Douglas Brown of Hale, chairman of the Iosco County Democratic Party, has requested a public hearing concerning proposed improvements to the Iosco County Building.

In a letter to the county board of commissioners, Brown said the

Iosco County Democratic Party had discussed the proposed county building improvements and felt "that you should have a public hearing before spending any more money on this project."

Said Brown, "There is more to this county to be served than one place."

EMERGENCY REPAIRS were made to the Sixth Avenue bridge over Dead Creek last week by the Tawas City Department of Public Works. A concrete abutment on the bridge, constructed in 1912, has shown deterioration on the south end. Workmen cut through the ice of Dead Creek and placed rock under the footing as a means of preventing further damage during expected high water in the spring. A portion of the roadway which had settled was also patched.—Tawas Herald Photo.

School Concerns Listed Under Management by Objective Plan

Utilizing input from staff members, administrators and board of education members of Tawas Area School held a work session Monday night to score and start a process to identify tentative priorities in a management by objective program.

Five different areas were considered in the study including personnel (human resources, public relations and communications), curriculum and instruction, management and finance, physical plant and operation, need for additional staff.

Areas of concern expressed by individual staff members, administrators and board members at a previous meeting were ranked according to top priority. Each administrator and board member ranked concerns according to individual assessment. Information obtained is to be assessed and discussed at the next work session.

The administration is to review tentative priorities with staff members and adoption of final priorities is to be made March 13 by the board of education and administration. The next step would be to compile priorities into written performance objectives with final administration and board approval of objectives on April 10.

As an example of the priorities listed Monday night, clearer communication between administration and staff was given the top priority in the personnel category. Next in line was improved evaluation of non-tenure teachers, followed by improvement to over-all student and staff discipline, increased staff and administrative morale, increased pride in the school district. There were 12 different concerns in this category.

There were 16 items of concern listed in the curriculum and instruction category. Top ranking was given to improvement to guidance counselor service for eighth graders, a reading laboratory program, improvement to curriculum through a variety of classes, review of high school graduation requirements, strive to regain accreditation, establishment of subject area goals for each classroom program.

In the physical plant and operation category, top priority was given to increased library facilities in elementary and high school grades, followed by the addition of classrooms, use of building trades class for building improvements and additions. There were 13 concerns in this category.

Hiring of a reading teacher for middle school and high school topped the category relative to the need for additional staff. Next in line was a special education director, guidance counselors for elementary and secondary grades, federal program coordinator, expansion of speech and English programs at the high school level, vocational education director, transitional grade teacher.

It was emphasized that lower ranking given concerns expressed by individuals at the previous meeting could mean that those participating in the priority ranking were satisfied with the present performance.

The administration and board of education is to reach a consensus of opinion on which items should be eliminated or placed aside and which items need additional supporting data before a decision is made to include or exclude them as an objective.

In addition, responsibility for the objectives was indicated in Monday night's ratings and an evaluation is to be made concerning what can be done to eliminate the concerns and who will do it.

Public input would be necessary relative to concerns expressed over space problems.

Kesler Organizes Grant Writing Firm; Solicits Enrollment by Area Schools

A proposed subscription news letter service relative to federal grants, along with the service of writing federal grant applications, was submitted Monday night to Tawas Area Board of Education by Ray Kesler of Hale, a retired school superintendent.

With 36 years of experience in education and a former Whittemore-Prescott Area School superintendent, Kesler presently serves as supervisor of Plainfield Township.

He proposed that Tawas Area School subscribe to a service being provided by his new organization, Grants, Incorporated. For a fee of $50 annually, he prepares a news letter concerning federal grants available to schools, plus information concerning bills pending in the state legislature.

In addition, he would provide the service of writing federal grant applications for a fee of $20 per hour, or payment could be based on a percentage of a federal grant actually obtained through his service. Kesler recommended the latter method of payment as there would be no charge to the school district for his service if the federal grant was not obtained.

Kesler said he was just getting started in his new business and that he had recently prepared federal grant applications for two local units of government at no cost. He presently has eight school districts enrolled to receive his news letter and hopes to sign 100 schools.

He said he was not asking for a franchise to be the exclusive grant writer for a school district as a school administrator would not be prevented from preparing grant applications for his own district. He did ask that a school district receiving his news letter not obtain outside assistance when writing a grant application.

The proposal is to be considered by the board of education.

Richard 'Rick' Haglund Editor at West Branch

Richard "Rick" Haglund, a former East Tawas resident, has been named editor of the Ogemaw County Herald, West Branch. The announcement was made last week by Robert E. Perlberg, publisher of the weekly publication. Haglund will assume the position March 1.

A reporter at the Herald for the past 26 months, he has worked in all news areas of the newspaper and has performed most of the photography work since joining the staff in December 1975.

A native of East Tawas, Haglund is a 1971 graduate of Tawas Area High School. While there, he was active in the school newspaper, student government, debate and forensics.

He was graduated from Michigan State University in 1975 with a bachelor of arts degree in journalism. At MSU, Haglund worked as a program director and news announcer for the Michigan State Radio Network, which serves about 25,000 on-campus students and is the largest college radio network in the country.

Haglund is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Haglund of East Tawas.

Social Services Assistant Leaving

Benson (Pete) Beck, director of Iosco County Department of Social Services, announced Tuesday that Kenneth DesArmo, assistant director, leaves to become director of Oscoda County Social Services Department effective next Monday. DesArmo has been with the local department for the past three years.

