Keiser and Jerry Cotter.

During discussion, Rollin said that a number of proposed plans being developed had been discussed at meetings of the businessmen's association, but had never been brought before the city council.

Councilman Cotter said that although the building program which has been under consideration for more than a year had been turned over to the recently appointed building authority, it was actually the responsibility of the council to direct planning for the proposed complex.

"I do not see how the people could vote intelligently on a question when the council does not know the cost or what is to be presented in the package," said Cotter.

"The mayor and the city council are supposed to be the leaders to present this to the people," said Councilman Keiser. "All persons should be made familiar with what is needed in regard to a city hall, library and fire hall and we should give them something on which to vote."

Mayor Cholger expressed the opinion that timing on the proposed new complex was wrong because of the present consolidation issue in the Tawas. He felt that the complex may not be needed if one city is formed.

The opinion was expressed by Cotter that a municipal complex for the library and fire hall would be needed regardless of the outcome of the consolidation proposal. He said, too, that a council committee had studied a number of alternatives, both as to location and incorporation of the present building into the new complex, but that no concrete planning or decisions had been made as yet by the council other than selection of the present site for the project.

In previous meetings, both the mayor and Councilman Rollin have expressed opposition to the present site for a new complex, believing that the fire hall, especially, should be located elsewhere to avoid US-23 traffic. They also have stated that it would be better to use the present site for commercial expansion and move the city hall elsewhere.

The majority of councilmen, however, have believed that development of a city hall complex at its present site would be the nucleus for future commercial development in that block and authorized taking an option on property adjoining to the west for expansion of the city's site.

It is expected that action Monday night will spur a meeting in the near future between the new building authority and city council to discuss plans for the project.

TA Hires Bay City Architect

Brysselbout, Hacker and Simon of Bay City was selected Monday night by Tawas Area Board of Education to prepare plans for a classroom addition at the Tawas City Elementary Unit.

The Bay City firm designed the present main portion of the elementary unit constructed in the early 1960s and also designed other additions at the high school and East Tawas Elementary Unit.

The project is to be financed by the transfer of $210,000 in delinquent taxes to a building and site fund, authorized by voters at the annual election.

In other business, the board of education accepted two bids for furnishing $697,000 in tax anticipation notes for partial operation of the school during the coming term.

Oscoda State Savings Bank entered a bid of 5.1 percent for loaning the funds with a stipulation that the money is deposited in that bank at an interest rate of 5.25 percent. Citizens Commercial Bank of Flint and Peoples State Bank of East Tawas submitted a joint bid of 5.25 percent interest with no stipulation as to depository.

Action on the above bids is to be taken prior to August 14.

Originally, the board of education had sought to borrow $850,000, but its cash flow indicated that the lesser amount was sufficient. The Municipal Finance Commission ruled only the amount necessary for operation could be borrowed. In past years, the district had reinvested the borrowed money at an interest rate higher than the rate paid by the school, making a profit on the loan. Such action was not permitted by the state this year.

Four bids on furnishing a new boiler for the high school were opened. Davison and Son Builders, Incorporated, was low bidder at $19,300. Other bids received included Hubers, Incorporated, Midland, $40,736; Steven Kruchko, Alpena, $33,300; Zgorski-Mickette, Rose City, $35,400. An award is to be made at the August 14 meeting.

A contract was awarded Central Paving Company of West Branch for patching the parking lot at the high school and installing new asphalt in the circular drive at that unit at a cost of $9,490. A bid of $9,950 was also received from Hale Asphalt Company.

Employees Lack Parking Spaces

East Tawas is to issue identification stickers for cars using the city parking lot across from Christ Episcopal Church. The city obtained and developed the property for an employee parking lot, but it is being used to such an extent that there is insufficient room for cars of employees and businessmen.

Expect Further Controversy Over Au Gres River Drain

Further controversy over the Au Gres River Drainage District is expected, according to a resolution adopted by the Ogemaw County Board of Commissioners and forwarded to the Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

According to the resolution, Ogemaw County "refuses to assess or allow to be assessed any tax for the Au Gres River drain project."

Although Iosco County is checking out the legality of Ogemaw's resolution, Carlton Merschel, chairman of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners, said that no action had been taken by the local commission.

In a dispute with Arenac County over the drainage project, the two upriver counties have been long opposed to being financially involved and the Iosco Commission adopted a resolution to that effect some months ago.

Merschel said he was not aware of progress being made on the drainage project and that the resolution from Ogemaw had merely been forwarded to this county for informational purposes.

