

School Board to Interview Three Architectural Firms

Three different architectural firms are to meet with Tawas Area Board of Education on July 24 to explain services available in a building program for the school district.

One architectural firm is to be hired by the school district to make plans for a classroom addition at the Tawas City Elementary Unit.

This action was in line with approval by voters last week of the transfer of $210,000 in delinquent tax money to a building and site fund. Supt. Robert Halle believed that only three or four classrooms could be constructed with that amount of money.

Public reading of proposed changes to school board policy concerning discipline changes in the student handbook is to be held at the July 10 meeting.

Council Exercises Option

City Hall Site Expansion OK'd

Tawas City Council Monday night voted to exercise its option to purchase land adjoining the present city hall as a site for a proposed new city hall-fire hall-library complex.

Approval came on a three to two roll call vote of councilmen. In favor of the move were Coun. Charles Landon, James Lansky and Hugo Keiser; opposed were Mayor Herbert Cholger and Coun. Robert Rollin.

Absent from the meeting were Coun. Jerry Cotter and William Ezo, both of whom had previously expressed support of the land purchase.

Council action approved purchase of land presently occupied by a dwelling and cabins located west of the city hall owned by Audrey Adamek. The city had taken an option on the property in April at a sale price of $65,000.

Discussion on the proposal opened with Mayor Cholger reading a prepared statement which he had made over a local radio station Monday in opposition to the present city hall site for the proposed new complex.

The mayor questioned justification of spending tax money at this time on a new complex when a merger issue was being considered in the Tawas.

He also reiterated his opinion that the present city hall site was valuable for commercial development of Lake Street, that purchase of further commercial frontage would reduce the city's tax base, that it was the wrong location for a fire hall due to the traffic factor on US-23, that 90 percent of the growth of the city and need for fire protection was on the north side of the river.

Coun. Hugo Keiser expressed the opinion that the mayor's comments on radio were "irresponsible" in the light that a committee appointed by the council had studied the project for 1½ years and recommended the present city hall site for the proposed new project.

He felt there was nothing wrong in stating an opinion, but believed that all the facts should have been given by the mayor, especially concerning the committee's recommendation.

Keiser said, too, that regardless of the outcome of a consolidation movement, he felt that city offices, a library and fire hall would still be required. He pointed out that a problem still existed "down the line" concerning rental of a fire hall annex and the city library in a private building owned by Councilman Rollin.

Serving on the committee which studied the city hall proposal were three members of the council, Cotter, Landon and Ezo, along with Leonard Hosbach, representing the Tawas City Businessmen's Association, and Nelson Thornton of the planning commission.

When the proposal was presented to the council in April, Cotter, who was chairman of the committee, said that 10 different sites had been studied, "but the committee always came back to the present location as being the most practical." He felt that development of the complex on the present city hall site could be a catalyst for commercial development in the block.

Mayor Cholger expressed the opinion that findings of the committee concerning sites had never really been discussed with the council and he felt further discussion was needed.

The mayor polled all councilmen concerning their views on the proposal. Landon said he had not changed his opinion and believed that the present city hall site was the proper location for the complex, as did Lansky, and both favored expansion of the site through the property purchase.

Rollin agreed with the mayor and expressed the belief that a better location would be on the north side of the river.

Preliminary plans for a city hall complex were developed last year when an application was made for federal funds, but that application for public works funding was unsuccessful.

The present city hall was constructed in 1924. About five years ago, the council considered construction of a new front and doors on the building. It was recently approved for a federal grant to assist in energy saving improvements.

The council's action Monday night turned the matter over to the city's new building authority to determine methods for financing purchase of the additional property.

IOSCO COUNTY Building Authority opened bids last Friday on construction of additions and alterations to the Iosco County Building and Jail.

County Building Construction Costs Higher Than Anticipated

Low bid on additions and alterations to the county building and jail was $77,000 higher than original architectural estimates, but design changes were credited with adding $60,000 to the higher cost.

This was the word Friday afternoon when the Iosco County Building Authority opened bids on the proposed project. All bids were received and were to be studied before letting a contract today (Wednesday) at a joint meeting of the building authority and Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

Low bidder on the project was Davison and Son of Tawas City, which entered a price of $387,977. Three other bids included Gregory Construction Company, Saginaw, $464,000; Mako Construction Company, Lincoln, $493,775; R. C. Hendrick and Son, Saginaw, $546,000.

Because of the wide difference between the low bid and the high bid, Atty. Kenneth Myles of the building authority emphasized that the county's building and grounds committee and architect, John Dye of Oscoda, should closely check the bids to insure that all specifications were being met.

Myles said, too, that changes would be required for the proposed revenue bond issue which is to finance this project as well as removal of the former George A. Prescott house and converting that property into a parking lot.

He believed that the total bond issue, which is to be repaid through federal revenue sharing money paid into the county general fund, would have to be increased to approximately $520,000.

The building authority is to own the building additions and would lease them to the county until the bond issue is paid off in 10 years.

Late changes in plans contributing an additional $60,000 cost was a basement under the district court wing which provides much needed storage facilities and a modification in plans for the rear of the county jail.

Myles said that about 60 days would be required for approval of bonds from the Municipal Finance Commission and about 10 days would be required for bond sale advertising. He said, however, that construction could legally be commenced before that time.

The proposal calls for expansion of vault space in the three county offices, expansion of the circuit court wing, construction of a new district court wing, moving the county board of commissioners into the former quarters of the district court, conversion of the present board of commissioners' room into offices and expansion of parking.

Additional River Mouth Land Purchase Not a Top Priority

A two-member delegation from the Tawas City Businessmen's Association urging purchase of additional property at the Tawas River mouth was told by the Tawas City Council that purchase of the property was not included in the city's present priorities.

In April, the owner of the Craystone building at 813-815 Lake Street offered to sell the property to the city at a cost of $58,500. After discussing the matter and studying property appraisals, the council decided not to accept the offer.

Benjamin Brewer, representing the businessmen's association, told the council Monday night that the association had taken a positive attitude concerning the property and believed it would be in the best interest of the city to purchase it.

Brewer said the association believed that this was an opportune time to purchase the property and that it would not decrease in cost in the future.

Leonard Hosbach of the association expressed the opinion that the city could borrow money to finance the purchase and then repay the money in the future with the inflated dollar. He felt that the property value would increase in the future.

Mayor Herbert Cholger said the council had studied the matter and believed that a need must be established for the property before it could be purchased. He did not feel that a need had been established.

Coun. Hugo Keiser pointed out that the city was considering a number of major projects, including equipment purchases, the US-23 storm drain, possible construction of two bridges and was considering construction of a new city hall complex.