Stephan Heads TC Park Board

Gary Stephan was re-elected chairman of the Tawas City Park Board during its annual reorganizational meeting last week. John McMurray was named secretary.

Leaking Boiler Closes TC School

Tawas City Elementary Unit is closed Wednesday (today) in order to facilitate repairs to a boiler in the school's heating system.

Prin. Herman Rollin told members of Tawas Area Board of Education Monday night that two tubes in the boiler were leaking water and that the furnace would have to be shut down to make repairs.

Rollin said that the furnace at the Tawas City Elementary Unit was about 12 years old and a recent inspection by an engineer indicated it was in excellent condition. The leaking boiler tubes developed since the inspection.

In other business, the board of education adopted a recommendation of Supt. Robert Halle relative to continuing the board of education's policy requiring mandatory retirement at the age of 65 years, which will affect one elementary teacher at the end of the school term.

The superintendent pointed out, however, that mandatory retirement is presently being reviewed at the state and federal levels and the school district may have to change its policy if there is a change in legislation.

Chamber Sets Quarterly Meeting

According to a news letter from Tawas Area Chamber of Commerce, general quarterly meeting of the organization is to be held March 30 at Tawas Golf and Country Club. The breakfast meeting is to start at 7:00 a. m.

Other chamber activities include the annual Brown Trout Derby set to open April 8 under chairmanship of Robert Spence. Last year, there were about 750 entrants in the derby and the chamber looks for more in 1978. Prizes totaling $2,000 are being offered.

WHITTEMORE-PRESCOTT High School debate team traveled to Grand Rapids for the state championship debate tournament and finished seventh in the state for class C and D teams. The affirmative team of Irving Youngberg, left, and William Britt, right, won all three matches, but the negative team of Chris Hart and John Franklin, center, dropped all three matches. At a brunch sponsored by The Detroit Free Press, the Cardinal debate team was honored by Jon Fitzgerald, executive director of the Michigan Forensic Association. Fitzgerald presented the team with a shield for winning the North-eastern Michigan Conference debate championship. He cited the team for its determination to continue debating, even though the coach, Mrs. Grace Ankey, was critically ill all fall and had recently passed away. The team's desire to continue debating in the face of adversity brought praise from Fitzgerald and many other coaches throughout the state.

Chamber Executive Asks TA Board to Reconsider Dues

Roger Jackson, executive director of Tawas Area Chamber of Commerce, appeared Monday night before Tawas Area Board of Education and asked that it reconsider its recent action in not renewing membership in the organization.

The chamber official pointed out that the chamber of commerce is more than a tourist-oriented organization in that it spends a great deal of time promoting location of industry in the area and in the field of community relations.

He felt that the chamber of commerce had a great deal to do with the success in bringing new jobs to the area through development of the industrial park, which also provided a substantial increase in the tax base supporting schools.

Jackson also pointed out that operation of the chamber of commerce depends 100 percent on membership dues and that tourist promotions were handled by its two suborganizations, Tawas Area Promotions and Tawas Area Winter and Summer.

The chamber executive said that the organization had operated with a deficit during the past two years, but felt that it could operate in the black during the coming year if membership dues are paid.

No official action was taken by the board of education at its work-session, but Trustee Willard Dillon said that the $150 representing membership dues meant quite a bit when the board of education had to borrow money from its soft drink machine profits to pay for much needed window shades for the high school.

Trustee Robert Curry said he could not deny the service provided by the chamber of commerce, but believed that area businesses principally benefited from the chamber of commerce and should support that organization financially. He felt it was difficult to justify the expenditure for membership dues when questioned by taxpayers.

Trustee Randall DeWise, who favored paying the membership, said the chamber of commerce does support the business community, but he felt that everyone in a small community "should stick together."

SBA to Continue Disaster Loans

Small Business Administration announced it will continue to accept physical disaster loan applications until May 25 from Michigan farmers in those counties comprising the disaster area which suffered crop losses due to the excessive rainfall and flooding that occurred August 1 through October 7, 1977. Counties declared eligible for disaster loan assistance are Huron, Saginaw, Sanilac, Tuscola, Arenac, Bay, Genesee, Lapeer and all adjacent counties. Crop losses resulting from drought are not eligible under this declaration.

Beginning the week of March 7 and until further notice, temporary field offices will be located in Caro (Tuscola County) and Standish (Arenac County) two days each week to provide information and loan applications to persons desiring assistance. The Standish office, located in room 204, Arenac County Building, is open Thursdays and Fridays, 8:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m.

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

TODAY'S Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

(Read Romans 12:9-21)
"Care as much about each other as about yourselves." (Romans 12:16 NEB)

I remember my mother as a busy woman who was never too busy to listen to my problems and plans. She always had good advice on how to choose the best and to improve myself.

I admit I did not always like her advice, but I rarely forgot a lesson once she had taught it. I especially remember her lesson on sharing.

My sister wanted to borrow a new sweater of mine. Nice things were rare in our lives and I selfishly wanted to keep this item just for myself. Usually what I wore were clothes my sister had outgrown so a new piece of clothing was a treasure.

My sister needed the sweater for some special occasion and mother was displeased with my unwillingness to share. But she did not demand that I lend the sweater. Instead, she handed me the hymn-book and told me to go to my room and read,

"Have you had a kindness shown? Pass it on."

I lent my sister the sweater and I remembered the lesson.