In other business last week, the 1979 budget for the Iosco-Ogemaw Mental Health District was reviewed. The budget calls for an appropriation of $22,483.79 for this county.

A budget from the Cooperative Extension Service was reviewed, which calls for an expenditure of $45,302 with $36,575 coming from the county.

The commission approved payment of $5,000 from 1977 revenue sharing funds to Plainfield Township and $2,479.88 to the same township from 1976 federal revenue sharing. A balance of $204.64 remains to be paid Plainfield from 1976 funds.

The commission adopted a resolution stating that union dues, state required individual license fees and professional society dues for county officers or employees would not be paid from county funds effective January 1, 1979.

Discussion was held concerning a referendum to determine if voters wished to adopt special millage for operation of the county bus system. No action was taken on the matter.

Motorist Struck While Standing Along Highway

Dennis Fairbanks, 21, East Tawas, was treated Wednesday night at Tawas Hospital after being struck by an oncoming car on US-23 at DUBY Road.

Investigating Iosco County Sheriff's Department officers said that Fairbanks stopped his vehicle on the shoulder of the road to make repairs. A car driven by Dennis E. Depotette, 28, Montrose, was northbound and crossed over the highway to strike Fairbanks on the east shoulder of the roadway.

The Montrose's man struck Fairbanks' parked vehicle head-on, then continued on to hit a tree.

Grabow Hurt in Car - Train Crash Monday

George H. Grabow, 64, Whittemore, is in serious condition at St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw, after his car hit a Detroit and Mackinac Railway locomotive pulling a train of cars Monday morning at the Turtle Road crossing in Sherman Township.

Investigating Michigan State Police from East Tawas said that Grabow's car slammed into the Diesel locomotive after leaving 165 feet of skid marks on the blacktop road. The accident was reported to the state police post at East Tawas at 9:52 a. m.

State police officers, who were assisted by the sheriff's department, trainmen and others at the scene, worked about an hour to remove Grabow from his wrecked car. He was taken by ambulance to Tawas Hospital and then transferred to Saginaw.

Richard C. Herrick, 44, Hillman, engineer operating the locomotive, told officers he saw Grabow's car approaching the crossing and realized the driver could not stop in time. He activated the train's emergency reverse system but was unable to avoid the collision.

Grabow is owner of Grabow Distributing Company at National City and a long-time Whittemore area businessman. He is well known for his firm's participation in area parades, being the owner of a number of antique automobiles, trucks and horse-drawn vehicles.

TC Council Offers $48,000 for Land Near River Mouth

Expansion of city-owned land at the Tawas River mouth through purchase of the Graystone property was authorized Monday night by the city council.

Following an executive meeting with a special committee appointed to aid in the negotiations, the council announced that it decided to offer $48,000 to Ellen Bilow for purchase of the property, which includes the old Graystone Inn building and a dwelling.

Following adoption of the above resolution, the council unanimously adopted a resolution to make application to the Municipal Finance Commission for permission to issue tax anticipation notes to finance the purchase.

Purchase of the property has been under discussion for a number of months and the council on July 10 gave serious consideration to the purchase after the action was recommended by the Tawas City Businessmen's Association and the Tawas City Parks and Recreation Board.

Aiding in negotiations for the purchase were Benjamin Brewer, Carl Babcock and John N. Brugger.

The "asking price" for the property has been $59,000, but the real estate agent handling the transaction has said that a commission would be waived to lower the price to $55,328. The city assessor appraised the property at $48,200.

Mayor Herbert Cholger said that the council had not reached any conclusion as to the method of financing the purchase but all were in agreement that the city should acquire the property to make one contiguous block of property for development of the river mouth.

The city acquired the former Lubaway property on the east side of the river mouth, along with the former Lubaway marina building east of the Graystone, earlier this year.

The city is to contact Stanley H. Stasik, owner of a marina on the west side of the river, in order to obtain a letter of intent for a public easement along that side of the river.

The mayor said that efforts would be continued toward obtaining state or federal assistance in developing the river mouth for recreational purposes.

In other business, the city manager reported that three property owners on Cedar Street were not interested in a council suggested plan for them to participate financially in the purchase of a portion of a lot to realign Cedar Street.

As a result, the council directed the city manager to negotiate purchase of a portion of Lot 5, Block 7, Hazen's Addition, at a price of $831.25 or less, entirely at city expense.