He said that purchase of the property was a matter of funding, that the appraisal did not match the proposed sale price and that the matter had been set aside because other projects had a higher priority.

Because of its importance to future development of the river mouth, Hosbach expressed the opinion that citizens would gladly pay an additional tax to acquire the property.

Brewer asked the council to study the matter further and emphasized that the council would receive the association's support in any action.

In other business, the council approved a $1 per month increase in rates requested by General Cable Television and took further action to deregulate the franchise with the cable company pertaining to rate provisions. Following a public hearing, it was the feeling of the council that a rate increase was justified. Despite its action in deregulating rates, the council has the power to exercise its control over rates in the future if it so desires.

The council voted to pay $134 to the fire department which had been withheld from the firemen's roll call billing last month following a tie vote.

During a discussion on bills June 5, Coun. James Lansky pointed out that past practice had been for the council to deny payment of a bill when the fire department answered a call outside its jurisdiction.

Fire Chief Herbert Blust appeared before the council and stated that the department had answered a call on Miller Road which was the dividing line between the area handled under contract by volunteer fire departments of the Tawas.

He said that when the department arrived at the scene, "we realized it was not our fire." He did not believe, however, that it would be a responsible act for firemen to turn around and return to the fire barn and not answer the call. Lansky said he did not advocate that, but believed that the East Tawas Fire Department should have been notified of the fire in Baldwin Township.

Blust said he was not there to argue about the city paying the bill, but he pointed out that similar calls would be received in the future. He said that the department had distributed fire department phone number stickers to all property owners within the city, plus Tawas and Alabaster Townships, in an effort to improve fire protection. He said that the stickers were included with tax statements last year, but apparently many had been lost or misplaced by the property owner.

He said that when the department has equipment and men at the scene, regardless of location, he was going to lay hose and put the fire out.

All members of the council agreed with the fire chief and unanimously adopted a resolution making it a matter of city policy that firemen would be paid, irregardless of the location of a fire.

New Subdivisions Add Residential Sites at E. Tawas

Plans for development of two new subdivisions at East Tawas were given tentative approval Monday night by the city council.

Spicer Engineering Company was authorized to proceed with a detailed plat of residential lots for Eastland No. 2 Subdivision which involves the remainder of the city-owned portion of property comprising the former airport. Included in the plat would be a small park.

The council was also favorable to a plat submitted to the planning commission for a subdivision proposed by Bolen Development Corporation. The property is located in the same vicinity as the city's new subdivision and the plat is being prepared by Spicer Engineering Company.

Development of the two new subdivisions would make additional residential building sites available in the city.

In other business, the council instructed that two-hour parking signs be installed in certain areas of the residential district on the fringe area of the commercial area. Several property owners east of Newman Street complained that employees of business places were parking cars along a residential street rather than to utilize a parking lot furnished west of Newman Street for employee parking purposes.

On review of a tentative plan submitted to the planning commission for new construction and development at Geni's Restaurant, Dwight F. Horton, owner, was requested to present the plan to the building inspector for preliminary approval. The council indicated it was pleased with the tentative plan but stated it wished to insure that an ordinance provision was being followed. According to the ordinance, a restaurant is permitted only in conjunction with a motel in that zone.

Spicer Engineering Company submitted a plan for reconstruction of sidewalks along the Newman Street business district and established a grade for sidewalk elevation. Possible reconstruction of sidewalks on a special assessment basis with commercial property owners is to be presented for consideration of the businessmen's association.

Named to fill two vacancies on the zoning board of appeals were Robert Elliott, a member of the planning commission, and Larry Wingrove. Recently resigning from the zoning board of appeals were Leonard Sarki and Merton Killey.

Meetings of the council have been delayed one week during July due to the Fourth of July holiday. The next meeting of the council is to be July 10 and the second meeting is to be July 24.

The council gave approval to Tawas Kiwanis Club to conduct a peanut sale on July 3-4. Timothy O'Connor received approval to operate a popcorn concession cart during the summer months.

Minor Hurts in Motorbike Crash

Bryan D. Carl, Atlanta, Georgia, received minor injuries Wednesday when his motorbike skidded on US-23 at Aulerich Road in Baldwin Township.

Michigan State Police from East Tawas said that Carl was east bound on the highway and swerved to avoid a vehicle entering US-23 from Aulerich Road.

Speaker Recalls Museum's Benefactor at Dedication

"Museums are a record of our changing society; they tell us much about our past, but they also tell us of an appreciation of our present," stated John Cumming, director of Clarke Historical Library, Mt. Pleasant, during his address at Saturday's dedication of the new Iosco County Museum and Tawas Bay Art Gallery.

Cumming was one of four speakers during the program, all of whom emphasized the role of the late Joseph Barkman in bringing the dream of a museum and art gallery to fruition. Barkman, long time businessman, provided in his will that his collection of historical artifacts be turned over to the county, along with a gift of money matched by his family to establish a trust fund to support the institution.

"I look about me here today expecting to see Joseph Barkman. I feel that he is here, although I cannot see him. He makes his presence felt here in the Tawas, not only through this museum which we are dedicating here today, but also through the many good deeds which he performed while living," said Cumming.

When this community honored Barkman as citizen of the year in 1968, one of the speakers praised him for his gifts, including the land for the hospital and the Tawas Masonic Temple. The speaker called him "The Angel of the Tawas."

"He was a generous man, a kind man and a quiet, gentle man. Those of us who enjoyed the privilege of his acquaintance were aware that he was a good man," said Cumming.

The speaker from CMU emphasized that the community was undertaking an important project, "one in which you are committing yourselves and which I hope you do not underestimate. Joseph Barkman and others have entrusted to your care valuable historic relics. Over the years, others will entrust to you items of value. They will do so in full conviction that you will take good care of them and preserve them.

"You are not only making this promise to the donors today; but you are also committing your children and your grandchildren to the care of these valuable materials. Think through carefully the responsibility that you have assumed," he stated.

Carlton Merschel, chairman of the county board of commissioners, had special praise for Harris Barkman, president of the Iosco County Historical Society, who had been the driving force to see establishment of the museum. Merschel also paid tribute to those persons who originated the historical society in 1967.

A ribbon cutting ceremony was held at the front door of the museum and art gallery, formerly the residence of the late L. G. McKay Sr. on US-23. Officiating at the ribbon cutting were Barkman and Joan Blust, president of Tawas Bay Artists.

Refreshments were served to several hundred visitors during the day and guided tours were made of the museum and grounds.