PRAYER

Lord, we thank You for those who guide us into sharing ourselves and our possessions. We thank You for Christ, who taught us this as no one else could. Amen.

Sharing has an eternal dimension.—Olive W. Mumert (Youngstown, Alberta, Canada)

Fisher-Bernard Wedding Vows Repeated at Hale

A reception at Plainfield Township Hall, which was decorated in pale blue and yellow, followed the exchange of vows Saturday, February 25, at First United Methodist Church, Hale, when Debra Bernard of Bay City became the bride of Randolph Fisher of Essexville.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley Bernard of Hale and the Raymond Fishers of Sterling.

The Rev. James Wilk officiated at the 4 o'clock double ring ceremony before an altar of garden flowers. Vocalist was Perry Shellenbarger with Ann Holzheuer at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight sata peau and Venice lace. The bodice, with fitted sleeves and high neckline, attached to a flowing skirt with lace hemline and chapel train. Accents of Venice lace and tiny pink buds enhanced the gown. To complete her attire, she wore a matching lace edged cathedral veil secured to a Camelot headpiece accented with pearls. Her bouquet was comprised of golden town crier roses in a traditional crescent design with ivory chrysanthemums and babies breath.

Mrs. Bruce Bernard, matron of honor, and Mrs. Jay Lee, bridesmaid, wore aqua gowns with spaghetti straps complemented by floral chiffon jackets. Their arm bouquets contained lime carnations, aqua daisies and babies breath.

Roger Gomez of Saginaw assumed the duties of best man for the bridegroom. Groomsman was Alan Malenfant, also of Saginaw, with the bride's brother, Bruce Bernard, and Ronald Fisher, brother of the bridegroom, as ushers.

Mrs. Bernard greeted guests in an aqua gown with cape flowing from a mandarin neckline. Mrs. Fisher was attired in mint green polyester gown with chiffon sleeves and featuring a keyhole neckline. They wore miniature carnation corsages to complement their attire.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to Toronto, Ontario, Canada, the new Mr. and Mrs. Fisher will reside at 4535 Woodbridge, Apartment No. 3, Bay City.

The bride, a graduate of Hale Area High School, earned an associate degree in nursing from North Central Michigan College and her husband has an associate degree in radiologic technology from Delta College. They are both employed at Saginaw General Hospital.

Out-of-town guests were present from Fraser, Bay City, Saginaw, Sterling, Ypsilanti, Davison, Beaverton, Big Rapids, Merrill, Sandusky, Houghton Lake, Detroit and Lansing.

The program starts at 9:30 a. m. when the exhibition area opens to the public. Included in the exhibit will be agricultural equipment, tools, feed, plus information on marketing and landscaping.

Six different themes will highlight morning meetings. Topics are as follows:

Laws and Michigan farmers, concerning laws affecting farmers and property tax credits. Sen. Robert Young, Dr. Lawrence Libby of Michigan State University and Rube Kaarre of Ogemaw County will be on the panel.

Kenneth Kernstock, agricultural agent for Iosco County, and Zane Helsel, Michigan State University, are listed on a program for forage production and marketing. Included will be species and variety selection, methods of establishment, maintenance of stands, economics and marketing.

Susan Lambrecht of Iosco County will conduct a program entitled "Dollar Watch." This will compare budgets of farm families through the use of a computer and will offer suggestions for budget changes to save money.

Margaret Mielock of Ogemaw County will present a program on convenience cooking for the farm family, which will emphasize effective use of appliances, conservation of energy and how to minimize preparation time.

Bean production will be discussed by Dr. Milton Erdmann and Gary Schultz of Michigan State University, along with County Agent Russell Howes of Arenac County.

Robert Ojala of Oscoda County and Arthur Ziehl, Tawas City lawn and garden supply center owner, will present a program of pointers on how to care for plants.

Lunch is available in the building from 12 o'clock noon until 1:00 p. m.

Afternoon meetings are to be held from 1:15 to 3 o'clock and include six different topics. Programs to be repeated include convenience foods for the farm family, pointers on how to care for plants, laws and Michigan farmers, dollar watch.

One of the main speakers of the day will be Dr. William Stout of Michigan State University, who will present a program on energy for agriculture. The program will outline the history of energy sources, what can be expected in the future, energy alternatives and conservation.

Corn production will be another important afternoon session, to be conducted by Erdmann of Michigan State University. He will discuss varieties of corn, fertilizer use, tillage management, insect and weed control.

Hot Idea for a COLD DAY—Cash In With A Herald Classified!

THESE UNIDENTIFIED WOMEN posed for Emery the photographer at East Tawas around the turn of the century. They had attended a quilting bee at a church and the photographer recorded this rare scene on a five by seven-inch glass plate. Note the quilt held by the lady at left and bits of cloth scattered on the floor. A news item concerning such a party was printed as follows by the local paper on April 9, 1910: A quilting bee was held at the home of Mrs. James Syme of Wilber last Monday afternoon. After a bountiful supper, the "quilters" went to the home of Mrs. Samuel Stanton, where Mrs. Syme, on behalf of the ladies, presented six quilts to Mrs. Stanton. A recent fire in the Stanton home destroyed considerable bedding and neighbors and friends came to the relief of the family in the manner mentioned.

An old-fashioned quilting bee would be a rarity, even an oddity worthy of extensive press coverage, in today's scheme of modern living. A couple of generations ago, a quilting bee was still the highlight of the social season for women of rural America.