When present houses on the west side of Cedar Street were constructed about 40 years ago, owners apparently were not sure of property lines and encroached on the street right-of-way. Since then, Cedar Street has gradually moved to the east and an intersection cuts across private property.

'SPEEDING HORSE' COMPLAINT INVESTIGATED

A "speeding horse" complaint was investigated August 1 on Chain Lake Drive, Plainfield Township, by Iosco County Sheriff's Department. Officers said that residents of the area were upset over a girl riding a horse on the road and along a beach at a high rate of speed, which endangered children in the area.

The girl told deputies that residents had threatened they would shoot her horse and that she had been injured when a neighbor's dog had "spooked" her mount and she was thrown into a mail box.

Residents were advised to appear before the Plainfield Township Board concerning possible adoption of an ordinance to prohibit horses on public beaches.

Tawas Indies battled their way to a tie in the northern division of the Northeastern Michigan League by winning a double header Sunday over visiting Mikado.

The Indies will now meet Alpena in a play off game Thursday, 6:00 p. m., on a neutral field at Mikado. Should Tawas win Thursday, the Indies will host Standish in a single game on Saturday, August 12, and will play at Standish on Sunday, August 13.

If a third game is needed to decide the NEM League championship, the date and place of that game is to be announced.

Thursday's game between Tawas and Alpena should be evenly matched as the two teams have split decisions in games played this season.

In order to gain the play off, Tawas had to overcome a hard hitting Mikado team. Tawas won the first game, 9-8, then took the second game, 17-7.

Mikado came back with three runs in the top of the fifth on a walk and home runs by Kevin Michaud and Ostby. Tawas scored a single run in the bottom of the fifth on a single by Kevin Mielock, a wild pitch and a single by Brad Potts. Tawas took a 9-6 lead in the sixth when Wayne Revord hit his second home run.

Mikado scored one run in the seventh on Michaud's second homer of the game and came within one run of Tawas in the eighth on a homer by Mike Goddard. Mikado scored one run in the first inning of the second game on Russ Trufant's homer, but Tawas took the lead with four runs in its half of the first inning. Mikado scored one run in the third and Tawas came back with three runs in the fourth.

Mikado scored two runs in the fifth inning, one run each of the sixth, seventh and eighth inning, but Tawas scored three runs in the eighth and put the game on ice with seven runs in the ninth.

fant and Goddard, his second of the day.

ET Sidewalk Program Gets OK

Acting on a petition from businessmen endorsing the project, East Tawas Council Monday night authorized the city engineer to proceed with conceptual plans for reconstruction of sidewalks and roadway through the Newman Street business area.

Spicer Engineering Company is to prepare plans for reconstruction of sidewalks at a cost of $3,000 to the city.

Construction of new sidewalks as part of an over-all plan for improving Newman Street has been under discussion for several years. Cost of the new sidewalks would be on a property assessment basis, while financing the roadway reconstruction would be a city cost.

City Clerk Clyde Soper said that reconstruction of the street would include provisions for replacement of a present combination storm and sanitary sewer as well as to remove sawdust and slabs used years ago as fill material and presently the major cause in unevenness in the roadway.

In other business, the council gave approval to preliminary plans presented by L. G. McKay for the 39-lot Banksiana Subdivision on Lincoln Street, the city-owned Eastland No. 2 Subdivision of 40 lots on former airport property and the 24-lot Bolen Subdivision in the northeastern sector of the city.

Development of the proposed new subdivision is to proceed through normal channels before final plans are submitted to the council for approval.

On recommendation of Coun. Ronald Klinger, who noted that the city police car was spending considerable time on patrol work outside the city, the city clerk was directed to write to the county board of commissioners in regard to road patrol service furnished by the city police department.

Clerk Soper was instructed to advise county officials that the Cities of East Tawas and Tawas City, along with the Oscoda-AuSable Townships, were actually paying twice for police service. East Tawas, Oscoda and AuSable Townships finance individual police departments and Tawas City contracts with the sheriff's department for police service.

The council indicated that other townships of the county do not maintain police departments, but are served by the sheriff's department and that units providing police service should receive financial consideration from the county.

A retired maintenance foreman of United States Gypsum Company, Peter J. Baker of Alabaster Township, died Tuesday, August 1, at Tawas Hospital. He was born August 18, 1893, in Tawas City and had been employed by the company for 52 years. He was a member of Tawas Council No. 2709, Knights of Columbus, and St. Joseph's Church Ushers.