Besides a collection of historical artifacts, record books and photographs, the museum also has an outdoor display including the water turbine from the old Rodman Mill in Wilber Township, the last water powered sawmill in this state. It was saved from the scrap-fer's torch by Arthur Leitz and contributed to the county.

Our Day

FOR AND ABOUT IOSCO TEEN-AGERS

(Lois McCready, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William McCready of Tawas City, has spent the past year in the Republic of South Africa as an exchange student. This is her last letter (dated May 29) before returning home in July.)

Last Thursday, I spent the day in Pietersburg, because on Friday I was going to the Kruger National Park with the five other exchange students in the Rotary District and our Youth Exchange committeemen.

Tenly (Australian) and I entered at Phalaborwa, but did not see anything too exciting that day—impala, kudu, giraffe in the distance, ostrich. . . We stopped at Letaba Camp for lunch and it overlooks the Olifant River. We could see eight elephants drinking from the river in one place. Then, we saw a hippo sleeping in the sun and watched him wade into the water.

We all met at Satara Camp in the afternoon and Tenly and I felt rather down-hearted after hearing that some of the kids who came into camp on a different road than we did had seen two lions and two cheetah.

So, not to be out-done, the next afternoon, after he had driven for over an hour without seeing much of anything, we came to a spot where there were two cars stopped. About one-half a mile earlier we had seen about 50 vultures together, eating off a kill (could not see what it was—hidden by a bush). We expected to see lion, but instead there was a cheetah sitting under a tree. He was far away and all we could see was his head. Sharing the binoculars, we got a good look at him,

As I was looking, I saw a second one stand up and then a third followed. They walked parallel to the road for about one-quarter mile. By this time, there were about eight carloads watching, so we all followed till they came closer to the road. Less than 50 yards from the road a tree was down, and one by one, all three got up on the log in the sun and stretched and put on quite a performance for us.

I had Riana's movie camera and my cameras, so you will feel like you were there seeing it, too! Ma swears they must have been released from a circus because of the show they put on! They climbed off the log and many cars followed them to see if they would cross the road, but we had had such a fantastic view of them that we decided to go on.

About 10 minutes later, we arrived at another spot with a couple of cars stopped. There were four lions on the road. That really made our day!

A couple hours later, we saw two giraffes by a river. They were drinking but when we stopped, they stopped drinking. Each time they started to go down to drink, I started the movie camera, and their ears are so sharp they heard it, and stood back up. I think I got one of them drinking, but if not, he almost was.

On the other side of the river about five minutes later, we found a kudu cow (doe) close to the road on the left. She stood and watched and we were so engrossed in her that we did not see one on the other side, even closer, for a minute. And as we were absorbed in her, one of us glanced to the left again, only to see another cow and buck nearly as close. The buck was gorgeous! Majestic! So we got even closer and he slowly crossed the road about five yards in front of us. Everything was posing beautifully. In my eyes, that movie film is now priceless. Hope it comes out nicely.

When we met the group for lunch, one car reported seeing two bunches of lions totaling 12. I still think our results were best.

The afternoon was quite dead on every road. Saw a couple exciting-enough things on the way out on Sunday. We had seen a few baboons, which ran away from us; then we came to one in the road. He immediately jumped on the car. Tenly kept her cool and rolled her window up, except for the last three inches; the baboon's fingers were on the inside and she was staring at Tenly eye-to-eye. The front window was also up. We were all having a good laugh when another baboon appeared on our side, so we hastily put our windows up. Our baboon sat in the road right next to the car, so I was going to take a picture of him. As I was getting him in focus, something flew right in front of my camera and hit the window, hard. I had an awful fright and just let out a scream, which is one thing I rarely do! For a minute my heart stopped and for 15 minutes afterwards, it was doing overtime! It was just another baboon, but it was a combination of things that scared me: The suddenness, the impact and the complete ignorance as to whether I had rolled my window up! You can just imagine. I am sure that picture is a blur!

Later, we saw elephant very close. The closest one was in a triangle of trees, but he was facing us and eating. It was cool—when he opened his mouth we could practically see his tonsils!

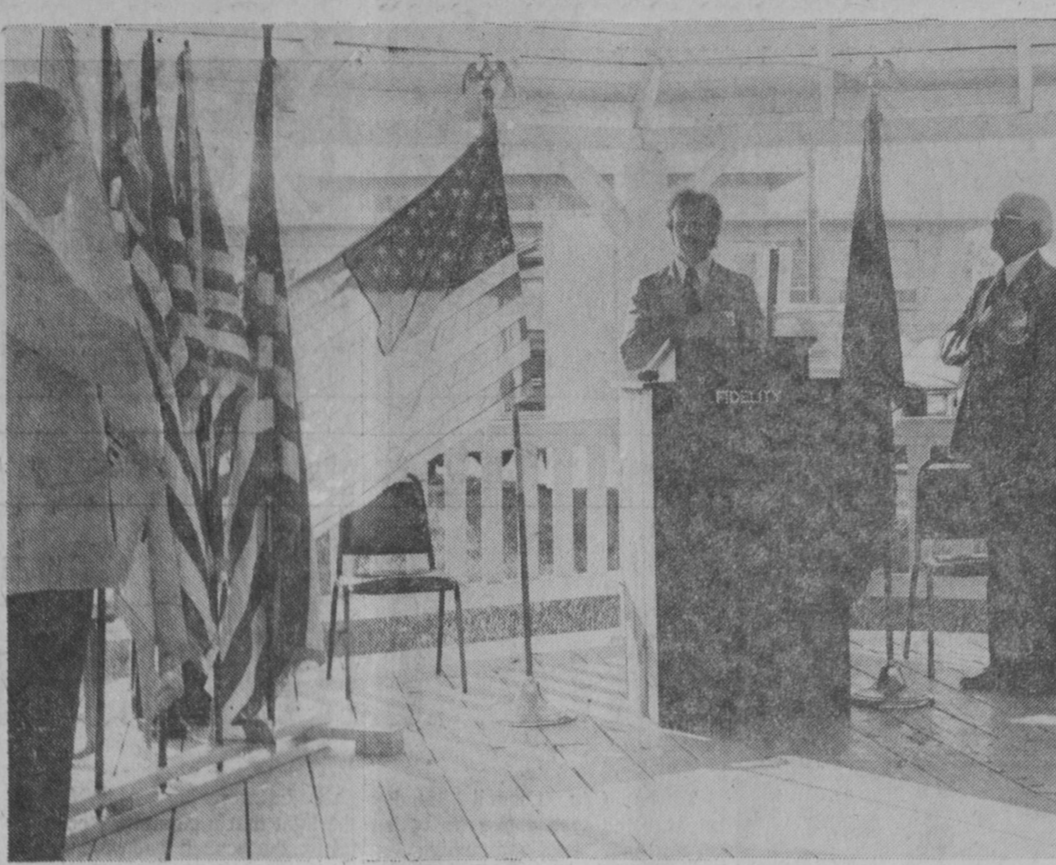

Other things we saw were three jackals, four buffalos, hundreds of monkeys, blou wildebees (in English that is literally "blue wild cow"—it is a gnu), waterbuck, zebra, steenbuck, snakes, crocodile, duiker, warthog, turtle and a variety of birds, including ground horn-bill (looks like turkey). Quite a successful three days, I would say!