Rural women may still get together at times in some parts of the country to socialize and assemble those "crazy quilts" which were once considered to be an essential and decorative item in the bedroom. But any quilting bee today would be held for a far different reason than those held from earliest colonial times to the early 1900s.

In great grandmother's day, the end product of the quilting bees often provided colorful coverlets for young homemakers, who were just getting started with family life. Although the bits of scrap materials which were cut into blocks and sewn together had no particular pattern, designs created in certain areas of the country are considered today to be valuable works of primitive household art and demand high prices on the antique market.

Now, such a bee would be considered a means of raising money by raffling off the finished product at a church bazaar or for some worthy charity; in times gone by, the quilting bee offered a brief interlude in the busy day of rural women.

For physical and mental relaxation, the quilting party and afternoon tea party were just the thing. Here, the weary ladies got a new lease on life and many such quilting bees were held in Iosco County.

The Farmer's Everyday Book, printed during the middle of the nineteenth century, was a valuable treatise for country folk. It stated that quilting parties "offered the current news of the day, true and false, probable and improbable, which was analyzed and collated as if prepared for a revised edition of the press. Here, too, fashions and morals are duly expounded. Nor are the probabilities or improbabilities of future matrimonial alliances overlooked."

On occasion, the spirit of neighborliness common in the country sometimes degenerated into nosiness and gossip. "Slander, like the dropped pebble which sets the whole surface of the quiet pool in motion, is sometimes propagated through the whole community on the concentric waves of the social breath," stated that long forgotten tome.

Nevertheless, those gatherings of long ago served a great social purpose: They sent the ladies happily back home with something new to think about.

There is no doubt about the fact that the ladies needed some respite from their household chores and something new to think about. Without radio and television and with fewer forms of public entertainment available, rural women needed the recreation and intellectual stimulation offered by the social gatherings.

To most rural women shut up in the kitchen, there seemed to be no summer, spring or autumn—only dreary winter. Millions of American girls grew into womanhood in farm houses and, during that earlier era, the majority of them became farmers' wives.

The majority of girls growing up on Iosco County's farms had educational advantages undreamed of by their mothers—the countryside was dotted with schools by the 1870s and 1880s. Most of them grasped every opportunity available to secure as much learning as possible.

Every farmer needed a good helpmate to share in the responsibilities for making their way in life. The wife's responsibilities included, besides raising their children, the endless hours devoted to the kitchen, maintaining the house, the washtub, the mending basket, making soap, caring for the chickens and helping in the field when the occasion arose.

In a booklet published during the 1968 Plainfield Township centennial, Grace Adams recalled that the threshing season was an exciting time on the farm. "The housewife baked and prepared all food possible a day or so in advance. The neighbor women came and helped as the crew usually consisted of 12 to 14 men—all hungry hands at the end of a strenuous day of work in the fields.

"The dinner was all prepared on the farm—homemade bread, butter, creamed cabbage, sliced tomatoes, squash, potatoes, chicken and pies of every kind," recalled Mrs. Adams.

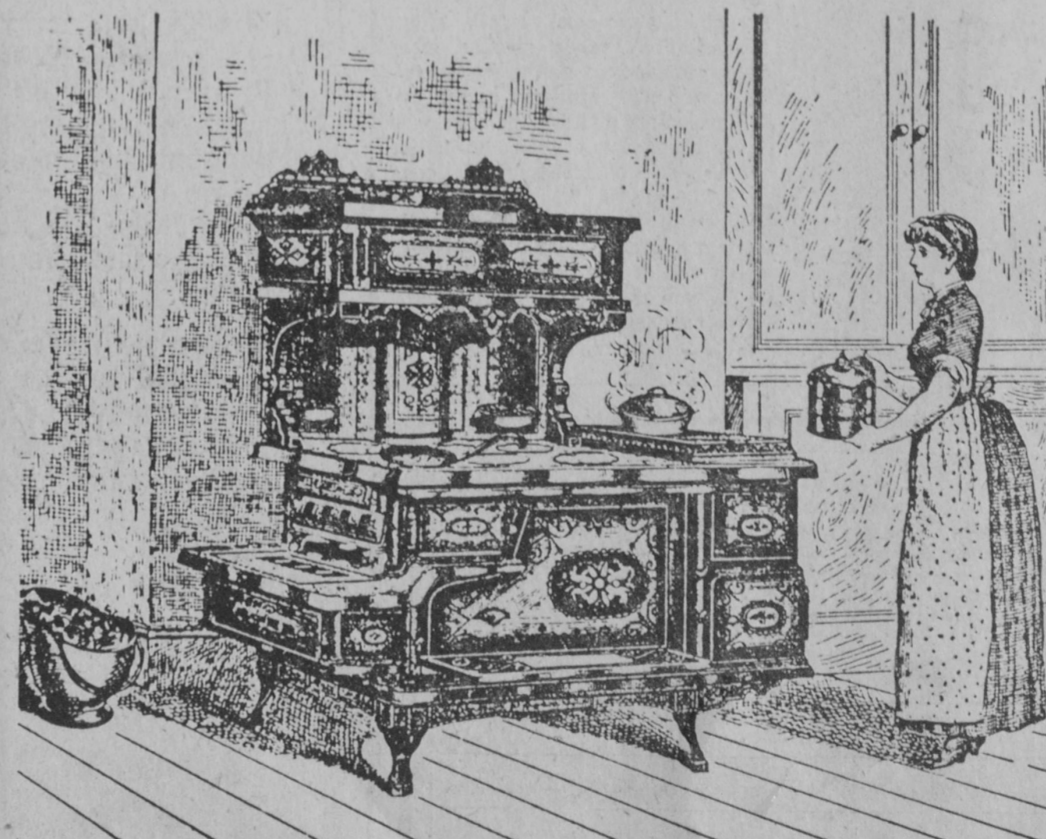

Because of the time required for traveling to the nearest town, the farm housewife also was called upon to minister to health needs when illness struck. Many times, she was doctor and nurse to members of her own family, as well as assisting neighbors in times of need.