Funeral Mass was held Friday, August 4, at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, East Tawas, with the Rev. Fr. Lawrence Boks officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery. A Rosary service was conducted Wednesday evening by Knights of Columbus and a Christian wake service was held Thursday at Jacques and Kobs West Chapel, Tawas City.

Survivors include his wife, Grace; four daughters, Kathleen Taylor of Royal Oak, Veronica Chalmers of Lewiston, Grace Chappel of Oscoda and Bereneice McCall of Tawas City; 10 grandchildren; six great grandchildren; two brothers, William of Tawas City and Edward of East Tawas; two sisters, Lula Baker and Margaret Povish of Tawas City.

Funeral Held for Arthur E. Povish, Retired Farmer

Arthur E. Povish of Tawas City, a Tawas Township farmer, died Friday, August 4, at Tawas

Hospital. He was born November 6, 1906, at Tawas City and was a member of the Farm Bureau and Tawas Council No. 2709, Knights of Columbus.

The Rev. Fr. Francis Murphy officiated at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, East Tawas, at funeral Mass Monday, August 7. Knights of Columbus recited Rosary Saturday evening and again Sunday evening. Burial was in the church cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret; one brother, Paul of Tawas City, and a sister, Irene Povish of Detroit.

Two Drivers Hurt in Races

Two race car drivers were injured Saturday night in separate accidents at Whittemore Speedway and the Raceland Speedway, Wilber Township.

Gregory A. Cataline, 20, Whittemore, was treated at Tawas Hospital following a crash at Whittemore Speedway. Cataline's car was struck in the side.

Reach Compromise on Zoning

On recommendation of Coun. Hugo Keiser, a former member of the city planning commission, a compromise solution was approved Monday night by the city council to permit expansion of business into a US-23 residential zone.

The action took place following a public hearing on a request of Richard Ziehl to rezone Block 13 of F. Scheffler and Company's Addition from RC multiple family to B-1 business.

The above block is bounded by North Street on the west, Lake Street (US-23) on the south, Court Street on the north and Birch Street on the east.

Ziehl, who has owned property at the corner of North Street for a number of years, requested the B-1 zoning in order to permit location of a gift and antique shop in the former residence of the late N. C. Hartingh. He has restored and expanded the dwelling for apartments since being denied a zoning change to commercial about seven years ago.

Under the 1947 zoning ordinance, all frontage along US-23 from Wheeler Street to M-55 had been zoned residential. The two blocks between Wheeler Street and North Street were rezoned to commercial a number of years ago and the next two blocks remained in residential zoning under the 1964 ordinance. Since then, there has been considerable commercial construction from Wheeler to North Streets.

In order to preserve present residences from North Street to M-55 and until such time as further commercial expansion, Keiser suggested that Lots 1 and 2 owned by Ziehl fronting on Lake Street and the east 30 feet of Lots 9 and 10 owned by him fronting on Court Street be rezoned to commercial.

Keiser said that Ziehl's project was an asset to the block, but retention of present residential zoning in the remainder of the block would permit owners to remain there with a minimum of objections. He also pointed out that a complete change to commercial zoning would not permit a home owner to enlarge his dwelling, but it would be permitted under the plan he suggested.

The city council gave its unanimous approval to rezoning Ziehl's property for commercial use.

Seventeen property owners within 300 feet of the proposed rezoning were notified of the hearing. Duane Walters, owner of nearby Tawas Hardware, along with John D. Le-Clair, owner of the building housing the new Kroger Store, both expressed the opinion that the community was looking for commercial development and believed the entire block should be rezoned to commercial.

Martin Wellna, whose residence is located east of the Ziehl property, objected to rezoning the entire block to commercial but had no objection to granting a variance according to Keiser's suggestion.

Letters opposing complete rezoning of the block were submitted by Virginia St. Aubin Coyle, whose residence is located at the corner of Birch and Court Street, and Patricia Ezo, who resides in the block between Birch Street and M-55.

NOAA Ship Peirce Surveys Tawas Bay

Shoaling to Update Nautical Charts

Lying two miles off shore from the Tawas last week, in direct communication with its portable ground stations established at East Tawas and on Tawas Point, was the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's survey ship, the 163-foot-long Peirce S328.

The NOAA Ship Peirce (pronounced "purse") is in Lake Huron to perform near shore hydrography from June 1 through November 1. Working at the Straits of Mackinac, it was called here to conduct a five-day survey into recently observed shoaling at the upper end of Tawas Bay and offshore from Tawas Point.