This week, the Lehders are taking me to Oudtshoorn in Cape Province on Pa's business trip there, where he is thinking of buying a Coke bottling company. We are going through Blomfontein, which completes my seeing the four province capitals (Pretoria, Transvaal; Pietermaritzburg, Natal; Cape Town, Cape, and Bloemfontein, Orange Free State) as well as the two national capitals (Pretoria and Cape Town).

See you soon!—Lois

Hale Church Scene of Avram - Britt Marriage

Margaret Ann Britt became the bride of Roger Avram Saturday, June 17, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Hale, in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Raymond Moelter.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Britt of Turner. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Avram, also of Turner, are parents of the bridegroom.

Yellow and white gladioli, chrysanthemums and peonies formed the floral background and Nelson Shellenbarger, vocalist, was accompanied by Ann Holzheuer, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of sata peau and Venice lace. The flared skirt flowed to a cathedral train and bands of lace appliques accented the fitted bodice and skirt. A Juliet headpiece secured the lace-edged waltz length veil. She carried a cascade of white carnations, yellow and pink sweethearts roses, white daisies, Stephanotis and babies breath.

Mrs. Benjamin Watkins was matron of honor with Mrs. William Olar, Mrs. Roger Britt, Mrs. Dennis Grabow, Mrs. Martin Janish and Mrs. Richard Champagne as bridesmaids. Deann Britt was flower girl. Their gowns were styled with fitted bodices and tiered skirts. The scooped necklines were accented with pleated ruffles. Yellow roses, white daisies, bronze daisy chrysanthemums, white pompons and babies breath comprised their bouquets. James Avram was best man. Serving as groomsmen were Dennis Grabow, Martin Janish, Roger Britt, Thomas Chmura and Robert Lohr. Ring bearer was Kevin Watkins. Seating guests were Robert Britt and Theodore Selle.

A reception for 700 guests from Mt. Morris, Bay City, Taylor, LaPeer, Pontiac, Panama, Lansing and Chicago, Illinois, followed the ceremony at Au Gres Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall.

TO THE CUSTOMERS OF MICHIGAN CONSOLIDATED GAS COMPANY
Notice of Hearing on a Conservation Program Involving Natural Gas Rates

On June 6, 1977, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company (Applicant) filed an application requesting that the Commission issue rulings and grant approvals in respect to a proposed program for the conservation of natural gas, including a ruling declaring that the program would be a utility function within the scope of the service rendered by Applicant as a public utility and that the cost thereof would be a proper charge to utility cost of service to be collected through a monthly customer surcharge to be added to all of Applicant's rate schedules.

On May 26, 1978, Applicant filed an Amended Application in this proceeding in which it proposes a gas conservation program differing in several respects from the program originally submitted in its application filed on June 6, 1977. Among other things, Applicant proposes (1) in lieu of the new program for residential ceiling insulation previously proposed, to continue with some modifications on an insulation program approved by the Commission in 1973; and (2) in lieu of the installation of reduced orifices in residential furnaces as previously proposed, to recommend to its residential heating customers the derating of furnaces by means of pressure regulation. In the Amended Application, Applicant requests that the Commission approve amendments to its Rules for Gas Service that would permit it to sell gas for lower priority uses for limited periods at its rate for large volume gas service. In the Amended Application, Applicant also requests that the Commission issue its ruling pursuant to Section 63 of 1969 PA 306 declaring that after the proposed gas conservation program became effective, rates would be prescribed for Applicant's Michigan utility service without inclusion of revenues from interstate sales of gas by Applicant to purchasers outside Michigan, in which case Applicant would refund a portion of its revenues from such sales to its customers, as a credit against the surcharge for its conservation program.

Applicant is a Michigan corporation having its principal offices at One Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226, and its Utility Division, which is subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, distributes natural gas at retail to approximately one million customers, all within the State of Michigan.

Applicant states that approximately 877,000, or 88% of its one-million customers are residential heating customers who use natural gas to heat their dwellings, that conservation of energy has become a high priority national goal, and that one of the specifics of that goal is conservation of fuel used for home heating. Applicant states that after implementing a home insulation program approved by the Commission in 1973 it conducted field tests to determine the effectiveness of five different devices designed to improve the efficiency of residential furnaces and reduce the heat loss that occurs through flues and chimneys. After testing those devices during the 1975-76, 1976-77 and 1977-78 heating seasons, Applicant believes that the use of fixed flue restrictors, in combination with the derating of gas furnaces through a reduction in pressure regulation, appears to be the most practical, cost-effective and feasible means of achieving greater residential furnace efficiency.

Applicant has prepared and submitted to the Commission an amended plan for implementation of a gas conservation program which would incorporate with some modifications its existing home insulation plan and would promote the installation by its residential space heating customers of furnace retrofit devices such as the fixed flue restrictor in combination with derating of furnaces through adjustment of pressure regulation.

Applicant proposes to form a subsidiary corporation (referred to herein as Conservation Company), which will be subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, to take over the administration of Applicant's present ceiling insulation program approved by the Commission on October 5, 1973, in Case No. U-1404, and to assume the further task of contacting all of Applicant's residential heating customers for the purpose of conducting an energy audit (if, as anticipated, such an audit is mandated by the National Energy Act), and urging such customers, if qualified, to install ceiling insulation and furnace retrofit devices pursuant to standards to be set by the Commission. Applicant also requests that amendments to its present ceiling insulation program be approved which would (a) eliminate any requirement for a down payment by the customer, (b) permit installment payments over forty-eight months instead of thirty-six, and (c) reduce the interest rate on installment sales from 1% per month to 3/4% of 1% per month. Conservation Company will secure financing sufficient to enable it to carry out all the elements of the gas conservation program.

Applicant proposes that Conservation Company would cause insulation and furnace retrofit devices to be installed for its qualified residential heating customers by licensed heating contractors, meeting qualifications approved by the Commission, who would act as subcontractors to Conservation Company. Subcontractors for particular installations would be selected by the customer, or by Conservation Company, on the basis of competitive bids.