It is recorded that one Iosco County housewife and her husband settled in the wilderness of Iosco County in the 1870s. There were no neighbors and a year passed before she met another woman. When she did, she broke down and cried.

A woman's work is never done is an old adage which certainly applied to the rural housewife. It is no wonder that she enjoyed the brief moments of relaxation provided by the old-fashioned quilting bee.

Only brief mention was made in columns of the Herald concerning early-day quilting bees and that bit of Americana has been lost forever. A picture showing ladies attending a quilting bee has survived and is used to illustrate this story.

Many of the quilts which were sewn together by industrious hands of long ago have survived to this day. Most are handed down from generation to generation and are prized family possessions. What a story they could tell if they could only speak!

A WOMAN'S WORK is never done, so they say, and much of the work by farm women centered around kitchen ranges such as the one pictured here. This elegant stove must have graced the home of some well to do family, unless the artist took license with perspective in this print. The scuttle on the floor at left indicates that coal was used in the stove, whereas farms had an abundant supply of wood and used it. This delightful work of Victorian craftsmanship sold in the iron monger's store would command a high price in any antique shop today.

ELECTRICITY - CUTTING BACK

In light of our current energy situation in Michigan, this column had to be devoted to ways to conserve energy, especially electric energy. The only question was how to convey the idea that everyone needs to conserve till it hurts. What does that mean? One news article defined "conserve till it hurts" as turning off all lights when the room is empty, washing only full loads of laundry and not playing stereos all the time. It seems that these are good places to start but that all of us could do even better.

A talk with Ohioans who weathered a bleak winter in 1977 with power cut-backs may inspire us to turn down the furnace a little more. Even gas furnaces use electricity to operate blowers. Insulate hot water heater and pipes. Special kits are available which are inexpensive and easy to use. Unplug instant on television even when switch is off, otherwise it uses electricity all the time. Shut off any unused rooms until warm weather. Take daily readings of the electric meter to tell how well the conservation efforts are working. It will encourage everyone to see some progress. Check with Consumers Power or the Cooperative Extension Service for more energy conserving ideas.

If a brownout or blackout occurs, turn off major appliances, television sets, washers, dryers, water heaters, dishwashers and ovens. When full power is back, appliances may safely be turned on. In case of a blackout, shut off everything except the refrigerator and freezer and avoid opening them. A fully-loaded freezer should keep without electricity for 24 hours. If power returns after being off more than 24 hours, check for thawed food; either cook it immediately or throw it away.

Midway Family Center Conserves Electricity

Richard A. Walton, president of Midway Family Center, Incorporated, announced that this family center chain is doing its part to conserve electrical power in all of its locations.

According to Walton, the following steps have been taken in all locations: All decorative in-store lighting has been turned off; wherever possible, all outdoor signs have been turned off; all in-store overhead lighting has been reduced by at least one third; all refrigerated and display-case lights have been turned off; all parking lot lights not necessary for customer safety are turned off; all store thermostats are now set at 65 degrees, and all storage area lights are drastically reduced.

"We hope that these steps will be understood by our customers and others will follow us in trying to conserve our energy," said Walton.

Midway Family Center operates stores in Central and Northern Michigan.

Applications Now Available for Turkey Season

Michigan turkey hunters have until midnight Monday, March 6, to make application for a limited number of turkey hunting licenses, according to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. This year's season, which will be more liberal than last year's, begins in late April and ends in mid-May. The DNR plans to make 9,775 licenses available in 1978, compared to 6,375 a year ago when 17,000 hunters applied for permits.

In the Mio district, turkeys are increasing to the extent that the DNR has received complaints of turkey damage from some area farmers and hunting clubs. Because of that increased gobbler population, the DNR will permit an increased number of hunters in the Mio district this year.

There will be four four-day hunts for each of the eight areas around Mio, three five-day hunts for the Baldwin area and three five-day hunts for the Allegan area.

Shooting hours are from 6:00 a. m. until noon for the entire season and a bag limit of one bearded turkey will be in effect. Hunters may use shotguns or bow and arrows, but they may not carry or use backshot, ball, cut shell or slug loads while hunting. Dogs or electronic recordings are not permitted.

To apply for a turkey license, one must possess a small game or sportsman's license and be at least 12 years old. Application can be either individually or with one partner, but not both ways.

If total applications exceed the quota for any hunting period in any of the areas, a drawing will be held to determine the successful applicants.

License application packets are available at DNR district offices, field offices, Tawas Point State Park and at the Lansing and Detroit information offices.

Voluntary Quits Subject of Saginaw Hearing March 3

A public hearing is to be held Friday, March 3, 10:00 a. m., at the Saginaw Township Hall, 4980 Shattuck, concerning voluntary quits relative to workmen's benefits.