"Our primary function is to survey depths and to provide data for nautical charts. Our visit here was of top priority requested by the United States Coast Guard and local yachtsmen," said Capt. Carl Fisher, commander of the Peirce.

In preliminary work Tuesday and Wednesday, Fisher said that shoaling in the upper end of the bay and around Tawas Point has not extended rapidly since nautical charts had been updated about two years ago. He said that information gained by the Peirce's survey, coupled with visual information provided by the coast guard, would be used to update future charts. To a landman, this may seem like unimportant work; to anyone involved in maritime, including recreational boating, accurate charts are essential to safe navigation.

The Peirce, named for the nineteenth century scientist, Charles Sanders Peirce, who gained fame through service with the Coast Survey, forerunner of the modern National Ocean Survey, was making its first trip in the fresh water Great Lakes.

Home port of the 15-year-old ship, which has a crew of 32 members and eight officers, is Norfolk, Virginia, and has conducted its survey work from the Virgin Islands to the Gulf of Mexico and along the Atlantic seaboard.

Fisher, a native of Rochester, New York, was the only ship's captain in the NOAA with Great Lakes experience and was picked to head the two-year survey in Lake Huron.

To facilitate its survey work, the Peirce is outfitted with modern electronic positioning systems, precision depth recorders and a computerized data acquisition system. The ship also carries two highly sophisticated survey launches used to gather inshore survey data, both equipped with the same data acquisition gear the ship uses.

One of the 26-foot, all-aluminum launches communicates between the ship and the Michigan Waterways Dock at East Tawas, where a ground station was established Wednesday. Using that station and one on Tawas Point, electronic equipment on the Peirce accurately located its position in the bay.

Different types of surveys performed include charting the lake bottom or sea floor using a continuous depth profile obtained from an echo sounder. This provides data on water depths, details of the shoreline, position of navigational aids and dangers to navigation, all compiled for inclusion in National Ocean Survey nautical charts of the area.

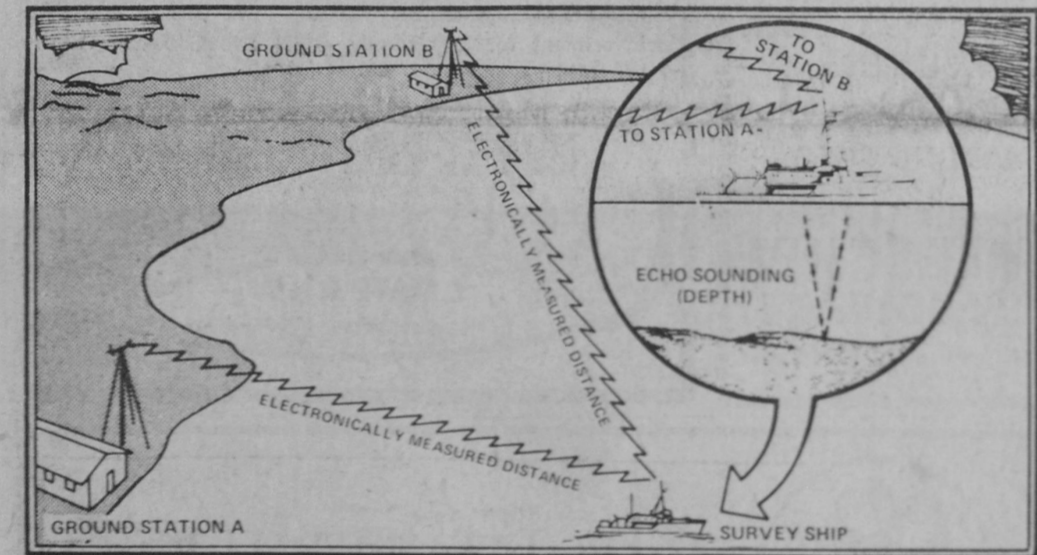

Its reconnaissance mission here last week was to provide accurate and timely information to give mariners a greater degree of detail required for modern navigation.

After completing its work in Tawas Bay, the Peirce is to return north to continue its survey at the Straits of Mackinac. It will leave the Great Lakes for Virginia to continue survey work in the Atlantic Ocean during the winter and then return next spring to complete its work in the Great Lakes.

ways Commission Dock at East Tawas and ground station B is on Tawas Point. The ship made a reconnaissance here to check shoaling in upper Tawas Bay and around Tawas Point.