Applicant would contract to remit to Conservation Company monthly, all collections of a monthly customer surcharge to be added to all of Applicant's rate schedules, to pay the costs incurred by Conservation Company for labor, interest, income and other taxes, advertising, general administrative costs, uncollectible accounts and an aftertax return on equity of 15%.

Applicant requests, among other things, that the Commission issue its ruling, finding that the implementation of the gas conservation program proposed in its Amended Application constitutes a utility function within the scope of Applicant's utility operations and that the costs of administering and implementing the program, including the payments to Conservation Company, be recovered through a monthly customer surcharge which Applicant requests the Commission to authorize Applicant to add to all of its rate schedules for gas service for a period of eleven years following implementation of the proposed program.

Applicant further requests the Commission to authorize it to delete from its Rule 31 the requirement of obtaining prior Commission approval of limited sales of excess gas for lower priority uses; authorize Applicant to file a new Rate 6 contract for gas sales limited as to time and volumes; find and declare that in the event the gas conservation program is discontinued prior to the expiration of eleven years from the date of approval, the surcharge assessed against all customers shall continue as is necessary for Applicant to recoup its full costs; to find and declare that the costs incurred by Conservation Company, and the surcharge collected by Applicant to pay such costs, shall not be deemed a part of Applicant's cost of service in any proceeding involving Applicant's rates; to find and declare that after implementation of the conservation program, revenues from interstate sales would not be included in determining Applicant's utility rates, with Applicant to make certain refunds respecting such sales should they occur; and to grant Applicant such other and further relief as may in the premises be just.

Since Conservation Company will elect to recognize revenues as they are collected for Federal income tax purposes, Applicant requests the Commission to authorize Conservation Company to debit an account referred to as Provision for Deferred Income Taxes and to credit an account referred to as Accumulated Deferred Income Tax with the amount of the related tax effect as calculated on the difference between revenues accrued and revenues collected by Conservation Company. If so authorized, income taxes deferred will be allocated to the years affected as the revenues accrued are collected.

Applicant's prepared testimony and proposed exhibits in support of its Amended Application will be filed with the Commission on or before July 16, 1978 and will be available for inspection in the office of the Commission Secretary, Mercantile Building, 65-65 Mercantile Way, Lansing, Michigan.

Jurisdiction in this matter is pursuant to 1909 PA 300, as amended, MCLA 462.2 et seq.; 1919 PA 419, as amended, MCLA 460.51 et seq.; 1939 PA 3, as amended, MCLA 460.1 et seq.; 1969 PA 306, as amended, MCLA 24.201 et seq.; and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 1954 Administrative Code, 1968 Annual Supplement, R 460.11 et seq.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that:

A. A public hearing will be held at 9:30 a.m. on July 10, 1978 in the offices of the Commission, Mercantile Building, 6545 Mercantile Way, Lansing, Michigan, for the purpose of commencing cross-examination of Applicant's witnesses. Hearings will continue thereafter from day to day or on such adjourned dates as the presiding officer may set. Any interested parties may attend the hearings and participate, subject to the provisions of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure.

B. Any party seeking to intervene, in accordance with Rule 11 of the Rules of Practice and Procedure Before the Commission, shall file with the Commission, on or before July 5, 1978, an original and 12 copies of a petition to intervene, together with proof of service upon Applicant.

Subparagraph (2) of said Rule 11 provides as follows:

"(2) A petition to intervene shall set out clearly and concisely the facts supporting the petitioner's alleged right or interest, the grounds of the proposed intervention, and the position of the petitioner in the proceeding, so as fully and completely to advise the parties and the commission of the specific issues of fact or law to be raised or controverted." (Emphasis added).

The Commission will require strict compliance with the above-quoted rule.

C. William Ezo Resigns TC Council Post

William Ezo, who had been elected to one four-year term and was re-elected to another four-year term expiring in 1981, submitted a letter of resignation Monday night to the Tawas City Council.

Ezo's letter said his resignation was based on his assumption of new business responsibilities.

According to terms of the city charter, the council has 30 days in which to fill the vacancy. The appointee would fill the position until the next regular city election in 1979. If no appointment is made, a special election would be required.

It was indicated at Monday night's meeting that the council would consider an appointment at the next regular meeting on Monday, July 10. That meeting has been delayed one week due to the Fourth of July holiday.

In other business, the city attorney submitted an opinion requested by the council in regard to status of property at the intersection of Cedar Street and Maple Street. Frank Wilkuski, owner of Lot 5, Block 7, Hazen's Addition, had suggested the city purchase all or a portion of the lot because of the encroachment of the city street on private property.

Although pointing out that the street encroachment had existed for 40 years and that 15 years was all that was necessary for the city to prove ownership by adverse possession through court action, the city attorney's letter suggested the council may wish to avoid costly litigation through a negotiated settlement.

The problem was brought to light several months ago by the property owner, who said he had a buyer interested in that lot and adjoining property. The problem is compounded by the fact that the street is narrow and that several older homes had been built on the street right-of-way which shifted the roadway.

No action was taken on the matter.

Tawas Bay Aerie No. 2588, Fraternal Order of Eagles, received permission to hold a circus July 4 on property owned by L. G. McKay east of the city park.

Tawas Kiwanis Club was given permission to conduct a peanut sale on July 3.

Correction of a deed on property formerly owned by Mahar Pattern Company in the Ninth Avenue industrial park was approved by the council.

The city manager reported that the state highway department had approved a contract for constructing a new storm drain on US-23 south of the Tawas River bridge. The state is to advertise for bids on the project and the city's estimated cost would be $48,400.

The city manager reported that he had met with John D. LeClair concerning a possible trade of land in the industrial park for lots owned by the LeClairs along Ninth Avenue. The property owner indicated he was not interested in the industrial site for a proposed warehouse. Following a public hearing two weeks ago, the council denied a request from the LeClairs to rezone lots on Ninth Avenue from residential to industrial.

A report from the planning commission indicated that plans had been made for establishing roads in the Ninth Avenue industrial park and that preliminary plans had been received for establishing industrial sites in the 40 acres to the west of that property recently purchased by the city.

Northern Counties Propose Crime Lab-Training Program

Iosco County Board of Commissioners is studying entry into a cooperative program with other Northern Michigan area counties to train law enforcement officers in techniques relative to general crime scene investigations.

In addition, the goal of the combined efforts of counties is to provide a mobile crime unit to enhance those services and to train individual police officers in the technique of processing crime scenes with the aid of a mobile facility.