House Speaker Bobby Grim has appointed a special 13-member ad hoc house committee to study the subject under the chairmanship of Rep. Claude Trim of Davisburg. A number of hearings have been held around the state.

The Michigan Employment Security Act provides: "An individual shall be disqualified for benefits in all cases in which he has left work voluntarily without good cause attributable to the employer."

However, an individual who has voluntarily quit can lift the disqualification by serving a 13-week requalification period, then can receive benefits for the balance of benefit periods.

The voluntary quit provisions have been a subject of much controversy. Employers, private and public, large and small, claim there are serious abuses; labor representatives claim that the voluntary quits, in many cases, are involuntary and that the act should be changed to cover payments for quits due to "necessitous or compelling reasons."

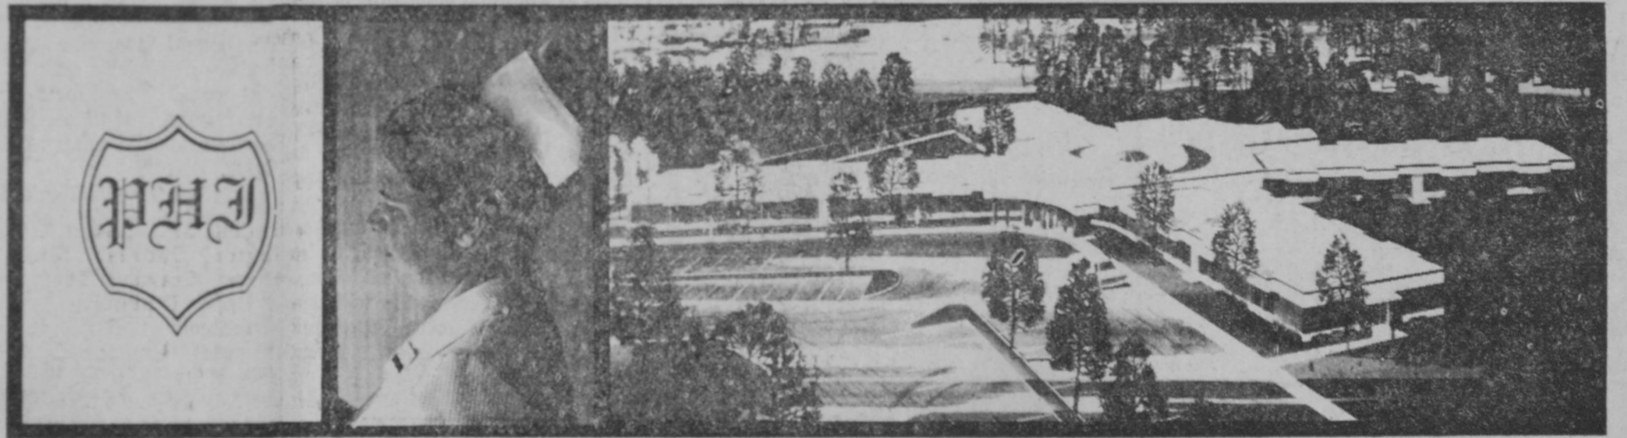

Persons interested with this problem may testify on their experiences, at the Saginaw hearing. Written documentation is advised to complement oral comments on the facts presented.

The Modern Concept in Skilled Nursing Facilities

— Where Quality of Life Is The Way of Life —

The first responsibility of any nursing home, of course, is to provide excellent nursing care. However, in 17 other Provincial Houses around the state, we also strive to create a quality of life that enriches the life of each resident entrusted to our care. This quality of life is a combination of things. It's the environment of the facilities themselves; the staffs which provide care to our residents; and the attitudes which prevail in our nursing homes.

A complete program of restorative care will be provided at our new Tawas City nursing home. This will enable each resident to realize his maximum potential as a member of the nursing home's community... or as a member of his own community, upon his return home.

When the new Provincial House of Tawas City opens in June, it will provide:

- rehabilitative and convalescent care to all ages
- 24-hour nursing care
- registered nurses
- dietician
- activities director
- resident council
- religious services
- staff physician
- physical therapist
- beauty and barber services
- reimbursement programs, to include Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross, indemnity insurance, and private payment plans.

For more information, or to inquire about admission, write Provincial House, Inc., 4000 North Grand River, Lansing, Michigan 48906.

We would welcome the opportunity to speak to civic organizations to acquaint the community with Provincial House and our services.

TO THE CUSTOMERS OF MICHIGAN CONSOLIDATED GAS COMPANY

Notice of Hearing on a Conservation Program Involving Natural Gas Rates

On June 6, 1977, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company (Applicant) filed an application requesting that the Commission (1) issue its ruling, pursuant to Section 63 of 1969 PA 306, declaring that a proposed program for the conservation of natural gas is a utility function within the scope of the service rendered by Applicant as a public utility and that the cost thereof is a proper charge to utility cost of service; (2) establish standards relative to the type and installation of conservation devices; (3) approve, pursuant to Section 7 of 1919 PA 419, the revision of Rule 32 to Applicant's Schedule of Rules, Regulations and Rates for Gas Service; and (4) approve the contract proposed to be entered into between Applicant and a new subsidiary, Michigan Consolidated Conservation Company (Conservation Company).

Applicant is a Michigan corporation having its principal offices at One Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226, and is engaged in the distribution of natural gas at retail to approximately one million customers in its Districts of Detroit, Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Ann Arbor, Big Rapids, Greenville-Belding, Mt. Pleasant, Traverse City, Ludington, Cadillac, Manistee, Petoskey, Alpena, Grayling, Tawas, Cheboygan, and Upper Peninsula, all within the State of Michigan.