THE NOAA SHIP PEIRCE was in Tawas Bay last week to perform near shore hydrography to obtain lake bottom and water depth data for updating nautical charts. The 163-foot-long ship, outfitted with modern electronic equipment, is making a two-year survey of Lake Huron on its first trip to fresh water.

STURGEON: ONCE A NUISANCE!

Finding an "untouched" attic in an old house is an occasion rarely encountered these days by collectors or amateur historians—the junk that grandma or grandpa stored away for sentimental reasons is now spelled "junk" and has commanded amazingly high prices in antique shops and flea markets for years.

James Lixey of East Tawas, who lives in a house on Westover Street formerly occupied by his father, John Lixey, recently made an interesting find—the attic of his house yielded a picture showing his father standing next to a 6½-foot sturgeon caught in Lake Huron.

The picture is an interesting addition to the historical memorabilia of this region for the sturgeon, a throwback to prehistoric times, was once hated by local commercial fishermen. Of the 20 species of sturgeons once known in the world, the variety found in the Great Lakes of North America, Acipenser rubicundus, is practically extinct today.

Commercial fishing was the industry responsible for the first settlements along the Lake Huron shore, which included stations first at the mouth of the AuSable River and later on Tawas Bay.

For five generations—from the days when a shanty or two at the mouth of the Saginaw River was the only sign of white occupation between that point and the Straits of Mackinac, until the present—a member of the Soudrette or Lixey family of Saginaw Bay and points north and south has gained a livelihood from the waters of Lake Huron.

The picture recently discovered by a fourth generation member of the Lixey family was originally snapped at the Lixey Fish Company's fish house sometime after 1911. The only person presently identified in the photograph, besides James' father, is Allen Herrick, who stands behind two boxes of herring.

Sturgeon, once so plentiful in Lake Huron, became very scarce here in the early 1900s. Although prized for years in Russia; its value for caviar was unknown in the early days of Michigan's fishery. The fish became the object in later years for a large and profitable industry at various places on Lakes Michigan and Erie, one firm alone using from 10,000 to 18,000 sturgeon a year around 1910.

Here on Lake Huron, the sturgeon was always a nuisance to commercial fishermen, whose greatest profit was in catching white fish, lake trout and herring. The late Henry Lixey, uncle of James, once recalled that while fishing near Oscoda prior to 1900 and following a storm from the northeast, 30 or more sturgeon were caught in one net. The fish ranged from four to seven feet in length.

STURGEON like this 6½-footer caught in the nets of Lixey Fish Company at East Tawas once were common in the Great Lakes. The picture, snapped in the early 1900s by August Brown, shows John Lixey standing next to the huge fish. The sturgeon was a bottom feeder and the unusually shaped mouth, along with sensitive barbels in back of the snout used to detect food, are clearly shown. The picture was furnished by James Lixey, son of Henry.

There was no local market for sturgeon and members of the older generation of Tawas or Oscoda residents will recall seeing these huge fish stacked like cordwood along the shore. Some of the fishermen from the "Haleatown" area of Tawas City who caught great quantities of sturgeon were Charles Buswell and James Brown. When the rotting fish became too odorous, the sky was blackened by the oily, black smoke from the burning fish.

Another member of the Lixey fishing clan, the late Eli Lixey of Harrisville, whose father, Joseph Lixey, came to Saginaw Bay in the 1840s, in a 1942 newspaper interview recalled the days when sturgeon were plentiful. He said the big fish were a nuisance to commercial fishermen as they ripped gaping holes in twine or became so ensnared that expensive nets were completely destroyed.

There was never much demand for the sturgeon locally and the big fish were often given to Indians living at the mouth of the AuSable River, who considered the fish quite a delicacy. Flesh of the huge fish was first slightly pickled in salt brine and then smoked after being cut into strips.

Some of the early commercial fishermen often boiled sturgeon to extract oil from them. Cedar soaked in the oil could be used as a float for nets and it made a good substitute for cork.

It was once the opinion of American ichthyologists that the sea-going sturgeon of the rivers of Eastern North America was identical to the sturgeon of the Great Lakes. However, the latter fish were unable to migrate to the sea in the days before the Great Lakes Seaway and periodically ascended COMMERCIAL FISHERMEN of the Tawas were mainly interested in whitefish, lake trout and herring. Sturgeon proved to be a real nuisance when they became entangled in nets. The fishermen above are lifting a net filled with herring. A. G. Emery, East Tawas photographer, snapped this picture around 1904 and obviously on a Sunday afternoon as it is doubtful if the hard working fishermen would have been wearing derby hats and good clothes on a trip to tend nets.