Representatives of Northern Counties Evidence Services, Incorporated, told local commissioners that a nonprofit corporation had been formed to achieve those goals. Cost of participation for each county has been established at $5,000 annually. All directors of the corporation, composed of sheriffs, prosecutors and chiefs of police, serve without compensation.

Representatives of NCES said that major crime cases are very often lost or made at the scene, depending on how the physical evidence is handled. Inadequate handling and detection of evidence may be costly to the counties. It often results in dismissal of cases in court or plea bargaining where the evidence is nonexistent, weak or nonadmissible due to poor handling.

Major crime scenes, including arson, have to be secured immediately, tediously examined by trained evidence technicians. Evidence has to be carefully collected, packaged, identified and examined. The chain of evidence has to be maintained for later court trial. A mistake can result in a "blown" case midway in trial with a large financial loss to the county in trial costs.

In 1974, the state crime commission recommended to the governor and the legislature that a forensic evidence laboratory be established at Grayling by 1976 to serve the northern area. At present, a small laboratory is located at Grayling, although it is not equipped for evidence examination in major crimes.

There are plans to establish a state laboratory at Grayling and legislation has been introduced. Representatives of NCES point out that plans call for staffing with technicians to examine evidence brought in, not to examine at the scene of major crimes.

"We need a service to examine and collect evidence promptly at major crime scenes. We need to train certified evidence technicians for all law enforcement agencies in the area," stated the NCES representatives.

Objective of the new organization is to train law enforcement officers of Northern Michigan in techniques relative to general crime scene investigations; to be able to find, collect and preserve physical evidence such as blood, hair, fabric, tire tracks, foot impressions and trace evidence associated with clothing.

Officers would also be trained in processing and gathering latent fingerprints; in depth investigation of homicides, suicides and all other questionable deaths; collecting and preserving all firearms evidence; basic investigation of suspicious fires.

Goal of the organization is to provide a mobile unit to enhance the above services and to train an individual police officer in each county in the technique of processing crime scenes with the aid of a mobile facility, as well as in the handling and preservation of physical evidence for courtroom presentation.

Representatives of the group said that such a service has to be financed by the counties as past experience has shown that funding at state and federal levels is too lengthy a procedure. There is no assurance that financing can be obtained for the northern area as past experience has shown that major funding is south of Town Line 16.

One and probably two mobile evidence vans would be provided to serve the region. Law enforcement officers of the county would receive 180 hours of training which would graduate them as certified evidence technicians. It was said that savings would be affected to the county in evidence collection and transportation for examination.

A proposed contract with other counties involved in the new corporation is to be discussed at today's (Wednesday) meeting of the county board of commissioners. If adopted, the county commission, sheriff and prosecuting attorney would each be entitled to one vote for election of members to the corporation's board of directors.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH and this newspaper joins with residents in honoring Iosco County's dairy farmers. Although many smaller dairy farms have gone out of business in recent years, dairy production is still an important source of income in this county, particularly in Burleigh Township, along M-55 in Tawas and Grant Township and portions of Reno and Plainfield Townships.—Tawas Herald Photo.

'SILVER JACK'

Nearly every book written concerning Michigan's lumbering era includes at least one chapter or makes some reference to one of the state's most colorful characters, John "Silver Jack" Driscoll, the most notorious brawler in the history of the state.

Michigan's lumber wood produced many hard men, but none harder than "Silver Jack."

He became so famous that others counterfeited the name of this hard boiled character and it becomes difficult to separate truth from fiction concerning his escapades, as it would have been impossible for one man to have appeared in so many different areas of the state—all at the same time!

Many feats attributed to the real "Silver Jack" were actually committed by his imitators.

The late Roy McMurray of Tawas City, who grew to manhood in the Tawas, always insisted that the real "Silver Jack" made at least one excursion to East Tawas to challenge one of the local toughs. The story is lost with McMurray's passing a number of years ago, but anyone interested in reading about Driscoll can go to the local library where he will find a wide variety of titles concerning his times.

But one can scarcely think of the Saginaw, AuSable or AuGres Rivers without recalling those boisterous, burly sons of the forest, the lumberjacks who came to town from their winter camps in the north woods.

The old time lumberjack was a colorful fellow—that cannot be denied. He was not essentially a bad fellow, but he worked hard all winter in the woods and, by the very nature of his work, had to be strong and healthy.

When spring came, he had his pockets full of money just itching to be spent and he had to come to the shore towns to blow off steam.

He did not fight because he was angry but because he loved to fight. Every camp had its champion and any camp would bet its last dollar that its man could put the boots to the other camp's favorite. Most local peace officers just stood aside or acted as a referee for impromptu street bouts—no one, of course, thought of interfering.

Herbert Nolan, an early day lumberjack on the Tittabawasee River and one who enjoyed a good scrap as well as the next fellow, has recorded one of the few authentic incidents of rough and tumble fighting in the AuSable River region.

Nolan left a vivid picture of early day Potts Headquarters, later called McKinley, on the AuSable River. Now a ghost town popular with summer tourists and fishermen, McKinley was the center of operations for John Potts' huge lumbering interests and was the site of the machine shop for his railroad, later to be called the AuSable and Northwestern.

"There was a tough town called Potts Headquarters on the AuSable River. There was the soft end of the town, where you got off the train and a half-mile south was the hard end of the town. Every other door was a saloon or gambling house where they played for high stakes and several gamblers have paid with their lives," wrote Nolan.

His memoirs record several of his fistic encounters in this now forgotten town along the AuSable River.

Another Michigan lumberjack who wrote of his personal experiences in the camps and recorded tales of bare knuckle brawling was Daniel Carey, who died in 1953. His later years were spent in the service of the Michigan State Police and the Michigan State Highway Department.

In this day and age of expanded law enforcement with county, state, city and township police agencies, it is difficult for one to picture a street brawl involving a hundred or more men, but that did happen right here in the Tawas.

Today's population is actually about the same as it was in the 1880s, but the county sheriff and his one deputy of yesterday could never handle any major melee—even if he harbored any ill advised thought of so doing.

For instance, the Iosco County Gazette recorded in July 1882 that "a thousand men or more have lately passed through this place bound for the river drive." What sheriff in his right mind would have attempted to interfere in any fight which may have broken out among such a tough group of men?

The major change, however, has been in the attitude of people. Call it a process of "civilization," if you will, but the individual who considers himself "handy with his dukes" is usually given a wide berth by most people and if a fight does develop, the combatants usually find themselves in jail for the night and in district court the next day.