Applicant states that approximately 880,000 or 88% of its 1,000,000 customers are residential heating customers who use natural gas to heat their dwellings and that conservation of energy has become a high priority national goal and one of the specifics of that goal is conservation of fuel used for home heating. Applicant has also studied the most economical and cost-effective means of upgrading the insulation of residences and suggests that the key means of conserving natural gas expended for space heating is to install or add insulation in ceilings so as to provide 6 inches of such insulation. Applicant also states that it has conducted field tests to determine the effectiveness of five different devices designed to improve the efficiency of furnaces and reduce the heat loss that occurs through flues and chimneys. Applicant believes that a flue restrictor and reduced orifice appear to be the most cost-effective methods of achieving greater furnace efficiency. Applicant also states that significant savings of natural gas can be obtained by the combination of these two methods. It states that when insulation is installed first and furnace devices afterwards, annual savings are likely to be in the range of 60 Mcf. of gas per customer.

Applicant has prepared and submitted to the Commission a plan for implementation of a gas conservation program to promote the installation by its residential space heating customers of insulation and the retrofit devices such as the flue restrictor and reduced orifice, which should substantially increase furnace efficiency. The implementation of the gas conservation program as proposed by Applicant will include a major effort to communicate to the public in Applicant's service area both the pressing need for conservation of natural gas and the contribution which home insulation and furnace retrofitting can make to the national goal.

In the interest of maximizing the effort to obtain the fullest participation by customers, Applicant proposes to form the Conservation Company to assume the task of contacting all of Applicant's residential customers for the purpose of persuading them to install insulation in their ceilings and install furnace retrofit devices pursuant to standards to be set by the Commission. Conservation Company will secure financing sufficient to enable it to carry out the gas conservation program including the cost of installing ceiling insulation and furnace retrofit devices pursuant to the plan. In consideration for carrying out the activities described above, Applicant would agree to pay Conservation Company monthly (a) the monthly sums due under each customer contract entered into by Conservation Company for the installation of ceiling insulation and/or furnace retrofit devices and (b) all costs incurred by Conservation Company for labor, interest, taxes, advertising and general administrative costs together with an appropriate return on equity as specified in the contract between the parties.

Applicant further submits that the cost of administering and implementing the program will be a proper part of Applicant's utility cost of service, to be recovered through its rates and Applicant has requested that the Commission issue a ruling so finding and provide in an appropriate order for the recovery of the costs described by a monthly customer surcharge to be added to all of Applicant's rate schedules.

Now Best Time to Prune Trees, Despite the Weather

In spite of the often forbidding weather, this is the best time to prune trees.

One reason, says Michael Walterscheid, an urban forester at Michigan State University, is that it is a slack time for landscape maintenance. Tree fertilizing time comes in March and tree planting time in April. Lawn care time has not arrived yet and the home garden is still in the wish-book stage. Except for shoveling snow, what is there to do?

"Another good reason to prune trees now is that, with the leaves off, one can clearly see the tree's branches and limbs," he points out. Weak, V-shaped crotches that are likely to split under the weight of a load of late winter ice and the dead, decayed or brittle branches that might snap off in a wind storm can be seen."

Remove these potential trouble spots while trees are small and can be reached without special equipment, or at least before they become too big to handle.

If hiring the job done, late winter is still a good time. It is a slow time for tree services, so quicker service and a lower rate than in mid-summer may be had.

Eliminating weak spots is not the only reason for pruning, according to Walterscheid. Providing clearance under trees for pedestrians and vehicles is often a necessary chore, especially in urban areas. Improving a tree's appearance can be another aim of proper pruning.

Poor pruning, of course, can damage a tree in a number of ways.

"Pruning cuts should be made flush with the trunk or branch," he advises. "Stumps of branches left after pruning will die and decay. And the decay may spread into the main stem or large branches."

A good pruning job maintains the tree's natural shape. The classic poor pruning job is the flat-top, a tactic usually resorted to when a tree has grown up into the wires it was planted under. Rather than remove the tree entirely, the top is cut off parallel to the ground.

"This kind of pruning ruins the appearance and the physical structure of the tree," Walterscheid says. "The multitude of new shoots the tree puts out are too numerous and they grow at weak angles. To produce them, the tree draws heavily on its reserves and so becomes unusually susceptible to drought stress, disease and attack by insects."

Careful selection of trees so that they do not outgrow their planting sites should prevent the kinds of problems that lead to such drastic measures.

Pruning as part of a regular tree maintenance program does not need to be a yearly chore. Walterscheid suggests that pruning every three or four years should be sufficient.

Painting pruning wounds is a somewhat controversial practice just now. Some research has shown that painted wounds actually decayed faster than untreated wounds. Moisture sealed in by pruning paint tends to make the cut surface a good place for decay organisms to get established, he explained.

"Pruning paint does serve one good purpose, however, and that is to make pruning wounds less noticeable," Walterscheid says. "Use a light coat—just enough to darken the fresh wood. And make sure a product made for this purpose is used. Creosote, roofing tar and driveway sealer may look something like pruning paint but they are toxic to trees."

If pruned late in winter, maples, birches and walnuts will bleed sap from the pruning cuts. It does not hurt the tree, but frequently distresses the tree's owner. To avoid this problem, wait until just before the leaves come out to prune.