Editorials—

The Day After...

It is the day after the primary election and, in our political process to select candidates for the November general election, there are many candidates and their supporters who are disappointed over yesterday's results. That is a fact of life and politics breeds many disappointments, especially when there are so many candidates in the field.

It could be hoped that voters would have a brief breathing period to rest their ears and eyes other than to be subjected to political broadsides, but Tuesday's primary election was only a preliminary—the fur will now begin to fly between parties during the feature fight which takes place during the next three months.

One of the disturbing things about modern elections is the amount of money expended by some candidates in campaigning. One millionaire candidate for state office admitted two weeks ago that he had already spent more than $650,000 in his campaign and he said it came out of his own pocket.

Unless one is a millionaire like the above, a candidate must go to others to receive financial support in an active campaign. This money often comes from special interest groups—big business, organized labor, etc.—and it is a political fact of life that something is expected in return for that money—support of legislation benefiting those special interest groups, if that candidate is elected.

Legislation is needed to put a reasonable ceiling on campaign expenses, although this corner will be the first to admit that it would be a complicated process. The incentive for such a demand must come from the people, who must be wondering today why a candidate would spend one-half million dollars or more to get elected when the actual salary to be gained during an elected term of office would fall short of the expense.

It does not add up unless that candidate seeks individual power or, much worse, remuneration at a later date through support of certain legislation. This does happen at Lansing, according to recent newspaper accounts.

This corner knows of one legislator who placed his own limit on campaign gifts in order that he would not be beholden to big money from special interest groups. Besides money from his own pocket, his campaign expenses always were paid by the many small contributions received. It could be said that each small contributor expected some special favor in legislative matters, but "buying" a candidate was not practical under this method.

The problem is not new as there always has been political "slush funds" maintained by special interest groups and 75 years ago it was not an uncommon practice to buy editorial support in the press.

The answer to this problem would not be easy but a step in the right direction was the financial disclosure act which requires candidates to file statements for political campaign expenses. There will be some dishonest statements made, to be sure, but it should make interesting reading for the voter to learn where the money comes for political campaigns.

The present state law should be enforced and even amended, if necessary, to provide adequate information to the people.

Supreme Court Ruling

Action by the Michigan Supreme Court in permitting the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to begin burying more than 1,000 PBB-contaminated cows in a clay-lined vault in Oscoda County was not too surprising.

Court decisions are usually based on facts, not emotions, and testimony of witnesses in three circuit court hearings held in Oscoda County has indicated that the state has taken all necessary precautions to prevent environmental contamination.

At some point in this matter, citizens must accept an answer to settle this controversy. Even though all persons do not always agree with court rulings, laws are the basis of our society and a supreme court ruling is the highest authority in Michigan.

Further physical confrontation by those opposing the burial—especially the threat of using firearms to prevent the DNR from carrying out this court mandate—would be anarchy in its highest form and could lead to serious consequences for those taking part.

It is just too bad that candidates for state political offices entered this sordid picture to drum up votes.

A Dividing Line

Two members of Iosco County Board of Commissioners are presently engaged in a flap with county officers over printing of departmental letterheads.

David George and John Webb of the commission have expressed opinions that printing the name of the department head (an elected official) on a governmental letterhead constitutes personal or political advertising for that official and have recommended that a resolution be adopted by the commission prohibiting the practice.

The county clerk, treasurer, register of deeds and sheriff disagree with the commissioners, maintaining that printing the name of the office holder on a letterhead is, and always has been, standard procedure in this county and with governmental units throughout the state; furthermore, these elected officials maintain that they are solely responsible for operation of their offices and the commission is overstepping its legislative authority with such a proposed directive.

From this corner's viewpoint, the printing of an elected official's name on a departmental letterhead is not political advertising in any sense—it is a businesslike means of identifying the department head. If the opposite viewpoint was carried to the extreme, then it could logically be assumed that the printed nameplates in front of each county commissioner's seat on meeting days would be eliminated, too. In both cases, it is a means for the citizen to identify that local official.

From our point of view, this flap has gotten entirely out of hand. There definitely is a dividing line (although it is drawn rather finely at some points) over authoritative functions of elected legislative officials and elected administrative officials—each has prescribed responsibilities under the law and each has a job to carry out.