It is not that long ago that this change in attitude toward common street brawling was affected and it probably has been a continuous process since the days when disputes were settled on the "field of honor." Too, in the memories of most middle-aged men, one can recall that practically every new kid moving into town had to prove himself by taking on his peers with his fists. That custom is not as prevalent today, although a bloody nose might still be the result now and then.

Local attitudes toward street fighting probably began to change with the end of the lumbering era in the late 1890s and, by 1913, a street brawl of any consequence in Tawas City had become such a rare event that the local editor recorded one in a front page story entitled, "A Disgraceful Affair."

Portions of the 1913 article are as follows: "One of the most disgusting scenes that ever soiled the name of our fair city took place on the evening of July 3 on the street in front of one of the saloons which were voted back into existence this spring.

"The affair, which reminded one (See FIGHTERS, page 6.)

THIS WAS TAWAS CITY'S main drag (Lake Street) when the last no holds barred, eye gouging, ear chomping fight took place on its sand and sawdust covered street. Newspaper files indicate it was the scene of many a pitched battle in its early history as peace officers were unable to bring order.

The Professor Almost Blew It!

A Kirtland College instructor, who was giving a "pep talk" Wednesday to Iosco County Commissioners to encourage this county's participation in a new training program for law enforcement officers, almost blew the whole thing when he criticized commissioners for being stingy in regard to salaries paid to police officers.

After one representative of Northern Counties Evidence Services, Incorporated, had practically convinced commissioners that an expenditure of $5,000 in county funds for training sheriff's department officers would be a good investment, the Kirtland man stung commissioners with the statement that an annual salary of $11,000 for local law enforcement officers was far out of line with the $18,000 and higher salaries paid for the same people in the metropolitan areas.

The Kirtland spokesman, a former detective with the Detroit City Police, bragged that he had received over $25,000 when he was a cop and felt his "brother officers" in the north were being short-changed. He said that once the officers received specialized training, they could get higher pay in the metropolitan areas as their training would be comparable.

Jack Allen, commissioner from Oscoda, exploded with indignation over the statement and pointed out in no uncertain terms that he did not believe the instructor knew anything about financing of this county's operation; that Iosco's tax revenue is locked in according to the allocated millage and valuation and, further, that many different departments, besides police, were looking for a share of that revenue. "There is just so much to go around," said Allen.

David George, commissioner from AuSable, pointed out that the average annual income received by Iosco County taxpayers was slightly more than $5,000 and that in no way could a comparison be made with the salaries paid to police officers here and those in Wayne County. He said, too, that salaries paid to high income auto plant workers had a direct bearing on salaries paid to police and other employees in the metropolitan areas and, while the pay was not as high, this area offered other advantages not to be found in metropolitan areas.

Joseph Fox, commissioner from Tawas City, commented that the Detroit Police Department and other metropolitan departments would soon find themselves in a financial bind, due to the fact that those departments had utilized federal CETA funds for salaries, which is contrary to federal guidelines. He said new rulings would strengthen those guidelines and some cities would have to look to other sources to finance police operations.

This newspaper is not reporting the above with any view, pro or con, concerning this county's participation in a program to train its police officers. The county board of commissioners will study the program and make a decision.

As Sheriff George Westcott pointed out to commissioners, courts expect police officers to have evidence in criminal cases "letter perfect" and only through continued training for preservation of evidence at the scene can police agencies function properly. Everyone will agree that his statement is reasonable.

What we do point out, however, is that some public servants like the Kirtland instructor had better get their heads out of the clouds. One only needs to read the daily papers and he will learn that a national recession has been predicted by economists within six months, unless something changes; that this problem has been precipitated by runaway inflation; that salaries of public service employees are currently being frozen in many areas; that the rising revolt of taxpayers across the land will and has already been felt in the state and even in the local area, where one school district which had never lost a millage vote in its history had one defeated in the recent annual election.

The Kirtland instructor left us cold and angry. In fact, we would say his training program is being duplicated by many other community colleges in this state and perhaps it would be a good place to start saving tax money by eliminating some of that duplication of services.

The facility also provides housing for 55 youths with seven sharing a cottage under supervision. During the slide presentation, the need for contributions for guardian angels was pointed out.

Committee chairmen served as hostesses. The organization will adjourn for the summer months.

TODAY'S Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

(Read Luke 9:28-36)

"The glory of the Lord shone around them." (Luke 2:9 RSV)
Vital experiences of the presence of God may not come often. When they do occur, the memory of them becomes a sustaining force.

For example, Moses carried with him the radiance of God's own glory long after his meeting with God. God revealed His intimate presence to Mary at Nazareth, to the shepherds of Bethlehem, to Saul on the Damascus Road. Such moments of exaltation are given, they are not earned.

A person who served in a missionary appointment in the Pacific for many years tells of one such perfect moment, a flash of revelation when God spoke. It inspired and upheld her through demanding conditions over that long period.

The brief drawing aside of the curtain on the Mount of Transfiguration left those privileged men with an unwavering certainty that shaped their future course. Just so those who have beheld God's glory will be sustained in the future.

PRAYER

O Lord, grant that experiences of Your immediate presence may be a continuing influence, directing our aims and claiming our obedience. Amen.

ELWOOD McILMURRAY of Hale is shown shoeing a horse at the Grabow barn in preparation for a race Wednesday night at Wolverine Raceway. He helps his son, Warren, care for a string of six horses as well as operating a GETTING READY for the annual county fair racing circuit in Michigan, which starts this month, is Warren McMurray who, with George Grabow of Whittemore, owns a string of six standard breed harness racing horses. McMurray has been racing each horse once a week at the Jackson Raceway and Wolverine Raceway. Headquarters for the operation is Grabow's barn and practice race track located at Whittemore. Warren is the fourth generation of the McMurray family involved in harness racing. His great grandfather, James, and grandfather, Arthur, both of Whittemore, were noted trainers and drivers in the local harness racing circuit and his father, Elwood of Hale, has been a trainer, driver and starting gate operator for many years. Two of Elwood's brothers, Waldo and Donald McMurray, are long time trainer-drivers at Wolverine Raceway and two of his nephews are now drivers in Michigan's major circuit.

Colonel Bill's Big Top Circus Coming to Hale-Tawas July 3-4

The fabulous Colonel Bill's Big Top Circus and Trained Animal Menagerie is coming to Hale and Tawas on July 3 and 4 under the sponsorship of Hale Band Boosters and Tawas Bay Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, who will use the proceeds, derived from the circus to aid youth activities.