Orientation Held for AARP Directors

An orientation meeting for new directors and assistant directors of the American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association was held in Washington, D. C., from February 13 through 16. Members of AARP and NRTA were present from all parts of the United States. Gertrude Reece, assistant state director from East Tawas, attended the meetings.

5:00 p. m. each day and included presentations and workshops. Cyril Brickfield, executive director, pointed out that the organization has 11-million members, that people today live longer and are healthier and better educated than other generations and that wisdom and talent should not be wasted.

AARP, whose motto is, "To serve and not be served," is working for a national health policy with the feeling that everyone should be entitled to health care. Other aims of the group are to abolish age discrimination in retirement and credit areas, improvement in Medicare payments and nursing and home care. The group is funding projects to reduce crime against the elderly and also a tax aide program that has helped over 12-million older Americans. The feeling of the leaders of the group is that they not only wish to add years to life but life to years. Six buses transported the group to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, for a day-long tour of the Colonial Penn Insurance Company followed by a dinner at Sheraton Hotel.

SSI Can Aid People Who Need Assistance

Supplemental security income (SSI) monthly payments can make a big difference in the lives of people who need additional income, a social security representative said today.

SSI makes payments to people 65 and over or disabled or blind who do not have much income and who do not own much property that can be turned into cash.

These payments, along with the person's other income, can mean a little better life, the spokesperson went on. The basic purpose of the SSI program is to provide monthly checks when they are needed so that those eligible can have a basic cash income—$177.80 a month for one person and $266.70 a month for a married couple.

This does not mean everyone gets that much in the SSI check. Some people get less because they already have other income. Some get more because they live in a State that adds money to the Federal payments. (Add local data if appropriate.)

A single person can have assets—items owned—worth up to $1,500 and get checks. The amount for a couple is $2,250. Assets include savings accounts, stocks, bonds, jewelry, and other valuables.

Not everything counts as an asset. For example, a house doesn't count and neither does an older car, nor does a small insurance policy. Personal effects or household goods do not count either.

People can have some money coming in and still get SSI checks. The first $20 a month generally does not count. Income above $20 a month, except earnings, generally reduces the SSI payment.

People who work while they get SSI can earn as much as $65 in a month without causing any reduction in their SSI check. The check is reduced $1 for every $2 the person earns above $65 (or $85 if the person has no other income).

The SSI check may be reduced if the eligible person lives in someone else's household, with a son or daughter, for example.

SSI is not the same as social security. And a person can get a SSI check even if he or she gets a small social security check.

People can get more information about SSI by calling or visiting any social security office. The address and telephone number of the nearest office can be found in the telephone directory under "Social Security Administration."

Skillet Applesauce Rolls

Apples and bread have always been compatible. They combine well in coffee cake, bread puddings, poultry stuffings and numerous casseroles and desserts. This recipe combines smooth, canned applesauce with hot roll mix to make sticky rolls that will be welcome for brunch, kaffee klatsch or dessert for dinner. It's a real quickie because packaged roll mix eliminates measuring ingredients. And by using canned applesauce you eliminate peeling, coring, slicing, cooking and sieving the apples. Canned applesauce is cooked; however, the recipe calls for ten minutes of additional cooking to concentrate the juice to achieve a more syrupy, sticky texture, characteristic of sticky rolls.

SKILLET APPLESAUCE ROLLS

- 1 (13-3/4 ounce) package roll mix
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups smooth applesauce
- 1/3 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans
- Cinnamon

Most cooks don't use skillets as baking pans. Actually a heavy skillet makes a fine pan for baking bread as it heats evenly and in the case of applesauce rolls, it helps achieve a glossy, caramelized bottom on the rolls. Butter and brown sugar are melted in the skillet first and the rolls are arranged cut side up on that mixture. If the handle on the skillet is not ovenproof, cover it well with heavy aluminum foil.

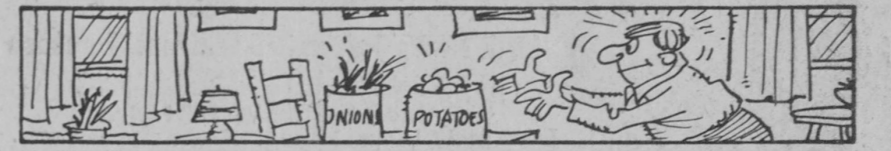

Canned applesauce comes in smooth and chunky styles. Be sure to use the smooth kind as it's been finely sieved which will give a more even distribution of flavor and sauce throughout the rolls.

Prepare roll mix according to directions on package, adding 2 tablespoons sugar to dry ingredients. Cover; let rise until doubled in bulk. Meanwhile add 2 tablespoons butter to applesauce; cook 10 minutes to evaporate some of the liquid, stirring occasionally. Cool. Melt remaining 4 tablespoons butter in 9-inch skillet; add brown sugar; heat until dissolved.

Roll out dough to 17 x 9-inch rectangle. Spread with cooled applesauce and sprinkle with pecans and cinnamon. Roll up jelly roll fashion. Cut in 1-1/2 inch slices. Arrange cut side up in pan on sugar mixture. Cover; let rise until doubled in bulk.

Bake in 400° F. oven for 20-25 minutes or until golden brown. Serve hot. Makes 16 rolls.

Don't store onions and potatoes together; the onions can sprout or rot in the moisture potatoes give off.