TODAY'S Meditation
from
The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide
The Upper Room

(Read Matthew 13:10-17)
He that hath ears to hear, let him hear. (Matthew 11:15)

What a day! The landlord would not let the children play on the lawn even though we planted and mowed it; one grape and one lime popsicle and both kids wanted grape; the clean wash dangled from the broken clothesline and my husband came home shouting, "Can't these kids ever pick up their toys?" Feeling unappreciated, but knowing that a soft answer does indeed turn away wrath, I assured him that they would pick the toys up quickly. However, I was left with a feeling of resentment.

Later, I realized that neither of us really heard what the other was saying because we were not saying what we honestly felt. It had been a trying day for both of us; we were seeking love and sympathy from each other, sure that our need was the greater.

Now, I realize that if we listen with our heart, we can hear the still, small voice of God that attunes us to hear others.

PRAYER
Father, help us to be good listeners. Teach us to listen to others that You may help us discern their real need. Thank You for listening to us and sending Your Son to fulfill our needs. Amen.

Howard Haight, Community Relations Manager, East Tawas, offers you this telephone tip:

Teach your children how to use the phone in an emergency!

Anyone can have an emergency at home that calls for fast, intelligent use of the phone . . . a sudden illness, accident, fire. Hopefully, you already have a list in your phone book or elsewhere near the phone, giving the numbers of your doctor, hospital, poison control, police, fire department and your home address. But, if you have children at home, would they know how to use the phone in an emergency? Make sure they do.

Show them where you keep the emergency numbers and how to call the operator, if necessary. Your babysitter should be told who to call, too. Know if 911 can be dialed for fire, medical and police help in your area. Nobody likes to think about emergencies at home. But, it's better to give it a little thought now, than be sorry you didn't later. Why not check out the family on your emergency phone call procedure right now?

Northern Michigan Growth Subject of Ferris Conference

A governor's conference on Northern Michigan growth will be held at Ferris State College, Big Rapids, Thursday and Friday, August 17-18. According to Gov. William G. Milliken, the conference "marks the first major effort in Michigan to look at all the problems of rapid community growth in a comprehensive way with emphasis on housing, municipal facilities, crime, employment, social services, health care, education, transportation, recreation and finances."

Governor Milliken will invite a representative group of mayors, village presidents, county commissioners, township supervisors and other local officials from some of Northern Michigan's fastest-growing areas to tell about their experiences and problems regarding growth. Tawas City-East Tawas is one of 10 areas of rapid growth to be highlighted.

Conference participants will be asked to draft recommendations for possible state action and policy consideration. The emphasis will be on making better use of existing state programs. Governor Milliken has asked all major state agency directors to attend the conference so they can provide answers about current state policies.

Citizens who wish to attend the conference may register between 8:00 and 9:00 a. m. on Thursday, August 17, at Starr Auditorium, Big Rapids. Dormitory rooms will be available to conference participants at a nominal fee. Reservations may be made by contacting Thomas Cook, conference coordinator, at 616/796-9971, extension 251, or by writing Governor's Northern Michigan Growth Conference, Ferris State College, Big Rapids, Michigan 49307. Copies of the conference agenda are available from Iosco County Cooperative Extension Service at 362-3449.

large rivers, some in spring, to deposit their spawn.

The sturgeon is a ground feeder and uses its projecting wedge-shaped snout to stir up the soft lake bottom. Sensitive barbels in back of the snout detect shells, crustaceans and small fishes on which they feed. Being destitute of teeth, they are unable to seize larger prey.

One of the distinguishing features of this unusual fish is the 11 to 13 bony shields along the back and from 29 to 31 along the side of the body.

The sturgeon became so rare in English waters that it was included as a royal fish and the lord mayor of London could claim all sturgeons caught in the Thames River above London Bridge.

An occasional sturgeon is caught during winter months in the deep water of Mullet Lake of Northern Michigan, but it is believed that the last sturgeon taken locally was about 25 years ago.

John Dingle of Oscoda gained local fame as "Sturgeon Johnny" when he jumped on the back of a sturgeon below Foote Dam. The fish had made its spawning run up the AuSable River until it could proceed no further because of the dam.

Despite being severely bruised in the struggle, Dingle was successful in capturing the monster fish, which weighed over 100 pounds. He soon got into trouble over the resulting publicity concerning his feat, being summoned into court by conservation officials for capturing a protected species of fish.

The era of the sturgeon in the Great Lakes is practically forgotten, but it will be recalled soon when a copy of the photograph recently discovered by Lixey is displayed at the Iosco County Museum at East Tawas.