Featured this season will be a grand assortment of trained animals, including Yoxall's Merry Menagerie. One of America's outstanding animal trainers is Capt. Jerry Lange, who will present his jungle maniacs. A newcomer to the circus profession this year is a delightful lady animal trainer named Miss Rosemary, who will be making her circus debut with her uncaged leopard act. This talented lady animal trainer comes from a non-circus background and her husband is an associate prosecuting attorney in one of the larger cities in Michigan. Her father was a physician and she has a degree from the University of Michigan. Her past achievements include major parts in summer stock and Pit and Balcony Playhouse. All of her life, she has wanted to become a lady animal trainer. After raising her family and educating them in various colleges throughout the land, she finally found time to pursue her own lifelong ambition. Her first baby leopard was flown by her from its Florida home only to become ill here in the Michigan climate and die. Her second leopard receives the best of care, and as Rosemary puts it, requires more attention than any of her children.

The Marvelous Marcellis, wizards of the silver strand clever unicycle riders, are unequalled in their performances. The Great Marcellis has appeared in nearly every major fair and circus in the United States. His beautiful wife, Miss Janice, comes from a long line of circus people and the act has been viewed by millions on television and the Hollywood Palace.

There are many other acts on the big top tented circus and special children's tickets have been made available by local area merchants in order that no youngster need miss the show. Other tickets are available at discount prices from local designated ticket outlets or from any member of the organizations sponsoring the circus. The American circus, as it is known today, may fast be vanishing from the American scene, so be sure and take the children to see the circus in its true and original form... under the big top.

of the old days when lumberjacks frequented the town, was caused by men who, in defiance of the law, had been allowed to purchase liquor at the saloon until they were fighting drunk and who entered into an altercation in which blows were struck and language used which violated all the rules of law and decency. And through it all, not an officer lifted his hand to prevent the melee or apprehend the men guilty of the outrage upon law and order.

"It is many years since Tawas City witnessed such a wild orgy as was to be seen on this occasion. If the officials whose duties it is to see that the peace and good order of the city is maintained would do their duty, such affairs would be impossible."

That same summer, the Herald recorded a free-for-all fight on a northbound passenger train of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway between two combatants from Hale and one from Pine River. The trio was arrested at Bay City and the Herald noted that "the railroad will not countenance rioting on its trains. Officials state that prosecutions will follow every instance of the kind where the principals can be apprehended."

The above two brawls were minor compared to one of the last local street fights receiving front page newspaper coverage and was recorded in the May 19, 1922, issue of the Herald.

"One of the most disgraceful affairs that Tawas City has known for many years occurred last Saturday evening when a number of fellows became drunk on moonshine whiskey and engaged in a brawl which reminds one of the old lumber woods days.

"As a result of the fight, John C—has a piece bitten out of one ear, the other ear and his nose also bitten; Harry T—, taken into custody by Sheriff Willard Robinson, charged with doing the biting, was taken before Justice of the Peace Davidson and his hearing set for May 24. He is now out on $3,000 bail. Mayhem is a serious offense and carries with it a heavy sentence if conviction is obtained."

The consequences of becoming involved in common street brawling have become much more severe in recent years and, although there is an occasional melee or two recorded on weekly police blotters, fights of long duration are not recorded frequently.

Today, police agencies do not turn their backs on such fights and improved telephone and radio communications can usually provide enough peace officers to handle any altercation.

If "Silver Jack" could return from the grave he would find no fun in this day and age. This man who actually spent five years of his life in Jackson Prison would not be considered a hero today and no one would record his feats in story and ballads. It is best that his day is past.

By SUSAN LAMBRECHT County Extension Director SAFE FOODS FOR PICNICS

Safe and unsafe foods for picnics?
It is hard to tell. If one knows how to prepare, pack, transport and handle it, it would be easy to say.

One extension service home economist claims that one person might take a reasonably safe food and make it unsafe while another might start with a potentially-hazardous food and make it perfectly safe. Whether a food is safe or unsafe for picnics is somewhat up to the individual. Some foods are more hazardous on picnics and camping trips than others.

A few big favorites just do not go well. Things like mayonnaise mixtures, creamed puddings, sauces, creamed pies and cakes and milk. Of course, they can be taken if kept absolutely icy. Some people, though, just do not include them because they do not want to risk the bacterial growth which these foods encourage.

The most important single factor affecting the outcome of a picnic is menu planning and selection. Disease-producing bacteria prefer certain types of foods. Foods which are high in protein and moisture—eggs, meat, poultry, fish, shellfish, custards, potato salad—need special handling. If facilities are not available for keeping these potentially hazardous foods hot (140 degrees Fahrenheit or above) or cold (40 degrees Fahrenheit or below), do not take them. Instead, plan the menu around canned, preserved or dehydrated foods and fresh fruits and vegetables.

Many picnic and camping trips have turned out to be tragic because people have become ill from eating picnic foods. An estimated one million Americans will suffer some type of food-borne illness this year. Many of these cases of food poisoning will occur on outdoor picnics. Learning safe and unsafe foods is a first step toward prevention. But, do not stop there.

Even a safe food can be made unsafe by improper preparation and packaging. Do not take chances. Do not guess. The local county extension service office is a source of reliable information. Call 362-3449.

Campground Host Program Initiated by National Forest

During this summer season, Huron - Manistee National Forest plans to initiate a campground host program. This program has been highly successful in many areas of the country and seems to be a natural for the many developed campgrounds in national forests in Michigan. The host or hostess, as the case may be, will serve as a ready reference regarding area rules and regulations and will help in establishing a more relaxed, cordial atmosphere in the campground.

The intent of the program is to get on a first name basis with the forest visitors. The host will spend most of the time in routine contact with the users, answering questions about the area, providing various brochures and material and generally serving as the local expert in the campground. This aspect of enriching the visitors' experience will be a time consuming one but one in which the host can take great personal pride.

Individuals may contact one of the district offices for more details about the program. In Tawas contact the United States Forest Service, Federal Building, East Tawas 48730; phone, 1-517-362-4477. The forest service also has offices at Harrisville and Mio.

OUR

Anniversary

This has been a busy and productive year in the "Home of the Brute" at Hale. Production of our wood burning stoves has tripled since introduction last summer; we have expanded our manufacturing facilities and have added two new models. We owe this success to our satisfied customers and extend our appreciation for making this all possible.

IN CELEBRATION OF OUR ANNIVERSARY, WE HAVE DONATED ONE OF OUR BRUTES TO THE PLAINFIELD TOWNSHIP FIRE DEPARTMENT. IT WILL BE THE GRAND PRIZE DURING THE ANNUAL FIREMEN'S BARBECUE AT HALE ON JULY 2 AND IS ON DISPLAY AT FARMERS AND MERCHANTS BANK.
